Verſ. 12. The words of a wiſe mans mouth are gracious, but the lips of a foole will ſwallow up himſelfe, according to others, deſtroy himſelfe, which is his meaning, for, many by their own words, are intangled and cut off, if they ſpeake againſt their King, and many more for blaſpheming God ſhall periſh for ever; but the words of the wiſe are gracious, they ſpeake not but to edification, and although for their earneſſe againſt ſinne many diſtaſte them, yet to the godly or docible, thoſe words of theirs are gracious, but of this before.

Verſ. 13. The beginning of the words of his mouth is fooliſhneſſe, and the end of his talke is miſchievous madneſſe. Here that is further amplified, which was ſaid of a fooles lips, as he beginneth ſo he endeth, take all his ſpeeches from the firſt to the laſt, none ſavour of wiſdome more then other, but all of folly and miſchievous madneſſe, if he beginneth to detract, curſe, or blaſpheme, he goeth on like a madman, and no end is to be expected of his ſo doing.

Verſ. 14. A foole alſo is full of words, a man cannot tell what ſhall be; and what ſhall be after him who can tell? Againſt multiplying words Salomon ſpake often before, in the Booke of the Proverbs, and verſ. 11. he calleth this babling; The Philoſophers note, that God hath given a man one mouth, but two eares, to ſhew that a man ſhould heare more then ſpeak; and Virgil was wont to ſay, That a man ſhould not ſpeake, but either when taciturnity will hurt, or by ſpeaking he may profit others. For the next clauſe, of no mans knowing what ſhall be, enough hath been ſaid before, upon Chap. 8. 7. Here it is repeated againe, in reference to that which is ſaid, of fooles deſtroying themſelves by their owne ſpeeches; this admonition is by them deſpiſed, becauſe no man knoweth what ſhall be hereafter, and therefore not that any ſuch thing ſhall befall them, for the making of which the more plaine, Lavater inſerteth, he ſaith, None can tell.

Verſ. 15. The labour of the fooliſh wearieth every one of them, becauſe he knoweth not how to goe to the City; That is, they toyle themſelves about getting the knowledge of Naturall and Worldly things; for ſo did the Philoſophers to finde out the ſecrets of Nature, and ſome the Philoſophers Stone, to the perfection of which knowledge yet they can never attaine; but herein their fooliſhneſſe appeares, that in the midſt of all their ſtudies, they indeavour not to know the way into the City, the new Jeruſalem, in entring into which, true happineſſe conſiſteth;
1 Cor. 1. for even the wiſe of this world are fooliſh in regard of Divine knowledge, which yet every one knoweth ſo farre forth as conduceth to his Salvation, that is preordained unto life. To this effect it is ſaid, Pſal. 107. 4. They wandred in the Wilderneſſe, and found no City to dwell in.

Hierom. Thus Jerom, Olympiodorus, and other ancients, and Lavater; The City is Olympiod. the Church, ſaith Jerom, the way to which the Philoſophers of the Heathen, and Cajetan. the wiſe of this world, and Hereticks know not. Cajetan ſaith, that a fooliſh and wicked Ruler is here meant, by whom all are troubled wonderfully; and in ſaying, He knoweth not to goe into the City, he knoweth not how to goe in and out; That is, to governe as he ſhould doe, which the next words ſo ſeeme to favour.

Verſ. 16. Woe to thee (O Land) when thy King is a childe, and eateth in the morning,&c. Here are two evils in Kings denoted, which make a people miſerable.

Firſt, want of diſcretion, or of yeares, for not only he is a childe that is very young, but that is of little underſtanding and judgement; ſometimes the want of yeares is no prejudice to the Kingdome, for Solomon was but twelve yeares old when he began to reigne, Joaſh began at ſix, and godly Joſiah at eight, and both Solomon and Joaſh did worſe in their old age; Rehoboam had yeares enough, for he was forty, but yet he was as a childe for wiſdome, but many times children in yeares coming to this high dignity are a great curſe to a Land, for they will not be ruled by the counſell of the wiſe.

The ſecond evil is exceſſe in eating, and drinking, in the King, and his Princes; by eating in a morning is meant, both intentiveneſſe to things pertaining to gluttony and drunkenneſſe, for it is a phraſe familiar with the Hebrewes, to expreſſe a mans doing any thing with all earneſtneſſe, to ſay, doe it in the morning, and unſeaſonableneſſe, being occupied about things pertaining to the belly, when they ſhould be hearing and judging of Cauſes; for of old they uſed to come and ſit in the Gate in the morning, and the Romans followed this order; Firſt in the morning to heare Cauſes, then to attend upon Divine things, hereby to be the better prepared, and after this to ſit in Judgement. On the contrary ſide, there is a time when a Land is happy in the King, and Magiſtrates under him, for they are meant by Princes, viz. Lavater.

Verſ. 17. When the King is the ſonne of Nobles, and the Princes eate for ſtrength, and not for drunkenneſſe. Here by the Son of Nobles underſtand, not ſo much one deſcended from Kings, from whom he can draw a long pedigree, but the vertuous Sonne of a vertuous Father, for vertue, and not the high parentage of which a man cometh, innobles him; for what was Solomons owne Father David, but a Shepheard, and a younger Brother? yet for his vertue a moſt noble King; and it was Solomons wiſdome, wherein his glory principally lay, for temperance in eating and drinking, as it is to be enſued by all, ſo ſpecially by Chriſtian Kings and Princes, as is alſo ſaid, Prov. 31. in Bathſheba her inſtructions.

Verſ. 18. Through much ſlothfulneſſe the building decayeth, and through idleneſſe of the hands, the houſe droppeth through. Of the loſſe and hurt coming by idleneſſe it hath been often ſpoken before, Prov. 6. and 24, &c. here another loſſe is mentioned, to ſtirre up all men to diligence, and induſtriouſneſſe in his place and calling, he that is not, if a little decay be begun in his houſe, ſhall have it in time all ruined.

Verſ. 19. Lavater. A feaſt is made for laughter, and wine maketh merry, but mercy anſwereth all things. This, ſaith Lavater, is ſpoken to ſtirre men up to be induſtrious, for as idleneſſe brings to poverty, and all things to ruine; ſo induſtry and diligence bringeth in riches through Gods bleſſing, ſo that a man may now feaſt and be merry, as having his purſe full of money, whereby both wine and good cheere may be bought. Of the diligent hand making rich, and plenty in the houſe of the diligent, it was ſpoken before in the Proverbs. Some, he ſaith, expound it of Kings, who live in idleneſſe and pleaſure, feaſting, and making merry out of the monies which they unjuſtly exact of their Subjects, till their houſes goe to ruine; and thus it anſwereth well to that which was ſaid againſt Kings and Princes being Children, and eating in the morning, verſ. 16, 17. But it may alſo be extended to all men that live in idleneſſe, and making merry, for by this meanes their houſes goe to ruine, and the money which ſhould repaire them, is thus waſted, and their families are brought to great want. Prov. 19. 10. 11

Verſ. 20. Curſe not the King, no not in thy thought, and curſe not the rich in thy Bedchamber, for a bird of the aire will carry the voyce, and that which hath wings ſhall tell the matter. Having admoniſhed us to yeeld, and not to be haſty, when great men are offended with us, ver. 4. now he reſumes the ſame argument againe, and giveth us warning againſt curſing, or ſpeaking evill againſt ſuch in the greateſt privacie that may be, for it ſhall ſoone be diſcovered by one meanes or other, and then what can be expected but ruine through their power. And the birds revealing, it is ſpoken of to ſhew, that great ſinnes cannot be ſo ſecretly committed, Note. but when God will, the very birds ſhall be a meanes of bringing them to light, and the man that ſinneth ſo, to condigne puniſhment.

Plutarch. As for Murther, Plutarch telleth of one Beſſus, that had murthered his Father, and afterwards going to Supper, he ſaw a Swallowes Neſt with young in it, and killed them with his ſpeare, and being for this blamed by the ſtanders by as cruell, he replyed; That Swallowes once accuſed him falſly, for murthering his Father, but it was ſoone by this meanes proved to be true, he was apprehended, and brought before the Magiſtrate, and was found guilty, and executed therefore.
And many other murthers have likewiſe by birds been diſcovered, and by other miraculous meanes, and the Murtherers therefore cut off; and becauſe he forbiddeth curſing of them in the very thought, it appeareth to be a great ſinne before Note. God, if there be an evill intention againſt rulers in the mind, although it cometh not to execution; for this is a degree to rebellion, that howſoever we be by rulers provoked, we may refreine our very ſpirits, and much more our tongues from reviling them for Gods ſake, whoſe vice-gerents they are, and ſo that which is thought or done againſt them, in a rebellious way, is done againſt God, who will be revenged; yet this is not ſo ſaid to tye up the tongues of godly Miniſters from ſpeaking, as Jer. 1. 17. their duty is, againſt their ſins, that they may be reformed; for John Baptiſt ſpared not thus to ſpeake againſt Herod, nor Elijah againſt Ahab, nor other Prophets againſt other Kings, yea the Lord threatens Jeremiah, if he ſpake not all that he commanded againſt wicked Kings, or Peoples, that he would ſlay him.
And this charge againſt curſing the King followeth well after that of houſes coming to ruine, as idleneſſe, and prodigall ſpending; ſo this being one meanes of overthrowing and bringing to ruine great houſes, as experience hath formerly taught in the time of ſundry Kings in this Land, and it would be inculcated into the eares of all that take the like rebellious courſes at any time, to make them to feare, and repent; for if curſing with the tongue ſtirres up God miraculouſly to bring it to light, and to puniſhment, much more is he provoked by violence done to their perſons; and although their judgement that doe ſo be deferred, the time ſhall come, that they ſhall not be acquitted as guiltleſſe, unleſſe they be extraordinarily by God ſtirred up, as Jehu againſt Jehoram; or in caſe that an Uſurper reigneth, as Jehojadah againſt Athaliah.

CHAP. XI.

Verſ. 1. C*Aſt thy bread upon the waters, for thou ſhalt finde it after many dayes*;
It was a Proverb amongſt the Greekes touching one that beſtowed his coſt upon that, from which he was never like to reape any anſwerable benefit againe, he hath caſt it into the waters; and likewiſe ſaith Lavater, amongſt the Ger- Lavater. mans, and it ſeemeth that the Hebrewes had ſuch a Proverb alſo.

And Salomon in ſaying ſo, meaneth, Give thy bread to the poore, for ſo ver. 2.
Verſ. 2. explaineth it, Give a portion to ſeven, and alſo to eight; for he that giveth his bread to the poore, who eate it, and are not able to repay it him againe, doth like a man, that caſteth it into the Sea, where it ſinketh, and is never ſeene more; for ſo it ſeemeth to bee if it be looked upon with a carnall eye, which is given to the poore; but the Lord promiſeth here, and in ſundry other places, that it ſhall not be ſo, if it be done, the left hand not knowing what the right hand doth, if in ſecret, the praiſe of man not being thus hanked after, and as it here followeth, not Matth. 6. a few, but many be relieved, no difference being put by ſaying, I will give to ſuch or ſuch poore, but not to ſuch, if they be all in extreame want, and cannot helpe themſelves to bread by their owne labour, and not in the morning only, but alſo in the evening, holding out in beneficence from the morning of our youth, to the evening of our old age, provided alſo that wee give of our owne bread, which wee have gotten by our honeſt labour, not purloined, or ſtolne, or gotten by fraud, or oppreſ-

oppreſſion, as is intimated in the firſt words, caſt thy bread. For men muſt worke with their hands the thing that is good, that they may have to give to the neceſſities of others, and not to ſteale. For it is to be noted, that Zacheus firſt cleared his hands of all goods ill gotten, and then gave halfe his goods to the poore.

Eph. 4. 28.
Luke 19.

And in exhorting thus to give, without putting difference, I plead not for ſturdy beggars, or unlicenſed vagabonds, but for widdows and fatherleſſe Children, for the blind and the lame, whom wee know to be ſuch, or ſick by our owne ſight, or the credible information of others not counterfeited, becauſe if any can by working get his owne bread, and will not, he muſt not eate; and this was the firſt decree, which God made after mans fall, in the ſweat of thy browes, thou ſhalt eate thy bread, till thou returneſt to the earth from whence thou wert taken: After many days it ſhall returne to thee againe. Although the bread which is given, may ſeeme to be loſt, yet it is not, but ſhall certainly be repayed thee againe, if not in this world, yet in the world to come, according to that, Labour not for the food that periſheth, but for that which indureth to eternall life, which the Son of man will give unto you, of which it is ſaid, It is good to eate bread in the Kingdome of Heaven, and this is implied in that ſaying, They ſhall ſit down with Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, in the Kingdome of Heaven, and in that, I will drinke no more of the fruit of the Vine, till I drink it new with you in the Kingdome of Heaven. For, where there is ſitting downe and drinking, there is alſo eating bread, although by neither it be meant according to the letter, but the allegory, that there ſhall be as great joy, as in feaſting with bread and wine, all manner of delicious meats and drinks. And this of caſting thy bread upon the waters, commeth well in after that which was ſaid a little before, of feaſting and making merry, ch. 10. 19. whereas that is only for a little vain and tranſitory mirth, this is for joy that paſſeth underſtanding, when it commeth to be remunerated in Heaven, For thou knoweſt not what evill ſhall be upon the earth, this is added, as a reaſon of giving to the poore; there may ſome evill accident befal thee, whereby thy worldly goods may goe away, as by Theeves, by enemies making war in thy country, or by caſualty, of fire, water or tempeſts, and ſo thou mayſt be brought to extream povertie thy ſelf, then who will relieve thee, who haſt ſhut up the bowels of thy compaſſion againſt others? or how grievous will it be to think, how little good thou didſt with thy goods, whilſt thou hadſt them, and therefore that thou art now thus worthily ſtript of al. For giving a portion to ſeven and to eight it is to be noted, that he ſaith not all a mans goods, but ſome part as he can ſpare, although in the primitive Church, they ſold, and brought in the price of all, and who ſo ſold, and brought in, but kept back part, he was judged therefore, as Ananias and Saphira; for Chriſt accepted of half the goods of Zacheus, who had gotten much by forged cavillation after reſtitution made, and Paul ſaith not, that others may be eaſed and you grieved, and our Lord again, Give alms of that ye have. By ſeven and eight underſtand many, an uncertaine number being underſtood by a certain, yet one going preciſely upon the number of ſeven ſaith, every of the ſeven dayes of the week, but why then is eight added, and what if more needy perſons come in one day?

2 Theſſ. 3. 10.
Gen. 3.
Joh. 6: 26.
Note.
2 Cor. 8.

If the Clouds be full of raine, they empty themſelves upon the earth, and if a Tree falleth towards the South and North, where it falleth, there it ſhall be. He goeth on here in the ſame argument, the meaning is, as the clouds being full, cannot hold the waters in them alwayes, but muſt ere long empty themſelves, and thoſe waters fall to the earth, neither doth any Tree ſtand, but for a time, and then it is either cut or blown down, ſo is it with rich men, they cannot hold their goods alwayes, but they will go from them neither can they ſtand nor live always. but their lives indeed are very brittle, and when they dye, if they fal Southward or Northward that is, on the right or left ſide, that is, into an happy eſtate or a miſerable, in it they muſt abide for ever, therefore let men be liberall now towards the poore, whilſt life laſteth, and ſo they ſhall be as the gratefull clouds in the time of drought, watering the earth, and ſatisfying the thirſt thereof, and making it fruitfull, which is to the benefit of the waterer conſidered properly, as a man, fruit and benefit coming

Verſ. 3.

hereby

Thaumatur.
Olympiodor.

hereby to him, both temporall and eternall from the poores prayers, and praiſes given to God, and prevailing for his bleſſing upon him: or if wee conſider him metaphorically, as a cloud; he ſhall by the ſuns exhaling of vapours from the ſame earth, be repleniſhed againe. And then being conſidered, as a tree to which man is often compared, when he commeth to be cut downe, he ſhall fall to the right hand of everlaſting felicity. Thus Thaumaturgus, Olympiodorus, Jerom, Lavater, ſome in one part, and ſome in another. Hence alſo it appeareth, that after death, there is no paſſing from one place to another, and therefore not from Hell or Purgatorie, to Heaven, the one of which is commonly taught by the popiſh, and the other related of one, namely Trajan the Emperour brought out of Hell, by the unceſſant prayers of Gregory; and if rich men be as clouds, the raine of their charity falleth upon the good and the bad, as raine commonly doth upon cleare, and briary, and thorny ground, that they may be ſtirred up to give, and not to be hindred by the unworthineſſe of ſome that crave of them.

Deut. 3. 2.
Iſa. 5.
Hugo.
Cardin.
Note.
Matth. 21.
Jude Epiſt.

Laſtly, Clouds ſending down raine, ſet forth Preachers; as Moſes ſpeakes of himſelfe, ſaying, My doctrine ſhall drop downe as the raine, and likewiſe the Pſalmes, and the Lord threatning his Vineyard degenerating, ſaith, that he will command the clouds not to raine upon it.

As rich men then muſt give almes, ſo Preachers ought to fill themſelves by ſtudy, and then raine largely by preaching, conſidering that they alſo are as Trees, that ſhall fall, when death commeth, and then woe will be to them, if they have not done ſo, they ſhall fall to the North, or if having preached, they have not lived accordingly. For, ſome clouds are without water, carryed about of the winds, being as empty caskes, making a ſound with tautologies, inke-home phraſes, or home-ſpun words through ignorance or pride, and little or no raine to the refreſhing of Gods inheritance, when it is drie, commeth from them, they muſt looke for a heavy fall.

Verſ. 4. He that obſerveth the wind ſhall not ſow, and he that regardeth the clouds ſhall not reap. Here by a compariſon taken from an Husbandman, he ſheweth, that we muſt no t be deterred from Alms-deeds, or diſcouraged, from any good doing, that we are able, andhave a calling to; we may happily meet with pull-backs that may blow us back, and ſee ſome thing comming to hinder us from giving, as the ingratitude of thoſe, that wee have given unto, want, which we may feare will come afterwards to us, or ours, or wee may be traduced by men, as doing it out of the affectation of praiſe, and this makes us ſo liberall, &c.

Lavater.

Again, In doing other good, or ſtanding for it, we may meet with checks and reproofs, yea, ſtormes and clouds of trouble, and threatnings for our labour. It may be thought not ſo fit now, to intermeddle about reformation of religion, but to expect the decrees of general Councels, when many ſoules are in preſent danger in reſpect of their Idolatries and ſuperſtitions, in which they are nuzled. He that thus fore-caſts dangers to come, or fears terriculaments, is like unto an Husbandman that goeth ſlowly on in his courſe of Husbandrie, being hindred one while by the wind, another while by ſhewes of raine, and ſo cannot expect to reape a good crop. It is a Proverb among Husbandmen, although wee have had an eaſie crop, yet we muſt ſowe againe: ſo the ſeed of charity muſt be ſowne againe, although wee have ſown and ſee no good yet come of it; thus Lavater, and it is the true ſenſe.

Verſ. 5. As thou knoweſt not the way of the Spirit, nor wind, nor how the bones grow in the womb of her that is with child: ſo thou knoweſt not the workes of God, who maketh all things. Some, by the Spirit here underſtand the wind, of which it is ſaid, Joh. 3. Thou heareſt the ſound thereof, but canſt not tell whence it commeth, nor whither it goeth. Some, the ſoule inlivening a childe in the mothers womb, becauſe it is added, nor how the bones grow in the womb of her that is with child. And as theſe things are unknowne, ſo are the works of God, that is, his doings towards men, which are to come. Its unknowne to us when he will take any of us out of this life, or our worldly goods away from us, by caſualties, by enemies, by robbers, or other croſſes, for none of them come to paſſe according to the will of men, but of God, who worketh or doth all things. According to this it is ſaid, not only that God hath numbred our dayes, but that a ſparrow falleth not to the ground without his will, and God pulleth downe one, and ſetteth up another, that wee may referre all events to his providence, and be humbled before him by our ſufferings, be alwayes preparing for death; and doe the good that wee are able, whilſt we have time, leſt wee be prevented. But wee muſt take heed, that wee inferre not hereupon, that God is the Author of ſinne, for although they that maliciouſly miſchieve us, or unjuſtly calumniate us, cannot doe it without God; Shimei could not curſe David, but that God bad him curſe, yet the ſinne is only theirs, God tempteth no man, but he is drawne away by his owne concupiſcence. They that doe us miſchiefe by word or deed, are ſtirred up hereunto by their own malicious minds, but forſomuch as in him wee all live, move, and have our being, they cannot doe it, but by power received from him, and by his permiſſion and providence ſecretly directing them for ends beſt knowne unto himſelfe, ſometime for our puniſhment, and ſometime for our triall; as the Devill was permitted to miſchiefe Job, and ſent in to the falſe Prophets of Baal to ſeduce Ahab, that he might fall at Ramoth Gilead; and an evil ſpirit from the Lord entred into Saul, whereby he being moved, envied David, and ſought continually his deſtruction.

Note.

Note.

2 Sam. 16. 10.
Jam. 1. 14.

Act. 17.

Verſ. 6.

In the morning ſow thy ſeed, and in the evening with-hold not thy hand, for thou knoweſt not whether ſhall proſper, this or that, or both be alike good. Having condemned them that obſerve the wind for ſowing, that is, upon ſome pretence or other, delay the exerciſing of charity, ver. 4. now he giveth a charge to doe this betimes, and having begun, to hold out to the end of their lives. And as we muſt be free in giving betimes, ſo we muſt betimes apply our mindes to all goodneſſe, leaving ſinne, and fulfilling all righteouſneſſe, and frequently exerciſing our ſelves in the Word and Prayer. So that here are condemned ſuch as will give nothing willingly before they dye, and ſuch as ſay in their hearts, it is time enough to apply our ſelves to ſeeke the Kingdome of God, to leave our ſins, and to call upon God for pardon, we will doe this before we dye, and then it ſhall be well with us; but this is the Devils prompting, and they that thinke ſo, are rather taught of him then of God, who chargeth us to begin betimes, and expreſly, chap. 12. 1. in youth, threatning ſuch as in their younger time follow the luſts of their hearts, and the delight of their eyes, verſ. 9. Laſtly, they are condemned, that having begun well perſevere not unto the end; all ſuch loſe all their labour and coſt, as is taught, Ezek. 36. and Gal. 6. 9. And the ſimilitude, by which he here goeth, is of great force to move us, our Almeſ-giving, and endeavouring after good, is as the Husband-mans ſowing, from which he hopeth for great benefit; and who would not betimes goe about that, whereby great benefit will probably come, and perſevere in ſo doing, but of this the greateſt benefit that is, will come a reward in Heaven, and that not probably, but moſt certainly, becauſe God, that cannot lye, hath promiſed it; Be not weary of well-doing, for yee ſhall reap in due time, if ye faint not.

Note.

Gal. 6. 9.

Verſ. 7.
Verſ. 8.

Truly the light is ſweet, and a pleaſant thing it is for the eyes to behold the Sun. But if a man liveth many yeares, and rejoyce in them all, yet let him remember the dayes of darkneſſe, for they ſhall be many, all that cometh is vanity. Here to ſtirre us up the more to begin, and to perſevere in all goodneſſe, it is commended unto us to conſider the dayes of darkneſſe to come to thoſe, that are taken in their hearts with theſe worldly things, pleaſures, or profits, but have no hearts to doe, as was given in charge before; for yet a little while, and theſe dayes of darkneſſe ſhall come; That is, dayes of miſery, and torment, which will be many more then all the dayes of the longeſt Livers here, that is, for ever and ever. And then, what will it benefit us, that we have ſeene the light? That is, lived, and lived long in this world, in all pleaſure, when it is once paſt and gone, ſurely there is no ſenſuall man, but then will ſay, all this was vanity, which is the meaning of the laſt words, All that cometh is vanity; to expreſſe which Lavater hath it, Whatſoever happeneth, he will judge to be vanity.

And the vulgar Latine, Quæ cum venerint, vanitatis arguentur præterita; which when they come, things paſt ſhall be reproved as vaine; the Epicures, and

Mammonites of this world themſelves crying out upon them, as whereby they were ſo infatuated, and finally brought to ſuch extreame miſery ; then hereupon he turneth himſelfe to the ſenſuall young man in an ironicall manner, ſaying ;

Verſ. 9. Rejoyce (O young man) in thy youth, and cheere thee in the dayes of thy youth, and walke in the wayes of thy heart, and in the ſight of thine eyes, but know, that for all theſe things God will bring thee to judgement ; That is, doe thus, if thou wilt, but be ſure, if thou doſt, that after thy pleaſure thus taken, thou ſhalt ſuffer paine, when the time of thy judgement cometh, as every wicked man ſhall, for we muſt all appeare before Gods Judgement Seat. Rom. 10. 14.

Verſ. 10. Therefore remove ſorrow, or anger, from thy heart, and put away evil from thy fleſh, for childhood and youth are vanity. Here are two things particularly taxed in youth, which they conſidering the judgement to come, and all others have need to beware of, and that is wrath, and fleſhly luſts. To wrath young men are moſt prone, ſo that if they be but a little provoked by words, they are preſently on a fire, through rage, and they will be revenged ; and to fleſhly luſts, ſo as that of luſts it is ſaid, as peculiar to this age, fly the luſts of youth.

For theſe words, Child-hood and youth, the vulgar hath, Child-hood and pleaſure are vaine ; and old Tranſlation, Childe-hood and Ignorance ; the word שחר ſignifieth nigreſcere, to wax blacke, and is rendred either youth, compared to the Morning, when it firſt dawneth ; or Ignorance, in which who ſo is, is in darkneſſe ; or pleaſure, in which he that liveth, walketh in the darke : and I ſee not but that old age may be better meant hereby, when the eyes, the light of the body grow dim, and darke, and ſo both ages of man are here meant ; and ſo the firſt verſe of Chapter twelve anſwereth well hereunto, where he exhorteth men to remember their Creator in the time of youth, and then proceeding to deſcribe old age, he ſaith, Whilſt the Sun, or the light, or the Moon, or Stars be not darkned ; and if it be ſo taken, it is concluded, that man in his prime and wane is vanity ; to which adde that of David, Man in his beſt eſtate is altogether vanity ; and we ſee what little cauſe any man hath to be proud, and vaine-glorious, that we may all learne to be humble, and feare before God, and abhorre from ſinne, for which we are ſaid to be ſo vaine, and light, and enſue vertue, whereby, when we come to be weighed in the ballance, we may not be found light, as the chaffe, to be blowne away by the wind of Gods wrath, but ſolid as wheat, or gold, and be eſtabliſhed in his Kingdome for ever and ever.

Note.

CHAP. XII.

Verſ. 1. R*Emember thy Creator in the dayes of thy youth, whilſt the evill dayes come not, nor the yeares draw nigh, wherein thou ſhalt ſay, I have no pleaſure.* By evill dayes here are meant dayes of miſery, when the body is decayed, and oppreſſed with many infirmities and diſeaſes, which are ſo grievous to old age, that a man no more takes pleaſure of his life, but had rather dye, and depart from it to be rid of them. If in youth this be not thought upon to ſtirre thee up now to feare God, and to fly ſinnes incident eſpecially to youth, but paſſeſt thy time in vanity, pleaſure, and reverge-taking, againſt which he gave warning before ; thou ſhalt finde to thy coſt, that thy youth is meere vanity, and when thou comeſt to judgement, thou ſhalt be found to be vaine and light. Now is the time, or it will never be, for it is the time here ſet by God, who will now be ready by his Spirit to help thee ; but tarry thy owne time, thinking to doe it afterwards, and put thy Salvation upon a moſt dangerous adventure ; as he that having a limited time to come in, and ſubmit to his Prince, that hath been a Rebell, if he comes not in the time limited, is unlikely after this to finde mercy, but ſhall dye a cruel death ; ſo he that cometh not in to God, by turning from his ſinnes, in the time ſet by him, can have no hope after this time expired ; his accuſtoming himſelfe to ſinne in youth, makes his converſion in old age impoſſible : As it is impoſſible to waſh the black Moore white, or the ſpots of the Leopard away. Some indeed are called at the eleventh houre of the day to labour in the Vine-yard; That is, in old age, but what is this to them that are called at the third, or ſixth, and will not heare? it is ſpoken on'y for the comfort of ſuch, as amongſt whom the voyce of the Goſpel cometh not, till they be old; as it was with Nicodemus, and Ananias, that was ſent to Saul, who is ſaid to have been an old Diſciple, that is, called in his old age; they that are called then in youth, and charged to remember God now, and will not, have no pretext for their going on in ſinne.

Note.

Jer. 23. 13.
Math. 20.
Acts 9.

Whilſt the Sun, the Light, the Moone, or the Stars be not darkned, nor the clouds returne after the raine. Here he goeth on more particularly, to deſcribe old age, and to ſhew how unfit it is for converſion, the Sun, Moone, and Starres, and all light is now darkned, he that turneth muſt have light from thence-forth to walke by in the ſtreight and narrow way, but the aged, as the light of the world, are now darkned to them through the dimneſſe of their ſight, through the decaying of their ſences, underſtanding, and memory, have the Preachers, the Lights of the world darkned unto them, they being not now able through deafneſſe to heare, through blindneſſe to read that, whereby they might be inlightned; or if they can, not be able ſo readily to remember, or underſtand, as in their younger time.

Verſ. 2.
Mat. 5. 14.

Jerom will have the darkning of the Sunne, Moone, and Starres, meant at the laſt day, and the darkning by death; but becauſe that, which is here ſaid, is oppoſed to youth, and other parts of this deſcription ſet forth men continuing ſtill in this world, I rather hold, that this is ſpoken of old age, and ſo doe moſt Expoſitours; neither the clouds return after the raine; That is, cloudineſſe to clearneſſe of the Heaven againe, as is commonly done, but it ſtill continueth darke and cloudy, as in time of raine; That is, it is thus to them that be aged, whoſe ſight decayeth; the Sky, that after raine groweth cleare againe, becometh now alſo cloudy to them.

Hieron.

In the day, when the keepers of the houſe ſhall tremble, and the ſtrong men bow themſelves, and the grinders ceaſe, becauſe they are few, and the lookers out at the windowes be darkned; By the keepers of the houſe, underſtand the armes, and hands, whereby the houſe of the body is defended, and maintained, for the body is called an houſe, 2 Cor. 5. and with the hands a man laboureth to keep it, and with the ſtrength of his armes defends it, but when he is very aged, theſe keepers ſhake through Palſies; the grinders be the teeth, which are then moſt of them gone out, and the lookers out at the windowes, the eyes, the dimneſſe of the ſight being hereby further ſet forth.

Verſ. 3.

And the doores ſhall be ſhut in the ſtreet, when the ſound of the grinding is low, and he ſhall riſe up at the voyce of the Bird, and all the daughters of Muſick ſhall be brought low. By the doores underſtand with Lavater, and Bonaventure, the lips, which through feebleneſſe in old age are ſhut up, as it were in the ſtreets, where others are heard ſpeaking loud, they ſcarce walking out, when youthes are playing, and ſhouting, or crying out there one to another.

Verſ. 4.
Lavater.
Bonavent.

By a phraſe like this it is ſaid of Chriſt, he ſhall not cry, nor lift up his voyce in the ſtreets, when the ſound of the grinding is low; this may either be applied to the ſame, the voyce is low, which is uttered by the tongue, throat, lips, and teeth; for as the lips, ſo the teeth, which are grinders, move in ſpeaking. Jerom and Albinus will have their keeping within meant, cauſing the doores to be ſhut, and not walking abroad now in the ſtreets, as in former times; he is ſaid to riſe up at the voyce of the Bird, becauſe he is very wakey, and ſleepeth now but a little, and the noyſe of the Cock-crowing awaketh him, and the daughters of Muſick be the Organs of ſinging, which now faile in him, or make ſo low a ſound, that his muſicke is ſcarce heard. Some expound it of his not delighting in muſick.

Vox eſt ſonus lingua gutture labijs, & dentibus prolatus.
Cald. Paraphraſt.
Hieron.

When they ſhall be afraid of that which is high, and feare ſhall be in the way, and the Almond-tree ſhall flouriſh, and the Graſ-hopper ſhall be a burthen, and deſire ſhall faile, &c. old men are afraid of that which is high, when they feare to goe up to high places, to looke downe from thence, leſt they ſhould be made dizzie, and they feare in the way, leſt they ſhould ſtumble and fall through their weakneſſe, and want of ſight, to keep them from going into miſchiefe.

Verſ. 5.

The Almond Trees flouriſhing, and blowing white, ſetteth forth grey haires, on his head, and beard; the vulgar for theſe words, the Graſhopper ſhall be a burthen, hath, the Graſhopper ſhall be fatted; and Jerom hereby underſtands the ankles ſwelled with the Gout, becauſe the word rendred Graſhopper, ſignifieth alſo talus, the ankle, for the Gout is a grievous paine to men in old age; but why יח חבל ſhould be rendred fatned, I ſee no reaſon, for it ſignifieth burthened; and if the tranſlation Graſhopper be held, the ſence will be good thus, his crookedneſſe in his backe, like the Graſhoppers, wil be a burthen to him.

Some expound it of every little thing making a noyſe, although but ſmall; and when he is come to this luſt and pleaſure, that way ceaſeth, and he dyeth; that is,
Jer. 22. 18. his going to his long home, which now followeth, and the mourners goe about the ſtreets, as the manner is at great Funerals; contrary to which it is ſaid of Jehoiakim, that they ſhould not lament or mourne for him.

Verſ. 6. Or ever the ſilver cord be looſed, or the golden bowle broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountaine, or the wheele at the ciſterne. By the ſilver cord moſt probably is meant the Spina dorſi, or pith in the backe bone, which looketh white; by the golden bowle, the filme about the Braine, which is according to ſome, of a yellow colour, according to others not, but called golden for the preciousneſſe thereof, in death both theſe are diſſolved; by the pitcher broken at the fountaine, the Liver decaying, which is a fountaine of bloud; the wheele at the ciſterne, the heart compared to a ciſterne, becauſe as water through a Pipe runneth into a ciſterne, ſo the bloud in great danger runneth thither, and the life, that is alwayes turning round like a wheele from the earth, and having fetcht a circuit here a while, returning to the earth againe; or the living man is as this wheele in reſpect of his body, as verſ. 7.

Verſ. 7. Duſt returneth to the duſt, and the Spirit to God that gave it. Here drawing to an end of this tract, he ſpeakes againe as he began, Vanity of vanities, all is vanity.

Verſ. 8. Moreover, becauſe the Preacher was wiſe, he ſtill taught the people know-
Verſ. 9. ledge, he gave good heed, and ſought out, &c. Here the example of Salomon is commended, to the imitation of all wiſe and learned Preachers, for why elſe doth he ſay thus of himſelfe, but to ſtirre up all the wiſe to doe likewiſe? for certainly being ſo humbled, as he was for his foule falling, he ſpake it not in vaine-glory, and therefore to whet on others to uſe their talents of learning, and knowledge, and to improve them for the inſtruction of Gods people, by preaching and writing, as where neceſſity of the Church requireth, and to this end we muſt ſtudy to finde out that which may give light, and not to ſet forth any thing pertaining to inſtru-
Note. ction in godlineſſe, in word, or writing confuſedly, but in order holding us to a method in all things that we teach, whereby our Hearers or Readers may be the moſt benefited; neither is it enough for the Learned, that they have attained to ſuch a meaſure of knowledge as they have, but they muſt ſtill labour to increaſe it, for even inſpired men, Salomon, and Paul did thus, as may be gathered from that which Paul ſpeaketh of himſelfe to Timothy, ſaying Bring the bookes with thee, and eſpecially the Parchments, for what would he doe with bookes, but read, and ſtudy upon them?

Laſtly, becauſe Salomon calleth himſelfe a Preacher, becauſe he wrot ſo many good Proverbs, and Sentences for inſtruction, although he never went up into a Pulpit, as Ezra a Prieſt, to preach; that writing is a preaching, as well as publick ſpeaking, and it is a farre more durable preaching; for thus Moſes, ſo long agoe dead, yet preacheth, as may be gathered from the words in the Parable
Luke 16. of Dives and Lazarus, where it is ſaid, They have Moſes and the Prophets, let them heare them; therefore they ſtill teach to be heard, when they are read, as it Acts 15. is elſewhere expreſly ſaid of Moſes, he is preached, when he is read in their Sinagogues every Sabbath day. But let not this be taken as ſpoken in favour of writing, and not preaching in the Congregation, if he be a preacher by calling, for he ought to doe that ſpecially, much leſſe in favour of ſuch idle Miniſters, as will not take the paines to doe any thing, but read other mens writings, as any one that hath learned to read engliſh may doe.

Verſ. 10. And that which was written was upright, even words of truth; which is true not only of Salomons words, but of all things contained in the Canonicall Scriptures.

Verſ. 11. The words of the wiſe are like goads, or nailes faſtned by the Maſters of the aſſembly, which are given from one ſhepheard. Here by two compariſons Divine inſtructions are ſet forth, according to their efficacy in the hearts of the Hearers with whom they take; 1. They are compared to Goads, whereby Oxen are pricked on to draw, ſo by propounding Gods promiſes and threatnings, and exhortations made hereupon, men are pricked on to the workes of God, which otherwiſe they would never doe. 2. To Nailes, which being ſharpe alſo are driven into Boards, or other things, and by this meanes they are firmly faſtened; ſo by theſe the good Hearers of the Word are faſtened in Grace, and fall not therefrom, their hearts are alſo peirced as by a ſword, making them full of ſorrow for their ſinnes, to repentance unto ſalvation, never to be repented of. And theſe Goads and Nailes they have from one Shepheard Chriſt Jeſus, who ſaith, that he is the true Shepheard, for no teaching is thus penetrative, or efficacious to ſtirre up to worke the workes of God, unleſſe the Lord putteth to his power, according to that, Paul planteth, and Apollo watereth, but God giveth the bleſſing; without which neither is he any thing that planteth, nor he that watereth. Moreover, hereby is intimated, that Preachers have their faculty of teaching from him, and not of themſelves, for which he ſaith, Without me yee can doe nothing, and that the true Preachers of the Word teach not their owne phantaſies, or any thing diverſe from his word, but that only. Heb. 4. 12. Joh. 10. 1 Cor. 3.

Verſ. 12. And further by theſe (my ſonne) be admoniſhed: of making many bookes there is no end, and much ſtudy is a wearineſſe of the fleſh. Seeing the words of the wiſe, which they have from God, be ſo peircing and efficacious, let them enter into thy heart, whoſoever thou art that readeſt, or heareſt them ſet forth by vocall preaching, and doe accordingly; for many buſie themſelves in writing Bookes, wherein they ſet forth errours to ſeduce thee, or full of thorny queſtions, exerciſing mens heads much, but to little purpoſe, as many writings of the Schoole-men doe, and ſome write Bookes of vaine things, invented to draw the Reader to ſpend his time in them; thus neglecting to read the Word, and the explanations hereof, whereby they doe but weary themſelves without profit; for it is not to be conceived, that it is ſpoken againſt much reading, and writing, for edification in knowledge and grace, becauſe even Kings are commanded to read thus continually; for this muſt be done, that we may learne to feare God, and to keep his Commandements alwayes, which is the whole duty of man, and that upon paine of being ſeverely judged, if we doe not, but ſin here againſt, although never ſo ſecretly, yea, if but in our thoughts. Deut. 17. Verſ. 13. Verſ. 14.

Here endeth the Booke of Eccleſiaſtes.

A THREE-FOLD COMMENTARY upon the moſt excellent Song of Salomon.

The Firſt, by way of Expoſition, making all things obſcure, more and more cleare to the underſtanding of every intelligent Reader.

The Second, by way of Paraphraſe, in Meeter.

The Third, by way of obſervation, for the further edification of the Reader in the knowledge, and grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

A WORKE,
By the reading and ſerious conſideration whereof, the Soule not given over to a reprobate ſence, cannot but be raviſhed with the Love of Chriſt, and joy of the Holy Ghoſt, and moved to repent of Sin, and ſo elevated to things above, as to ſet light by afflictions, or pleaſures, or profits here below.

BY JOHN MAYER, Doctor in Divinity.

LONDON:
Printed for Robert Ibbitſon, and Thomas Roycroft. 1652.

To the Vertuous, and his very good Friend, the Lady Poines, Wife to my much honoured Patron, Maurice Barrow, of Beningham Eſquire, grace and peace from Jeſus Chriſt.

HAving by Gods aſſiſtance (moſt worthy Lady) finiſhed this difficult, but moſt profitable worke, upon a Booke of holy Scripture, wherein abundance of Divine treaſure lyeth hid, beyond that, which one by the bare reading thereof would conceive ; I thought it would not be unacceptable to your Ladiſhip to commend it, as to all Chriſtians in generall, for the light, and inſtructions contained herein, ſo to your ſelfe in ſpeciall, as a teſtimony of my beſt reſpects unto you, for your undeſerved favour towards me, ever ſince you firſt knew me. After my writing upon the whole Bible, firſt upon the New Teſtament, and then upon the Old, and all the Bookes therein contained, wherein I laboured many yeares (and that, I hope not unprofitably to thoſe, that make uſe of my Labours) the good God that ſtrengthened me, a moſt infirme man, to that great work, ſtill prolonging this my fraile life ; I thought that it would much more availe for the edification of the Reader, to adde upon ſome of the moſt uſefull Bookes of Scripture to the light given in the Expoſition, profitable obſervations, moſt genuinely flowing here-from ; and therefore finding this little booke, being rightly underſtood, to be full hereof, but by almoſt all men paſſed over, without finding them out, I have alſo obtained help from above, to make my worke hereupon yet more compleat, by raiſing; and proſecuting ſomewhat largely many good inſtructions throughout all this Song, and by turning it into Engliſh Meeter, and that ſo, as by the helpe hereof it may be underſtood in every paſſage ; and if any ſhall delight to ſing ſuch holy Hymnes, he may now ſing them with underſtanding ; For the matter herein contained, although it be a Love-Song, there is nothing in it vaine, or carnall, but Spirituall, and heavenly, all of the greateſt moment in the world, viz. the Incarnation of Chriſt, whereby two Natures were joyned in one Perſon, the one unſeen, and the other ſeen ; the excellency of Chriſt in all his parts, and the excellency of the Church, or faithfull Soule in all hers ; the ſweet ſavour made by the Apoſtles going out to preach the Goſpel, the ſpreading of Chriſts name; the converſion of the Gentiles, then of the Jewes, and after that againe of more Gentiles ; the mutuall love and delight, which Chriſt and his Church take in each other ; and laſtly, Chriſts coming the ſecond time to Judgement, the conſummation of this world, and the everlaſting Life to come, as appeareth in briefe, in the method ſet forth at the end of this Booke; and now what is my deſire, but that the People of God may injoy the benefit hereof, they that hitherto have not taſted of the ſweetneſſe of Divine contemplations, having their mindes now elevated hereunto, and they that have, being more raiſed up, and through the joy and comfort found herein, the better able to beware the of ſad condition of theſe troubleſome times, for which we have need of all helps, that though the earth ſhake, and the mountaines be caſt into the midſt of the Sea, as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaketh, yet we through patience, and comfort of the Scriptures, may be eſtabliſhed in the good way, and ſo have hope that maketh not aſhamed.

Amongſt the many miſeries of theſe times it is not the leaſt, that the ſtudy of the holy Scriptures, which is now moſt neceſſary, is moſt neglected, to the great diſcouragement both of Writers and Printers, and the great detriment of the Soule, becauſe as Chryſoſtom ſaith of worldly men, that pleaded their many worldly buſineſſes, as a Superſedeas to the reading of the Scriptures; what ſayeſt thou (O Man) haſt thou no need to read the Scriptures, becauſe thou art full of worldly imployments, let Clerkes read them, who have nothing elſe to doe? Thou haſt moſt need of all others to read them, becauſe thou art, as one upon the Sea, toſſed with tempeſts, and in continuall hazzard of drowning, that hereby thou maiſt have comfort; ſo I may ſay to thoſe that live in theſe times, will yee lay the holy Scriptures, and Bookes written hereupon aſide, becauſe the times are troubleſome? the more troubles we are intangled withall, the more need we have to pray, and read, that through Spirituall joy in ſo doing, our mindes may be eaſed of our griefe, at the hearing, and ſeeing, and feeling thereof, and we may the more patiently beare all our oppreſſions, and miſeries, and be kept on in the right way, without declining to the right hand, or to the left, till we come at the end hereof, the ſalvation of our ſoules; To which ſalvation that we may come in his good time, the Lord ſanctifie us by his Truth, his Word, through the daily exerciſing of our ſelves in the reading, hearing, and meditating thereupon, and by his grace ordering our lives and actions accordingly to the end of our dayes.

Now the God of all grace and mercy make this a meanes to confirme, inlighten, ſtrengthen, and ſtabliſh you in every good way and worke, to the coming of our Lord Jeſus, that your ſoule may then be found to be one of thoſe, in this Booke ſo highly commended, to his glory, and your everlaſting bliſſe.

Yours in the Lord

John Mayer.

The Preface.

THe Hebrewes, when they would ſet forth a moſt excellent thing, doe it by doubling the word; and ſo Salomon intituling this his Booke, A Song of Songs, prepareth the Reader to expect not a Song, like unto other amorous Songs, made by vaine men, to pleaſe the fleſhlyminded, but a moſt excellent and Divine Song, things pertaining to fleſhly love being mentioned, but thoſe that pertaine to Spirituall love allegorically ſet forth hereby.

Greg. Magnus.

By deſcending, ſaith Gregory, to baſe carnall love of Breaſts, and other parts of the body beloved, he ſeeketh to draw us up to Holy love, under the chaffe he hideth the good Corne; and if any man in reading this, lookes to the Letter and no further, and derideth it, as unworthy to come into the number of holy Writings, he eates but the chaffe with the Beaſt; he that is a man will finde out the Corne under the chaffe, and feed thereupon. The Letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life, and ſo doth this Song, being Spiritually underſtood, it quickneth the Soule to the love of Chriſt; but literally, it carryeth away to fleſhly Luſt, which is to deſtruction. And it is thus ſet forth, and not plainly, becauſe things only plainly taught affect us not ſo much, as ordinary a matter, which may eaſily be had, but that which is fetcht out of the hidden parts of a rock; neither are Divine things ſo well underſtood, but by things ſenſible; wherefore he ſpeaketh according to that which we know by ſence, that we may the better attaine to the knowledge of that which tranſcendeth all Humane ſence and reaſon; as Chriſt taught all things concerning the Kingdome of Heaven by Parables, we muſt imitate the Lord therefore in his Reſurrection, becoming now a new Creature, and not taſting things pertaining to the body, as before; ſo we in reading this moſt excellent Song muſt riſe up above carnall ſence, taſting all that is here ſaid by a new kind of taſte, old things being paſt with us, and all things now becoming new. He that doth not thus, cometh to the great Kings Nuptiall feaſt without a wedding Garment, and ſo inſtead of being inlightned hereby, incurreth the danger of being caſt into utter darkneſſe for ever.

And it is worth the noting, that this Booke is placed after Eccleſiaſtes, and the Proverbs, upon good reaſon, becauſe in the Proverbs are ſet forth things Morall, wherein it is needfull for a man to be firſt inſtructed, that he may learne to be wiſe, both in things Divine and Humane; in Eccleſiaſtes, the vanity of all worldly things, both profits, pleaſures, and knowledge, if the feare and love of God concurreth not here-with. Then the Soule being thus prepared, in this Song he ſetteth forth matters of Divine contemplation, for the raviſhing thereof with the love of Chriſt, as that ſhe may, in reſpect of this, deſpiſe all other things, and be even in this life incomparably ſolaced herewith; which cannot be but in him, that well digeſteth Eccleſiaſtes, and ſo is in his ſoule gone from theſe fading vanities.

The Song of Songs.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 2. The Bride. Juſtus Orgel.

LEt him kiſſe me with the kiſſes of his mouth, for thy love is better then wine.* This is the voyce of the Church, or of the Soule touching Chriſt, ſaith Juſtus Orgelitanus, being ſenſible of Gods wrath for our ſinnes, and deſirous of the reconciliation, which is by him offered, 2 Cor. 5.20. O, ſaith the ſoule of the penitent Sinner, let God bee friends with me againe through his Chriſt, and kiſſe me, as the Father of the prodigall did him, returning with a kiſſe of the greateſt love; as when man and wife have been at variance, and the fault hath been only in the wife, if ſhe can get a kiſſe of him, a reconcilement is made, and this cheareth the heart more then wine, although it be ſpecially given to cheare mans heart. Therefore man being exhorted to reconcile himſelfe to God, is exhorted in theſe words, kiſſe the Son leſt he be angry.

Luk. 15.
Pſal. 104.
Pſal. 2.

Gregory. Gregory ſaith, he kiſſeth us, when he inſpireth his grace and love into our hearts, for by thus doing, he maketh us, through the delight that we have herein, to come out of our ſelves, joying now in nothing elſe, but in him, and deſiring nothing elſe; as Paul ſaid of himſelfe, when he was thus inſpired, that he eſteemed the things, which before he highly accounted of, yea, all of them, but as droſſe, and dung. And the ſoule ſaith, Let him kiſſe me, becauſe that unleſſe he preventeth me with his inſpirations, I cannot move towards him to kiſſe him.

Phil. 3. 7, 8.
Note.

1 Joh. 4. 10. The beginning of the love and grace of God in us then, is in his love towards us, according to that of John, we love him, becauſe he loved us firſt; but although there be no good motions in us towards our Saviour, of any availe to make us to goe unto him, yet we muſt deſire him, as we are able, and ſay, Let him kiſſe me, that we may be thus inſpired, as we are ſtirred up to doe continually, by the Word, where he is ſet forth to be the faireſt of all men, and his lips full of grace, and he that thirſteth, let him come unto me; and taught exemplarily in David, ſaying, As the heart panteth after the rivers of water, ſo my ſoule thirſteth after thee, O God. And when the ſoule doth thus, then Chriſt, her moſt loving Husband, is ready to anſwer her deſire, to intimate which, the ſoule, as being here-with refreſhed, ſaith, thy love is better then wine; Gregor. Thy dugges are better, out of which milke cometh, to nouriſh the faithfull in all piety, to the great refreſhing thereof; and the word Hebr. is דדיך by Jerom commonly rendred Dugges; and Gregory ſaith, that theſe two Dugges are the love of God, and of our Neighbour, which we have from Chriſt, and have more refreſhing hereby, then by all the things of the world, becauſe theſe nouriſh, the cares of the world kill.

Pſal. 45.
Ioh. 7.
Pſal. 42.
Gregor.

Juſtus Orgel. Juſtus by theſe Dugges; and the Milke coming here-from, underſtandeth the Doctrine of the Goſpel, ſet forth by Chriſt, and his Apoſtles, which excelleth that of the Law, because it teacheth more perfect love, not only of our neighbours, but even of our enemies; whereas the Law ſaith, Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. But neither the Law, nor worldly cares are here related to, but the moſt chearing thing to the heart, which is wine; but the love of Chriſt ſhed abroad in the heart, makes it more glad, then the beſt wine in the world, when once by faith the ſoule comes to be made ſenſible hereof; for it pacifieth the mind, and ſtrengthens it to beare all tentations, and it giveth quiet thereunto, it being thus made the ſeat of wiſdome. It ſeemes to me, that it is better rendred Loves, as by Ainſworth, becauſe it is the ſpeech of a Bride to her Bride-groom, as Chriſt and his Church are compared, Joh. 3. and therefore theſe two are the interlocutours throughout all this Song; and to a Bride-groome it is improper, to aſcribe Dugges, as to a woman.

Verſ. 3. Becauſe of the ſavour of thy good oyntments, thy name is as an oyntment poured forth, therefore doe the virgins love thee; That is, becauſe of the gifts and graces of thy Spirit given to thy faithfull people, making them gratefull, whereſoever the fame hereof is diffuſed, thy name Jeſus cometh to be famous every where, for this name is delectable above all names, and hereunto all things doe reverence Phil. 2. 9. by bowing the knee. The oyntments giving ſo gratefull a ſavour, were gifts of miraculous operations, Faith, Patience, Meekneſſe, Righteouſneſſe, Love, and Joy, for which the ſoules of theſe, to whom the ſweet ſmell hereof came in every Nation that loved Chriſt; according to this the Apoſtle ſaith, We are a ſweet ſmelling 2 Cor. 2. 15. ſavour to God in every place.

Verſ. 4. Draw me, we will run after thee, the King brought me into his chambers, we will be glad, and rejoyce in thee, we will remember thy love more then wine, the upright love thee. Here is further implyed, where the love of the Soule to Chriſt beginneth, and what is the efficient cauſe hereof, viz. his drawing of it by his unſpeakeable love, and by his Spirit unto him, according to which he ſaith, No Joh. 6. 44. man can come to me, except the Father draweth him. But being thus drawne, all beleevers, as one, not only goe, but run after him, which is implyed by the change of the number, draw me, and we will run.

They that are taken with the true love of Chriſt cannot by any impediment be ſtayed from following him, ſo farre doth their love of him exceed the love of all worldly things, ſo that they now delay not the time of following him; Father and Mother, and Wife and Children, Brethren and Siſters, Houſe or Land cannot ſtay them, nor the love of worldly pleaſures, or profits, one day or houre from beginning Note. this their happy race, the end whereof will be a Crowne incorruptible. And this makes againſt thoſe, that like Lot and his Wife, and Daughters, linger ſtill in Sodom, and make no haſte to turne from their ſinnes, as thinking that they may doe this time enough afterwards. But Paul according to that which is here, ſaith, I 2 Tim. 4. 8. have fought a good fight, and run a good race, and ſo was ſure of the Crowne; the King brought me into his chambers.

Gregor. What are theſe chambers, ſaith Gregory, or cellars, as he calleth them, but the Myſteries of the holy Scriptures, into which Chriſt, the King, bringeth the Soule, when he giveth it the underſtanding hereof, as he ſaid to his Apoſtles, To you it is Matth. 13. 11, 12. given to know the myſteries of the kingdome of Heaven, who ſo is brought hither, immediatly cryeth out, we will be glad and rejoyce in thee. Now it being knowne what the incomparable love of Chriſt is towards us, in ſhedding his bloud for us, we have joy herein above all joyes, even above that which is in wine, all worldly things being deſpiſed in compariſon, the upright ſhall love thee; That Note. is, all who walke not in crooked wayes of ſinne, but in the right and ſtreight way, underſtanding this, will love thee with the like love of the higheſt degree, and worldly things no more; ſo that if he, who ſo liveth in ſinne, hath not the love of Chriſt in him, although outwardly he carrieth the matter never ſo cloſely, as Hypocrites doe, that live in ſinne, but it cometh not out till afterwards, as the Apoſtle ſaith, Some mens ſins goe before, and in ſome they follow after. 1 Tim. 5. 24. They ſay, they love him, but in their deeds denying him they are proved lyars, for the upright only love him, becauſe no man can love ſinne and Chriſt alſo, for what agreement be- 2 Cor. 6. 17. twixt righteouſneſſe and unrighteouſneſſe?

Verſ. 5. I am blacke, but comly (O yee Daughters of Jeruſalem,) as the tents of Kedar.

Kedar, and as the curtaines of Salomon. Becauſe it was before ſaid, the upright wil love thee, leſt for this it ſhould be thought, that the righteous and faithfull Servants of God are without ſinne, and might thinke themſelves ſo, the Church here confeſſeth; I am blacke, yet comly; the vulgar, faire, and as the skin of Salomon.

Gregor.

Epheſ. 5.

Eccleſiam fœdam & turpem amavit, ut Pulchram redderet.

Note.

Kedar, ſaith Gregory, ſetteth forth blackneſſe, for ſo it ſignifieth; Salomon is pacifique; That is, Chriſt who maketh peace betwixt God and man. I am black then, ſaith the faithfull ſoule, by reaſon of my ſinnes, as Kedar, but comly, or faire through the love of this Salomon, who hath waſhed us with his bloud from every ſpot and wrinckle; through the corruption then that ſtill remaineth in us, we that beleeve, and love Chriſt, are blacke, but through Chriſts righteouſneſſe, made ours by faith, we are faire, as one ſaith well; Chriſt loved a filthy and foul Church, that he might make her faire. Now for as much as the true faithfull ſoule confeſſeth her ſelfe to be black, through ſinne ſtill cleaving unto her, what is to be thought of the Antinomians, who ſay, that they are without ſinne, and God can ſee no ſin in them, and therefore they condemne in the juſtified all confeſſing of ſins? Surely they are not led by the Spirit, whereby the truly faithfull are led, and therefore are not of that body; and ſo whilſt they are this conceitedly righteous, they have no true righteouſneſſe at all; and whilſt they ſay they are without ſinne, they have in them nothing but ſinne, inſtead of their imagined righteouſneſſe.

Juſtus Orgel.

Pſal. 68. 13.

Juſtus Orgel. ſaith the ſame with Gregory, touching the Churches confeſſing her ſelfe black by ſinne; but he further ſaith, Shee calls her ſelfe blacke for Perſecutions, and ſufferings, and debaſements by Tyrants, of which Paul ſaith, We are made the off-ſcouring of all things; and the Pſalmiſt, Though yee have laine among the pots, and have been black, yet yee ſhall be as a Dove, that hath ſilver wings, and her feathers of gold.

Where both black and faire is ſpoken of, and by the skin of Salomon, he underſtandeth death, in which, as Beaſts that be killed and flayed, Chriſtians were in the Primitive Church continually, according to that alſo of the Apoſtle, who further ſaith, in ſpeaking of the ſufferings of the Church, We beare about in our bodies the death of our Lord Jeſus. And this ſpeech is directed to the daughters of Jeruſalem to intimate, that the Goſpel ſhould goe firſt out from thence, but by the Jewes be rejected, and perſecuted, and by the Heathen alſo, whereby the Jewes were more hardned, as judging the Chriſtian religion hated of God, ſith the profeſſours thereof were ſo perſecuted, and mocked.

The word here uſed, מרציות ſignifieth either skin, or curtaine, which may be thought to be all one, becauſe the Tabernacle was covered with skins, and hereby hidden, as a roome with Curtaines drawne; but by Salomons skin I cannot underſtand another compariſon that ſetteth forth blackneſſe, but becauſe all things about him were faire and glorious, beauty, and this beſt anſwereth to theſe words, but comly, or faire, as the tents of Kedar to theſe, I am blacke; the Arabians tents, meant by the tents of Kedar, being black and foule, as beſt fitted a rude and poore people, ſuch as they were in Arabia Petræa.

Verſ. 6.

Gregor.

Looke not upon me becauſe I am blacke, becauſe the Sun hath looked upon me, my mothers children were angry with me, they made me the keeper of the Vine-yards, but mine own Vine-yard have I not kept. Here by the Sun, Gregory underſtands Chriſt, in compariſon of whom the Soule of the moſt holy man is black, and by mothers children, the Apoſtles, the children of the Jewiſh Church; and he will have her that ſpeaketh, the Church, or Congregation of them that firſt imbraced the Goſpel, whether Jewes or Gentiles, and their anger againſt this Church, their anger at their Idolatries, and Superſtitions, from which yet the Apoſtles having converted them, ſet them up, to keep and ſtabliſh them in the faith, whereinto they had converted them, many Nations; but ſaith he, that was a Jew by nature, but now faithfull, Mine owne vine-yard have I not kept; That is, the Jewiſh Church, which ſtill remained in infidelity, and put the Goſpel away from her. But in this Expoſition things are much forced, in that the Sun making blacke is here expounded of Chriſt, and the Brethren of the Church, or her mothers ſons angry with her, of the Apoſtles :I rather conceive that by the ſunne is meant heat of perſecution, as in the parable, for that tanneth and maketh blacke, and ſo this blackneſſe anſwereth to that, verſ. 5. according to one expoſition thereupon ; and then in ſaying, Look not upon me becauſe I am black, ſhe meaneth to deſpiſe me, for her Mothers children that were angry with her, and ſet her to keep the Vine-yards, theſe more probably were enemies then friends, for brethren are angry with their brethren, that are not of their owne minde ; but contrary, although their wayes be never ſo evill, as David ſaith, that his brethren ſtood afarre off from him, and the Scribes and Phariſees were angry at any Diſciples that followed Chriſt, and Hereticks with the Orthodox, that oppoſed them in their Hereſies. And it is here to be noted, that he ſaith, My mothers children, implying hereby ſuch as were of Iſrael, but not Iſrael, or Jews indeed, as the Apoſtle ſaith, All are not Iſrael, that be of Iſrael & he is not a Jew that is one outward, but he that is one within, and therefore it is not ſaid, My Fathers Children ; that is, Gods children, and therefore they were not the Apoſtles, but the ſuperſtitious Jewes, the Phairſees. Then in ſaying, they ſet me to keep the vine-yards, it muſt be meant, by their wrath againſt me, and unkinde uſage of me, they put me from them, and taking care any more about their converſion, that going from them I might keep other Vine-yards ; That is, teach the Goſpel amongſt the Gentiles for their converſion, and then watch over and keep them ; yet this is my grieſe, My owne vine-yard I have not kept ; That is, the Congregation or Church of the Jewes, which the Prophet Eſay ſetteth forth, as the Vine-yard of the Lord of Hoſts, and this is ſpoken in the perſon of any Apoſtle ſent out by our Lord Chriſt then, to preach only to the Jewes, but not to the Gentiles, or Samaritans, which therefore either of them calleth his owne Vine-yard; and what a grieſe it was to them that they could not keep this, and dreſſe it to fructification, we may ſee by the Apoſtle Paul, who profeſſed, that he had continuall heavineſſe for thoſe his brethren in the fleſh.

Match. 13.
Rom. 9.
Rom. 2. 28,29.
Eſa. 5.
Rom. 9.

In all this Ainſworth agreeth, except in that of their ſetting her to keep the Vine-yards, which he underſtandeth of agreeing to Superſtitions, and Hereſies, which becauſe the truly faithfull would not doe, they were angry with them.

Ainſw.

Juſtus Orgel. agreeth with him in this alſo, but he ſaith the ſame in the premiſes with that which went before, and addeth, that they alſo are meant who imbraced the Goſpel, but not ſo ſincerely, that ſtood for the ceremonies of the Law, as neceſſary to be obſerved, as appeareth, Act. 15. and in the Epiſtle to the Galathians, for they were angry with ſuch as would not obſerve them, and made contention hereabout. Bernard followeth Gregory, to me it ſeemeth cleare, that this ſetting of her to keep the Vine-yards is, as I before ſaid. Thus the Jewes raiſing perſecution againſt Chriſtians, cauſed their flying from Jeruſalem, and ſcattering amongſt the Gentiles, by meanes whereof both Vine-yards were planted, and kept in other places.

Juſtus Orgel.
Acts 8.

7 Tell me (O thou) whom my ſoule loveth, where thou feedeſt, where thou makeſt thy flock to reſt at noon? for why ſhould I be as one that turneth aſide by the flocks of thy companions? All ſuch as are without Chriſt, are without reſt, or ſhadow, in the heat of the day at noon, becauſe they live in ſin, which burneth in them by divers luſts, they are toſſed with many evill cogitations, as the waves of the Sea, that never is quiet, only when the ſpirit of faith, and the feare of God cometh into the heart, there is ſhadow, and reſt under this ſhadow, being juſtified by faith we have peace with God ; where the Flock of Chriſt reſteth, there the ſoule inquireth, that knowing it, ſhe may with all ſpeed come hither, and reſt ſecurely, being delivered from the dominion of ſinne, which cauſeth torment in the conſcience, as by the heat of fire in ſuch as are without the grace of Sanctification, to lead holy and new lives. In particular, an evill tongue is a fire, and by fleſhly luſts men are ſaid to burne, where reſt in this ſhadow is to be had none knoweth, but he that is come to it ; till this time we inquire, and are ſeeking, and who ſo doth, is happy, for he beginneth to be the Spouſe, if he doth it with an heart deſirous hereof above all other things, and Chriſt will anſwer the deſire of his ſoule, as appeareth, verſ. 8.

Verſ. 7.
Gregory.
Eſa. 57. 20,21
Pſal. 91.
Rom. 5. 1.
Jam. 3.
Rom. 7.

But who are the Flocks of his companions, of turning aſide, by whom the ſoule is ſo much afraid? they are degenerated Chriſtians, who ſometime joyned themſelves to Chriſt, by profeſſing his faith, and ſo in outward appearance were his brethren, and companions,or friends, as he told his Diſciples that they were, but falling into divers errours, their chiefe indeavour after this is to corrupt and ſeduce others into the ſame errours. And it is to be noted, that having ſpoken of Chriſts Flock as one, of theſe, it is ſpoken as divided into divers Sects, as Hereticks alwayes are, and ſo they make not one, but many flocks, ſome holding ſome errours, and ſome others, as the Sectaries of theſe times doe, ſome being Anabaptiſts, ſome Browniſts, ſome Antinomians, &c. the true reformed Proteſtant Religion being forſaken. And this is a manifeſt ſigne of degenerated Chriſtians, that they who are gone out from us, are at ſuch difference amongſt themſelves, ſome being for Presbytery, and ſome for Independency, even at daggers drawing, as we ſay; at this the Romane Catholicks rejoyce, nothing doubting now, but that all we Proteſtants are the Apoſtatizing companions here meant, and that they are the true Catholike Church of Chriſt.

But although falling from the true faith, and ſo of a flock being turned to be divers flocks, argueth apoſtatizers, and degenerating companions, yet this ſpeakes not for the foreſaid Catholicks, in what unity ſoever they agree amongſt themſelves, they having made ſo foule a defection from the true faith in many things, no more then the unity, into which Herod and Pontius Pilate came, when they agreed together againſt Chriſt, ſpake for them; but thoſe amongſt us, that doe ſo degenerate, may well be confounded, to thinke into what a predicament they have brought themſelves by their new Opinions, and repent.

Ainſworth.

Ainſworth by the reſting at noone here ſpoken of, underſtandeth in time of perſecution, according to the allegory of the Sun before going; the Cald. Paraphraſt, and other Rabbins underſtand it of the time of the Jewes captivity, as here Propheſied of, the Church living amongſt Idolaters, then being ſollicitous about her being directed ſo, as ſhe might not be drawne away by the errours of Heathen Idolaters.

Juſtus Orgel.

Juſtus Orgel. by reſting at noon day, underſtandeth the light of the Goſpell brightly ſhining, the ſoule deſireth to be directed to the true Church, that ſhe may not erre after flocks of Hereticks, called Chriſts companions, becauſe for their beleeving of Chriſts Nativity, Death, Reſurrection, and Aſcenſion aright, they are taken to be true Chriſtians, and ſo there is danger of being deceived by them, without good direction from Chriſt.

Verſ. 8.
The Bridegroome.

If thou knoweſt not (O thou faireſt among women) goe thy way forth by the foot-ſteps of the Flock, and feed thy Kids beſides the tents of the ſhepheards. As the Church, the Bride, ſpake hitherto, and ſaid; Although I be black, yet I am comly; ſo now the Bridegroom ſaith, (O thou faireſt amongſt women) That is, by the beauty by me given unto thee, as was noted before; and he giveth her direction how to know aſſuredly where he feeds his flocke, that ſhe may not be turned aſide by the inticements of the flockes of his counterfeit companions. Goe thy way forth by the foot-ſteps of the Flocke, and feed thy Kids beſides the tents of the ſhepheards; That is, goe in the way of the faith and obedience, wherein other ſervants of mine of old have gone, and yee that are ſhepheards now, feed your Kids; that is, young and tender Chriſtians, beſides, or nigh to the tents of the ancient Shepheards, the Prophets, under the Old Teſtament, and the Apoſtles under the New, teaching nothing, but what they have taught, and laid thee downe ſure grounds for, he that doth thus, pitcheth his tents nigh their tents, and ſhall be ſure not to erre. Of walking in the ſteps of the obedience of Abrahams faith, ſee Heb. 11. Rom. 4. 12. and 2 Cor. 12. 18. Walke in the ſame Spirit, in the ſame foot-ſteps; and for Kids figuring out the beſt, as well as the worſt, ſee Exod. 12. 5. where a Lambe or Kid is indifferently appointed to be taken for the Paſſe-over, typifying Chriſt, and two Goates in the day of expiation, the one taken and Sacrificed, the other the ſcape Goat let goe into the Wilderneſſe, repreſented him more fully, both in his Humanity and Divinity. Laſtly, for having regard to the Shepheards, heards, or Teachers, who are approved for ſound, to follow, and to keep our tents near theirs, or upon theirs. as the word alſo ſignifieth, Epheſ. 2. 20. Built upon the Prophets and Apoſtles, &c. Heb. 13. 7. Looke at them that preach the Word unto you, to follow them, &c. 1 Cor. 11. Follow me, ſaith Paul, as I follow Chriſt.

Ainſw.

Hitherto Ainſworth agreeth, who alſo alledgeth Salom. Jarchi, and the Chalde Paraphraſt ſpeaking to the ſame effect. But whereas he rather by the tents of the Shepheards, underſtands ſuch Miniſters of Satan, as transforme themſelves into Angels of Light, the companions before ſpoken of, verſ. 7. I can by no meanes aſſent unto him, or the ſaid Jarchi, who ſaith the ſame, becauſe ſuch are no where ſimply called ſhepheards, but with ſome further addition, expreſſing them to be evil, as Joh. 10. and in many other places. Much leſſe can I aſcribe to Gregory, or Juſtus here, who underſtand theſe words, as no direction to keepe them from errour, but as if he had ſaid; If thou knoweſt not, goe forth by the ſteps of the Flocks, or Herds of Sinners, and Hereticks, and feed thy uncleane young ones by the tents of ſuch ſhepheards. But ſaith Gregory, the faithfull ſoule ſhall never be left thus without direction, as being in a dangerous warfare, but ſhall be as courageous Horſes, prepared to the Battell, to ſhew which, it followeth, verſ. 9.

Gregor. Juſtus Orgel.

Verſ. 9.

I have compared thee (O my ſoule) to a company of Horſes in Pharaohs Chariots; But although this implieth warre indeed, yet I cannot ſee how the Spouſe without direction by externall meanes, only through internall inſpirations, ſhould be ſtrengthened like Warre-Horſes againſt Seducers, ſith that wicked Hereticks themſelves pretend inſpirations alſo. Therefore this cometh in aptly according to the ſence before given, it implyeth warre, and oppoſition, preſently to be made after her going in the ſteps of the Flock, not Flocks, which is alſo to be noted againſt that of Gregory, as evincing the Flock of Chriſt to be meant, which is one, and not the flockes of Hereticks, which be many.

2 Chron. 1. 17

Now the Spouſe of Chriſt, to animate her here-againſt, is compared to a company of Warre-Horſes with Chariots, and the beſt, ſuch as the Horſes of Ægypt, where Pharaoh reigned were, for which they are often moſt highly commended in the holy Scripture. And here by victory, to follow to the Church, is intimated, as alſo Zech. 10. 3, 4, 5. The Lord hath viſited his flocke, the houſe of Judah, and made them as his goodly Horſe in the Battell, and they ſhall be as mighty men, that tread downe their enemies as the mire in the ſtreets, Habac. 3. 8. 15. Thou didſt walke through the Sea with thine Horſes, ſpeaking of the victory gotten over Pharaoh at the red Sea. See alſo of Horſes conquering, Revelations 19.

Exod. 14.

Gregor.

And to thoſe inviſible Horſes over-throwing Pharaohs Horſes and Chariots, Gregory ſeemeth to thinke it to have been alluded here, adding further, that as the Iſraelites then, after this exploit done, came not preſently into the Land of Canaan, but wandred firſt in the Wilderneſſe many yeares, and then fighting againſt many enemies, and over-coming them alſo, inherited the Land; ſo the faithfull ſoule having eſcaped Pharaohs Chariots through the red Sea of Baptiſme, wherein her ſinnes are forgiven her, muſt incounter with more enemies in a Spirituall fight, and we meet with many miſeries in this world by reaſon of her renewed ſinnes, but in fine, over-coming them all by faith, and patience, ſhe ſhall attaine the heavenly inheritance for ever, and ſo be perfectly bleſſed. And for this expoſition maketh the word לססתו leſuſathito my troop of Horſes; That is, Gods inviſible power, whereby he fought for Iſrael, being here-with againſt Pharaohs Chariots, and confounding them in the red Sea: Or my horſe, Equitatui meo.

Verſ. 10.

Thy cheekes are comly, with rowes of jewels, thy neck with chaines of gold. The vulgar, for rowes of jewels, hath it, as the Turtles; ſo likewiſe the Sept. and the Hebr. word is בתורים, and חורים, ſignifieth either Turtles, or Statutes, or Ordinances: as other women to make their faces appeare the more comly hang Jewels at their eares, which hang downe to their cheekes, and put chaines of gold about their necks; ſo the Spouſe of Chriſt is adorned with chaſtity, as the Turtle Dove, and with the golden chaine of wiſdome, and all her graces, making her her moſt amiable in the ſight of God, and of all good men; of wiſdome, as a chaine about the neck, ſee before, and of good womens adorning themſelves Peter ſaith; Let it not be outward with plaited haire, and gold put about, but the ornament of a meeke and quiet ſpirit; ſo that from comparing her to Horſes, he proceedeth here to ſpeak of her againe, as a Bride prepared for the King.

1 Pet. 3. 3, 4.

Ainſworth.

Although Ainſworth doubteth, whether he goeth not on in the compariſon of Horſes, becauſe the Horſes of Kings uſed to be adorned on their Bridles with precious ſtones, and their neckes with chaines of gold; but it is moſt probable, that this is another ſimilitude taken from a glorious woman, becauſe although the Bride be compared to a company of Warre-Horſes for ſtrength, and victory, yet the compariſon with Horſes in reſpect of beauty and ornament were too meane to ſet her forth, and the word תורים agreeth not; her comlineſſe lyeth in Statutes, and Ordinances of God, according to which ſhe walketh, and this is the greateſt grace that can be to any ſoule.

Verſ. 11. Gregor. Ainſworth

We will make thee borders of gold, with ſtuds of ſilver; by borders, which Gregory rendreth murenulas, he underſtands the Holy Scriptures, whereby the Preachers tye the gold chaine before ſpoken of: they are, according to Ainſworth, further additions, and increaſes of Grace wrought by God in the faithfull, who giveth to him that hath, and it is ſaid we, to intimate the Trinity.

Prov. 25. 11.

Salomon Jarchi ſaith, I and my judgement-hall; wherein it was alluded to the Counſell amongſt the Jewes in every City, or Village, for that conſiſted of three; and for ſtuds of ſilver, he hath ſpeckes of ſilver, noting this phraſe to be like unto that, where apples of gold are ſpoken of, with pictures of ſilver; That is, moſt glorious things.

The word rendred borders, is תורי, the ſame before going, ver. 10. but there it goeth alone, here with an addition of gold, to intimate additions, as hath been ſaid, and increaſes of graces.

Verſ. 12. The Brides ſecond ſpeaking. Revel. 3. 20.

Whilſt the King ſitteth at his table, my ſpikenard ſendeth forth the ſmell thereof. By ſitting at table is meant his, That is, Chriſts communion with his Church, to expreſſe which, the Table of the Lord is ſpoken of, 1 Cor. 11. and it is ſaid, If any man openeth unto me, I will come in, and ſup with him, and he with me; it is meant then, when Chriſt communicates the graces of his Spirit to the Church, or to any faithfull ſoule, Faith, Love, Zeale, Piety, the feare of God; theſe, like precious Oyntment made of Spicknard, give a moſt fragrant ſmell, and this communication is made by meanes of their ſitting at table together, according to that ordinance, Take, eate, this is my body, &c. Juſtus takes it to be a Propheſie, of that which was done before Chriſts death and buriall, when he ſitting at table, Mary came with a box of Oyntment of Spicknard, and poured it upon his head, making all the houſe to ſmell thereof.

Juſtus Orgel. Mark 14. Ioh. 12.

Verſ. 13. Rom. 4.

And the next words, A bundle of Myrrhe, is my well-beloved to me, ſet forth his Death and Buriall, and that, which was done to him being dead, with Myrrhe, and other Spices, which were very ſweet, as in the Goſpell is related, after that, of his preparing to the buriall by the coſtly Oyntment before ſpoken of; and becauſe he dyed for our ſins, this is a ſweet and comfortable thing to the faithfull, as a bundle of Myrrhe, Pſal. 45. to ſhew the ſweetneſſe of Myrrhe it is ſaid, All thy garments ſmell of Myrrhe, Aloes, and Caſſia, he ſhall lye all night between my breaſts; That is, I ſhall be comforted and refreſhed by him all the time of this darkneſſe of miſery in this life, as by the ſweet ſmelling of Myrrhe, a bagge whereof lyeth between my breaſts.

Verſ. 14. Ainſworth. 2 Chron. 20.

My beloved is to me, as a cluſter of Camphir in the Vine-yards of Engedi; The word rendred Camphir, by ſome Cipreſſe, ſignifying redemption, or propitiation, it is כפר, the abundant and all-ſufficient redemption that we have by Chriſt, is hereby ſet forth, if the Cipreſſe be underſtood here, the fruit thereof being ſweet, may moſt aptly be a figure of this cluſter of redemptions, becauſe it is berries growing together in bunches; Engedi was a fruitfull place in the Tribe of Ju-dah, Engedi ſignifieth a fountaine of flockes, the place being ſo called for the ſprings being there; and Ainſworth noteth, that in this place the enemies comming ming againſt Jehoſhaphat were deſtroyed miraculouſly, whereby he got great ſpoyles, ſo that in mentioning it, that victory is alluded to, and that gotten by Chriſt over ſinne, and Satan, for our comfort, and the making of us rich, that were poore before.

Juſtus Orgel.

Juſtus ſaith, that the wood of the Croſſe was Cipreſſe, and therefore moſt aptly Chriſt hanging thereupon is compared to this cluſter, for the manifold ſweet odours that were in him, not to himſelfe, but to us that beleeve; and for Engedi, he hath Engaddi, the eye of temptation, as he rendreth it, becauſe to bring him to ſuffer death, the Scribes and Phariſees tempted him by queſtions, that they might intrap him, and bring him into danger of his life.

Verſ. 15.
Verſ. 16.
The Bridegroomes ſecond ſpeech.
Eph. 5. 30.

Behold; thou art faire my Love, thou art faire, thou haſt Doves eyes, thou art faire, yea pleaſant alſo, our bed is green. Chriſt had ſaid before, thou art the faireſt amongſt women. Now he praiſeth his Spouſes beauty againe, which beauty of Grace and Sanctification he indeed putteth upon her; and he addeth, thou haſt Doves eyes, whereby her ſimplicity, humility, and innocency are ſet forth, her looking only at Chriſt for Juſtification, and at his precepts, to walke accordingly, not at vanity, or the glittering of gold and ſilver to be drawn hereby.

The Brides third ſpeech.

The next words, Thou art faire, yea pleaſant alſo; the vulgar hath, tu pulcher es, in the Maſculine Gender, as ſpoken to Chriſt by the Church, as if ſhe had ſaid; Am I faire! nay, thou art faire, I have no beauty but what I have from thee, and through thee; our bed is green or flouriſhing, where by bed alſo the table may be underſtood, becauſe this was one uſe of beds of old, to ſit and feed upon, as wel as to lye down and ſleep; and then hereby is meant both flouriſhing, and increaſing in Children, and a proſperous eſtate; and ſo both Juſtus, the Chald. Paraphraſt and others generally underſtand it, and for the vulgar reading, makes the Hebr. for it is a maſculine, דודי ver. 14 כעותי amica mea.

Verſ. 17.
1 Tim. 3. 15
Ainſworth

The beames of our houſe are of Cedar, and our rafters of Firre. The houſe of Chriſt is his Church, and this is ſaid to be made of Cedar for ſweetneſſe and durability, and for rafters, ſome have Galleries to walk in, and for Firre, Cipreſſe; and Aquila Boratine, Ainſworth noteth, that this word is no where elſe found in all the Bible but here; many ſimilitudes are uſed, the more fully to ſet forth the Graces of God in the congregation of his people.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1.
The Bridegroomes third ſpeech.
Gregory.
Cald. Paraph.

I Am the Roſe of Sharon, as the Lilly of the vallies; Gregory, for the roſe of Sharon, hath, the flower of the field, and takes this as ſpoken by Chriſt; but the Chaldee Paraphraſt wil have the Church to goe on ſpeaking in this verſe, and Chriſt in the next, and this Ainſworth followeth, I ſubſcribe to Gregory, becauſe the humility of the faithfull is ſuch, that ſhe never praiſeth her ſelfe without ſaying ſomething of her own fouleneſſe, as verſ. 5. and it is commanded, let another praiſe thee, not thine owne lips; he calleth himſelfe the flower, or chiefe flower of the field, which is the Roſe, becauſe moſt ſweet, and fragrant, by reaſon of the fulneſſe of grace in him, and the Lilly for his beauty to make us in love with him, as the Church before compared him to a bundle of Myrrhe, and to a cluſter of Camphire, and ſaid, Thou art faire and pleaſant; but Sharon was a proper name of a place, where Davids flocks or Heards were fed, being a plain, neare unto which was a valley of Lillies, the Roſes in the one, and the Lillies in the other, being the faireſt that were, becauſe it was moiſt and fat ground, and שרון ſignifieth a field, or fat ſoyle. And to the roſe doth our Lord compare himſelfe alſo, becauſe of the prickles of the Roſe-buſh upon which it groweth, and flouriſheth; ſo he being amongſt the prickes of the Crowne of Thornes, and ſharp nailes, piercing his hands and feet, flouriſhed and triumphed, then drawing all men unto him, as he had before ſaid. And to the Lilly of the Vallies, for the humility of his Mother, according to that in her Magnificat, He hath regarded the lowlineſſe of his hand-maiden, becauſe vallies are low.

1 Chron. 27. 29.
Col. 2. 14.

Verſ. 2. Gen. 3. Note.

As the Lilly among the thornes, ſo is my love amongſt the daughters. Here Chriſt further commendeth his Spouſe, by comparing her with other Daughters, that is, the unbeleeving, and Hereticall Congregations, ſhe is as the Lilly for whiteneſſe, through his beauty, by faith communicated unto her, and the graces of his Spirit in her; they as thornes, the fruits of Gods curſe upon the earth, being of harſh and pricking conditions; now, Thornes and Briars are for the fire, ſo are they for the fire of Hell; Thornes prick, and pierce, and fetch bloud of thoſe that are amongſt them, ſo it is hereby meant, that the wicked Jewes, and Gentiles, and Hereticks, ſhould perſecute, and ſhed the bloud of the faithfull. The Lilly hath no prickes thus to doe, no more hath the true Church of God, for religions ſake, although they erre, to cut off any; and therefore hereby the Roman Catholicks notoriouſly ſhew themſelves to be as thornes, but they of the reformed religion to be as the Lilly, and ſo to be glorious; as it is ſaid of the Lilly, that Salomon in all his royall apparrell was not ſo glorious.

Of the true Churches bloſſoming as a roſe, ſee Eſa. 35. 1. and as the Lilly, Hoſ. 14 5. of wicked perſecutors compared to thornes, Numb. 33. 55. They ſhall be goads in your ſides, and thornes in your eyes; and Ezek. 28, 24. There ſhall be no more a pricking briar, or thorne to the houſe of Iſrael; for his calling wicked peoples daughters, it is a common phraſe, The daughter of Babylon, the daughter of Paleſtine, &c.

Verſ. 3. The Brides fourth ſpeech. Note. Gal 5. 22. Eſa. 4. 6.

As the Apple-tree amongſt the trees of the wood, ſo is my beloved among the ſonnes, I ſate downe under his ſhadow with great delight, and his fruit was ſweet to my taſte. Here the Spouſe goeth on againe in praiſing Chriſt, the Apple-tree beareth pleaſant fruit, but the trees of the wood not; wouldeſt thou then come to a tree bearing fruit ſweet to the taſte, come to Chriſt, and eate, and live, and be delighted with true delight, that never fadeth, come not, but goe to other trees, and finde either none, or ſoure and killing fruit; That is, be drawne by wicked men, or Hereticks, who promiſe fruit, and more pleaſure, and thou ſhalt be fruſtrated of thy deſire, for they yeeld none, but if it be pleaſant to the carnall taſte for a time, it ſoone proveth diſtaſtfull, and mortiferous. But the fruit of this Apple-tree feedeth with hope, and joy, and love, meekneſſe, peace, and patience, againſt which there is no Law; I ſate downe under his ſhadow, under this tree is ſhadow, when the heat of perſecution ariſeth, delighting the ſoule even in the midſt of fiery flames; of ſuch a ſhadow by a cloud Eſay ſpeaketh, ſaying, I will create over every tabernacle a cloud by day, &c.

Verſ. 4. Gregor. Juſtus Orgel. Ioh. 14.

He brought me into the Banqueting-houſe, and his banner over me was love. For Banqueting-houſe, Gregory hath, Cellar of Wine, expounding it of the holy Scriptures, and the myſticall things concerning our ſalvation therein ſet forth, into which we are brought, when to the underſtanding of theſe ſecrets. Juſtus underſtands this as a Propheſie, which was fulfilled, Act. 1. & 2. when the Apoſtles, and the reſt of the faithfull were brought together into one place, it being made unto them, as a Counceller, for the joy which they had by the coming downe of the Holy Ghoſt upon them, and filling them with knowledge and ability to utter in all tongues the wonderfull things of God. He hath ordained love upon, or over me; ſo the vulgar, for theſe words, his banner over me was love, but the Hebr. word is דגל a banner, the meaning is all one, the Banner or Enſigne of the Church is, Love, or Love is the grace which he hath ordained to manifeſt his Church by, as he ſaith, Hereby ſhall men know that yee are my Diſciples, if yee love one another; but for Banqueting-houſe, Hebr. is, houſe of wine, to which effect it was ſpoken before.

Prov. 31.

And the Wine-cellar is ſpoken of next, after the fruit of the Apple-tree, which is ſweet, becauſe Chriſt is to his Spouſe not only ſweet, but chearing, and making glad the heart, like wine, when ſhe is ſorrowfull and heavie, ſo that hereby is implyed more need that the Church ſhould have of refreſhing from Chriſt, the heat of perſecution increaſing, and a ſupply to be made accordingly.

And now it is alſo a comfort to heare of his Banner, or Standard over her, under which ſhe fighting againſt ſinne, the world, and the Devill, ſhall be ſure to overcome, and that only through his love on our parts, altogether undeſerved, out of which he ſaith, In the world yee ſhall have trouble, but be of good comfort, I have overcome the world: Thus Ainſworth. And of his love the Lord ſaith, or it is ſaid of him, he loved his owne, unto the end he loved them; to ſhew, that this Standard alwayes ſtands for their defence, and is never taken downe. Joh. 13. 1.

Verſ. 5. Stay me with flaggons, comfort me with apples, for I am ſick of love; this is the voyce of a poore ſoule, ſick for want of the ſence of the comfort of Chriſts love, and now ready to ſwoone away; for as in this caſe ſome comfortable and reviving thing is with all earneſtneſſe called for ſpeedily, ſo ſhe deſireth comfort from the Miniſters of the Word, by the wine and apples before ſpoken of; Note. That is, comfortable and chearing promiſes of the Word, whereby although ſhe be brought never ſo low, ſhe may be raiſed up to life againe; and therefore the word, ſtay me, is a plurall, as if ſhe had ſaid, O friends, ſtay yee me.

And hereby we are directed in time of diſtreſſe in our mindes, what to doe, viz. to deſire ſpirituall comfort from ſpirituall Paſtors, and Paſtors in this caſe are not to ſhew themſelves difficult towards them that ſeek unto them for it.

Verſ. 6. His left hand is under my head, and his right hand doth imbrace me. The faithfull ſoule having called for comfort in her perplexity, ver. 5. now to ſhew the effect that ſhall follow upon thus doing, declareth to all men, that ſhe had comfort from her Husband Chriſt, both by his left hand being put under her head; that is, from his paſſions, and infirmities of his humane nature, which he tooke upon him, and ſuffered; and by his right hand imbracing her, That is, the power of his Divinity making his Paſſions meritorious, and effectually ſpeaking comfort unto her, to the freeing of her from all her feares and troubles. Even as ſhe, that hath a loving husband, if he ſeeth her to faint, and ready to dye, for want of his expreſſions of love towards her, if he preſently imbraceth her with one hand, and holdeth her head with the other, being much weakned through her ſad apprehenſions of his diſlike, is recreated and revived againe; Note. for by the right hand, power and ſtrength is commonly ſet forth, and by the left, weakneſſe, and infirmity, but by both together, all that one is able to doe for another in diſtreſſe; whence note, that it is not in vaine for the diſtreſſed in minde to ſeeke to Gods Miniſters for comfort, but a ſpeedy way to attaine unto it, yet it lyeth not in any of them to make their inſtructions and conſolations thus effectuall, but in Chriſt Jeſus alone.

Gregor. Gregory by the left hand, underſtands comforts temporall, and the right, eternall, and theſe are ſaid to be under the head, becauſe the heart, the principall part of man, which the head is, hath them, as it were, under, in her eſtimation, but eternal above all thoſe of this world.

Juſtus Orgel. And this is confirmed by Juſtus, ſaying, that Salomon ſaith of wiſdome, Shee hath on her right hand long life, and on her left riches, and honour; and what are riches, and honour, but things temporall? which the faithfull under-value, and long life, but life for evermore? as in the Pſalmes is further expreſſed; He asked life of thee, and thou gaveſt him long life, even for evermore.

Ainſworth. But I rather preferre the Expoſition before going, which is Ainſworths, becauſe ſpirituall comforts only are here ſpoken of, as which alone can comfort the diſtreſſed ſoule; but I take it not as he doth, for a Petition, but a Declaration, as is aforeſaid, and thus it agreeth beſt with the Hebrew, being verbatim; his left hand under my head, and his right hand ſhall ſuſtaine me; ſo that it is declared, what was now done, and further expected to be done, by a ſure and certaine faith. It may alſo be conſidered, whether it be not meant, I have already a little comfort, after my ſeeking to Chriſts Miniſters, as before was ſaid, and am nothing doubtfull, but that I ſhall have his Spirit coming into my heart more powerfully, and bringing me plenary comfort, becauſe that although by the right hand is often ſet forth power, yet by the left weakneſſe never, and both hands are not here ſpoken of together, but firſt, the left as preſent, then the right in future.

Verſ. 7. I charge you (O yee daughters of Jeruſalem) by the Roes, and the Hindes of the field, that yee ſtirre not up, nor awake my Love, till he pleaſeth. The ſoule having met with comfort after her being in perplexity, now is very carefull, that this comfort and quiet thus attained, be by no meanes diſturbed againe, and therefore ſhe layeth a charge under an Oath upon the daughters of Jeruſalem, by the Hindes, and the Roes; That is, calling the Hindes and Roes of the field to witneſſe againſt them, as both Moſes ſometime called heaven and earth to record, againſt the people of Iſrael, and Iſaiah ſaid, Heare (O Heavens) and hearken (O Earth) And the Hindes and Roes rather then other Beaſts of the field are mentioned, becauſe their love is ſingular towards one another, as hath been ſhewed before upon Proverbs, where the Husband is bidden to let his wife be to him as the Hinde, ſo loving, and the pleaſant Roe.

Eſa. 1.

Prov. 5. 19.

By daughters of Jeruſalem, underſtand the ſoules of the faithfull; That is, of all that profeſſe the faith of Chriſt, theſe are all here adjured (for ſo the vulgar renders it, and that rightly, becauſe the word rendred) I charge you, cometh from נשבע an Oath, or ſwearing, not to ſtirre, or wake Chriſt; That is, by their ſinnes not to provoke him, to the diſturbance of the peace before mentioned, coming by his left hand, under the head and ſo forth. And if it be thus underſtood, it is the voyce of one faithfull ſoule after trouble in minde, injoying reſt by Chriſt, unto others having part in this reſt alſo, deeply charging them to take heed of doing any thing, whereby this reſt may be broken off, and that this may appeare more clearly, it is to be noted, that the word rendred my love, is Hebr. the love, awake not the love, untill it pleaſeth; That is, untill it pleaſeth him to lye no longer thus with his left hand under my head, and his right hand imbracing me, and that will be never, if he be not ſtirred by our ſinnes, but the love and reſt in him, which I and you injoy, ſhal be everlaſting.

Gregory.
Juſtus Orgel.

Gregory, and Juſtus, and other Ancients following the vulgar, Awake not my love, untill ſhe pleaſeth, underſtandeth this, as ſpoken by Chriſt, who having imbraced a ſoule in the armes of his mercy, and given her joy in Divine contemplations, and being ſequeſtred from imployment amongſt others, chargeth them, although they earneſtly deſire ſuch a mans coming amongſt them for their Spirituall good, yet to permit him to goe on in this his ſequeſtered courſe of life, untill that he will voluntarily breake off, and apply himſelfe by his gifts, to ſerve publickly the neceſſities of others; and by the daughters of Jeruſalem, he will have effeminate Chriſtians meant, who are not worthy the name of men, becauſe they thinke the contemplative life too auſtere for them, or for any other man, doing therefore what they can to pull ſuch, as are denoted unto it, here-from. Thus Gregory.

Juſtus underſtandeth it, of the counſels given by Chriſt, and his Apoſtles about chaſtity, and voluntary poverty, and not urging any man hereunto, but permitting every one to doe in regard of theſe what he pleaſeth; but the laſt word חפץ is a Maſculine, and therefore it cannot be rendred by ſhe, but he, and ſo the ſence given hereupon falleth, and the firſt ſtandeth firme, the Church continueth ſtill ſpeaking of Chriſt, as carefull to continue her reſt begun in him alwayes without interruption, which ſhould be the care of us all, and therefore to fly ſinne, whereby alone this reſt is broken, otherwiſe the Roes, and the Hindes of the field ſhall riſe up againſt us, and condemne us, for our injury about that love and peace, whereupon all our felicity dependeth, when as they are ſo tender of their love towards one another, to preſerve and continue in it all their dayes.

Note.

Of the love of the Hinde and Roe, ſee upon Prov. 5. 19.

Verſ. 8. The voyce of my beloved, behold he cometh leaping upon the Mountaines, and skipping upon the hills. After the comfort coming to the faithful ſoul by Chriſt, by that which he did with his hands, both the left and the right, now followeth the comfort which ſhe taketh in his voyce, that is, his Word preached, and therefore according to that which is here ſaid, leaping upon the Mountaines, it is elſewhere Propheſied; How beautifull upon the Mountaines are the feet of thoſe, that bring glad tidings of peace! and he is ſaid to come leaping, when the Goſpel is preached, for the celerity of the Goſpels going forth into all Countries, and Nations, as the Hinde and Roe, whereunto he is compared, verſ. 9. goeth not, but leapeth, and skippeth, and ſo riddeth the ground away faſter then Beaſts that goe, Nahum, 1. 15.

Eſa. 52. 7.

or run, and the word על upon, may alſo be rendred over, he leapeth over Mountaines, as over plaine places, no obſtacle or let in the way, by the hotteſt perſecution, can hinder him from going on in his Goſpel. And as his voyce is ſpoken of here, to ſet forth his Word preached, ſo Eſa. 40. The voyce of the Cryer in the wilderneſſe, and Joh. 10. My ſheep heare my voyce, &c.

And oppoſitions made againſt the Word, are well ſet forth by Mountaines, becauſe men travelling upon the way, when they come at ſome high and ſteep Mountaines, they are invincible impediments unto them, to ſtay them from going further, but if one had this faculty of leaping over them, they would be no let, or impediment unto him, and this faculty it is ſhewed Chriſt ſhould have at his going forth by his Word.

Verſ. 9.

My Wel-beloved is like unto a Roe, or a young Hart, behold, he ſtandeth behinde our wall, he looketh out at a window, ſhewing himſelfe through the Lattice. Here is a reaſon why Chriſt was before ſpoken of, as leaping over the Mountaines, the Hinde or Hart uſeth to doe ſo, and he is herein like a young Hart or Roe; He ſtands behinde our wall, ſaith Gregory, when he hid his Divinity in our Humane nature, by taking fleſh of the Virgin Mary, and looked out at a window through a Lattice, when he was partly ſeene as man, and partly unſeen, That is, as God; and he expoundeth that before-going of his leaping, of his deſcending from heaven to earth in his Incarnation. Gregor.

Ainſw.

Ainſworth hath either this, as touching our wall, or his nearer approaches to us by degrees, then when he was firſt ſeene leaping upon the Mountaines, and his looking in at a window, and through the Lattice, was his ſhining in here, as the Sunne ariſing in the morning, and by looking in at the window inlightening the houſe; So Chriſt ſtood firſt, as it were, behind our wall of partition, when he was ſet forth only under darke types; and figures of the Law; he looked in at the window, when the ſunne-ſhine of the Goſpel aroſe, but through the Lattice, when revealing himſelfe in many myſteries to his people, he yet concealeth himſelfe in ſome; for we know, and ſee but in part. 1 Cor. 13.

And looking through the window alſo, intimateth his ſeeing of us, both to obſerve our doings, whether good or evil, and to protect his Church; as God is ſaid to have looked upon the Hoaſts of Iſrael, purſued by Pharaohs, and as a man looking out at a window, through a Lattice, is ſcarce ſeene of thoſe without, but he ſeeth all things; ſo although we ſee not Chriſt ready to protect us in danger, yet he ſeeth us, and the ſecreteſt plottings of our enemies, to diſappoint them of their purpoſes, and to deliver his out of dangers, that we may both ſtand in awe of him in all places, and doing ſo, be confident of his protection at all times, againſt all that machinate miſchiefe againſt us. Of looking out at a window and ſeeing, although unſeene, ſee Prov. 7. I looked out at my window, &c. Note.

Verſ. 10.

Ainſw.

My Beloved ſpake, and ſaid unto me, Riſe up my love, my faire one, and come away; Hebr. for riſe up, is, riſe for thy ſelfe, and for (come away) come for thy ſelfe; That is, ſaith Ainſworth, Riſe, and come for thy owne benefit. Or, it may be thus underſtood, whatſoever others doe, continuing, when they heare my Word, in ſinne, or infidelity, doe thou for thy part ariſe, and come to me; looke not at the moſt, to be drawne by their example, to the doing of evil, to ſinne againſt thy owne ſoule, by ſitting, or lying ſtill in the ſtate of Nature, as they doe; but enter in at the ſtreight gate, and walke in the narrow way, which a few only finde, the moſt going in the broad way, notwithſtanding their hearing of my voyce, for that leadeth to death; but to enter thus into the narrow way, by beleeving, and obeying me, is to come into the way of life. Matth. 7. 14.

Here then the Church telleth, to what effect Chriſt ſpeaketh in his Word, viz. to move every ſoule that would be ſaved, not to ſit, or lye ſtill in ſinne or unbeliefe, but to riſe by repentance, and turning from ſinne, and to come to him by beleeving; ſo that this is the ſame in effect with that, Matth. 11. 28. Come to me, all yee that are weary, and heavie laden, &c. and of the ſoule that doth ſo, he ſaith, My love, my faire one; That is, through the beauty and bright luſtre of Grace, where-with thou art now inſtantly indued, one that I cannot but dearly love,

according

Epheſ. 5. 14. according to that of the Apoſtle, Awake thou that ſleepeſt, and ſtand up from the dead, and Chriſt ſhall give thee light. But what ſoule ſoever being thus Note. called ſitteth ſtill, preferring yet to live in ſinne, ſhe is black, and foule, and to Chriſt abominable.

Verſ. 11. Verſ. 12. For loe, the winter is paſt, the raine is over, and gone; The flowers appeare in the earth, the time of the ſinging of birds is come, and the voyce of the turtle is heard in our Land. Here the Church ſheweth, how the Lord went on to move her to come, by telling of the opportunity now being under the Goſpel, which is Gregor. deſcribed as the ſpring-time; therefore by the winter, Gregory underſtandeth the time of the ceremoniall Law, which was as a winter, dead, and without fruit, and raine, filling the earth with cold water, for ſo by the Law cometh death and 2 Cor. 3. condemnation, for which the Apoſtle calleth it, the miniſtry of condemnation, and they were ſubject to Ordinances of divers waſhings, wherein yet there was but cold comfort, they being not to the cleanſing from ſinne, but only of legall unclean-Heb. 10. neſſe, for the very bloud of Bulls and Goates offered in ſacrifice could doe no more.

But the time of the Goſpel is the Spring-time, as Chriſt having ſuffered death for our ſinnes, roſe in the ſpring, the moneth of Abib, anſwering in part to March, Jer. 8. and in part to April; and now flowers appeare, graſſe groweth green, and through the pleaſantneſſe hereof the Birds ſing, and the Turtle, gone in winter, cometh againe, and uttereth her voyce; and therefore if ever thou wilt come (my love) come now, and delay not, this is the beſt time to travell in; in winter, for the raine, and cold, and ſhortneſſe of the dayes, it being almoſt a continuall night in ſome places, thou couldeſt not, and if thou delayeſt a while thou ſhalt not be able, for the ſcorching heat of ſummer burning up all things, as in the torrid Zoane, and changing the very face into black, as the Æthiopians; for ſo he that delayeth his comming now, ſhall become more and more black through ſinnes increaſing, and is daily in danger, not of being ſcorched only, but burnt by the flaming fire in which Chriſt 2 Theſ. 1. 8. ſhall come, to render vengeance to all that know not God. (Flowers appeare.) Ainſworth. Ainſworth by winter, underſtands troublous times, as thoſe of Antichriſt; or troubles of minde, and by the Flowers appearing, Graces, abounding in the Church under the Goſpel, ſome having the gift of Prophecying, ſome of ſpeaking Rom. 12. with Tongues, ſome of Interpretation, and ſome of Healing, all of knowledge and faith, and ſome of faith to worke Miracles. Thus, it was promiſed according to Eſa. 27. 6. this Allegory, Iſrael ſhall bloſſome, and bud, and fill the earth with fruit, Pſal. 72. 26. and they of the City ſhall flouriſh like graſſe of the earth. And as to Pharaohs Gen. 40. Butler, the lifting up of his head was ſhewed by a Vine, ſpringing, and bearing bunches of Grapes, which he dreamed that he wrung into Pharaohs Cup; ſo by Flowers appearing here, the reſtitution of man by Chriſt to Gods favour is ſet forth, which is, when by his Spirit Graces are wrought, and appeare in him.

By the Birds ſinging, underſtand the Saints thus indued with manifold graces, rejoycing, and praiſing God, for the comfort which they finde, and feele by beleeving, and the ſpirits entring into them. Of this Eſay propheſieth, ſaying, They Eſa. 24. 15. ſhall ſing for the majeſty of the Lord, from the uttermoſt parts of the earth have Epheſ. 5. 19. we heard Songs, glory to the righteous. And the Apoſtle biddeth, Sing to your ſelves in Hymnes, and Pſalmes, and Spirituall ſongs. By the Turtle uttering her voyce, the whole Congregation of the faithfull is ſet forth together, praiſing God out of pure and chaſte mindes; or by the Turtle, underſtand the Holy Ghoſt inſpiring men extraordinarily, to utter the wonderfull things of God, becauſe the Spirit appeared in the likeneſſe of a Dove; ſo Ainſworth. But the Church is alſo ſet forth by a Dove, verſ. 14. and as ſhe is compared to Birds for her many members, ſo to a Turtle for her unity, being as one pure, and ſpotleſſe Virgin, keeping her alwayes to her one husband Chriſt. And whereas he underſtandeth troubles in Antichriſts time by winter, or inward troubles of the minde, the firſt cannot be meant, becauſe Antichriſt cometh many yeares after Chriſt, and this is ſpoken not only of the time following after that, but chiefly of the time of the firſt preaching of the Goſpel. Againe, how can it be underſtood either of trouble by perſecution, when as Chriſt ſaith, In the world yee ſhall have trouble, but be of good comfort, I have overcome the world; or of inward trouble through temptation, when as into this he entereth, that cometh to Chriſt, all things before being in quiet, whilſt the ſtrong man armed keepes the houſe; by winter therefore none of theſe, but the Law ceremoniall is to be underſtood, as hath been already ſaid.

Verſ. 13.

The fig-tree putteth forth her green figges, the Vines, and the tender Grape give a good ſmell, ariſe my love, &c. Here the ſpring of the Goſpel is further ſet forth by other ſimilitudes, ſhewing that it is Spring-time, for ſo Chriſt ſaith, When the fig-tree putteth forth, yee know that the ſummer is neare; and the Church is as a Fig-tree, and as a Vine, or Vine-yard, and ſhe ſpringeth, and giveth a good ſmell, when the Goſpel is preached, according to that of the Apoſtle, We are to God a ſweet ſmelling ſavour, &c. and to Grapes and Figges is Iſrael, compared by the Prophet, ſaying, I found your fathers as grapes in the Wilderneſſe, and as the firſt ripe figges.

Luk. 13. 8.
Eſa. 5.
2 Cor. 2. 15.
Hoſ. 9. 10.

Verſ. 14.
The Bridegrooms fourth ſpeech.

(O my Dove) thou art in the clefts of the rockes, and in the ſecret places of the ſtaires, let me ſee thy countenance, let me heare thy voyce, for ſweet is thy voyce, and thy countenance comely. Here Chriſt ſpeaketh to the Church, and he compareth her to a Dove for her harmleſneſſe, and ſimplicity, being without a Gall, cleane feeding, and a cleane Bird, which was offered in ſacrifice, ſee Mat. 10. 16. Of the Doves being in the clefts of a rock, ſee Jerem. 48. 18. Be like the Dove, that makes her neſt in the ſides of the holes mouth; it is alluded to that, which was done by Elijah, whom God put in a cleft of a rocke, whilſt he paſſed, for his ſafety, when he feared, or might feare the approach of ſo terrible a Majeſty. Here it is ſaid, Thou art in the clefts of the rocke; That is, in greateſt ſafety, ſo that thou needeſt not to be afraid, for this rock is Chriſt, and ſo is the ſecret place next ſpoken of, Pſal. 32. 7. 61. 5. 91. 1. and this is uſed as an argument to perſwade her, to come without all feare unto him, he being to her, as the rocke to the Dove, in this her ariſing and coming away.

1 King. 19. 13.
Mat. 16. 18.
1 Cor. 11.

But what is meant by the ſecrets of the ſtaires? In this caſe it is alluded to Jacobs Ladder, the top whereof reached up to Heaven, whereby the Angels aſcended, and deſcended, theſe ſtaires are the degrees of Graces, by which the faithful aſcend up to Heaven, for they are not one, but many; Faith, Hope, Love, Meekneſſe, Temperance, Patience, Joy, yea even in ſuffering; and the higheſt pitch of Grace is not at the firſt attained to, but we aſcend towards it by ſteps, or degrees, as upon ſtaires, according to which it is ſaid of the Saints, that they paſſe from ſtrength to ſtrength, till they, every one of them appeares before God in Zion.

Gen. 28
Gal. 5. 22
Pſal. 50.

Thy voyce is ſweet; this is ſpoken in anſwering to that, ver. 5, 6, 7. where the Church uttereth a lamentable voyce, ſaying, Stay yee me with Flaggons, &c. and then ſpeakes comfortably againe, His left hand is under my head, &c. his right hand imbracing me; after which, ſhe chargeth the daughters not to diſturbe this love by ſinning. Now Chriſt ſheweth, how acceptable and delighting all this is to him, praying in trouble of minde; prayer is as ſweet incenſe, praiſing God upon having any comfort, for thus God is glorified.

Pſal. 50. 15

Laſtly preaching, to ſtop the courſe of ſinning, of the ſweetneſſe of which ſee before. Thy countenance is comely, let me therefore ſee thee coming to me, as thou haſt been already invited, by the name of my faire one.

Verſ. 15.
Gregor.

Take us the Foxes, the little Foxes that ſpoyle the Vines, for our Vines have tender grapes. Gregory, whom I omitted upon verſ. 14. more particularly by the clefts of the rock, underſtands the places pierced by Nailes in Chriſts hands, and feet, by the ſecrets of the ſtaires, rendred by the vulgar, the cavernes of the wall, the place of his ſide pierced by the ſpeare; herein the ſoule is hidden, and made not to feare, when meditating upon theſe his paſſions, ſhe armes her ſelfe with faith, and patience, conſtantly to ſuffer any thing for him againe. Now for the preſent words, both he, and all others agree, that by the Foxes, which are called little, but ſaid to ſpoyle the Vines, Hereticks are to be underſtood, which ſpoyle the Churches of Chriſt by their Hereticall Doctrine, for in ſubtlety and diſſimulation they are like unto Foxes, and ſometimes they are alſo compared to Wolves in Math. 7. ſheeps cloathing; they are taken, when confuted by plaine evidence of the Word, and digged out of their holes, when put from darke paſſages of Scripture, whereupon they found their Hereticall Doctrines; therefore to them that preach the Word, and are learned, this charge is given by Chriſt.

It is not our only imployment to preach, and inſtruct, and exhort, and reprove, 2 Tim. 3. but alſo to convince gaine-ſayers, and ſtop their mouthes, by ſhewing the falſneſs 1 Tim. 1. 3. of their Doctrine, as Timothy was by Paul required to doe, and Titus likewiſe; Tit. 1, 11. and therefore it is the part and duty of Chriſtian Magiſtrates to take order, that Note. ſuch Foxes be not let goe at liberty, but being diſcovered who they be, firſt to reſtraine them under a great penalty, from teaching either in Church, Chappell, or private Houſe, and then to compell them to heare their errours by the learned confuted; which being done, if they perſiſt ſtill in this wicked way, and recant not, to chaſe them out of the Land, as dangerous Foxes, or Wolves, to the flocke of Chriſts ſheep, whom to preſerve ſhould be the chiefe care of Magiſtrates, and Miniſters, and not of Miniſters only, who can doe no more, but as their Shepheard with his Dogge, ſcare them away by barking, therefore it is their parts after this to rid the Land of them, much more then it was once done here by a King of England, to rid this Land of Wolves; and theſe Foxes are called little, becauſe for the moſt part they be not great, but poore, and obſcure, ariſing Ex fece populi. Which ſpoile our vines; That is, corrupt whole Churches, where it is to be noted, that to be infected with Hereſie, is to be ſpoyled. And he ſaith, our Vines have tender Grapes; That is, our Churches have weake and tender Chriſtians, eaſie by their ſubtleties to be drawne to errour, for the ſtrong are not in danger, but the weake in knowledge, and children this way. Pierius expounding it, ſaith; That by little Foxes evil cogitations are ſet forth, which muſt be ſuppreſſed, whilſt they are little, in the very beginning, otherwiſe they marre the Vine; That is, the heart wherein they lurke.

Verſ. 16. The Brides fifth ſpeech. Epheſ. 5. 30. My beloved is mine, and I am his, he feedeth amongſt the Lillies. Here the Church againe ſpeaketh, comforting her ſelfe in this, that ſhe had ſuch a beloved, as Chriſt is, uniting her unto himſelfe by a ſpirituall Marriage, and ſo making her one with himſelfe, fleſh of his fleſh, and bone of his bones, for herein ſhee hath joy that cannot be expreſſed, and upon this ſhe breaketh out into theſe words; My beloved is mine, and I am his; for his feeding amongſt the Lillies, the Lord Verſe 2. had before compared his Church to a Lilly amongſt the thornes, now ſhe joyeth in this, that he is continually preſent in her Aſſemblies, ſitting, and eating, and drink- Ainſw. ing, as it were, amongſt them in that moſt holy feaſt of his Supper. Ainſworth underſtandeth his feeding, of his feeding of his flock amongſt the Lillies, that is, the flowers of the Scriptures.

Verſ. 17. Till the day breake, and the ſhadowes fly away, turne (my beloved) and be like the Roe, or a young Hart upon the mountaines of Bether. Of the Roe, and Hart, to which Chriſt is compared, ſee before, ver. 9. Here the Church deſireth him to be ſo to her; That is, to come leaping to her help, in time of danger by perſecution, or of trouble by temptations, and in thus doing not to ceaſe, till the day appeareth, and the ſhadowes fly away; That is, till the night of trouble and adverſity be paſt, the day, or time of deliverance from all troubles coming, which ſhall be at Chriſts ſecond coming.

2 Pet. 1. 19. And like unto this Peter ſpeaketh, till the day dawne, &c. but this is ſpoken of illumination by the Spirit, and Sanctification, which is before that day; and by the Hinde and Roe, Chriſts manifeſtation of his love and joy is underſtood, as in Rom. 5. 11, &c. Of the mountains it was ſpoken alſo, ver. 8. here only the name Bether, ſignifying diviſion, is further added, and it was a mountain neare Jordan, where ſuch Cattell fed, ſo called, becauſe here by that river the Land of Canaan was divided, or rather for the dividing of Jordan, for Iſrael to paſſe over.

For the Mountaines of Bether, the Vulgar hath it, of Bethel, but Hebrew it is Gregor. Bether; Gregory expounds this of Chriſts returning at the Day of Judgement, like a Roe, or young Hart; That is, in the ſame forme of a man that he tooke of the Virgin Mary. But becauſe it is not ſaid, when the day ariſeth, but, till the day breake, denoting the time wherein the Church deſireth him to doe thus, that agreeth not, and therefore I reſt in the former expoſition. And the mountaines of Bether are particularly ſpoken of, becauſe that by them the children of Iſrael entred into the Land of Canaan, when they came over Jordan, and vanquiſhed all their enemies: and ſo the meaning is, Returne to thy Church in adverſity, by vanquiſhing all Perſecutors, thus turning her night of troubles into a day of deliverance, ſo as that it may appeare to be an act done by thy mighty hand, and ſtretched-out arme. And as the Church prayeth, ſo it hath, and ſhall be done from time to time; ſhe may be for a time in the ſhadow of death, but ſhe ſhall bee timely delivered, and not lye in perpetuall darkneſſe, but her light ſhall breake forth as the noon day, and the care which Chriſt hath over her ſhall appeare to all men. Note.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. BY night on my bed I ſought him, whom my ſoule loveth, I ſought him, but I found him not. Here it is ſhewed, that Chriſt is not found by moſt ſerious meditation, ſtudy, and prayer in ſecret, but by going forth to the place, where he is preached: for what more ſecret place is there, then a mans chamber, and bed, wherein he lyeth in the night? and what time of more ſerious ſtudy and meditation then here? for thoſe that upon their beds give themſelves to meditate: but ſhe doing thus confeſſeth, that ſhe found him not, and therefore ſhe ſaith:

Verſ. 2. I will ariſe now and goe about the City, in the ſtreetes, and in the broad wayes, I will ſeeke him, whom my ſoule loveth; I ſought him, but I found him not. By the City is meant the City of Jeruſalem, or any other great City full of people, going up and downe about their worldly affaires. Here alſo ſhe ſearched for Chriſt, but found him not: which ſheweth, that he is not found by that ſoule that is wholly intent to worldly buſineſſe, pertaining either to the Common-wealth, or his owne particular eſtate in this world, as indeed there is leſſe reaſon to thinke thus to finde him, then by retiredneſſe for meditation. After ſeeking both theſe wayes, and not finding, ſhe goeth on, and ſaith:

Verſ. 3. Ezek. 3. Heb. 13. 17. The watch-men found me, who goe about the City, to whom I ſaid, ſaw yee him whom my ſoule loveth? Theſe are the preachers of the Word, who are often ſet forth by the name of Watch-men; and they are ſaid to goe about the City, in alluding to the manner of Watch-men, who goe about in the night from ſtreet to ſtreet, to ſee that there be no hurt done by Theeves, or caſualty of fire: ſo that hereby their care and circumſpection over the people is ſet forth, for which they are alſo called ἐπισκόποι and Over-ſeers; and ſhe ſaith not, that ſhe found them, but they found her, and by their meanes ſhe found Chriſt a little after, as is ſhewed, verſe 4.

Verſ. 4. It was but a little that I paſſed from them, but I found him whom my ſoule loveth. There is nothing ſaid of the anſwer which they gave her: but becauſe ſhe found him, ſo ſoone after that they had found her, it is implied, that their finding of her was by their inſtructing, and teaching her in the knowledge of God, and his Chriſt, whereby ſhe was inlightned, and had exceeding comfort. For their finding her in the ſtreets, and the broad places thereof, herein it is ſpoken much like unto that which is ſaid of Wiſdome, She cryeth in the gates, at the entry of the City, and in the pathes and high places; and in the Parable, the King ſent out his Servants into the ſtreets to bring Gueſts in. By all which together from the firſt verſe hitherto, we are taught firſt, that Chriſt is not found by mans induſtry, and his owne endeavouring to finde him, but man is firſt out of his great grace and mercy found of him, and then he findes Chriſt, as it is elſewhere ſaid: I was found of them that ſought me not; that we may attribute nothing to Prov. 8. 2, 3.

Matth. 22.
Note.
Rom. 10. 20.

Note. our ſelves, but all to his grace; but yet ceaſe not to ſeeke, till we finde. 2. Chriſt is not found by thoſe that lye in bed, that is, by idle and ſloathfull perſons; nor yet by ſuch as riſe and goe about Secular things, as worldly men commonly doe, intending City or Country buſineſſes firſt, and chiefly, and the right ſeeking after Chriſt Note. but a little. 3. Then is he yet found by ſuch as ſeeke and deſire him, when they meet with his faithfull Miniſters; That is, they are willing to learne, and to be inſtructed by them, and are frequent in hearing their Sermons, and deſirous to come to underſtand hereby, which is intimated by her asking them for him, as being ready to obey all their inſtructions, as the ſelf-conceited, and ſtiffe-necked of theſe times doe not, but come and heare Sermon after Sermon, doing yet little or nothing according to their teaching, but as their owne phantaſies lead them; whereas the Matth. 18. 3. true Converts are as little children, eaſie to be drawne, and led in the way that one would have them goe in: and who ſo is not, ſuch cannot enter into the Kingdome of heaven, as Chriſt teacheth.

Moreover, by the words of verſe 1. we may learne, that many thinke, that they have Chriſt, but if they come once ſeriouſly to conſider, they ſhall finde that they have him not, becauſe the Spouſe in the name of the Chriſtians ſaith, I ſought him Note. in the night in my bed, but found him not; as if ſhe had ſaid, I thought that I had him with me in bed, but when I ſought, I found him not; that we may not goe upon light and groundleſſe conjectures, but prove and try our ſelves, to finde 2 Cor. 13. that Chriſt Jeſus is in us, and that we are not reprobates, as we may be, notwithſtanding our beleeving the contrary.

I held him, and would not let him goe, untill I had brought him into my mothers houſe, and into the chambers of her that conceived mee. Here it is ſhewed, how the ſoule that hath found Chriſt laboureth to hold him, Gen. 31. even as Jacob, who wraſtled with God, and would not let him goe, till he bleſſed him; ſo the ſoule that hath found Chriſt, layeth faſt hold on him by faith, and Rom. 8. 34. nothing can ſeparate her from him, but ſhe conſtantly cleaveth to him, till that by Matth. 25. him ſhe be bleſſed, ſaying, Come yee bleſſed of my Father, into the kingdome prepared for you.

But what meaneth ſhe, by ſaying, till I had brought him into my mothers Gregor. houſe? by Mother, ſaith Gregory, the Synagogue of the Jewes is underſtood, becauſe the Church of the Gentiles was conceived, as it were, by her, as out of whom preachers came, That is, the holy Apoſtles, and converted her. In ſaying then, till I have brought him into my mothers houſe, is meant, till the Jewes be converted: for the converting of a people unto Chriſt, is the bringing of him into their houſe, afarre off from which he is before their converſion: ſo that here is a Propheſie of their converſion towards the end of the world. And by the Chambers, wee may underſtand ſeverall Congregations of them, that then ſhall imbrace the faith.

Ainſw. Ainſworth finding nothing here of the converſion of the Iewes, underſtandeth by the mothers houſe, the Church outwardly, and the Conſcience inwardly, whereinto the faithfull bring him, and then he dwelleth in their hearts, to their unſpeakeable comfort. I conceive the former expoſition to agree beſt, and that without forcing, the words cannot be thus applied; but being underſtood, as was ſaid before, what is meant by theſe words, untill I have brought him? Shall the Church of the Gentiles then hold Chriſt no longer? no, but by perſeverance in ſeeking to God by prayer for their converſion, is hereby intimated, till it be effected; ſhe being then by faith knit more faſt unto him then ever before, and made hereby more full of Rom. 11. life, according to that of the Apoſtle; If the falling away of the Jewes be the riches of the Gentiles, what ſhall their reſtitution be, but life from the dead? The fifth ver. I charge you, O ye daughters of Jeruſalem, is the ſame with ch. 2. 7 Verſ. 5. and therefore ſee the expoſition there: for as there that adjuration followes after comfort found in Chriſt; ſo here, after that the ſoule findeth him againe, having through ſome negligence, intimated by her lying in bed, and ſeeking him, loſt him, ſhe breaketh out as before, med with myrrhe and frankincenſe, and all powders of the merchant? Here the Church of the Gentiles, which ſpake before of bringing Chriſt into her mothers houſe, ſeemeth againe to ſpeake of this Mother-Church of the Jewes, being now converted, in praiſing of her for her great devotion, ſet forth by myrrhe, and frankincenſe, and other ſweet ſpices, making a moſt gratefull ſmell in the noſtrils of God, and aſcending as a pillar of ſmoake.

Verſ. 6. Who is this that cometh out of the wilderneſſe like pillars of ſmoake, perfumed

And in ſpeaking of her coming up out of the wilderneſſe, it is alluded to the coming of the children of Iſrael of old out of the wilderneſſe, through Jordan, to poſſeſſe the Land of Canaan, their coming out of all Lands in the time of their infidelity being as a wilderneſſe, and barren place unto them, wherein they wanted all ſpirituall food, being hereby aptly ſet forth. That ſweet odours ſet forth prayer, and preaching is ſo well knowne, that I ſhall not need here againe to ſpeake of it, but rather we ſhould be hereby invited to practiſe the like devotion at all times, and in all places, being aſſured, that thus doing, we are aſcending towards heaven, out of Note. the wilderneſſe of this world, and ſhall in Gods good time be received there, to our everlaſting comfort; whereas if we aſcend not firſt by theſe devotions, but neglect them, we ſhall never come there, ſith that to them that call upon the name of Jam. 1. the Lord only, ſalvation is promiſed, and if any man heareth the Word, and doth it, he is bleſſed in the deed.

Behold his bed, which is Salomons, ſixty valiant men are about it, it may alſo Verſ. 7. be rendred, behold his bed, it is Salomons; That is, as Salomons, that man, whoſoever he be, that thus reverenceth, and honoureth God, with praiſes and prayers, out of a pure heart, his bed, or reſting place, whereſoever it is, is ſo guarded by Angels, as Salomons was by valiant men, with ſpeares and ſwords, in uſing which they were moſt expert, and therefore he ſhall be moſt ſafe, and not Pſal. 91. need to feare any danger, either of the Arrow or Peſtilence. And by him in ſpeciall may be meant Iſrael converted, as was before ſaid, to ſet forth the royall glory which ſhould be to that Church then; but herein every devout Chriſtian ſhareth with her, and is likewiſe ſtrongly guarded, where-ever he makes his bed.

King Salomon made himſelfe a Chariot of the wood of Lebanon, he made the Verſ. 9. pillars thereof of ſilver, and the borders of gold, the covering of it of purple, Verſ. 10. the midſt being paved with Love, for the daughters of Jeruſalem. The word rendred Chariot here, is אפריון, Apirion, ſignifying a covering, and is by Salomon Jarchi rendred, a ſecret chamber, by ſome a pallace, by ſome a throne, by ſome a bed, as Ainſworth ſaith; the vulgar hath it, ferculum, a frame to carry him Ainſw. in, and for the borders, reclinatorium, a place to reſt upon, and for the covering, aſcenſum; by the firſt word any covered thing, which is beautifull, and glorious, may be underſtood, becauſe the word cometh neare to the word אפיר Ophir, whence the pureſt gold came; but becauſe a bed is ſpoken of, verſ. 7. I rather hold with Jarchi, that it is a ſecret chamber, cloſe covered, to ſleep and reſt in, upon the bed there ſpoken of, the gloriousneſſe whereof the next words ſhew, the ſtuds, or pillars of ſilver, for ſo the word עמודיו properly ſignifieth, coming of עמד to ſtand, or to be firme, and the words following, the borders of gold, Hebrew, רפידה his bed, whereunto the word reclinatorium in vulgar well agreeth, for the covering thereof, Hebr. is מרכבו, his chariot, or ſella, which is ſeat, or ſaddle, and therefore not any thing pertaining to a chamber, or bed, is meant hereby, but that whereupon he is carried in travelling abroad, and ſo the meaning of all is, our Salomon, Chriſt Ieſus, of whom Salomon in his royalty was a type, hath a glorious chamber made, as the temple of Cedar from Lebanon; That is, of wood incorruptible, and this chamber is the Church of the Jewes before ſpoken of newly converted, for which, it is ſaid to be made for the daughters of Jeruſalem; That is, particular Congregations of beleeving Jewes. And it is called a chamber with a bed in it, for the quiet reſt which the ſoule hath: being once entred into this Church; and it is covered, as Iſaiah ſpeaketh, with a pillar of a cloud, being Eſa. 4. hereby made ſafe, and defended from the danger of perſecutors, as Iſrael ſometime was from Pharaoh and his Hoaſt purſuing him. And it is made of incorruptible matter, to denote their continuing in the true faith, when once converted, being never corrupted by errour or hereſie to the end of the world. The pillars or ſtuds of this chamber of ſilver, ſet forth the Apoſtles, ſome of whom are expreſly ſo called, Galathi. 2. as James, Cephas, and John, of which Pillars it is alſo ſpoken, Prov. 9. Wiſdome hath built her houſe, and ſet up her ſeven pillars; and againe, the Church in regard of them, and the ſure ground of truth laid in their writings, is called 1 Tim. 3. 15. the ground and pillar of truth, becauſe alwayes imbracing the holy Scriptures, as the only ground of all her tenets and rules to goe by, in the worſhip and ſervice of God; and theſe pillars are ſaid to be of ſilver, as the ſonnes of Levi are ſpoken of, Mal. 3. 3. He ſhall ſit to purifie the ſonnes of Levi, as ſilver and gold, that they may offer an offering in righteouſneſſe; gold and ſilver being the moſt precious of all other metals, and therefore fit to denote their excellency; and his bed before ſpoken of, but not ſaid of what it was, is ſaid to be of gold, ſetting forth both the purity of Acts 15. 9. their hearts, and the hearts of all the faithfull, for by faith the heart is purified, and 1 Pet. 1. 7. it is more precious then gold. And they are ſet forth by a bed, becauſe here Chriſt repoſeth himſelfe, and dwelleth as in his chamber of preſence.

Moreover, this our Salomon is ſaid to have his Chariot, or Saddle whereupon he rideth, of purple, a moſt precious cloath, and therefore Kings Robes are made hereof; this then both denoteth his royalty, and his riding, as it were upon a Chariot, or Horſe, in a moſt glorious manner, over Countries and Nations, ſubduing peoples unto him farre and wide, by the preaching of his Word, as is further expreſſed, Revel. 19. 11. as alſo the purple dye of his Garments being ſprinkled with bloud.

And this Chariot, or Horſe upon which Chriſt rideth out conquering, is the Miniſtry of the Goſpel, whereby he is carried into all Nations, when he is preached, Pſal. 19. according to which the Pſalmiſt ſaith, Their ſound went into all lands; where he alſo compareth this word unto the Sunne, which the Poets feigned to be drawn in a Chariot by Horſes, round about the world. This is fabulous, but it holdeth touching Chriſt, he is thus drawne as it were, when he is preached every where.

Laſtly, the midſt is ſaid to be paved with Love; That is, in the midſt of this chariot, and chamber, as common to all, both Preachers and Hearers, Love is as the Gregor. pavement, whereupon they go; the wicked walk not according to Love, as Gregory ſaith, and have no part or portion in the comfortable and excellent things of Chriſt, and his ſervants here ſpoken of. There be theſe three, Faith, and Hope, ſet forth by 1 Cor. 13. ſilver and gold, and Love, which is the chiefe of them, and without it all faith is nothing.

Verſ. 11. Goe forth (O yee daughters of Zion) and behold King Salomon, with the crowne where-with his mother crowned him in the day of his eſpouſals, and of the gladneſſe of his heart. Having in the former words ſpoken of the converſion of the Jewes, and the great glory coming to Chriſt, and his proceeding to effect this mighty worke, now he calleth upon the Church of the Gentiles to goe forth, and ſee, and admire the acceſſion of glory that cometh to him hereby, to be the more confirmed in his faith. For Zion ſetteth forth the Church, becauſe that upon a mount in Zion the old Temple ſtood: by daughters of Zion then, Chriſtians are meant. They are here bidden to looke out upon Chriſt, now in his Kingdome reigning over all, both Jewes and Gentiles, rejoycing therefore in him, and with him.

And now they ſhall ſee him crowned by his Mother, the Church of the Jewes, Rom. 9. 5. ſo called becauſe he was borne of the Jeweſſe, the Virgin Mary, and came of the Jewes according to the fleſh, and ſhe, that is, the Jewiſh Nation crowneth him, when ſhe acknowledgeth him to be her King, although ſhe formerly rejected him, and would have no King but Caſar, and the time when this ſhall be done is called, the day of his eſpouſals, becauſe by faith, Jeruſalem is now made his Bride, Revel. 21. 2. as is alſo taught by John, ſaying, I ſaw Ieruſalem, as a Sponſe prepared for her Husband. And this is alſo ſaid to be the day of the gladneſſe of his heart, for the Luke 15. great joy of their converſion, as it is ſaid, There is joy in heaven for one ſinner converted. And of the Iewes, when they ſhall be converted, in particular, the Prophet Eſay ſaith, I will create Ieruſalem a joy, and a rejoycing, and I will rejoyce over my people, &c. As the Lord hath joy then at our converſion, ſo ſhall we have, and before that can have no true joy of heart, although we may laugh, and be merry, for this laughter is but madneſſe, which ſhould make us now to turne, and not to harden our hearts, leſt we never enter, but be ſhut out from his reſt and joy for evermore, into torment and miſery.

Eſa. 65.18.19.
Note.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1.
The Bridegroomes fifth ſpeech.

THou art faire (my Love,) thou art faire, thou haſt Doves eyes within thy lockes, thy haire is as a flock of Goates, that appeare from mount Gilead. See a like paſſage to this before, chap. 1. 15. but here Chriſt more at large commendeth his Spouſe, the Church, or Congregation of Converts, not only by her eyes, but her haire alſo; 3 Her teeth. 4. Her lips and ſpeech. 5. Her temples. 6. Her neck. 7. Her breaſts, ver. 3, 4, 5. Of the neck alſo, and cheekes, it was ſpoken before, chap. 1. 10. It ſeemeth therefore to me, that this ſpeech is particularly directed to the Church of the Jews, to be afterwards converted, as it was at the firſt begun with the Church of the Gentiles, which firſt imbraced the Faith, for why elſe are the ſame things in part ſpoken over againe, but for the coming in of the mother Spouſe, which had kept out of the pale of the Church ſo long a time, but now coming in alſo, great is the joy of the Bridegroomes heart, and to rejoyce together with him, for this are the faithfull of the Gentiles called upon to behold it, Chap. 3. 11. And as this Church had, verſ. 9, 10. praiſed Chriſt under the name of Salomon, by his chamber, pillars, Chariot, and love; and verſ. 7. 8. by his Bed ſtrongly guarded, verſ. 7. 8, ſo now he praiſeth her, from the beauty and comlineſſe of all theſe parts, which be ſeven, a number of perfection, to denote more perfection of grace in the Church of the Jewes, which ſhall be, then ever hath been in the Church of the Gentiles, for which cauſe for cheekes, neck, and eyes, only three ſpoken of touching her, ſeven are praiſed in this Church.

1 Her eyes, which be the lights of the body, for which alſo the Church of the Gentiles is praiſed in common with her, and yet it is to be conceived that the light ſhall then be more then ever yet it hath been, for ſo Iſaiah ſaith, The light of the Moon ſhall be as the light of the Sun, and the light of the Sun ſeven-fold. And reaſon tels us, that Propheſies being accompliſhed, which were darke before, and but gueſſed at, are now made ſo manifeſt, that all men may ſee into them, as into things ſet in the light.

Eſa. 30. 16.

2 Her lockes and haire, within which be her Doves eyes, by which words her chaſtity is commended, as before hath been ſaid; but it is to be noted, that Hebr. it is מב עד from within, or beſides, which Ainſworth will have to be underſtood of haire bound up within a covering put upon it, as womanly modeſty requireth, and to betoken her ſubjection to her Husband; and for further proofe he citeth ver. 3. and chap. 6. 7. and Eſa. 47. 2. in the laſt of which places the daughter of Babylon being in miſery is bidden to uncover her lockes, implying, that before they were covered, when ſhe was decently dreſſed up, but now to make her ſelfe fit to goe to Mill and grinde there, or to doe other ſervile workes, ſhe muſt uncover them; but hereby is nothing elſe meant, but that ſhe ſhould now have no joy to trim up her ſelfe, as in the times of her proſperity paſt, but ſhould let her haire, which is a womans ornament, hang remiſſe-ly down about her face and ſhoulders.

Ainſw.
1 Cor. 11.

But that it is not meant, that the woman, which is the Spouſe of Chriſt, covereth all her haire, ſo as that none is ſeen, no not as is moſt decent for her, appeareth by the next words, Thy haire is as a flocke of Goates, that appeare from mount Gilead; for if it be all covered, how doth it appeare? and if her eyes be within her lockes, and theſe lockes have a covering above them, under which they be cloſe bound downe, as upon the head, ſhe were repreſented blind-folded, and ſo a chiefe part of her beauty, lying in her eyes and fore-head, ſhould be hidden: to ſay nothing of that part of her beauty which lyeth in her haire; for the third verſe here following and Chap. 6. 7. nothing is here or there ſaid, but her temples within her lockes, implying rather lockes hanging over her temples on either ſide, then tying of them up, and covering them. For that which is alledged touching a womans being covered, to ſhew her ſubjection, it is meant only of a vaile covering her head, and face, both in the Congregation, as modeſty requireth, her beauty being thus kept from the ſight of their eyes, that are ready to behold vanity, and to be inſnared herewith.

Gregor.

The vulgar for theſe words, Thou haſt Doves eyes within thy lockes, hath it thou haſt Doves eyes without that which lyeth hid within, expounded by Gregory thus; Thy carriage outwardly is honeſt and blameleſſe, but within thou art much more faire, becauſe there is none evill intention in thy minde. But in this expoſition the word לצינתך in thy lockes, is left out, and therefore the firſt is to be preferred. Yet if it be ſupplied thus for the word left out, as for thy lockes, thy haire is like a flock of Goats, we ſhal not goe from the meaning. Having ſpoken of her eyes, he proceedeth to her lockes, and haire, but in the former words, beſides that which is within, the Hebrew wil beſt bear it, only the word without is redundant. But what is meant by the lockes, or haire, he wel ſetteth forth in the next words, Thy haire is as a flocke of Goates, that appeare from mount Gilead, ſaying, What be the Churches eyes but Preachers, who be as eyes to the Congregation? and what her haire but the people, adorning, and beautifying them, when they receive the Word taught by them, into beleeving hearts, and as need requireth teſtifie, and ſeale it up with their bloud, for which they are compared to a flocke of Goates appearing from Gilead; That is, being interpreted, The heap of teſtimony.

Rom. 12. 1.
Col. 3. 5.

And the Martyrs for their great numbers in the primitive Church, who thus gave teſtimony to the Goſpel, are likened to a flocke, and all of Goates, which be cleane Beaſts, and therefore appointed for ſacrifice, becauſe they both chew the Cud, and divide the Hoofe, and ſo are fit to ſet forth the faithfull, that doe both by Divine meditations, and dividing between things temporall and Spirituall, deſpiſing them in compariſon, and highly prizing of theſe, being alſo ſacrificed by being burnt in the fire, for Chriſt his ſake; yea, and all true Beleevers are aptly by them ſet forth, becauſe they alſo offer themſelves up in ſacrifice to God, by mortifying their ſinnes as members of the Old man, which is done, when againſt their corrupt nature, to their great paine, for the preſent they leave them all, in ſo doing they cutting off, as it were, their right hand, or foot, or plucking out their right eye, as our Lord ſpeaketh.

Note.
Phil. 4. 1.

The place here named Mount Gilead, ſtood in the moſt fruitfull Country of the Gileadites, that were of the halfe Tribe of Manaſſeh on this ſide Jordan, and therefore a place of fat and faire Cattell. And this is a great Decorum indeed (as a womans faire haire to her) to Preachers, when their Flockes thrive in like manner under their feeding with the Word, and are well liking; Paul called ſome under his hand, who were ſuch, his Crowne and rejoycing, and of that Church which is not ſuch, but the members thereof are like an Heard of Swine, for Drunkenneſſe, and Senſuality, or an hole of Foxes, for fraud and deceit; or of Conies, keeping in the holes of the earth, through covetouſneſſe, or an Heard of Lions, or Tigers, for cruelty, the Miniſter, or Miniſters can have no joy, but may well bee aſhamed: yet the evil finally coming hereof ſhall not be to them, but to ſuch obdurated Hearers, as is taught both Ezek. 3. Heb. 13. 17. and Eſa. 49. 4.

Juſtus Orgel. expounds appearing up from Gilead, of the heap of teſtimonies in the Scriptures, whereby they come to beleeve, when they heare them preached, and ſet forth.

Verſ. 2. Thy teeth are like a flocke of ſheep that are even ſhorne, which came up from the waſhing, whereof every one bare twins, and none is barren amongſt them. Here thirdly, Chriſt commendeth his Spouſe by her teeth, whereby the ſame

Gregor.

Gregory alſo underſtandeth Preachers, who, as a Mother with her teeth cheweth the Childes meat firſt, and then putteth it into the Infants mouth, for the nouriſhment thereof; ſo he prepareth by chewing, through meditation, the bread of Life for Gods people, for the nouriſhment of their ſoules.

Gal. 4. 19.
Juſtus Orgel.
Note.
Eſa. 49. 4.
Jer. 5. 1.

And they are ſaid to come up from waſhing, becauſe they have been firſt Baptiſed into Chriſts faith, and each of them bringeth forth twins; That is, ſoules converted, by their teaching of both peoples, Jewes and Gentiles; for unto a woman in travell Paul compareth himſelfe, ſaying, My little children, of whom I travell againe in birth, till Chriſt be formed in you. Or they are ſaid to bring forth twins, as Juſtus Orgel. hath it, the love of God, and of man, firſt in themſelves, and then in their Hearers. And it is to be noted, that none of them is barren, for he is unworthy to be in the Miniſtry, that is barren in reſpect of theſe twins, or of indeavouring to bring forth unto God ſoules in great numbers, by converting them to theſe two: although many times a Prophet may labour for this in vaine, as Eſay did, and ſo likewiſe did Jeremy, and other Prophets, who after much paines takeing, although they were inſpired men, complained, that they ſought and could not finde one righteous in all Jeruſalem.

Verſ. 3.
Gregor.

Thy lips are like a thread of ſcarlet, and thy ſpeech comly, thy temples are like a peece of Pomgranat within thy lockes. Here fourthly, the Spouſe is commended by her lips. Fifthly, by her temples. And the ſame Preachers are alſo ſet forth by her lips, becauſe they are the lips and mouth of the Church, and ſaid to be red through zeale, and as a thread, or fillet, as the vulgar rendreth it, to binde up by Preaching the looſe manners of the people, that they may live more ſtrictly; and the ſame are alſo her temples, like unto pieces of Pomgranates, appearing from within her lockes, becauſe to ſpeake wiſely there muſt be an head, and temples to underſtand, as well as lips to utter. But why like peeces of Pomgranats? becauſe the Pomgranate being broken into peeces yeeldeth meat, ſo faithfull Preachers, from the good phantaſies that are within their fore-head and temples; and as under one ſhell in a Pomgranat are many kernels joyned cloſe together, ſo the people by meanes of their doctrine are knit together in love, and unity of ſpirit.

And all this is againe ſaid, as the Doves eyes, to be from within the lockes; That is, to proceed from an holy heart, which is yet better, and more faire in the ſight of God, then they can outwardly expreſſe, contrary to Hypocrites, who are faire without, but within rotten and corrupt.

Cald. Paraph.

The Chaldee expoundeth the teeth of the Prieſts and Levites preparing food, as was before ſaid, and the lips of the High Prieſt, the temples of the King, and the lockes of other Governours under him.

Verſ. 4.
Epheſ. 6.

Thy neck is like the tower of David, builded for the Armory, wherein there hang a thouſand bucklers, all ſhields of mighty men. The ſame Preachers are here againe ſet forth by another Similitude, in another reſpect, viz. of a necke like a tower, and a tower of David. The necke is ſtretched out, when a man would ſee afarre off; hereby then is ſet forth the Miniſters watchfulneſſe for the people, and his looking at dangers coming towards them afarre off, which he doth valiantly oppoſe, and ſeekes to defend them, as a tower ſuch as be therein, when David, that is, a valiant King with his men are therein, and want no armes of ſhields and bucklers for defence; and theſe are their faith, which the Apoſtle in deſcribing the Armour of God calleth, the ſhield of faith. And theſe are ſaid to be one thouſand, that is, a full number, becauſe the number of a thouſand is a perfect number, as containing all numbers in it, and hereby are quenched all the fiery darts of the Devil, our potent enemy.

Cald. Paraph.
Ainſw.
Lam. 5. 5.
Rom. 6. 17.
1 Cor. 7. 23.

The Chald. Paraphraſt by the neck here, underſtandeth the Synedrion, or great Councell in Iſrael, Ainſworth the firmneſſe and ſtrength of the Church, and courage thereof, to withſtand all aſſaults of Spirituall enemies, and ſo צואר ſignifieth, when the people of God for their ſinnes are made to ſerve their enemies, their tranſgreſſions are ſaid to come up, and to be wreathes, as a yoke about their neck, but being delivered from ſinne to ſerve God in righteouſneſſe and holineſſe, they are

ire ſervants, and under the yoke no more. Theſe ſhie.ds and bucklers alſo hang-Ezek. 27. 11. ing up, intimate victory, and glory over enemies ſubdued, they being taken from them, and thus hanged up for a monument. In adding (of mighty men) it Chron. 11. 10 47 is alluded to Davids Worthies, who were all moſt mighty men. But of theſe Annotations I cannot ſee any ſenſe, for צואר ſignifieth a neck only.

Verſ. 5. Thy breaſts are like two young ones that are twins, which feed amongſt the Gregor. Lillies; the vulgar, Sicut duo hinnuli capreæ, expounded by Gregory of the Preachers under the Circumciſion and of thoſe of the uncircumciſion; the word here Juſtus Orgel. uſed is עפר[illegible] ſignifying Duſts, or young ones of the Deere, or Goat; Juſtus Orgel. will have theſe two young ones underſtood of two peoples, Jewes and Gentiles, nouriſhed by the two breaſts of the Old and New Teſtament, and their feeding amongſt the Lillies, of their feeding amongſt holy examples ſet forth therein, which Ainſw. they doe, that imitate them in their piety, and vertuous actions. Ainſworth without any ſuch diſtinction, by theſe two breaſts underſtands the nouriſhment, where-with the young ones of the Church are nouriſhed, as with milke out of breaſts, by pure Doctrine, and by their feeding amongſt the Lillies, their being further nouriſhed, and ſtrengthened, as in ſweet paſtures Fawnes, or Kids are, by the Word preached.

Here is no great difference, but for as much as two breaſts are ſpoken of, I conceive, that herein the two Teſtaments are alluded to, and by the twins, the two ſorts of Beleevers, Jewes and Gentiles, nouriſhed in grace hereby; or continuing in the Allegory of Gregory, theſe two breaſts may well alſo be applied to thoſe of the Circumciſion, and of the Vncircumciſion, that beleeved.

Verſ. 6. For the next words, Untill the day breake, and ſhadowes fly away, ſee before, chap. 2. 17. I will get me to the mountaines of Myrrhe, and the hills of Gregor. Frankincenſe. By the mountaines of Myrrhe, ſaith Gregory, underſtand mortified ones to ſinfull workes, becauſe Myrrhe ſetteth forth mortification, as hath been before ſhewed: by hills of Frankincenſe, the altitude of humble prayers. To theſe Chriſt ſaith, he will get him, to ſhew how acceptable all ſuch are unto him, and that in them he delighteth, as in ſweet Frankincenſe, and Myrrhe.

Verſ. 7. And in the next words, Thou art all faire, my Love, there is no ſpot in thee;
Eſa. 1. 16, 17, 18. he ſheweth the great beauty of all thoſe, that being mortified to ſinne make their prayers continually to aſcend, as the fume of Frankincenſe, as being now waſhed, and made cleane, and white, as wooll, or ſnow. Or, this may be taken as the concluſion of the Spouſes deſcription, by her comly parts before going, as if he had ſaid; Hitherto I have ſpoken of the particular parts of thy body, which moſt appeare; now to conclude in a word, I ſay, thou art all faire, and no ſpot is in thee; That is, although thou haſt infirmities ſtill remaining, for which thou maiſt be diſcouraged; yet be comforted in this, that I account thee all faire, and without ſpot, or ſtaine of ſinne. So Epheſ. 5. 26. it cannot hence be inferred, as the Anti-
Note. nomians would have it, that the faithfull ſoule is altogether without ſinne, that which is done amiſſe by ſuch being no ſinne, although the Law be hereby tranſgreſſed. Ah ſtrange Doctrine, and alwayes unheard of in former Ages, unleſſe it were amongſt the Donatiſts. For although God ſeeth no ſinne in his Iſrael, and pronounceth him to be without ſpot, yet it is in no other reſpect, but of his not imputing ſinne unto him, as is taught, Pſal. 32. 1. Rom. 4.

Verſ. 8. Come with me from Lebanon, my Spouſe, with me from Lebanon, looke from the top of Amana, and Shenir, and Hermon, from the Lions dens, and from the mountaines of Leopards. Lebanon was a Forreſt on the North part of the Land of Canaan, where Cedars grew in abundance, and many wilde Beaſts harboured: in ſaying therefore, Come with me from Lebanon, and then at the end of the verſe, from the Dens of Lions, and Leopards; he intimateth amongſt what cruel and ſavage men the Church ſhould live under the Goſpel, but by her Husband Chriſt be taken away at length from amongſt them, all to her exceeding great joy & comfort; and this was accordingly fulfilled in the time of the primitive Church, when hot perſecutions by Tyrants were raiſed againſt her, and according to the words here uſed Chriſtians were caſt to the Lions, as Tertullian telleth. If Tyber

did

Tertull.

did over-flow, and there were Famine, or Peſtilence in the Land, by and by it was cryed out, Chriſtiani ad Liones have the Chriſtians to the Lions as the men, whom the Idolatrous Heathen thought to be the cauſe of all their miſeries, for as much as they preached againſt their gods in every place, and them hereby incenſed, to the ſending of ſuch puniſhments upon the Land, and that it was thus in other parts alſo, may be gathered from 1 Cor. 15. where Paul ſaith, If I have fought with beaſts at Epheſus after the manner of men, &c. but when Conſtantine the Great had gotten the Empire, this was firſt fulfilled, which is here ſaid, Come with me from Lebanon, for then they, who had been all the time before amongſt Lions came away, as led by Chriſts mighty hand out of that danger.

2 Theſ. 2.

And whereas it is againe ſaid, from Lebanon, hereby a ſecond deliverance being intimated, this may well be underſtood of the perſecution of Antichriſt, who hath raged yet more againſt the true Church of Chriſt; but from amongſt theſe Lions alſo, or rather Leopards ſhe ſhall finally come, that man of ſinne being deſtroyed by the brightneſſe of Chriſts coming, and to intimate two ſorts of perſecutors, both Lions and Leopards are named, the Heathen Emperours being underſtood by the one, and the cruell Popes of Rome by the other.

Gregor.

Gregory, who rendreth it, Come with me, and thou ſhalt be crowned, underſtandeth Baptiſme, by Lebanon ſignifying white, wherein being waſhed, the faithfull ſoule ſhall ſoone after be crowned with glory in heaven.

And by the other Hills, or Mountaines here named, wherein Lions and Leopards harboured, ſuch cruell Heathens, yea, even the tops, or heads of them amongſt whom the Church preached the Goſpel, from the converting of whom he ſhall come, and be crowned in heaven; for the reading, I miſlike not the vulgar, which Gregory followeth, thou ſhalt be crowned; for the word is תשורי and שור ſignifieth, Principatum tenere, to have the dominion, of which a Crowne is the enſigne; but for his expounding of Lebanon of Baptiſme I cannot agree with him, becauſe the laſt words, the dens of Lions and Leopards, ſerve to ſhew what was in Lebanon, from which ſhe is bidden to come, as alſo in Mount Abana, and Hermon. It is then from ſufferings by bruitiſh and ſavage men that ſhe is bidden to come; or it is intimated, that ſhe ſhall come, and be crowned at laſt with a crowne of immortality.

Ainſw.

Againe, by theſe words, from the dennes of Lions, cannot be meant for her being amongſt them, and converting them, for then they ſhould no more have been called Lions, and Leopards, without ſomething to expreſſe their cicuration, as Eſa. 11. Ainſworth will have it meant of coming from amongſt bruitiſh men in manners, and he followeth our new Tranſlation; Looke from Amana, not thou ſhalt be crowned, becauſe the word תשורי hath a prick over the right horne, and ſo ſignifieth to looke or ſee. And touching Amana, he ſaith, it is a mountaine, wherein Strabo ſaith tyranicall men lived, and Shemir, and Hermon were mountaines of wilde beaſts; but to me the ſenſe ſeemeth to be beſt, being rendred, Thou ſhalt be crowned, or have the dominion, the event ſo notably anſwering this Propheſie in Conſtantine turning Chriſtian, and ſo the principality devolving to the Church. As for the point placed in the right horne, ſurely it was not ſo more anciently, for then Jerom would have rendred it accordingly, being of ſo great skil in the Tongues; and whereas it is ſaid, from the top of Amana, ſo it is meant, although thou beeſt now in the height of miſery, and there may ſeeme to be no way of eſcaping, as being in view of Lions. And whereas I have before by Lions underſtood perſecuting Emperours, by Leopards, Popes, in the varying of the Word, I hold with Gregory, that ſubtle and crafty perſecutors are meant, cunningly pretending themſelves to be what they are not, as Hypocrites, and to whom can this better agree, then to the Popes of Rome?

Verſ. 9.

Thou haſt raviſhed my heart, my ſiſter, my ſpouſe, with one of thine eyes, with one chaine of thy neck; the vulgar, for one chaine, hath one haire, but the word is ענק a chaine. Here Chriſt further expreſſeth his great love to his Church for the Graces, of which he ſpake before, that were in her ſo greatly beautifying her, and making her moſt amiable. And he beginneth with her eyes, of which he had ſpoken firſt, verſ. 1. and then cometh to her haire, which is next there, where-Gregor. by Gregory underſtands, as before, the Preacher, and the people, called one, becauſe agreeing in one; for unity in the Church, when all thinke and ſpeake the ſame things, doth moſt highly commend her to the Lord, and raviſheth his heart; and the neck, which joyneth the head and body together, ſetteth forth faith, whereby the Church, which is Chriſts body, is joyned to him, her head; and this expoſition

I take to be moſt genuine, for the word ענק properly ſignifying a chaine, or wreath, may well be rendred haire, or a wreath of haire in this place hanging downe upon the necke, and from thence appearing, and affecting the Lover, and therefore it is מצואר not of thy necke, but from thy neck; and Ainſworth indif-Note. ferently rendreth it chaine, or haire. Hereby then unity and love amongſt Preachers, and Chriſtian people is commended unto us, and faith, as wherein our Lord exceedingly delighteth, that we may be aſhamed of our diviſions, and unite againe in love.

Verſ. 10. How faire is thy Love (my Siſter, my Spouſe,) how much better is thy love then wine, and the ſmell of thy oyntments, then all ſpices. The Spouſe had commended the love of Chriſt, as better then wine, chap. 1. 2. and the ſavour of his Ointments as moſt ſweet; now Chriſt likewiſe commendeth her love to him, and her Graces, as wherein he delighted more then in all ſweet Spices; for Love here is a Nowne Plurall, Loves; the ſame word alſo ſignifieth breaſts, as was noted, chap. 1. 2. and therefore ſo rendred in vulgar Latine; and then here is another amiable part alſo of the Spouſe, repeated from verſ. 5. And then her lips are alſo Verſ. 11 ſpoken of, as inamouring him, of which before, verſ. 3. but now they are ſaid to drop Honey, and Milke is under thy tongue.

Gregor. Here by lips againe underſtand, with Gregory, Preachers, who diſtill honey, as it were out of the combe, when they bring forth heavenly and comfortable Doctrine that lieth hid within them, as the honey doth in the wax of the combe, and have it, not to drop it downe in their lips only, as Hypocrites have; and honey and milke is ſaid to be under their Tongue, to ſhew that they ſuck downe, and have within them the ſame ſweet inſtructions which they propound to others, their hearts being firſt ſanctified, and inlightned, and then their tongues and lips to utter the ſame for the nouriſhment of the little ones of the Church, as they are able to beare, to eternall life, according to which the Apoſtle ſaith, I have given you milke, and not ſtrong meat, which yee were not able to beare. The ſmell of thy garments like the ſmell of Lebanon; That is, the ſmell of thy Graces, righte-ouſneſſe and holineſſe, where-with thou cloatheſt thy ſelfe as with garments, is moſt ſweet, as Lebanon, in which abundance of ſweet and odoriferous Spices grew. Thus it is Propheſied, Hoſ. 14. 5, 6, 7. and in ſaying thus, it is alluded to the ſaying of Iſaac to Jacob, when he bleſſed him, Gen. 27. The ſmell of thy garments is like the ſmell of a field, which the Lord hath bleſſed.

Verſ. 12. A garden incloſed is my ſiſter, my ſpouſe, a ſpring ſhut up, a fountaine ſealed. Having ſpoken of ſweet ſmels, now becauſe Gardens ſmell ſweet, he ſetteth forth his Spouſes ſweetneſſe by a Garden, and this is incloſed; That is, by Gods providence fenced about, that wilde beaſts may not enter, and ſpoyle it, as it is ſaid of the Vine-yard, Eſa. 5. This then ſheweth the ſafety of the faithfull, God is about them by his providence, and protection, as a wall of fire, and he ſtrenghe-Zech. 2. 5. neth their gates, and barres, as a man hath a ſpeciall care of his Garden, that it be Pſal. 147. 13. annoyed by nothing breaking in, ſo hath the Lord of his Church; and therefore ſhe muſt be to him as incloſed, and as a ſpring fenced and ſealed, not communicating her ſelfe to baſe and filthy Luſts, as if ſhe were a common, into which all beaſts may come, and take their pleaſure. For the other compariſon taken from a Spring, or Fountaine ſealed, this ſerveth to ſhew her precious neſſe, and that ſhe ſuffereth not others, the enemies of the Soule, to drinke of her waters, but
Joh. 4. 10. keepes them for God only, that he may take pleaſure in her; and this is ſpoken in
7. 37. regard of the Spirit, which is as a fountaine of living water, given to thoſe that Juſtus Orgel. aske, and thirſt after him. Juſtus Orgel. applieth this alſo to the Virgin Mary, who

who was as a ſealed Fountaine, that never knew any man, but continued a perpetuall Virgin.

But it is further to be extended to the Virgin Church of Chriſt, and every faithfull ſoule which is fenced, and ſealed, and not communicable in her love to the world, or the things of the world, but peculiar to him only. And Chriſt calleth her his ſiſter, for her adoption by Grace, to be a daughter of God, as he ſaith of all that heare the Word of God, and keep it, he is my mother, my brother, and Matth. 12. my ſiſter.

Verſ. 13. Thy plants are an Orchard of Pomgranats, with pleaſant fruits, Camphire, and Spiknard. Hence-forth to the end of verſe fifteene, he proſecuteth the Allegory of a Garden begun; wherein are not only ſweet things, but trees of all ſorts, bearing the beſt fruits, as the Garden of God, Eden, wherein Adam was placed, did. Hereby then is intimated, that the Church is the Garden, or Paradice of pleaſure upon earth, by coming into, and being a member of which a man beginneth to be reſtored to that happy eſtate, from which Adam fell by ſinning; and the Plants here growing are named; 1. Pomgranats, ſetting forth Martyrs, according to Gregory; Gregor. becauſe as they are red without, and within full of cluſters of Graines, which have a ſweet taſte; ſo the Martyrs of God, that are burnt in red hot fire, are full of the graces of the Spirit within, where-with God repleniſheth them. Verſ. 14. Touching the ſecond, Camphire, ſee before, chap. 1. 14. The third, Spiknard, Hebr. Spiknards, this is a plant growing with leaves, and eares, ſmelling very ſweet. Fourthly, Spiknard and Saffron, this is well knowne unto us to be a precious yellow flower, that is medicinall, having the name, as Ainſworth noteeth, from the colour. In joyning Spiknard and Saffron together then, healing, and ſweetneſſe in the Church are commended unto us, and in the Pomgranate pleaſant fruit, all which they yeeld that are true members hereof; the fruit of gracious ſpeeches, and good deeds, Sanation by inſtructions for converſion, and ſweet odours, through devotion, and a good life, which maketh a man to ſmell ſweet both before God and men, whereas he that is of a wicked life ſtinketh. Fifthly, to expreſſe this ſweetneſſe further, Calamus, that is, ſweet Cane is alſo named. Sixthly, Cinamon, of which Exod. 30. in preſcribing the ſweet Oyntment. Seventhly, Frankincenſe. Eightly, Myrrhe. Ninthly, Aloes, of which often in other places.

A fountaine of gardens, a well of living waters, and ſtreames from Lebanon. Verſ. 15.

Here he returneth againe to the Church, wherein all the Plants before named grow. And as if he had not ſaid enough, in calling her a Spring, and a Fountaine, he reſumes the laſt word fountaine againe, ſaying, a fountaine of gardens, and then a Well, and ſtreames from Lebanon; That is, a well-watered place, by the Word and Spirit cauſing the growth of ſuch precious Plants here, as Paradice of old was watered with.

Gregory expounds this Fountaine, and Well of the Scripture in the Church, becauſe it is open as a Fountaine in ſome places, but deep as a well in other places. Of Lebanon, ſee him before upon verſe 8.

Awake O North wind, come O South, and blow upon my garden, that Verſ. 16. the ſpices thereof may flow out; let my Beloved come into his garden, and eat his fruit. By the North wind, ſaith Gregory, Gregor. underſtand the evil Spirit, becauſe the North wind is peircing cold, and killeth young Plants, or makes them ſtand at a ſtay, that they cannot grow; and by the South the good Spirit of God, becauſe when the South wind, which is warme, bloweth, they grow and flouriſh; ſo by the evil Spirit a man is deaded unto goodneſſe, there coming a chilly coldneſſe upon him, when he is about any holy duty, benumming his affections hereunto; but by the good Spirit he is quickned, and made agil about it; therefore the evil Spirit is here bidden to depart, and the good Spirit to come upon this Garden, the Church, and every faithfull ſoule to make them fructifie, and to caſt forth a ſweet odour, filling the place where they be, there-with, by good teaching and living. Thus Gregory: but not ſo probably as Juſtus Orgel. Juſtus Orgel. who by the North and South wind, underſtands the ſame Spirit of God, when the Church is oppreſſed with heat refrigerating and comforting her, as it were, with a coole gale of wind, and when at any time the ground of the heart is hardned, mollifying it, as with the South wind bringing ſhowers.

And to ſhew, that theſe two divers winds agree in one, he ſaith in the ſingular number, blow, and not in the plurall, noting hereby the agreeing of them both in this, that they come to refreſh this garden. And indeed I ſee not, how any good ſence can be made of the words, according to Gregories expoſition, becauſe he doth not bid the North wind to goe away, but to blow as well as the South upon this garden.

Ainſw.

Ainſworth alſo underſtandeth the ſame Spirit, blowing in the preaching of the word by both theſe winds, becauſe ſometimes terrible things to rouze men up from ſleeping ſecurely in ſin, are ſhaken by the impulſions of the Spirit of God, which are ſharp, and piercing as the North wind; and ſometimes things comfortable, which warme, and refreſh, as the South wind, which I cannot but preferre.

Acts 2.

And by the wind, Chriſt ſetteth forth the Spirit, Joh. 3. and he came upon the Apoſtles like a mighty ruſhing wind; of theſe winds the wicked and unregenerate heare the ſound, but know not whence they came, nor whither they goe; but the faithfull doe, being hereby made fluent with the ſweet ſpices thereof, which is done, when gracious ſpeeches, and good deeds come from them plentifully. This being ſpoken by Chriſt, the Spouſe his Church replieth in the next words.

The Brides ſixth ſpeech.

Eſa. 26. 12.

Note.

Let my beloved come, and eat of the fruit of his garden, or his fruits; That is, Lord, doſt thou call them my Spices, which flow from me, they are thine, as I alſo am, come therefore into me, and be delighted in thy owne fruits, which thou haſt cauſed to bring forth, for God worketh all our workes in us, as the Prophet Eſay ſpeaketh. From all which note, that by ſharp reprooſes, as well as by comfortable propoſals of gracious promiſes, the ſoules of the Hearers are made fruitfull in good. 2. After reproofe to peirce, and caſt downe, conſolations are neceſſary. 3. Whatſoever good is done by the faithfull is not theirs, and therefore not meritorious on their parts, but Gods worke in them, and ſo his gifts, and not their merits ſhall finally be crowned in them, according to Auguſt. Deus in nobis ſua dona coronat.

Note.

And from verſe 13. that all the Plants in this Garden are of the beſt ſort, and none of the worſt, all ſweet and precious, none baſe or ſtinking, and therefore all ſuch as be in the Church, that are of vile conditions, and ſtinking, through ſwearing and curſing, drunkenneſſe, whoring, prophaneſſe, oppreſſion, injuſtice, wrath, or envie are no plants, but weeds that ſhall be rooted up.

CHAP. V.

Verſ. 1. The ſixth ſpeech of the Bride-groom.

Eſa. 1. 12.
Eſa. 5.
Deut. 32. 32, 33.
Cald. Paraph.
1 King. 18.
Joh. 15. 14.

I Am come into my Garden, (my Siſter, my Spouſe,) I have gathered my Myrrhe, and my Spice, I have eaten my Honey-combe with my honey, I have dranke my wine with my milke. Eate O friends, drinke, yea drinke abundantly, (O beloved.) Here Chriſt anſwereth, and aſſenteth to the deſire of his Church, declaring that he is in the midſt of her, delighting in her holy ſervice done to him, as in ſweet Spices making a perfume, and in the fruits by her brought forth, as in Honey and Milke, for thus, as was ſaid before, the Lord eateth and drinketh, being as it were feaſted by us; whereas ſervice being in a carnall manner done unto him, is abomination, although by Incenſe; and ſinnes being committed contrary to his precepts are as ſoure Grapes, or Grapes of gall, and poyſon of Dragons. Of his eating, the Chald. Paraphraſe ſaith the ſame, of his accepting the Offerings then made upon his Altar, by his faithfull people, which he declared by fire ſent downe from heaven, which did, as it were eate, and drinke up their Sacrifices, and Drinke-offerings, as when fire came downe and conſumed the Sacrifice of Elijah, and licked up all the water in the Ditches round about. Eate (O friends) who are Chriſts friends, but they that keep his Commandements? as Abraham did, and was called the friend of God. Now his friends are ſaid to eate and drinke, and to drinke abundantly, when they have joy in his ſervice, and the Spirit is leading them to all good, and beleeving that through Chriſt they are accepted of in their devotions, and good deeds, their ſinnes and imperfections being covered; for now they are ſure that they ſhall not be condemned, but ſaved, that they have peace with God, and ſo their joy cannot be interrupted by tribulations, but increaſed, and finally, that they ſhall have everlaſting reſt, and fulneſſe of joy in heaven. Of this joy, as by drinking our fill of wine, the Apoſtle ſpeaketh; where he ſaith, Be not drunken with wine, but be yee filled with the Spirit; for the laſt word, beloved, Hebr. it is Loves, a plurall, as having reference to the friends before ſpoken of, all faithfull ſoules, which are his Loves.

Eſa. 41. 8.
Rom. 8. 1.
Rom. 5. 1
Epheſ. 5. 18

Oh the comfortable eſtate of the Church gathered together to worſhip, and ſerve God! ſhe can no ſooner deſire Chriſts preſence, but he immediately cometh, according to that ſaying of his, Where two or three are gathered together in my name there am I in the midſt of them, to incourage us to come to the aſſemblies. 2. Chriſt is feaſted here, and by our bringing forth the fruits of our aſſembling, and he will feaſt thoſe againe that feaſt him. 3. He counteth all ſuch his friends, and ſpeakes to the chearing up of their hearts.

Note.
Matth. 18.

I ſleep, but my heart waketh, it is the voyce of my beloved that knocketh ſaying, open to me, my Siſter, my Love, my Dove, my undefiled, for my head is filled with dew, and my lockes with the drops of the night. The Church being cheared up, as before, verſe 1. that is, filled with joy and comfort through beleeving, is here ſet forth, as ſleeping through ſecurity, when ſhe had reſt and proſperity by Gods good providence towards her, after ſharp perſecutions, under Heathen Emperours a long time. And this was fulfilled in the dayes of Conſtantine the Great, for although ſleeping ſometimes be ſpoke of in a good ſence, as ſetting forth naturall reſt, which is neceſſary for the refreſhing of the body, yet ſometimes carnall ſecurity, and living in ſinne is hereby ſet forth, as Rom. 13. 11. 1. Theſ. 5. 7. Eſa. 56. 10, ſo in this place: for the Church being releaſed from the terrible blaſts of perſecutions, and ſo the blowing of the North wind ſpoken of, Chap. 4. 16. being as it were over, and the South wind of worldly proſperity blowing, in the dayes of the fore-ſaid Conſtantines reigne, ſhe begin to ſleep; That is, to live more ſecurely, in ſo much as that the Eccleſiaſticall Hiſtory ſaith, Chriſtians were ſo full of ſtrife, and lived ſo diſſolutely, that they nothing differed from Heathens but in this, that they bare the name of Chriſtians. But yet ſhe ſaith, her heart waked; That is, although through the infirmity of the fleſh ſhe thus ſlept, the ſpirit within her was awake, and this her ſinning was not without reluctation, the ſpirit ſtriving againſt the fleſh, and the fleſh againſt the ſpirit; ſo that ſhe did the evil ſhe would not.

Verſ. 2.
The ſeventh ſpeech of the Bride.
Gal. 5. 17.

The Church being in this ſtate, heareth the voyce of Chriſt knocking at the doore, whereby is ſet forth ſome ſevere chaſtiſement following; as in ſuch a caſe it is ſaid to the Church of Laodicea, I ſtand at the doore and knocke, after that he had ſpoken of his ſevere proceeding againſt her for her ſecurity, and luke warmeneſſe, ſpewing her out of his mouth, and ſaying, ſuch as I love I chaſtiſe. So the Church under Conſtantine growing ſecure, the Lord ſoone after knocked at her doore, by perſecution of Arrians, and then of Gothes and Vandals, breaking into the Romane Empire in the weſt, and long domineering there. But even now he calleth her his Love, his Siſter, Dove, and Undefiled, by many comfortable compellations together, more then he had uſed before; whereby is implied both that failings and imperfections in Chriſtians, and deadneſſe in his ſervice, make not him quite to forſake her, although for a time he judgeth her, and leaveth her to the will of her enemies; and alſo, that judgements in this world doe not argue leſſe love in God towards his people, but rather more exceeding, ſhe being now accounted of as his Siſter, Love, Dove, and undefiled; for her opening to him, which he requireth, this is done by turning againe, and doing her firſt workes, ſuffering the Word of God to enter, and take effect againe, by reforming all things that were amiſſe, for ſo the Apoſtle ſpeakes of a doore that was opened to him, and bids the

Revel. 3. 20.

Epheſ. 6. 19. the Epheſians to pray for him, that a doore of utterance might be given unto him. For the laſt words, My lockes are wet with the dew of the night; by night here, underſtand the night of the Churches adverſity, coming for her ſinnes, wherein when ſhe was, as it were, in the water, and in danger of drowning, Chriſt ſheweth, that he did ſympathize with her, his head being alſo filled with watery dew, and his lockes with drops falling in the night.

Ainſw. Somewhat like unto this ſpeaketh Ainſworth, expounding it of the faithfull, ſometimes growing more ſecure, but then Chriſt viſiteth them with his chaſtiſements, and ſtirres them up to open to him, by becoming more zealous and reformed againe; and to move them hereunto tels them of his head, and lockes full of dew, as in the night, he having at ſuch times no reſt, nor comfort, but being as one Note. wandring about in a cold wet night uncomfortably; therefore who ſo deſireth to be comforted by Chriſt, muſt ſhake off ſecurity, and rouze up himſelfe to fly all ſin: becauſe as when he is delighted in us feeding, as it were upon Honey and Milke, as was before ſhewed; he alſo cheareth us up, bidding us eate and drinke; ſo he having no comfort in us, when we ſleep in ſinne, although our hearts be awake, we cannot have comfort in him, and therefore this conſideration ſhould make us to open to him by ſpeedy reformation.

Cald. Paraph. The Chald. Paraphraſt applieth, as that verſe 1. to the Church under the Law, whoſe ſacrifices the Lord accepted of, and their meat and drinke-offerings, and ſhewed it by conſuming and eating them with his fire, when they were zealous for him; ſo this, verſe 2. to the time of the Babylonian captivity, when the Jewes ſlept, as it were, for a time, being without the ſence of their ſinnes. Then the Lord knocked by his Spirit at the doore, moving them to repent by this, that his head was wet; That is, he was bedewed, and wetted with the drops of their teares, as a man ſtanding abroad in a cold night.

Gregor. Gregory by the Churches ſleeping, underſtands Church-men of moſt eminent parts, with-drawing themſelves from publick imployment, that they might be free to Divine contemplation, for which they are ſaid to be aſleep, but in heart awake. To theſe the Lord ſaith, Open to me, my Spouſe; That is, come forth out of your Cels, and preach unto, and teach my people, who are the haires of my head, and my lockes wet with dew of the night; That is, in a deplorable condition, as in a darke night abroad when it raineth, but by your inſtructions to be inlightned, and brought in; let the Reader follow which he pleaſeth, but this laſt ſavoureth not to me, becauſe ſleeping is never taken for being vacant from publick imployment.

Verſ. 3. I have put off my coate, how ſhall I put it on, I have waſhed my feet, how ſhall I defile them? Here the Church yet reſting, and ſleeping in ſinne, anſwereth even under judgements, making delayes and excuſes for not turning; as one that hath put off his coate, and is gone to bed, having alſo waſhed his feet from ſweat and filth at night, as was the manner of thoſe that dwelt in ſuch hot Countries, is unwilling, being called upon to riſe and open the doore, although to his friend, as is ſhewed in the parable, Duke 13. ſo the people of God ſleeping in ſinne, although God by knocking with his judgements awaketh them, yet they are loath to ariſe and come forth, as is commanded, Awake thou that ſleepeſt, and ſtand up from the dead, and Chriſt ſhall give thee light. It is then dangerous to ſleep any time in ſinne, and therefore as much to be taken heed of as the ſleeping Diſeaſe, of which many in this Land in times paſt dyed; wherefore as then all meanes were uſed to keep men that were inclining to it, awake; So let us by all meanes keep our ſelves from this ſleeping, and if any man hath ſinned, lye not in it by impenitency, but without delay ſhake it off by repentance.

Epheſ. 5. 14.
Note.

Verſ. 4. My beloved put in his hand at the hole of the doore, and my bowels were moved for him. The Spouſe delaying to open to Chriſt, when ſhe was moved hereunto by the Miniſtry of the Word outwardly, now ſheweth, that he put in his hand at the hole of the doore, and then ſhe was affected with griefe for her unkinde refuſall to ariſe, and open to him; That is, to repent, being ſo lovingly invited hereunto.

By this putting in of his hand, Ainſworth underſtandeth his effectuall moving Ainſw. of her by his Spirit, becauſe when Luke would ſet forth with what efficacy the Act. 11. 19,20. Apoſtles preached, it is ſaid, The hand of the Lord was with them. When a ſoule is thus moved, although ſhe ſtirred not before for Gods knocking, by preaching, and by judgements, yet now ſhe is deeply affected with ſorrow, for this her hard-heartedneſſe; for ſo this phraſe is uſed, both by Eſay mourning for Moab, Eſa. 16. 11. and by Jeremiah mourning for Iſrael, and the Lord for Ephraim. Jer. 4. 19. Jer. 31 20.

I roſe up to open to my Beloved, and my hands dropped with Myrrhe, and my fingers with ſweet ſmelling Myrrhe, upon the handles of the locke. Verſ. 5. The Church, or faithfull ſoule being pierced with ſorrow, for her negligence in riſing and opening the doore, by turning from ſinne; now proceedeth to other expreſſions of her repentance, ſhe lyeth not ſleeping any longer, but immediatly riſeth up by repentance, and turning unto Chriſt, as godly ſorrow is ſaid to have theſe effects; carefulneſſe, clearing of your ſelves, indignation, feare, vehement deſire, 2 Cor. 7. 10. zeale, and reverence. Then ſhe ſaith, that her hands and fingers dropped Myrrhe. That is, ſhe did not only ceaſe and turne from ſinne, but with her hands did good Heb. 13. 16. workes, which have a ſweet ſmelling ſavour in the Lords noſtrils, for ſo a Sacrifice was, as this is called. The handles of the locke were the bolts of the doore, and upon theſe the oyle of Myrrhe is ſaid to drop, to intimate the making of them glib and eaſie to unbolt, which without oyle ſometime can hardly be opened.

I opened to my beloved, but my beloved had with-drawne himſelfe, and Verſ. 6. was gone, my ſoule failed when he ſpake, I ſought him, but I could not finde him, I called, but he gave me no anſwer. Hereby is ſhewed, that for ſinning, and continuing ſome time ſecurely in ſinne, even the faithfull repenting now, and doing good workes againe are by the Lord neglected, and they cannot ſoone pre- Note. vaile with him, to ſhew them his favour, which is a great and heavie temptation unto them, but juſt with God, becauſe they are but dealt withall in their kinde; he called to them, and they would not be forth-with moved, but in proceſſe of time, and therefore he likewiſe lends a deafe eare to them, calling to him, for their greater humiliation; and therefore let us take heed, that we harden not our hearts to goe on in any ſinne, whilſt it is called to day; but if any man hath falne through infirmity, let him with ſpeed riſe up againe by repentance, for becauſe David did not Pſal. 51. thus, but deferred almoſt an whole yeare, ſee with how much adoe he obtained the reſtitution of Gods favour.

The Watch-men that went about the City found me, they wounded me; the Verſ. 7. Keepers of the wall tooke my vaile away from me. Here the miſery of ſuch a ſoule is further ſet forth, and the words imply her going further then to the doore to open it, namely, into the ſtreetes of the City, to ſeeke her beloved. But being there the Watch-men found her, and ſmote and wounded her. A like paſſage ſee before, chap. 3. 3. only there they are not ſaid to have ſmitten her, as in this place, whereby is meant, that for her ſinne into which ſhe fell, and wherein ſhe lay, the Miniſters of the Goſpel taking her to be an Harlot, whoſe feet could not keep in the houſe, but carried her about the City at ſuch an unſeaſonable time, ſmote her with their tongues by ſharp cenſures, and reproofes, laying her open, as 1 Cor. 11. a vile woman, which is meant by taking away her vaile, that was a ſigne of modeſty. And hereby is intimated, that the deare ſervant of God falling by infirmity, Note. may not only be in a diſconſolate eſtate for want of the preſent ſence of Gods favour reſtored, after his riſing by repentance, but alſo have his diſcomfort aggravated by thoſe, from whom ſhe ſhould have comfort. But even in this ſad condition ſuch a ſoule ſtill goeth on, in expreſſing her love to Chriſt, wherein ſhe is unſeparable from him whatſoever ſhe ſuffereth, as verſe 8.

I charge you (O daughters of Jeruſalem) if yee finde my Beloved, that Verſ. 8. yee tell him, I am ſick of Love. Of her charging the daughters of Jeruſalem in another caſe, ſee chap. 2. 7. and of her being ſicke of love, verſe 5. Here is Ainſw. ſhewed, how the faithfull ſoule is not by any diſcouragements beaten off, from ſeeking after Chriſt, although ſhe hath no preſent ſence of his favour, and by his Miniſters alſo ſhe be hardly thought, and ſpoken of, for her ſleeping before mentioned, tioned, yet ſhe ceaſeth not to publiſh his praiſes, and to commend him to others in the Church, meant by the daughters of Jeruſalem, who are yet unconverted, and without Chriſt, which is intimated by her, ſaying, If yee finde my beloved;

but when yee ſhall finde him, make knowne in your prayers my caſe unto him, and intreat him for me. Whence we may learne, that ſuch as have found comfort in Chriſt, ought to pray for thoſe, that are yet deſtitute thereof, but doe earneſtly deſire it, and hee that hath not yet the ſence of it, ſhould commend him to Note. otheis, that they may be inamoured upon him; as the Spouſe here doth in the verſes following.

Verſ. 9. What is thy Beloved more then anothers beloved, (O thou faireſt amongſt Gregor. women) what is thy beloved, &c. that thou doſt ſo charge us? Gregory, who underſtandeth by the Watch-men, Preachers, that by their words doe ſo affect the hearts of the Hearers, as if they were pierced and wounded with ſorrow for their ſinnes, and by their pulling off her vale, their laying open to her that, under which,
as a vaile, any thing lay hid, which it concerned her to know for her greater humiliation, will have by the daughters of Jeruſalem the ſame Preachers underſtood, whom ſhe deſireth to commend her to God in their prayers. When ſhe ſaith, If yee finde, not meaning that they had not yet found Chriſt, but when in addreſſing your ſelves unto him by prayer yee finde comfort, I pray you remember me; and for her anſwer, telling them upon their queſtion, what is thy Beloved?

Verſ. 10. My beloved is white, and ruddy, the chiefeſt amongſt ten thouſand; he ſaith, that they doe not thus queſtion, as if they were ignorant of him, but to provoke her to ſet him forth, and his praiſes, as ſhe doth, verſe 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16.
that all men might be ſtirred up to love, and to ſeeke to be joyned unto him alſo
Heb. 4. 12. by faith and repentance; and this I take to be the beſt, for the Word of God is Acts 2. ſharper then any two-edged ſword, piercing the heart; and when Peter preached, they that heard him were pricked in their hearts. And it is unreaſonable to hold, that any ſhould be ſpoken to, to tell the Bride-groome that his Spouſe is ſicke of Jam. 5. 16. Love, but Preachers, touching whom it is ſaid, Is any man ſicke, let him ſend for the Elders of the Church, and they ſhall pray for him; if this ſhall ſeeme to make againſt it, that they are called daughters of Jeruſalem, not men, it is according to the phraſe uſed, Prov. 9. Wiſdome ſent forth her Maids, whereby Preachers are undoubtedly meant.

In their queſtioning with her about Chriſt, they doe but try, and take a taſte, as it were, of her knowledge of Chriſt, as Teachers by their Office ought to doe, being Gal. 6. 6. for this called Catechiſers, and the inſtructed by them Catechiſed, as the word κατηχούμενος ſignifieth, although this be now to the great detriment of the Church Ainſw. much neglected. For the deſcription of Chriſt, he is white and red; That is, the moſt beautifull and comly that can be, whereby yet the externall beauty of his per-Eſa. 53. ſon is not ſo much meant, for he is ſaid by the Prophet to be without forme, or beauty. But he is white by his innocency, red, by having the ſinnes of us all laid Eſa. 1. 18. upon him, as cleanneſſe from ſinne, and defilement by ſinne are ſet forth, the one by white, the other by red, and that the moſt pure white of Snow, and deepeſt 2 Cor. 5. 20. dyed red of Scarlet, for ſo, Chriſt was made ſinne for us that knew no ſinne, that we might be made the righteouſneſſe of God through him.

Againe, he is white as God, whoſe head, and haire, when he appeared to *Da-
Rom. 5. 14. niel*, was white as wool, red as man, Adam, ſignifying red earth, for he is called the ſecond man, or Adam; red alſo he is by his Paſſions, in regard of which he is Eſa. 63. 1. ſaid to have come from Edom, his Garments all dyed red, and white for the victo-Revel. 6. 2. ry, which he thus attained over all his enemies, and the peace and purity com-chap. 7. 15. ming by him to Beleevers, for which they are ſaid to be cloathed with long white robes.

Matth. 17. Laſtly, in his Transfiguration, his Garments were white as ſnow, and his face ſhone as the bright and fiery red Sunne; for chiefeſt of a thouſand, Hebr. is דגול Dan. 7. elect, or choſen from out of ten thouſand; That is, the moſt excellent of them all, and of all not only men, but Angels, who are ſometimes ſet forth by ten thouſands, and ten thouſand times ten thouſands; ſo Pſal. 45. O thou the faireſt amongſt men;

Then verſe 11, 12, &c. followeth a deſcription of him by his parts, his head, his eyes, his cheekes, his lips, hands, belly, legges, and mouth, all moſt amiable and lovely.

Verſ. 11.
Gregor.
1 Cor. 11.

His head is as the moſt fine gold, his lockes buſhy, and blacke as a Raven. Who is Chriſts Head, ſaith Gregory, but God; and he is likened to fine Gold, the moſt precious of all Mettals, becauſe he is moſt glorious and excellent, all Creatures being vile in compariſon of him; and who are his Haires but Beleevers, that by faith hang upon him; and they are ſaid to be blacke as the Raven, becauſe in their owne eyes blacke through ſinne.

[illegible]ſworth, by his head, underſtands his gold regiment of his Church, as he is her head, for Nebuchadnezzar a great and glorious King was ſet forth by an Image, the head whereof was of gold, to ſhew his excellency above the Kings that reigned after him. The words here uſed ſignifie both fineneſſe, and firmeneſſe, and ſo his head of ſuch gold ſheweth not only his excellent government, but alſo the firmeneſſe and ſtability of his Kingdome. By his haires curled and blacke, he is ſet forth as young, and vigorous, full of ſtrength and ſpirit, to overcome his enemies; as his white haires, Revel. 1. ſet forth his antiquity, gravity, and wiſdome; for blacke haire, and curled, ſhew one ſtrong, and full of vitall heat; and white haires one ancient, in whom is wiſdome; in divers reſpects then his haires are ſaid ſometime to be white, ſometime blacke; ſo God is ſaid ſometime to dwell in the Light unacceſſible, and ſometime in darke and blacke Clouds, becauſe that although he be of bright ſhining glory in heaven, yet to us upon earth he is covered with a blacke Cloud, that we cannot heare, ſee, or know him as he is; and this I take to be the beſt, but let the Reader judge, and follow which he pleaſeth.

1 Tim. 6. 16.
2 Chron. 6.

Verſ. 12.
Gregor.

His eyes are like Doves eyes by the rivers of water, waſhed with milke, and fitly ſet. By Chriſts eyes, Gregory underſtandeth here his Miniſters, who in godly ſimplicity ſee into the myſticall things of the Scriptures, for themſelves and others, and therefore they are ſaid to be by the waters, as Doves uſe to be, that they may therein ſee by the ſhadowes of Birds flying over, when ſuch are coming, as Hawkes that ſeeke to devoure them, that by diving into the water they may eſcape them; for even ſo, they being alwayes converſant in the Holy Scriptures, hereby ſee the danger coming by Satans temptations, and by meanes hereof ſhelter themſelves, and are preſerved from the evil of all temptations, becauſe that hereby they know what is to be eſchewed, and accordingly avoyd the ſame. For the laſt words of the verſe, he hath it, Et reddent juxta fluenta pleniſſima, And they ſhall render beſides, or nigh to moſt full flouds. Ainſworth, ſitting in fulneſſe, Hebr. ſitting upon, or above fulneſſe. A further deſcription, ſaith Gregory, of the Scriptures, which are moſt full and perfect, to direct in all things, yea in the leaſt matters what to avoyd, and which to hold and doe, that the ſoule may be out of the danger of the Devil, and of all Seducers. Whence note, that then the Canonicall Scriptures alone were held to be all-ſufficient, and that there was no need of Apochryphals, or mens traditions, to direct in matters of faith, or of good manners.

Note.

Ainſw.

Ainſworth by theſe Doves eyes underſtandeth Chriſts pure eyes, that looke not at any iniquity to beare with it, but at vertue in his faithfull people, to approve and reward it, and to keep inviolable his Marriage Covenant made with them for ever: So the Church was ſaid before to have Doves eyes alſo, Chap. 1. 15. 4. 1. By the rivers of water; In theſe words he only proſecuteth the Allegory, becauſe Doves love to ſit by waters, and white waters like milke, wherein they waſh themſelves from all filth, and in full waters, in which they moſt delight; or hereby is ſhewed, eyes filling their holes, not ſunke in their heads, as the eyes of ſome are which are decaying.

Junius.

Juſtus Orgel.

Junius alſo ſaith, As pearles ſet in gold Rings, and the waſhing with Milke ſetteth forth his ſhining whiteneſſe, as of the white Dove. Juſtus Orgelitanus following Gregory in the former words, by the laſt, beſides, or amongſt the moſt full flouds, underſtandeth the plentifull gifts of the Holy Ghoſt. And indeed they are not Chriſts eyes which are here commended, but the waters of the rivers filling the bankes; and therefore herein I ſubſcribe to Juſtus, the full ſtreame of graces in Chriſt are meant, of whoſe fulneſſe we all receive. But whereas Gregory and he will have his Miniſters meant here, I preferre Ainſworth, becauſe his Miniſters, as was ſhewed before, were the eyes of the Church, which is not here deſcribed in any part but this; and for his being by the rivers of water, I underſtand his preſence, and providence over his Word, and Church, conſiſting of many peoples; Revel. 17. who are likened to waters, over whom the great Whore uſurpeth authority; and he is ſaid to waſh his eyes in milke, to denote further the purity thereof, becauſe milke is white, and that which is pure is commonly ſet forth by the word white.

Verſ. 13. His cheeks are as a bed of ſpices, as ſweet flowers, his lips like Lillies dropping ſweet-ſmelling myrrhe. Here Gregory again underſtandeth Chriſts Miniſters, as before upon chap. 4. but not rightly, for thus the Spouſe and the Husband ſhould be confounded together; Ainſworth. by his cheekes therefore with others, the ruddy comlineſſe of Chriſt like a bed of ſweet Spices is ſet forth, giving a moſt ſweet ſmell to ſuch as come neare unto him; and by his white lips, as his milkey eyes before ſpoken of, the perfection of his comlineſſe, in alluding to the white and red before mentioned, verſe 10. only we are by the ſweet ſpices and flowers, and myrrhe, here further ſpoken of given to underſtand, that as he is moſt comly and amiable, ſo he is moſt odoriferous to draw us unto him, and for the ſame reaſon his mouth is alſo ſaid to be moſt ſweet, verſe 16. his cheekes and lips thus compared ſetting forth his ſweetneſſe to the ſmell, and amiableneſſe to the ſight, to all that by faith looke upon him; and his mouth, his ſweetneſſe to the eare in the gracious and comfortable words that flow there-from. For his ſweetneſſe in ſmell, ſee 2 Cor. 2. 15. Pſal. 19 8. and to the ſight, Revel. 1. and to the eare, Joh. 7. 37.

Cald. Paraph. The Chald. Paraphraſe by his head, underſtands the Law, by his haires, the interpretation thereof, which is blacke to Tranſgreſſours, by his eyes, Gods providence, and ſeeing for the good of his Church, providing her Teachers, Counſellours, &c. and by his cheekes, the two Tables of the Law; but ſuch interpretations are only illuſions to draw the Reader from Chriſt.

Verſ. 14. His hands are as gold rings ſet with Berill, his belly as bright Ivorie, over-laid with Saphires. Gregor. By his hands, ſaith Gregory, Chriſts workes are to be underſtood, whereby they were adorned all with gold rings, ſet with precious ſtones, and ſo ſhall all theirs be that follow him in the kingdome of Heaven; by his belly his Mortality, yet turned into immortality, when he roſe againe from the Dead; for which it is ſaid to be as bright Ivorie, which is durable, and of very long continuance, Phil. 3. 21. and by his being over-laid here with Saphirs, his bright ſhining glory in Heaven; like unto whom, who ſo riſeth from ſinne to righteouſneſſe, ſhall have bodies ſhining in glory alſo.

The Hebrew word for belly is מעיו his bowels, ſetting forth his compaſſion over his people; Ainſworth. this, ſaith Ainſworth, ſhineth like Ivorie over-laid with Saphirs, which be of an heavenly colour; this I preferre, becauſe I ſee no ſuch good reaſon of taking it otherwiſe; but thus taken, it aptly followeth after hands doing good, to ſpeake of bowels moving hereunto, and of Chriſt having compaſſion upon the hungry in the Wilderneſſe, it is ſpoken, Mat. 14. 14.

Verſ. 15. Gregor. His leggs are as pillars of marble, ſet upon ſockets of fine gold, his countenance as Lebanon, excellent as the Cedars. Gregory by leggs or thighes here underſtands the Apoſtles ſayings to be as pillars of Marble; That is, firme and ſtable, ſtanding upon ſockets of gold; That is the Prophets and their writings, which are 2 Pet. 1. 19. moſt precious, and to be made great account of for their ſure words, as St. Peter calleth them, ſaying, Yee have a ſure word of propheſie; and according to this Gal. 2. Peter, James, and John are ſaid to be pillars. And to Lebanon, an high and white Mountaine he is compared, becauſe he is the ſtone cut out of a Mountaine, Dan. 2. of which Daniel ſpeaketh, filling the whole earth, and white through his perfect purity.

And he is ſaid alſo to be excellent as the Cedars, Hebr. elect as the Cedars, which if a man would chooſe from amongſt all the trees in Lebanon, are above them all to be choſen for their tall ſtature, being above them, and for their ſweet ſmell, and incorruptibility, for ſo Chriſt is in ſtature more tall then all other men, for he is above both men and Angels; all this is by others alſo aſſented to, but only they underſtand not by his legges his Apoſtles, becauſe that although the Epheſ. 2. 26. Church be founded, and ſtands upon them, as upon pillars, and ſo is the ground and 1 Tim. 3. 15. pillar of truth, yet it is improper to call them leggs, as pillars upon, and by which Chriſt is borne up, for he is of himſelfe moſt ſtrong, and ſo ſtands firme againſt all oppugners; unleſſe we ſhall ſay, that by their teaching and writings he is borne up in all places, when his truth is by them firmely upheld in all places, where the Goſpel is imbraced.

Verſ. 16. Gregor. His mouth is moſt ſweet, he is altogether lovely, this is my beloved (O yee daughters of Jeruſalem.) By his mouth or throat, ſaith Gregory, underſtand his Teſtament, wherein he ſpeakes moſt ſweetly to every beleeving ſoule: and having ſaid all this in the praiſe of Chriſt, ſhe turneth againe to the daughters of Jeruſalem, by whom probably the Jewes are meant, who ſhall finally be converted, and ſeekes to allure them unto him, as who would not be, conſidering all his excellencies; and to ſhew what effect this her commendation ſhall one day take in the hearts of the Jewes, who ſhall likewiſe be raviſhed with his love, and ſeeke unto him, they reply, Chapter 6. 1. which Hebr. and in the vulgar is added to this Chapter.

Verſ. 17. Whither is thy beloved gone (O faireſt among women) whither is thy beloved turned aſide, that we may ſeeke him with thee? And therefore although before upon verſe 8, 9. the Daughters of Jeruſalem have been expounded, as ſetting forth the Watch-men ſpoken of before that, yet upon further conſideration underſtand we the Jewes by them, who ſhall finally be converted, and the Spouſe praiſing Chriſt unto them, is the preſent Church of the Gentiles, which ſhall be a meanes at length by her high commendations of Chriſt, to move the hearts of the Jewes to turne unto him; yet this is by the ſame Gregory alſo underſtood of one Neighbour ſpeaking to another of Chriſt, and the love of him being wrought in their hearts by hearing ſo much from others, who are already in him, they reſolve to ſeeke after him alſo.

Ainſworth underſtanding all that went before to be ſpoken by the preaching of the Word, noteth here what the power of the Word preached is; hereby ſuch as are elect, but yet unconverted, are brought for the love of Chriſt, that is ſo amiable, to be converted to the ſeeking of him; Note. we may take it either way, both as ſeting this forth, whereby one Neighbour and friend ſhould be ſtirred up, having found the ſweetneſſe of Chriſt, to be ſpeaking hereof from time to time to one another, and alſo the future complying of the Jewes with Chriſtians, in ſeeking Chriſt together, that Chriſtians not deſpairing of their converſion may by all meanes ſeeke to allure, and win them to him.

CHAP. VI.

Verſ. 1. Ainſw. MY beloved is gone downe into his garden to the beds of ſpices, to feed in the garden, and to gather Lillies. This, as Ainſworth well ſaith, ſeemeth to be ſpoken ſometime after that which went before, when the faithfull ſoule after diſcomfort, and being at a loſſe for her former negligence, had obtained ſome glimps of his love and favour againe? for what is his Garden but ſhe her ſelfe, as was ſet forth before, chap. 5. His coming then into his Garden, was his coming into her heart by Divine conſolations, where-with ſhe is now fed againe, and the ſweet odour of her ſpices, that is, Graces are a feeding to him, becauſe he taketh as much delight in them, as a man in moſt delicious meat. For his gathering of Lillies, Gregory expounds it of ſoules, unto him white like Lillies, when the time Gregor. by him appointed of their departure out of this life is come.

Verſ. 3. I am my beloveds, and my beloved is mine, he feedeth amongſt the Lillies.

The Spouſe being exceedingly affected with joy for her deare Husbands coming againe unto her, as hath been ſaid, now exulteth thus ; Now I am ſure that he accepteth me for his, and hath made himſelfe mine ; for in his Church, conſiſting of Beleevers, white through his bloud, and by innocency of life he feedeth ; That is, delighteth to be, and feedeth them with delights and joyes unſpeakeable. See a ſpeech not unlike to this, Joh. 17. 10. Thine are mine, and mine are thine ; and all before this, chap. 2. 16. the very ſame.

Verſ. 4.
The ſeventh ſpeech of the Bride-groom.
1 King. 14. chap. 15, & 16
Joſh. 12. 14.

Thou art beautifull my beloved as Tirzah, comely as Jeruſalem, and terrible as an Army with banners ; the vulgar for theſe words, as Tirzah, comely as Jeruſalem, hath Suavis & decora ut Jeruſalem, taking Tirzah, which ſignifieth gratefull, for an apellative ; but there was ſuch a City, a very delightfull place, and therefore the Kings of Iſrael dwelt there, and before that one of the Kings of Canaan.

Gregor.

Pſal. 4. 2, 3.

Note.
Verſ. 5

Here Chriſt commendeth, as Gregory thinketh, the Church of the Jewes newly converted, as he had done the Church of the Gentiles before, chap. 4. for it is not probable that he would otherwiſe have repeated the ſame againe of her haire, teeth, and temples, as he doth, ver. 5, 6, 7. of the meaning of which ſee chap. 4. But I have expounded that of the Jewes, and the ſame is ſaid over againe here with ſome inlargement, to ſet her forth the more, and her continuing in the ſame eſtate. As Tirzah, ſo Jeruſalem much more was a faire place, and ſaid to be the joy of the whole earth, and Revel. 22. the Church is ſet forth in her greateſt glory, as new Jeruſalem ; now Jeruſalem ſignifieth ſeeing peace, therefore this Church being compared to Jeruſalem is hereby intimated to be at unity in her ſelfe, and being thus, is ſaid to be terrible as an Army well ordered, the Banners whereof, and Souldiers about them ſtand each one in their proper places, and by this meanes are ſo ſtrong, that they are terrible to their enemies, being both ready for defence and offence ; whereas when diſcord is in an Army, they are eaſily oppreſſed by their enemies ; which ſheweth both the great indecorum of this our Church of England, and the great advantage given to our enemies, by the ſchiſmes and diviſions that are amongſt us at this day. Turne thine eyes from me. Jun. turne thy eyes over againſt me, as if it were meant, marke me ; but Juſtus Orgel. better, turne them from me in the fleſh, living with thee, for I ſhall ſoone depart here-with from thee, as Joh. 16. 16. for they have prevailed over me ; Junius, ut illi efferantur ; that is, I may have comfort of thee being led by faith, not by ſence, to be left in me when I am gone.

Verſ. 8, 9.

Gregor.

Rom. 6.

1 Pet. 2. 9.

Matth. 23.

There are ſixty Queenes, and eighty Concubines, and Virgins without number. My Dove, my undefiled is but one, ſhe is the onely one of her Mother, the choyce one of her that bare her, the daughters ſaw her, and they bleſſed her, yea, the Queenes, and the Concubines, and they praiſed her. Here by Queenes Gregory underſtandeth faithfull ſoules, in whom ſinne reigneth not, as it is ſaid, Let not ſinne reigne in your mortall bodies ; but they by the power of the Spirit ſubdue, and ſlay them, as a mighty King his enemies, and therefore Queenes they are well called, which doe the like when they reigne. For this Saint Peter ſaith to the faithfull, Tee are a royall Prieſthood. And they are ſaid to be ſixty, becauſe of their keeping the Commandements, which are Ten, every day of the weeke appointed for labour, and theſe being ſix, if ten be multiplied, hereby they amount to ſixty, and theſe make this their labour all theſe dayes, to mortifie their ſinnes. For the eighty Concubines, they are Hypocrites, who likewiſe teach the Commandements, and ſeeme to be wives alſo for their thus doing, and for their preaching of the Reſurrection of Chriſt, and faith in him, but they are not Queenes rejoycing over, and ſubduing ſinne in themſelves, but live in ſinne, as the Phariſees, againſt whoſe workes Chriſt gave his Diſciples warning ; The Scribes and Phariſees ſit in Moſes's chaire, all therefore that they bid you, doe, but after their workes doe not, for they ſay and doe not. Now theſe are ſaid to be eighty, becauſe of the ten Commandements to which they ſeeme to adhere, and of the Reſurrection of Chriſt upon the eighth day, which they preach, for ten being multiplied by eight, make eighty. For the Virgins without number, hereby are ſet forth ſuch as come into the Church at the preaching of the word, but continue void of true grace, and are none of the elect, who are all numbred, but theſe are without number, they few, a little flocke, the few that finde the narrow way that leadeth to life.

Having thus ſhewed the caſe of Chriſts viſible Church, now hee cometh to verſ.9. to ſhew, that the ſixty before ſpoken of for their agreeing in one faith, and the grace of ſanctification, are one moſt bleſſed Spouſe of Chriſt, whom all, both Daughters, Queens, and Concubines bleſſe and praiſe. Thus Gregory; but for his way of numbring to ſixty and eighty, there is no ſolidity in that: Rather I thinke with Ainſworth, that this number of Queens and Concubines is ſpoken of, a certaine number being put for uncertaine; and however as Junius hath it, there bee very many Queenes and Concubines in the world, and faire Maidens that attend them; yet thou, my Spouſe, art the onely one of thy Mother the viſible Church, whom all ſhall call Bleſſed. Or herein the Virgin Mary may bee propheſied of, whom the Angel called Bleſſed among women, and whom all, both Queens, Concubines, and Maidens that imbrace the faith of Chriſt, call bleſſed, and praiſe, though not pray unto, for the incomparable favour of God done unto her, making her the Mother that bare and brought forth his onely Son of the number of ſixty; ſee Chap.3.7. Ainſworth conjectureth, that herein it might bee alluded to the number of Wives and Concubines that Salomon had, before that hee increaſed them to ſeven hundred and three hundred, or the number of the Nations may bee alluded to; yet in his varying of the words from Wives to Concubines, I deny not, but that may bee meant which Gregory hereupon ſpeaketh of, the diverſity of thoſe that are in the viſible Church.

Ainſworth.
Junius.

Verſ. 10.

Who is ſhee that looketh forth as the morning, faire as the Moone, cleare as the Sunne, terrible as an Army with banners? Here Chriſt goeth on to praiſe the onely One before ſpoken of by this, that ſhee looketh forth as the morning; that is, ſheweth as a light morning after the darke night, as it was in the time that the vaile was before the Jewes eyes, that they could not ſee into the end of the Law, that is, before their converſion, for hee is to bee underſtood as ſpeaking ſtill of that Church. Now ſhe is ſaid to looke forth as the morning, being at the firſt faire as the Moone, which giveth light in the night ſeaſon, becauſe ſuch of the Nations as before this, and at this time being in the night of errour and ignorance, by her example begins to ſee, and to be moved to come to Chriſt; But ſhee is alſo cleare as the Sunne, giving light alſo to thoſe, that before were children of the day, as the godly, faithfull are called, 1 Theſ. 5.5. Of her terribleneſſe as an Army, enough hath been ſaid already. Ainſworth underſtands all the Church in generall, the glory whereof increaſeth by degrees, being firſt as the light morning. 2. As the Moone ſhining. 3. As the Sunne, but then the light of the Moone is as the light of the Sunne, and the light of the Sunne ſevenfold, as the Prophet Eſay ſpeaketh.

Gregor.
2 Cor.3.
Ainſworth.
Eſa.30.26.

Verſ.11.

I went downe into the Garden of Nuts to ſee the fruits of the valley, and to ſee whether the Vine flouriſhed, and the Pomegranates budded. The Garden of Nuts, ſaith Gregory, are the hearts of the perfect, wherein much ſweet grace and divine knowledge lyeth hid under the outſide of a fraile body, of which the Apoſtle ſaith, We have this treaſure in earthen veſſels, as under the Nutſhell is the ſweet kernell, but becauſe this grace in them is not ſeen to men, they account them but vile and deſpicable as others. But what meaneth hee to ſay after theſe words, To ſee my Apples, for ſo he rendreth theſe words, to ſee my fruits, it ſeemeth improper after that he had ſaid, I went into my garden of Nuts, to ſay, to ſee the apples of the valleys; but he ſaith, it is not meant to viſite theſe Apples onely, but the Nuts being firſt viſited, that is, the perfect, and then by them others to whom they are propounded as paterns, and over whom they are ſet to ſee unto them. But all this labour might have been ſpared, for the word ſignifieth fruits in generall, and ſo it is rendred by others, and theſe even Nuts are, from whence this Garden is demonſtrated; Ainſworth will have Nutmegs meant.

Geregor.

But why are theſe fruits ſaid to be the fruits of the valleys?

Eſa.66.2.
Jam.4.6.

Sol. To intimate the humility of the moſt excellent amongſt the faithfull, who are as fruitfull Trees growing in vallies, to which waters deſcend; whereas the proud are as withering ſhrubs upon high hills, which no raine, or waters of brookes flowing in can make to flouriſh; wherefore to the humble God ſaith, That hee is neare, but hee lookes upon the proud afarre off.

Cald. Paraph.
Note.

To ſee whether the Vine flouriſhed, and the Pomegranates budded; that is, whether new children were daily borne in the Church, and what the care of the perfect was to winne others to Chriſt by going before them in a good example, and zealous preaching. Thus Gregory and the Chaldee Paraphraſe expoundeth it of the wiſe men in Iſrael, and the plenty of good workes by them brought forth, as the Pomegranates are full of ſweet juice and kernels. Hereby is ſhewed, that fruitfulneſſe is by the Lord expected in his Church, and that the faithfull ſhould not onely believe in him, but doe good workes, as the Vine beareth good fruit, and be knit together in love, as the kernels in Pomegranates are, to ſtirre us up thus to doe; for if contrariwiſe wee bring forth ſowre grapes, as the Vine ſo carefully planted, Eſa.5. wee ſhall bee in danger of being expoſed to all miſery, the fence of his providence being pulled down from about us; and likewiſe if there be ſtrife and diſſention amongſt us.

Verſ. 12.
Gregor.

Or ever I was awake my ſoule made mee like the Chariots of Aminadab; the Vulgar, I knew not, my ſoule troubled mee for the Chariots of Aminadab; and this agreeth beſt with the Hebrew, and is thus expounded by Gregory. I, the Synagogue of the Jewes remained long in ignorance and blindneſſe, not being moved to imbrace the knowledge and faith of Chriſt; but at length I conſidered the Qudraigas, or Chariots drawne by foure horſes; that is, the holy Goſpels, which are foure, and theſe I may well call the Chariots of a willing people, as the word עמי נרב ſignifieth, becauſe other peoples of the Nations ſo willingly imbraced them, and ſo were carried to Chriſt, I remaining all this time in my blindneſſe, for which I am now in my ſoule troubled. Juſtus Orgel. underſtandeth Chriſt ſpeaking here, who in ſaying, I knew not, meaneth, I knew no ſinne, neither will I know the wicked at the laſt day, but ſay unto them, Depart yee workers of iniquity, I know you not; but he ſaith, My ſoule was troubled for the Chariots of Aminadab; that is, I was ſollicitous for people carried in the foure Goſpels to beleeve in mee, as in the Chariot of Aminadab; theſe bookes being ſo called, becauſe Aminadab is there named in his Genealogy both by Matthew and Luke. Ainſworth rendreth it as the Vulgar, I knew not, and my ſoule put me, the Chariots of a willing people; word for word according to the Hebrew, expounding it as the ſpeech of Chriſt, who in ſaying, I knew not, ſpeaketh after the manner of men as God ſometime doth, although nothing be unknowne to him; as when he ſaid touching Sodome, I will goe downe to ſee, whether it bee ſo or not. In like manner Chriſt here touching the Jewes hardening their hearts againſt him, he ſaith, I knew it not, or I could not have thought it; and the words Ammi Nadib are two, not one, a proper name, and they ſignifie a people willing, or noble, or Princely; Chriſtians firſt imbracing the faith, being called thus for their excellency above others, as thoſe of Berea are ſaid to be more noble, and a free-will offering; where it is ſaid, Thy people ſhall be willing in the day of thy power.

Juſtus Orgel.
Matth.7.21.
Matth.1.3.
Luke 3.33.
Ainſworth.
Gen.18.
Act.17.11.
Pſ.110.3.

Touching the Chariots here ſpoken of next after theſe words, My ſoule ſet me, he ſaith, it is meant, I earneſtly ſet mee to bring me in a people with all ſpeed, as upon Chariots, according to which Iſaiah ſaith, I will bring them upon horſes and Chariots, an offering to the Lord. Junius rendring it, My minde ſet mee not perceiving theſe things in the Chariots of my ingenuous, or free people, expounds it alſo of Chriſt, who when he found not fruit in his garden, made haſte to his Church, as being carried in a Chariot of a willing people. I hold with thoſe that expound this of Chriſt, not of the Spouſe, and that theſe words cohere with thoſe before going, verſ.11. where the Lord ſaying, That he went into his Garden to ſee for fruit, meaneth the Jewiſh Synagogue, to which he came in his Incarnation, and to which he firſt preached, expecting the fruit of their converſion to the faith. But now he ſaith, that hee knew not, that is, found them not yet to bee the people which he expected; That is, ready to receive the glad tidings of Salvation through faith in him; but contrariwiſe unbeleeving, and wicked, and ſo ſuch as he knew not, that is, accepted not of; whereupon he ſet himſelfe, as it were, upon the chariots of a willing people; That is, leaving the Jewes, he went in the Goſpel of the foure Evangeliſts, who were willing with this Office amongſt the Gentiles, being ſwiftly by them carried, as in a Chariot, by his Apoſtles, who taught the things in them contained, all over the world.

Eſa.66.20.
Junius.

Verſ. 13.

Returne, returne (O Shulamite) returne, returne, that we may looke upon thee; what will yee ſee in the Shulamite, as the company of two armies? This Gregory ſaith, is the voyce of the Church to the Synagogue of the Jewes, inviting her to turne to Chriſt, and intimating her returne towards the end of the world; and ſhe is called Shulamite, ſignifying Captive, becauſe that all the time of her infidelity ſhe was carried, and held Captive in ſinne by the Devil; and the word Returne, is repeated foure times, to ſhew the diſperſion of the Jewes in the foure parts of the world. Gregor.

The next words, he ſaith, are the words of Chriſt to the Church, deſiring the Jewes converſion; what ſhall yee ſee in this Shulamite, when ſhe is converted? and he anſwereth himſelfe, as it were, two whole Armies of Jewes, and Iſraelites, ready to fight for Chriſt, as before they perſecuted him; and this he ſpeakes congratulating, or rejoycing together with his Church for her converſion. But whereas he ſaith, that the word Shulamite ſignifieth captived, it ſignifieth peaceable, or perfect; ſo that in calling the Synagogue thus, he implieth, that he was now reconciled unto her, and at peace with her, the time of her converſion being now come, and by faith to make her the perfect Spouſe of Chriſt, and compleat in all parts, as followeth chapter ſeven; in her further deſcription, what more he ſaith upon this verſe I willingly imbrace. Of the foure parts ſee Pſal. 7. 3. here may alſo be underſtood many times of calling, as in the Parable, Matth. 20.

He moveth this queſtion, What ſhall yee ſee, ſaith Ainſworth, to make all men the more attentive; and he noteth, that the word מחלת rendred company, ſignifieth Chorus, a company in a dance, to expreſſe the great joy that ſhall be at the Jewes converſion; they ſhall be all Armies rejoycing, and expreſſing their joy by dancing, and ſinging in two companies of Angels and men, after a notable victory; but I thinke rather, as Moſes and Miriam with one company of men, and another of women, dancing after the Hoaſt of Pharaoh vanquiſhed, and drowned in the red ſea. Ainſworth. Exod. 15.

CHAP. VII.

Verſ. 1.

HOw beautifull are thy feet with ſhooes (O Princes daughter) the joynts of thy thighes are like jewels, the worke of the hands of a cunning Workeman, Chriſt having before praiſed his Spouſe, the Church of the Gentiles, and then of the Jewes converted, ſeverally, now he praiſeth them being joyned together, and making one glorious Church, which is intimated in his ſaying, the joynts of thy thighes; or we may take that ſpoken of her, chap. 6. of both together; and here he further inlargeth himſelfe, in praiſing the Jewes and Gentiles thus united. He calleth her the Princes Daughter, as ſhe is called the Kings Daughter, Pſal. 45. That is, the daughter of God, the great King of all the World; and her feet are ſaid to be beautifull with ſhooes, becauſe that by Chriſts example, who ſuffered death for her, ſhe is ſo fenced in her going in the way of Chriſtianity, as one that hath good ſhooes on his feet, that he feareth not in his going the pricking of Thornes, or the tearing of ſharp Stones in the way, as he that goeth with bare feet. According to this Saint Paul ſaith, Having your feet ſhod with the preparation of the Goſpel of peace; and of Chriſtian Preachers it is ſaid, How beautifull are the feet of thoſe that bring glad tidings of peace. Epheſ. 6. 15. Rom. 10. 15.

Ainſworth takes this as ſpoken by ſome friends of the Spouſe, and not by

Chriſt, and ſo doe ſome others, becauſe the King is ſpoken of, verſe 5. as being in his Gallery; but it is not unuſuall for one to ſpeake of himſelfe in the third perſon, therefore this is no argument to prove it; let us then take it for Chriſts ſpeech, eſpecially there being none other friends upon earth to the Spouſe, but the Spouſe her ſelfe, conſiſting of Gentiles and Jewes; and it is improper for any woman to praiſe her ſelfe, therefore it is her Husband that praiſeth her, being by the converſion of the Jewes made one; and he proceedeth not either as he did, chap. 4. or chap. 6. but he beginneth at her feet, and ſo aſcendeth through her other parts to her head, becauſe he had ſpoken of her returning, which is done with our feet, ſhe having gone before in the way of infidelity; and diſobedience to Chriſt; now ſhe returneth by the way of faith and obedience; and moſt beautifull, and moſt gloriouſly ſhod are their feet, that doe ſo; and becauſe upon our feet we ſtand, and having ſhooes on, firmly, and confidently, her feet are ſaid to be beautifull with ſhooes, therefore hereby may be intimated, the conſtant perſeverance of the Church in the true faith unto the end, after that the Jewes ſhall be converted, and the great boldneſſe and courage of Chriſtians againſt the enemies of the Goſpel.

Againe, becauſe having ſpoken of her ſhooes, where-with her feet were beautified, he now calleth her, Princes daughter, it is not amiſſe gathered, that her being ſo well ſhod argueth her nobility; as contrariwiſe, to goe bare-footed argueth baſeneſſe; ſo it is ſaid, Eſa. 20. 4. to ſhew to what a low eſtate they ſhould be brought for their ſinnes, that they ſhould goe bare-footed: but Ezek. 16. 10. when the Prophet would ſet forth, how they were honoured of God, he ſaith, I ſhod thee with Badgers skinnes. Note. They then that are ſtedfaſt, and unmoveable from the truth, are as Princes Children, of beautifull and glorious feet; but the mutable, who are turned about in any point of truth, as a Weather-cock with every blaſt of Doctrine, are ignoble, and the baſe bond-men of ſinne and Satan. For the perſon ſpeaking here, may it not be the Pen-man of this Song, Salomon, who having ſet forth the praiſes of the Church before, breakes out by the Spirit, and interpoſeth theſe words to her further commendations, to verſe 7. Chriſt then beginning againe, verſ. 8? let the judicious Reader conſider and judge.

Ainſworth noteth, that the word put here for joynts is uſed only in this place, and that it ſeemeth to ſet forth the round joynt bone in the hollow of the thigh, whereupon it turneth, and that hereby is meant the comely and decent going of the faithfull, which is, when they are of a laudable converſation in their doings, words, and workes. Gregor. I preferre the allegory of Gregory by theſe two thighs joyned together, where they meet towards the belly, underſtanding two peoples, Jewes and Gentiles, ſpoken of, and praiſed here together; becauſe I ſee no reaſon why the Church of the Gentiles being before praiſed apart by her members, chap. 4. and the Church of the Jewes apart, chap. 6. ſuch praiſes ſhould be repeated againe, and that by ſuch members, ſome of which were not ſpoken of before, unleſſe it be in regard of the preſent conjunction betwixt theſe two, making one more glorious Spouſe then ever before.

Verſ. 2. Gregor. Thy mouth is like a round Goblet, that wanteth not liquor, thy belly like an heap of wheat, ſet about with Lillies. By the Navell Gregory underſtandeth the Preacher, who is compared to a turneable Goblet, as he rendreth it, becauſe he having to doe with divers men, muſt turne himſelfe in his tongue, that he may ſpeake fitly to them; and he is a Goblet, or great Bowle full of liquor, becauſe he is full of Spirituall wine, to inebriate and fill the Hearers, to the making of their hearts to rejoyce; and yet he himſelfe is ſaid to want no liquor, becauſe he holdeth in his owne heart that which he giveth others to drinke.

And like the belly, which is compared to an heap of wheat, are the people, becauſe that by their good workes they are prepared to be brought into the Garner of Heaven; and they are ſet about with Lillies, becauſe compaſſed about with holy examples of the Worthies recorded in Scripture, whereby they are ſtirred up to live, and doe ſo, as that they are not Tares to be burnt, but Wheat to be gathered into the Garner at the laſt day. For by Lillies, as hath been ſhewed before, the moſt excellent of Gods ſervants may well be ſet forth for their whiteneſſe, and ſpotleſneſſe in regard of ſinne, as the Church was ſaid before to be without ſpot.

Juſtus Orgel.

Juſtus Orgel. becauſe the Navell is in the midſt of the body, hereby underſtands ſuch as are vertuous, becauſe vertue is in the midſt; and becauſe that the holy Scriptures, and continuall exercising of a mans ſelfe herein, are a meanes of attaining this grace, they are ſaid not to be without liquor, becauſe that hereby they are filled with living water: and they are turnable, in reſpect of their ready obedience to God in every thing; and becauſe that by this meanes they have that within them where-with others may be fed and ſuſtained, they are likened to a belly, as an heap of wheat.

Ainſworth.

But Ainſworth herein beſt of all; The Church is likened to a Mother, that firſt nouriſheth her Childe by her Navell, which wanteth no liquor fit for nouriſhment, becauſe ſhe is full of Wine, and Milke, and in her belly her young lye and grow as wheat in the field till the Harveſt, when it is cut downe and laid upon a Stack, for which it is ſaid to be as an heap of wheat: and becauſe a Stack being thus made, a fence uſed to be made about it, Lillies are ſaid to be ſet about this heap; That is, the Children of the Church are fenced with innocency, and blameleſneſſe of life, whereby through the guidance of the Spirit they are kept from the ſpots of ſinne, where-with the wicked of the world are defiled. Thus he; although not altogether in theſe words, but in this ſence, wherein the ſame is ſaid in effect with that of Gregory, touching the Goblet, expounded of Preachers, becauſe that in further declaring how the Church nouriſheth her young in her wombe, as a Mother, he ſaith, that Paul according to this ſpeakes of himſelfe as Mother, ſaying, My little Children, of whom I travell againe in birth, till Chriſt be formed in you. And for that of her belly, there is in his expoſition little difference from this.

Gal. 4. 19.

Verſ. 3.

Thy breaſts are like two young Roes, that are twins. Having ſhewed the ſtate of the Children of the Church, being but yet conceived, and lying in the wombe, and brought newly forth; as wheat being ripe is taken and laid upon a Stacke, or heap, now he ſheweth how theſe her Children are alwayes nouriſhed after, as long as they live in this world, viz. by her two Breaſts; That is, as hath been before ſhewed upon chap. 4. 5, the ſincere milke of pure Doctrine, out of the two Teſtaments, which are as twins, becauſe both alike; and who ſo takes away one of them, as the Antinomians of old did the Old Teſtament, holding only the New, they rob the Children of God of one of their Breaſts; and they that having ſuckt theſe Breaſts formerly, through the Miniſtry opening them unto them, but now either fall immediatly to them, deſpiſing the help of the Miniſtry, or pretending new revelations from God, ſlight them, inſtead of Milke ſucke poyſon, to the deſtruction of their ſoules. And thus Juſtus Orgel. underſtands theſe two breaſts; but others not ſo aptly, two peoples, Jewes and Gentiles, becauſe Breaſts are ſuch things, as whereby Children are nouriſhed, and not the Children themſelves; wherefore that Church, which holdeth forth both theſe, and theſe only, is the true Spouſe of Chriſt, all others being but Strumpets, and to be taken heed of.

Verſ. 4.

Thy neck is as a tower of Ivorie, thy eyes as the Fiſh-ponds of Heſhbon, by the gates of Beth rabbim, thy noſe as the tower of Lebanon, which lookes towards Damaſcus. Of the Spouſes necke like a tower, ſee before, chap. 4. 4. but as there it is ſaid to be the Tower of David, ſo here a tower of Ivorie, thereby her ſtrength being ſet forth, here her bright, and white ſhining, through holineſſe and purity of Doctrine and life. Her eyes called alſo Doves eyes, chap. 4. 1. are here likened to Fiſh-ponds of Heſhbon; That is, Fiſh-ponds artificially made; for the word ſignifieth device, or cogitation, implying ſtudy and invention in the making hereof, ſo as that they might be an otnament to the Land, as well as a bleſſing, as Pools, or Ponds were in that hot Country. Heſhbon was a fruitfull Country, where Sihon dwelt, it was the Lot of the Reubenites; to the Ponds here the Spouſes eyes are compared, for their clearneſſe, ſo that as in cleare waters things are ſeene, as in a Glaſſe, ſo in the Ponds of the Church, that is, the holy Scriptures; for hereby a man may ſee his face as in a Glaſſe, to waſh away the blemiſhes hereof, Numb. 21. chap. 31.

Jam. 1.

and theſe are artificially made by the greateſt Artiſt in the world, even by the invention of the Spirit of God; and they are likened to Fiſh-ponds, becauſe that men being taken by the preaching of the Word are here put, when they are required to meditate hereupon, and to keep in all things within the compaſſe hereof; and men, as Chriſt hath taught us, are as Fiſhes, where he ſaith to his Apoſtles, I will make you fiſhers of men.

Gregor. Ainſworth.

Some will have the ſimilitude to ſtand in the faithfulls weeping abundantly, upon the conſideration of their ſinnes, as Gregory; but Ainſworth is either for this, or the other, by the gates of Beth Rabbim; that is, being interpreted, the houſe of many; That is, theſe Ponds are ſo placed, as that they are not ſhut up from the multitude, but many, yea even all that will, may have them in their private houſes, and read them, and hereby ſee themſelves, as was ſaid before, to reforme what is amiſſe, and to be confirmed in that which is good. Thy noſe as the tower of Lebanon, that lookes towards Damaſcus; the Noſe is the organ of the ſence of ſmelling, whereby a man diſtinguiſheth between ſweet and ſtinking, the diſcerning faculty of the Church is hereby ſet forth, betwixt Apoſtolicall Doctrine, which is commended as a ſweet odour to God in every place, and the ſtinking ſmell of the Apoſtaticall, who going from the truth, teach their owne erroneous imaginations: and when the faithful doe thus, they are as the ſtrong Tower of Lebanon, on the North parts of the Land towards Damaſcus, the head City of Syria, a Country of enemies to Gods people, as the holy Hiſtory ſheweth; That is, they ſtand ſtoutly to the maintaining of the Truth, as Souldiers, in a ſtrong tower againſt Spirituall enemies, ſet forth by Damaſcus, and the Syrians inhabiting there, which had the name from Bloud, for ſo דם ſignifieth; the wicked, whether Satan, or his inſtruments being hereby denoted, whoſe hands for their wickedneſſe are ſaid by the Prophet to be full of bloud, as this City Damſeck; that is, a ſack full of bloud, in the Hebrew tongue.

1 Cor. 15.

Verſ. 5.

Thine head upon thee is like Carmell, and thy haire like purple, the King is held in thy Galleries. By head upon her, here may be underſtood the tire of her head, and the word Carmel ſignifieth a ſcarlet colour, and therefore the rich attire of her head may be hereby denoted, as well as her haire, which is likened to purple, for the purple ſtrings, or ribbonds about it; for theſe were the colours which were worne by Princes, and now aſcribed to this Princes daughter, the Church. By the head underſtand the minde, by the haires the cogitations; becauſe as the haires come from the head, ſo cogitations come from the minde, and all theſe in the faithfull are royally adorned, their minde and thoughts being ſet upon nothing, but royall and glorious things, which pertaine to the kingdome of Heaven; and herein ſtandeth the chiefe part of their excellency; but to be worldly-minded is a baſeneſſe, and therefore forbidden to all that are riſen with Chriſt, ſet not your mindes on things below, but upon things above. This Gregory hath in part, but he firſt underſtandeth by her head, Chriſt, but very unaptly here, ſeeing Chriſt is here deſcribing his Church, conſidered apart from him. But Carmell is alſo the proper name of a fruitfull place, for which it is ſaid, that the Church under the Goſpel ſhould be as Carmel, Eſa. 35. 2. Jer. 50. 19. but that hath no place here. The King is held in thy Galleries; That is, Chriſt is ſo taken with the beauty of the ſoules that are ſuch, that he is held, and tyed, as by bands, by the love of them, that hee cannot goe from them; which ſeemeth to be ſpoken in alluſion to the Harlots holding of a fleſhly man, where it is ſaid, Whoſe hands are bands; the word רהטים rehatim ſignifieth as Galleries, ſo Channels, as Gen. 30. 38. or watering troughs, and therefore the vulgar renders it, joyned by the Kings Channels: but it it being thus rendred, Gregory giveth no expoſition.

Note.

Col. 3. 1. Gregor.

Prov. 7. 26.

Verſ. 7. Gregor.

Thy ſtature is like a Palme-tree, thy breaſts like cluſters of Grapes. The Palme-tree, ſaith Gregory, groweth up ſlender, to a great height; ſo the Chriſtian at the firſt but little in grace, or having but a ſmall meaſure of grace and knowledge, in time aſcendeth very high, and is eminent in both. And as Cluſters of Grapes yeeld ſweet juyce, ſo ſuch a perſon, out of the two breaſts, the Love of God, and of his Neighbour.

Ainſworth.

Ainſworth ſaith, that the faithfull is compared to the Palme-tree, becauſe it groweth ſtraite up, and cannot by hanging weights thereon be made crooked, or to bow, and it is alwayes green, and yeeldeth moſt ſweet fruit; wherefore in the Pſalmes alſo, the righteous are compared to a Palme, or Date-tree, as it may be rendred here. It is meant then, that the faithfull, whatſoever they ſuffer, cannot in their mindes be depreſſed, but ſtill they are erected and tending towards heaven, to the end of their dayes; and they beare the beſt fruites of Love, meekneſſe, humility, juſtice, beneficence, patience, &c. For her breaſts, not thinking that he had ſaid enough hereof, verſ. 3. in comparing them to twinne-rees, he here ſets them forth by another compariſon, whereby happily ſomething elſe is ſet forth, according to the Allegory of Gregory before going.

Pſal. 92. 13.

Verſ. 8.

Gregor.

I ſaid, I will goe up to the Palme-tree, I will take hold of the boughes thereof now, alſo thy brethren ſhall be as cluſters of the Vine, and the ſmell of thy noſe like apples. The vulgar, I will take of the fruit thereof; which Gregory expoundeth thus: I will goe up to the Croſſe, and there ſuffer, and take of the fruits of my ſufferings to give unto thee, even juſtification from all ſinne, and being made partaker of this fruit, now thy breaſts ſhall be indeed as cluſters of the Vine, yeelding pleaſant liquor for thy children to ſuck comfort from. And for the next words, the ſmell of thy noſe is like apples, he reading it, the ſmell of thy mouth, ſaith, that the ſweetneſſe of Divine teaching, which cometh from the mouth of the faithfull Teacher is hereby meant, this is like thoſe Apples that are called Pomgranats, which ſmell ſweet, and taſte ſweet being opened, as being full of pleaſant fruit: and becauſe they are covered over with a red barke, they denote the Martyrs in ſpeciall red, by the ſhedding of their bloud for Chriſt, their conſtant confeſſing of him with their mouthes to the death, giving this ſweet ſmell; and the word אף here uſed, ſignifieth either face or noſe, and therefore the mouth being part of the face may be underſtood hereby, and ſo it agreeth beſt; yet Ainſworth ſaith, that the breath coming out by the Noſe may be meant, which when it is ſweet, ſheweth that the inward parts are uncorrupt; therefore in commending the ſmell of her noſe, her inward ſoundneſſe is commended in her heart, ſhe ſpeaking, and doing all things out of an upright heart. For the word expounded by Pomgranats, it agreeth not, for they be Apples, that are here ſpoken of, by the ſame word that went before, chap. 2. 5. For his going up to the Palme-tree, as the Church was, verſe 7. hereunto compared, ſo now the tree upon which Chriſt hanged; yet ſome underſtand the ſame Church, to the top of which Chriſt aſcendeth, in going to lay hold upon the boughes, (for in a Palme-tree the boughes are altogether on the top, none on the body, and at the top of the boughes is all the fruit) his acceptation of her fruit before ſpoken of is here ſet forth, the fruites that come from her head, meditations, and utterance of words for edification, and of her breaſts the vertues and graces harboured here, which are pleaſant to God, as the fruite of the vine.

Ainſworth.

Verſ. 9.

Gregor.

The roofe of thy mouth like the beſt wine for my beloved, that goeth downe ſweetly, cauſing the lips of thoſe that are aſleep to ſpeake; the vulgar, for the roofe of thy mouth, hath it, thy throat, worthy my beloveds drinking, and ruminating with his lips and teeth, and the word חכך ſignifieth either thy palate, or throat; and being expounded throat, Gregory expounds it of Preachers, whoſe Sermons uttered through their throat, are inebriating, and chearing the Hearers, like the beſt wine. For the next words, they are word for word according to the Hebrew, going to my beloved aright, or in rectitudes, related lips and teeth; this by Gregory is underſtood, as ſpoken by the Church touching Chriſt, he having ſaid, thy throat is as the beſt wine, replieth, going downe with pleaſure to my beloved, and meditated upon by ſuch as heare things uttered out of the throat before ſpoken of; even as cleane Beaſts chew the Cud with lips and teeth, ſuch as it is neceſſary all Chriſtians ſhould be, and not read or heare the Word only, not ruminating; for whoſo doe thus, are as uncleane beaſts, which God accepteth not of. And this doth not much differ from the Hebrew, if the laſt

Fœcũdi calices quem non fecere diſertum.
Epheſ. 5. 14.
Eſa. 26. 19.
Note.

word be ושנים for שן ſignifieth a tooth, but becauſe it is ישנים ſignifying ſuch as are aſleep, the New Tranſlation is rather to be preferred, making to ſpeake the lips of thoſe that be aſleep; That is, the moſt drowſie, and at other times of little ſpeech, but now moſt talkative, being inebriated with this ſpirituall wine, that was ſaid in the words before to move aright for ſo the words הולך לישרים may well be rendred, and this is ſpoken according to the common ſaying, Whom have not full cups made eloquent? And it is noted of the Apoſtles, when they were filled with the Spirit, that they ſpake ſo, as that their Auditours ſaid, they were full of new wine. The ſleepers here ſpoken of are ſuch, as before this wine entring into them ſlept in ſinne, who are bidden to awake, and to awake and ſing, being aſleep, or dead in ſinne, and mute in reſpect of the things of God, as all men are, before they be thus awaked, as is commonly to be ſeene in moſt; they are full of talke, when they meet about other things, but of things pertaining to godlineſſe not a word cometh from them, which argueth them all to be thus dead; although they heare Sermons, as the beſt wine moſt delightfull, yet none of them enter in, but are to them as precious liquor of the Grapes, ſpilt upon the ground.

Verſ. 10.

I am my beloved's, &c. A repetition of that which was ſaid before, chap. 6. 3. and ſpoken now by the Spouſe out of her joy, for her being made compleat by the calling of the Jewes, as is before ſaid.

The eighth ſpeech of the Bride.
Verſ. 11. 12.
Gregor.

Come (my beloved) let us goe into the field, let us tarry in the villages, let us goe up early to the vine-yards, let us ſee whether the vine flouriſheth; whether the tender grapes appeare, and the Pomgranats bud forth, there will I give thee my loves. Hereby ſaith Gregory, is ſet forth, how the faithfull ſoule having taſted of the ſweetneſſe of the knowledge and love of Chriſt, is deſirous that others, who have not yet attained to this knowledge, may be brought unto it alſo; for what is the field into which ſhe deſireth Chriſt to goe with her, but the wide world, wherein are innumerable Townes, and Villages wanting this knowledge? therefore ſhe deſireth him to goe with her amongſt them, to preach unto, and inlighten them every where, that are yet in darkneſſe, for ſo it is ſaid in the Parable of the Wheat and Tares, the field is the world. He cometh into the field then, when his coming into the world, by being conceived by the Holy Ghoſt in the wombe of the Virgin Mary, this holy Seed being ſowne therein, as in a field, is preached and taught; and into the Villages, when he was preached amongſt the Gentiles; and he goeth into the Vine-yard to viſite it, when after his Reſurrection, aſcending up into Heaven, he ſitteth there in Majeſty and Power, defending his Church, his Vine-yard in all places, being with his every where, to the end of the world.

Phil. 3.

And what elſe doth the Lord here? viſite to ſee whether the Vine flouriſheth, what acceſſion of ſoules is made daily to the Church, that ſhall be ſaved, and for ſuch as be added, if they be tender and young Chriſtians newly come in, whether any increaſe of knowledge and grace appeareth in them, ſet forth by the tender Grapes; if they be more perfect ones, whether they be ſtill going on to more perfection, as the Apoſtle Paul did; for the Lord hath an eye to all that are in his Church, and lookes that there ſhould be in every one a proficiency, according to his proportion, and ſtature in Chriſt, there I will give thee my loves; the Vulgar, my breaſts; which the Church gives to Chriſt, when to his members, by holding out unto them the two Teſtaments, yeelding ſincere milke for their nouriſhment unto eternall life. Of going to ſee whether the Vine flouriſheth, and the Pomgranats budded, he ſpake before, Chap. 6. 11. which, as was there expounded, was ſpoken by way of Propheſying of the converſion of the Jewes; now the ſame is more particularly ſet forth, and in what order it ſhould be; Firſt, the Goſpel ſhould goe out into all the world, for this is the field here ſpoken of, into which Chriſt went with his Apoſtles, when ſending them to teach and baptize all Nations, he went with them, accompanying their teaching with Miracles, and then they abode, and lodged, as it were, in the Villages of the Gentiles, when their going to preach amongſt them, tooke effect to their converſion. Then to ſhew, that after this, the Jewes, who at the firſt rejected it, ſhould imbrace the Goſpel alſo, it is ſaid, Let us goe into the vine-yard, &c. for what is the vine-yard of the Lord of Hoaſts, but Judah, as the Prophet ſpeaketh? and here then ſhall the vine flouriſh, and the tender Grapes put forth, and the Pomgranats bud, by the coming in of the common ſort, like tender children in knowledge, and of the more perfect and expert in the Word of God, that is, Rabbins and Teachers; and this being done, the Church giveth unto Chriſt her Loves, or Breaſts, he being as much delighted here-with, as a man with the love of his deare Wife, who after going aſtray, turneth againe unto him with all her heart, and doth all Offices of love and ſubjection to him; or as a childe, by ſucking moſt ſweet milke out of the Mothers breaſts, although he hath no need of it, but the Church to ſucke the breaſts of his conſolations.

Eſa. 5.

Verſ. 13.
Gregor.

The Mandrakes give a ſmell, and at our gates are all manner of pleaſant fruites, both new and old, which I have laid up for thee my beloved. By the Mandrakes Gregory underſtandeth fruites, both medicinall and ſweet, and by them all ſuch in the Church of God, as by their good fame yeeld a ſweet ſavour, being publicke perſons, ſet forth by Gates, becauſe there ſuch uſed to ſit: but here it is to be applied to publicke Teachers, who are as Phiſitians, by their wholſome Doctrines healing the diſeaſes of mens ſoules, and have Store-houſes, out of which they bring forth to theſe Gates, or publicke places, inſtructions out of the New Teſtament, and out of the Old, according to the one, teaching Chriſts Incarnation, Death, and Reſurrection, as they are plainly herein ſet forth, and out of the other, opening the ſame, by ſhewing the myſticall underſtanding of all the Sacrifices, and old Rites, and types of the Old Teſtament: and theſe are ſaid to be laid up for Chriſt, becauſe he is here-with well pleaſed, as men with the ſweeteſt fruites which can be kept for them, and brought forth and preſented to them.

Juſtus Orgel.

To the ſame effect Juſtus Orgel. but he will have ſuch compared to Mandrakes alſo, for their being deep rooted, and grounded in the love of Chriſt, as Mandrakes are in the ground.

Ainſworth.

Ainſworth referring us to the Hiſtory, Gen. 30:14. of Mandrakes found in the wheat harveſt in the fields, ſaith, that they ſet forth fruites, both ſweet and pleaſant to behold, exceeding thoſe that we have now adaies, and that the Graces of God in his Church are hereby ſet forth, and are ſaid to be at our doores, in oppoſition to the fields, wherein thoſe grew of old, the faithfull having them every where amongſt them, when by heavenly teaching, and godly living, they give a ſweet ſmell; and ſuch fruites laid up for Chriſt were the faithfull of old, and thoſe newly ſpringing up, and brought forth under the Goſpel anew. And they are ſaid to be laid up for Chriſt, becauſe that in the holy Scriptures their famous acts and vertues are recorded, all tending to guide us to him, for which our Lord ſaith; Every Scribe inſtructed to the kingdome of Heaven, is like unto an Houſholder, that bringeth out of his treaſury things both new and old.

Math. 13.52.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſ. 1.

O That thou wert as my brother, that ſucked the breaſts of my mother, when I ſhould finde thee without I would kiſſe thee, yet I ſhould not be deſpiſed. Here the Church is brought in, ſpeaking to Chriſt in thoſe dayes, wherein this was written, he being not yet come in the fleſh; and it ſerveth to ſhew the longing deſire of the faithfull after his coming, as is expreſſed by the Prophet Iſaiah, ſaying, O that thou wouldeſt breake the heavens, and come downe; and likewiſe by David, who ſaith the ſame. And the Spouſe's ready receiving of Chriſt, which was without, that is, the Church of the Gentiles, is here intimated, in that he ſaith, When I ſhould finde thee without; that is, ſtanding without doores, being by the Jewes, through their hardning their hearts, ſhut out. See chap. 5. 2. I would kiſſe thee; That is, for love ſubmit my ſelfe unto thee, as Princes are exhorted to kiſſe the Sonne. Yet I ſhould not be deſpiſed; Hebr. yea they will not deſpiſe me; That is, ſo doing, I ſhould not make my ſelfe deſpicable, as an impudent woman, that findeth a man and kiſſeth him, as Prov. 7. becauſe this expreſſion of my love cometh from the Spirit, ſetting me at liberty to ſerve God for love, whereas before being in bondage, I did it for feare. Thus the Church before the coming of Chriſt, ſhewing her expectation of his coming of woman, ſuch as every other mans mother is, and of his ſucking her breaſts, and being nouriſhed and brought up, as other children are.

Verſ. 2.

I would lead thee, and bring thee into my mothers houſe, who would inſtruct me, I would cauſe thee to drinke of ſpiced wine, of the juyce of my Pomgranats. This, ſaith Gregory, is a Propheſie of the Jewiſh Church, which at the firſt rejected Chriſt, but afterwards being converted, brings Chriſt into her mothers houſe, that is, by ſetting up the preaching of him in her Synagogues; and ſhee ſaith, I would cauſe thee to drinke ſpiced wine, of the juyce of my Pomgranats; that is, refreſh thee with the courageous ſuffering of my Martyrs in fighting againſt the Antichriſt. Ainſworth referreth it to the ſame Church ſpoken of, verſe 1. and for her ſaying, who would inſtruct me, he underſtandeth this of Chriſt, thus entertained into the heart by faith, for ſuch as feare him, he teacheth in the way wherein they ſhould goe; and the Church, or Soule, being thus taught by her graces, delighteth Chriſt, as with ſpiced wine, to make it taſte more pleaſantly a man is delighted. For my part, I hold that the Church of the Gentiles which was ſaid before to finde him without, goeth on in expreſſing her great deſire of Chriſt, come by his Incarnation, ſhewing, that ſhe would make him moſt welcome, by all the meanes that ſhe could.

Gregor.

Ainſw.

Verſ. 3. 4.

For the next words, verſe 3. they are the ſame with chap. 2. 6. His right hand ſhould be under my head, &c. and therefore ſee the expoſition there, and likewiſe verſe 4. with chap. 2. 7.

Verſ. 5.

Who is this that cometh up from the wilderneſſe, leaning upon her beloved, I raiſed thee up under the Apple-tree, there thy mother brought thee forth, &c. She that is ſaid here to aſcend out of the Wilderneſſe, ſaith Gregory, is any faithfull ſoule, which being converted cometh, as it were, out of a wilderneſſe of ſinne and miſery, affording no true comfort to ſuch as continue therein, that is, in the ſtate of corruption; but now ſuch a ſoule is ſaid to leane upon her beloved, that is, to depend only upon Chriſt for the comfort of juſtification from all her ſins.

Gregor.

The eighth ſpeech of the Bride-groom.

Then Chriſt her beloved ſpeaketh, I raiſed thee up under the Apple-tree; ſhewing whom ſhe might thanke for her coming into this comfortable eſtate, and from the other ſo miſerable, even that ſweet fruit which hung upon the Croſſe, compared before to Apples, and now the Tree of the Croſſe for his hanging thereon called the Apple-tree, bearing this precious fruit, by beleeving in, and turning to whom we are raiſed up from the death of ſinne, to the life of Grace, and Righteouſneſſe, and ſhall finally be raiſed up after death to life everlaſting.

Chap. 2, 3.

For the next words, There thy mother brought thee forth, the vulgar followed by Gregory hath it, there thy mother was corrupted, and the word חבל ſignifieth either to corrupt, or to bring forth; but he expounds it of the foule ſinne, whereby the Jewiſh Synagogue corrupted her ſelfe, by cauſing Chriſt to be crucified, under which Apple-tree he findeth at length the Daughter of this Synagogue lying ſtill in the ſame ſinne, by infidelity, and raiſed her up, by converting her to the faith, through his great grace and mercy; and this expoſition I take to be right, although Ainſworth expounds, and renders the laſt words otherwiſe; there thy mother brought thee forth; that is, the Preachers of the Goſpel, by great labour and paines formed thee to this: and theſe words, I raiſed thee up under the apple-tree; he expoundeth of the Church, ſpeaking to ſome new company of beleevers coming in, from the multitude of the wicked of this world, as from a wilderneſſe, where no comfort is to be had, but all miſery: but how forced this is, let the Reader judge. That a new company of beleevers not before converted is here ſpoken of, I deny not; for I conceive it to be ſpoken againe of the converted Jewes, of whom ſo much was ſaid before; but becauſe it is not in man, but God only, to raiſe up from ſinne and infidelity to faith, how can it be ſpoken in the perſon of any Church, I raiſed thee under the Apple-tree? but I thy Redeemer raiſed thee under my ſelfe, from that miſerable eſtate, to that hope wherein thou now ſtandeſt; but thy mother that bare thee corrupted thee, by oppugning me, and teaching thee to curſe, and abjure me; yea ſhe moſt ſhamefully corrupted thee, and therefore to her diſgrace I ſpeake it over againe.

Ainſw.

Chap. 2. 3.

Verſ. 6.

Gregor.

Set me as a ſeale upon thy heart, as a ſeale upon thine arme, for Love is ſtrong as Death, Jealouſie is cruell as the Grave; the coales thereof as coales of fire, which hath a moſt vehement flame. Chriſt is ſet upon the heart of the Spouſe, ſaith Gregory, who taketh theſe words to be his alſo, when the ſoule heartily loveth him; for Love is his Seale, or Marke, as it were, whereby we may be knowne to be his Diſciples; and he is ſet upon her armes when ſhe doth ſo, as a moſt earneſt affection to Chriſt requireth, that is, feedeth his poore members, followeth him in meekneſſe, holineſſe, lowlineſſe, and ſuffering for his ſake. And to ſhew that ſuch love is meant, it followeth, For Love is ſtrong as Death, and Jealouſie is cruel, &c. As if he had ſaid; If thou loveſt me, as thou ſhouldeſt doe, an impreſſion of the love of me being made in thy heart, as by a ſeale, this love would be as ſtrong in thee to ſubdue any contrary motions ariſing from the fleſh, as Death, againſt which nothing living can ſtand, when it ſtriketh, and thy jealouſie ariſing from this love, and the hatred of any thing done againſt me, would be as one raging and cruell againſt any corrivall wronging him in his love; for in this caſe he will ſhew him no favour, but killing, and ſlaying; ſo the ſoule, in which the love of Chriſt is ſealed, is hot and zealous, as coales of fire againſt any thing, wherein Spirituall whoredome, which is againſt him, lyeth, whether by the worſhipping of Idols, or Images, or the great Idols of the World, Profit, cauſing ſtealing, lying, forſwearing, curſing, fraud, oppreſsion, or any other unjuſt dealing; or Pleaſure, cauſing Gluttony, Drunkenneſſe, Adultery, Fornication, or ſenſuall living any way; Firſt, not to endure any of theſe things in himſelfe; Secondly, neither in others, but to his power oppoſing them, with all fervency and heat, as of the moſt vehement fire.

Junius.
Ainſw.

Junius, and Ainſworth, and ſome others, taking this to be the ſpeech of the Spouſe, expound it of her deſiring Chriſt to thinke continually upon her, as having an impreſsion of the love of her made in his heart, and to manifeſt it, by ſtretching out his arme to defend her in all dangers, and for this ſhe pleadeth her earneſt love to him, ſo that threatnings with death, or the greateſt rage of Tyrants, could not beat her here-from. I preferre the former.

Verſ. 7.

Many waters cannot quench Love, neither can the floods drowne it; if a man would give all the ſubſtance of his houſe for love, it would be utterly contemned. He goeth on in ſetting forth the nature of this love unto Chriſt, many waters cannot quench it; That is, he in whom the love of Chriſt is, by ſufferings, to which he is put for his ſake, cannot be made to doe any thing here-againſt, yea although Perſecutions increaſe like a floud; for he that ſo loveth him, will rather bear any thing, to the loſſe of his life, then to the extinguiſhing of the fire of his love. If a man would give all the ſubſtance of his houſe, &c. That is, the love of Chriſt is ſo predominant in the heart of a true Chriſtian, that if he muſt loſe all his goods, and be expoſed to extreame poverty for his ſake, yet he would not weigh it, or be moved hereby, becauſe he counteth all theſe things vaine in compariſon of Chriſt, and the benefit coming by him to his ſoule; thus Gregory. But Juſtus Orgel. underſtandeth, as a further commendation of the love of Chriſt thus; It is ſo excellent, as that if a man would give all his goods to the poore, thinking for this to be accepted, without it, all this would be taken before God as nought worth. Ainſworth, it is meant, That Love, as none other grace of God, is to be attained by money, but is Gods free gift. Junius, Love is not only unextinguiſhable by the waters of calamity before ſpoken of, but by any the greateſt gifts, or rewards. For as he that truly loveth God, cannot by ſufferings be terrified ſo, as not courageouſly to perſiſt herein; ſo if he ſhould be offered abundance of trea-

Juſtus Orgel.
1 Cor. 13.
Ainſworth.
Junius.

ſure to forſake the Lord, and his Law, he would utterly contemne it; and this I take to be the beſt, becauſe it is moſt probable, that both ſorts of temptations to 2 Machab. 7. make men Apoſtatize are here ſpoken of; the one by threatnings, the other by promiſes:
as one of the ſeven brethren that ſuffered death for Gods Law, having ample rewards promiſed him, if he would yeeld to the Tyrant, deſpiſed them all, preferring for the love of God rather to dye in his cauſe. And herein Balaam himſelfe ſpake right religiouſly, when Balac promiſed to promote him to honour; If he would give me his houſe full of gold and ſilver, I will ſpeake none other Note. words, but what God ſhall put into my mouth. This then is a Touch-ſtone, whereby to try our love; not every one that ſaith, I love God, loveth him, but he that being tried, ſhrinkes not from his truth, for any feare of danger, or hope of reward.

Verſ. 8. We have a little Siſter, and ſhe hath no breaſts, what ſhall we doe for our Siſter, in the day when ſhe ſhall be ſpoken for? The Lord having hitherto confirmed the Church of the Jewes in his love, never more to be beaten from it, after that ſhe hath once imbraced it; now beginneth to declare another new Church yet remaining to be gathered after the fore-ſaid converſion of the Jewes, of ſuch Countries and Nations, as never before received the Goſpel, as of Turkes, and Pſal. 2. Tartars, Chinois, and Americans: for all Nations are Chriſts inheritance, and Pſal. 72. the uttermoſt parts of the earth his poſſeſſion: and he muſt rule from Sea to Sea, Eſa. 2. 2. and to the worlds end; and of this the Prophet Eſay ſpeaketh, as which ſhould be fulfilled in the laſt daies, when an univerſall peace ſhall be, and no more wars, as have alwayes hitherto been; neither hath the Mountaine of the Lords houſe ever yet been ſo high exalted, that is, the Jewiſh Nation; but this is yet to come, when the whole Nation ſhall imbrace the faith. If that of the Apoſtle ſhall ſeeme to make Rom. 11. 25. againſt this, where he ſaith, Blindneſſe is hapned to Iſrael in part, till the fulneſſe of the Gentiles ſhall come in, as I have alſo ſometime thought, thoſe words, Acts 2. 5. 9. I take it now, doe not neceſſarily imply it, but the coming in to the faith of all thoſe who are called, all the Nations under heaven, Act. 2. and of all others then knowne, as the Americans were not, and many others, amongſt whom the Goſpel hath been received, have againe revolted from it, but muſt come in againe; or elſe how can Chriſt reigne over them all at the ſame time? Of this Church then here, after to be gathered, I thinke it may be beſt conceived, that it is propheſied here;
And ſhe is called a little Siſter, having yet no breaſts, becauſe not growne to the ſtate of a woman, to afford the nouriſhment of teaching to her young ones; yet ſhe is a Siſter, ſo called, becauſe ſhe ſhall be one. And the Lord ſpeakes in the plurall Ainſworth. number, ſaith Ainſworth, We have a little ſiſter, to intimate the triplicity of perſons in the unity of the God-head; and he alſo ſaith, that this is ſpoken of a new Church ariſing. But touching the Trinity herein implied, I aſſent not unto him, becauſe that chap. 7. 11, 12. it is likewiſe ſpoken in the plurall, where Chriſt and the Church are manifeſtly brought in together ſpeaking; and ſo likewiſe, as I rather 1 Cor. 3. 9. take it, here he joyneth faithfull teachers to him, who are ſaid to be Labourers together with the Lord, becauſe that by the Miniſtry of ſuch this new Church ſhould be built.

Gregor. Gregory by this little Siſter, underſtandeth the Apoſtles, before the coming downe of the Holy Ghoſt upon them, for then they were little in courage for Chriſt, when as Peter, the chiefe of them, was afraid of a ſilly Maid, and denied Chriſt at her ſpeech; and they all fled from him, and hid themſelves, keeping cloſe in an upper roome for feare; but the Holy Ghoſt being given, they were as a ſtrong wall, or tower, as a doore of utterance of the marvellous things of God, which they ſpake with all boldneſſe; and cloſed in with Cedar, that is, a company of beleevers coming about them, as an ornament unto them, as a Cedar Porch is to a doore of an houſe.

Juſtus Orgel. Juſtus Orgel. underſtands the Church of the Gentiles, being at their firſt converſion very ignorant, and without Teachers, and ſo without breaſts, till that they had ſome ordained them by Paul and Barnabas, and after that by Timothy, and Titus; which being done they were as a wall, with a tower, and a doore, ſo ſet forth,

forth, as was ſaid before. But the order of time agreeth not to either of theſe, ſith this is ſpoken after that of the Jewes coming in, towards the end of the world, and being ſo exceſſively zealous for Chriſt; wherefore I thinke it evident, that ſuch a new Church is meant, as I have ſpoken before of, the time of whoſe Eſpouſals is not yet come.

Verſ. 9. Ainſworth. If ſhe be a wall, we will build upon her a Palace of ſilver; if ſhe be a doore, we will incloſe her with boards of Cedar. By wall here we may underſtand with Ainſworth, a City fenced with walls and gates; becauſe a doore is alſo ſpoken of, the meaning is, when by our labours ſhe ſhall become ſtrong in the faith, as the walls of a City, to which the Church is compared, Matth. 5. ſhe ſhall be beautified, as by a palace of ſilver, through purity and holineſſe, which ſhall ſhine in her, and being as a doore, or gate, to let in friends, and to keep out enemies, through vigilancy, and watchfulneſſe, ſhe ſhall now, as a compleat temple, as the Temple of old, be incloſed, and be an houſe, made as it were, of Cedar, goodly to behold, ſweet and incorruptible. And by this name of walls and gates the Church of Chriſt is often ſpoken of, as Eſa. 26. 1. Chap. 66. 18. Thou ſhalt call thy walls ſalvation; and ſuch ſhe ſaith by and by that ſhe is.

Verſ. 10. I am a wall, and my breaſts as towers, then was I in his ſight as one that found favour. And ſuch is every true Church of Chriſt, and every true faithfull ſoule, neither can he be in favour with Chriſt that is not ſuch, that is, ſtrong through faith, to ſtand againſt the aſſaults of all Spirituall enemies, and perſecutions of Tyrants in the world; as God ſaid to Jeremy, that he would make him as a brazen wall, and an Iron pillar. 2. As a palace for God to dwell in, as being one in whom there is an heart continually lifted up in prayer. 3. Having breaſts, as towers, ſo great, and ſo full through abundance of the Milke of Divine doctrine contained therein, whereby to be defended in all times of being aſſaulted by temptations, as Chriſt by the word confounded the Devil tempting him. 4. A doore of a mouth, to utter words to edification of the Hearers, and that incorruptible, as out of which no corrupt communication ever cometh, for ſuch is this Church that findeth favour, in theſe two verſes propounded to be.

Note. Jer. 1. 18. & 15. 20. Epheſ. 2, 20.

Verſ. 11. Gregor. Salomon had a vine-yard at Baal Hamon, he let out the vine-yard to Keepers, every one for the fruit thereof was to bring a thouſand peices of ſilver. The Vine-yard of Salomon, otherwiſe rendred the Pacificke here ſpoken of, ſaith Gregory, ſetteth forth the Church of the Jewes, according to Eſa, 5. who are the Lords vine-yard, which Lord, for his peace-making by his bloud, is called the Pacificke. This vine-yard he had, and let it out to Husband-men, that is, Moſes and the Prophets, but by and by, as if he had forgotten himſelfe, he ſaith, that theſe Husband-men were the Apoſtles, and other Beleevers of the primitive Church, who brought for the fruit each one a thouſand peices of ſilver, when they left all to follow Chriſt, and ſold all, and brought and laid it at the Apoſtles feet, becauſe a thouſand is the number of perfection, and ſo may well ſet forth all that a man hath. And likewiſe he expoundeth ver. 12, both of their parting with all, and their remuneration two hundred; and Juſtus will have the 12. Apoſtles with their reward herein intimated, becauſe that twelve multiplied by a hundred make twelve hundred, every one having an hundred fold for all, which he left for Chriſts ſake, as the Lord hath promiſed; Who ſo leaveth father and mother, houſe and land, &c. ſhall have a hundred fold, &c. But if Chriſt be meant by Salomon, the Vine let out by him was that which was taken from the Jewes, and let to other Husband-men, the Preachers of the Goſpel, to be kept by them, and the thouſand ſilverlings cannot be the worldly goods which they left, but ſome benefit by them brought in to Chriſt. I rather hold therefore with Junius, that a compariſon is here made betwixt Salomons vine-yard, planted in a fruitfull ſoyle (as he renders it for Baal Haman ſignifying the Lord of a multitude, that is, bearing abundance of fruit) and the Church of Chriſt: As if he had ſaid, Salomons vine-yard indeed was a very fruitfull one, but the fruites were not ſo great, as the fruites of my vine-yard, for it yeelded but a thouſand ſilverlings to him, mine a thouſand to the Lord of the vine-yard, and two hundred to the Keepers; and whereas that was committed to the Keepers, the King being in another place, and the worke done by his ſervants.

Juſtus Orgel. Matth. 19.

Verſ. 12. Mine is before me; mine eye being continually upon it, and my helping hand put to, for the cauſing of it upon my Keepers labour to yeeld the more fruits. Theſe words then are manifeſtly the words of Chriſt, extolling his vine-yard, his Church, above Salomons, for the fruitfulneſſe thereof, although Ainſworth inclineth rather Ainſworth. to thinke them to be the words of the Church; and whereas theſe words, mine is before me, may ſeeme to make againſt it, he ſaith, ſhe calleth the vine-yard hers, as chap. 1. 6. becauſe committed to her keeping. But if the vine-yard be hers, in that ſence, who be the Keepers, that ſhare in the benefit, reaping two hundred ſilverlings to the Kings thouſand. It is cleare then, that Chriſt is brought in ſpeaking here; but what meane theſe ſummes of money paid, as it were, rent to him, and wages to them? Sol. Fulneſſe of glory to him ſet forth by a thouſand, the number of perfection, and a great proportion of heavenly glory to the Apoſtles, and other Labourers in the vine-yard, the prime Preachers of the Word, ſet forth by two hundred, becauſe whoſoever leaveth friends, or poſſeſſions for Chriſt, ſhall receive an hundred fold; but when the Sonne of Man ſhall ſit upon his Throne, yee that have followed me, ſaith Chriſt, ſhall ſit upon twelve Thrones, &c. implying a greater reward, here ſet forth by two hundred, for their one hundred fold; or the words may have this expoſition, Salomons vine-yard put out to Keepers, yeelded him from every Keeper a thouſand ſilverlings, whereupon it is concluded by way of compariſon, betwixt Chriſts vine-yard and his, Thou (O Salomon) haſt a thouſand peeces of ſilver; and (which I omitted to ſpeake of before) thy Keepers each one two hundred, but the vine-yard, which is mine, is before me; that is, I have more joy of my vine-yard, which is my Church, my Wife, for ſhe is alwayes with me, inveſted with heavenly glory, and ſo we together reap farre more. Jun: I in the delight that I take in her being thus glorified, and ſhe and Note, her keepers in their partaking with me, of my Kingdome for ever; ſo that here is a Propheſie of the final end, to which all the amorous expreſſions before going tended, namely, the fulneſſe of joy, which the Bride-groom and Bride have together in heaven, at the conſummation of this world.

Verſ. 13. Thou that dwelleſt in the Gardens, the companions hearken to thy voyce, cauſe me to heare it. Seeing theſe things ſhall be ſo, now I turne my ſpeech againe to thee (my Spouſe) ſaith Chriſt, whilſt thou art as a Garden, my pleaſant place upon earth, let all my friends, thy companions hearken to thee, teaching how this felicity may be finally attained, and let me heare thy voyce from time to time, uttered in prayers and praiſes continually.

Verſ. 14. Make haſte my beloved, and be as a Roe upon the mountaines of ſpices; See the like ſpeech, chap. 2. 17. but here the Spouſe deſireth, that Chriſts ſecond coming may be with ſpeed, as Revel. 22. that together with him ſhe may be for ever in the mountaines of Spices; this wicked world being left, wherein there is nothing but ſinne and miſery. And heaven, which is ſometime ſet forth by the name of Hills, as where it is ſaid, I have lifted up mine eyes to the hills, is here called mountaines, as in the Garden of the Church, before a bed of Spices was ſpoken of, to intimate the ſurpaſſing pleaſures, and joyes, that ſhall be to the faithfull there for ever and ever.

The end of the Expoſition of the Song of Salomon.

The

The Song of Salomon,

Paraphraſed upon in Meeter.

CHAP. I.

Verſe 2.

LEt him kiſſe me with the kiſſes of his mouth, thy love is better then wine.

3 Becauſe of the ſavour of thine oyntments, thy name is as an oyntment poured forth, therefore doe the Virgins love thee.

4 Draw me, we will run after thee, the King brought me into his chambers, we will be glad, and rejoyce in thee, we will remember thy name more then wine, the upright love thee.

5 I am blacke, but comly, (O yee daughters of Jeruſalem) as the tents of Kedar, as the curtaines of Salomon.

6 Looke not upon me becauſe I am blacke, becauſe the Sunne hath looked upon me, my mothers children were angry with me, they made me the Keeper of the Vine-yards, but mine owne Vine-yard I have not kept.

7 Tell me (O thou) whom my ſoule loveth, where thou

Verſe 2.

O Lord my God, and Saviour, inſpire me with thy grace Divine, Hereby I ſhall be glad, and joy, much more then they that doe drinke wine.
3 Th' Apoſtles, ſent as odours ſweet, ſpreading in every place thy fame, Inamour Nations, and ſo from Chriſt is ſpread the Chriſten name.
4 Draw me (O Lord) by thy good Grace, without thine ayd I cannot come,
But hereby drawne ſure after thee, we'l all as one both run and come:
When I thus run I'me ſure of life, for which all upright men rejoyce
In thee, and keep in mind thy love we ever wil, by deed and voyce.
5 But when of th' upright I doe ſpeake,
I meane not our owne righteouſneſſe,
For we black are, and foule by ſinne,
in Chriſt is all our comlineſſe;
And this I ſpeake to you (O Jewes)
O ſay with me all blacke are we,
As Kedars weather-beaten tents, thus as Kings curtaines ſhall we be.
6 And if I be ſo comely then, take none offence at my diſgrace,
In word, or deed, by ſpitefull men,
the Sun thus only tans my face.
None other harme yee can me doe, by your fell wrath, but ceaſe me make Keeping your Vine-yard, but the Lord for one will more to me betake.
7 Shew thou to me, my Love, my Deare, by what good paſtures thou doſt feed

feedeſt, where thou makeſt thy flocke to reſt at noon, for why ſhould I be as one that turnes aſide by the flockes of thy companions?

8 If thou knoweſt not (O thou faireſt amongſt women) goe thy way forth by the footſteps of the flocks, and feed thy Kids beſides the ſhepheards tents.

9 I have compared thee, (O my Love) to a company of Horſes in Pharaohs chariot.

10 Thy cheekes are comly, with rowes of jewels, thy necke with chaines of gold.

11 We will make thee borders of gold, with ſtuds of ſilver.

12 Whilſt the King ſitteth at his table, my ſpikenard ſendeth forth the ſmell thereof.

13 A bundle of Myrrhe is my beloved to me, he ſhall lye all night betweene my breaſts.

14 My beloved is to me as a cluſter of Camphir in the vine-yards of Engedi.

15 Thou art faire, my love, behold, thou art faire, thou haſt Doves eyes.

16 Behold, thou art faire my beloved, yea pleaſant, alſo our bed is green.

Thy Flock, and from all burning heat, ſhadow thy ſheep all times of need;
O keep me, that I follow not Seducers flockes, though they pretend Them to be ſheep, elect by Chriſt, and eke himſelſe his moſt deare friend.
8 O thou, that haſt a ſoule moſt faire, through faith by waſhing in my bloud,
If that thou knoweſt not the way to me, behold juſt men and good,
By whoſe foot-ſteps 'tis plainly ſeene;
In David his true-heartedneſſe,
In Abraham his obedience, and Zachary his blameleſneſſe, Moſes his zeale to beat downe ſinne, of Job the greateſt patience,
The Apoſtles light eſteeme of goods of this baſe world, both pounds and pence,
And feed in Grace, thus ſtrengthening, ſeeke not in corners thy babes to feed, Let learned Paſtors in places keep,
where Chriſtian people uſe to meet.
9 Whereas (my Love) I thee direct,
my flock to follow which is weake, Becauſe ſtout foes will 'gainſt thee riſe, and ſeeke into the fold to breake;
Feare not, but be undaunted now,
for 'mongſt my ſheep my horſe is try'd, Ready to ſtrike thy proudeſt foes,
as ſometime Pharaoh in ſea that's red.
10 Of Chaſtity, the jewel doth adorne thy cheekes, thy neck the chaine
Of holy Precepts, which thou keep'ſt, and keeping doſt conſtant remaine:
11 Nor are theſe all thy ornaments, but by the Miniſters teaching Of Gold, and Silver rich Borders to Soules, the Trinity doth bring.
12 When Chriſt the King at Table ſate, t' annoynt him to the Buriall,
A woman came with Spikenard ſweet, not one, but two, yea three in all.
13 My Love to me a bundle is of Myrrhe, upon my ſoule ſeated, Thence keeping out all corruptions, and then from corps firſt corrupted.
14 My Love an All-ſufficient, expiating ſinne Sacrifice
Is without help of any man, his love, merit me doth ſuffice.
15 Moſt faire thou art, and beautifull, yea, beautifull thou art, my Love;
And for to grace thee more, thou haſt eyes like the eyes of harmleſſe Dove:
16 O my beloved, doſt thou ſpeake of being faire, that's thine owne,
For us 'tis grace enough, that we 17 The beames of our house are Cedar, and our rafters of Firre.

are like to trees that are green growne.
17 That we are Gods Houſe, built with beſt, and long laſting materials,
Sweet Cedar beames, and ſtreight Firre, Rafters ſo ſtrong, never to fall.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1.

I Am the roſe of Sharon, and the Lilly of the vallies.

2 As the Lilly amongſt the thornes, ſo is my Love amongſt the daughters.

3 As the Apple-tree amongſt the trees of the wood, ſo is my beloved amongſt the ſonnes; I ſate downe under his ſhadow with delight, and his fruit was ſweet unto my taſte.

4 He brought me into the Banqueting-houſe, and his banner over me was love.

5 Stay me with Flaggons, comfort me with Apples, for I am ſick of love.

6 His left hand is under my head, and his right hand doth imbrace me.

7 I charge you, O yee daughters of Jeruſalem, by the Roes and Hindes of the field, that yee ſtirre not up, nor wake my Love untill he pleaſe.

8 The voyce of my beloved, behold he comes leaping upon the mountaines, and ſkipping upon the hills.

9 My beloved is like a Roe, or young Hart, behold hee ſtandeth behinde our wall, he looketh forth at the windowes, ſhewing himſelfe through the Lattice.

Verſe 1.

I Am the Roſe that ſmels moſt ſweet, of all the flowers in the field,
And Lillies none more purely white,
then me, the world did ever yeeld.
2 As Lilly white, which hath no price, amongſt the pricking thornes is plac'd,
So is my Love amongſt hurtfull men, harmleſſe ſet, whereby grac'd.
3 As Apple-trees for ſhade and fruit,
excell all trees that grow in wood,
So my beloved doth all ſonnes, in pleaſing ſhade, and fruit for food.

4 No ſooner doe I this beleeve, but that more joy comes unto me,
By his good Spirit, as by wine,
for now his Banner's love to me;
5 And this ſweet taſte of thy great Love, (O Saviour) which now I have,
So workes with me, that whole flaggons;
and more apples of Grace I crave.
6 And this I can no ſooner doe, but that he's ready in my ſight
Me to imbrace, with both his hands, my head with left, my corps with right.
7 And now he ſleepes between my breaſts, all anger being laid abed,
My care ſhall be for evermore,
by ſinning not to ſtirre his head;
And the ſame charge upon you, all fellow Beleevers, I doe lay:
If Roe, the Hinde doth thus obſerve, ſtirre not by ſin our Love, I pray.
8 If how he comes, yee would faine know, behold his voyce in Wilderneſſe, Comes firſt for to prepare his way,
and then my Love full of goodneſſe.
9 Soone after as an Hinde, or Roe, ſtops not for ſteep mountaine or hill,
So he ore-leaps impediments, even all by his good Goſpel-will.
Before he tooke our fleſh he ſtood, hidden in Types behind that wall;
But now at window as the Sun,

Tur-

10 My beloved ſpake, and ſaid, Ariſe my Love, my faire one, and come away.

11 The winter is paſt, the raine is over, and gone.

12 The flowers appeare upon the earth, the time of the ſinging of Birds is come, the voyce of the Turtle is heard in our land.

13 The Fig-tree putteth forth green figges, the Vine with her tender Grapes give a good ſmell, ariſe my Love, my faire one, and come away.

14 O my Dove, that art in the clefts of the rocke, in the ſecret of the ſtaires, let me ſee thy countenance, let me heare thy voyce, for thy voyce is ſweet, and thy countenance comly.

15 Take us the Foxes, the little Foxes that ſpoile the Vines, for our Vines have tender grapes.

16 My beloved is mine, and I am his, he feedeth amongſt the Lillies.

17 Untill the day breake, and the ſhadowes fly away, turne my beloved, and be thou like a Roe, or a young Hart, upon the mountaines of Bethar.

turning to Light that darkneſſe all,
And thus as man to man was ſeen, to mortall eyes, as God yet hid,
As through a Lattice that is thick appeares, and ſhew himſelfe he did;

10 And now what is his will, but that I riſe from ſinne to righteouſneſſe,
And thus beleeving come to him, and ſo partake of his goodneſſe?
11 And me to move to this, he pleads
the time, and ſaith, winter is paſt, Wherein the world lay dead in ſinne, which me from his cold raine kept faſt.
12 Flowers of Graſſe ſmelling moſt ſweet, in Chriſten fields doe now appeare, Preachers like Birds ſweet harmony, by ſinging make now every where,
Charming the ſoule from den of ſinne, yea the chaſte Turtle John Baptiſt, His voyce is heard in Judea, with ſpeed to draw us all to Chriſt.
13 All Countries whence the Goſpel's preach'd, do ſpring, bud, ſhoot out, and bloſſome,
As doth the Fig-tree in the ſpring, riſe then my Love, and to me come.

14 And doing ſo feare not, for he that comes to me as helpleſſe Dove,
In me the rock is ſheltered from foes beneath, and foes above.
But note that he who is thus ſafe, on ſtaires of grace aſcending is Heaven-ward, though not mens mortall eyes, but God in heaven alone ſees this;
Say then, I come, and unto me appeare upon theſe ſteps Divine:
Thus both thy voyce and face ſhall I accept, and love and owne as mine.
15 But that thy voyce may pleaſant be,
and face moſt faire eke in my ſight;
O ſuffer not Seducers bold within my Church, but by thy might Chaſe them away, as men Foxes doe take, which doe their vines deface,
So theſe by devouring the weale of Church, doe marre the moſt faire face.
16 Doſt thou in me ſo much delight
(O my beloved) take, loe I Am thine, and thou art mine, feed then with me, and live with thy Lilly.
17 Till that moſt joyfull day ſhall breake, wherein thou com'ſt to ſave for aye,
When all troubles, and miſeries of world ſhall fleet, and fly away,
As Roe, and Hinde, on Mountaines ſteep, haſten to goe with greateſt ſpeed:

Haſte thou alwayes to come to me, in danger, at all times of need.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1.

BY night in my bed I ſought him whom my ſoule loveth, I ſought him, but I found him not.

2 I will riſe now, and goe about the City, in the ſtreetes and broad wayes, I will ſeeke him whom my ſoule loveth, I ſought him, but I found him not.

3 The watch-men that goe about the City found me, to whom I ſaid, ſaw yee him whom my ſoule loveth?

4 It was but a little that I paſſed from them, I found him whom my ſoule loveth, I held him, and would not let him goe, till I brought him to my mothers houſe, to the chamber of her that conceived me.

5 I charge you, O yee daughters of Jeruſalem, that yee ſtirre not up, nor wake my Love, untill he pleaſe.

6 Who is this that comes out of the Wilderneſſe like a pillar of ſmoake, perfumed with Myrrhe & Frankincenſe, and all the powders of the Merchant?

7 Behold his bed, which is Salomons, ſixty valiant men are about it, of the valiant men of Iſrael.

8 They all hold Swords, being expert in Warre, every one hath his Sword upon his thigh, becauſe of the feare in the night.

9 King Salomon made him-

Verſe 1.

MY Saviour I ſometime ſought to finde in ſloth, and idleneſſe,
In the darke night of ignorance,
but thus to ſeeke I finde bootleſſe.
2 I ſaid therefore, I will ariſe, and toyle, and travell, for to get Things worldly, for this preſent life, not ceaſing thus to ſeeke him yet;
But, woe is me, for whilſt that I worldly goods getting doe moſt intend,
In ſearch of him that is moſt deare,
in vaine I doe my whole time ſpend.
3 I went therefore where Watch-men are,
of wanderers the courſe to ſtay,
And unto Chriſt in the darke night, ſtrait for to direct their way;
4 When I did thus they found me ſoone, and I him, whom I love, then found,
I did him finde, and held him faſt,
by perſevering in faith ſound;
Untill that to Jeruſalem, my Mother deare, I did him bring, Whence firſt I had conception, hearing thoſe Bels th' Apoſtles ring.
5 This great worke done, my beloved hearts reſt ſhall have, and ſtirre never To judge the Jew, or him forſake more, but him dearly love ever.
6 For now as one with Frankincenſe, and Myrrhe perfum'd, in Wilderneſſe Horrid that lived long time hath incult in filth and naſtineſſe;
So doe I ſee my Mother Church, the Jewes a long time wildered
In unbeleife, acceptably to God, and Chriſt, at length turned.
7 Which done, King Salomon himſelfe with his deare royall Spouſe, could not More ſafely ſleep in bed, when Guard of mighty men ſtood it about.
8 Although they ſixty valiant were,
all expert men of Iſrael, Swords in their hands, ſwords by their ſides, feare cauſing Night-walkers to quell,
Then Jewiſh Synagogues turn'd Church, and Love and Spouſe of Chriſt moſt deare, Round about which Angels doe pitch their tents, and ſo her free from feare.
9 If in what chamber this bed ſtands

ſelfe a Chariot, or chamber of the wood of Lebanon.

10 He made the pillars thereof of ſilver, the borders thereof of gold, the covering thereof of purple, the midſt paved with Love, for the daughters of Jeruſalem.

11 Go forth (O ye daughters of Zion) behold King Salomon with the Crowne, wherewith his mother crowned him, in the day of his Eſpouſals, and in the day of the gladneſſe of his heart.

inquire yee doe, 'tis faire and ſweet,

10 With Silver pillars ſupported, bordered with Gold, as it is meet;
The wood, Cedar of Lebanon,
the hangings are purple royall,
Of Jewiſh Church-graces ſhining, with deareſt love amidſt them all.
11 And now yee Gentile Churches, loe Chriſt the true Salrmon, as King,
By Jewes is crown'd, and married, for which ſhoutings with joy doe ring.

CHAP. IV.

Verſe 1.

Behold, thou art faire (my Love) thou art faire, thou haſt Doves eyes within thy lockes, thy haire is as a flocke of Goates, that appeare from Mount Gilead.

2 Thy teeth are like a flock of ſheep that are even ſhorne, and come up from waſhing, every one beareth twins, and none of them is barren.

3 Thy lips are like a thread of ſcarlet, thy ſpeech is comely, thy temples are like a peice of Pomgranat within thy lockes.

4 Thy neck is like the tower of David, built for an armory, wherein there hang a thouſand bucklers, all ſhields of mighty men.

5 Thy two breaſts are like two young Roes that are twins, that feed upon the Lillies.

6 Till the day breake, and the ſhadowes fly away, I will get me to the mountaines of

Verſe 1.

My two Churches thus joyn'd in one,
I now, thus ſaith the Lord, behold,
As my moſt faire Love, which haſt eyes
adorn'd as Doves, not over bold;
And whereas womens haire, if faire and long, a glory is to her,
So doe the meditations of thy head now to me appeare.
2 Thy Miniſters that with ſtudy for thee prepare moſt wholſome food,
As Nurſe for Childe meat chew'd with teeth, as ſheep appeare pure, white, and good;
I meane not ſuch, as whilſt they preach,
in doing good are yet barren,
But bring forth twins of faith and love,
both towards God, and towards men.
3 Thy lips doe ſcarlet threads reſemble all fiery red through zeale 'gainſt him,
Not frantick yet, but comely, thy ſpeech like to thy wit within.
4 Thy neck, whereby ſupported is thy head, and face ſo beautifull, Is ſtrong, as Davids tower was,
behung with ſhields, moſt wonderfull,
The ſhields of faith which thouſands have, even all Beleevers hereby made Moſt mighty through me, to defend themſelves gainſt all that thee invade.
5 Thy Prieſts, that from both Teſtaments, as two twin Roes their breaſts doe fill,
With ſincere milke examples bring,
of Lillies white, ſtrengthening 'gainſt ill;
6 Untill the Day of Judgement comes,
when the darke night ſhall have an end,
I'le be where Aſſemblies prayers

Myrrhe, and to the hills of frankincenſe.

7 Thou art all faire my Love, there is no ſpot in thee.

8 Come with me from Lebanon (my Spouſe) with me from Lebanon, looke from the top of Amana, from the top of Shenir and Hermon, and from the Lions Dennes, and the mountaines of the Leopards.

9 Thou haſt raviſhed my heart, my Siſter, my Spouſe, with one of thine eyes, with one chaine of thy necke.

10 How faire is thy Love (my Siſter, my Spouſe) how much better is thy love then wine, and the ſmell of thine oyntments then all ſpices?

11 Thy lips (O my Spouſe) drop as the Honey-combe, Honey and Milke are under thy tongue, and the ſmell of thy garments is like the ſmell of Lebanon.

12 A garden incloſed is my Siſter, my Spouſe, a ſpring ſhut up, a fountaine ſealed.

13 Thy plants are an Orchard of Pomgranats, with pleaſant fruites, Camphir and Spiknard.

14 Spiknard and Saffron, Calamus and Cinamon, with all trees of Frankincenſe, Myrrhe, and Aloes, and all the chiefe ſpices.

to me as Odours ſweet aſcend.

7 Thou faire art my Love, thou art faire, and in thee is no ſpot at all;
As in Heathens, through vaine glory, amidſt their vertues Cardinall.
8 'Mongſt men like Lions (O my Spouſe) and moſt fell Leopards thou ſhalt be,
But from them all I'le thee ſet free, and thou with glory crown'd ſhalt be.

9 And now my Love, my Spouſe, I ſee ſuch faire and comely unity Amongſt thy members, all which doe in diſcipline and faith agree,
That as with his Loves beautifull, one wreath of haire her neck upon,
And eye a Lover's raviſhed, ſo I with chaine thy neck upon.
10 And this thy love (O ſiſter Spouſe) amongſt thy members moſt faire is, Yea, more pleaſant then the beſt wine, thy grace each ſmels more ſweet then ſpices

11 Thy lips, thy Prieſts, ſweet Doctrines bring, out of the word, where they lay hid Before, as in the Honey-combe,
Honey, till it dropt out, lye did:
And hereof more ſtore ſtill reſerv'd, and of good milke alſo they have,
Whereby to feed thy babes weak in knowledge,
when e're their hunger doth it crave.
The righteouſneſſe where-with thou art,
as with moſt pure garments, cloathed,
A fragrant ſmell unto me yeeld,
as Lebanon when moſt bleſſed.
12 As a garden moſt delightfull, incloſed is my ſiſter Spouſe, Gainſt filthy luſts, and as a ſpring, from fouling feet ſhut up in houſe:
And unto God alone thy heart is kept, and to none other thing,
But as by him permitted is,
he for his deare thee thus ſealing.
13 If in my Garden yee would know what trees there be, Pomgranats grow,
And all-fruit-pleaſant-bearing trees,
Camphir and Spiknard on a row, 14 Spiknard and Saffron, Calamus, and Cinamon, Myrrhe, Aloes,
All trees of the beſt Frankincenſe, and all moſt ſweet ſmelling ſpices:
Beleevers which doe beare good fruit, in great abundance all as one,
Making ſweet ſmells unto the Lord,

15 A fountaine of Gardens, a well of living waters, and ſtreames from Lebanon.

16 Awake (O North wind) and come (O South) blow upon my Garden, that the ſpices thereof may flow out, let my beloved come into his Garden, and eate his pleaſant fruites.

by prayers and devotion.
15 And from my Spouſe, as a fountaine, full many Gardens multiply,
As one faire ſpring from Lebanon, ſtreameth o're all both farre and nigh.
16 Now that the Spice of which I ſpake before, may yeeld the ſweeter ſcent, Yee Winds, both North and South, upon my Garden for to blow be bent:
That is, thou Holy Ghoſt worke ſo, by meanes both harſh and gentle to,
That all ſweet graces may the more utter themſelves, as thou canſt doe.
O my beloved, if thou doſt ſuch pleaſure take in thy Garden, Feed and keep here I thee beſeech, and alwayes be my ſafe Warden.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1.

I Am come into my Garden, (my Siſter, my Spouſe) I have gathered my myrrhe with my ſpice, I have eaten my honey-combe with my honey, I have drunke my wine with my milk; eat (O friends) and drinke, yea, drinke abundantly (O beloved)

2 I ſlept, but my heart waketh, it is the voyce of my beloved that knocketh, ſaying, Open to me (my Siſter, my Love, my Dove, my undefiled) for my head is filled with dew, and my lockes with the drops of the night.

3 I have put off my Coate, how ſhould I put it on? I have waſhed my feet, how ſhould I defile them?

4 My beloved put in his hand

Verſe 1.

INto my Church, as my Garden,
I'me come, and doe now delight ſo,
In praiſe and prayer, as in ſpice, from which a fragrant ſcent doth flow,
As honey and the honey-combe, wine and milke to taſte are ſweet
In teaching, when ſweet food that's hid in word, is given in gloſſes meet,
And unto babes, and weake in faith,
Soule-nouriſhing milke and comfort:
Wherefore my friends, yee faithfull be with me, all merry in like ſort.
2 But Lord, this my proſperity makes me to ſinne ſecurely, Although my heart be not ſecure, and judgements on me come hereby,
And with judgements knocking, I heard the voyce of Chriſt my Saviour, Saying, Ariſe my ſiſter Spouſe, and ſleep no more, no not one houre,
For this I ſtand here wooing thee, drenched with wet my lockes and head, Till thou riſeſt, and doore to me of thy hard heart be opened.
3 So long I have without Law lived, as one in naked bed ſecure,
That now thy Law no more then bands
moſt harſh, woe's me, can I endure,
My conſcience eke is waſht, and wipt from all the ſence of horrid ſinne; Should I then now come to thee that calſt, and live no more therein.
4 When voyce and knocking mov'd me not,
the

at the hole of the doore, and my bowels were moved for him.

5 I roſe up to open to my beloved, my hands dropped with myrrhe, and my fingers with ſweet-ſmelling myrrhe upon the handles of the locke.

6 I opened to my beloved, but my beloved had withdrawne himſelfe, and was gone, my ſoule failed when he ſpake, I ſought him, but could not finde him; I called, but he gave me no anſwer.

7 The Watchmen that went about the City found me, they ſmote me, they wounded me, the Keepers of the wall tooke away my vail from me.

8 I charge you, (O yee daughters of Jeruſalem) if yee finde my beloved, that yee tell him, I am ſick of love.

9 What is thy beloved more then another beloved (O thou faireſt amongſt Women?) what is thy beloved, that thou doſt ſo charge us?

10 My beloved is white, and ruddy, the chiefeſt amongſt ten thouſand.

11 His head is as the moſt fine gold, his lockes are buſhy, and black as a Raven.

12 His eyes as Doves eyes by the rivers of water, waſhed with milke, and fitly ſet, or ſet in fulneſſe.

13 His cheekes are as a bed of ſpices, as ſweet flowers, his lips like Lillies, dropping ſweet ſmelling myrrhe.

14 His hands are as goldrings ſet with the Berill, his belly is a bright ivory, overlaid with Saphirs.

the ſpirit of my beloved.
Breake ope my heart with mighty hand,
in ſin once hardned, and entered.
5 I then to ope the doore aroſe, and went the Iron bolt unto,
My hands dropt myrrhe when I began by good ſweet ſacrifice to doe.
6 My heart I opened, but no love could I then ſee, which pierc'd my heart With ſorrowes great, for he was gone, and had himſelſe with-drawn apart;
I prayed, but his anſwer to give he me deny'd then for to grant.

7 His Miniſters I went unto,
but they into me ſtruck more feare,
For when I heard them preach againſt ſin, with great threats, it touched me, Who had ſo vilely liv'd; and when they ſhew'd ſome hypocrites to be 8 That ſeem'd good hearers. But O yee, that in Gods houſe doe miniſter,
On me ſome pitty take, and ſhew him, when before him yee appeare To pray, that I with upright heart doe love him now, and to him ſeeke, Being, untill he manifeſt his love to me, moſt deadly ſick.
9 But canſt thou tell how excellent he is of whom thou ſpeak'ſt? I can.

10 He is the chiefe of ten thouſands, hee's white and red, both God and man; 11 He is a King moſt glorious,
he is moſt mighty and moſt ſtrong,
For that a golden head, for this long lockes as Sampſons were when grown.
12 As the white Doves by waters ſet, in ſtreames ſo cleare doe waſh their eyes;
So he in midſt of Churches is,
as waſht in milke, having pure eyes Set on all thoſe that full of grace are in their hearts, as delighted,
That in time of danger and need,
for them it may be provided.
13 As for his cheekes they are moſt faire, as beds of ſpice and flowers gay, Words from his mouth loving and pure, ſtilling as myrrhe, moſt ſweet I ſay:
14 His hands with good workes, as with rings of gold with Berill ſet, are bright;
His belly through compaſſion
As Saphirs gives an heavenly light;

15 His leggs are as pillars of marble, ſet upon ſockets of gold, his countenance is as Lebanon, excellent as the Cedars.	15 His leggs as Marble pillars ſtand, on ſockets of the fineſt gold, The Prophets that in their writings of him all circumſtances told : His countenance as choyſe Cedars in Lebanon, that doe excell all trees, for ſo he higher is, then all Kings that on earth doe dwell,
16 His mouth is moſt ſweet, he is altogether comely, this is my beloved, and this is my friend (O daughters of Jeruſalem.)	16 From his ſweet mouth all graces come, in all his parts he is lovely ; That my beloved is (O Jewes) why then doy' not unto him fly.

CHAP. VI.

Verſe 1.	Verſe 1.
W*Hither is thy beloved gone (O thou faireſt amongſt women?) whither is thy beloved turned aſide, that we may ſeeke him with thee?*	VVHither is thy beloved gone ? whither is he turned aſide ? O thou woman moſt faire, that we with thee may ſeeking him abide ?
2 My beloved is gone downe to his garden, to the beds of ſpices, to feed in the gardens, and to gather Lillies.	2 Into his Church, as his Garden, he's gone to beds of ſpices ſweet, In grace delighting, and gathers thence pure ſoules from corps that fleet;
3 I am my beloveds, and my beloved is mine; he feedeth amongſt the Lillies.	3 Doſt thou in me ſo much delight (O my beloved) take? loe I Am thine, as thou art mine ; feed then with me, and live with thy Lilly.
4 Thou art beautifull my Love, as Tirzah; comely as Jeruſalem, excellent as an army with banners.	4 Thou art (my Love) moſt beautifull, as Tirzah, Cit' in Iſrael, And comely as Jeruſalem in Judah, which all know full well; An army with banners diſplay'd, by Captaine ranked and filed That's moſt expert, by force of foes that it cannot be reſiſted.
5 Turne away thine eyes from me, for they have overcome me; thy haire is as a flocke of Goates that appeare from Gilead.	5 Thy longing eyes turne now away, (my Love) with me thou doſt prevaile, In ſeeking me as at a loſſe, thou ſhalt no longer weep and waile, The haires that be upon thy head are faire, as Goates on Gilead, I meane thy meditations, and ſtudies on my ſacred Read.
6 Thy teeth are like a flock of ſheep, that goe up from the waſhing, whereof every one beareth twins, and there is not one barren amongſt them.	6 Thy Miniſters, that by ſtudying prepare food for thy babes aright, As ſheep new ſhorne, and waſhed cleane, by a new life ſhining in light. Not one is like a barren wombe, but full of knowledge, and pregnant, And what they know they doe bring forth,

7 As a peece of a Pomgranate, are thy temples within thy lockes.

8 There are threeſcore Queens, and foureſcore Concubines, and Virgins without number.

9 My Dove, my undefiled is but one, ſhee is the onely daughter of her Mother, ſhee is the choyce one of her that bare her; the daughters ſaw her and bleſſed her; the Queens and the Concubines, and praiſed her.

10 Who is this that looketh out as the morning, fair as the Moon, clear as the Sun, terrible as an army with Banners?

11 I went downe into the Garden of Nuts, to ſee the fruits of the Valleys, to ſee whether they flouriſhed, and the Pomgranate budded.

12 Or ever I was aware, my ſoule made mee like the chariots of Aminadab.

13 Return, return, O Shulamite, return, return, that wee may look upon thee: what will yee ſee in the Shulamite as a company of two Armies?

out of both' Old and new Teſtament.
7 The Pomegranate is not more full of kernels, and moſt pleaſant meat,
Then bee their heads of food divine, of which the faithfull their fill eat.
8 But when my Spouſe, my Church, I praiſe,
'twixt them I put great difference:
For ſome are Concubines, decked with knowledge, but no conſcience.
Such when I look upon, I love for civill things, and knowledge great:
Yet being ſtill ſervants to ſin,
they pleaſe me not, as doth my meat.
Again, ſome fooliſh Virgins are, who neither grace nor knowledge have:
Some Queens, that are indu'd with both,
theſe few; they, numberleſſe and brave.
9 My Dove, my Church undefiled, ſole Daughter of her Mother is;
The Church that from beginning was, whom Daughters all do praiſe and bliſſe.

10 And now, as morning bright doth ſhee, after a black dark night appear:
The Moon it ſelf is not more fair,
nor yet the ſhining Sun more clear:
Through righteouſneſſe and holineſſe, whereby ſhee's alſo terrible
As Armies ſtrong to all ſuch foes, as with her now dare to meddle.
11 Downe to my Nut-Garden I went, to Jewiſh Church, my ſelf hiding:
In that pure Virgin Maries womb,
as kernell in Nut-ſhell lying.
Down to the Valleys fruitfull ſoyle,
the Jews to ſee my choyce Vineyard, And Vines growing there, and whether fruit they had, and Pomgranate hard.
12 But fruit then none could I there find, at which I was ſore perplexed,
To think ere long how they ſhould bee
by Romans army deſtroyed.
13 But now to thee (O Jew) I ſay in peacefull wiſe return, return:
From Eaſt to Weſt, from North to South, unto my faith return, return:
But if to peace with God, return ſhee doth, a goodly ſight to ſee:
Two Kingdomes, as two great armies, one triumphant Church to bee.

CHAP. VII.

Verſe 1.

HOw beautiful are thy feet with ſhooes? (O Princes Daughter) the joynts of thy thighs are like Jewels, the work of the hands of a cunning workman.

2 Thy navel is like a round Goblet that wanteth no liquor, thy belly is like an heap of wheat ſet about with Lillies.

3 Thy two breaſts like two young Roes that are twins.

4 Thy neck is like a tower of Jvory, thine eyes like the Fiſh-pooles in Heſhbon, by the gate of Beth-rabbim, thy noſe like the tower of Lebanon, that looketh towards Damaſcus.

5 Thine head upon thee is like Carmel, the haire of thine head like purple, the King is held in thy galleries.

6 How faire and pleaſant art thou (O Love) for delights?

7 This thy ſtature is like to a pleaſant Palm-tree, thy breaſts like cluſters of grapes.

8 I ſaid, I wil goe up to the Palm-tree, I will take hold of the boughes thereof, now alſo ſhal thy breaſts be as cluſters of the Vine, the ſmell of thy noſe as the ſmell of apples.

9 The roofe of thy mouth like the beſt wine for my belo-

Verſe 1.

O Childe of God, for ſo thou art that turn'ſt from unbeliefe and ſin, Thy deſires and affections faire are, as feet faire ſhooes within;
And thy conjunction in one with Gentiles in the faith, truly Is precious, as jewels be,
with ſkilfull hands wrought cunningly.
2 Thy navel like a Goblet round, with good liquor repleniſhed, Thy belly like an heap of wheat,
a Graine whereon the beſt doe feed, Doe repreſent our women great with Childe, and bringing forth yet more Lilly-white children, which doe ſtand about her table round, good ſtore.
3 Thy breaſts, that is, both Teſtaments, from which thy Miniſters doe fill Themſelves with milke, thy babes to feed, like two young Roes, are ever ſtill.
4 Thy neck, the ſtrength whereby thy head and breaſts together are joyned, Is white, and ſtrong, as a tower of Ivory that's compoſed; Thine eyes as Fiſh-pooles in Heſhbon, that is, the word-Preachers all, Whereby as in a Looking-glaſſe faults thou mayſt ſee, both great and ſmall:
And Looking-glaſſes of the Word, even now in all mens houſes are,
And ſo ſagacious they are made,
as of vile ſin to voyd the ſnare.
5 Thy head wherein thou glorieſt, that's Chriſt, is as fruitful Carmel, Thy haires, thy thoughts, upon his Bloud ornaments are, as is purple;
The places where thy members meet for Divine worſhip are to me Moſt delightfull, and there I am held as ſpectator, and will be.
6 How faire art thou, my Love, and eke by me how much delighted in?
7 High like Palm-tree for heavenly minde, thy fruits, ſweet Grapes, ſoule free from ſin; 8 And for to purchaſe, and to make a Church ſo glorious to me;
I'le to the tree, the Croſſe, aſcend
Victor, holding branch of Palm-tree,
And now thy breaſts, both Teſtaments, like bunches of ſweet Grapes ſhall be.
And eke thy breath, the which is drawne by noſe and mouth ſhall ſmell ſweetly.
9 As much delighted in preaching as in wine is thy beloved,

And

ved, that goeth downe pleaſantly, making the lips of them that are aſleep to ſpeake.

10 I am my beloveds, and his deſire is toward me.

11 Come my beloved, let us goe forth into the field, let us lodge in the Villages.

12 Let us goe up into the Vine-yards, let us ſee whether the Vine flouriſheth, whether the tender Grape puts forth, whether the Pomgranate puts forth, there will I give thee my love.

13 The Mandrakes give a ſmell, and at our gates are all manner of pleaſant fruits, which I have laid up for thee, (O my beloved) both new and old.

And hereby going downe with joy, lips of the dead are opened,
To ſing unto the Lord in Pſalmes, and Hymnes, and ſongs Spirituall.
10 For thus I my beloveds am,
and to me is his deſire all.
11 We thine Apoſtles fil'd with joy, as with beſt wine, are now all bent Amongſt the Gentiles to preach thee, where we ſhall have entertainment.
12 And after this to thy Vine-yard, barren of old, the word ſhall come,
And it ſhall ſpring, bud, and fruit beare,
I meane the Jewes, fore Day of Doome,
And then my Love, unto my Church
ſhall more then ever yet appeare, By peace and joy that I will give to all that worſhip me, and feare.
13 The Man-drakes which doe grow in field, and Gentiles graces ſignifie,
A ſweeter ſcent now yeeld, and Jewes in their owne City fructifie,
And bring forth fruits both new and old,
the New, of faith and charity, Old, of obſervance to Gods Lawes,
th' end glory and felicity.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſe 1.

O That thou wert my brother, that ſuckt the breaſts of my Mother, when I ſhould finde thee without I would kiſſe thee, yet I ſhould not be deſpiſed.*

2 I would lead thee, and bring thee into my mothers houſe, who would inſtruct thee, I would cauſe thee to drinke of ſpiced wine, of the juyce of my Pomgranats.

3 His left hand ſhould be under my head, and his right hand imbrace me.

4 I charge you (O yee daughters of Jeruſalem, that yee ſtirre not up, nor awake my Love, untill he pleaſe.

5 Who is this that cometh up from the wilderneſſe, leaning upon her beloved? I raiſed thee up under the Apple-tree, there thy Mother brought thee forth, there ſhe brought thee forth that bare thee.

Verſe 1.

And now that I this bliſſe fore-ſee, what elſe can be my hearts deſire, But's Incarnation to ſee?
this above all doe I require.
As then my brother in the fleſh,
I ſhould him love, and finde, and kiſſe;
Submitting to his faith, and yet
I ſhould not be deſpis'd for this.
2 And though my Mothers houſe, the Jewes, ſhall caſt thee out, yet I will bring Thee in againe, and then ſhe ſhall teach me, and I to thee will ſing,
And thou in this ſhalt delight more,
then in a cup of ſweeteſt juyce
Of Pomgranats, when thereunto is added much of the beſt juyce.
3 This done, he with right hand imbraceth me, and holds my head;
4 With left, in this poſture of reſt
O Jewes, him by ſin to wake dread.
5 And now me thinkes I ſee the Jewes, after long deſolation,
And wandring in the Wilderneſſe of errour in opinion, Turning to Chriſt, and not truſting to workes, but to his paſſion,
And the 'lone merit of the ſame for Juſtice and Salvation.

6 Set me as a ſeale upon thine heart, as a ſeale upon thine arme, for Love is ſtrong as Death, Jealouſie is cruell as the Grave, the coales thereof are as the coales of fire, that have a moſt vehement flame.

7 Much Water cannot quench love, neither can the flouds drowne it; if a man would give all the ſubſtance of his houſe for love, it would be contemned.

8 We have a little ſiſter, and ſhe hath no breaſts, what ſhall we doe for her in the day that ſhe ſhall be ſpoken for.

9 If ſhe be a wall, we will build upon her a palace of ſilver, if a doore, we will incloſe her with boards of Cedar.

10 I am a wall, and my breaſts as towers, then was I in his eyes as one finding favour.

11 Salomon had a Vine-yard in Baal-Hamon, and he let it out to Keepers, every one to bring for the fruit a thouſand peices of ſilver.

12 My vine-yard which is mine is before me, thou (O Salomon) muſt have a thouſand, and the Keepers thereof two hundred.

13 Thou that dwelleſt in the gardens, the companions hearken to thy voyce, cauſe me to heare it.

14 Make haſte my beloved, be as the Roe, or the young Hart, upon the mountaines of ſpices.

Thee here oppreſt with miſery, for deſpiſing me, and my Croſſe,
I found as the old Synagogue had brought thee forth, ſinſull and loſt.
6 As doth a ſeale impreſſion make,
ſo let my love upon thy heart,
And arme alſo, love me and mine, that nought here-from may thee divert,
And if thy love to me be great as it muſt be, Death's not ſo ſtrong,
The ſtouteſt bodies for to kill;
As it, the fleſh though liv'd in long,
Nor jealouſy like burning coales,
Or hot fiery flames rage more,
Or Grave-devouring all comers,
Then have of Chriſt 'gainſt paramore.
7 Quench love of Chriſt no waters can,
nor flouds of perſecution,
And if worldly goods be preferr'd to love to ceaſe ſh'would ſpit thereon.
8 And now that Jewes converted are, a Siſter's yet for to come in,
To make my Church compleat and full,
all the Gentiles living in ſinne,
And unbeliefe, and breaſts wanting,
from which of my faith ſuckt may be,
The milke in time of her calling, now neare, for her what doe may we?
9 If that a wall ſhe be, on her we'l build a palace of ſilver,
If firme in faith, ſhe holdeth out a faire houſe for God that made her;
And if thy heart be like unto a doore, open to inſtruction, Incloſed thou ſhalt ſurely be with Cedar of incorruption.
10 For firmneſſe I am like a wall, through Gods good favour unto me,
My breaſts alſo through my Teachers, are growne as towers great to be.
11 As Salomon a Vine-yard had, a moſt fruitfull ſoyle let out,
For ſilver peices a thouſand to Husband-men dwelling about.
12 So I, the Lord, a Vine-yard have,
the which is mine in my preſence, Thou Prince of peace a thouſand haſte, each Keeper hath two hundred pence,
That is, to thee all praiſe is given, rewards to them in heaven above.
13 The way to which is for thy friends,
the voyce of thy preaching to love,
And I, my Spouſe, delight to heare thy voyce of ſupplication, Beloved, doſt thou ſo, I pray now haſten thy ſalvation.

The end of the Paraphraſe of the Song of Salomon.

A Table of the principall matters contained in this Book.

JOB.

C. V.

1 1 To be righteous amongſt the wicked.

2 Good men having children are juſt and charitable.

5 Of feaſting, a good uſe to maintaine love. The care that parents ought to have of the good of their childrens ſouls. The dutifulneſſe of children grown up, towards parents. Sacrificing, by whom it was done of old.

6 Job a figure of Chriſt, and of every godly man, wherein the ſeven graces of the Spirit typified in ſeven ſons. Good Angels, and evill, alwayes about us.

2 8 The greatneſſe of Jobs ſufferings, in nine particulars.

10 Conſiderations to make us patient in ſuffering.

17 The duty of friends to their friends.

22 Temptations after temptations to be expected. Temptations by vices, ſeeming vertues.

3 1 The impatience of the beſt in extream ſufferings. The whole time of this world ſet forth by a day.

26 Good men being great, abuſe not their power. Job in his temptations a figure of Chriſt.

4 1 Of hypocrites, the properties.

7 Of the ſayings of Jobs friends, what to be thought.

12 Againſt the upſtart teachers of theſe times.

13 The Angels charged with folly, who.

11 Of hereticks, the properties, revelation preferred.

5 1 Againſt calling upon Saints departed.

3 Againſt envy, a remedy.

5 The ſimple fed, and the witty emptied

23 To be at peace with the ſtones, what.

6 3 The wrath of God intollerable.

4 Againſt deſpairing through temptation.

7 5 Man here, as a ſepulchre, an hireling, a ſervant.

7 How Job ſaith, mine eye ſhall no more ſee good.

11 Sorrow for ſin without healing.

12 The wicked as ſea, the devill a whale.

13 Dreams ſome from God, ſome from the devill.

20 Job confeſſeth his ſins, and pleadeth patience.

8 8 Wiſdome with the ancient.

9 2 Anſwering one of a thouſand, what.

7 Of the Stars, Orion, Arcturus and Pleiades.

11 God alwayes inviſibly neare us.

30 The beſt not perfectly clean.

10 9 Of the Pleiades, Orion, and Arcturus, the myſtery.

34 The myſtery of Eliſha, and his ſtaffe, and ſervant.

11 11 The ſpirituall Gods ſpeciall work a ſupply of grace alwaies.

12 The faithfull more confirmed by ſufferings.

11 2 Uſing many words, lying, and proud ſpeaking, ſins. All manner of evill ſpeaking of the beſt.

12 Man as a wilde Aſſe-colt, wherein.

13 Foure things to be done to ingratiate a mans ſelf with God.

18 The godly dig about them, how.

20 The intentions of the wicked periſh in death.

12 2 Mocking at others, ſinfull, or good.

13 3 To hear, and not to underſtand, to turne vaine.

7 We muſt not invent lyes for Gods glory.
19 The blameleſſeneſſe of the juſtified. The juſtified acknowledge their ſinnes of thoughts.
20 Two things make a man without fear.
27 All our doings marked by God.
14 5 The time of a mans life determined by God.
10 The juſt man dying, ſhall riſe againe.
13 Limbus Patrum without ground.
15 16 Againſt the Papiſts arguing from antiquity.
17 How to know certainly what is truth.
26 A deſcription of tyrannicall oppreſſors.
16 5 Hearers how diverſly to bee dealt withall.
19 God and all things witneſſe for the righteous.
17 8 To judge others for afflictions, ſhews an hypocrite.
18 4 Roman Catholicks the greater hereticks.
14 Job a type of Chriſt in the Iews ſtrangeneſſe towards him
23 In the Reſurrection what bodies men ſhall have.
20 12 Sin ſweet to the ſinner ſhall be caſt up againe.
16 Againſt the wicked that remember Sermons.
19 No unjuſt gaine laſting.
25 The judgements that ſhall befall hypocrites.
21 13 Sudden death to the wicked and the righteous.
17 The wickeds ſufferings here are but a part of their ſufferings
22 15 The old way of the wicked, what. How the wicked are cut off before their time.
19 The righteous laugh, and yet mourne for ſins.
30 The works of man how his, and how Gods.
24 2 Noveliſts and Papiſts remove the land-marks.
5 The Eremitical life cenſured.
19 To ſuch as burn in hell no cooling.
24 Of tyrants, the great cruelty.
25 3 In heaven amongſt Gods hoſts all concord.
26 4 Three words in hebrew to ſet forth Spirit.
5 Of the deſtruction of Kings. Tyrants by their owne people.
8 Preachers as clouds, diſtilling doctrine as raine.
9 In darkneſſe we are whilſt in this life, heaven is hidden.
27 6 Lifting up hands and heart, what. Betwixt the wicked and unrighteous the difference.
19 Againſt gatherers of Churches.
28 12 Theodoricus an example for Princes.
13 Theodoſius likewiſe as Job.
15 In Judges the properties required.
4 To have Gods Law in the heart.
6 Preachers to have liberal maintenance.
8 Some old men as children. The benefit of Church-diſcipline.
14 To live in any ſinne, to be naked in part.
15 The Almſ-giver, but the good to be accepted of. The Gentile blinde, and the Jew lame. To give to the poore in fatherly love. Governours to uſe helps in things out of their element.
28 1 Of Gods judgements upon the juſt, the cauſe hidden.
17 Who cannot finde Wiſdome.
15 Chriſts wiſdome to us, not Angels or Saints.
28 Of true wiſdome a deſcription.
29 12 Preaching ought to bee deliberate.
25 In Preachers muſt bee both lenity, and ſerenity.
30 1 Popery no old, but a young Religion.
3 Againſt Papiſts and Sectaries.
31 8 The evil caſe of Preachers that be wicked.

15 Of humility the neceſsity.
21 For ſuch as prevaile at Law, direction.
26 Looking at the ſhining Sun, or Moon, what.
28 To be vain-glorious, to deny God.
34 To confeſſe our ſinnes publickly.
38 Againſt Paſtors that neglect to teach.
32 Of Elihu figuring out the learned, but proud.
9 Of the proud and vain-glorious, four ſorts.
33 14 God ſpeaks, how, and he altereth not.
15 Of Gods revealing his will to us in dreams.
19 Reformation wrought by afflictions, the allegory.
23 Chriſt the one Interpreter of a thouſand.
27 Who are truely penitent, and who not. To confeſſe our ſins, to be delivered from death.
29 Through three perplexities we are brought to heaven.
34 7 The good Preacher is not altogether in reproof, but commends things commendable.
23 How a man ſhould judge himſelfe, not to be judged.
30 Wicked Kings ſet up for the peoples wickedneſſe.
35 8 Man cannot profit, or hurt God, but himſelfe.
9 Oppreſſors of conſciences, and corruptors, greateſt oppreſſors, 12 Perſecutors why proſpered, and cryers ſtill oppreſſed.
37 6 Of ſnow the wonderfull things obſcured.
38 3 God queſtioneth, and man anſwereth three wayes.
9 Perſecutors as the raging ſea, they go no further then God wils
14 Man baſe by his fall to that he was made.
39 8 To be mortified to worldly deſires, is to be free.
9 No Chriſtians Eremites in Tertullians time.
13 The Oſtrich an admirable bird. The difference between a hypocrite, and the truly godly.
14 Of careleſſe Miniſters, the cenſure, and of parents.
18 Hypocrites wanting power, humble, but lifted up by power.
40 15 Of the Elephant, the deſcription
24 The devill ſet forth by Behemoth, beaſts. Wicked men like unto him; Beaſts of divers ſorts.
41 1 Of Leviathan ſetting forth the Devill.
13 Of the Whale, the properties.
15 Hearts hardened againſt teaching, as devils ſcales.
42 8 Sinnes done ignorantly veniable.
15 Males ſhall have inheritances in heaven, as well as females.
16 The world to continue after the Iews converſion 140 years.

PSALMES.

Pſ. V.
Pref. THe excellency and multiplicity of matter in them.
1 1 Three degrees of wickedneſſe, thinking, acting, cuſtome.
2 11 Reverence to be uſed in the ſervice of God.
3 2 Chriſt ſleeping by death, and riſing againe.
4 2 They are heavy-hearted that truſt not to Chriſts merits only.
5 The ſacrifice of the righteous, only accepted of.
7 1 Cuſh the ſon of Jemini, who.
4 In what caſe a man may imprecate himſelfe.
12 Gods armes againſt the wicked both far and near.
8 2 A propheſie of Chriſts glorification by children.
5 Chriſt over all things, how.
9 1 Of ſpiritual enemies ſubdued by Chriſts death. Pſal. 10. made one by Vulg. with Pſal. 9. whereby cometh one ſhort in all the Pſalmes following.
11 3 Of Churches gatherers, Aug. deſcription.

13 7 Chriſt poore, and deſpiſed, yet bringing ſalvation.
15 2 True Religion judged chiefly by the ſecond Table.
4 The perſon of a King, though for ſin, not to be contemned. Whether all oaths ought to be kept, and promiſes?
16 2 Chriſts goodneſſe extending to the Saints. None are faithfull, but they are Saints.
4 The Gentiles converſion from ſerving Idols propheſied of.
10 By the ſoul not left in Sheol, what meant.
17 15 Of ſeeing God in his image.
18 26 The Lord ſaid to be perverſe, or froward, how.
43 Of the converſion of the Gentiles to Chriſt.
19 7 To beleeve above that which we can finde a reaſon for.
8 Precepts, Statutes, Teſtimony, and Law, all one.
12 All have errours of life, none perfect.
20 1 A Propheſie of Chriſt heard, and his Church exults.
22 1 A Propheſie of Chriſts crying out upon the croſſe.
2 Of his praying the night before his Paſsion.
4 Chriſt more deſpiſed then ever any man was.
12 The Prieſts, Scribes, and Phariſes, as Buls, Lions, and Dogs.
13 The piercing of Chriſts hands and feet.
21 Of Chriſt his Reſurrection.
26 Of eating the Lords body under the Goſpel. The charity then to be exerciſed towards the poore.
29 As the poore received the Goſpel firſt, ſo the rich ſhall doe.
24 1 The converſion of the Gentiles propheſied of.
6,7 Chriſt's aſcenſion into heaven, propheſied of.
26 6 Other mens ſins hinder not us from the Lords Table.
28 4 In praying againſt any, a rule.
29 3 By the thunder one turned from his ſins.
9 Of ſaying Glory to the Father, Sonne, and Holy Ghoſt, the ground.
30 1 Of the Dedication of houſes new built.
5 Sufferings here counted light by the godly, wherefore.
12 A mouth praiſing God, mans glory, & contra.
31 5 The fear of God, the ground of fearleſſeneſs in death.
6 Truſting to worldly things, truſting to vanities.
19 Gods goodneſſe towards ſuch as fear him, hidden yet.
32 1 Iuſtice onely imputative, yet none living in ſin, juſt.
9 Two impediments of profiting by hearing.
33 2 Of muſicke joyned to ſinging in Gods worſhip.
36 1 Wicked workes ſhew a wicked heart.
4 Betwixt them that fear God, and not, differences.
37 16 Righteous mens little, better then the wickeds much, why.
25 The children of the righteous not beggered by their charity.
38 16 Laughing at other mens miſhaps.
39 5 To know our end a thing to bee deſired.
10 A ground of patience in ſuffering.
40 2 Of the Gentiles converſion.
40 6 Of the aboliſhing of legall ſacrifices. Chriſt the onely ſin-expiating-ſacrifice.
41 1 Chriſt the poor man here ſpoken of.
7 Of the conſpiracy againſt Chriſt, and his taking up to glory. See alſo 42. Of the whole Booke of the Pſalmes five parts.
42 Good ſonnes of wicked Parentage.
1 Of the Harts thirſtineſſe, the cauſe, a Serpent.
7 The deep of the New Teſtament, and Old Teſtament anſwer one another.
44 19 Of the ſhadow of death.
13 Of Gods ſleeping, and not ſleeping.
45 3 The fall of Idolatry propheſied of.

17 Church-lands how to be imployed.
16 Biſhops as Princes in al lands.
46 4 Chriſt, and his Spirit, a Propheſie.
9 Of the univerſal peace in Chriſts time.
48 9 In any place God is now to bee prayed unto.
49 5 Of the heel, the divers ſignifications.
15 Of redemption from death, the morning of the reſurrection.
50 Of the Goſpel going out from Zion, a Propheſie.
3 Of Chriſts coming to judgement.
5 Jews called Saints for being in Covenant.
51 5 How the ſoul comes into the child.
11 The Spirit as fire under aſhes, ſometime in the faithfull. After repentance no renewing more by repentance.
52 4 No man in ſpeaking the truth, may lye.
54 1 Sinners no children of God, but of another family.
55 A Propheſie of diviſions about Chriſt, and of Iudas.
17 Of prayer three times a day.
23 How the wicked live not halfe their daye.
56 Chriſt and his Church propheſied of.
57 9 The converſion of the Gentiles to the faith.
58 4 The Adders deafneſſe and poyſon, how great. Of incantations, and their force.
59 5 Of Chriſts enemies purſuing him like dogs, a Propheſie.
65 15 The Iewes ſufferings for crucifying Chriſt.
12 Preaching ſet forth by water and corne.
66 1 Of the converſion of the Gentiles, a Propheſie.
8 Of ſuffering by Martyrs, a Propheſie.
67 A Propheſie of Chriſt, and of all bleſſed in him.
68 1 Of Chriſts powerfull reſurrection, a Propheſie.
11 Of the great company of Preachers under the Goſpel.
13 Of the ſufferings and delivery of the Church.
24 Of the rejoycing to be at Chriſts birth. The calling of the Apoſtles, propheſied of.
69 1 Of Chriſts Paſſions, a Propheſie.
20 Not to fear to dye for righteouſneſſe.
71 1 2 3 Of Chriſts reſurrection after his Paſſion.
72 5 Better to have a tyrant, then one ſuffering ſin.
15 Of praying in Chriſts name.
73 How ſome deny providence, worſhipping fortune.
20 The wicked delighted in riches, as in a dream.
74 Of the deſtruction of the Temple, a Propheſie.
75 1 Of Chriſts coming to judgement.
4 Two things deſtructive, wickedneſſe and pride.
78 32 &c. The myſteries of the plagues of Egypt.
65 The ſubduing of the Turke, and all to the Goſpel.
83 12 Againſt turning Gods houſe to prophane uſes.
85 10 Righteouſneſſe and peace inſeparable.
87 4 Of the birth of Chriſt in Zion, and of Chriſtians.
88 1 In time of affliction, to pray, and truſt in God.
89 7 Of the amplitude of Chriſts Kingdome.
90 This Pſalme made by Moſes, and when.
91 7 How the plague comes not nigh the faithfull.
93 Propheſie of Chriſts reigning gloriouſly on earth.
96 13 Chriſts firſt and ſecond coming Propheſied of.
And againe 97.
97 2 Chriſt hidden to them that periſh.
7 Of the falling of Idols under the Goſpel.
11 The bleſſing to come to the righteous hidden.
99 1 Of the tumults and troubles at Chriſts coming.
100 We are made new creatures, meerly of grace.
102 23 None cut off before their time appointed.
104 4 Of the Creation of Angels, omitted Gen. 1.

30 Spirits of all creatures by Maniches held parts of God.

107 3 Of the calling of the Gentiles, the Jewes rejected. Of Gods providence in all places, arguments.

4,6,5,&c. Gods proceedings in converting ſoules and ſaving.

104 1 A Propheſie, Judas the traytor, and malicious Jews.

27 Chriſt ſuffered by the will of God.

10 2 They are no good Chriſtians that ſerve God by conſtraint, or ſerving him, live wickedly.

7 Chriſts ſufferings propheſied of by a ſimilitude of drinking.

116 16 Scripture abuſed by a drunkard, and he lamented.

116 9 None perfect without infirmities in this life.

118 20 Chriſt the door, but by him onely the juſt enter.

27 The feaſt of Chriſts nativity pointed at.

127 2 The faithfull provided for without toyling.

6 To have ſpiritual children, the greateſt bleſſing, and a name written in heaven.

130 1 No praying for ſouls in Purgatory implyed here.

3 In forgiveneſſe, not our merit, lyes our comfort.

133 2 The love of Fryers ſhames the love amongſt others.

134 1 Three things in thoſe that can praiſe God acceptably.

138 4 The converſion of the Gentiles figured in Gideons fleece.

139 21 Of Saints the innumerable company.

141 5 The reproofes of the juſt, though ſharp, as oyle.

146 2, 3, &c. Ten Cauſes of praiſing God enumerated.

147 Seven cauſes more.

147 9 The Ravens young miraculouſly fed. The myſtery of the Ravens crying to God.

16 Of the ſnow, froſt, and ice, the myſtery.

148 3 Angels ſtirred up to praiſe for the Goſpel.

149 8 Converting Nobles, called binding.

PROVERBS.

C. V.

1 1 ALL the Proverbs reduced to Common-places.

2 Underſtanding and inſtruction, what. Betwixt wiſdome and prudence, the difference.

4 Who the ſimple be, and who the ſubtle.

5 What need we have; yea all, even the old, to learn alwayes.

7 How God is to be feared, that we may be wiſe. Feare filial begun in ſervile.

9 Many reaſons of childrens obeying mothers.

11 Foule wickedneſſes ſhall be diſcovered.

12,13,14. Enticements to evil confuted.

20 Covetouſneſſe, and every foule ſin, is unto death. When faithfull Preachers ſpeake, Wiſdome ſpeaketh.

22 Simple ones, ſcorners, and fools uncapable of good.

23 Turning from ſin, goes before ſaving knowledge. Such ſhall have the Spirit to keep them from crime.

24 Four wayes of Gods ſtretching out his hands.

2 2 By what meanes knowledge may be attained. Who can cry for it, and who not.

4 Digging for wiſdome in our owne ground.

8 Betwixt way and path, the difference.

11,12 Two ſorts of evill men to bee taken heed of.

3 10 Of paying tythes under the Goſpel

14 Faith and wiſdome, the greateſt of all riches.

2 15 Hereticke-teachers, commonly evill livers, the danger of ſuch. The crookedneſſe of evill wayes, and the end thereof.

19 Seldome any whoremonger turneth. Temptation by a whoriſh riſh woman, of what force. From an Whore to an Idolater, an allegory.

20 To follow the examples of the beſt, a ſheeps part.
22 The inheritance of the wicked from the devill.
3 3 Mercy and truth what, they muſt both be in us.
3 5 Not to truſt to a mans own underſtanding in divine things.
8 To fear God health, not to feare, dangerous.
19 Gods wiſdome in making the heavens, how many they be.
27 Againſt hindring from good temporall or ſpiritual.
29 The danger of enemies ſeeming friends.
31 The proſperity of wicked ſheweth a judgement to come.
34 The praiſe of humility, contrary, of ſcornfull pride.
35 The proud of their riches fools.
22 &c. The great benefits of wiſdome five.
4 3 Solomon the youngeſt of four ſons of Bathſhebah. In youth inſtructions make impreſſions, as waxe.
5 Wiſdome not attained without buying.
8 The way to bring wiſdome to us.
18 The righteous walke in light, the wicked in darkneſſe.
20 The benefit of daily reading the Scriptures.
23 Touching the keeping of the heart, notable things.
25 To look and go right on, what.
27 To turne neither to the right or left hand, what.
5 11 12 The dangerouſneſſe of harlots companies ſet forth.
15 16 &c. Of the love between man and wife.
6 2 What ſuretiſhip to take heed of. The ſuretiſhip of a Preacher.
6 What particular things to bee learned of a Piſmire.
15 Of winking with the eyes, divers ſignifications.
16 The hatefulneſſe of diſſention-makers amongſt brethren.
27 Arguments to diſſwade from looking upon a woman.
32 Againſt adultery, it is worſe then theft. Yet theft in the pooreſt, is ſinfull and deſtructive.
33 The puniſhment of adultery, death.
7 4 Between the eye and minde, the ſimilitude, in four things.
26 To keep company with light women, dangerous.
8 8 7 &c. The excellency of the word of God.
1 8 13 The evils hated by them that fear God.
14 Four ſorts of Rulers rule by Chriſt. Chriſt the wiſdome, being counſel, eſſence, underſtanding and ſtrength.
17 To get wiſdome, a man muſt love wiſdome.
9 1 Seven pillars of wiſdomes houſe, ſeven liberall Sciences.
2 Wiſdomes feaſt, that Matth. 22. wine mingled or wine poured out.
8 Of reproving ſcorners, their caſe ſet forth by compariſons.
13 Antichriſt ſet forth by the clamorous woman. Of ſimple ones there are two ſorts.
10 1 A ſon wiſe, or fooliſh, what his education ſhould be.
2 Riches of iniquity, ſo called.
4 The evils that come by idleneſſe.
6 Juſt commendations of the dead, not to be concealed.
8 Againſt ſuch as too ſoon preſſe into the Pulpit.
9 A well meaning man needs fear nothing, but the deceitfull may.
12 10 Of conniving at the ſins of children, or ſervants, the puniſhment.
12 How love covereth ſins, and what ſins.
14 To preach and write both, moſt profitable.
16 Of husbandry, the praiſe above trading.
19 20 Three vices of the tongue, and three commendations. Good ſpeeches compared unto ſilver, why.
21 Riches well got, are without ſorrow.
25 The prayers of the righteous, how far forth granted.
32 Why good words are called fruits, or parturitions.

11 10 Joy for the fall of the wicked, when good.

11 29 Againſt harſhneſſe in parents.

30 To heare Sermons, to eate of the tree of life.

12 4 Of the vertuous woman the praiſe, and contrary.

5 A judgement ſeat within every man.

10 Cruelty the character of a wicked man.

11 The doers of vaine exerciſes rejected. Husbandry and Merchandize compared. Againſt any one living in idleneſſe.

18 Againſt falſe witneſſes, and what witneſſes to be heard.

21 The juſt exempt from all evill.

27 Goods ill gotten, ſoone loſt againe.

13 7 Some rich, poor, and poor, rich:

8 Of riches, and poverty, commodities, and diſcommodities.

10 Strife about religion how appeaſed.

23 Of good Husbandry the great increaſe.

14 1 Good Huſwifery in women commended.

6 Againſt deferring of repentance.

9 Againſt rejoycing in ſin.

12 Good ſucceſſe proves not a mans way to be good.

15 Such as turne into new wayes, fooles.

24 Worldly goods, to ſome a crown.

27 None ſo valliant as he that fears God.

29 Of a wiſe man the embleme.

39 Againſt deſpiſing of the poore.

15 2 Againſt, and for eloquence in preaching.

19 Teaching evill to evil teachers three wayes.

14 Four ſorts of men likened to four, things.

15 Happines and unhappineſſe ſtands not in worldly things.

26 Againſt evill thoughts, they are abomination.

16 1 Gods aſſiſtance neceſſary in preaching.

2 To do good, and that with a good heart.

11 Some inſpirations in Kings, that ſeek the truth.

12 Such Kings ſit ſure, and are to be obeyed.

31 The old being righteous, venerable, & contra.

32 The praiſe of the patient, he is a King.

33 Of lots, lawfull and unlawfull.

17 7 Kings, above all others, muſt bee true of their word.

8 Againſt Judges taking of bribes.

13 Six degrees of goodneſſe.

16 A rich man a foole, that gives not gold for learning.

17 A true friend in adverſity, a brother.

18 1 In making freindſhip a caveat.

15 Of what force gifts are.

17 To confeſſe our unworthineſſe the way to be juſtified.

19 Unity amongſt brethren commended.

22 Betwixt a wife good and bad the difference.

19 2 Of knowledge the commendation, and againſt ignorance.

3 Conſtellations at ones birth, not the cauſe of evill,

17 Lending to the Lord implyes not a reward merited.

22 A poore man preferred before a lyar, though rich.

23 Of fearing God, three benefits.

25 To beware of other mens harms.

27 Not to heare ſuch as teach errours.

20 5 To hearken to, and learne of the learned.

8 Good Rulers are to heare cauſes themſelves.

9 A Boy ſhewing cruelty, puniſhed with death

12 An eare to heare is of God, not of 2 man.
1 Parents not to give away Lands before death.

22 Againſt revenging meditations.

25 Againſt Tithes taking away, or altering.

27 The Lord hath all things.

21 1 Kings turned from perſecuting Saints, to favour them.

4 Good things done by the wicked are ſins in them.

6 Of Lyars there are foure ſorts.

16 Of him that erreth from the truth, the danger.

22 In Warre, wiſdome is more then ſtrength.

22 1 The fourfold good that comes of a good name.

3 Of flying in time of perſecution, or plague.

5 The dangers of the wicked ſet forth by thorns and ſnares.

6 The rich abuſing his power over the poore, ſhall loſe it.

12 The Scriptures, the rule of righteouſneſſe, preſerved by God.

16 To give to the rich a fault, as well as to oppreſſe the poor.

17 To hear, and improve the word heard rightly.

21 A new exhortation to hearken to the charge of a father to his ſon.

23 1 Againſt gluttony and drunkenneſſe.

5 Goods ill gotten conſume all the reſt, as Eagles feathers.

8 At feaſts, all the talke not to bee merry, but ſome ſerious.

23 The truth how to bee bought and not ſold.

33 The evils of drunkenneſſe ſeven.

24 7 Neither the covetous, nor proud can be wiſe.

12 As men deale by others, ſo ſhall it be done to them.

13 The word and honey compared together.

15 The righteous by being caſt down, more ſtrengthened.

17 18 At the fall of the wicked to rejoyce, and to feare.

22 Againſt being given to change the King or Judge.

24 Righteouſneſſe in Judges praiſed by all men.

25 1 Many things of God hidden from us.

4 Wicked men put from about Kings.

12 Of what grace he is that heareth reproofe.

16 A falſe witneſſe as an arrow, maule, and ſword, why.

20 As Vinegar, and Nitre, the unfaithfull in time of trouble.

25 The word, as good news, refreſhing the thirſty.

27 To ſeek a mans owne, or the glory of others.

28 Licentious practice, and other ſinnes, lay one open to dangers, as a City, the wals broken down.

26 1 The evill that comes by honouring the wicked, or fooliſh, v.8.

16 The lyer in bed, conceited of his owne wiſdom in thus doing.

23 Under the colour of faire ſpeeches to make controverſie.

27 1 Againſt deferring repentance.

3 Between anger, wrath, and envy, the difference.

5 Reproofe better then flattery.

8 The danger of one going from his calling.

10 Old friends, and near dwelling, better then brethren.

14 Not to be puft up with friends praiſes.

17 Love unites friends, and the married, though ſometime falling out.

18 The diligence of ſervants about their maſters buſineſſe, their benefit.

19 The word as a glaſſe, wherein ones heart may be ſeen.

21 A man being praiſed, is tryed and ſhineth.

26 Paſtors ought to looke into the ſtate of their people.

28 5 The righteous underſtand all things, the wicked not.

7 Rich men wicked, not better then the poore godly.

8 What uſury is not and what it is.

12 Men tryed in time of wicked Rulers.

16 Profit the loadſtone of mens affections towards Prince or Prieſt.

24 Againſt children robbing their parents.

26 He that thinks he is ſo wiſe, that he needs no counſel, is a foole.

29 4 A good King the ſtability of the land.

6 The wicked as a bird in a ſnare, the juſt as one ſinging.

8 The people mutining againſt the Senate, appeaſed, how.

9 Of a fools behaviour, a wiſe man weary.

11 Againſt telling all that a man thinketh. Againſt raſh putting of ones ſelfe forth at the firſt.

12 It is as bad to hear lyes, and tales, as to tell them.

13 How God inlightens the ſimple, and cunning one.

16 The increaſe and growth of ſins, as ſinners multiply.

27 The wicked hated of the juſt, how

30 1 Agur the ſon of Jakey, Ithiel and Ucal, why Salomon is called.

4 A propheſie of the ſon of God. The myſtery of the Trinity. Salomon upon his repentance reſtored, if theſe were his words, as is moſt probable, and therefore I retract that, 1 King. 11.

30 6 The word of God pure, nothing to be added to it.

7,8 The ſins of the rich, and of the poore.

10 Againſt exaſperating the rich, againſt the poore.

15,16, In two things, the covetous the Horſleeches two daughters. Of the covetous there are four ſorts.

17 The Church or Preacher as thy mother, the Word as thy father, not to be for any thing mocked therefore.

20 Incontinencies, though unſeen of men, knowne to God.

21 Againſt the pride of Subjects reigning as Kings. The intemperance of the rich and full. A womans uſurping over her Husband, the pride of a Maid marryed to her Maſter.

23 The fleſh prevailing againſt the ſpirit, as a ſervant ruling. A ſenſuall King, or following the counſell of the worſt. A Commonwealth, hating and rejecting her King.

25 As the Piſmire, to labour, and in time, and for the ſoule. Faith in Chriſt, unity in heart, and skill commended to us in the Conyes, Locuſts, and Spiders.

29 Wiſdome and courage commended to us in the truth.

31 4 Againſt drunkennes, and drinking wine in Princes, Miniſters, Maſters, and all others in their youth.

6 Wine to be given to cheare the heavy hearted.

15 Againſt womens lying in bed long, and idleneſſe.

23 Rich Apparrell may be uſed by Magiſtrates. Faith and charity a double cloathing.

ECCLESIASTES.

C.V.

1 2 WHy all things, good at the firſt, are called vaine.

3 Labour vaine, and profitable.

4 The Earth how ſaid to continue for ever.

5 Mans birth and death ſet forth by the Sun.

8 A Philoſopher, whence hee had his name. Felicity ſtands not in all knowledge here.

9 Of Gods making more worlds, divers conjectures.

18 By knowledge ſorrow increaſed, how.

2 13 The wiſe and fool that dye alike, who.

3 18 Man like a beaſt in five things. The wicked onely dye as beaſts.

21 The immortality of the ſoule,

4 4 What living men, worſe then the dead. An enumeration of ten vanities.

9 Of the marryed eſtate, the comfort. Of concord amongſt brethren, the force.

13 Of Fooliſh Kings coming to miſery, ſome low ones advanced.

5 5 Vowing not unlawfull under the new Teſtament.

7 The mouth cauſing ſinne three wayes,

11 Increaſing of worldly goods, no benefit.

13 Of the rich, the danger.

6 3 To want a buriall according to ones quality.

9 Againſt new revelations or lights

7 1 The happineſſe of the dead in the Lord.

2 What ſorrow commendable, & why.

9 The former times better then theſe,

12 Againſt giving to be prayed for after death.

15 Righteous men much, who are.

17 A very few righteous either men or women.

8 1 To know the interpretation of the Scriptures, wiſdome.

2 Againſt tyranny in Kings, and rebellion in Subjects.

12 Sinners living is nothing, they are dead.

14 Comforts of the righteous ſuffering.

9 1 Salvation not uncertaine to him that ſhall be ſaved.

10 Not to deferre receiving the Lords Supper.

17 Moderate ſpeaking more effectuall then loud.

10 5 The wiſe as Princes, the fooliſh as ſervants.

9 Kings how they bring ruine upon themſelves.

11 By back-biting, three hurt at once.

14 Our words ſhould be few, of ſpeaking two rules.

20 Great ſinnes ſtrangely revealed, though ſecret.

11 1 Almes to be given to whom, and to whom not.

3 Miniſters as clouds ſending down raine.

12 2 Old men want light to ſee the narrow way of life.

9 Teaching by writing as well as ſpeaking.

CANTICLES.

C.V.

2 15 Hereticks incorrigible to bee baniſhed.

3 4 To go to Church, to finde Chriſt, neceſſary. The Jewes ſhall be converted by the Gentiles.

7 The ſafety of every faithfull perſon.

4 1 The Church of the Jewes converted moſt glorious. Whether womens haire may be ſeen or not. What hearers are the Miniſters ſhame.

7 The faithfull without any ſpot, how ſaid to be.

8 The Churches deliverance from heathen perſecutors, and popiſh, propheſied of.

13 Adding to the Church a reſtoring to paradiſe.

16 The ſpirit of God both as the north and ſouth wind.

5 6 To defer repentance dangerous to the beſt.

7 Sinners to ſuffer by Church cenſures.

10 Chriſt ſaid to be white & red, why

12 The Scriptures full, and all-ſufficient alone.

13 The joy that ſhal be at the Jewes converſion.

7 9 Good hearers talke of the Sermon being heard.

10 Of preaching the Goſpell amongſt the Gentiles.

8 6 Of the love of Chriſt, the ſigns.

8 The Americans, and Chinans ſhall be converted.

FINIS.

Pp.7.20

A COMMENTARY Upon all the PROPHETS
BOTH GREAT and SMALL:

Wherein
The divers Tranſlations and Expoſitions both Literal and Myſtical of all the moſt famous Commentators both Ancient and Modern are propounded, examined and cenſured, for the ſingular benefit of all that be ſtudious of the HOLY SCRIPTURES.

By JOHN MAYER Doctor of Divinity.

2 PET. 1. 19, 20.

We have alſo a more ſure word of Prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that ſhineth in a dark place, untill the day dawn, and the day-ſtar ariſe in your hearts: Knowing this firſt, that no Prophecy of the Scripture is of any private Interpretation.

LONDON,
Printed by Abraham Miller and Ellen Cotes, 1652.

~~Pp. 7 20~~
29.4.21

ROBERTUS METCALFE
S. T. D.
Vir pius, doctus, integerrimus,
Beverléæ in Brigantibus ortus, Hujus Collegii quondam Socius:

Indè
Linguæ Sanctæ Profeſſor publicus: Tandem Collegii Trinitatis Promagiſter:

Bibliothecæ huic inſtruendæ Centum libras Teſtamento reliquit, quibus empti, Hic & Alii.
Anno Dom. 1653.

Collegium Sancti Iohannis Evangelistæ in Academia Cantabrigiensi 1700

TO MY HONOURABLE BRETHREN the Filomathons of the Clergie OF THE CHURCH of ENGLAND.

TO whom can the Prophets more properly belong then to the ſons of the Prophets, the Lords Clergie, or choſen ſingularly from amongſt many Brethren, to miniſter immediately to him in his Sanctuary? But if the Reader ſhall marvel, why I put this Title (My Brethren) upon you, I would wiſh him to have recourſe to 1 Tim.5.17. The Presbyters or Elders that rule well are worthy of double honour, eſpecially they labouring in the Word and Doctrine, μάλιϛα οἱ κοπιῶντες ἐν λόγῳ ϗ διδασκαλίᾳ, although the world now ſaith, the moſt contemptible of all other ſorts of men; and ſome moſt audacious Prognoſticators of late, call them a company of prating Prieſts, and an Antichriſtian Miniſtery, becauſe exclaiming againſt their Heatheniſh Aſtrological Art, by all the moſt godly and learned Theologues that ever have written, and cried down as Ars nugatoria, becauſe the main ground hereof, the Poſition of the heavenly Bodies in their various Aſpects and Houſes, is only imaginary. And Aſtrologers never hear or reade any thing ſpoken well, but alwayes ill of them by the Prophets of old, whoſe word we know, is a ſure word, whatſoever the Aſtrologer boaſtingly prateth of his being for his skill of more worth then all Sion-Coledg, but they ſhall one day anſwer to God for this their Rabſhakeh-like language againſt his Angels; whenas Michael the Archangel durſt not bring a railing accuſation againſt that evil Angel the Devil of hell, as Jude teſtifieth. And for the Commonalty of this Land, who joyn in the ſame ſinne, as they are blindely lead by a new generation of Preachers, I would wiſh them to look into 2 Chron.36.15,16. where the miſerable end to which the Jews came by the Caldees is aſcribed to this, That they mocked Gods meſſengers, and deſpiſed his words, &c. But to return to the Text alledged, hereby it is manifeſt, that ſuch as vilifie the Miniſtry of Chriſt, as hath been ſaid, or combine together againſt them to deprive them of their dues, oppoſe God in his Word, ſtanding for the honouring of them with double honour, which what is it, but The honour of eſtimation as it is ſet forth, 1 Theſ.5.13. That ye highly eſteem of them that labour in the Lord for their works ſake. 2. The honour of maintenance, as in the next verſe, Thou ſhalt not muzzle the mouth of the Ox that treadeth out the corn; and the labourer is worthy of his hire; whereby if it ſhall be thought ſome ſtipend only can hence be proved to be due unto them, this is checked Gal.6.6. Let him that is inſtructed make him that inſtructs him partaker, or communicate to him in all good things; and if in all, then ſurely he that imparts but a little towards the rai-

Culpep.per Lilly.

2 Pet.1.19

Jude epiſt.

ſing of a mean ſtipend, fulfilleth not Gods will; but if he giveth Tithe of all his increaſe, as God of old ordained it ſhould be done to the Levites, which ſerved at the Altar, he doth fulfill it, as may alſo be further gathered from 1 Cor.9.13. as they that ſerve at the Altar partake of the Altar, and they that miniſter about holy things live of the Temple; ſo God hath ordained, that they who preach the Goſpel ſhould live of the Goſpel, which is a compariſon added to many others made before taken from Oxen, Souldiers and Husbandmen, Shepherds, Herdſmen and Planters, leſt it ſhould be thought, that as all theſe have ſtipends for their labour; ſo nothing elſe is hereby meant, but that Preachers of the Goſpel ſhould have ſtipends; but that it was not neceſſary to give them Tithes, as the Levites of old had: for againſt this it is ſaid, as they, ſo theſe muſt live of Tithes and Offerings; for why doth the Apoſtle add this compariſon to all the reſt, but particularly to denote, what the Preachers maintenance ought to be, of which he had ſpoken before only in general? And if yet there be any doubt hereof, conſult with Heb.7.4,6. where Abraham the father of the faithful is ſaid to have given Tithe to Melchiſedeck the Prieſt of the most high God, thus doing him the greateſt honour that could be, as hereby intimating, that he was greater then he; and that being by him bleſſed after that he had done ſo, he was bleſſed indeed, and in his example teaching all the children of Abraham that would be bleſſed to do likewiſe, and ſo is confirmed that of Mal.3.8,9,10. Bring all your tithes into my houſe, and I will pour out a bleſſing without meaſure, &c. And how a Nation ſhould look for Gods bleſſing, and not rather for his curſe, as is there ſaid, that takes Tithes away, I cannot tell. In Germany and the Palatinate, what judgements followed after the taking away of them, who is ſuch a ſtranger in Iſrael as that he knoweth not, although Miniſters had good ſtipends allowed them? For if part goeth to other men, as it muſt, if put into Treaſurers hands, and leſſe be paid then the full value to Gods choſen Tribe, God is robbed of part, and his Ordinance is tranſgreſſed, Lev.27.31 which is, that if any man would redeem his Tithe, he muſt adde a fifth part thereunto. Laſtly for further proof, that the old Ordinance of God herein is ſtill of force, appears, becauſe that when all Ordinances ceremonial are ſhewed under the Goſpel to be repealed, Circumciſion, ſacrificing, divers waſhings, counting ſome meats unclean, and Sabbath-dayes; nothing is ſaid in any place of the repealing the Ordinance of Tithes.

Touching the Elders, ſaid to be worthy of this double honour, they are much miſtaken that from hence infer two ſorts, Ruling Elders, and Preaching Elders; for the very reaſon yielded v.18. ſheweth, that none other Elders are meant but Preachers, becauſe the Church of God was never charged with maintenance giving to any other but them; Neither is it any where ſpoken of the Act.14.23. Chap.6. 1 Tim. 3. Tit.1. ordaining of them, as of preaching Elders, yea and of Deacons alſo; therefore if there had been any ſuch Officers in the Primitive Church appointed by God, the ordaining of them ſhould not have been paſſed over in ſilence any more then of Biſhops and Deacons; ſo that if there were any in after times, as ſome gather SMECTYMNUS out of Ambroſe, they were not ſet up by God, but by men; unleſs it ſhall be thought that Deacons had alſo the name of Elders and Rulers, becauſe they ruled in matters concerning the poor. And thus both the diſtinction of Elders imagined firſt by Calvin, into two ſorts, Ruling and Preaching, is taken away: and 1 Cor.12.28. brought to prove Governments beſides theſe of Paſtors and Teachers, is anſwered, Thoſe Governments were none other but Helps, ſuch as the Deacons were to the Apoſtles and Paſtors, to denote which they are placed laſt of all others, and put to helps by appoſition, as being the ſame. And for Rom. 12. 8. He that giveth, let him do it with ſimplicity; he that ruleth, with diligence; that ſheweth mercy, with chearfulneſs; no other Officer can be found here, but the Deacons, who was made the inſtrument of diſtributing the Churches treaſure to the poor, and ſet to rule over and order them, that every one might work what he or ſhe was able, and none might eat the Churches bread living in idleneſs, which is alſo prohibited, 2 Theſ. 3. 10. and the ſame in doing theſe things faithfully and carefully, are ſaid alſo to ſhew mercy, and theſe now are Overſeers of the poor, being changed often, and made without Ordaining, contrary to the firſt Inſtitution; and the Office of a Deacon, where any ſuch Office is, it is turned into a Degree to the Miniſtry. And thus much touching imaginary ruling Elders, to ſatisfie all that will be ſatisfied.

Matth. 16. 16.
Matth. 18. 18.
Joh. 20. 22

Touching the Preaching, they had both the Keys committed unto them, being the Enſign of Government, and were encouraged in uſing them, and as the ſeventy two Elders joyned of old with Moſes, had ſome of his ſpirit put upon them to inaugurate them to the governing Office, ſo had they when Chriſt breathed upon them, and ſaid, Receive the holy Ghoſt, whoſe ſins ye remit, they are remitted, &c. And therefore not only the prime Preachers, called Apoſtles, but all preaching Elders are called Rulers, Heb. 13. 7, 17, 24. amongſt whom, although ſome may be ſuperiour to others, yet others ought to have a ſtroke in the Government together with them, as Aſſiſtants, otherwiſe how are they called Rulers?

Neh. 8. 8.
2 Tim. 2. 15.

Now for the laſt words, wherein theſe Rulers merit of honour chiefly lieth, chiefly they labouring, or becauſe they labour in the Word and Doctrine, which words if they be ſupplied thus, will make this ſenſe plain, and that one ſort of Presbyters only is ſpoken of, chiefly they are worthy of double honour for their labouring, &c. To labour in the Word, what is it, but in reading to give the true ſenſe of all parts thereof, that the hearer may hear and underſtand the moſt obſcure paſſages thereof, ſo farre forth as any Expoſitors old or new have given light thereunto, or by ſtudy can by the Preacher with their help and prayers be attained? as Ezra is ſaid to have read and given the ſenſe, and Timothy is bidden ſtudy to ſhew himſelf a workman, that needeth not to be aſhamed, dividing the word of truth aright, that is, ſhewing thoſe places to be myſtical that are, and the myſtical ſenſe thereof, and which are to be underſtood according to the letter, which are figurative, and which not, and freeing the truth every where from falſe gloſſes put thereupon, thus giving ſincere milk to nouriſh, and not corrupt to poiſon the hearer. A great and neceſſary task, but for the labour that belongeth to it too commonly bawked: what the excellency of him is that ſtudieth thus to do, yet appeareth by that which is ſaid, Job 33. 23. An Interpreter is one of a thouſand, and therefore this ſhould prick us on to this ſtudy, and to conſtancy herein, and in the practiſing of this faculty I have known ſome to have been theſe many years, but alas they have been, and are ſtill too few even of the learned that labour this way, and ſome without labouring expound ſo, as that it may be ſaid, as good never a whit as never the better. By conſtantly going on in this way in a few years, ye may make your auditours acquainted with the ſenſe of the greateſt part of the Scriptures, which otherwiſe by your Doctrine they ſhall never come to know in all your life time, although ye ſhould attain with Socrates to eighty years of age, or with

Iſocrates to ninety. If it be objected, The Prieſts then did nothing elſe but expound. Sol. If they did not, yet by this place the doing of both is commended to us, and in Chriſts example, Luk.4. and in Peters *Act.*2. and in Pauls Heb.7.8.9.10. To labour in Doctrine, is in raiſing Obſervations out of the Word, firſt expounded, and hence arguing to the convincing of gainſayers, reproving, exhorting, and threatning, and comforting as occaſion ſerves, preferring rather to edifie the hearers hearts, then to tickle their itching ears, not ſparing the greateſt for fear or hope, as the Prophets did, not even Kings or Captains living in ſinne; as the Phyſician to whom the Kings ſon is committed to be cured, ſpareth not to give him bitter pils for any diſpleaſure that he takes thereat: for it is his healing that he intends, and not the pleaſing of him, becauſe that if through any default in him he dieth under his hand, ſuch a Phyſician ſhould incurre the danger of his life; as the King of the Perſians is ſaid to have done to Manes the Authour of the Manichean hereſie, undertaking to heal his ſick ſon by his prayers, who died under his hand: So if the Preacher, the ſpiritual Phyſician, that he may pleaſe and not offend, doth ſo, that any ſon or daughter of the King of Heaven, dieth by his default, he will cut him off as a traitor by a terrible death. And that young Students in Divinity may the more readily attain to the faculty of rightly expounding the holy Scriptures, and other Theologues of more years, who for want of improving their time well hitherto to get this theological knowledge, are too defective herein, might be henceforth furthered more then they could hitherto be by reading any one Author whatſoever upon the whole Book of God, conſiſting of the Old and New Teſtament, I have by Gods ſingular aſſiſtance and enabling me the leaſt of many of my Brethren, done and brought to a full period this great Work, even beyond my ſtrength, being alwaies valetudinarious, travelling herein no leſs then thirty four years. In all which time I have not ſpared for any pains in peruſing all the beſt Expoſitors, both old and new, that have written before me; ſo that I think there is ſcarce any thing of worth in any of them that might make for illumination in every particular that hath eſcaped me. And in this long tract of time, although I have been encountred with a thouſand Headaches, and ſome other grievous maladies, yet I have not been without Joy of the light ariſing and encreaſing in my underſtanding mixed with my ſorrows, and making them to ſeem light unto me. Now what is my requeſt unto you (my learned Brethren) but that none of you would prejudge theſe my Works, as ſome are apt to do, not once vouchſafing to reade them, as deeming them to be ſuch as contain nothing but what they have met withall in other Expoſitors before, for if I had only made a collation of divers, as Marlorat, Lippomannus and Thomas Aquinas have done, Nihil egiſſem, niſi quod prius factum fuiſſet, although to do this by adding more lights alſo, could not but be acceptable for the uſefulneſs of it to the frequent Practitioner in Divinity. But before ye judge reade all or upon ſome Book thorow, and then I doubt not, but that ye will be ſo fully ſatisfi'd and end with ſuch pleaſure-taking herein, that ye will cry out as Bernard touching the holy Scriptures, as they are barely in themſelves, but much more preſented with multifarious Expoſitions, Scientia ſcientiarum omni pane ſuavior, omni melle dulcior, omni vino hilarior.

Now before I conclude, that nothing may be wanting which I have ſince met withall, which might ſeem to enlighten the Reader further in ſome paſſages of the Prophets now ſhortly to be accompliſhed, I have thought good to propound a new Interpretation upon Ezek. 37, 38, 39. of an anonimous Authour, who will have by Gog and Magog, with their innumerable Armies there ſpoken of the Turks and Tartars to be underſtood, as alſo Revel 20. againſt theſe an Army ſhall be raiſed up out of dead and dry bones, ſpoken of Chap. 37. that is, the Jews when they ſhall be converted to Chriſt, which ſhall be within a few years after Romes and the Popes overthrow, which ſhall be Anno Domini 1666. according to Revel. 13. where the number of the Beaſt is ſaid to be 666. the number of a 1000 being cut off for brevities ſake, as we uſe to ſay of the Spaniſh invaſion 1588. 88. and of the Gunpowder treaſon 605, not mentioning the number of 1000, and this is ſaid to be the mark of his name, not only becauſe this Myſtery of iniquity ſhall then have an end, but alſo becauſe it began an. 666, or thereabout, Pope Vitalian ſetting up the Latine Service in all Churches at that time, contrary to 1 Cor. 14. And if the Kingdom of Antichriſt ſhall then have an end, the great offence of the Jews being taken away as it then ſhall, viz. Image-worſhipping, againſt which they have been as zealous ever ſince the Babyloniſh Captivity, as ever they were prone unto it before, it is very probable, that they ſhall ſoon be converted that now live amongſt Chriſtians in theſe Weſtern parts of the world, and not long after all the reſt of the ten Tribes, which were ſometime placed in Haba and Habor of Aſſyria, and in the Cities of the Medes. All of them are ſpoken of as dead and dry bones, becauſe being dead ſo long ago by ſin and infidelity they hitherto continue ſo, for which both Dan. 12. 3. it is ſaid of the Jews, Many of them that ſleep in the duſt ſhall awake; and Paul cals it life from the dead. For the time when this ſhall be, the fore-named Authour out of Grebner the famous Swevian Aſtrologer ſaith, that it ſhall be anno 1679. and anno 1684. then the Jews and Iſraelites ſhall return, and reinhabit the Land of Canaan, their bounds being enlarged more then ever in the time of the greateſt Kings that ever reigned amongſt them, according to all that God promiſed by Moſes, but was not all fulfilled in Joſhuah his time by reaſon of their ſins, but then ſhall according to Obadiah his Prophecy, verſ. 17, 18, 19. &c. Of this their turning alſo ſee Hoſ. 3. 4, 5. Zech. 2. 2, 3, 4. &c. Chap. 14. 7, 8, 9. &c. to the end, Mich. 7. 15, 16, 17. Iſa. 2. 2. and of the houſe of God then to be re-built farre greater, implying larger bounds, Ezek. 40. 4. to the end. The Turks and Tartars then ſet forth under the names of Gog and Magog, ſhall with very great Armies go and fight againſt them in the holy Land, and be deſtroyed in ſo great numbers that they ſhall be a long time in burying them, and a far longer time in burning their ſpears and arrows, &c. making of them fewel for the fire ſeven years. But touching the year when this ſhall be done, the foreſaid Authour is ſo variable, that I think what is ſaid hereof is meerly conjectural; and the rather, becauſe our Lord being asked, When he would reſtore the Kingdom to Iſrael, anſwered his Apoſtles, It is not for you to know the times and ſeaſons, and if not for Apoſtles, verily not for Aſtrologers in theſe times, whatſoever they boaſt of their ſeeing things to come in the book of the ſtars, the Scripture fore-telling that they ſhall be, and they by their Art finding out when; and one in particular touching the Papacy, that it ſhall ſuffer greatly in the year 1654, yea and an. 1655. the fatal Cataſtrophe thereof. But one more skilful then he, That the Pope ſhall not fall till 1666, as I have already ſhewed, and the Jews ſhall begin to be converted thirteen years after, thus protracting the time ſtill unto anno 7810. Another whoſe Prophecy was found in the ſtudy of Juſtus Lipſias, ſaith thus,

2 Kin. 17. 6.

Rom. 11. 15.

Act. 1.

Culpepper.

Poſt mille expletos à partu virginis annos,
Et poſt ſexcentos rurſus ab orbe datos,
Nonageſimus octavus, mirabilis annus
Ingruet, is ſecum gaudia lœta feret.
Corruet hoc anno Turcarum inviſa propago:
Roma, tuum in libris fabula nomen erit.
Omnia tunc ibunt mundi ſurſum atque deorſum
Imperia, ut populos ſceptra novella premant.
Utque ſuum cunctas verbum diffundat in oras,
Chriſtus & imperitet nomine ubique ſuo.

And another Prophecy written in Hebrew ſaith, This nameleſs Author was found in parchment wrapped in lead in the form of an Heart under the ground in the Church of St Dennis in France anno 1616. by the Sexton digging for the erecting of a Monument for the Lord Teligni. He gave it to the Popes Nuntio, from whom it came to the Cardinal of Bruges, and from him to Lewis 13. King, the numeral Letters ſetting forth divers years of our Lord, being placed all along on the ſide thus,

Anno Chriſti
1661. Obruit Italiam ſævo Mars impius æſtu.
1665. Unica ſint Chriſto Paſcua, Campus, Oves.
1666. Totum operit mundum terror & ira Dei.
1667. Pauci Jehovam venerantur.
1678. Inclitus exurgit factis heros.
1686. Europa tremit, Aſiam urget metus.
1693. Generalis terræ motus ruit.
1699. Agnoſcunt omnes gentes Deum.
1700. Flumina ſiccantur ubique.
1710. Paſtor & Eccleſia unica.

1 Chron. 12.32. Thus the conjecture of this Aſtrologer falleth to the ground, and either he muſt not be one of the Wiſe-men of Iſſachar, that knoweth the times, and of ſo great worth as he ſpeaketh of, or elſe the credit of others both Aſtrologers and Prophets before him, famous for their Prophecies and Predictions, muſt be crackt. And for the underſtanding men of Iſſachar, whom he thinks to have been of his own profeſſion, when he ſhall make it appear, that there was a company of Aſtrologers of the people of God in thoſe uncorrupted times, I ſhall believe him: but till then I ſhall hold them to have been only rarely ſtudious of the will and word of God, and diligent hearers of Samuel the Prophet, who foretold that David ſhould be King, and to this end annointed him. For it is only ſaid, That they underſtood the times and what Iſrael ought to do, that is, according to Gods will in receiving him for their King, and living under him in the fear of God, to promote which David ſet himſelf with his whole heart. There were others alſo doubtleſſe many in thoſe dayes, who did the like, but the Tribe of Iſſachar was ſingular in this, that all their Elders were not onely as Rulers but Teachers of piety to all their brethren of that Tribe, and herein prevailed ſo farre, that when the Heads of other Tribes are ſaid to have brought with them certain thouſands, it is ſaid of theſe, that all their brethren were at their command, and therefore are not numbered, as the reſt be, intimating that piety ſo farre prevailed with them, that they in obedience to Gods will came all, not a man of them being excepted, whereas of other Tribes ſome only came, and others ſtayed at home. Of Iſraels not knowing the times; thus the

Lord ſpeaks by Jeremiah by way of reproof, Jer. 8. 7. and Luk. 19.44. they are by Chriſt threatned likewiſe, becauſe they knew not the time of their viſitation. But of knowing the times as Aſtrologers take upon them to know them, it is more Manaſſeh-like, 2 King.21.6. who is ſaid to have obſerved the times, and to his further diſgrace, to have conſulted with wizzards and familiar ſpirits, then Iſſachar-like: which I ſpeak not againſt looking at the ſigns of heaven yet, to be warned either by this to come March 29, or that greater to come An. 1654. when the whole body of the Sun ſhall be eclipſed above two hours, becauſe theſe are fearful ſigns of grievous judgements; or at blazing ſtars, when they appear, or burnings, or other terrible ſights ſhewing themſelves there, as over Jeruſalem before the deſtruction thereof, for theſe are immediately given by God, ſummoning to repentance, that the evils to come may be prevented. But from conſtellations for any man to take upon him to foretell that the Clergie ſhall go down, and that the people ſhall be ſo knowing, that they ſhall need no more teachers, but every one ſhall be taught of God, is ſo far from acting the part of a wiſe man of Iſſachar, that it is turning ſuch as we call in deriſion Wiſeacres: The meaning of Joel being nothing leſs then what he would wreſt it to, as I have ſhewed in my Expoſitions. And therefore I would adviſe them, (if they give not more heed to the books of Ptolomy, Haly and Albumaſar, then of Prophets, Apoſtles and Evangeliſts, as this man would not be thought to do, as ſeems by his frequent alledging of the Scriptures;) to do as ſome exerciſing curious Arts, are by the Evangeliſt Luke ſaid to have done, viz. confeſs Act.19.19 their works, and burn thoſe books, whereby they are ſo faſcinated, as not to obey the truth, which ſaith, The ſecret things of the Lord belong to the Lord, Deu.29.29 but his revealed to us and our children. And be not wiſe, ſaith Paul, above that which is written; And to be moved the more, ſee Iſa.47.13. Jer. 10.1. and this Commentary thereupon.

To return again from this digreſſion: What times God hath appointed to do the ſtrange things before-ſpoken of, I confeſs yet we may lawfully ſearch into ſo far as he hath given us any light thereinto in his holy word. For he hath not only foreſhewed great judgements and great deliverances, all things being firſt diſordered, and then put into a better order again, and more durable then before; but ſomewhat touching the time how long ſuch confuſions and impious doings ſhall laſt, his people being without King, Prieſt, or Sacrifice, or Ephod, as Hoſea Hoſ.3.4. ſpeaketh, and addeth, That it ſhall be to the later dayes, when they ſhall return and ſeek the Lord and David, that is Chriſt of the houſe of David their King. Verſ.5. And Daniel ſaith, In the dayes of thoſe Kings, God ſhall ſet up a Kingdom Dan.2.44. that ſhall never have end, and it ſhall break in pieces and deſtroy them; whence it is apparent, That the Kingdom of Chriſt, which he will rule by his peculiar people of Iſrael, ſhall both be all over the world, and to this end they muſt be converted, and that whilſt the laſt Monarchy of the four, that is, the Roman ſtandeth, and their converſion muſt be Romes deſtruction, and of all other Kingdoms alſo, which were ſometimes appendices thereof, or of any of the other three Babylonian, Perſian or Grecian, there being no Kings any more over any of them, but the Saints ſwaying the Scepter in them all; of which Saints, that is, convert Jews and Iſraelites, it is ſpoken again Dan.7.18,27.

Now for the time more particularly when this ſhall be done, we muſt look into Dan.12.11,12,13. where the time from the ceſſation of the daily Sacrifice is ſaid to be 1290 dayes, that is, ſo many years, as is not unuſual in holy Scripture to ſet times forth, both in Ezekiel, where it is expreſſed, a day for a year; and Hoſ.3.3. Many dayes for many years. Hereby then 1290 years are meant from the ceaſing of the daily Sacrifice by ſome thought to be meant of the time when the City and Temple were deſtroyed by the Romans An.Dom.71. for experience hath taught the contrary long ago, becauſe that this number being put to 1290, the total will amount but 1361. Therefore another beginneth the reckoning An.363. or thereabouts, when Julian the Apoſtata exhorted the Jews to ſacrificing again, as of old they were wont to do, and they replying, That they might not ſacrifice, but at the Temple in Jeruſalem, he licenced them to go thither and re-build their Temple, and to ſacrifice there, only to confound Chriſtians, who were confident from the words of Chriſt, That till the Jews converſion it could not be. The Jews then in great multitudes went thither to re-build it, that they might there do ſacrifice daily, as was in the Law appointed; but they were ſoon deterred from this attempt by an earthquake, not only caſting down in the night what they built in the day, but alſo making the earth to vomit up the old foundation thitherto lying hid in the ground: So that now was firſt fully accompliſhed the threatning of our Lord, That a ſtone ſhould not be left upon a ſtone, and their renewed hope of ſacrificing here again was quite taken away. And if from hence we reckon putting to 1290, we ſhall come to 1653, or thereabouts. So that we may now upon very good ground very ſhortly expect ſomewhat to be done as touching the Jews converſion; and whereas he is ſaid to be bleſſed that attaineth to 1335, if we adde this number of years to 1653, being 45. the total will amount to 1698, the very time before-ſpoken of: ſo that in 45 years after the firſt beginning of Romes overthrow, and of the converſion of all Iſrael, both they that live amongſt Chriſtians, and in remoteſt parts, and all other Nations that yet are Heathen, and know not Chriſt, ſhall be converted to the faith, and then ſhall be the time of the univerſal peace propheſied of Iſa. 2. and ch.11. before which nothing but wars, and Nations fighting againſt Nations, and ſome making inteſtine wars amongſt themſelves, is to be expected; and of theſe the two great eclipſes of the Sun now at hand, and divers more, as one ſaith, after them to An.1653, are the ſigns. Now that that Prophecy of Daniel is not to be reſtrained to the time when Antiochus his rage had an end put unto it, but belongs to that which ſhall be done about the end of the world, appears both by the riſing out of the duſt, ſpoken of Dan.12.3. *that is, the riſing of the Jews, when the life of grace ſhall enter into them, otherwiſe called the Spirit,*Ezek.37, (for both as I take it ſet forth the ſame thing) and from Dan. 12.4,5. where it is ſaid to be ſealed up to the end, when knowledge ſhall be encreaſed, that is, the knowledge of theſe things, which were as a book ſhut up and ſealed in times paſt under the Old Teſtament, and a long time under the New, although revealed to inſpired Apoſtles Paul and John, but not to many more, till of late, which was the cauſe that the ancient Doctours of the Church conjectured that the Antichriſt ſhould be one ſingular Perſon, and not a ſucceſſion of proud ſuperſtitious men uſurping all Authority in the Church of Chriſt, the contrary to which is now by many clearly known.

Touching the ſtate of the Church which then ſhall be, becauſe it is ſaid, The daily ſacrifice ſhall ceaſe till then, but then the Temple ſhall be built again more ample then ever before Ezek.40.41,&c. and they ſhall have a Prince, Ezek. 45.7.c.46.2. and ſacrificing of a Lamb every morning, ver 13,14. it may be be conceived, that the Monarchy of the world ſhall not be ſo in the Saints hands, but that they ſhall have one Head and Prince to reign over them, and that in the Temple, which then ſhall be re-built, there ſhall daily be communions of the body and bloud of the Lamb of God, Chriſt Jeſus, which are ſet forth by the name of Sacrifices, becauſe that hereby that all-ſufficient Sacrifice is repreſented, and to the faithfull exhibited to be fed and feaſted withall. There are alſo that gather the time, when theſe things ſhall be, and the Turkiſh Empire ſhall have an end put thereunto, from Rev.19.15. where it is ſaid, The four Angels, who were bound at the river Euphrates, were looſed and prepared for an hour, a day, a moneth and a year, a day being put for a year, a moneth conſiſting of 31 dayes for ſo many years, a year of 336 dayes for ſo many more, which being put together, make 398, and theſe being added to 1300, when the Ottoman Empire of the Turks began, we come to 1698, as before, when the Turks ſhall be utterly deſtroyed, as hath been before ſaid.

By all which it appears, that not the ſtars, but the holy Scriptures give us ſome light into the times, when theſe great and long expected things ſhall be brought to paſs; with which I having now done, return to you again (my beloved Brethren) upon whom I would not that theſe phantaſtical ſelf-conceited ſtar-gazers, or other malevouſly affected Coridons, ſhould have their expectations of your being put down, fulfilled; it ſtanding more with the piety of a religious Parliament a thouſand times to put this curſing new-upſtart company down, though fawning and adulatory towards them, then Gods Prieſts, that be διδασκάλικοι and ἅγιοι, although oppoſite to them in ſome of their wayes, becauſe it is ſaid, Touch not mine anointed, and do my Prophets no harm: And again Pſ.105.15 when Hoſea would ſet forth wickedneſs come to the full, he ſaith, This people Hoſ.4.4. are as they that ſtrive with the Prieſt; and again of the Tribe of Levi, of which the Prieſts were, Bleſs Lord his ſubſtance, and accept the work of his Deut.33.11.
hands, ſmite thorow the loins of them that riſe againſt him, and of them that hate him, that they riſe no more. And that we for our parts may not bring this judgement upon us, nor any way be a cauſe of the peoples contemning our holy order, as now they do, and that not through default in ſome of us, Let us ſeriouſly conſider, what may be the cauſe hereof, and whether it be not (I will not ſay ſcandalous vitiouſneſs in any kinde, or idleneſs, for the Church hath been of late well purged of ſuch blots and ſpots) diviſions amongſt our ſelves into Presbyterians and Independents, or a judgement befallen us for turning Heralds of war, and Incendiaries hereunto of late, from Embaſſadours of peace, to which our Office alwayes binds us. For I fear, that our ſetting of others together by the ears hath brought this judgement of ſchiſms and diviſions amongſt us. And to ſpeak of the natural cauſes hereof, what can they elſe be but pride and an overweening conceit of our ſelves, an affectation of ſuperiority Diotrephes-like, a Jer.6.16.
ſleighting of the precept bidding us to enquire after the old way, which is the good way, and a willingneſs to pleaſe the ſtricter ſort of people diſcontented with Epiſcopal Government, as it ſtood in the Church of England? Therefore, and becauſe that lord-like, and not Apoſtle-like Government was grievous to ſome of our ſelves alſo, we raſhly gave all Epiſcopal Government for Antichriſtian, not doubting ſoon to finde out a better: but having gotten it down, O into what a maze or labyrinth of divers wayes are we brought, there being no poſſibility that I can ſee of agreeing about any! Thus, this is it chiefly that makes the Miniſtry in this Land contemptible, ſome going one way and ſome another, and that about no meaner things then the Lords-Supper, Lords Prayer, and the Lords Birth day,

day, outward reverence in the publick ſervice of God, private praying in Gods houſe, and the ordaining of Presbyters before they officiate. And how may we be again reconciled to think and ſpeak the ſame things? Verily by no means, but by conſidering quid antiquiſſimum, id enim veriſſimum. How was the Church of God governed in the Apoſtles dayes by them and by ſome ſingular men, appointed to execute this Office for them in their abſence, as Timothy and Titus, and all this by commiſſion firſt had from the Lord? And to this muſt we endeavour to return, letting all the pontifical Government go, which was not introduced till 300 years after Chriſts birth, and ſince more corrupted. Then ſhall we have Unity and Honour again, but till then be in contempt and diſgrace, we being then only a ſweet odour, and acceptable every where, when as we are Brethren, ſo we live together in Unity, Pſ.133. 2 Cor.2.15. That the ſpirit of love and peace therefore would unite all our hearts in one, let us unceſſantly pray, and that the Supream Power upon earth, now by Gods providence ruling over us, may be bent, not by tolerating any ſchiſm or faction, or new way to hinder it, but unpartially enquiring after the old way, walk, and cauſe others to walk therein, to the great praiſe and glory of God, the vindicating of his Miniſters from contempt, the ſtopping of the courſe of ſin and errour, and the more facilitating of their account at the great and dreadful day of judgement before him with whom there is no reſpect of perſons.

Your fellow-labourer in the work of the Miniſtry

March 1.
an.1651.

JOHN MAYER.

A Catalogue of Authors out of whom any thing in this Book hath been taken.

Abbas Uſpergenſ.
Aben Ezra Adricomius.
Ad. Sasbont.
Agrippa.
Albertus.
Alexander a Caſtro.
Ambroſ.
Ariſtotle.
Appian. Alex.
Arias Montanus.
Arminius.
Athenæus Baronius.
Baſilius.
Beda.
Bellarmine.
Bernardus.
Bucol.Chronol.
Burgenſis.
Cajetan.
Caſſianus.
Calvin.
Cald. Paraph.
Chryſoſtom.
Cicero.
Cornel.a Lapide.
Cornelius Tacitus.
Clarius.
Claudian.
Clemeus.
Clemens Rom.
Cyprian.
Cyrillus.
Damaſcen.
Diodorus Siculus.
Dionyſius.
Dorotheus
Epiphanius Euripides.
Euſeb.Cæſar.
Faſciulus tempor.
Featly.
Forerius.
Galatinus.
Geneva Notes.
Gloſſ.Ordin.
Gregor.
Gregor.Nazian.
Gualter.
Guidius.
Guicciardine.
Guil.Tyrius.
Haimo.
Herodotus.
Hier.Mercurius Hilarius.
Hugo Card.
Jerom.
Joſephus.
Joſeph.Gorionus.
Iſidor.
Julius Obſequens,
Junius.
Juſtin.
Juſtin. Martyr.
Khimbi.
Lactantius.
Lemnius
Leo.
Lucilius.
Luther.
Lyra.
Macrobius.
Maldonat.
Mantuan.
Marlorat.
Michael Medina
Muſculus.
Nauclerus.
Novatus.
Oecolampadius.
Onuphrius.
Oleaſter.
Olympiodorus.
Origen.
Ovidius Pagninus.
PatriarksTravels.
Pauſanius.
Pererius.
Pet. Martyr.
P.Chryſologus.
Philo Jud.
Pierii Hieroglyph.
Plato.
Plautus.
Plinius.
Plutarch.
Polanus.
Polychron.
Pompouius Mela.
Porphyrius.
Prado.
Procopius.
Proſper.
Ptolomee.
Rabanus.
Rab.David.
Rab.Solomon.
Rab.Aaquiba.
Rab.Johanan.
Ribera.
Rodiginus.
Ruffinus.
Rupert.
Scaliger.
Septuagint.
Solinus.
Stephanus.
Steuchus.
Strabo.
Sybilla Phrygia.
Symmachus.
Tertullian
Th. Aquinas
Theoph.
Theodor.
Tigur. Interp.
Toſſarius.
Toſtatus.
Valeſius Varro.
Vatablus.
Virgilius.
Xenophon.
Zanchez.
Zonaras.
Zuinglius.

A COMMENTARY
UPON THE PROPHECIE
Of the Prophet ISAIAH.

THE PREFACE.

WHo Iſaiah was, and at what time he wrote, appears *Chap.*1. He was the ſon of Amos, the brother of Azariah King of Judah, as it is commonly held, ſaith Calvin ; wherefore he was of the bloud royal. The time of his propheſying was in the reign of the ſame Azariah or Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, which Calvin reckoning to Jotham 16, to Achaz 16, and to Hezekiah 29, ſums up 61. But he laboured in propheſying longer, viz. in the dayes of Uzziah alſo, but how many years is uncertain, only Chap 6. becauſe he had a viſion in the year that Uzziah died, it is certain that he propheſied in his time alſo that in *Chap.*5. haply, as ſome conjecture ten years. That he continued after Hezekiah alſo it is generally agreed, becauſe he was ſlain by Manaſſeh his ſon, that wicked Idolater by being ſawn aſunder, being ſo hated by him, becauſe he was a true Prophet of God, that he was not ſpared from a moſt cruel death, although of his kindred, and that very near.

The Scope of his writing, as of all the Prophets, is to ſet forth true Doctrine according to the Law, whereupon their Prophecies be, as it were, Commentaries, and to inveigh againſt ſin, whereby the Law is tranſgreſſed, and to comfort the penitent and reformed ; and laſtly to fore-tell the coming of Chriſt, and things pertaining to his Kingdom, and the conſolations of the Goſpel more plainly, whereas the Law figured out theſe things in Sacrifices and Ceremonies more obſcurely.. And in this point Iſaiah excels all the reſt of the Prophets, being therefore worthy to be called the Evangelical Prophet, as being herein more plain and full. He alſo propheſies againſt divers particular Countreys round about Judea, for the better underſtanding whereof, it is neceſſary, ſaith Luther, to know the ſcite of thoſe Countreys, the knowledge whereof he briefly gives thus. Sodom, where was the dead ſea, lay Eaſtward from Judea, beyond it Moab and Ammon , further Eaſt Babylon or Caldæa, and beyond it Perſia : Northward was Mount Libanus, and beyond it Syria and Damaſcus, the chief City thereof, beyond Syria, Aſſyria, and is more towards the Eaſt. Weſtward Philiſtia and Tyrus and Zidon, yet more Weſt. Southward lay Ægypt, the Red Sea, Ethiopia, Edom and Midian, of which Ægypt declined more Weſt. And for the underſtanding of the Prophecie the better, he greatly commends the knowledge and remembrance of the Hiſtories ſet forth, 2 King. and 2 Chron. becauſe it is adaptated to them. For excellency of this Prophecie, it is generally preferred before any other, as containing in it all Rhetorick, Ethicks and Theology, as Jerom ſaith. And whereas ſome make a queſtion, whether the Prophets underſtood their own Prophecies, he derides them, becauſe the holy Prophets were moſt wiſe men, being called Seers, and therefore were not uſed as inſtruments only to utter the ſecrets of God, but alſo to underſtand them, and to apply them to others. And to prove this further, he alledgeth that 1 *Cor.*14. The ſpirit of the Prophets is ſubject to the Prophets.

Now although Iſaiah be placed firſt of all the Prophets, yet it is to be underſtood, that Hoſea was contemporary with him, becauſe he uttered alſo his Prophecy in the time of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah: yet becauſe, *Hoſ.*1.2. it is ſaid, The Lord ſpake firſt to Hoſea; ſome gather, that he began before all the reſt. Under the ſame King Uzziah alſo was Amos, and as Expoſitors agree, Joel, although his time be not noted, becauſe as Junius ſaith, he is placed between Hoſea and Amos, and there is nothing to intimate a different time, but the ſame, the matter agreeing ſo well to the time of Uzziah. The next three Obadiah, Jonah and Micha, are by ſome alſo made contemporanean with the former, but Junius proves Jonah to have been more ancient then any of them, becauſe he propheſied in the time of Amaziah, father of Uzziah, or before, ſeeing he is ſaid to have fore-told, what victories Jeroboam ſhould obtain, who began to reign over *Iſrael, an.*15. of Amaziah, as is commemorated, 2 *King.*14.24. But whereas he placeth Obadiah long after as contemporary with Jeremy and Ezekiel; it is more probable, that he propheſied alſo in the time of Amaziah, before Jonah, becauſe of the deſtruction of Edom, which was by Amaziah, before his overthrow received at the hands of Jehoahaz King of Iſrael. Micha propheſied in the time of Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah. Nahum, as Junius thinks moſt probable, by the arguments ſomewhat before the Captivity of Iſrael by Tiglath Pileſer King of Aſſyria, becauſe he fore-tels the deſtruction of Nineveh, the chief City of Aſſyria for the comfort of the faithful in Iſrael againſt their miſeries ſuffered at the Aſſyrians hands, but in Tiglath Pileſer there is a miſtaking, for it was by Salmanaſar in the 12th of Ahaz. Habakkuk propheſies about the ſame time, threatning, as Jeremiah, the coming of the Caldees, and lamenting it, or at the leaſt at the end of Joſiah his reign. Zephany in the dayes of Joſiah. Haggai and Zechary after the return of the Jews from their Captivity in the time of Darius; And Malachi after the Temple built laſt of all others, reproving the abuſes committed about the Temple and ſervice of God. Ezekiel was of the ſame time with Jeremiah. And Daniel in the time of the Captivity unto the end of thoſe ſeventy years. To take the Prophets therefore according to their times, 1. was Obadiah. 2. Jonah. 3. Hoſea. 4. Iſaiah. 5. Joel. 6. Amos. 7. Micha. 8. Nahum. 9. Habakkuk. 10. Jeremy. 11. Ezekiel. 12. Zephany. 13. Daniel. 14. Haggai. 15. Zechary. 16. Malachi. And the conſideration of each ones time availeth not a little to the underſtanding of their Prophecies.

Hieronym. in Hoſ.*c.*1.

2 King.14.

2 King.17.

But to ſay ſomewhat more of Iſaiah in particular. He was the ſon of Amos, brother to Amaziah, the father of Azariah, according to the Hebrews tradition, and Manaſſeh, as they ſay, was his daughters ſon, ſo that he was his grand-father, being at the time of his Martyrdom by Manaſſeh an hundred twenty ſix years old. And his Martyrdom as is generally held by all Expoſitors was by ſawing aſunder, whereunto that *Heb.*11.37. Some were cut aſunder, is applied. Some have held Iſaiah to be the ſon of Amos the Prophet, as Epiphanius and Clemens Alexandrinus, but that Amos is written with ע for the firſt letter, and ס for the laſt, this with א and צ Amoz. And his manner ner of writing ſheweth, that he came not of a Cowherd, as Amos was, but of a royal Stock, being brought up at the Court, which commonly is eloquent and quaint in phraſes. He is worthily placed firſt of the Prophets for his high birth, his excellency this way, and becauſe in abundance of viſions he exceeds all the reſt, and had things more plainly revealed unto him. The cauſe why his grandchilde Manaſſeh put him to this cruel death, was his reproving his Idolatry, and calling him and his Princes, Princes of Sodom, and becauſe he ſaid, he ſaw the Lord, who is inviſible, and threatned the rejection of the Jews, and vocation of the Gentiles, &c. as Jerom ſaith out of the Jews tradition. Chap.1.10. Of this Prophecie are two principal parts: 1. Comminatory and ſad, to *Chap.*40. 2. Joyful and comfortable, from thence to the end of the Prophecie. In the firſt principal are five particulars. 1. Threatnings againſt the Jews for their great wickedneſſes againſt which he exclaims and propheſieth of their deſtruction by the Aſſyrians, by the Babylonians, and by the Romans, when rejecting Chriſt Jeſus, they ſhould be given over to blindeneſs, to *Chap.*7. 2. Prophecies touching Chriſt to come of a Virgin, and his Kingdom, to *Chap.*13. 3. Burthens of Babylon, Philiſtia, Moab, Damaſcus, Æthiopia, Ægypt, Idumea, Arabia, Judea and Tyre, to Chap. 24. 4. A Prophecie of the deſtruction of the world, of hell fire, and the glory of the faithful, and the deſtruction of the Kingdom of Leviathan, to *Chap.*28. 5. A repetition of the judgements threatned againſt Iſrael and other particular Countreys, and the whole world mixedly, to *Chap.*36. After which to the 40th is nothing but the Hiſtory of Hezekiah and Sennacherib. The ſecond principal part being a Prophecie of Chriſt and his Kingdom is full of Promiſes, Comforts and Exhortations; yet ſome objurgations and threatnings are mixed.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. THe Viſion of Iſaiah the ſon of Amos which he ſaw upon Judah and Jeruſalem, in the dayes of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, kings of Judah. Of what Amos he was the ſon, hath been already ſhewed: but the Hebrews have a rule, that when to any Prophets name, his fathers is added, it is to be underſtood, that his father was a Prophet alſo, and ſo they ſay, was the father of Iſaiah, although not Amos the third of the ſmall Prophets, but one of royal birth. From the names being expounded Iſaiah, the ſalvation of God, Amos, fortitude, Judah, praiſe, Jeruſalem, the viſion of God, Uzziah, the ſtrength of God, Jotham, perfection, Ahaz, holding, Hezekiah, the Empire of the Lord: ſome raiſe here a myſtical ſenſe. Hieron. But to let that paſs, by Viſion we are not to underſtand only what Iſaiah ſaw with his bodily eyes, but as is common in the holy Scriptures, what he ſaw with the eyes of his underſtanding, or perceived by hearing with the ear; ſo the people are ſaid to have ſeen the voice of the Lord. Adam Sasbont. For whereas Viſion ſometime ſignifieth the act of the Seer, ſometime the object repreſented to the ſight, ſometime any thing, to the knowledge whereof a man comes by revelation any way: here it is put in the laſt ſenſe, and it is the Title of the whole Prophecie, for it is ſaid, Which he ſaw in the dayes of Uzziah, Jotham, &c. and not of one part of the Prophecie only, Viſion being put for Viſions: and yet he meant not by giving his Prophecie this Title, to intimate a confuſed ſetting forth of things here, as if the Reader ſhould not diſtinctly know, at what time he had each Viſion, or in what Kings reign.

For from Chap. 1. to Chap. 6. the Viſions in the time of Uzziah are ſet forth: from thence to *Chap.*7. in the time of Jotham; from thence to Chap. 14.28. in the time of Ahaz, and from thence to the end of the Prophecie, in the time of Hezekiah, as Cornel. a Lapide obſerves out of Jerom, and is confirmed, becauſe there it is ſaid, The year that Ahaz died. The word עַל rendered [upon] is by the Septuagint rendered [againſt] and indeed it ſignifieth either, but here it is beſt rendred [upon] becauſe not only ſad things againſt, but joyful things alſo are contained in this Viſion. Judah ſet forth not only the Tribe of Judah, but that Kingdom containing Benjamin. Which he ſaw] although Iſaiah had theſe Viſions, and more properly he might have ſaid, Which I ſaw] yet he rather ſpeaks in the third perſon, for modeſties ſake.

Whereas no other places are named, whereupon he ſaw theſe Viſions, but Judah and Jeruſalem, yet he propheſied againſt Edom, Ammon, Moab, &c.
Alſo, it is, becauſe Judah and Jeruſalem were the Countreys, to which he chiefly propheſied.

Verſ.2. Hear (O Heavens) and hearken (O Earth)

The Lord being about to lay open and tax the wickedneſs of his people, cals Heaven and Earth here to witneſs, how juſtly he doth it, and herein Iſaiah Hieronym. followeth Moſes, Deut.32.1. By Heavens, ſaith Jerom, we may underſtand either the Angels in Heaven, and by the Earth men dwelling upon the Earth, or theſe very creatures without ſenſe, being yet more ready to obey their Creator then the Jews, to their greater ſhame. And this laſt is to be preferred Ambroſ. as moſt aggravating their wickedneſs; ſo Ambroſe, God cals the elements
Pſal.118. to witneſs, to reprove them that would not obey his voice. And Chryſoſtom, Serm.14. as the Prophet ſent to Jeroboam, paſſing him over, ſpeaks to the Altar, and 1 King.13. Jeremiah to the Earth, O Earth, Earth, &c. So Iſaiah to the Heavens ſo far Jer.22. remote, and the Earth ſo craſſe and ſenſleſs, as if they would yet ſooner hear, then men. Moſes called Heaven and Earth to hear the charge given, Iſaiah, to teſtifie the great and intollerable neglect hereof, intimating, that they ſhall alwayes continue witneſſes againſt the rebellious. And they are the rather called to witneſs, becauſe from them men enjoy all ſorts of bleſſings, and yet by idolatry moſt groſly abuſe them in worſhipping the Sunne, Moon and Stars, and four-footed Beaſts, and Fowls, and creeping things upon the Earth, and therefore, and for other abominations they are often puniſht, before they come to receive their laſt doom, the Heaven becoming as braſſe, and the Earth as iron, and the Heavens at the paſſion of the Lord ſhewed themſelves to be, as it were, affected with ſhame, the Sun hiding the face in darkneſs, and the Earth with trembling and fear, when it quaked at the acting Calvin. of ſo monſtrous a wickedneſs. And indeed, ſaith Calvin, the Heavens and Earth can hear Gods voice or command, as appears by their conſtant Haimo. keeping of their courſe, as he willeth. That of Haimo [Hear, O Heavens] that is, ye which are ſpiritual and heavenly, and take the ſpiritual ſenſe of this Prophecie, and Earth, that is, men of weaker underſtanding; the literal ſenſe, I paſs over as a conceit. I have nouriſhed ſons, and exalted them.] Symmachus and Theodot. Filios genui, but the word is גִּדַּלְתִּי I made them grow great. Thoſe that I took for ſons, yea for my firſt-born ſon, and by nouriſhing increaſed and promoted more then any other people, giving them ſuch Laws as no other Nation had, and doing miraculouſly for them in Ægypt, in the wilderneſs and Canaan, whereby they came to be in high eſtimation in all Countreys, over whom I ſet famous Kings, and amongſt whom is my houſe, the Glory and Joy of all the Earth, even they have rebelled againſt me, or fallen from me פָּשְׁעוּ בִ, that is, by falling from my worſhip to that Muſculus. of Idols. Lycurgus, ſaith Muſculus, amongſt all his Laws, made none againſt the ungrateful, becauſe that was thought to be a thing ſo prodigious, as not to be committed by man. Jerom and Rupert. take this as ſpoken againſt the Jews for deſpiſing Chriſt, rendering it, They have deſpiſed me, but it is better underſtood by others of the Jews then, though applicable to ſuch as tumultuated againſt Chriſt, and all wicked ones all the world over, who enjoying means and worldly bleſſings, requite God the giver with defection from his wayes, and rebellion.

Verſ.3. The Ox knoweth his owner, and the Aſſe his maſters crib, &c.] To aggravate the rebellion of Iſrael the more, he makes a compariſon, not from a Dog, that is more witty, who for a little food defends his maſters houſe, but from an Ox that ploweth, and an Aſſe that carrieth burthens, being the moſt ſtupid and dulleſt of all others, yet they are called jumenta, a juvando, becauſe they help man that feeds them. The Ox was a clean beaſt, figuring out the Jew, the Aſſe unclean figuring out the Gentile, wherefore it was forbidden to plow with an Ox and Aſſe together, but whether a compariſon be made betwixt them, and their own type, or the type of the Gentile, they muſt needs be every way condemned ſo, as that they might be aſhamed. He might, ſaith Calvin, have argued from the Gentiles, but doth it rather from brute beaſts, the more to aggravate their ſin, eſpecially they being in nature nearer to Angels, and made after Gods own Image. And not only the Ox and Aſſe, but other earthly creatures condemn wicked men in that they ſerve thoſe that keep them, are moſt loving to their young, and eat and drink not to ſurfeting, but to ſatiety, whereas theſe caſt off the yoke of God, mothers oft times make away their own young, and they commonly drink to drunkenneſs, and eat to ſurfeting. For owner, Hebr. is Poſſeſſour, but every poſſeſſour of the Ox is not meant, for ſome buy and poſſeſs them only for ſlaughter, but the poſſeſſour that works and feeds, and brings them up, although for his own benefit, not theirs, he feeds them, and counts them but as beaſts, and preſſeth them with burthens, but God makes men of ſervants children, works them for their own good and brings them to high dignity. But the Ox knows not his owner any more then another man, and what praiſe is it for the Aſſe to know the crib, where he is continually fed? Sol. The compariſon ſtands in this, the Aſſe knows what is good for him, but they did not, and the Ox would be ruled, and labour for his maſter, but they not. Yet Iſrael hath not known, my people hath not underſtood. He ſaith not, Hath not known me, but not known, what is good for himſelf, as if more brutiſh, and void of underſtanding, and yet Iſrael, one prevailing with God, and the people by me choſen from amongſt all others, which ſheweth the greater ingratitude. Popiſh writers, as Leo Caſtrius writing upon this, tell a tale of the Ox and the Aſſe fed at the manger where Chriſt being an Infant was laid, doing reverence on either ſide unto him. But forſomuch as if it had been ſo, it had been worth the recording by an Evangeliſt; Calvin well cals it an Aſinine invention. Yet of other beaſts gratitude ſtrange things are written, as by Aul.Gellius of a Lion, unto which one Androdus a Dacian was caſt, but the Lion came fauning to him to the admiration of all the beholders. Then he being asked the reaſon, ſaid, That when he fled from his Maſter, he went into a Cave, into which this Lion entring lame of one foot, he pluckt out a thorn and healed it, for which the Lion fed him there with the beſt fleſh he could get for three years. At length he being weary of that kinde of life, came away and was taken and caſt to the ſame Lion. Whereupon he was pardoned, and having the ſaid Lion given him, led it about, and ſo lived a long time. And of a Dragon by Democritus, which being brought up by one, was, when it waxed great, put out into the wilderneſſe, and when the man travelling that way fell into the hands of thieves, the Dragon hearing his voice came and reſcued him. And of a Panther, whoſe young ones were fallen into a pit, and could not be gotten out, till a man travelling by the Panther, gently pulled him to the pits ſide, and he holp out the young, then the Panther went with him, till he was paſt all danger of other wilde beaſts to defend him. And of an Aſp nouriſhed up by one till ſhe had young, and one of the young by biting one of the mans children one day killed it, but the old one in revenge fell upon that and kild it.

Hieronym.

Deut.22.18.

Calvin.

Muſcul.

A.Gellius.
Gratitude in beaſts.

Democritus.

Verſ.4.

Woe to the ſinfull Nation, the people laden with iniquity, to the ſeed of evil ones, wicked children. Before he ſaid, I have brought up ſons, but now he cals them wicked ſons, and ſeed of the wicked, who had thus corrupted themſelves, but not ſo made of God. For wicked ſons, ſome render it degenerating, ſome corrupting, implying ſuch, as endeavoured to do all the

Hieronym.

Adam Sasbont.

Of ſinning five degrees.

wickedneſſe that they could, and to draw others to it alſo. Divers words are uſed here, ſaith one, ſetting forth the ſame thing to ſtirre up the greater indignation: הוֹי, tranſlated Woe, may alſo be rendred, Oh, intimating grief in the Lord, who makes this complaint, They have forſaken the Lord, and lightly regarded, &c. This they did, when they turned from God to Idols. For lightly regarded, the Septuagint have, made angry, as the word נאצו here uſed in Piel ſignifieth. Here are five degrees of ſinning ſet forth. 1. Simple ſinning, Woe to the ſinful Nation. 2. Sinning ſo much as to be herewith preſſed down to the ground. 3. Generation after Generation, to the ſeed of evil ones. 4. Endeavouring to corrupt others בָּנִים מַשְׁחִיתִים, Banim maſhchithim, Children cutting off, or corrupting. 5. Doing direct injury to the divine Majeſty by Idolatry, and blaſphemy againſt Chriſt Jeſus.

Verſ.5. Hieronym.

Why ſhould ye be ſmitten any more, be made to adde tranſgreſſion? A double ſenſe is here given, 1. In what part ſhould ye be ſmitten? becauſe there is no part now unſmitten, not becauſe no one perſon amongſt them was free, but the whole ſtate being conſidered as a body, the Princes as the head, the Prieſts as the heart, the common people as the feet, were ſmitten. 2. To what end ſhould I ſmite? as ſpeaking to a people incorrigible, and therefore to be given over, as deſperate, to a reprobate ſenſe. For this is the end of Gods ſmiting, to reform from ſin. And both theſe ſenſes the words עַל מֶה will bear. The whole heart is faint, and the whole heart heavy. Following the former Metaphor, by the head heavy, the Princes wickedneſs is ſet forth, and by the heart, the wickedneſs of the Prieſts and wiſe men of the Land, who are ſet to be guides unto others.

Verſ.6. Sasbont.

Hieron.

Calvin.

From the ſole of the foot to the head, there is no ſoundnes, but wound, blueneſs, and ſwelling ſore. Some by wound underſtand ſin in the heart, by bluneſs, it breaking out in word, by ſwelling ſore, it breaking out in act. Others more probably, becauſe wounds appear, manifeſt wickedneſs thereby, and becauſe livor or rancour is inward, envy lurking in the heart, and pride to defend ſin by the ſwelling ſore. They are not preſſed out, nor bound up, nor mollified with oil. Theſe words, ſaith Jerom, are uſed to ſet forth a moſt deſperate condition, ſuch as was not the ſtate of the Jews by the Babyloniſh Captivity, for from this they were reſtored again, and had Princes of their own to rule over them, but when the City was deſtroyed by Titus, and ſo lay waſte for ever afterwards. Calvin underſtands all of outward miſeries. But if from outward miſeries we paſs on to the moſt miſerable eſtate of the ſoul, the expoſition will be more full. Theſe ſwelling ſores were not preſſed for the mattery ſtuff to run out, nor wounds bound up, that they might heal, nor the parts black and blue annointed with oil. They would not by any means ſuffer themſelves to be healed of their ſins, and therefore their outward evil and miſerable eſtate continueth alwaies.

Verſ.7.

Calvin.

Your Land is waſted, your Cities burnt with fire, ſtrangers devour your Land before your face, and it is waſted after, or according to the deſtruction of ſtrangers. Here in other words the ſame miſery is further expreſſed, which was fulfilled when the Caldeans burnt the City, and waſted all things, and it is compared to a deſtruction made by ſtrangers, that is, far dwellers, who ſpare nothing for future uſe, but utterly ruine all things, and it is ſpoken in the Preter tenſe, when it was yet to come, becauſe it ſhould moſt certainly be thus.

Verſ.8.

Muſculus.
Sasbont.
Calvin.

The Daughter of Zion is left as a tent in a vineyard, as a cottage in a cucumber ground. By the daughter of Sion underſtand Jeruſalem, which ſtood at the foot of the hill of Zion, as a daughter comes out from between the feet, being alſo cheriſhed and tendered by God, as his daughter. But now deſolation is threatned to her, as if he had ſaid, as after the vintage gathered, and the cucumbers, the Husbandmen pull down their tents ſet up before to ſhelter and ſhadow them, whilſt they tended upon their fruits growing there, and going away leave nothing, but a mention of ſome tents ſtanding; ſo ſhall it be with Jeruſalem, and this the next words plainly expreſſe, As a City deſtroyed] it ſhall be made as baſe and contemptible as ſuch a ruined cottage, or both, in the one of which the Husbandman lodged in the night, from whence the word כִּמְלוּנָה is taken, as a lodging place; and in the other ſheltred himſelf in the day from the Sun and rain during the time of his working about his vineyard, being now as a thing of no uſe any more; ſo likewiſe Jerom.

If the Lord had not left us a remnant, as it were a very little, we had been as Sodom. Still he goeth on to ſpeak of the miſeries to come both by the Caldeans, and afterwards by the Romans, whereby from infinite multitudes, if by Gods ſingular providence ſome had not been ſaved out of that burning, they had been all utterly conſumed, as the Sodomites. Lyra expounds theſe few left, of thoſe who with Zerubbabel and Jeſus the ſon of Ioſedech, yet remaining returned out of Captivity from Babylon, but Sasbont holding that the Prophet here ſuddenly paſſeth to Evangelical things, as his manner alſo elſwhere is, for ſo S^t^ Paul citeth this place, expounds this remnant of believers, whereof if there had not been ſome amongſt the Jews, the whole Nation had utterly periſhed, never to be repaired again. And this he borrows from Ierom, who will not have it underſtood of the deſtruction by the Caldeans, but by the Romans. For the Lord of Sabaoth, the Septuagint render, Dominus virtutum, or Dominus omnipotens, to be underſtood of the Son as well as of the Father, becauſe he hath all power.

Verſ.9.
Lyra.
Sasbont.
Rom.9.29.
Hieronym.
Matth. 28.18.

Hear the word of the Lord (ye Princes of Sodom, &c.) This, ſaith Ierom, is to the Scribes and Phariſees, who rejected Chriſt, and ſet light by him, as the Sodomites did by Lot, profeſſing to have no King but Cæſar: and Sasbont, Therefore he ſet them forth by this name, becauſe they were moſt like to the Sodomites in ſinning, being moſt open and impudent in it.

Verſ.10.
Hieronym.
Sasbont.
Iſa.3.9.

For what is the multitude of your Sacrifices to me, &c. There is a paſſage like this, Pſal.50.8,9. whereby God ſheweth a light account of their Sacrifices: 1. Becauſe they were never ordained, but to keep them from ſacrificing to Idols, as Ierom ſaith: 2. Coming from them ſo wicked, they were abominable: 3. Becauſe they thought hereby to pleaſe God, how wickedly ſo ever they lived: 4. Becauſe they were appointed only for ſignification, as being types of the only expiating Sacrifice, Chriſt Jeſus, and of praiſe and thankſgiving proceeding from a pure heart: 5. To intimate that there ſhould be an end put to ſuch ſacrificing under the Goſpel, nothing but praiſe, and prayer, and obedience being now the Sacrifices of Gods people.

Verſ.11.
Hieronym.
Prov.15.8.

When ye come to appear before my face, who required this at your hands? &c. All this Ierom, and ſome other Ancients underſtand as ſpoken of the Evangelical times, when an end was put to all carnal ſacrificing by the death of Chriſt. For even after the Captivity ended, the Temple was again re-edified and Sacrifices offered, but after the deſtruction of the Temple in the time of the Goſpel, not: men trod no more then in the Courts of Gods houſe, neither ſhall to the end of the world. But the ſenſe will be good, if it be taken as ſpoken of thoſe times, for God never required ſacrificing as the principal part of his ſervice, neither it, or alms, or judgement coming from the wicked, who go on ſtill impenitently in their ſins, from whom neither ceremonial nor moral duty coming is acceptable, ſith the perſon from whom, is diſpleaſing to God.

Verſ.12.

Bring no more Sacrifices in vain, Incenſe is abomination, &c. And if Sacrifices in the wicked were vain or lying Sacrifices, as the Vulgar Latine renders it, how blinde are they that will not acknowledge their worſhip by mans invention to be vain much more? So Calvin. The word rendred Sacrifices, is מִנְחָה a meat Offering, ver.11. it is זִבְחֵי, Sacrifices, wherein the fat only was burnt, and עוֹלוֹת Holocauſts, or whole burnt Sacrifices, and theſe were the three kinds of Sacrifices preſcribed in the Law, but all now for wickednes loath-

Verſ.13.
Calvin

ed. And with incenſe a ſweet perfume was daily made in the Temple, but now it ſmelt abominably. Their Feſtivals and Sabbaths alſo were inſufferable, whether new Moons, Paſſeover, Pentecoſt, or feaſt of Tabernacles, or weekly Sabbaths, Heb. 3. which were commanded not only in the ceremonial, but alſo in the moral Law, becauſe although the ſeventh day from the Creation be ceremonial, yet keeping a ſeventh day, as a Sabbath, is moral and perpetual, viz. to praiſe God for a greater work, viz. the Redemption of man, from which Chriſt reſted, when he had finiſht it upon the Croſs by dying for us, and ſo bearing all the wrath due to us for our ſins, a burthen importable.

Verſ. 14. My ſoul hateth your new Moons and ſolemn Aſſemblies, &c. Becauſe they were wicked that kept them, God hated them, and made account of them, as an intollerable burthen. Therefore much more is he grieved at the holydayes of Chriſtians, which he never preſcribed, but did ſpring out of a ſuperſtitious obſervance towards the Apoſtles, eſpecially being turned into days of more licentiouſneſs then any other dayes of the week, as if the devil had ſet them up for his own ends, ſo much advantage makes he of them to prey upon men.

Verſ. 15. When ye ſhall ſtretch out your hands I will hide my eyes from you, &c. Not only Sacrifices and Solemnities, but moſt earneſt and frequent prayers are rejected, when they come from the wicked, becauſe ſtretching out or lifting up of hands ſet forth prayers, this being the geſture in prayer appointed, Becauſe 1 Tim. 2. 8. your hands are full of bloud] That is, ye are groſly wicked. For bloud ſets forth not only murther, cruelty, rapine and oppreſſion more properly, Gregor. Mor. c. 16. l. 13 but alſo in a more large ſenſe, all groſs ſins, as Hoſ. 4. 2. Bloud toucheth bloud, Hieronym. according to divers Ancients, one groſs ſin is heaped up upon another. And Caldæus. that not unaptly, 1. Becauſe bloud of murther is abominable. 2. The eating of bloud amongſt all the Ancients. 3. The bloud of the menſtruous Calv. woman. The ſervants of God uſed to ſtretch out their hands in prayer, ſaith Calvin; hereby as by an outward ſign, ſhewing from whence they ſought for help, viz. from God in Heaven, thus ſtretching out themſelves as much towards Heaven as they can. And it is a thing taught by nature in miſery, to Heb. 12. 12. ſtretch out the hands to him that can help. Wherefore hereby we are to Cyprian. Hieron. ſhew our faith in God in Heaven, when we pray to him. Cyprian and Jerom, &c. expound this, Your hands are full of bloud, of the bloud of the Prophets, and of Chriſt, whom he foreſaw by the Spirit, that they ſhould crucifie.
For this indeed was the bloud that cried moſt againſt them, and all bloud ſhed crieth, whether it be by actual murther, or by taking away through oppreſſion or injuſtice, that which ſhould ſupport life, wherefore this is intimated, verſ. 17. to be the bloud here cried out upon, as making prayer fruſtrate.

Verſ. 16. Waſh you, make you clean, &c. Having cenſured as nought-worth all their pains and coſt about Gods worſhip in outward things, now he teacheth, how Luther. he may be ſerved acceptably, viz. by ceaſing from thoſe foul ſins, for ſo they ſhould waſh off the bloud upon their hands, and become clean and fit to worſhip God by ſacrificing and praying to him.

Verſ. 17. Learn to do well, ſeek judgement, &c. Here ſome good works are mentioned
Sasbont. for examples ſake, intimating all others. Ierom by waſhing underſtands Hieronym. Baptiſm under the Goſpel commanded, as pleaſing God better then all Sacrifices:
but withall evil muſt be put away, and good done, as alſo Iohn Baptiſt
Luc. 3. there preſecribeth.

Verſ. 18. Come and let us reaſon together: Jerom, Come and reprove me; that is, if ye Hieronym. do thus, ſpeak openly againſt me, if I forgive not your ſins, if of a ſcarlet colour
I make them not white, that is, of moſt foul clean, as when a bloudy cloth is thorowly waſhed, reprove me of falſhood, levity and inconſtancy.
And the word יָכַח of which the word here uſed cometh, doth ſignifie to argue or reprove. But by the Septuagint, Vatablus, Tremellius, and others, the word נִיכְחָה is rendred, Let us diſpute or reaſon together, as men that be

be at controverſie; and if ye do thus,and I clear you not, reprove me: otherwiſe acknowledge that ye are by me both charged and puniſhed juſtly, and indeed the word is of that Tenſe, which amongſt the Hebrews hath the force of the Imperative, viz. of the ſecond future, the firſt perſon plural. God condeſcends herein unto his people, that they ſhould argue with him as one man with another, being willing to have it judged againſt him if he did not juſtly.

If ye be willing and hear, ye ſhall eat the good things of the Land. Becauſe Verſ.19.
he had before threatned *verſ.*7. that ſtrangers ſhould devour their Land for their diſobedience; now he promiſeth the contrary, if they would incline their mindes to hear and obey: whereby, ſaith Calvin, is not intimated, that Calvin.
man hath free-will to good, for this is Gods ſingular grace, but that when he doth evil, he is not hereto impelled, but doth it of his own will. Hieronym. Hieronym.
contrariwiſe, God hereby confirms unto man the liberty of his will, that he may as he is willing, or will not, attain the reward: or be deſtroyed, for ſo it followeth, If ye will not, the ſword ſhall devour you. Yet in his Epiſtles he writes againſt the liberty of mans will maintained by Pelagius, ſo Liberty of that this liberty of will muſt needs be underſtood of mans will holpen by will. grace, and not by any natural ſtrength thereof, and this help of grace is offered in the Word to all hearers, in ſome few, who do what they can, taking effect, in others not, and ſo they are hardened. Now although that which man can do of himſelf, is nothing, yet if it be wanting, and he cooperates not, when grace is offered, the courſe of all grace is in him dammed up. A man indeed in corruption is dead, yet he is not in all things like the dead; but in that he cannot of himſelf do ought to his own reviving, any more then one naturally dead: for there is in ſuch ſome light of nature, and a conſcience of good and evil, which is not in the dead, wherefore he in his quickning is not a meer patient, as the naturally dead, but when grace is offered, acts his part together with it, yet no thanks to his will, but all to grace, becauſe without it his act is nothing, as a childes is not in lifting a weight far beyond his ſtrength at the Fathers command, and by his help.

But if ye will not, the ſword ſhall devour you. That is, ſaith Ierom, who will Verſ.20.
have it a Prophecie of the Evangelical times; the Army of the Romans ſhall deſtroy you, but the Caldeans ſword firſt did it.

*How is the faithful City become an harlot, judgement filled her, righteouſneſs Verſ.21.
lodged in her, but now murtherers.* This is alſo by Ierom underſtood of the Hieronym.
time when Chriſt was by the Jews murthered; and for righteouſneſs, he ſaith, and that rightly, is צֶדֶק, the Righteous, the Lord being meant, who lodged many nights there. But it was alſo fulfilled in the time of Ahaz, when Idolatry was ſet up: for ſpiritual fornication by going from one God unto more, makes an harlot as well as corporeal. It was the faithful City, becauſe the true Faith was there taught, and the only true God was there ſerved aright, and there were many godly perſons dwelling in it. For juſtice lodged there; the Septuagint have it, In her juſtice ſlept or reſted, to ſhew, that it was conſtantly executed, judges uprightly doing their office to the incouraging of the good, and the terrifying of the evil, as Iehoſhaphat is ſaid to have appointed Judges in every City, and both in his time, of Aſa and 2 Chron.19.
David, Ieruſalem was famous for her fidelity towards God. The faithful City ſhe is called, becauſe faithful, as to an husband a wife, abhorring from Calvin.
all other wayes of divine worſhip beſides thoſe which he hath preſcribed in his Word as adulterine, for the Church is the Spouſe of God. And if Ieruſalem ſo famous for the faith fell thus fouly, why not the Church of Rome? Muſcul.
againſt that, which they commonly object, the faith of the Church of Rome was famous throughout the world. The word tranſlated Harlot, ſignifieth an Hoſtice, who receiveth into her Inne all comers, for ſo in Ieruſalem the evil and corrupt manners of all wicked Nations about were received, idolatry, fraud, oppreſſion, hatred, injuſtice and bloudſhed. When Piety and true

true Religion prevailed, ſhe was full of judgement, that is, of good Judges, who judged juſtly; ſo alwaies Religion is accompanied with juſt and righteous dealing, but if that be away, this cannot be looked for in any place. Then Juſtice lodged in her, becauſe the righteous might lie down, and ſleep ſecurely, but now murtherers, that is, the moſt wicked might be without fear for want of good Judges.

Note.

Verſ. 22. Pſal. 12. Hieronym.

Thy ſilver is turned into droſs, thy Wine is mixt with Water. By ſilver, ſaith Ierom, underſtand pure teaching, for this is the word, which is more pure then ſilver, tried in the fire ſeven times; the word tranſlated droſs is the ruſt of ſilver, or the ſordes ariſing upon the trying thereof, then which nothing is baſer. Wine is mixt with water when the Word is not taught to reprove ſin, but handled ſo, as that the hearers may be pleaſed. The Word was likewiſe mixt with water by the Phariſees, when the Law was corrupted by mens traditions through mingling therewith; and likewiſe by hereticks, who under pretence of the Word, teach their own, corrupting of it, they turn wine into water, contrary to Chriſt, who turned water into wine. The Law was pure and unmixt, when delivered and taught by Moſes, but ſince thus groſly corrupted. Of the Word ſet forth by wine, ſee Prov. 9.5. Some by ſilver underſtand faithfulneſs to God; by wine, fervency to do Juſtice, according to the two things before complained of, The faithful City becoming an harlot, and for Juſtice lodging there, murtherers: ſilver then is turned into droſs when it is degenerated to Idolatry, and wine mixt with water, when this fervour to juſtice into all manner of injuſtice, and wrong and diſſoluteneſs in all wickedneſs. Others by ſilver underſtand men, that are pure Teachers, as Plato ſometimes taught, That the wiſe had gold in their hearts, men of good common underſtanding, ſilver; others braſs or iron. Muſculus mentioneth a little underſtanding, that their ſilver and wine were deceitfull, but concludeth the metaphorical. Calvin, becauſe ſilver droſs looks like ſilver, and wine mixt with water like wine, takes it for a taxing of hypocrites, who ſeem to be godly: let the Reader take it either this, or any of the three wayes before mentioned, for they come all to one.

Ita loquitur ut non corrigat, ſed delectet auditores.

Muſcul.

Calvin.

Verſ. 23. Hieronym.

Thy Princes are perverſe and companions of thieves, &c. Jerom according to his manner applying this to Chriſts time, ſaith, That the Scribes and Phariſees were theſe Princes; and upon Chap. 2.7. the Judge hears the thief, and condemns him; the Judge is a thief giving ſentence againſt himſelf in another. They love gifts, he ſaith not, they take gifts, for this they may do for their need, but they count him not a friend who giveth not to them, looking not to the mouth, but to the hand, neither count they them Saints, by whom ſomething comes not in to the filling of their pouches. They follow retributions, Symmachus renders it viciſſitudes; whereupon Ierom expounds it, rendring evil for evil; the word is שלמים in Cal. ſignifying to be perfect, in Piel, to retribute. Hereby therefore is meant, that they would do nothing for any man by judging for him, but as he bribed them, for good done, gave them of his goods, and for ſuch retribution they would judge an evil cauſe to be good. For this cauſe the orphan and widow, who were poor, from whom no ſuch retributions could be expected, went without Juſtice, they cared not for judging their cauſe, but they were put off from time to time. The firſt words, Thy Princes are perverſe, Hebr. There is a paranomaſie in them, Saric, Sorrerim, ſignifying, Recedentes or perverſi, ſo ſaith Calvin, Epiſcopi may be called Epiſcoti, vel apoſcopi. Cardinales carnales, vel carpinales, and we may call Canonicos cenonicos, Præpoſitos præpoſteros, becauſe they are nothing leſs then that which they pretend to be, they are overſeers, but in darkneſs, or erring from the mark, carnal or carpet-men, &c. For hating gifts, ſee Exod. 18.21. Chap. 23.8. Iſa. 33.15. Bribes, ſaith P. Damianus, though they do not quite blinde the eyes, yet they take away the liberty of ſpeech, when the conſcience tels the Judge, that he received gifts of ſuch a man, wherefore let us not ſtrive, ſaith he, in the ſervitude of money, but let us ſerve in the liberty of Juſtice. Which is not pictured by the Throne of Jupiter, as a certain flatterer once told Alexander, when he was ſo full of ſorrow for killing Clitus his friend, viz. to ſhew, That whatſoever the King or Jupiter wils is Juſtice, but that the King ſhould be ſubject to Juſtice, as Bias ſometime ſaid, that he was truly a Prince, that made himſelf firſt ſubject to the Laws, and Juſtinian, Principis digna vox, ſe ſubditum legibus profiteri, becauſe the Law is the rule of Juſtice, and where this is not kept, all things are full of tumult, which threatens deſtruction to the Prince himſelf.

Calvin.

Verſ.24.

Therefore ſaith the Lord, &c. I will comfort me of mine enemies, &c. He beginneth with this word הוי which ſome will have to be an interjection of rejoycing, becauſe he ſpeaks of being comforted, when he took revenge, as Ezek. 5.13. and Deut. 28. he ſaith, As I rejoyced over them to do them good, ſo will I rejoyce to bring evil upon them: But it is properly of one grieving, and hereby is ſhewed, That the Lord puniſheth unwillingly: he grieved when he muſt deſtroy Jeruſalem, and wept over it, as a Phyſician grieves for his Patient, when he muſt cut or uſe other violence to him to his greater danger. Mans deſtruction then is not a thing that God delights in, but grieveth for. In ſaying therefore, I will comfort me, he ſpeaks after the manner of men, who when they can be revenged upon ſuch as do them wrong, take ſome comfort in it, yet as a father correcting his childe doth it grievingly, which grief notwithſtanding it is a comfort to think of the good, which may redound to his childe hereby; ſo the Lord out of his compaſſion grieveth when he is forced to judge, but for his Juſtice hereby glorified he rejoyceth: הוי therefore ſignifieth either heu dolentis, or ah exultantis. Calvin hence rightly notes, That unjuſt Judges, and ſuch as wrong the helpleſs are Gods enemies, and he will proceed againſt them accordingly. He grieves, that by no other means the City will be reformed, and yet it is a comfort to him to think of the reformation thereof by any means, even by ſevere judgements, and therefore of this it is propheſied to the end of the Chapter, for which this is made the ſecond part.

Calvin.

Verſ.25.

I will turn my hand upon thee, and will purge thy droſs as water. Vatablus renders it, as ſope, the word is כור ſignifying a ciſtern, wherein is water to purge and waſh withall, and ſope doth not properly ſerve to purge the ruſt of ſilver, and I will take away all thy pewter, a * Metaphor taken from thoſe that try metals in the fire purging from precious ſilver all droſs and pewter. The meaning is, they were of ſilver turned into droſs, but he by his judgements would make them of droſſie and pewter, ſilver men and women again, that is, of vicious, virtuous. But as Jerom ſaith, hereby great ſufferings, as by fire, are firſt intimated, ſo Malachi ſaith, He will ſit down as a refiner to purge them, but in the Goſpel another ſimilitude is uſed, He will throughly purge his floor. That we may not be grieved at Gods judgements upon his Church out of meaſure, but with comfort expect the iſſue, the Church more purified and purged, and in the wars and miſeries hereby ſuffered tending to this, look at Gods hand, of which the Prophet, I will turn my hand upon thee, for otherwiſe men could do nothing.

* There is alſo בר of בָּרַר ſignifying purity, and ſo it is meant, as any purified thing.

Hieronym.

Mal.3.2.

Note.

Verſ.26.

Hieronym.

And I will reſtore thy Judges as in the beginning, &c. That is, ſaith Jerom, ſuch as thou hadſt at the firſt; Moſes and Joſhuah, and after them David, and other godly Kings, which according to the Hebrews was fulfilled, when after the Captivity Zerubbabel, Jehoſhuah, Ezra and Nehemiah were ſet over them, but he rather refers it to the time of the Goſpel, when of Chriſtians godly Rulers were ſet over the Church, at what time thou ſhalt be called, Civitas juſtitiæ, the juſt and faithful City, for the Church now conſiſting of Jews and Gentiles is ſet forth by a City ſet upon an hill. It may well be referred to both, and the clauſe anſwers to verſ. 21. where it was complained, that the faithful City was become an harlot, but now it ſhould come to have the name of the faithful City again, and the City of the juſt one, as the word Tzelak properly ſignifies, that is, of Chriſt who taught there, and kept many Mat.5.

Luther.
Regis ad exemplar totus componitur orbis.
Muſcul.

ny feaſts there. Or Faithfulneſs ſetteth forth piety preſcribed in the firſt Table, Righteouſneſs, juſt dealing with men preſcribed in the ſecond. Luther notes from hence, when God will bleſſe a Commonwealth he ſets up good Magiſtrates, but when he will puniſh, evil ones and corrupt, for in them is the beginning of bleſſedneſs or miſery, the people being moſt commonly as they are. Muſculus commemorating that Expoſition, whereby it is ſaid, that the meaning here is, they ſhould not have Kings any more, but ſuch Judges and Councellors, which are all one, as Moſes, Joſhuah, Barak, Gideon, &c. viz. Zerubbabel, Ezra, Nehemiah and the Maccabees, holdeth rather, that ſuch Judges as David, Solomon and Jehoſhaphat are meant, becauſe in the time of the former Judges Jeruſalem was not the faithful City, but then firſt began to be famous, when David was King, and brought the Ark thither, and ſet up the holy worſhip and ſervice of God there. This, I confeſs, is a ſeeming exception to thoſe that take this as a Prophecie of the alteration of Kings into Judges again. But becauſe that for Kings they had then Judges, and good Judges or Princes, I cannot but approve well of that Expoſition, and then theſe words, As in the beginning, have reference not ſo much to the City conſiſting of houſes and buildings, as to the people inhabiting there, that is, the Jewiſh Nation, who ſhould be governed as at the very firſt, before that ever they inhabited that City, by righteous Judges.

Calvin.
Muſcul.
Hieronym.
Sasbont.

Verſ.27. Sion ſhall be redeemed in judgement, and they that ſhall be brought back to it in Juſtice, Heb. and her converts in Juſtice. Theſe words are ſpoken, that if it ſhould be doubted, how ſo great a work ſhall be wrought, as was before ſpoken of, it might be underſtood by the power of him that judgeth righteouſly. For although in mans reaſon it appeared not, how this bleſſed change could be made, yet God, to whom nothing is impoſſible, could do it, and his juſtice could not but do it in regard of his gracious Promiſes made to his people. He ſpeaks thus, ſaith Calvin, to draw mens mindes from any thing in themſelves to God, in whom alone all their righteouſneſs lieth. Muſculus either ſo, or they that ſhall be brought out of Captivity ſhall be ſuch, viz. faithfull and righteous, according to Jerom, not all, but a remnant, which ſhall be righteous, ſhall be brought back, the reſt being deſtroyed, as the next words do declare. And then, Shall be redeemed in judgement, is as one ſaith, not raſhly, but theſe being choſen out, and brought back, which be righteous. Some think judgement to have reference to the great judgement of the ſeventy years Captivity, as if it had been ſaid, being firſt judged temporally. Laſtly ſome refer this to the redemption made by Chriſt of a Church, conſiſting both of Jews and Gentiles, in ſaving whom it was judicially proceeded, Chriſt ſatisfying for their ſins, and becauſe the devil, who had before power over them, had abuſed it to the murdering of the Lord of life, all power over them was now taken from him. The next words do plainly ſhew, becauſe he ſaith, The reſt ſhall be deſtroyed, that it is literally to be taken, as Jerom expounds it, and myſtically to be referred to the redeemed by Chriſt. And all this muſt be done out of Juſtice for his promiſe ſake, which the juſt God cannot but make good.

Muſculus.

Verſ.28. But a deſtruction ſhall be made of tranſgreſſours and ſinners together, &c. This is added, leſt the wicked ſhould lay hold of the Promiſe before-going, becauſe ſuch are alwayes mixed with the godly, although they cloke their wickedneſs by hypocriſie: for the righteous being delivered, they ſhall be deſtroyed, and utterly periſh; God will ſingle them out in his due time, and they ſhall not eſcape. Here are two ſorts of ſinners threatned, the more notorious and the leſs, Sceleſti & peccatores, as in the vulgar Latine; ſo that whether they be noted ſinners, or go on in ſin more cloſely, they ſhall not eſcape perdition. They that fall from God ſhall be conſumed. They fall from God, ſaith Muſculus, who go from his profeſſion or communion of his Church, and their puniſhment ſhall be to be conſumed by poverty, and miſery, and want, as many of the Jews were.

For

Verſ.29. Muſculus. For they ſhall be aſhamed of the Oaks which ye have deſired, &c. By Trees and Groves here ſpoken of, their falſe wayes of worſhip are to be underſtood, their Idolatries in ſuch places committed, whereby they hoped to have been holpen, but when they ſhould ſee that in ſtead of help, deſtruction was hereby brought unto them, they ſhould be much confounded. And he cals them the Oaks that they had deſired with all earneſtneſs, to intimate how eagerly Idolaters and ſuperſtitious perſons are bent to their own way. Becauſe men delight in green Trees and pleaſant Gardens, they thought that God was likewiſe affected, and being by this conceit blinded, none could ſtay them from running to ſuch places; The vulgar Latine for Trees have it Idols, but the word ſignifieth either Oaks or Gods, coming from ſtrength, and Oaks are robora. And he cals them [The Gardens which they had choſen] to ſhew, that theſe were no places by God appointed, but of their own deviſing, whereas indeed all our worſhipping of God ſhould be regulated by his will revealed in his Word, all other devices are as the Gardens, which the Jews choſe, even an abomination. For God appointed them ſacrificing upon one Altar, only to exerciſe their obedience, and to teach, That Obedience is better then Sacrifice, and that all humane inventions introduced into his worſhip are baſe and vile.

Verſ.30. Muſcul. And ye ſhall be as an Oak, whoſe leaves are fallen, and as a Garden without water. This is ſpoken in alluſion to that which was ſaid, verſ.29. it being meant that they ſhould be deprived of all their wealth, which is as leaves, for ſo much as they bear no fruit, and leaves are upon Trees to comfort the fruit and to ſhelter it in ſome part, and to adorn the Tree. And as a Garden without water withereth, and beares no herbs nor flowers, ſo ſhould their eſtate be, withering and conſuming, as was before ſaid. And he paſſeth from the third perſon to the ſecond, to ſhew, that this judgement was not far, as being to come upon them, not by the Romans, but by the Babylonians, becauſe now they were ſo much tainted with Idolatry, but not afterwards, when the Romans deſtroyed them, for they were then clear from this ſin.

Verſ.31. Hieronym. And all your ſtrength ſhall be as tow, and the work thereof as a ſpark. As tow, ſaith Jerom following Symmachus, as the refuſe of tow, which a little fire ſoon conſumes, he meaneth, that the ſtrength of Idolaters ſhall be brought to nothing, in the day when God ſhall judge them; for it ſhall eaſily be deſtroyed with all their pride, as an imbecil and weak thing, and that by the work thereof, that is, the Idols, which they made, and thought they did mightily in making them, for this very thing ſhould prove by Gods juſt judgement to them, as a ſpark to the baſe frothy gear going out of tow when it is dreſſed, utterly to conſume them, none being able to help againſt it. Adam Sasbout. Some by their ſtrength underſtand their Idols, which they thought moſt mighty to protect them; as God is called, The ſtrength of Iſrael, but from all their ſuppoſed ſtrength, when they work to any wicked thing, ſhall come no help, but a ſpark to conſume both themſelves, and their ſervitours. But if we render the word פעלו the maker thereof, as may be and is by many rendered as well as the work, then the ſetter up of Idols to himſelf is meant, from this his wicked act ſhall come a fire to conſume both himſelf and them. And in ſaying, None ſhall be able to quench it, he ſheweth, That the wrath of God ſhall burn everlaſtingly againſt the wicked, as is further expreſſed Chap. 30. and *Chap.*66.

CHAP. II.

Verſ.1. THe Word which Iſaiah the ſon of Amoz ſaw upon Judah and Jeruſalem. He began the former Chapter thus, The Viſion of Iſaiah, which he ſaw, here, The Word which he ſaw, becauſe there he threatned the Jews, but here being to ſpeak comfort both to Gentiles and Jews, he begins with the Author hereof, Hieronym.

Joh.1.
Muſculus.

the Word or Son of God, ſaith Jerom, which was in the beginning; and this comfort cohereth with that ſpoken of, *Ch.*1.26,27. being added for further confirmation and explanation. But yet comforts are here ſo uttered, as that threatnings alſo follow, as in *Chap.*1. comforts followed after threatnings: the word is alſo put for the thing in many places, and ſo Muſculus takes it here, the firſt is more acute.

Verſ. 2.
Galat.*l.*3.*c.*3.
The Rabbins ſay, that Mount Zion under the Meſſiah ſhall be ſet upon Mount Carmel, and Thabor being elevated three furlongs higher Dan.2 35.
Hieron.
Baſil.
Rupert.
Mat.16.16.
Mat.5.
* And ſo the Church of Chriſt comes to be glorious above all Temples, either that of the Jews which did but figure this out, or the high places of the Gentiles.
Gen.49.
Vatablus.
Muſcul.

And it ſhall be in the laſt dayes, that the mountain of the houſe of the Lord ſhall be ſet upon the top of the mountains, &c. This is not literally to be underſtood, as ſome Rabbins would have it, inferring hence, That the Meſſiah is not yet come; ſith no ſuch miracle hath been hitherto wrought of elevating Mount Zion. But forſomuch as Daniel ſpeaks of a ſtone falling from a Mountain without hands, which grew to a great Mountain, and filled the Earth, which Mountain did ſet forth Chriſt to come; rejecting the literal ſenſe, as abſurd, it is to be held that this mountain is ſet up above all Mountains, when Chriſt coming into the world was magnified above Moſes, Noah, Abraham, Iſaac, Jacob, and above all hils, when above other Prophets and Saints, and famous Martyrs. For upon him as upon a Rock or Mountain is the Church of the Lord built, it is as a City ſet upon an hill*. And all Nations ſhall flow to it, v. 3. And much people ſhall come to it. By Nations the Gentiles being underſtood, and by people the Jews, it is here ſhewed, that the Gentiles ſhould more readily imbrace the Goſpel, and the Jews more ſlowly. The time when, ſhould be in the laſt dayes; of which Jacob dying ſaid to his ſons, I will tell you what ſhall come in the laſt dayes; and then ſpeaking of Judah, propheſied of Chriſt, The Scepter ſhall not depart, &c. And 1 John 2.18. Theſe are the laſt times. Vatablus ſaith, That Zion was made thus famous, when they returning out of Captivity built the Temple there again, but as Muſculus well noteth, this was not ſo, becauſe that Temple was not comparable to the Temple formerly built by Solomon; but the elevation of this Mountain lay in the glorious Goſpel of Chriſt, which went out from thence. Whereas all Nations, it is ſaid, ſhall flow to it, this is contrary to the nature of waters, and this Metaphor intimates a Miracle, mens hearts ſet upon the world lifted up to this high Mountain, as if waters ſhould be made runne up an hill: and the word flowing is uſed to ſhew their ſwift coming, and their voluntary coming, without any compulſion.

Verſ. 3.
Gen.28.
Bernard. Serm. 27. in Cantic.
Calvin.
* Neither do they ſtirre up others, but themſelves together, for they ſay not aſcend ye, but let us aſcend.
Sasbont.

And they ſhall ſay, Let us aſcend up to the Mountain of the Lord, &c. Believers ſhall not onely come willingly, but alſo ſtirre up others to aſcend to this Mountain, Chriſt and his Church, by imbracing the ſame faith, and turning by repentance from all their ſins, and the word is varied, To the houſe of the God of Jacob: alluding to the name Bethel, where Jacob lay and had his viſion. The Jews object, That this is not fulfilled in us Chriſtians, becauſe we go not to Jeruſalem, but when we come to Chriſt, and to any Oratory dedicated to his worſhip, we go to Bethel, that is, Gods houſe. And the ſame Church is alſo in the new Teſtament often called, The Kingdom of Heaven, becauſe of the extent of it, ſaith Bernard, being extended as heaven from Eaſt to Weſt in the univerſality thereof, the Sunne thereof being Charity, the Moon Faith, the morning Starre Hope, and all the reſt of the Stars other Virtues, or the Saints in the Church ſhining in Virtue. So that the houſe to which Chriſt and his Apoſtles would bring us, is none other but that which was figured out by Bethel, the houſe of the Lord, being the ſame now, and then, and alwayes, that is, The Congregation of the faithfull: And he will teach us his wayes, and we ſhal walk in his paths. The truly faithful are not content to walk in the right way themſelves only, but invite others to do the like, and to joyn themſelves to the Church of Chriſt by believing, which is to go up to the houſe of the God of *Jacob. As if they had ſaid, We have been hitherto taught in the wayes either of Moſes, or of Plato, or other Philoſophers, who have taught the way of virtue and endeavoured thus to bring to happineſs, but they have onely endeavoured it, now let us go to the Lord Jeſus, who will both teach us and ſtrengthen us to walk in the paths tending to happineſs, and finally bring us unto it ;for this is meant, when he ſaith, He will teach us his wayes, and we ſhall walk in his paths * : for the Law ſhall go out of Zion, that is, the Law, not concerning one Nation of the Jews, but the new Evangelical ſaving Law given to all Nations, whereby they may live, is firſt taught at the Temple in Sion, and from thence is carried abroad into all Countreys by Chriſts Apoſtles and Miniſters, according to that Commiſſion, Go, teach all Nations baptizing them in the Name, &c. The Law came once out of Sinai, now out of Zion, to intimate a new kinde of Law, and therefore the abrogation of the old, which ſtood in figures and rights, it being yet for ſubſtance the ſame, but coming forth in another habit, that being put off. And leaſt any man ſhould think, that a continuation of the ſame Law is meant, because the word [Law] is uſed, it is to be underſtood, that the word תורה ſignifieth as well Doctrine as Law, and ſo ſetteth forth all the Doctrine of God in general. Now the preeminence above all Mountains being for this given to Mount Zion, how is it that the hils of Rome, whereof no ſuch thing is ſpoken, ſhould vaunt themſelves as the chief and above all, whereas if any Church in the world be the chief, it muſt rather for this reaſon be the Church of Jeruſalem ?

* For this is the end, of our being taught, to walk accordingly, & they be his wayes that we muſt walk in, not mans.

Calvin.
Muſculus.

Verſ.4. And he ſhall judge among the Gentiles, and reprove many peoples, and they ſhall break their ſwords into Mattocks, &c. By Gentiles amongſt whom he ſhall judge, Jerom underſtands the converſion of them propheſied of, and by the many peoples whom he ſhall reprove the hardening of the Jews, for which they ſhall ſuffer ſharp reproof, becauſe they believed not in him, whom God ſent. And the deſcription of peace here made, and ceaſing from warre, that they might follow their Husbandry, to the time when Chriſt was born. For the Nations burning alwayes in a deſire of warre one againſt another before, as appears by the Hiſtories of all times, were in peace under Auguſtus Caſar, anno 41. of his Reign, and twelve years before. A place like to this for the firſt words, is *Chap.*42.1. He ſhall bring forth judgement for the Gentiles, that is, Juſtification for ſuch as believe, as they ſhould generally do. When judging is joined with an Accuſative caſe, it is againſt the party ſpoken of, but when with an Ablative, for him, although this rule doth not alwayes hold. Whereas it is concluded, Neither ſhall they learn War any more] it is not meant time without end, but not a long time after, as indeed it fell out, ſeeing there was no warre during all the time, that Chriſt lived upon earth, nor till almoſt fourty years after, when Jeruſalem was deſtroyed *. Thus Adam Saſbont, who alſo applieth that of his arguing many people, to Chriſts reproving of the Jewiſh Phariſees and Scribes, and the Spirits reproving of the world afterwards by the Apoſtles his inſtruments, according to that, I will ſend the Spirit, and he ſhall reprove the World of ſin. Others, By judging amongſt the Nations, underſtand Chriſt ruling and reigning amongſt them, and not amongſt Jews only, and ſo in a farre more ample manner, then David had done, and by reproving, reforming the Doctrine of the Church corrupted, and the manners of men in all parts thereby. And this is more ſimple then the former, and agreeth beſt with the words following touching ſuch an univerſal peace, which our modern Writers alſo expound of the peace which comes by Chriſt amongſt all the truly faithful ; ſo that agreeing in him, Nation warreth no more againſt Nation, nor Neighbour quarrels, or is at ſtrife with Neighbour, but becauſe the Goſpel is not unanimouſly imbraced by all men, but even they amongſt whom it is received, receive it not ſolidly either in their hearts or opinions, there be quarrels and diſſentions either in their hearts or opinions, there be quarrels and diſſentions, and wars ſtill even in all places, where the Lord judgeth and argueth or reproveth, neither muſt we look for the perfect fulfilling of this, ſaith Calvin, till we come to Heaven. * But in all thoſe that are truly ſanctified it is fulfilled here, and they have little profited by the Goſpel, that are not ſo cicurated as to lay away all envy and contentiouſneſs, and injuſtice, and to ſeek to do good offices towards one another, as he that turns his ſword in-

Hieronym.

Saſbont.

* See a like ſpeech 2 Kings 6.23. The Syrians came no more, that is, not a long time after.

Joh.16.8.

Zuinglius.
Calvin.

* And to this effect Irenæus alſo l.4.c.67. Origen.l.5.cont. Celſum.

to a plowſhear in ſtead of fighting and killing, and ſlaying, now endeavours by his Husbandry to get wherewithall to feed himſelf and others. But that this Prophecie is againſt all uſe of the ſword under the Goſpel, as ſome teach, as if now no battels upon any occaſion ought to be fought; or Magiſtrates to uſe the Sword againſt malefactours, is to be denied, as abſurd, ſeeing ſtill it is ſaid, The Magiſtrate bears not the Sword in vain; and the Law of Nature teacheth, vim vi repellere: yet it is true, if all were ſo converted by the Goſpel as they ſhould, there would be no more uſe of one Sword, or of the other.

Rom.13.

Verſ.5. O houſe of Jacob come, and let us walk in the light of the Lord. After a Prophecie of the converſion of the Gentiles, here followeth an Exhortation to the Iſraelites to turn alſo, for to walk in the light of the Lord is nothing elſe but by the light of the Goſpel to go to Chriſt. But foreſeeing by the Spirit the hardneſs of their hearts, to which God would give them over for their ſins, that they ſhould not turn, he immediately by an Apoſtrophe turns to God, and ſaith, Verſ.6. Calvin. Certainly thou haſt forſaken thy people, because they are filled with the Eaſt,&c. He takes up this Exhortation, ſaith Calvin, to aggravate the hardneſs of their hearts the more; as if he had ſaid, Sith the Gentiles exhort one another, ye ſhall not want Exhortation to walk in the light; and ye are the [Houſe of Jacob] a people peculiarly choſen of God, they but Gentiles, for which it will be the more to your confuſion, if ye do not, as I know ye will not. [a] But the cauſe why they do not is noted, verſ 6. to be Gods leaving of them, his giving them over to hardneſs of heart, and that for their groſs ſins, as it is ſaid of the idolatrous Gentiles, *Rom.*1. The coherence of this verſe with the former, is, as if he had ſaid, but what ſhould I do ſpeaking to them to come, ſeeing God hath in his juſt judgement forſaken them, and being left of God all Exhortations are vain unto them [b]. They are full of the Eaſt] The word קדם rendered the Eaſt, ſignifieth alſo the beginning; ſo that it may be underſtood of the abominations of the Canaanites, which they found there, when they began to enter the Land. The vulgar Latine, Septuagint and Chaldee, Repleti ſunt, ut olim, they are filled as of old, or at the firſt, and ſo the word may denote their being addicted to Idolatry, for that was the old ſin of Iſrael, and in it they continued, till they were by Nebuchadnezzar deſtroyed. If it be taken for [From the Eaſt] then it is to be underſtood as ſpoken of their Divinations, for which the Eaſtern parts, where Balaam lived, and from whence the Magi came, were notorious; and the next words ſhew, how they were full of the Eaſt, viz. they had Soothſayers, Augures, ab Avibus, ſo called becauſe by Birds they divined, and there were Aruſpices, divining by the entrails of Beaſts, &c. One kinde is named, and the reſt alſo meant; and this was a ſin ſtraightly forbidden *Deut.*18. But what was this to the Jews in the time of the Goſpel? Calvin ſaith, The Scribes and Phariſees were their Soothſayers, becauſe they took as great heed to their ſayings as of old to Augurs, not to be moved herefrom by any means.

[a] Rupert. will have it to be the exhortation of the convert Gentiles to the Jews. Calvin.

[b] The word rendered certainly is כי for, and the ſenſe may be, I ſpeak thus to them, for I know that their caſe will be ſuch that they ſhall have need to be exhorted. Marlorat.

Calvin.

And it is ſaid, They had Soothſayers, as the Philiſtims; To aggravate this ſin the more in them, when God had diſtinguiſhed them as his peculiar people from the uncircumciſed Philiſtims, to affect to be like them in this devilliſh vanity.

And they have mingled with ſtrange children; That is, either living by the ſame impious laws that they did, as deſirous to be all one with them, to come into the more favour: or taking their daughters for wives without all regard to Gods Laws forbidding it, whereby their children were part Jews, and part Heathens: or buying fair boyes of the Heathens, with whom they mingled themſelves as Sodomites. And thus Jerom takes it, ſaying, That this ſinne ſo farre prevailed amongſt the Greeks and Romans, that their moſt famous Philoſophers kept ſuch publickly; and Adrianus the Emperour having been brought up amongſt the Philoſophers, kept one Antinous, and for the love which he bare to him, built a Temple, and appointed Sacrifices to his honour, and built a City, calling it after his name Antinopolis; and this filthineſs continued till the time of Conſtantine, who did quite put it down. And this ſeemeth ſpecially to be meant, becauſe *Chap.*1.10. they are called, Princes of Sodom, &c. and *Ezek.*16. they are compared to the Sodomites for their ſins; and *Iſa.*3.9. They have ſinned with Sodom. Yet Calvin rather prefers the firſt, having firſt mentioned all three. Calvin.

Hieronym.

The Land is full of ſilver and gold, neither is there any end of the treaſures, it is alſo full of horſes. Amongſt other vices covetouſneſs is here taxed in them, whereby they were in the midſt of their abundance in their minds unſatiable, which is meant, when he ſaith, There is no end of their treaſures, becauſe they knew not when they had enough, according to the Poet, Semper avarus eget, the Covetous alwayes hath need. But to lay up treaſures upon earth is forbidden; and the King of Iſrael muſt not multiply horſes, much leſſe private perſons. Therefore this alſo is reproved, as arguing pride and diffidence in God, for which cauſe they ſo greatly increaſed the number of their horſes, that they might be ſtately carried, and by means of their horſes the more able againſt their enemies in battel. Oecolampadius ſubſcribing to this, as alſo Calvin, yet addeth another of uſing their ſilver and gold, to make thereof glorious Idols, as is complained *Hoſ.*2. Againſt horſes, and truſting in horſes, ſee *Pſal.*10.9. *Pſal.*147.10. *Pro.*11.31. Verſ.7. Hieronym. Matth.6.18. Deut.17. Oecolamp.

And her Land was filled with Idols, &c. Verſ.8.

A man bowed himſelf, and a man humbled himſelf, therefore ſpare them not. This is by Jerom referred to the time when Adrians Image was ſet up in the Temple, but unaptly, becauſe the Jews in thoſe times abhorred all Idols. It is therefore meant of their preſent and paſt Idolatry added to their other ſins. Whereas man is twice named, Hebr. the firſt is אָדָם ſetting forth one of the common ſort; the other אִישׁ a Prince or Noble man, for all ſorts were Idolaters; in Latine it is Homo and Vir. For Idols, Hebr. is אֱלִלִם Vanities, to ſhew how vain and nought-worth they were. And ſaying, The Land was full of them, he intimateth the inſatiability of Idolaters, in theſe vanities, A man bowed himſelf to the work of his own hands, Hebr. They bowed themſelves to the work of his hands, that is, ſaith Vatablus, of the Image-maker. Which is added to aggravate their ſin: For man is the work of Gods hands, and for the work of God to bow before the work of man, is moſt unreaſonable, and an indignity to God. If it be ſaid, The matter is the work of God, that is not bowed to, but the form which is the work of man, and therefore to this is the humiliation. Whereas *verſ.*9. may be taken as a further aggravating of the ſame ſin. Vatablus renders the word, And a man is bowed, and a man is humbled; as if hereby were ſet forth his puniſhment, he is bowed and brought down by heavy judgements falling upon him, whether he be ſmall or great, for thus the ſame words are uſed, *Chap.*5.15. So Calvin and Oecolampadius. And if it be thus taken, the laſt words will agree well, And he will not pardon them, as the Septuagint reade them, and they may beſt be read. And thus the Queſtion is avoided, how Iſaiah could approve his love to them, when he prayed againſt them contrary to the manner of Moſes and Paul? But reading it as an imprecation, it is to be held, That the Prophets imprecations were but predictions of judgements, ſeeing they ſpake by the ſpirit of Prophecie; yet it is to be underſtood, that whereas it is commonly read, Therefore ſpare, or forgive them not, Hebr. it is וְאַל and not. Verſ.9. Oecolamp. Jer.10.14. Vatablus. Muſculus. Vatabl. Calvin. Oecolamp.

Go into a Rock, hide thee in the duſt from the ſight of the fear of the Lord, &c. This is by Jerom expounded, 1. Literally, ſeeing ſo great judgements ſhall come, flee into ſome Cave in a Rock, or hide thee in the duſt from them, when they ſhall be executed by the Caldeans and Romans, and ſo that place, They ſhall call upon the Rocks to cover them, is agreeable to this. 2. Anagogically, flee to God, as to a Rock and a Refuge, for ſo it is ſaid, The ſtony Rock is a refuge for the Conies: and Moſes was hid in a Rock, whilſt God paſſed by, and Verſ.10. Hieron. Revel.6.16.

ſo he ſaw his back-parts. This Anagoge is not followed by any other Expoſitor, but the literal by moſt. In bidding them flee, ſaith Calvin, he ſheweth what Calvin. they would do, viz. through terror, wiſh rather to die and to be in the grave Muſcul. a thouſand times then to live ſo affrighted. From the ſight of the fear of the Lord, that is, the terrifying judgements, which God ſhall ſend for ſin; and herein his power ſhall be glorified, for which it is added, And from the glory of Junius. his magnificence. Junius, Go into a Rock, that is, to ſave thy ſelf there, if thou canſt, by a Sarcaſmus, for there will be no place wherein the wicked may ſave themſelves, when judgements come, horſes and arms, and ſilver, and men will be of none avail then, for theſe are vain to ſave in time of judgement.

Verſ.11. The loftineſs of mans eyes ſhall be humbled, &c. As before he ſpake of Adam and Iſh, the common ſort, and the Princes being humbled; ſo he here further confirms the ſame, the higheſt lookt, and the proudeſt ſhall periſh alike as the common ſort; ſo there ſhall no man be eminent any more or glorious, but Vatablus. God only, who ſhall have all the praiſe of power and greatneſs, Hebr. as Vatablus, The lofty eyes of man; for pride and humility appear moſt in the eyes, but when judgements come, no pride, but humility appears in them. God only is exalted, when by his works of judgement it appears, that neither Idols nor men are any thing to him, but he alone is of all power, and this is acknowledged, as is not now by the wicked, but then ſhall be.

Verſ.12. For the day of the Lord upon every one proud and haughty, &c. That is, a certain time is ſet by him, in which he will ſend his judgements to humble and bring down every one that is moſt high amongſt men, or proud and ſtout, as even meaner perſons oft times are, when they are reproved or threatned. Some Hieronym. ſaith Jerom underſtand this of the day of Judgement, and by the proud the devil, who is brought in vaunting himſelf moſt proudly, Iſa. 14.12. But the day here ſpoken of, is the time of judging thoſe againſt whom Iſaiah propheſied by the Caldees. And who ſo are tainted with the ſame ſins are alſo herein threatned, of what Countrey or Nation ſoever.

Adam Saſbout. Here be three Degrees of the elate, that ſhall be brought down, which Saſbout expounds thus, The proud, thoſe that conceive highly of themſelves, the haughty, that carry themſelves aloft, as if they were ſomewhat above the condition of man by reaſon of their wealth and honour. The lofty or arrogant that vain-gloriouſly boaſt of their own doings and parts, and extol them. He 2 Pet.3. alſo ſaith, The day of the Lord is ſometime put for the day of Judgement, ſometime 1 Cor.3. for a ſtrict examining of every mans work, ſometime the day wherein he ſheweth his Almighty power in notably puniſhing the wicked, or ſaving his people; and ſometime for vengeance or judgement of the Lord, as in this place.

Verſ.13. Upon all the Cedars of Libanus, and the Oaks of Baſhan. Mount Libanus lay between the Arabians and Phœnicians, where the higheſt Cedars grew, and Baſhan a region on the other ſide of Jordan, being ſometime the Kingdom of Og, but ſince the poſſeſſion of the two Tribes and half, where the greateſt Hieronym. Oaks grew; and by Cedars and Oaks growing here, metaphorically Princes and great men in this world are underſtood, upon whom the Prophet threatens Gods judgements. And this Allegory doth moſt aptly ſet forth ſuch men Calvin. and their condition to be ſuch, that they have no cauſe to think themſelves ſafe, how high ſoever they be. For though great man or high, as high as a Cedar, great as an Oak, yet by a tempeſt God rends them down with as little ado as any poor ſhrub, ſo he can and will in the day of his wrath the proud, how Lyra. great ſo ever, as Calvin. Lyra will have the fortifications and inſtruments of warre made by the Jews of Cedar and Oak underſtood here, as if it were meant that the Caldees ſhould deſtroy them. But the firſt is better, and thus Cedars are taken Ezek. 17.3. and in other places. And well might the Princes in Jeruſalem be ſet forth by the name of Cedars, becauſe they had houſes of Cedar, and dwelt in a City ſeated upon a Mount, as the Cedars grew upon Mount Lebanon

banon; and laſtly by reaſon of the white ſtone wherewith the wals of this City were built, it appeared white to thoſe that approached, as Libanus through the ſnow thereon. Baſhan was famous for fruitfulneſſe, therefore the fat Buls of Baſhan are often ſpoken of, and the Oakes of Baſhan were the beſt fed Oaks, figuring out the rich and pampered with all delicacies and pleaſures.

Verſ.14. Muſcul. Hieronym.

And upon all high Mountains, &c. The ſame are hereby alſo meant, men proud and ſtout, yet Muſculus underſtands alſo the inhabitants of the mountains and hils, becauſe of the high-places ſo infamous for Idolatry that were there. Some are likened unto Mountains, ſaith Jerom, for the greatneſs of their virtues, and ſome for the greatneſſe of their vices, eſpecially of pride for the Nobility of their Birth, they ſhall be torne by Gods judgements.

Verſ.15. Calv.

And upon every high Tower and fenced wall. In theſe the Jews truſted, hoping by means of them to be defended: but theſe were broken down at the coming of the Caldees, and afterwards of the Romans, no Fort being able to ſave them.

Verſ.16. Sasbout. Calvin.

And upon all the ſhips of Tarſus, and the exquiſite pictures. The Septuagint for the ſhips of Tarſus have, The ſhips of the ſea, affirming that in the Hebrew tongue, Tarſis ſignifieth the ſea, the reaſon is by Sasbont yielded, becauſe the precious ſtone called Tarſus, in the breſt-plate of Aaron, which is rendred a Chryſolite, was of a sky colour, therefore any ſea being of this colour, is called Tarſus. But Tarſus was alſo a City in Cilicia lying North from Jeruſalem, and ſtood near the Sea, from whence many ſhips were ſent out from time to time, to fetch gold and other precious things, whereby they were enriched, and ſo corrupted by pride and other vices; ſo Solomon ſent ſhips from Tarſus, which returned once in three years. In threatning theſe ſhips then he meaneth the ſtripping them of their wealth. The vulgar Latine for exquiſite pictures, hath, Super omne quod viſu pulchrum eſt: The Septuagint, Super omnem aſpectum pulchritudinis navium. But the Hebrew words ſignifie Pictures of delight, or pleaſant Pictures. And theſe are by Calvin expounded of Tapiſtry-works, and Turky-works, and carved-veſſels of gold or ſilver, wherein they much delighted; and theſe are mentioned together with the ſhips, becauſe in them brought from beyond Sea; but ſpecially, as I take it, ſuch Pictures are meant as were abuſed to Idolatry, for *ver.*18. the abolition of all Idols is threatned, as a further explanation of this clauſe.

Verſ.17.

The loftineſs of man ſhall be brought down. This is nothing elſe, but a repetition of that which was ſaid *verſ.*11. to ſhew that the Cedars and Oaks, Mountains, &c. hitherto threatned, were great, and proud, and high-minded men, metaphorically ſo called.

Verſ.18. Muſculus.

And he will aboliſh Idols. That the Land was full of them, was complained *verſ.*8. as the main cauſe of Gods wrath; now their abolition is commemorated, as the end of his judgements upon men. When God is forced to purge a Land of Idols by his judgements, great deſtructions come together, and ſo it is by Chriſtians to be expected, if they of themſelves put them not away.

Verſ.19.

And they ſhall enter into the holes of the Rocks,&c. A repetition of that verſ. 10. only there he bids them enter in, here he ſaith, they ſhall, through the fear coming upon them.

Verſ.20. Zuinglius. Hieronym.

In that day a man ſhall caſt away his Idols of ſilver and of gold,&c. The things which Idolaters have truſted in, ſhall in the time of Gods judging them be ſo far from being had in eſtimation by them any more, that they ſhall caſt their precious and moſt eſteemed Idols away as unprofitable and vain, and that into moſt ſecret places, where they may never more come to light, as being utterly aſhamed of truſting in things ſo vain; wherefore he ſaith, They ſhall caſt them to the mouls and the bats, that is, according to Zuinglius, ſome into the cliffs of the earth, and ſome into dark corners of houſes. The vulgar Latine, He ſhall caſt away the Idols, which he made to adore: the mouls and the bats, that is, ſaith Jerom, blinde as the mouls, and in darkneſs as the bats, for unto theſe he compareth their Idols, which have eyes and ſee not, and as the bats vaniſh as ſoon as the light of the Sun cometh; ſo they, for the light of truth ſhining, Pagnin. no Idols are ſeen, but that being gone they appear. Pagnin. Ut incurvaret ſe ad imagines talparum & veſpertilionum, that he might bow himſelf to the Images of the mouls and bats, as if the Jews worſhipped not only other Images, but theſe alſo, which is incredible. Neither can this ſenſe be drawn out of the words without adding the word Images, and the Prepoſition ל before the word חפּור ſignifying a moul, plainly ſheweth, that by theſe laſt words ſuch obſcure creatures are meant, as unto which they ſhould caſt their Idols, according to the former Expoſition, becauſe ל is, to. The Septuagint for mouls, hath vain things. Symmachus, Infructuoſa. Veſpertilio the bat hath the name from Veſpere volare, becauſe in the evening it flies out. It is like a mouſe, and brings forth young likewiſe, not eggs, and gives ſuck, yet hath wings, but not of fethers, and avoids the light; a fit embleme of the devil, as Baſil makes it, who flies in the darkneſs of ignorance, and is not long in hatching, as birds, but ſoon brings forth, and ſeems to be an Angel as a bat a bird, and hath teeth as the bat to bite.

Verſ.21. Hieronym. And they ſhall go into the clefts of the Rocks, &c. This Jerom expounds not, as *verſ.*19. but of men turned from Idolatry, when of blinde like mouls they come to ſee, they ſhall ſeek the holes of virtue to hide them in, and renounce Calvin. the errors of their former opinions. Calvin and ſome others take it for an inculcating of the ſame thing, that it might make the deeper impreſſion. Vatabl. Vatablus for theſe words [And they ſhall go] rendering it, that they may go, as if here were yielded the reaſon, why they ſhould caſt away their Idols, viz. that they fleeing without any carriage might make the more haſte. And becauſe other things before ſpoken of are again repeated, and the words here uſed are for the moſt part the ſame with thoſe *verſ.*19. I cannot think with Jerom, that a different thing is meant, but the ſame with Calvin, their hiding themſelves for fear, as alſo *verſ.*10.

Verſ.22. Hieron. Ceaſe therefore from man whoſe breath is in his noſtrils, why ſhould he be reputed? Jerom, Quia excelſus reputatus eſt ipſe, and he ſaith, that it is by the Jews expounded of Chriſt, but in a contrary ſenſe, as if they were warned to take heed of him, as a weak man, and therefore after Aquila, they reade the laſt words Wherein is he to be eſteemed? He alſo expounds it of Chriſt, who though he draweth breath by his noſtrils, as another weak man doth, yet for his Divinity he is acknowledged the moſt high. Thus he alſo ſaith Origen expounds it, becauſe ſpoken of a ſingular man, which is Chriſt the Lord. But the Septuagint omit it, at which he marvels, but not all the verſe, but only the laſt clauſe, which yet is now alſo in all copies. The cauſe of the different reading is in the word בַּמֶּה becauſe במה ſignifies excelſum; Jerom renders it ſo, but forſomuch as it ſignifieth alſo wherein. Pagnin and Munſter, and others after Aquila render it wherein, or for what is he to be reputed? And it is by them generally expounded of any man of what power or dignity ſoever in this world, Ceaſe yet from truſting in him, for he liveth by his breath, which if it be ſtopt he preſently dieth. And this is moſt agreeable to the premiſes touching the abaſing of man, *verſ.*11,17.

CHAP. III.

Verſ.1. For behold, the Ruler, the Lord of hoſts will take away from Jeruſalem and Judah all the ſtrength and ſtay,&c. This is a continuation of the ſame Prophecie, as the firſt word [For] ſheweth, the coherence with the laſt verſe of the former Chapter being this. Becauſe ye will not ceaſe from truſting in man, the Lord will fruſtrate all the ſtrength of your mighty ones, and that by taking away their ſuſtenance, bread and water. Hieronym. Jerom following on in applying this to Chriſt, ſaith, becauſe they refrained not, but perſecuted him, they ſhould be by the Roman Army beſieged, and have no power to reſiſt, untill that all their proviſion being conſumed, they ſhould all be made feeble and periſh by famine. He alſo applieth it ſpiritually, they ſhould have no ſound teachers left upon whom they might ſtay, nor any ſpiritual food to nouriſh the ſoul. For although the Jews have the parchments, wherein the word of God is written, yet being without the underſtanding thereof, their ſouls periſh for want of the ſpiritual food herein contained. That by bread and water, the Word truly ſet forth is meant, ſee Amos 8.11. But forſomuch as in enumerating the particulars to be taken away, the Prophet ſpeaks altogether of corporeal and external ſuſtenance, and *verſ.*7. is plain for corporeal food, it is better to follow the literal ſenſe only. Cyril. Baſil. Yet allegorically Cyril, Baſil and Haimo alſo underſtand by bread and water ſpiritual food, and ſome the bread of the Sacrament of the Lords Supper, and the water of Baptiſm, of the comforts whereof men ſhall be deprived for ſin. And the Ancients generally underſtand this threatning as belonging to the time, when the Roman Army was by Gods juſt judgement brought againſt Jeruſalem for their cruelty againſt the Lord Chriſt, againſt wronging of whom, they take the laſt words of the former Chapter to be directed. The words tranſlated ſtrength, or ſtaff, and ſtay, are all one; but that the firſt is of the Maſculine, the ſecond of the Feminine gender, by the Septuagint therefore rendred validum & validam, and hereby he means both men, Judges, and Prophets, and women, as Miriam, Deborah, Huldah, &c. Bread is called the ſtaff of bread, becauſe hereby life is ſuſtained, as an old feeble man by a ſtaff. See the like *Levit.*26.26. *Ezek.*4.26.5.26. 14.13. And this is taken away not only in the want of it, but of a bleſſing upon it to make it nutritive and ſtrengthening.

Verſ.2. Hieron. The valiant and the Warriour, the Judge and the Prophet, the Diviner and old man. For the valiant, ſaith Jerom, the Septuagint have the Giant, but then it muſt be underſtood of a Giant not in an evil ſenſe, as *Gen.*6. but in a good, as *Pſal.*19. yet the word is נבור, ſignifying ſtrong or valiant. The valiant and warriour were taken away, when they became ſubject to the Romans, and could never get free from this ſervitude any more; the Judge, when they had no more Judges of their own, but the Romans were their Judges; Prophets alſo, that is, true Prophets ceaſed; and Diviners, that is, ſuch others as they had taken heed unto, that were the Prophets of Idolaters, who divined by the flying of birds, the entrails of beaſts, or any other unlawful way by conſulting with devils, or with the dead; of theſe Diviners it was ſpoken before, *Chap.*2.6. The old man is by the Septuagint rendred Presbyter, who is a man, though not of years, yet of wiſdom; in ſaying then that the old man ſhall ceaſe, he meaneth, the wiſe, all becoming like children for fooliſhneſs and vanity. In the firſt verſe generally, they in whom their ſtrength lay according to man, are threatned, here ſuch are more particularly enumerated; and verſ. 3. the valiant, who regard not their lives in defending their Countrey, who have alſo skill and ſtrength accordingly. Theſe and other men of warre are taken away, either when they are cut off, or of couragious they became cowardly. Calv. Diviners, ſaith Calvin, firſt ſeem to be taken in a good ſenſe, becauſe they are ſpoken of, as conducing to the well-being of a ſtate, yet afterwards he yieldeth to them that underſtand evil inſtruments hereby; of whom to be deprived, they in their ſuperſtition thought it a great puniſhment. But taking a Diviner in a good ſenſe, he underſtands by him one that hath ſharpneſſe of wit to finde out the meaning of things obſcure in the holy Scriptures. By the Prophet he underſtands all teachers of the Word, and the old man one old in years; and if it be taken ſo, then the meaning is, that the aged who is paſt warre, ſhall not be ſpared any more, then the young and ſtrong. But becauſe children ruling over them are ſpoken of, verſ. 4. and by them children in years are not meant, but in underſtanding, it is plain, that by the old man is meant one for his wiſdome made an elder, whether old or young.

The

Verſ.3. Exod.18. The Ruler over fiftie, and the honourable, the Senator and excellent Artificer and eloquent. As we have Captains over hundreds, ſo had the Jews over fifties, and theſe he threatneth ſhould be taken away, ſo as that they ſhould have none left skilfull enough to lead the leaſt band of men, and this is a weak ſtate of a people amongſt whom a valiant and skilfull Leader is of ſo great avail, that Epaminondas a valiant Captain of the Thebans dying, perſwaded them to make peace upon any terms, becauſe he ſaw that they had none fit amongſt them to be a worthy Leader, and ſo with him began and ended the Empire of the Thebans. For honourable, is acceptable of face, Hebr. hereby one being ſet forth, who for the eſtimation, wherein he was, might bear ſome ſway amongſt the Hieronym. people to direct and guide them. Jerom following the Septuagint puts this and the next together in his Expoſition, unum virum, admirabilem conſiliarium, the admirable Counſellor, who is but one of a thouſand, concerning whom, he ſaith, the Greek Poets have a ſaying, He is bleſſed firſt that is wiſe. 2. That hearkens to the wiſe, but he that doth neither is altogether unprofitable, both to himſelf and all others. And in our books, thou maiſt have many friends, but one Counſellor. And the Roman Conſuls had their name from this, that they guided that ſtate by their councel. The Jews then, from whom the Lord threatens to take away the honourable and Counſellor, were moſt miſerable. The excellent or wiſe Artificer is alſo taken away, Hebr. The wiſe in handy-works; of ſuch it is ſpoken, becauſe there is great uſe of them for the making of arms and inſtruments for the warre and fortifications; therefore when no ſuch are left, the people are in a weak ſtate; And the eloquent man] Heb. The man underſtanding myſtical or ænigmatical ſpeeches. The word לחש here uſed, ſignifieth Incantation or Charm. But a divine Charmer is meant, of whom the Pſalmiſt ſaith, They will not hear the voice of the Charmer, charm he never ſo wiſely: for the wicked are like Serpents or Adders not hearkening to a godly teacher, who wiſely layeth open divine myſteries; ſome yet there are, who have judgement in theſe things, of whom Paul ſaith, Let others judge. And amongſt the Jews ſome of the Prieſts were appointed to hear the Prophets, to judge who propheſied truly and who falſly; and of ſuch intelligent men it is here ſpoken, that none ſhould be left, but all taken away, and thus all means of good both corporeal and ſpiritual ſhould fail them.

Verſ.4. And I will ſet children for Princes over them, &c. That is, not in years, but in want of wiſdom and fortitude, for ſo Rehoboam, though fourty years old, was but a childe. The next word rendered [Little ones] is by Jerom tranſlated effeminate, and the word ſignifieth alſo childiſh and illuders. For, Woe, is it Eccl.10.16. ſaid, to thee (O Land) when thy King is a childe; the contrary to thoſe before named are meant, ſuch as like children are without underſtanding, and eaſily turned any way, and ſet their minds not upon things ſerious but vain, no not upon any heavy accident, as children play and laugh ſtill. The wiſe amongſt the Heathen accounted this the way to ruine. In Porticu taberna meritoria, it was thus written in golden Letters,

Roma vetus cum te veteres rexere Quirites,
Nec bonus immunis, nec malus ullus erat.
Defunctis patribus ſucceſſit prava juventus,
Cujus conſilio præcipitata ruis.

Nichomachus Vopiſcus. Dii avertant principes pueros, & patres patriæ dici impuberes, quos ad conſulatus dandos dulcia, circuli, & quæcunque puerilis voluptas invitet. And ſuch for imprudence, raſhneſs and inconſtancy were the Scribes and Phariſees, and the Zelots amongſt the Jews, who brought Jeruſalem to ruine, as Joſephus ſheweth more then the Roman power. By the effeminate ruling over them, or illuders, ſome will have the Romans meant, whom riches made of hardy, tender and luxurious, and Titus in particular, who delighted in Sodometry, as alſo Trajan, and who through Gods juſt judgement illuded the Jews, as they had mocked at our Lord.

Verſ.5. The people ſhall deal violently every one againſt another, &c. Hebr. it is, Man againſt man, the young againſt the old, and the baſe againſt the honourable.

In ſuch confuſion is a ſtate, when ruining, and this was the ſtate of the Jews, when being beſieged in Jeruſalem they were divided into three factions, one holding the Temple, another the Superiour, the third the Inferiour part of the City, fighting againſt and killing up one another. Calvin here notes well, Calvin.
becauſe this is threatned after the taking away of wiſe and ſtayed Governours, that it is the greateſt miſery, which can befall a Nation, to be without a good Government, and therefore they are great enemies to the publick good that impugn this.

Verſ.6. And a man ſhall lay hold upon his brother, ſaying, Thou haſt apparel, be thou our Prince, and let this ruine be upon thee. Theodotion for ruine, hath infirmity, ſaith Jerom, and the Septuagint meat; the meaning is, to ſuch poverty and want Hieronym.
ſhall they be brought, that they ſhall deſire to be ſubject to him, as their Prince, that hath but good apparel and food. They ſhall not chooſe him, that is wiſeſt, or valianteſt, or moſt noble, but that abounds moſt with proviſion.
The ſenſe then of theſe words, Let this our ruine be upon thy hand, is, Let our miſery and want be ſuſtained by thy aid. Vatablus, Put thy hand to this our Vatabl.
ruine to help againſt it. Hebr. Under thy hand, that is, to help it, as a Patient under the Phyſicians hand. Calvin here notes a moſt miſerable condition of a Kingdom, when to be Prince over it is a thing thought not worth the having, Calvin.
yea by every great man refuſed, although with ſome force drawn to it, as is intimated in ſaying, Shall lay hold upon him. For all men are naturally ambitious of Principality, at the leaſt, in any place there be ſome, but now in Judea there ſhould be none, an argument that it ſhould be brought very low. By their apparel, ſaith Muſculus, Nobles were known, others going baſely, but Muſcul.
now ſuch is the pride of the times, that a Nobleman and a peaſant cannot by their apparel be known aſunder. It is to be noted, that men deſire to commit the Principality to one that is wealthy, that he may not need to pill and poll his ſubjects, or in judging gape after gain.

Verſ.7. He ſhall ſwear in that day, ſaying, I will not be a Prince. Hebr. חבש a Chirurgeon or Phyſician, as Jerom renders it, rightly anſwering to the laſt words of verſ.6. Let this ruine be under thy hand; that is, to be bound up and healed, as by a Chyrurgeon healing the wounded. Hereby then is intimated, that a Prince ſhould binde up the breaches of the Kingdom, and heal the infirmities of all, wherefore the Greeks call a King ἀναξ, which comes of ἄνας, ſignifying a medicine. And Alciatus makes an Anchor with a Dolphin round about it an emblem of a King, becauſe as a Dolphin he ſhould foreſee tempeſts a coming, and providently hold the Ship of the Commonwealth as by an Anchor out of danger. The word tranſlated ſwear, is by Vatablus noted to come of נָשָׂא to Vatabl.
lift up, becauſe a man in ſwearing lifts up his hand to God, as Abraham; it Gen.14.
ſignifieth alſo to take, becauſe he taketh Gods name into his mouth. And here he that denies to take upon him to be Prince, is ſet forth as denying it with an oath, that there might be no hope of bringing him to it. And this, ſaith Muſculus, Note.
is the ſtate of the world, when there is apparent danger in having the Muſcul.
principality, but at other times, every one ſeeks it, and likewiſe touching Prelacy in the Church, when Biſhops were moſt expoſed to the danger of Martyrdom, and had little means, every one refuſed this dignity, but now hunt after it. There is not in my houſe bread or apparel, that is, not ſufficient means of maintenance for a Prince; for this is requiſite in one that is a Ruler, that he ſhould be a man of Ability, that he may both be of the more credit, and not have need to oppreſſe the Commonwealth by Bribes, but freely execute Juſtice and Judgement, as one that needs the gifts of none.

Verſ.8. Certainly Jeruſalem is come to ruine, and Judah fallen, becauſe their tongue and ſtudies are againſt the Lord to provoke the eyes of his glory. He ſpeaks in the Preter tenſe of a thing to come, for the certainty thereof. For their tongues againſt God, this moſt probably was by their mocking at his judgements, Cha.
5.10,24. and plainly refuſing to obey him ſpeaking by his Prophets *Jerem.*44.

Hieronym.

They were ſo deſperately wicked, that they ſet themſelves againſt God, and ſtudied how to provoke him. His eyes are ſpoken of, to ſhew their open ſinning, even as it were before the Judges face, not being aſhamed of any wickedneſſe, although his glory had oft ſhewed it ſelf unto them, yet they were nothing moved hereby to fear to ſin thus againſt him. And that their open ſinning is hereby meant, is ſhewed verſ.9. where they are ſaid to ſin with Sodom. Jerom applieth that of their tongues and ſtudies againſt the Lord, to their crying out, Crucifie him, We will have no King but Cæſar.

Eccl.8.1.
Heu quam difficile eſt crimen non prodere vultu.
Jer.3.
Hoſ.5.
Deut.32.27.
Prov.26.24.

Verſ.9. And the proof of their countenance anſwereth to them, they ſhew their ſin like Sodom, &c. That is, the impudency of their faces in other ſins committing, is ſutable to their ſpeeches: for herein they are as the Sodomites, who were not aſhamed to bid Lot to bring out the young men, that they might lie with them, as man with woman, which is an abomination. This may be taken as ſpoken in anſwer to them, if they ſhould ſay, Why do we come to ruine? whereby doth it appear, that we deſerve it? Anſw. If it appeared not otherwiſe, yet the cauſe might be ſeen in their countenance, which ſhewed pride, ſtoutneſſe, cruelty and effeminateneſſe. For the countenance oft times diſcovereth mens wickedneſſe, as wiſdom makes the face to ſhine; ſo it is hard not to bewray wickedneſſe by the countenance, as Ovid ſaith, and Seneca, Vultus loquitur quodcunque negas. So it is ſaid of an holy Biſhop ſometime, that he ſaw in the faces of thoſe that came to the Communion, who were wicked and who godly, for the faces of the one ſort appeared to him red and deformed, the faces of the other fair and amiable.. The word הַכָּרַת here uſed hath divers ſignifications. 1. For an alienation or transformation of the countenance, whereby the wicked, as if they forgat themſelves to be mortal men, carry themſelves moſt arrogantly. 2. For feigning himſelf to be another, as the wicked ſhew one thing in their face, but are another in their heart. 3. In Hithpael, he hath made himſelf unknown, and R. Jonah ſaith, that the Arabick Haccar, ſignifieth hardneſſe. And if it be thus taken, the meaning is, the hardneſſe or brazenneſſe of their faces teſtifie againſt. Otherwiſe their diſſembling countenance or their proud and diſdainful look.

Verſ.10.
Calvin.
Muſculus.

Say, it ſhall go well with the juſt, &c. That is, ſaith Calvin, reſolve upon it in your hearts, that what calamities ſoever come for ſin, yet good, as the word טוֹב ſignifieth, ſhall redound hence to the righteous. To work righteouſneſs, as Muſculus hath it, is hereby intimated to ſow, and of this ſowing, good fruit ſhall come in the end, as of doing evil, evil and deſtructive fruit, as is added verſ. 11.

Verſ.11.
Hieronym.
Sasbont.
Septuagint.

Wo to the wicked, they ſhall be rewarded according to the works of their hands. And ſo ſaith Jerom the Jews were, when as they had delivered Jeſus into the hands of the Romans, ſo they were at length by God delivered into their hands for their deſtruction, and by the Jews being a Noun ſingular he will have Chriſt underſtood, as if all men were exhorted to praiſe him, as doing a good thing in deſtroying the Jews for their enmity againſt him, and therefore rendereth it, He ſhall eat, for they ſhall eat, contrary to the Hebrew. This, ſaith Sasbont is ſpoken to the Reader of this Prophecie, it ſhall finally be well with every juſt perſon, but woe to the wicked; whereby eternal damnation is commonly ſet forth, Hebr. Here is no more in the beginning of this ſentence, but, Say to the juſt, כִּיטוֹב which may as well be rendered, that he is good, as that good ſhall be to him; but the common reading is to be preferred, as the next words added for explication ſhew. The Septuagint have a ſtrange interpretation here, reading it iſru for imru, bind, for ſay; and it is this, Binde the juſt one, becauſe he is unprofitable for us, as if it were the ſaying of Jews conſpiring againſt Chriſt.

Verſ.12.
Hieronym.

Little ones are oppreſſours of my people, and women reign over them, &c. Jerom according to his manner, applies this to the Scribes and Phariſees, who exacted Tithes and firſt-fruits through their covetouſneſſe, and for profits ſake rejected Chriſt. And he cals them women, becauſe they were drawn alſo by pleaſure, and ſo much regarded the favour of women, that they did in a manner rule in the Church. The ſame that before were called effeminate, ſaith Sasbont, are here called for more diſgrace women. Vatablus, and Calvin, and Muſculus underſtand it of their Princes, who were of little ſtrength and power as women and children be, ſo that he ſpeaks of it, as a wonderful judgement that they ſhould be under ſuch, whereas men naturally are ſo impatient of rule, if it be tyrannical and exacting, that they will not be brought under it, unleſſe by force: but theſe grew to that ſtupidity like aſſes, that a childe or a woman might exact upon them, and they bare it, and this is the beſt *. My people, they that govern thee, deprave thee. This is added, to ſhew by what means they that were of no more power then women, were exactors over them, viz. by ſeducing them, by getting ſuch Authority in their hearts, that they thought their dictates Oracles, and any thing well done, which was done according to their direction. For when people do thus over-honour their Princes, being ready to obey their wils in any thing, they are a people depraved indeed, and ſo is the way of their paths, as here followeth, that is, the whole courſe of their lives. The word rendered, They that govern thee, is מְאַשְׁרָךְ, They that bleſſe thee, and ſpeak all good unto thee, and as if there were no fear of any evil to come, ſaying, Peace, Peace, theſe make thee ſecure in thy ſins, till deſtruction comes ſuddenly upon thee. It may be applied either to their Elders, to follow whoſe Ordinances they were ſo addicted, accounting it the greateſt piety and ſecurity to the ſtate, or to their falſe Prophets, who countenanced theſe their doings, as from the Spirit of God, Heb. for the firſt words, Hebr. מְעוֹלֵל עַמִּי נֹגְשָׂיו My people, his oppreſſours a little one, the ſingular being joined with the plural to diſparage them the more in that they were oppreſſed by ſuch, as if all their wit and power were put together, they were but as one little one.

Vatabl.
Calvin.

* See the ſame before, verſ. 4.

Heb. מַתְעִם making erre.

Verſ. 13. Jehovah ſtands to contend, remaining to judge his people.

Verſ. 14. Jehovah ſhall come to judgement with the Elders, &c. Having ſhewed both the internal cauſe of their puniſhments, viz. their ſins, and the external, their unworthy Governors, now he cometh to threaten theſe Governours, who oppreſſed and ſeduced them, for ſo Jerom expounds [with the Elders] againſt the Elders, and this is by the following words, where he challengeth them for it, made plain, Ye have deſtroyed my vineyard, &c. Vatablus, To come to judgment with the Elders, is to come to judge them; ſo Pſ. 82. he ſets amongſt them to judge them for their faults in judging. After the manner of a great man at variance with others, he will come and ſtand to ſee if theſe Princes have any thing to ſay for themſelves, that a juſt judgement may be made betwixt him and them, as one not willing to carry it by his power, but that juſtice ſhould prevail. Saſbont by Elders here rather underſtands Abraham, Iſaac, Moſes, &c. with whom God will come to judge the preſent wicked Generation. And coming to ſpeak upon this, Ye have deſtroyed my vineyard, this, he ſaith, is the houſe of Iſrael, according to Chap. 5. But if ſo, as indeed it is, how can any other be meant, but their Princes, and Prieſts, and Elders, who by ſeducing them, and through exactions impoveriſhing them brought them to deſtruction: for it cannot certainly be ſpoken to the Commonalty, who were the perſons deſtroyed; wherefore the perſons deſtroying muſt be the wicked Elders, with whom he threatneth to come into judgement, as he before complained of them. Thus alſo Calvin and Muſculus. The Princes were accuſed Chap. 1. 23. that they judged not the fatherleſs or the widow; now God ſpeaking to that ſaith, that he ſtands to judge theſe his poor people by revenging their wrongs upon their Rulers, that none may think great men to have a licenſe to ſinne in their places any more then mean perſons. They are challenged for deſtroying Gods vineyard, whereby both is intimated, how dear the Church of God is to him, and what a foul ſin it is in Princes and Rulers over this vineyard, that ſhould dreſſe and keep it, after the manner of beaſts to eat it up and to waſt it. The ſpoil of the poor is found in your houſes; this is added for conviction; for when ſtoln

Hieronym.

Adam Sasbont.

Calvin.
Muſcul.

goods are found in the thiefs houſe, it is evidence enough againſt him: The Ruler counts that which he can get any way by reaſon of his place, his own: but God makes another reckoning, viz. That they be the goods of the wronged, for which the Judge ſhall anſwer. Muſculus. And ſuch, ſaith Muſculus, be the tithes, which are appointed to the poor in the houſes of Biſhops, Canons, and great ſecular men. This indeed is true of ſecular men, they taking of tithes cannot be excuſed of having the goods of the poor in their houſes, but if by Biſhops, Miniſters feeding the flock of Chriſt be meant, and keeping Hoſpitality for the poor, the accuſation is not true, ſith the tithes were at the firſt given to the Levites as their inheritance, who miniſtred about the Temple, and the tithes ſpoken of to be alike communicated to the Levites and poor, were tithes every third year ariſing out of the nine parts, when the yearly tithe was paid, as I have ſhewed upon the place.

Verſ.15. Why do ye beat my people or bruiſe them, and grind the faces of the poor, &c. Now the Lord is brought in as ſpeaking in judgement, or contending with the Elders. Vatablus. Muſcul. The firſt is alſo rendred by Vatablus, Atteritis, Why do ye wear out my people? that is, by oppreſſions and exactions bringing them to poverty, what an audaciouſneſſe is this for you, that are ſet over the people for the good of every one, through your pride and covetouſneſſe to do them ſo much evil? They are ſaid to grind the faces of the poor, who when they are brought into judgement are reviled and ſtricken upon the face both to their ſmart and ignominy, as was often uſed by the Jews, for ſo was Michaiah uſed, and Jeremy, and Chriſt, and Paul, and it is ſet forth by a Metaphor of grinding, becauſe the cheeks ſuffered violence between both the hands; ſometime being ſtricken with one, and ſometime with another; and this is ſet forth as ſpoken by the Lord God of hoſts for more authority and terrour to the greateſt. Vatablus to expreſſe the expoſition before-going, hath Colaphis caditis. But the faces of the poor are alſo ground by want, as Amos 8. 4. when they even periſh hereby.

Verſ.16. Alſo the Lord ſaith, becauſe the daughters of Zion are proud, and walk with a ſtretched out neck, &c. Having taxed the Princes and Elders, here, becauſe he had ſpoken before of women reigning over them, and exacting upon them, he ſpeaks againſt their pride and wantonneſs, ſaith Jerom, Hieronym. to maintain which the people were ſo greatly oppreſſed. And it is not only againſt the greateſt, but all women labouring with the ſame vices. And this pride is ſhewed in the affected carriage of the head and body, and of the feet in going. He mentioneth alſo another expoſition by daughters, underſtanding leſſer Towns and Villages about Zion, as we ſometime read of this City or that, and her daughters. And a third expoſition Tropolog. by daughters underſtanding ſouls. But it is beſt to underſtand it properly of the women of Zion, for whoſe ſake oft times ſuch exactions to the impoveriſhing of many were made, that they might be the more profuſe in coſt about their bodies. In reproving them the Prophet, 1. Cenſures their inward pride, as the fountain of their proud geſtures and ornaments, then by ſpeaking againſt ſtretched out necks, he taxeth their outward pride; for to have a ſubmiſſe look argueth humility, and a lofty look pride, which is intollerable in man, but much more in a woman, being the more infirm both in body and minde, and the firſt in tranſgreſſing. Wandering eyes here alſo next ſpoken againſt, argue immodeſty and inſolency, for the Matron-like carriage of the eye is a ſtayedneſſe. But much more do they offend, that paint their eye-lids and faces, ſuch pride is moſt intollerable, it being an attempt to amend the work of God. Walking about is alſo levity in women, and is ſpoken againſt by Paul, and they are bidden to keep the houſe, according to which the Ancients made Venus with the ſhell of a ſnail, to intimate that a woman ſhould alwayes have her houſe over her head, and look to the affairs thereof. The tinkling with her feet here alſo taxed, is underſtood by ſome of her affected gate after the manner of dancers, by others of coſtly ribbons with bels tied at her feet, which made a little tinkling noiſe as ſhe went, but all deviſed to ſet forth her pride; and if theſe things be taxed in women, much more in men, as arguing effeminateneſſe ſo curiouſly to deck and ſet forth themſelves, becauſe it is more tolerable in a woman, in whom attiring the body to make her ſhew the more amiable, renders her the more acceptable to her husband, whom ſhe ought to pleaſe.

Verſ.17. Muſculus. Therefore the Lord will make bald the top of the daughters of Zion, &c. As pride begins at the head, ſaith Muſculus, ſo doth the judgement threatned for it, the hair, which is the greateſt ornament to a woman, being taken away by ſome ſcab or ſcurvineſs, they being forced to pluck it off. Whereas it is added, that he would alſo diſcover their ſhameful parts, he underſtandeth it as accompliſhed, when by the Caldees they were ſtript and driven after the manner of beaſts into Babylon. Hieronym. Jerom for the laſt words hath, The Lord will make naked their hair; and ignominy ſhall be for ornament. The Hebrew is, He will lay open their nakedneſs, for the word עֶרָה ſignifieth nakedneſs, and ſo though it may ſet forth any naked part of the body, yet more properly the ſecrets, of the diſcovering of which women are moſt aſhamed, as being taught by nature to hide them. The meaning is, that whereas in their pride they multiplied their bodily ornaments unreaſonably, not being content ſome of them with their own hair, now they ſhould both be ſtript of garments and hair both, and be put into a moſt ſhameful and miſerable condition.

Verſ.18. In that day the Lord ſhall take away the ornament of the ratlers, the cauls and half moons. Hieron. The ornament of the ſhoes. But a word coming from the Vatablus. ſame Root is uſed here, and *ver.*16. expounded tinkling or ratling; and Vatablus ſaith, That the Spaniſh women did wear bels about their heels when they danced.

Verſ.19. Their olfactories, bracelets and miters; That is, ſomething hung about their necks, having ſweets incloſed therein, and their tires were vails covering head Vatabl. and face all but their eyes. The reſt of their implements, not to ſpeak of them in particular, becauſe I finde nothing but conjectures about divers of them; the reaſon why this enumeration is made, is to ſhew proud and light womens vanity in their dreſſes, unto which muſt go ſo many things all over the body from top to toe, and how much God is provoked hereby, that all ſuch as have any modeſty or fear of God in them, may eſchew this ſuperfluity, as a means to bring them to the want of all things, and be content with fewer ornaments, as becometh the humble profeſſing the truth.

Verſ.24. And there ſhall be for a ſweet ſavour a ſtinke, for grinding tearing, &c. That is, wherein any exceſſe hath been uſed, and pride ſhewed, a contrary puniſhment; ſo much doth God abhorre the curious, exceſſive and proud uſe of all bodily things, that we may be ſober herein. And for ſtinking it is noted Abluitur Judæis odor baptiſmate divo. by *Ammianus Marcellinus, lib.*2. That they were very irkſome to the Emperour Marcus for the ſtink that came from them, whereupon he cals them Fœtentes Judæos, and this Fortunatus ſaith, is waſhed away by holy Baptiſme.

Verſ.25. Thy men fall by the ſword, &c. Here again he returns to the deſtruction of thoſe in whom their ſtrength lay, their valiant men, ſo that the City Jeruſalem Verſ.26. which he brings in by a Proſopopeia, ſhall lie upon the ground, and her gates mourn, becauſe there ſhould be nothing but miſery, and matter of grief, and ſorrow for her deſolation.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ.1. Hieronym. IN that day ſeven women ſhall lay hold upon one man, &c. The number ſeven, ſaith Jerom, and ſometime ten, were familiar amongſt the Hebrews, becauſe of the Sabbath of the ſeventh day, and the ten Commandments. But by ſeven is not alwayes meant preciſely the number of ſeven, but many, ſo likewiſe by ten, as when Zechary ſaith, Ten men ſhall lay hold upon the skirt of a Jew, ſaying,

Muſculus.

The Allegory.

ſaying, We will go with thee. For the preſent place, ſuch a deſtruction being made in Jeruſalem, as hath been formerly propheſied of, he ſheweth here, that many women ſhall be forced to follow one man, pleading only for the benefit of marriage with him, for the encreaſe of poſterity, it being then counted a great reproach for a woman to be barren. And this ſheweth, ſaith Muſcul. how few men ſhould be left by the ſword of the enemy, whereas there ſhould not be above one for ſeven women, & women for fear of wanting husbands ſhould lay aſide womanlike modeſty ſo far, as to offer themſelves to men, and whereas the man commonly ſhould provide for the woman food and raiment, to offer to provide theſe for themſelves. Baſil allegorically by ſeven women laying hold upon one man, underſtands the Jews living after their own laws, but laying hold upon Chriſt to be delivered from the reproach of ſpiritual barrenneſſe, and other Allegories there be of Jerom and Cyril, which are as little or leſſe pertinent. For the womans being called by the name of her husband, that hath been ſo ever ſince the Creation, for the woman is called Iſhah, from her husband Iſh, for as Iſhah ſignifieth a woman, ſo Iſh the man, although Adam called his wives name in another reſpect Evah, viz. becauſe ſhe was the mother of all men. And the Hebrews and Romans alſo called the wives by their husbands names, as Mary of Cleophas, Mary of James, Cornelia, Tullia, Caia, &c.

Verſ.2. In that day the branch of the Lord ſhall be to beauty and glory, and the fruit of the Land to excellency.

Muſcul.

Calvin.

Hieronym.

Verſ.4.

Tremel.

In that day] ſaith Muſculus, in thoſe dayes, whereby is not meant ſtrictly the time of the deſtruction before propheſied of, for what glory could there be then? but in a time that ſhould follow after this, viz. at their return out of Captivity. But by the Branch, ſaith Calvin, ſome underſtand Chriſt, becauſe he is ſet forth by this name, Zech.6.12. yet to him that ſhall more accurately look into this place it will appear, that not that branch, but a ſtock of people delivered and reflouriſhing again is meant, becauſe at the end of this verſe it is expreſſed, of whom this is ſpoken, viz. the delivered of Iſrael, and *verſ.*3. Thoſe that are left in Zion; Thus Calvin, who alſo laboureth to prove, that by the branch may be underſtood bleſſings temporal and ſpiritual, wherewith that people ſhould be bleſſed, who had been before made ſo miſerable. But Jerom by the Branch underſtands the branch of Chriſtianity ſpringing up in the time of the Goſpel, and the glory here ſpoken of, ſhall then be not to all, but to a remnant of Iſrael which ſhall be ſaved, of which remnant the Prophet ſpake before *Chap.*1.9. that is, the Apoſtles and ſuch as were converted by them, whoſe names were written in the book of life; ſutable to which is the ſpeech of Chriſt to his Diſciples, Rejoyce, that your names are written in Heaven. Verſ.3. When the Lord ſhall waſh away the filthineſs of the daughters of Sion, and the blood of Jeruſalem, that is, when they ſhall come to be baptized for the remiſſion of ſins, and in ſaying [bloud] he alludeth to that *Chap.*1. Your hands are full of bloud; and points at their crying out, His bloud be upon us and our children; they that turned being alſo cleanſed herefrom. And according to this the Fathers generally expound it; and Tremellius alſo, alledging *Iſa.*11. and *Jer.*23.33. where Chriſt is alſo called the branch, neither is any other elſwhere ſet forth by this name. And moſt aptly is Chriſt thus called, who ſprung up in Iſrael to the great illuſtration of that people, when they were waſted with many miſeries and brought moſt low, ſo that they had no Ruler of their own, but were under ſtrangers, the Romans and Herod, even as a tree cut down to the ſtump, but he then coming was as a Branch ſpringing forth, to glory and honour, when he wrought ſo many miracles, that made him famous in all parts, And the fruit of the earth to excellency and ornament to the deliverance of Iſrael. The Son, who was before called the Branch of the Lord, is now called the fruit of the earth, becauſe he took fleſh, and ſo was born upon earth; and he is ſaid to be an ornament to the deliverance, that is, the delivered, the abſtract being put for the contrete, and by the delivered are meant ſuch as are ſaved of the Church conſiſting both of Jews and Gentiles, which is Gods Iſrael.

And it ſhall be that the remnant in Zion, and in Jeruſalem ſhall be called holy, &c. That is, every one, who ſhall be delivered from the ſword, and infidelity by turning to the true faith, that is, every true Chriſtian ſhall be holy, even every one, that is written to life in Jeruſalem; here it is alluded to the writing of mens names in a book of Genealogies, for here they ſearched in the time of Nehemiah and Ezra, to finde who were true Iſraelites: but by Jeruſalem here is meant the heavenly Jeruſalem, where who ſo is written ſhall live for ever, but others not, and this is the book of Predeſtination, wherein no man knows who is written, but God only, till he be truly converted, for then he hath a white ſtone given him, and a new name written in it, which no man knoweth, but he that hath it. Verſ.3. Revel.2.17.

In the ſpirit of judgement, and of fire. In this verſe are the means, whereby they ſhall be ſanctified and made holy, that are by Chriſt delivered, viz. They ſhall be waſhed by Baptiſm, and unto water fire ſhall be added, as was done in the day of Pentecoſt, and thus every one that is truly baptized is baptized with water and the holy Ghoſt. Others that underſtand all this of the Jews returning from Captivity, ſay, that the Prophet having ſpoken figuratively of them, verſ.2. under the name of a Branch, and the fruit of the earth now ſpeaks of the ſame plainly, they ſhall be called holy, not that every one of them ſhall be ſuch, but ſo many as be elect, who are the inviſible part of the Church mingled here with the impure. For the reaſon yielded verſ.4. He will waſh away the filthineſſe, &c. They underſtand this of his deſtroying the wicked by his former judgements, who were as filthineſs and bloud amongſt them, but being taken away the remnant was pure and holy. Whence Calvin noteth, That judgements executed upon the Church in the moſt rigorous manner, do not, as is commonly thought, make againſt the welfare thereof, but for it, becauſe although the people be reduced to fewer, yet they are more worth now then all the great multitude before, becauſe holy. Verſ.4. Calvin.

And the Lord ſhall create upon all the habitation of mount Zion a cloud by day, and in the night the brightneſſe of flaming fire, &c. Hebr. A cloud and ſmoke, עשן as alſo Tremellius renders it, and Jerom: but Marlorat, Darkneſſe. And it is a Prophecie, ſaith Jerom, of renewing the like favours to the Church under the Goſpel to thoſe of old in the wilderneſs, the meaning being, that they ſhould be ſheltered from trouble both in adverſity and proſperity. Wherefore ſmoke here doth not ſet forth the darkneſs of ignorance or errour, but glory, as the houſe of God is ſometime ſaid to have been filled with ſmoke; and Joel propheſying of the coming down of the holy Ghoſt, ſaith, bloud and fire, and the vapour of ſmoke. Tremellius, upon every Tabernacle, that is, every Congregation of the faithfull ſhall be a cloud, that is, direction in the right way, and upon all the glory protection, or a covering, wherein it is alluded to the Tabernacle, over the glorious things whereof there was a covering, becauſe alſo verſ.2. it is ſaid, The Branch of the Lord ſhall be to glory, the Congregation is here ſet forth by the name of glory for the excellency thereof. The cloud and ſmoaky darkneſs, intimating the flame ready to break out, and the flame were both for direction to the Iſraelites going through the wilderneſs to Canaan, wherefore hereby is ſet forth, that the faithfull under the Goſpel ſhould have the direction of Gods Spirit through the wilderneſs of this world to the heavenly Canaan. And becauſe the cloud cooled and defended them from the heat of the Sun, but yet was occaſion of ſome darkneſs, their light not being ſo bright, and the flame of fire enlightened them againſt the darkneſs of the night: in ſpeaking hereof the Prophet ſheweth both the protection of God, that ſhould continually be over his Church, and the mixture of adverſity with proſperity for the greater good thereof. For light in the night ſetteth forth comfort to mitigate the darkneſs of calamity, and a cloud in the day, affliction whereby God tempereth the proſperity of his Saints, leaſt they being taken here- Verſ.5. Hieronym. Exod.13.21. Tremel.

herewith ſhould wax proud, wherefore God in the day of proſperity protecteth his with a cloud of affliction, and in the night of affliction viſits them with the fire of divine oblectation, for overmuch proſperity hurteth as much as overmuch adverſity, For upon all the glory ſhall be protection. Here it is alluded to the Ark, which was the glory of Iſrael, and becauſe the Ark figured out the Church under the Goſpel, it is meant that every Church ſhall be under Gods protection, and ſpecial providence, as the Ark and Tabernacle then was, when the cloud was over it.

Verſ.6. Ambroſ. Hieronym. Cyril. Omnia in nobis Chriſtus, ſi à vulnere curari deſideras medicus eſt ſi mortem times, vita eſt, &c.

And the tabernacle ſhall be a ſhadow in the day from the heat; and a receptacle and hiding place from the floods and rain. That is, the ſame protection ſhall be as the cloud to ſhadow the Church from the heat of perſecution of bloudy enemies, and a receptacle, &c. that is ſecurity to the faithfull againſt the floods of temptations either by danger or ſuggeſtions, ſee *Pſal.*27.5. *Pſal.*31.21. for Gods protecting of his. This benefit which cometh from Chriſt to the faithfull, is further amplified by Ambroſe, ſaying, If thou haſt need of cure, he is a Phyſician, if thou feareſt death, he is life, if thou fleeſt darkneſs, he is light, if thou deſireſt heaven, he is the Way, if meal, he is nouriſhment.

CHAP. V.

Verſ.1. Hieronym.

I Will ſing unto my Beloved a Song of my Beloved concerning his vineyard. Jerom, Canticum patruelis mei, and expounding it, he ſaith, The Prophet calleth Chriſt Patruelis, becauſe he was of the ſame Countrey with him, yet in expounding it, he ſaith, that this is made to Chriſt by the name of his Beloved, as is the title of *Pſal.*45. and according to which God ſaith of him, This is my beloved Son. And the word דודי here uſed ſignifieth either patruelis or dilectus. What this vineyard is *verſ.*7. ſheweth, viz. the houſe of Iſrael. Wherefore Jerom will have that of Chriſts weeping over Jeruſalem, and the Parable of the Vineyard planted, and let out to Husbandmen the ſame with this. In an horn, the ſon of oyl, Septuagint, in a fruitfull place; and ſo Tremellius reſpecting rather the ſenſe, then the Hebrew words. The Land of Canaan is hereby meant, called an Horn for the ſtrength thereof, and the ſon of Oil for the fruitfulneſs even from the river of Egypt, ſaith Jerom, to Euphrates, and in the latitude of it to the Mountain Taurus: And he ſaith, the Hebrews expound it, in an Horn, that is, a ſtrong place and lofty, the ſon of Oil, needing the mercy of God, and ſuſtained by his help, or yeelding the clear light of the knowledge of God to all Nations. Pagnin turneth, in an Horn, in an Hill, in the Syriack, in a corner of the Earth, becauſe that Land was in faſhion like an Horn, underſtand a ſtrong Kingdom, for ſuch had the Kingdom of Judah been. The ſon of Oil, eſpecially becauſe fruitfull in Hebrai. Olive trees, and in regard of the King and Prieſt there anointed with oil, being therefore called two Olives, *Zech.*4. but above all was Chriſt herein pointed at, before whoſe Birth a little Oil flowed out in Rome an whole day together, *Euſeb.Chron. Oroſii l.6.c.*10. This is, according to Jerom, the beginning of a ſecond Viſion, according to Tremellius this Chapter contains the ſumme of two Sermons going before, and it is ſet forth by way of Song after the manner of *Moſes, Deut.*32. One, becauſe the word Patruelis ſignifying uncle, is here uſed, will have Amiſiah Iſaiahs fathers brother meant. But to paſſe this over as a conceit; the ſame word, which ſignifieth Uncle, and Beloved, or Friend, is uſed, becauſe both come of one root, and he would ſet forth one moſt dear, as a moſt near Kinſman, which is Chriſt, and he calleth this his Song, becauſe he in Parables ſets forth Judæa, as a Vineyard planted and fenced, and let out to Huſbandmen.

Tremel.

Matth. 21.33.

Verſ.2. Jer. 2.21. Hieronym.

Which he fenced about, and gathered out the ſtones, and planted it with moſt fruitfull Vines, &c. Hieron. He planted it with Sorech, that is a kinde of moſt fruitful Vine that never ceaſeth bearing, but Symmachus alone not ſo fitly, renders ders it vineam electam, fencing it with a ward of Angels, and gathering out Idols, or whatſoever might hinder Gods worſhip, ſet forth by ſtones. And he built a tower therein and a Wine-preſs, that is, a Temple and an Altar, which received the Sacrifices brought out of all Iſrael, as the wine-preſſe grapes. For Wilde grapes, Aquila hath Peſſimos fructus. The Septuagint Thorns, either wherewith they crowned Chriſt, or the thorns of worldly cares, but the firſt is to be preferred, ſee the like *Pſal.*80.9. Theophilus and Euthymius, by the hedge underſtand the Law, whereby the people ſhould have been kept within compaſſe. But Origen ſaith, The cuſtody of God was the hedge, the Tower the Temple, the Wine-preſſe the place of drink-offerings, ſo *Zech.*2. I Will be a Wall of fire round about her, ſaith the Lord. Touching wilde grapes, they were ſo ſour, that they could not be eaten, becauſe they never come to full ripenes, whereas the grapes of a Vine planted are ſweet, the meaning is, The Lord looked for godly living and good works, but ungodlineſs and evil came forth in the old Jewiſh Synagogue, before their deſtruction.

Theoph.
Euthym.
Origen. in Joh.
*Hom.*19.

Verſ.3. Now therefore (lo) inhabitant of Jeruſalem, and man of Judah, judge, &c. The caſe being ſo plain that any man muſt needs condemn ſuch a Church and people, the Lord puts it to them whom he accuſeth, to judge, that out of their own mouths ſentence coming againſt themſelves they might be the more aſhamed; ſo Nathan dealt by David, and Jeſus by the wicked Jews. And he ſpeaks in the ſingular number, as who would refuſe no one of them to judge in this matter, it was ſo plain.

2 Sam.12.
Mat.21.40.

Verſ.4. What Was more to be done to my vine, Which I have not done, &c. Even as a carefull vine-planter can do no more, but plant in the beſt ground, the beſt kinde of Vine, gather out the ſtones and fence it well, and build a Tower from whence thieves coming to rob the Vineyard might be eſpied and prevented, ſo have I done, and yet for ſweet grapes I finde ſour grapes, which uſe to grow in the fields without any coſt. Nothing therefore can be alledged, as an errour in me, unleſſe that I have long waited for fruit; ſo Jerom. But this makes more for your condemnation, becauſe ye cannot deny, but that you have had time enough given you, as to a Vine time muſt be given to bring forth grapes to maturity. Calvin mentions this, as an expoſtulation of God with himſelf for waiting ſo long for fruit, and in the end to be fruſtrated, as a man is angry with himſelf, as having done ſimply in the like caſe, knowing the ill condition of a ground, to ſtrive with it, and to beſtow great coſt upon it, in the end looking for fruit and being deceived, becauſe he knew the bad condition of it before. But he prefers this as more genuine; What fault can be found in me after all this done and ſo long expectation, Sasbont takes it as an irony, unleſs I have faulted in this, that I have waited, which no wiſe man will affirm. If it be objected, God can make mens hearts anew. Anſw. Whatſoever he can do, although he doth it not, yet it cannot be objected as a fault unto him, for if he doth all, which he ought to do, it ſufficeth, as providing for the evident preaching of the Word, and the enlightening of the Underſtanding: for now he that brings not forth good fruit ſhall be condemned, not through any default in God, but only in himſelf; yet this ſatisfieth not, unleſſe it be yielded, that man by vertue of the light ſhining to his heart hath his will, which was bound up before looſned; ſo that now he can will the good, which alſo is indeed implied *Ezek.*18. and *Matth.*23.23. And ſo the fault is in rebellious man, ſith that although by nature, and of himſelf he be not able to will the good, yet when he hears outwardly, and the Spirit moveth his heart inwardly, he becomes able, and now becauſe he will not bring forth better fruit, he is juſtly condemned. If it be ſaid, But many hear not, amongſt whom the Goſpel cometh not. I anſwer, they that are under the Law ſhall be judged by the Law, but they without Law without it, for the evils which they have done againſt the light of nature; For this is the condemnation of the World, that light is come into it, but men love darkneſſe: And to him that knoweth to do well, and doth it not, it is ſin; And if I had not come amongſt them, they had not had ſinne, but

Hieron.
Calvin.
Rom.2.
Joh.3.
Jam.4.
Joh. 15.22.

but now they have no cloak for it; for this were not true, if when the Goſpel is preached it were not a ſufficient means to enlighten and encline the will, though naturally averſe, in whomſoever, however few be enclined by it.

Verſ.5. And now I will ſhew you, what I will do, &c. God is ſo gracious and unwilling that any of his people ſhould periſh, that he ſhews them before by his Amos 3. Prophets, what evils he will bring upon them being wicked, I will take away thy hedge, and break down thy wall, that is, the hedge and wall of my protection, Hieronym. whereby thy enemies have hitherto been kept from making a prey of thee, and treading thee under their feet by contempt. Jerom by hedge underſtands Sasbout. the guard of Angels, according to *Pſal.*34. and ſome by wall, good men, for murus magnus vir bonus eſt, A good man is a great wall, according to the Proverb. Joſeph. de bell. l. 7. c. 12. So the great brazen gate of the Temple a little before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem opened of it ſelf, and a voice of Angels was heard, ſaying, Migremus hinc, Let us go hence: So that this Prophecy was fulfilled, when the Romans deſtroyed it.

Verſ.6. It ſhall not be pruned nor digged, and I will command the clouds not to rain upon it, &c. Here the taking away of all good means of grace to bring forth good fruit is threatned, as leſſer chaſtiſements and afflictions, which are as digging and pruning, the end whereof is to keep Gods Commandments, as David Pſal.119. ſaith, Before I was afflicted, I went aſtray, but now I keep thy Commandments: and a with-holding of the influence of Heaven whereby famines come, Hieronym. as in the dayes of Ahab. And this, as Jerom ſaith, was not done, as ſome expound it, at the Babyloniſh Captivity, for Jeremiah was ſtill amongſt them, and afterwards Haggai and Zechary, but when the Apoſtle being rejected by the Act.28. Jews, ſaid, Henceforth we turn to the Gentiles. For the Prophets and Apoſtles are the clouds here meant, for which it is ſaid, Paul planteth and Apollo watereth; and *Iſa.*60. Who are theſe that flee as the clouds? Thus being deſtitute of means they ſhould henceforth bring briars and thorns of evil works, to aggra- Heb.6. vate more their condemnation, as the ground accurſed, the end whereof is to be burnt with fire.

Verſ.7. Certainly the Vineyard of the Lord of hoſts is the houſe of Iſrael, &c. Here the Parable is explained both for the meaning of the vineyard, and alſo for the meaning of the ſweet and ſower Grapes. Neither is it proper to Iſrael and Judah only, but common to us *Joh.*15. *Rom.*11. who ſhall likewiſe be judged for Gen.4. c.18. our evil fruits, by clamour or crying here ſpoken of is meant the crying of the oppreſſed by unjuſt dealing, or the crying out of unjuſt Judges againſt the innocent, as thieves and robbers upon the way againſt the traveller, as Chriſt Hieronym. was cried out againſt, Crucifie him. So Jerom and Cyril. Or laſtly, the crying out of any ſin, which particularly is ſaid to cry, as murther, Gen. 4. Sodometry, *Gen.*18. Oppreſſing of the widow and fatherleſs, *Exod.*22. and detaining the labourers wages, *Jam.*5.4. Heb. Elegans eſt Paranomaſia Expectavi משפט & ecce משפח & צדקה ecce צעקה.

Verſ.8. Wo to them, that joyn houſe to houſe, and field to field, &c. Here the Prophet enlargeth himſelf, taxing not only Judges, but all rich men who are unſatiable in their deſires by right and wrong to get into their poſſeſſion all the Lands and Houſes about them. But he is not to be underſtood, as condemning meerly the poſſeſſing of many grounds and houſes about them, but their covetous deſires which are never ſatisfied with that which is enough, in regard whereof they care not what becomes of others, being by covetouſneſs tranſported to that, which if they could attain to, they could have no comfort in it, ſith the rich cannot live without the poor, and man being a ſociable creature, if he ſhould have no neighbours inhabiting near him, could have little comfort of all his poſſeſſions. And in denouncing this woe he taxeth alſo unjuſt dealing and oppreſſion to Hieronym. the devouring of other mens eſtates. A deſire, ſaith Jerom, to have more houſes and grounds, then he knoweth how to uſe, for oſtentation, when others are harbourleſs, and want grounds to huſband for their ſuſtenance, is here cried out againſt. Would ye dwell alone in the midſt of the Earth? that is, would ye be all like Kings, ye rich men having all the Land in ſubjection to you, as they have. As proud Nero turned a great part of the City of Rome into an houſe for himſelf. Againſt ſuch ambition and covetouſneſs Ambroſe inveighing, ſaith, The Gentiles have called the Judge of hell Ditem, becauſe it ſhall be ſedes divitum, the ſeat of the rich, who when they moſt abound are in greateſt want, becauſe they think all things which others poſſeſs.

Ambroſ. de Naboth & bab, c.6.& 12.

Verſ.9. Theſe things are in mine ears, if many and fair houſes be not without inhabitant. For their unſatiable covetouſneſs, here deſolation is threatned to their houſes made ſo great and fair by their rapine, which was fulfilled, when they were partly cut off by the ſword of the Caldeans, and partly carried away Captive. And he begins, Theſe things are in the ears of the Lord of hoſts] That is, the cries of the poor before ſpoken of for the manifold oppreſſions of the rich, he the Judge takes notice of them, and will be avenged upon ſuch great and mighty men. The ſpeech is Ecliptical, part being kept in by an Apoſiopaſis and it is an oath for further confirmation and terrour, being to be ſupplied with theſe or the like words, Let me not live. Sasbont, Have not me for your God. And the like happens commonly to great rich mens houſes, upon the building whereof no coſt hath been ſpared, being within a few years left for Cadows and Jackdaws to dwell in; and ſo ſhall it be ſhortly, ſaith Muſculus, with ſumptuous Monaſteries, to ſhew the vanity of the founders thereof.

Calvin.

Muſcul.

Verſ.10. And ten acres ſhall make one bath of wine, and the ſeed of a chore an Ephah. A bath was ſeventy two Sextaries, that is fifty four quarts, a poor encreaſe of ſo much ground; A chore was a meaſure of twelve buſhels, an Ephah according to ſome, a Buſhel and a Peck; ſo Budæus; but ſome others ſay, Medimnus Atticus, a Buſhel wanting a pottle. However it was not above the tenth part of the ſeed ſown. Here then great barrenneſs is alſo threatned, wherewith they ſhould be puniſhed for their ambition & covetouſnes, they ſhould ſow much and reap little, as Hag. 1.6. for what greater famine, then when the tenth part of the ſeed ſown, and that upon a fruitfull ground, is ſcarce reaped? The vulgar Latine hath it Lagunculam unam vini, which Sasbont ſaith, was but equal in wet things to an Ephah in dry, but Hebr. it is בַת and for a chore, it hath thirty meaſures, and for an Ephah three meaſures, wherein Jerom confeſſeth, that he followeth the Septuagint, whereas Hebr. it is a bath and a chore, but yet whereas my Author makes a bath and Epha ſo much different, as fifty four quarts and fourty quarts, he ſaith, they were both equal, alledging Ezekiel, who puts them together, a juſt Epha, and a juſt bath.

Adam Sasbont.

Hieronym.

Verſ.11. Woe to them that riſe in the morning to follow drunkenneſſe. The Prophet having ſpoken of a vine doth here rebuke the vine-dreſſers, who when they ſhould attend upon this work, give themſelves wholly to riot and pleaſure, from morning to night, for thus, ſaith Jerom, do many Princes: for which the viol alſo and harp are ſpoken of verſ.12. And he applieth this to ſuch, as paſſe their time in pleaſure from the morning of their youth to the night of their old-age. Riſing in the morning to drink argueth the greateſt intention to this ſin, and continuing till night, ſuch as are given over to do things tedious even to nature, being carried on by an evil cuſtom; and they are ſaid to continue at it till the wine inflames them, that is, makes them more dry and thirſty, ſo that the more they drink the more they deſire it. The word rendred Drunkenneſſe, is Sichar, ſignifying wine or ſtrong drink, or any liquour cauſing drunkenneſs.

Hieronym.

Verſ.12. And the Lute and the Harp, &c. are in their feaſts. That is, to make them the more mad upon pleaſure, they uſe all manner of muſick. But they conſider not Gods work; that is, why man the work of Gods hands was made, viz. to labour in ſome honeſt calling, and to glorifie God, for they contrariwiſe like brute beaſts are without this conſideration. Some underſtand a double work, viz. of Creation and Redemption, neither of which drunkards conſider, to praiſe him, and to love and fear him, as men ought to do. For did they but conſider,

Calvin.
Muſcul.

Sasbont.

conſider, how God provideth meat and drink for all, and that when we eat we are therefore bound to bleſs God, as *Deut.*8.10. they would not be ſo brutiſh, or if they conſidered the ſufferings of Chriſt for our Redemption from ſinne, they would not ſo ungratefully ſit quaffing wine and ſtrong drink, when he taſted gall and vinegar for us, or exceed ſo in their mirth. Any of theſe wayes it may be underſtood, but chiefly of the worke of Judgement, which God was about to work amongſt them for ſinne, of which it is ſpoken, *verſ.*19.

Verſ.13. Therefore is my people gone into Captivity, becauſe without Knowledge, &c. That is, ſo ſtupified by gluttony and exceſs, that they know not him, who feeds them to ſerve him, but ſerve their own bellies. The Captivity and famine here threatned, is ſpoken of as paſt for the certainty thereof, but as Jerom ſaith was fulfilled in the time of Titus and Veſpaſian, ſince which the Jews have alſo ſuffered another famine, viz. of hearing the word. And it is ſaid, Their Nobles die with famine, to aggravate the judgement, and that it might be the more remarkable. For theſe were they that are before complained of *v.*12. to have uſed ſuch exceſs, but now they are in want enough, and ſo ſhall all intemperate and voluptuous brutiſh people be one day..

Hieronym.

Amos 8.

Therefore hell hath enlarged it ſelf. The word שְׁאוֹל ſignifying hell or grave is here uſed, and ſhe is ſaid to have inlarged her ſoul by a Proſopopeia, by the ſoul her mouth being meant, the wide opening whereof is from the inlargement of the ſoul. But the grave is here commonly underſtood, and more particularly Tophet, otherwiſe called Gehenna, hell, which was the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, wherein they ſacrificed their children to Molech; and therefore are threatned that it ſhould be turned into a great burying place of an huge multitude of dead bodies, that ſhould fall by the ſword and famine for their ſins. But here, as Ambroſe noteth, Per legem talionis, they who like greedy beaſts had devoured the ſubſtance of the poor, and of whoſe gluttony and drunkenneſs devouring exceſſively the beſt meats and drinks, there had been no end, are threatned, that they ſhall be devoured by the grave both of the greater and meaner ſort. That if otherwiſe they would not be moved to repentance, yet for fear of ſo great a deſtruction to come upon the whole Nation they might.

Geh, vallis.

Jer.7.32.

Ambroſ.

Verſ.15. And the mean man ſhall be bowed down, and the great man humbled, &c. For ſo homo and vir, the words here uſed are to be underſtood, as hath been ſhewed *Chap.*2.9,17. where the words both of this, and *verſ.*16. have been already expounded.

Verſ.17. And the Lambs ſhall be fed after their manner, &c. Theſe words are otherwiſe read by the Septuagint, their torn ones ſhall be eaten as Buls, and the Lambs which are taken ſhall eat their deſert places. But the Hebrew is, as hath been ſaid, only the words following in this verſe are diverſly rendred by ſome, Gladii medullata ruminantia devorrbunt; The ſwords ſhall devour the fat chewing the cud, becauſe the word חר בות here uſed ſignifieth Swords as well as deſert places, and גָהם Ruminatours as well as Strangers. By others, The deſolate places of the fat ſtrangers ſhall eat. And this is to be preferred, and ſo by the Lambs the poor are to be underſtood, to ſuch as remained of whom after the deſtruction before ſpoken of, it is here promiſed, that they ſhould live plentifully of the poſſeſſions of the rich, who had oppreſſed them formerly, being now either deſtroyed or carried into Captivity, and the Caldeans meant by ſtrangers ſhould enjoy the beſt things of the Land, as indeed the ſacred Hiſtory ſheweth that it came to paſſe. For there were left of the poor for vine-dreſſers and tillers of the Land, of whom the Caldeans, Their Landlords took rent. Some turning this to an Allegory, by lambs and ſtrangers underſtand the Gentiles converted to the faith; it is here propheſied, That they ſhall be fed after the manner of the Jews in former times with the Word and Sacraments, which is the fat of their deſolations, and this was fulfilled in the time of Titus and Veſpaſian. For the expoſition of the Septuagint, Jerom ſaith, he knows not why they render

2 King.25.

The Allegory.

der it ſo, unleſs by Buls, to ſet forth the fat Buls of Baſhan, that is, the mighty men of Judea, and their deſtruction by the enemy, the poor as lambs after the ſubduing of the Countrey being let go to occupy the ground, and to feed upon the fruits thereof. For ſtrangers devouring the beſt things of the Land; ſee before *Chap.*1.7. Calvin by lambs and ſtrangers underſtandeth the ſame, viz. the poor faithfull, who were put from their poſſeſſions, whilſt unconſcionable rich men oppreſſed them, and now theſe being cut off and carried away, returned again unto them as very ſtrangers; and theſe poſſeſſions are called either deſolate places of the fat, that is, of rich oppreſſours, who incroached upon ſo much Land, that they could not tell how to uſe it all, ſo that much of it lay deſolate, or fat deſolate places for the fruitfulneſs of that Countrey. And ſo here is a conſolation for ſuch as feared God, againſt the danger of being all pell mell deſtroyed in that common judgement. For though the wicked being as Goats ſhould periſh, yet the faithfull as Lambs ſhould be diſtinguiſht from them, and in the end reap benefit by this common calamity. Muſculus mentioneth another Expoſition of Lambs properly underſtood here, but rejects it, becauſe God propounds not conſolation for beaſts, but men.

Hieronym.

Calvin.

Muſcul.

Verſ. 18.

Calvin.

Woe to them that draw iniquity with cords of vanity, &c. Cords or ropes here, ſaith Calvin, ſerve to ſet forth any means, whereby the wicked ſooth up themſelves in their ſins, and ſo go on in them without end, either becauſe they think God ſees them not, or to excuſe them, as little, or proceeding from their nature, and therefore to be born with; or becauſe they contemn Gods judgements, thinking that they ſhall never come: but becauſe all this is vain, he cals them cords of vanity. Muſculus by cart-ropes underſtands ſuch ſins, as they ſtrengthened themſelves in by unjuſt Laws, of which *ch.*10.1. Of ſins called ropes or cords, ſee alſo *Pro.*5.22. Jerom likens theſe cords to thoſe ſmall threds, wherewith the Spider weaves her web, working it about her ſelf till that ſhe is all over incloſed herewith, but in vain. Funiculi, or cords, or cart-ropes may the ſins of the wicked be well called, becauſe as a rope conſiſteth of many ſmall threds woven together, and ſo is drawn to a great length, and is ſtrong and not to be broken, ſo ſins being multiplied, and ſome woven into others, and long lived in, are long and ſtrong enough to binde the ſinner ſo that he cannot break them: but as Horſes or Oxen yoked, and by ropes faſtened to a loaden Cart, though at the firſt unwillingly, yet being uſed to it, they draw willingly, ſo the wicked draw willingly the heavy load of ſin, being to ſin accuſtomed untill that coming to the bottomleſs pit their load puls them down into it never to get out again. But the words rendred cart-ropes do properly ſignifie thickneſſe, or Wood of a cart, and ſin as the Wood of a Cart, that is, a cart filled or thickned with a great weight of wood, for which the word ſignifying thickneſs is put in the plural number עבות: Here by iniquity and ſinne, Cyril underſtands the puniſhments of ſin, which the wicked draw upon themſelves, and indeed both may be underſtood, 1. Sin, which is heavy, but that by being accuſtomed to it, the ſinner feels it not, for ſo it is ſet forth, Matth. 11.28. Heb. 12.1. Zech. 5.7. *Pſal.*38.5. At the firſt the conſcience is againſt it, but having yielded and often done it, the ſenſe of the weight goeth away, except the conſcience by ſome means being awakened, it becomes again intollerably heavy, as in thoſe that deſpair: and ſin is drawn as with a rope, when either it being committed, more ſins are added, as thred to thred in a cord, 1. Denying. 2. Refuſing correction. 3. Apoſtatizing to a falſe religion to avoid it: Or to make way unto it, as to adultery, 1. Curioſity in apparel. 2. Wanton dalliance. 3. Waſtefull expences are premiſed; or it is drawn into a great length like a rope by continuance in it. For the puniſhment of ſin, that is certainly moſt heavy, as being the wrath of God, and neceſſarily is drawn by ſin, as a cart by a rope, ſith he will be avenged upon the wicked, although he be moſt mercifull. Of ſinne drawn by cords S^{t} Auguſtine before his converſion ſaith, I was bound, not with the chain of another, but with my own iron will. The enemy made a chain of my will, and

Muſculus.

Hieronym.

Cyril.

*Greg. Mor.*33. *cap.*12.

Exod. 34.6.

Aug. *confeſ. l.*8. *c.*5.

Suſpirabam ligatus non ferro alieno, ſed mea ferrea voluntate. Velle meum tenebat inimicus, & inde catenam mihi fecerat & me conſtrinxerat and therewith bound me: for of my perverſe Will was made luſt, and whilſt I ſerved luſt a cuſtom was made, and whilſt cuſtom was not reſiſted, neceſſity was made, whereby as by links put one into another an hard ſervitude held me faſt.

Verſ.19. Which ſay, Let him haſten his work, let us ſee,&c. Here the wicked who draw on iniquity with cords, are deſcribed, viz. They are grown to that height of wickedneſs, that they mock at his threatnings of judgements by his Prophets, becauſe that being threatned from time to time, they yet come not: As if they had ſaid, we have heard thee enough threatning us in the name of the Lord, but know, that we lightly account of thy words, if he hath any thing to bring upon us, let us ſee it done, and tell us no more what the counſel of the holy one, as you call him, is againſt us, but let us feel and ſo know it, if he can do any thing. So that here is alſo intimated thoſe Idolaters deriſion of the name, whereby the Prophets for more reverence commonly called the Lord, The holy One of Iſrael. And thus wicked men are brought in mocking, *Jer.*17.15. *Ch.*20.8. 2 *Pet.*3. but the godly contrariwiſe believe and tremble at the hearing of Gods judgements to come. Thus Calvin and Muſculus. (Calv. Muſculus.) And ſome wicked there are, who contemn all Gods threatnings becauſe they think he careth not for things here below, but that herein his chief felicity lieth, that he is at continual eaſe, and is free from all buſineſſes, as Epicureus; See Job 22.14. *Zeph.*1.14.

Verſ.20. Woe to you that call evil good, and good evil, &c. Aquila. Qui dicunt malo, bonus es, & contra: and the Hebrew is לרָע טוב to the evil good. Tremellius, De bono malum. It may be taken, as it is by Jerom, both wayes either of things or perſons. Of things, Woe to you that ſay good of evil, that is, of your ſins, that they are no ſins but vertues, and that you are to be thought the better of therefore: for this is one thred, that comes into the cord of ſinne, as *verſ.*18. that the wicked is not only ſenſleſs of it, and the evil thereof through a cuſtom of ſinning, but alſo glories in it, as thinking himſelf the better. (Hieronym.) So Gregory (Gregor.in Pſal. 101.) ſaith, The enemy palliates himſelf with ſuch arts, that he feigns our faults to be vertues, ſo that thence a man expects rewards from whence he is worthy to endure eternal torments, thus cruelty in taking revenge upon vice is thought juſtice, and the immoderate anger of juſt zeal merit, likewiſe profuſeneſſe is held mercy, tenacity frugality, pertinacy conſtancy. And as Maximus hath it, Swearing is counted a grace to ones ſpeech, and the angry couragious, darkneſſe light, and ſour ſweet, that is, the darkneſſe of errour light of truth, and ſour hereſies ſweet truths, becauſe nothing is ſweet but truth; or a life lead in ſin, ſweet and pleaſant, but in the fear of God, and exactly, ſour. And herein it is alluded to the ſweet and ſour grapes before ſpoken of, the wicked called the ſweet ſour, and the ſour ſweet, or bitter, as the Hebrew word here ſignifieth.

Prov.17.15. It may alſo be underſtood of perſons, ſo they that juſtifie the wicked and condemn the righteous are alike abominable, and Woe is to them alſo, *verſ.*23. (Muſcul.) This, ſaith Muſculus, is the cunning of the devil, when the wicked cannot otherwiſe plead for their wickedneſſes, to confound good and evil together: and ſome ſay of evil that it is good through errour and ſimple ignorance, which ſhall be pardoned, ſome that good is evil out of malice. Likewiſe of men, the Papiſts ſay, That a Prieſt is good who liveth ſingle, although a fornicatour, but the married evil and wicked, although keeping him to his own wife only, &c. and Calvin (Calvin.) applieth this to men of dignity who account them good, that flatter with them, but them evil that reprove their vices. Who put darkneſſe for light, ſo Hebr. by a word implying great men, by whoſe will as by a Law it is made ſo.

Verſ.21. Calvin. Woe to them that are wiſe in their own eyes, &c. Here, ſaith Calvin, Iſaiah inveigheth againſt them, that elude all the teaching of the Prophets by this, that they think themſelves ſo wiſe, that they know what they have to do better then the Prophets can teach them, and therefore deſpiſe all their denunciations of judgements, and he with whom it is thus, goes on inevitably to deſtruction, (1 Cor.3.18.) becauſe the way of becoming wiſe is to him dammed up, which is to become a fool, that he may be wiſe. Therefore a caveat is alſo given here-againſt, *Prov.*3.7. Here are two words uſed, Wiſe and intelligent, or prudent Muſculus.

before your ſelves. Which according to Muſculus, ſet forth one and the ſame Hieronym.
thing, according to Jerom, who follows the Stoicks herein, Wiſdom is in reſpect of divine and humane things, Prudence of humane only. But by the firſt may better be underſtood Wiſdom, as is oppoſed to fooliſhneſs in the Scripture phraſe, that is righteouſneſs, for they thought themſelves righteous enough, and therefore his threatenings of them vain, and by the ſecond, ſubtilty and wit not like children to be terrified by ſuch ſcare-Crows as they counted them.

Verſ.22. Woe to them that are mighty to drink Wine and ſtrong, &c. The ſin of drunk-enneſs was taxed before *verſ.*11. but becauſe they were not moved againſt it, but lived ſtill therein, it is again declaimed againſt in this verſe, and likewiſe *verſ.*23 juſtifying the wicked, &c. which in other words is ſpoken againſt *verſ.*20. a ground for Preachers to inveigh againſt the ſame ſins again and again, being yet unrepented of. But a new Argument is implicitly brought againſt this ſin, viz. in that he cals them mighty to drink wine, and אַנְשֵׁי חָ׳ל men of valour to mingle ſtrong drink. For by thus ſaying he intimates to their ſhame, that they had no courage to fight againſt the enemy, but like bruit Calvin.
beaſts all their ſtrength was put out in drinking and quaffing; whereas meat and drink is not given us by God to go as far as we are able in filling the belly herewith, but with ſuch moderation to uſe them, as that our ſtrength may not be impaired, but increaſed hereby. For the laſt words, by ſtrong or valiant to mingle ſtrong drink; that mingling, ſaith Muſculus, is not to be underſtood, which is of water with wine, which was the uſual manner of drinking, but by Muſcul.
mingling, pouring in of ſtrong and inebriating liquour, uſe cauſing, mingling to be put for pouring, only he thinketh them hereby taxed that give inebriating drink to others, & ſo indeed it is to be thought, becauſe *Hab.*2.14. it is expreſſed.
But by mingling may alſo be underſtood, mingling divers ſtrong things together, the ſooner to intoxicate others, as is the manner of ſome monſters, unles we take it for putting in ſomewhat to keep from drunkenneſs, although the drinking be exceſſive, and ſo a woe is to them that are not plainly drunken, yet drink to exceſs. For this ſee enough before *v.*20. Only it may be added, That this Verſ.23. is properly againſt Judges, who pervert Juſtice for bribes, giving ſentence on the ſide of the wicked and againſt the good, for this is juſtifying the wicked here meant, and is a moſt damnable ſin, becauſe the Judge being lead by covetouſ-nes doth wittingly judge unjuſtly, neither can any bribe-taker be free from this corruption, *Exod.*23.8. *Deut.*16.19. whatſoever ſome think. Yet to take the righteouſneſs of the Juſt from him is more damnable, for this is to condemn the innocent ſometimes to death, and ſo to be guilty of bloud.

Verſ.24. Therefore as fire devours the ſtubble, and the flame the chaff, ſo their root ſhall be as rottenneſſe. Heb. As the tongue of the fire eats the ſtubble by an Hebraiſm.
By the root here Jerom will have evil thoughts meant, and by the Branch Hieronym.
ſpringing herefrom, the evil of ſpeech and action, the one ſhall be as muck or rottenneſs, the other ſhall ariſe as the duſt, that is, their thoughts of impunity and ſpeeches of deriſion againſt the judgements threatned, and all their riches unjuſtly gotten. Their covetous thoughts, called by the Apoſtle, The root of all evil, ſhall be as rottenneſs within their bowels, and the fruits hereof as duſt without, being ready to put out the eyes. Calvin takes it, as a Metaphor, wherein by the root of a tree rotten, all that whereupon they ſtood, and Calvin.
did bear themſelves, is ſhewed to be of no force, but the tree of their Commonwealth muſt needs fall, as that tree, the root whereof is all rotten. And he ſaith, the ſame is before ſet forth by ſimilitudes of ſtubble devoured by the tongue of the free, &c. it being hereby meant, that they ſhould have no more power to ſtand againſt Gods judgements, then the ſtubble hath againſt the fire: and the tongue of the fire, ſaith Zuinglius, is ſpoken of, becauſe it lick-eth according to the Latine phraſe as a tongue, and is like a tongue in appear- Zuinglius.
ance. Some by the root underſtand Fathers, and by branches Children. And all this is threatned, becauſe they caſt away the Law of the Lord, &c. that is, by not regarding it, this being of all abominations the greateſt.

Verſ.25. Therefore the fury of the Lord hath burnt againſt his people, and when he ſtretched out his hand the mountains trembled, &c. He ſpeaks of his ſtupendious Judgements as paſt, they being yet to come, for the certainty thereof, and he no where ſpeaks more terribly, then in this caſe of rejecting his Word, which ſheweth, that ſuch ſinners as do ſo, are of all others moſt deſperate, that every Hieronym. one may take heed of it. Jerom applieth this to thoſe that rejected Chriſt and his teaching: and he ſaith, That fury is aſcribed to God, not that he is ſubject to paſſions, as man is, but to terrifie the wicked the more, who know how dangerous it is; if but a man great upon earth be full of fury againſt a poor man. Wherefore David ſaith, Correct me Lord, yet in judgement, not in fury. By the mountains trembling, he ſaith indeed, that ſome underſtand contrary powers, to whom the wicked are delivered to be puniſht, but he takes it as ſpoken hyperbolically to ſhew the wonderful greatneſs of the judgments.
And noteth that this threatning is not for Idolatry, but for rejecting the Goſpel, the word of promiſe touching the new Covenant ſpoken of Jer. 31. and it was fulfilled in the time of Titus and Veſpaſian, when his judgements againſt them were moſt terrible, and yet his hand is ſtretched out by continuing the Jews miſeries from age to age, even unto this day; and this deſolation, as Daniel Dan.9. prophesieth, ſhall continue to the end. For their carcaſſes lying as dung in the ſtreets, this was never more then at the deſtruction of Jeruſalem by the Romans.

Verſ.26. And he ſhall lift up a ſign to the Nations afar off, &c. This, ſaith Jerom, is Hieronym. expounded by ſome as ſpoken of the Gentiles converſion, the ſign lifted up being expounded of the ſign of the Croſſe: By the Rabbins, of the Babylonians brought againſt the Jews by Nebuchadnezzar. But he makes it to cohere with the former words, as ſhewing how the Romans ſhould be brought to work the great deſtruction before ſpoken of for their rejecting of the Goſpel: God would as a Captain ſet up a Standard, to which they ſhould flock to execute his Judgements upon this rebellious Nation, and in ſtead of blowing with a Trumpet, he ſaith, he ſhould hiſſe unto them, to denote his eaſie calling his Armies together for this execution. Becauſe he ſpeaks of them as Nations moſt remote that ſhould come; ſo as the Aſſyrians and Babylonians were not but Heb. From the ends of the earth Cyril. about ſix hundred miles off, and when they are ſpoken of, they are commonly deſcribed by the North. Yet Muſculus, Calvin and others of our new Writers are for the Babylonians here meant; ſo likewiſe Lyranus. Cyril, Hiſſing is here taken from the Bee, as alſo *Chap.*7.18. who going out of the Hive, cals all the Bees of his train after him, or from the maſter of a ſhip, who thus cals the Mariners about him to do what he commands. Whether the Babylonians or Romans be here meant, I leave to the judgement of the Reader, but becauſe they are ſaid to be called from the ends of the earth, I prefer that of the Roman forces out of Italy, France and Spain, and the rather, becauſe theſe properly were brought againſt them to puniſh the contempt of Gods Word without Idolatry, according to *verſ.*24. the Babylonians, their groſs Idolatries, becauſe after their return from the Babyloniſh Captivity, they never ſinned by Idolatry more, but were moſt ſtrict impugners of it.

Verſ.27. * Heb. ובוֹא And going. *And he ſhall come lightly and * ſwiftly.* Verſ.27. None ſhall be weary or ſtumble, &c. Here the Nation to be called by hiſſing from the extream parts of the earth againſt the Jews, is deſcribed, ſo as might moſt terrifie them. 1. From their ſwiftneſs, all impediments being away, either within them, as wearineſs or drouzineſs, or without them, as ſtumbling, looſning of the girdle or ſhoelatchet, to make them ſtay to tie them. 2. From their inſtruments of warre and horſes. Their Arrows ſharp, their Bows bent, the hoofs of their Horſes as Verſ.28. flint, &c. 3. From their irreſiſtible ſtrength. They ſhall roar like Lions, and Verſ.29. take the prey, &c. 4. From their deſperate condition, when their enemies Verſ.30. ſhould thus invade them. Their roaring ſhall be as of the ſea, and a man ſhall look to the earth, and darkneſs, and the light in heaven ſhall be darkned; That is, calamity and miſery without comfort or end, ſuch is the caſe of thoſe, whom God purſues in wrath. And here, according to Jerom, ends the ſecond Viſion, begun *Chap.*2. Now follows the third.

CHAP. VI.

Verſ. 1. Calvin. I*N the year of the death of Vzziah, I ſaw the Lord ſitting*, &c. Some, ſaith Calvin, conjecture the Prophecy to begin here, becauſe the Lord now firſt ſhewed himſelf unto him, which in reaſon ſhould be at the firſt to prepare the Prophet the better to the execution of his office, and becauſe he now firſt begins to tremble at his Prophetical calling, being ſo unclean, and God ſo pure *verſ.*5. which he would doubtleſs have done before, had the Lord before imployed him in this work. Therefore they think, that the Prophecies preceding are ſet out of order. But he anſwereth, that Iſaiah might at the firſt be only ſpoken to, and not till afterwards have a Viſion, as the Apoſtles did ſee more afterwards then at the firſt: and having no Viſion before of ſuch aſtoniſhing glory, no marvel, though he were now firſt ſtricken. And that the Prophecie began before appears, becauſe *Chap.*1.1. he began to prophecie in the dayes of Vzziah, but this was after his death, a new King coming on, againſt the fear of whom he might be confirmed hereby to go on with courage. But how is he ſaid to have ſeen the Lord, ſeeing he is inviſible? Sol. He ſaw a ſign of his divine Majeſty, whereby he knew certainly, that God was in a ſpecial manner there: becauſe he never ſheweth any fallacious ſigns, as Image-makers do: his ſitting upon a Throne and on high, was to ſet forth his royal Dignity, excelling farre that of earthly Kings. His hinder parts filled the Temple, to ſhew him to be that God, to whoſe honour the Temple was built, to cauſe the more awfull regard in the people to this Prophecie. Hieronym. Jerom here notes, that Vzziah was a Leper, and ſmitten with the leproſie in the Temple, whereby it was polluted. Therefore till he was dead God appeared not there any more, but now he ſhews Note. himſelf in ſuch manner as beſt pleaſed him, to intimate, that a polluted King is ſo diſpleaſing to God, that Gods favour is not towards his Church where he reigneth, till that by death he hath taken him away. The word שׁוּלָיו fimbriæ ejus, is by the LXX rendred, His glory; by Theodotion and Symmachus, Quæ ſub pedibus ejus erant; by Jerom, Quæ ſub ipſo erant; he appeared then on high, and the skirts of his garments only in the Temple filling it. And this Lord was God the Son, for to him this is by John applied, ſaying, Iſaiah ſpake Joh.12.48. of him, when he ſaw his glory. Thus moſt of the Ancients, holding that all times when God is ſaid to appear, God the Son is meant, and thoſe Apparitions were a Preludium of his Incarnation. Yet ſome underſtand God the Father, and ſome the whole Trinity, but the firſt is moſt probable. Touching the year wherein Vzziah died, ſome underſtand hereby the year, in which he was ſmitten with Leproſie, becauſe then he was dead civilly; ſome granting his natural death to be meant, hold yet that he was not dead when Iſaiah had this Viſion, but that he died in that year; but the firſt is beſt for the reaſon before-going; the leprous King was dead, and ſo Gods anger, whereunto he was ſtirred by him, as the head of that people, was over, and he began again to ſhew ſome token of his favour. And he appears as need then required in kingly Majeſty, that the wicked who contemned his judgements might hereby be ſtricken with the more terrour, and ſo be reduced to obedience.

Verſ. 2. And Seraphims ſtanding above, מִמַּעַל from above; that is, ſomewhat lower as he appointed to miniſter to him. Thoſe tranſlations therefore, which have it, above him, or above it, as the vulgar Latine, give needleſly occaſion to enquire how it can be ſo ſaid, ſith the ſervant is not in ſtation above his Lord or his Throne: for being rendred word for word according to the Hebrew, the ſenſe is good and without all queſtion, as it is here given. The Lord then appears not without his attendants ſtanding before him ready at his beck to execute his will. And they are ſpoken of here onely as many in the Plural, but Dan. 7. and 10. they are ſaid to be thouſand thouſands that miniſter to him, yet not Seraphims, but Angels. The Seraphims have their name from burning, 1. Becauſe they burn with the love of God. 2. Are ſwift as fire to do his will. 3. Shine as fire, ſo Oecolampadius: And the ſame are ſometime called Angels, that is, Meſſengers, ſometime Seraphims, that is, burning ones, although Dionyſius diſtinguiſheth them from other Angels, as being more inflamed through their nearneſs to the throne of God. Some think that theſe Seraphims were only two, and will have the Son and holy Ghoſt ſet forth hereby, as in the Sanctum Sanctorum were two Cherubims: but this is a vain conjecture, and becauſe it puts an inequality betwixt the perſons of the Trinity, to be abhorred, Ezek. 1. 5. Four Animals or living creatures appear, to repreſent the Angels attending upon God, and theſe are held to be the Cherubims, another order of heavenly Angels, and Ezek. 10. 1, 2. they are ſo called. And it is to be noted, That the Seraphims ſtand, God ſitting, whereupon Bernard cenſures Lucifer, noting it to be the cauſe of his ejectment out of Heaven, that he would ſet his throne beſides the throne of God, telling him, that he had only one property of the Seraphims, viz. to ſhine, but not that of burning with the love of God, and therefore now he burns in hell, and is foul and ugly, and without all ſhining. Six wings had one, the wings of the Angels ſerve to ſhew their ſwiftneſs in executing Gods will. But yet they have each one two only for this end, and two to cover their face, to ſhew the brightneſs of Gods glory to be ſuch, that they cannot with open face behold it: yet it is not to be conceived that they cover the whole face with their wings, but ſo much as that the dazling luſtre of that exceſſive brightneſs might not confound them, but yet they may ſee their Lord, and be ready at his beck. A notable Embleme of a right Miniſter of God, who muſt be prompt and ready, and flie as with wings about the work of his Miniſtry, burning alwayes with holy zeale through the love of God. Yet his carriage muſt be reverent towards the Lord, and he muſt be content to acknowledge his ignorance of many things, and that they are covered from him, medling only with thoſe that are revealed. The two wings to cover the Seraphs, are from ſuch as are under them, viz. mortal men, and ſerve to ſhew, That we are as unable to behold the brightneſs of an Angel, as an Angel that infinite glory of the Lord. Wherefore both Daniel and John were ſo ſtricken at ſuch an appearance, that they fell down as dead, all their ſtrength being diſſolved through fear. Wherefore the beſt amongſt men ought to think themſelves poor, infirm creatures, and behave themſelves accordingly towards God, who is ſo glorious: thus almoſt Calvin. But in a far different manner Jerom, Illi ſex alæ, & ſex alæ alteri, לו not being expounded with ממעל but to the ſix wings, as in the tranſlation mentioned; wherefore I marvel why Jerom hath it ſuper illud, when as the word ſignifieth nothing but deſuper, and the Septuagint, in circuitu ejus; if the particle ſignifying illi be left to go with ſix wings, as it muſt, or elſe the ſenſe will be imperfect. Jerom, I ſay, expounds the Seraphs covering his face with two of his wings, and with two his feet, as ſpoken of his covering Gods face and feet, becauſe the Hebrew particle ל may as well have reference to God, as to the Cherub. And hereof he makes an excellent Allegory thus, The face of God ſetteth forth things paſt before the beginning of the world, his feet things to come after this world ended: both theſe covered then ſerve to ſhew the concealing of ſuch things from us, thoſe only being ſet forth for us to know, which ſhall, or have come to paſſe within the compaſſe of the time of this world, which was made in ſix dayes, to ſignifie which either of them hath ſix wings, the two to flie with do not only ſerve to ſet forth their readineſs, but their abode in Heaven above, as the proper place of their reſidence. Cyril agreeing with Jerom in their covering of Gods face and feet, expounds it as ſhewing Gods eternity both à parte ante, and à parte poſt, to be incomprehenſible. Rupertus the conjunction or union of

Chriſts

Oecolamp.

Iſa.14.

Bernard. Tu habuiſti miſer lucem, ſed ardorem non habuiſti. Bonum fuiſſet tibi, ſi ignifer magis fuiſſes quam Lucifer.

Deut. 29. 29.

Calvin.

Hieronym.

Cyril.

Rupert.

Chriſts Divinity and humanity to be a moſt hidden Myſtery. Chryſoſtom differs not from Calvin, ſaving that, whereas Calvin by their covering their feet, underſtands the inability of men upon earth to endure the ſight of their glory, he, their being aſhamed, that God ſhould ſee the imperfection of their affections, (ſet forth by their feet) towards him. And to me this of Chryſoſtom ſeems to be beſt, becauſe if there were many Seraphins about Gods throne, as doubtleſs there were thouſands, it cannot be conceived, how each one with his two wings ſhould cover his face alike, and with two his feet, unleſſe by covering their own faces, his face being hid from them, and his feet alſo not being open to theirs, becauſe theirs were covered. And if covering be referred to both this way, none of theſe Allegories are impertinent, but may well ſtand together. By covering their feet the Hebrews uſe to ſet forth not properly or particularly the feet, but the nether parts, which we are aſhamed ſhould be ſeen, being for this called Pudenda, this therefore ſheweth, That the very Angels, which are ſo glorious, are not without all blemiſh before the moſt High, or at the leaſt in humility acknowledge it, how much more then ſhould the holieſt amongſt men? Moſes by Gods direction made two Cherubims in the moſt holy place, the ſign of Gods preſence, extending their wings over his Mercy-ſeat, for which it is ſaid, God dwels between the Cherubins; here the Seraphins, which may be conceived to be an higher order of Angels, and thoſe many, appear, not with two wings, as they were figured, but with ſix, which plainly intimates a diſtinction according to Dionyſius, who makes nine orders of holy Angels. Some following this reading, Six and ſix wings were to one, think that each one had twelve, but it is illi ſex, & ſex alteri, as was ſaid before. Six wings might ſet forth a ſix-fold motion upward, downward, backward, forward, to the right hand and to the left, any way were they ready to flie, when God would. If it be demanded, How did they flie, and yet are ſaid to ſtand? Sol. It is ſaid with two he did flie, becauſe he was alwayes ready ſo to do. But it is to be underſtood, that this was but a repreſentation, the Angels have no wings indeed, but are ſpirits ſwifter then any thing that hath wing, ſent out for the good of thoſe that are choſen to life at the good pleaſure of God.

Chryſoſt.

Dionyſ.cæleſt. hierarch. See Expoſ.upon Epheſ.1.

Heb.1.

Verſ.3.

And they cried one to another holy, holy, holy Lord God of hoſts, &c. After their deſcription here followeth their Hymn ſung unto God, their crying to one another was their exciting of one another, and they praiſe God by his holineſſe, one firſt beginning, and then the ſecond to the third, and he to the fourth, &c. The thrice iterating of the word holy, both intimates the Trinity, and that the Lord only is holy, the authour of all holineſs, and moſt excellent for holineſs; and laſtly with what intention and perſeverance the Angels praiſe him hereby, that we may imitate them herein, and be inamoured with holineſs, as the moſt excellent of all the Divine Attributes, as without which none ſhall ſee God, and abhor from prophaneneſſe and all filthineſſe of ſinne, as moſt debaſing and vilifying. The earth is full of thy glory, that is, the glory of thy wiſdom and power ſhineth all over it, in the making, ordering and governing thereof and all things therein. Or the earth is ſpoken of as full of his glory, according to ſome in admiration of the ſons incarnation; ſo Jerom, who alſo ſaith, that the earth in general is ſpoken of, as full of his glory, in oppoſition to the Jews brags, who confined all his glory to the Temple. It is ſpoken alſo to ſhew, that all Nations ſhould be converted, which ſhould be to Gods great Glory. Thus alſo Calvin, wherefore when a Nation imbraceth the true Faith, it is full of Glory divine, ſo as none beſides is. Whereas this cry is referred by ſome, as Jerom hath it, to two only Cherubins ſetting forth the Old and New Teſtament, becauſe therein the holineſs and Glory of God is continually ſet forth, I leave it to the judicious Reader. There is a like ſaying to this *Numb.*14.21. All the earth ſhall be filled with my Glory; ſo likewiſe *Pſal.*70. This angelical Hymn hath been wonderful in the uſe of it amongſt men, if it be true, which is related by *Baronius an.*1055. Victor 2. underſtanding

Hieronym.

Baronius.

ing, that ſimony was grown very common in the world, ſent an Arch-deacon to aſſemble a Councel at Lions, called Heldebrand. He therefore underſtanding that the Arch-biſhop was Simoniacal, required him to ſay, Gloria Patri, Filio, & Spiritu Sancto: then he ſaid the two firſt, but the third he could by no means bring forth, aſſaying to do it again and again, whereupon he was ſo confounded, that he fell at the Arch-deacons feet, and confeſſed his ſimony, and being for this degraded and depoſed he could ſay all moſt freely, which other ſimoniacal Prelats ſeeing, they came and confeſſed theirs alſo, and voluntarily left their dignities: this and more like it which ſavour of fabulous legendar hath Cornel. a Lapide.

Verſ. 4. Hieronym. And the poſts of the ſuperliminaries were moved when they cried, and the whole houſe was filled with ſmoke. Jerom underſtands this as a figure of the deſtruction of the Temple, when once the earth ſhould be filled with Chriſts Glory, that is, the faith of him ſuffering, incarnate riſing, and aſcending into heaven with his body, and of the burning of the Temple, and blinding the Jews eyes, whereof the ſmoke filling the Temple was a ſign. The Jews will have the fume to be that of incenſe, and a ſign of the preſence of the divine Majeſty. Cyril and Thomas Aquinas follow Jerom; Calvin. Calvin will have the moving of the door-poſts to ſhew, that this was not the voice of man, but of a greater power, which ſhould alwayes much more, when he ſpeaketh, move our hearts, if the ſenſleſſe creature were hereby moved and ſhook. The ſmoke filling the Temple, an uſual ſign of Gods preſence; here he ſaith ſets forth both, that man ſhould not pry too far into Gods ſecrets, and his wrath againſt the Jews being ready to burn like fire, for in this ſenſe ſmoking is aſcribed to him, Pſal. 18. 9. 1 Sam. 11. 9. Apoc. 15. 8. The Septuagint ſay, The door-poſts were lifted up, as if to make more room for the Lord to go out and depart from the Temple. That of Jerom ſeemeth to me to agree beſt, neither do I exclude that of Calvin, intimating a curbing of mans curioſity about things not revealed, becauſe filling the houſe with fume when God appeared, was a thing often uſed.

Verſ. 5. Hieronym. And I ſaid, Woe is me, becauſe I am cut off, ſith I am a man of polluted lips, &c. Jerom renders it, Quia tacui, becauſe I held my peace, as being of polluted lips, and ſo unworthy with the holy Seraphims to praiſe God, and he ſpeaks of this as the cauſe thereof, that he dwelt amongſt a people of polluted lips, to ſhew, how dangerous it is to contract pollution to converſe amongſt corrupt ſpeakers, and yet well did Iſaiah acquit himſelf, that contracted hereby none other corruption but of his lips. The Hebrew word ſignifieth either to be ſilent, or to be cut off; but it may rather be taken thus here, becauſe the word is in Niphal נִדְמֵתִי, which cannot agree to being ſilent, and it is plainly the voice of one lamenting his death, as ſeeing it at hand, becauſe he had ſeen the Lord, as Manoah ſometime did; ſo Calvin and Muſculus. Calvin. He makes this moan, to ſhew, that when God appears, the moſt pure are impure, and therefore cannot ſtand, but muſt needs be conſumed and brought to nothing. But why doth he complain of the pollution of his lips only, was he free from all other pollution? Sol. No, but being a Prophet his lips were of ſpecial uſe to declare Gods holy will to the people; and therefore this ſmote him moſt, that they were polluted, whereby God might be moſt provoked. Note. This troubled him not before, but when the Lord approached; to ſhew, that when he comes near to any heart, he ſtraitway ſeeth all vileneſs in himſelf, who before thought himſelf ſomebody, and his righteouſneſs now ſeems to him to be nothing. For his dwelling amongſt a people of polluted lips, he hereby intimates, that he was no better then one of the common ſort; Becauſe I have ſeen God, that is, the ſight of God, who is life, hath ſhewed me that which before I ſaw not, viz. my ſelf to be a dead man, ſo I was before, but was not ſenſible of it, now I am. So Calvin. Or it may be rendred, I was ſmitten and made dumb through aſtoniſhment at this glorious apparition. How his lips were polluted, Jerom, Cyril and Haimo conjecture, viz. by his taciturnity at the ſinne of Uzziah, when he preſumed to go to the Temple to offer incenſe: but of this pollution enough before, his dwelling amongſt ſuch is ſpoken of, to intimate corruption thus more contracted, and as that which is excellent, and that which is vile being placed near one another, the vile ſheweth more vile, ſo fared it with the Prophet, when the Lord appeared; he then ſeemed to himſelf more polluted then before, and this made him ſo lamentably to cry out.

Then one of the Seraphims flew unto me, and had in his hand a burning Coal, &c. Verſ.6.

And applying it to my mouth, ſaid, Behold this hath touched thy lips, thou art purged from thy uncleanneſſe. Verſ.7. In the houſe of God, where Iſaiah ſaw this Viſion, was an Altar, and thereupon fire, which firſt came down from Heaven, a coal of this fire therefore is taken, to ſhew, that the purging away of ſinfull pollution is from God in Heaven, and that nothing is to be found upon earth that can do it. But ſeeing Iſaiah propheſied before, why was he not prepared to this holy work, by purging at the firſt, or did the former part of his Prophecie come out of his lips being polluted? Sol. He was doubtleſs ſanctified at the firſt to this office, but becauſe no ſanctification of man here is perfect, hereby is ſhewed only, that he was now more ſanctified, to purchaſe unto him yet more authority amongſt the people, and to encourage him the more from thence forward; ſo Calvin. Calvin. And whereas a fire-coal is uſed, he ſaith, this was but for a ſign, as ſomething outward is taken in the Sacrament, but the vertue is wholly in God, which hereby worketh good to us. And the outward thing is uſed only for mans confirmation, who is not a meer ſpirit, but a body alſo, and therefore muſt receive ſanctification from God, not immediatly as the Angels, but by corporeal means. And a fire-coal is uſed to ſhew, that corruption is ſo grounded in man, that there needs burning fire to purge it out, for which the Lord puts his into the fiery fornace of adverſity to purge out all their droſſe as from ſilver and gold. And to the ſign words are uſed to make a perfect Sacrament, as be the Sacraments of the New Teſtament: under the Old indeed no words were uſed, or at the leaſt no form preſcribed, as we may ſee in Circumciſion and the Paſſeover, only there was a word requiring them to be done, and the words of inſtitution were doubtleſſe recited every time, according to Gen. 17. and Exod. 13. But to the ſigns in Baptiſm and the Lords Supper, words are annexed, without which it is no Sacrament. So here for Iſaiah his aſſurance, it is ſaid, Behold this Coal hath touched thy lips, &c. wherein the cautelouſneſſe of the Angel is to be noted, to ſpeak ſo as that nothing in this work of cleanſing might be aſcribed to him, but all to God. He ſaith not therefore, I have touched, but this Coal, brought by me only, as Gods Miniſter, and yet as the Coal was fiery or burning, ſo he had his name Seraphim from burning, much leſſe then is there any vertue ſanctificative in any man miniſter, when he gives the bread, or waſheth with water, but in God only. He makes the ſign effectual to that end for which he gives it, and eludes no faithfull perſon with an empty ſign, neither ſhall the wicked finde it ſuch, when they ſhall another day be judged for not diſcerning the Lords body. Jerom in ſtead of carbo, a burning coal, hath it lapillum, a ſtone, a carbuncle, Hieronym. which ſhews like a burning Coal, with many of which the Altar was beſet about. But the word here uſed doth not ſignifie any precious ſtone, but carbo, and why elſe ſhould he take it with tongs? Yet ſome ſtand for a Carbuncle, which is the moſt precious of all ſtones, yet not an earthly but heavenly, becauſe things in Heaven were here repreſented, and ſo although an earthly Carbuncle is without heat, although it be put into a moſt hot burning fire, yet the heavenly may be the burning Coals of the Altar there. If it had been a burning Coal made of wood, it would have burnt the Prophets lips, and ſo made him in ſtead of ſpeaking better, to liſp. But who knoweth not that here was nothing really done, but in a figure? Iſaiah was thus made a Preacher of the Goſpel, becauſe inaugurated to his office by a fire-coal, as the Apoſtles to theirs by Cloven Tongues of fire. And as they before timerous, after this grew couragious and free to ſpeak without all fear, ſo he, as the next words declare, where he ſaith, Send me] The Seraphims taking of the Coal with tongs, ſhewed timerouſneſs in Gods Miniſters at the firſt, in going about the preaching of the Word, which hath a purging quality, as fire, but when this fiery coal of the Word hath once touched their lips, that is, they have by the ſpirit been made to enter upon the work, all fearfulneſſe vaniſheth, and courage not troubled at any preſence of Kings and councels, is put on. *Jer.*1.9. The lips of Jeremy are otherwiſe touched by Gods finger, the Lord proceeds not alwayes alike, but ſometime one way, then another, as he pleaſeth.

Verſ.8. Afterwards I heard the voice of the Lord, ſaying, Whom ſhall I ſend, and who ſhall go for us, &c. Hebr. And I heard, and ſo the vulgar Latine without the word (poſtea) in Marlorat. The Lord makes not this enquiry, as if he knew not, but to ſhew that he is not a vulgar, but choice man, whom he ſendeth, a very ſanctified and ſpecial inſtrument of the ſpirit, ſo that if any of the vulgar ſort takes upon him this office, or any having a blemiſh contrary to Levit. 21. 18. he is cenſured as running before he is ſent, Jer. 23. 21. He that is ſent hath his lips touched to ſpeak wiſely as the word of God, which the illiterate now adayes cannot, becauſe they cannot interpret it for want of skill in the tongues. Who ſhall go for us? this is ſpoken in the Plural to intimate more perſons in the Deity, and it is ſaid [for us] to ſhew that a Prophet muſt not go for himſelf, or ſeek his own ends, but for God. This enquiry alſo intimates it to be an hard task in regard of the hatred and enmity of men, which the Prophet incurs. Yet Iſaiah being now purged from his ſins, is nothing afraid to ſet upon it, and the aſſurance of this makes any man couragious, For the righteous is bold as a Lion, but ſuch as are ſtill in their ſins timerous and fearful, for which it is neceſſary that a Preacher ſhould live clear from ſin.

Hieronym. Jerom notes, That he ſaith, Whom ſhall I ſend, and commands not Iſaiah to go, ſo that, will he, nill he, he muſt go, becauſe he loves a willing minde, if he doth but intimate his pleaſure a preparing to do it with all readineſs. The Jeſuite draws this to the Præfectus of any religious order, but abſurdly, unleſſe he will make a god of him. Neither was it arrogancy in him to offer, but confidence that he was purged. Moſes being bidden refuſed, yet not out of obſtinacy, but becauſe he was not yet confirmed, neither heard he, This coal hath touched thy lips, for they were not touched thus by all the learning of Ægypt which he had. The Hebrews ſay, that Iſaiah thought he ſhould go to ſpeak comfort to the people, and therefore he was ſo forward, and when he ſaw the contrary being bidden afterwards to cry, he did not forthwith cry, but ſaid firſt, What ſhall I cry? and Jeremy being bidden to offer the cup of Gods wrath to all adverſary Nations to drink and be drunken and fall, doth it willingly, but when he was bidden to offer it to Jeruſalem, being diſpleaſed hereat, he cried out, Lord, thou haſt deceived me. But this is over-curious, and too derogatory to the holy Prophets, yet they were men, and as Elias ſubject to like paſſions.

Verſ.9. Go and ſay to this people, hearing ye ſhall hear, but not underſtand, &c. The Prophet having offered himſelf, is now bidden to go about a moſt unpleaſant and harſh ſervice, ſo that he had need to be ſo prepared to it as he was: for what more grievous to a Prophet, then to propheſie to make his hearers worſe, not only in regard of the hurt thus done to them, but of the ſcandall to others, enemies of all goodneſs, who are hereupon ready to diſgrace propheſying as being the cauſe of making a people worſe, as the wicked have lately objected againſt often preaching in our reformed Churches. No ſervant of God muſt therefore be diſmayed or diſcouraged at this, that his labours in the work of God ſucceed no better, but looking at his ſovereign who implies him, go on conſtantly and declare his will, exhort and rebuke with all freeneſs. But if this be the effect of propheſying or preaching, becauſe he ſaith, Verſ.10. Make the heart of this people fat or obſtinate, leſt they ſhould be converted, Doth the Lord well in ſending out Prophets amongſt thoſe, in whom ſuch dreadfull effects are wrought? Anſ. He doth well becauſe it is not through any default in his ſending, but their own corruption; propheſying is as the giving of the Law, which is good and holy, a light and direction, better then the ſweeteſt meat or greateſt treaſure, yet through the corruption of mans heart cauſing all manner of ſin and death, as good meat to an evil ſtomack, and treaſure to a riotour. Rom.7. Pſal.19. 2. Amongſt the wicked, whoſe hearts are made obſtinate, ſome few are hereby ſtricken and made penitent. 3. In Gods ſending mercy, ſhineth to aggravate the damnation of the wicked, ſeeing he vouchſafes them means, and ſo they are without excuſe. 4. He thus judgeth them ſpiritually with ſtupidity and blindeneſs, and incapability of light, as they are well worthy for the abuſe of that, which they formerly had, being bred and brought up alwayes where the light was, and peculiarly choſen to walk in it, and obliged by ſingular bleſſings above other peoples. Jerom renders it, Blinde the heart of this people, taking it as a prayer of the Prophet, and the former words, By hearing hear but underſtand not, &c. Hieron. As if God had given it in charge to Iſaiah to ſay thus, whereupon he makes a great Queſtion, How this can be juſtified, to forbid that, for want of doing which they ſhall be deſtroyed, or for the Prophet to pray for it? And he anſwers, That thus God would have it come for a time to the Jews for a greater good to the Gentiles, who were very many Nations, but the Nation of the Jews only one, and accordingly Iſaiah prayeth, becauſe the converſion and ſalvation of innumerable peoples, which could not without this judgement falling upon the Jews have been, is brought to paſſe to Gods greater glory, one people only being but for a time ſuſpended from this benefit, and yet not all neither, for a remnant of Apoſtles and Miniſters of the Goſpel were enlightened and made lights to the reſt of the world, and the time ſhall come, when a deliverer ſhall come out of Zion, to turn away iniquity from Jacob, and ſo all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved. Rom.11. And thus he alſo underſtands the prayer of David, cited *Rom.*11.10. Let their eyes be darkened, and bow down their backs alwayes. And that in John, They could not believe, becauſe the holy Ghoſt ſpake thus by the Prophet Iſaiah, and whom he will he hath mercy upon, and whom he will he hardeneth. Thus he, following the Hebrew letter, wherein the word is imperative, but the Septuagint render it according to the true meaning, Hearing ye ſhall hear but not underſtand, taking the imperative for the future, an Enallage uſual amongſt the Hebrews, and this is alſo confirmed *Act.*28.26. where the Septuagints tranſlation is followed. שׁמְעו שמוֹע וְאל תְבִנוּ And thus here is no cauſe of ſuch a Queſtion, it being not here commanded unto them not to underſtand or perceive, but propheſied, that they ſhould do thus through their own corruption, as one that wilfully ſhuts his eyes againſt the light, and through Gods juſt judgement following hereupon, ſo that they could now do no otherwiſe, being denied the grace whereby to be made capable of the light to be enlightened hereby. And whereas he makes this a prayer of the Prophet againſt them, Make blinde their eyes, or their heart fat, it is plainly the ſaying of the Lord to the Prophet; and it is likewiſe nothing but a command to Iſaiah to prophecy, that their heart ſhould be made fat by means of him, and ſuch as he was in thoſe times, and afterwards by Chriſt and his Apoſtles, they firſt winking with their eyes through their own malice againſt them, and ſo being blinded, then left by God, as was ſaid before, and ſo becoming irrecoverably blinde to their deſtruction. In all which no fault can be laid upon God, although ſometime he be ſpoken of as blinding and hardening, for it is not ſo ſpoken properly, but becauſe he enlighteneth not, neither mollifieth the hearts of ſuch, who harden themſelves, and then they cannot but perſiſt in blindeneſs, ſee upon *Rom.*9.

Verſ.11. And I ſaid, how long (Lord) and he ſaid, whilſt the Cities are waſted without inhabitant, &c. That is, ſaith Jerom, how long ſhall they be thus blinded? for Iſaiah was ſollicitous for his people, although he were ſet to denounce this heavy Judgement againſt them, and therefore enquires anxiouſly, How long?

But the Lord tels him, till the Cities of Judah be waſted by Titus and Veſpaſian, ſo that no inhabitants be left, but the countrey be made deſolate, if any houſes remain, there being none left to dwell in them. Becauſe the Lord knew that as long as any were left living in that whole Land, they would not ceaſe from their wickedneſs.

Verſ. 13. Untill there be a tithe, and a returning, and it be cut down as an Holm-tree, and an Oak; in the removall whereof there is a ſubſiſtence, ſo in this there ſhall be an holy ſeed, a ſubſiſtence. Hieronym. Jerom, Yet there ſhall be in it a decimation, and again it ſhall become a prey as a terebinth or an Oak, which hath caſt her fruits, there ſhall be an holy ſeed, which ſhall ſtand in her; That is, when the people ſhall be carried far off into Captivity, and they ſhall be multiplied in the midſt of the earth, as was ſaid verſ. 12. all this multiplication ſhall not reach to above the tenth part of that which they were before; and again, fifty years after, when Adrian the Emperour ſhall come, he ſhall make the Land utterly deſolate, forbidding all Jews to inhabit there any more, but ſuch as ſhall believe in Chriſt, that is, the Apoſtles and others lead by them ſhall be an holy ſeed eſtabliſhed to continue and multiply. Calvin. Calvin by the tithe underſtands ten Kings to come after this Prophecie before that Judea ſhould go into deſolation, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manaſſes, Ammon, Joſiah, Joachaz, Jehoiachim, Jehoiachin, Zedekiah, in whoſe time it was made deſolate; yet it may be underſtood, ſaith he, of the tenth part of the people remaining, ten of a hundred, or a hundred of a thouſand. But what comfort is in this, after returning to ſpeak of cutting down again? Vatablus and Calvin anſwer, the cutting down ſhall be but as of a Tree, which when it caſts the fruits and leaves in Autumn, yet it ſprings again in the riſing of the year; which declares, that although it lookt as a a dead Tree, yet it had ſubſtance and life in it all the while, how ever it appeared not. And in the Nation of the Jews this ſubſiſtence was an holy ſeed, a little company of faithful perſons in all ages, till the converſion of the Nation ſhall be to the faith of Chriſt. But before they ſuffered not only by deſtruction and deſolation, but were carried afar off, viz. to Babylon, according to v. 12. Beſides the two expoſitions before-going touching the tithe, that ſhall be, another is brought by ſome thus, there ſhall be a carrying away of the ten Tribes. 4. The tenth part of the Jews ſhall be converted to Chriſt, which ſhall be an holy ſeed, as the tithe of the Land of old was holy to the Lord. 5. Deſtruction ſhall come ten times upon them. 1. By Salmanaſar. 2. By Sennacherib. 3. By Eſar-haddon. 4. By Pharaoh Necho. 5. By Nebuchadnezzar. 6. By Nebuzaradan. 7. By Antiochus Epiphanes. 8. By Pompey. 9. By Titus. 10. By Adrian. And the holy ſeed is by ſome underſtood not only of the Apoſtles and other believers, but primarily of Chriſt, who is, as it were, their foundation or ſtock in whom they ſtand; ſo Theodot. Erit ſemen ſanctum columna fundationis ejus.

CHAP. VII.

Verſ. 1. AND it came to paſſe in the daies of Ahaz, that Rezin King of Syria, and Pekah ſon of Remaliah King of Iſrael came up to fight againſt Jeruſalem, &c. Ahaz the ſon of Jotham (who reigned when Iſaiah had the viſion of chap. 6.) was a moſt wicked idolater, 2 Chron. 28. 2 King. 16. although his father Jotham did right; and therefore God vouchſafed in his time to ſhew himſelf in royall Majeſty, Uzziah who was ſmitten with leproſie for his pride being dead. But Ahaz the ſon of Jotham, the ſon of Uzziah reigning was for his abominable wickedneſs diverſly judged: Firſt, By the Syrians and their King Rezin, Hieronym. then by Pekah King of Iſrael, and by the Edomites and Philiſtines, 2 Chron. 28. whereof no mention is made here, although the blow given him by Pekah and his Ephraimites were exceeding great, a hundred and twenty thouſand being ſlain in one day, and two hundred thouſand women and children carried away captive. And upon the next coming of thoſe two Kings againſt him only, Iſaiah toucheth, becauſe of the Prophecie upon occaſion of deliverance from them, touching our deliverance by Jeſus the ſon of a Virgin here following, *v.*14. And of this their coming up only it is ſpoken, 2 *King.*16. and that they could not prevail, the reaſon being left to be ſhewed here, viz. Gods mercy to Judah and to David moving him yet to preſerve that Kingdom to his ſeed, to promiſe which in his name Iſaiah is here ſent. The circumſtances of this expedition, ſaith Calvin, are to be conſidered, that the miraculous deliverance of Judah may be the more magnified. The King of Syria had before prevailed againſt Judah, and the King of Iſrael more; thus weakning the ſtate of Judah ſo much, that they made account now joyning together without doubt to take Jeruſalem, and to diſpoſe of the whole Kingdom at their pleaſure, making ſuch a King over it as they pleaſed, v.6. the ſeed of David, of which Chriſt was to come, being extinct, and the hearts of the houſe of David alſo fainted, being moved, as leaves ſhaken with the winde, *v.*2. that is, the heart of Ahaz and all of the bloud royall, counting their caſe now deſperate, as of men for whom there was no help; and not without cauſe, for ſo much as ſin makes timerouſneſs, and righteouſneſs boldneſs and courage: *Levit.*26.36. They ſhall flee at the ſhaking of a leaf, and contrariwiſe, *Prov.*28.1. The righteous is bold as a lion. And all this is thus ſet forth, that the deliverance following might be aſcribed wholly to God, and in no part to man, which the hard-hearted unbeleeving Jews were unwilling to do, being rather ready to impute it to themſelves or to fortune, and thus to rob God of his glory.

Calvin.

But they could not prevail. This is ſpoken by a Prolepſis, this thing remaining to be declared in the verſes next following. They prevailed before, Judah being in the full ſtrength, but now the ſtrength thereof being ſo much broken by the ſlaughter of ſo many men, they could not prevail; ſee the marvellous works of God, that we may ſeek to him, and having his word, truſt to it, in how deſperate a condition ſoever we may ſeem to be, for all things are poſſible to him.

Note.

Verſ.3.

Then ſaid the Lord to Iſaiah, Go out to meet Ahaz,&c. He muſt go out to him into the field, for when the wicked King ſhould have gone to the Temple to ſeek to the Lord, he went into the field to ſtudy with himſelf what to do in this extremity, or as men that are troubled, go ſometime into one place, ſometime into another, or he was fleeing away to ſome other City for fear, thinking to be ſafer there. The Prophet is bidden to go out to meet him; to ſhew the goodneſs of God even towards the wicked, who ſeek not to him, to their more juſt condemnation, becauſe their hearts are hardened againſt all his goodneſs. He is bidden to go and take with him his ſon Shear-jaſhub: Vulgar Lat. and Septuagint, him that was left Jaſhub, reſpecting rather the ſignification of Shear, Left, as Jaſhub ſignifies, ſhall return. But we take altogether, as his ſons name, which doubtleſs had been given him by a propheticall ſpirit, as Mahar-ſhalal-haſhbaz, ch.8. By this very name Shear-jaſhub, the remnant ſhall return, God would ſet forth the return of ſome of the captivity to Jeruſalem again, although but a remnant in compariſon. The Rabbins following the Septuagint, ſay that one ſon of Iſaiah called Rabſhakeh, was fled now to the Aſſyrians, and came again in Hezekiahs time, to perſwade them to turn to the Aſſyrians: Therefore this ſon Jaſhub is ſaid to be left: But to paſſe this over as an invention; his ſon muſt go with him, who carried a prophecie in his name, that though the two Kings, that now came againſt Jeruſalem had ſlain very many before, yet the people now remaining ſhould be converted and ſaved, ſo that by taking this ſon with him, he made a demonſtration in the name of that in part, which he promiſed by the ſpirit of Prophecie. Some doubt, whether the Prophets natural ſon, or a diſciple of his ſo called, be here meant; becauſe young men trained up by Prophets, were called then, Sons of the Prophets: But ſurely, as moſt hold, he was his natural ſon, and therefore Iſaiah was a married man, contrary to the tenet of ſome Popiſh Expoſitours, who ſeek every where to preſs out what they can for the magnifying of a vowed ſingle life: But neither was Eliſhah called the ſon of Elijah, although his ſon moſt notably in that ſenſe, nor Gehezi his ſon, but his ſervant. To the end of the Conduit of the upper pool, &c. Of this and the neather pool, ſee before, upon

2 King. 18.17.

Verſ.4. And thou ſhalt ſay to him, Be quiet and fear not, &c. The Prophet is ſent to him, though a moſt wicked King, with words of comfort, telling him what conſultations the two Kings had, viz. to take the City, and putting him down, Verſ.6. to ſet up the ſon of Tabeal for King; concerning whom Jerom ſaith, either they Hieron. meant a good God, viz. their own God, ſo called according to the ſignifica-tion of the word, or ſome man ſo called, who was both fit for his valour to make a King of, and for his complying with them ſuch an one as they might have to rule there according to their own hearts deſire, as acknowledging to have received his Kingdom from them. Others follow, ſome one of theſe, and ſome another; but moſt probably a man is meant, who was called by this name, and not an Heathen god or idol, becauſe it is ſaid, the ſon of Tabeal.
Neither doth al, the laſt ſyllable, ſignifie a God, but el: It was therefore ſome great man of that Kingdom, unknown to us, becauſe no more is elſewhere ſpoken of him, known to them to be an enemy to the houſe of David, and a friend to them, and therefore good for them, as the firſt ſyllable of the word may ſig-Muſcul. nifie: Thus alſo almoſt Muſculus, who mentioneth his Tribe in particular, Adam Saſbout. Benjamin. But Saſbout ſaith, ſome take him to be the ſon of the King of Syria, and ſome again will have him the ſon of Remaliah otherwiſe thus called. But all are conjectures, and ſo to be left for every one to judge of. Whereas it is ſaid [In the midſt of it] the meaning is, over the whole in full power, ſo that they had no purpoſe to deſtroy this Kingdom, but the ſeed of David; another King being ſet up, and the Kingdom ſo remaining ſtill as a confederate of Verſ.7. theirs, but this is all ſoon daſhed in a word, It ſhall not ſtand, it ſhall not be ſaith the Lord; that is, this counſel ſhall not ſtand now, neither ſhall it be hereafter thus brought about, but ſhall be in vain, as if nothing had ever been conſulted or attempted to this purpoſe.

Verſ.7,8. For the head of Syria is Damaſcus, and the head of Damaſcus Rezin; and yet ſixty five years and Ephraim ſhall ceaſe to be a people, &c. This is added to con-Muſculus. firm the premiſes; Rezin reignes and ſhall reign over Damaſcus only, the Metropolitan City of Syria, and never over the Metrapolitan City of Judah, Jeruſalem; and likewiſe is that of Pekah, verſ 9. to be underſtood: therefore their counſel to take Jeruſalem, and as Lords thereof to ſet up a new King there, ſhall vaniſh. Ephraim is here put for the Kingdom of the ten Tribes under Pekah, and the utter deſtruction of it is here propheſied of. This deſtruction was Anno 9. of Hoſhea King of Iſrael, as appears 2 King. 17.6. but this Prophecy in the time of Ahaz King of Judah, in whoſe 12th year Hoſhea began to reign, chap. 11.6. and chap. 17.1. therefore not above 21 years paſſed betwixt this and Iſraels deſtruction; How then ſaith he, Yet ſixty five years? The com-Hieron. mon anſwer of Jerom, following the Hebrews in their Seder Olam, and of o-Amos 5.27. 7.11. thers after him is, that this time is to be computed from Amos his firſt threatning of Iſrael that they ſhould be carried away; and he propheſied in the daies Amos 1.1. of Uzziah, two years before the Earthquake,] So that unto this time we muſt adde 16 of Jothams reign, ſo we ſhall attain to 37 years; if then that Earthquake were in the 24th or 25th year of Uzziah, as the Hebrews commonly hold, his whole reign being 52 years, there will be 28 more to be added, which together will make 65. If ye will not believe, neither ſhall ye be eſtabliſhed,] Hebr. אם לא תַאֲמִנוּ לֹא תֵאָמֵנוּ it is ſpoken by a Paranomaſy, the ſame word in Cal ſignifying to believe, in Niphal to be eſtabliſhed: The ſenſe is, that they of the Kingdom of Judah ſhould be deſtroyed and captivated alſo, as they of the Kingdom of Iſrael.

Verſ. 10,11. And the Lord added, Ask for thee a ſign, either in the depth or above on high.
Hieronym. Jerom, when Ahaz was not moved by the ſpeech of the Prophet, the Lord

Calvin.

vouchſafed to ſpeak himſelf unto him, if haply he would be moved,hearing the voice of his Majeſty.And he biddeth him ask a ſign of the Lord,not of any idol or falſe god, to which he was addicted, and that either from hell, to have the earth cleaved aſunder to ſee into that place of torment, or from heaven to ſee a way opened for the Son of man to aſcend,for ſo in due time he both deſcended and aſcended,as it is ſaid *Eph.*4.10.From the earth by Moſes a ſign was ſhewed in Egypt,when lice and frogs were brought forth out of the earth; and from heaven,when hail and lightening came from thence:But here he is permitted to ask a ſign further ſtretching, that he might be confirmed touching the deliverance promiſed and the deſtruction of their enemies threatned. And to this of places deeper and more low then the earth,Calvin ſeemeth to aſſent; although Muſculus and ſome others,by the depth,underſtand the earth:But though the earth be beneath, yet becauſe this word is not uſed to ſet forth the earth,but the ſea or hell, it is beſt underſtood of hell; in opening a way to which,that it might be ſeen, God could as eaſily ſhew a ſign, as in the earth. And whereas Jerom underſtands theſe words, The Lord added, of the ſpeaking of the Lord himſelf, Muſculus, Oecolampadius, &c. take it for the Prophets ſpeaking in his Name; as if it had been ſaid, The Lord hath further given me in charge to ſay unto thee, &c. which is rather to be held, becauſe the next words after Ahaz his anſwer, are certainly the words of the Prophet in the Lords Name. And it was a wonderfull favour to a wicked man, that God ſhould condeſcend ſo far as to give him what ſign ſoever he would ask, ſeeing God is to be believed without ſigns; and ſometimes they that ask ſigns, who were of Ahaz his condition, are upbraided hereby and denied, as the Phariſees.

Verſ.12. Mat.4. Calvin. Hieron. Cyril. Rupert.

And Ahaz ſaid, I will not ask a ſign,neither will I tempt the Lord. He ſeemeth to give ſuch credit to the Word of God, that he would believe without a ſign; the asking of a ſign being in ſome caſe judged a tempting of the Lord, as appears by that ſaying, *Matth.*4. Thou ſhalt not tempt the Lord thy God. But this was feigned piety in Ahaz, and manifeſt diſobedience, when he was bidden to ask a ſign, to deny ſo to do. And ſo it is, ſaith Calvin, in a Chriſtian now to neglect the holy Sacraments, Baptiſme or the Supper of the Lord, becauſe he believes without theſe ſigns, and accounts them but ſuperfluous to ſalvation; but this they cannot do without rejecting alſo the whole Goſpel. And Luther ſpeaks alſo to the ſame effect. For God knows better then our ſelves, what we ſtand in need of; and therefore, as it is a point of impiety not to believe without ſigns, when God will give none, as Dives and his brethren, or without new ſigns according to their own will, when there be ſigns enough ſhewed without asking, as the Phariſees; ſo it is to refuſe ſigns offered, as is the caſe of non-Communicants. Yet ſometime a ſign in particular hath been asked without offence, as by Gideon; yet, as Calvin hath it, not without the inſtinct of the Spirit. Jerom and other Ancients think, that Ahaz ſpake thus, as meaning to conſult with his gods, not regarding what the Prophet ſaid to him in the Lords Name: And ſome, that he would provide for his deliverance by his gifts to the King of Aſſyria, and needed no help or ſign from the Lord in his preſent ſtrait. Therefore Ambroſe was miſtaken, who thought, that in modeſty and humility he asked a ſign; for both his condition being an Idolater, and the Prophets reply declare the contrary.

Verſ.13.

And he ſaid, Hear ye houſe of David, is it a ſmal matter for you to be troubleſome to men, but ye will be troubleſome to my God? The word לאה rendred by troubling, ſignifieth wearying; and it is as if he had ſaid (O Ahaz,and ye his kinſmen and Counſellours) Is it not enough for you to weary and vex me, by giving ſo little heed to my words, and other Prophets of God, but ye will ſo manifeſtly ſleight God alſo, when he ſo graciouſly offers, to confirm by ſign, deliverance unto you out of your great danger, as deſperatly incredulous and not believing him to be able to do this? Certainly this obſtinacy in you is intollerable, and ye ſhall one day ſuffer for it at the hands of God, whom ye thus incenſe and provoke. Ye houſe of David.] He cals them, not for honour in

Calvin.

Note.

Eph. 2.12.

Hieron.

this place, but to their greater reproach, ſaith Calvin; it being more hainous for the ſeed of ſo worthy a King or man, to be deſperately wicked, then for other men. In ſaying, Weary men, he ſpeaks according to their conceit, becauſe they thought the Prophets but men like themſelves, and ſo contemned their threatnings, as many alſo now adaies do: For they are indeed Gods inſtruments, by whom he worketh, and therefore to deſpiſe them, is to deſpiſe God. But granting that they were but men, and ſo in other offices they might be ſleighted, yet when they come to offer ſo great a favour from God, and extraordinary, of giving a ſign, to be ſleighted, is a moſt intollerable wearying of God of all others, yet ſuch weariers do the Prophets meet withall even in the family of David, in the holy Church of God. And it is to be noted, that he changeth the Pronoun here, ſaying [My God] whereas before he bad him, Ask a ſign of the Lord thy God] Intimating, that the wicked have nothing to do with God, he is not theirs, but the God of the righteous only; they are therefore ſaid to be without God in the world; and of the god of this world we reade, 2 Cor.4.4. Jerom ſuppoſing, that the offer of a ſign came immediatly from God, underſtands a change of the perſon ſpeaking in this verſe, viz. from God to the Prophet: And for trouble or wearying, he ſaith, the Septuagint and Theodotion have it agonem, ſtriving, as a Phyſitian is made to ſtrive with an unruly patient, and finally to loſe his labour, the diſeaſe not being cured, but continuing to his deſtruction. And by the houſe of David, he will have his Tribe, the Tribe of Judah meant. Ahaz and others of the royall Family like minded to him being reproved thus, but the reſt of that Tribe ſpoken to ſo many as beleeved to their exceeding great comfort, v.14.

Verſ. 14.

Hieronym.

Adam Saſbont.

Calvin.

Therefore the Lord himſelf will give you a ſign, a Virgin ſhall conceive, &c. The word עלמה rendred a Virgin, is by all Expoſitours, except the Septuagint, of old, rendred a young woman (ſaith Jerom) But it ſignifieth a young one hidden or kept cloſe from the view of men, by the care of her parents; neither is the word uſed in any place, to ſet forth a young woman, without this addition, hidden. Moreover it is abſurd ſo to render it, ſith it is no ſign or wonder for a young woman to bring forth a ſon, but for a Virgin: And in the Punick tongue, which comes from the Hebrew, Alma doth alwaies ſignifie a Virgin. The bleſſed Virgin Maries bringing forth then, is here propheſied of, although it may ſeem impertinent to the preſent purpoſe, as happening many hundreds of years after, and the deſtruction of thoſe two Kingdoms, Syria and Iſrael, was then at hand. But it is inſerted per raptum Propheticum, as is uſual amongſt the Prophets, to bring in ſometimes a ſpiritual rapture, to which the Spirit carries them upon a ſudden, and then to return to that, of which they were ſpeaking before. But how is it pertinent to the thing in hand, to foretell of the birth of Jeſus, when a ſign ſhould be given of their deliverance from thoſe two Kings? Saſbont anſwers well, that this ſign is not unaptly now given, becauſe of the ſimilitude betwixt the deliverance by Jeſus, and that preſently promiſed. For as they were unworthy to be ſaved from thoſe two Kings, and yet God out of his meer mercy promiſed it; ſo both they and all men are moſt unworthy of ſalvation by Jeſus, yet God out of his grace and mercy promiſeth this alſo. Calvin will have this the ſenſe, Becauſe ye (O houſe of David) and thou (O Ahaz) in particular doſt reject my offer of a ſign, which might, if any thing in the world, make me break my Covenant with Abraham and his poſterity, viz. the greateſt and moſt bleſſed-making Covenant, that in his ſeed all the Nations of the earth ſhall be bleſſed: yet I will not hereupon take occaſion ſo to do, but will in due time give a ſign, that I am mindfull of keeping it, for that a Virgin ever carefully kept from man, ſhall by the power of the moſt high bring forth a Son: For ſuch a Virgin, and not an old, but a young one, and a very young one doth the word Almah alwaies ſignifie. And thus Matthew, guided by the Spirit, applieth this Prophecy, when Jeſus was born. Either of theſe waies this doubt is fully cleared, and whereas it is ſaid, Will give you a ſign, It is not to be underſtood, as reſtrained to the houſe of David, as if

Jeſus were given to none but the Jewiſh Nation; but to thoſe of Davids houſe he ſaith he will give it, becauſe it ſhould be wrought upon one of his houſe, that is, the Virgin Mary, the benefit redounding to the faithfull of all Countries and Nations to the worlds end. Or by the ſign, which the Prophet ſaith, the Lord will give, underſtand a wonder that he would work, a new thing, as it is called, Jer. 31.22. For Ahaz being offered a ſign of deliverance at this time refuſed it: therefore the Lord will give a ſign, not of the deliverance then at hand, ſo much as of a deliverance farre exceeding it, viz. that by Chriſt from all ſpirituall enemies; a Virgins conception ſhall be the ſign hereof, the like unto which was never before done in any age; ſo that when this ſhall come to paſſe, it ſhall aſſuredly be known, that the Meſſiah, our Redeemer is come. Of this Virgins bringing forth a Son, the Sybils alſo propheſied. The Phrygian, Virginis in corpus voluit dimittere cœlo, Deus prolem, cùm nuntiat Angelus almæ Matri, quæ miſeros contracta ſorde levabit. God would ſend an ofspring from heaven into the body of the Virgin, when the Angel tels the Virgin Mother, which ſhall eaſe miſerable men of their contracted filthineſs. Of other Sybils ſee Auguſt. de Civit. l.10. c.27. Euſeb. lib.4. de Vita Conſtantini. The Jews, ſaith Jerom, by this Son underſtand Hezekiah the ſon of Ahaz; and by a Virgin a young woman, the wife of Ahaz, who bare him, being before barren: But herein they are too groſſe, becauſe Hezekiah his birth was paſt nine years before, although this Prophecy were uttered in the beginning of Ahaz his reign, as he muſt needs yield that conſiders the age of Hezekiah, when he began to reign, for he was twenty five, and the time of Ahaz his fathers reign, which was ſixteen. One therefore, ſaith he, holdeth that Emanuel here ſpoken of, was another ſon of Iſaiah, which his wife bare him, in a figure of Jeſus, as ſhe had before born him Shear-jaſhub, in a figure of the Jews returning from Captivity: But how then is it ſaid, not a woman, but a Virgin, &c. The Son here propheſied of, without all doubt, is the ſeed of the woman, which ſhould break the ſerpents head, propheſied of, Gen. 3. But inſtead of this name Emanuel, the Virgin Maries Son was called Jeſus. To reconcile this, it is to be underſtood, that theſe two names are all one, becauſe who ſo is Jeſus, which ſaves from ſin, is Emanuel, that is, God with us, or in one nature, God and man in one perſon, none other being ever able to work this great work; not God, becauſe he cannot ſuffer; nor man, becauſe his ſuffering cannot be of extent ſufficient to reach to all men, neither can he by any power in himſelf riſe from death to life again. 2. Chap. 9. It is ſaid, He ſhall be called Councellour, the mighty God, the everlaſting Father, &c. yet none of theſe were his proper Names, but his Elogies or Epithetes, further to ſet forth the virtues in him. 3. Emanuel is his Name which the Latines call agnomen, added to his proper Name to ſet him forth by ſomething moſt remarkable and peculiar to him. As Trajan the Emperour having ſubdued Dacia, was called Dacius. Scipio, who overcame Aphrica, Aphricanus; for none elſe can be called Emanuel but our Lord Jeſus. Laſtly it is to be noted, that the word rendred, Shall call, וְקָרָאת in the feminine gender, to intimate a woman bringing forth this ſon without generation by man; becauſe, as appears in the example of Zachary, the father hath the power to name his childe; therefore hereby is ſhewed, that this Son ſhould have no father, but a mother only, a pure Virgin.

Sybilla Phrygia.

Hieronym.

Verſ.15. Hieronym.

Butter and honey ſhall he eat, till he knoweth to refuſe the evil and to chuſe the good. This is ſpoken, ſaith Jerom, to ſhew, that however he be called Emmanuel, yet he ſhall have a true humane body, for he ſhall be fed in his infancy as other children, with butter and honey, for that land flowed with milk and honey. He ſhall not therefore be a man-childe in appearance only, as Marcion and the Valentinians have held, having an aerean or heavenly body, but like unto ours, only pure and free from ſin. And after the manner of other children he ſhall be ignorant at the firſt, as man new-born, but grow, as in age and ſtature, in wiſedom, as Luke ſaith that he did. Cornel. a lapide reaſons diverſly againſt this being Calvins and Bucers, both from Scriptures and fathers, holding that he was full of wiſedom being an infant,by reaſon of his hypoſtaticall Union with the Deity, which I ſpare to inſert here becauſe the word לְדַעְתּוֹ until he knows, is ſo expreſs againſt this fulneſſe of knowledge in the childe Jeſus as he was man at the firſt.

Verſ.16. For before the childe ſhall have knowledge to refuſe the evill, &c. that is, before he be grown up paſt the age of a childe, the Land which thou abhorreſt ſhall be forſaken of both her Kings. Here Ephraim and Samaria are ſpoken of together as one Land, becauſe the Kings of both Pekah and Rezin, were ſo nearly united together with both their peoples by a confederacy, that they were all as one Nation, and this Nation is deſcribed thus, The Land which thou abhorreſt, becauſe Ahaz his hatred was exceeding great againſt them, for their combining againſt him, and the great deſtructions which they had made in his countrey. And this began ſoon to be fullfilled in Rezin, the King of Syria, by the Aſſyrians coming at Ahaz his requeſt, and ſlaying him, and then in Pekah ſlain by Hoſhea, who reigned in his ſtead. But how this agrees with the ſign here given, wheneas the ſign was not till five hundred years after, is a doubt not ſo eaſily reſolved. Some ſay, Iſa.37.30. that it is no unuſuall thing amongſt the Prophets to give that for a ſign which is not fullfilled till after the thing, whereof it is a ſign, as the eating of thoſe things which ſhould grow of themſelves the firſt and ſecond year, and ſowing and reaping the third year, was given for a ſign to Hezekiah, and Samuel gave Saul ſigns to come of his being choſen king by God, and Chriſt gave his being in the grave to the third day, as Jonah in the Whales belly for a ſign, and Exod. 3.12 is another like ſign: But what is a delaying for a year or two to five hundred years? Some ſay, that it is meant, this ſon ſhall ſave you and deſtroy the two kings your enemies, which declares him to be to be God with us, that is, God and man, and conſequently of all power, although like another in appearance at the firſt: but this is nothing to the purpoſe, ſith this childe muſt be in his minority, at the time of theſe two kings periſhing. The beſt reſelution is, that the prophecy touching Calvin. Jeſus is fully ended *verſ.*15. and *verſ.*16. another childe is ſpoken of, as Calvin well obſerves, and therefore it is not ſaid before, this ſon ſhall have knowledge, Junius. but this childe הַנַּעַר, meaning (as Junius hath it) Shearjaſhub, his ſon whom he brought with him *ver.*3. for if he were then an Infant, or two or three years old, yet he attained not to years of diſcretion, till the deſtruction both of Pekah and 2 King. 15. 27,30. chap.16.1. Rezin. For Ahaz began to reign anno 17. of Pekah, and if he and the king of Syria had come immediatly after that he was ſetled in his kingdom: Pekah lived but to the third year after, at what time if this childe were but five or ſix years old, he had not attained to years of diſcretion, much leſſe if he were not now a year old. But if we conſider 2 Chron. 28.5,6, the wars made by theſe two kings ſeverally againſt Ahaz before this, which could not be done in leſſe then two years: Pekah his deſtruction was within one year after this Prophecy, and ſo it was a very ſhort time before it was accompliſhed. If the particle כִּי becauſe, ſeems to make againſt this expoſition, becauſe or for before the childe ſhall have knowledge, ſeeing it connects this verſe as a reaſon to the former, it is to be underſtood, that it hath alſo other ſignifications, as &, etiam, followed by Marlorat, and alſo, ut, according to Pagnin, that before the childe ſhall have knowledge, &c. yet Calvin ſtands againſt expounding it of any particular childe, becauſe the particle הַ would have been added, if it had meant ſo, that it might have gone thus, this childe: wherefore by a childe he underſtands collectively all children of that time: but I prefer the former, the childe which I have here brought with me, that is, within a year or two at the moſt: or if Chi be rendred by ut, that we may joyn this to *verſ.*14. the Lord himſelf ſhall give you a ſign of Iſraels ceaſing to be a Kingdom, of which he had ſpoken before, that before the childe ſhall have knowledge, both theſe kings ſhall periſh, and then the intervening prophecy of the Virgins conceiving, &c. was a ſudden rapture of the Spirit to another moſt wonderfull thing, a more univerſall deliverance from a far greater danger, when a like thing ſhould happen to two kings that then ſhould be in the ſame Lands, before that Virgins ſons coming to years of diſcretion, or ſoon after his birth. For as one notes it out of Joſephus, Herod was then king of the Jews, and was commonly called by them King of Samaria, becauſe he was a ſtranger and not of the Jewiſh ſtock, and Obodas king of Damaſcus, the chief city of Syria, and Herod died miſerably 15 moneths after the birth of Emmanuel, and Obodas a few moneths before him. And theſe two;eſpecially Herod, endeavoured quite to extirp the ſtock of David, as theſe two had done touching his kingdom. Jooſeph. l.16. 19.

Verſ.17. Calvin. Muſculus. And the Lord will bring upon thee &c. the daies that have not come ſince the falling of Ephraim from Judah, even the king of Aſhur. The Lord who promiſed deliverance from the two kings, at this time knew that Ahaz would ſend for help againſt them to the king of Aſhur, and that by this means he ſhould for the preſent be out of their danger. Therefore he here threatneth a greater, becauſe he truſted to an arm of fleſh, and not in God, viz, that the king of Aſhur ſhould prove a greater plague to him then theſe two kings, or any enemies which Davids houſe whereof he was, had had ſince the diviſion of the kingdom into two in the time of Rehoboam. How this was fullfilled in part, ſee 2 Chron. 28,20,21. in the daies of Ahaz by Tiglath pileſer, and afterwards againſt his people, and Davids houſe by Nebuchadnezzar, chap. 36. Note. See here the danger of truſting in an arm of fleſh, and not in God, it is turned to the deſtruction of thoſe that truſt therein, when they think to have help hereby, eſpecially the help of Idolaters.

If the things done by Nebuchadnezzar ſhall ſeem not to agree to this prophecy, becauſe he was king of Babylon, he was alſo king of Aſhur now joyned by him to Babylon. Hieronym. Jerom rendring it with the king of Aſhur, making this the ſenſe, I will bring judgements upon thee, and afterwards upon the king of Aſhur, whoſe people ſhall alſo be overcome and deſtroied, and then thou ſhalt be delivered by the help of this Emmanuel. But the firſt is moſt genuine, and therefore he next ſhewing the Septuagint tranſlation, concludes with the ſenſe before brought.

Verſ.18. And in that day the Lord ſhall hiſſe for the fly that is in the uttermoſt parts of the river of Egypt, and for the Bee of Aſſyria. The metaphor of hiſſing was alſo uſed before chap.5.26. where the reaſon thereof hath been ſhewed. The forces that ſhould come out of Egypt, ſaith Jerom, are ſet forth by flies, becauſe of the ſordes or filth of their idolatrous ſacrifices, and the imbecillity of that people, thoſe of Aſſyria to Bees, becauſe they and the Perſians went to war with bow and arrows repreſented by the bees ſtrings, and this was fulfilled as touching the Egyptians when Ioſiah being ſlain by Pharaoh Necho, he placed a king over Iudah as he pleaſed, and as touching the Aſſyrians when Nebuchadnezzar deſtroyed their city. Calvin. Calvin will have the Egyptians ſet forth by flies, becauſe Egypt by reaſon of the great moiſture of the place, abounded greatly with flies, and the Aſſyrians by bees, becauſe in Aſhur bees abounded. Muſcul. Muſculus will neither have the Egyptians meant by the flies, becauſe it is ſaid in the uttermoſt parts of the river: nor Æthiopians who are beyond Egypt, as ſome, but the Lybians at one end of Nilus the Egyptian river, viz, where it begins: Enemies are alſo compared to Bees, Pſa.118. I prefer that of Ierom, becauſe the event ſo aptly anſwered the prophecy, the Egyptians ſubduing Iudah firſt, and then the Aſſyrians;and this doth better agree to the words of the Text, which are not beyond the river, as the Æthiopians and Lybians were, but from the uttermoſt parts, that is, one end of Egypt to the other, for it extended all along by the river Nilus, and was all watered by it, ſo that the inhabitants at the times of overflowing were forced to keep in higher rooms, till the ground was dry again. The reaſons of the allegories brought by Jerom and Calvin may well ſtand both. But I cannot think with Ierom that the imbecillity of the Ægyptians is ſet forth by flies, but their numeroſity making them formidable, though imbecill.

Verſ.19. And they ſhall come all and reſt in the deſert valleys,&c. and upon all buſhels,&c. here he proſecutes the allegory, meaning that theſe flies and bees ſhould continue in the land when they were come, the Jews being expelled, as we reade that they were, being carried to Babylon; and not like the flies once ſent in judgement to Egypt, ſuddenly come and ſuddenly gone: but theſe with their multitudes filling all places ſhould eat up and conſume all the good in every corner of the Calvin. Land. Deſert valleys are mentioned, ſaith Calvin, and buſhy places, to ſhew, that in no lurking place any of the Jews ſhall be ſafe from theſe enemies, but that they ſhall range about and rage every where throughout the whole Land, And Note. becauſe this is at an hiſſe, that theſe heathens come ſo readily to execute Gods Muſculus. judgements, the backwardneſſe of Chriſtians is condemned, who cannot by moſt earneſt preaching of long continuance be brought to doe as God requires them.

Verſ.20. In that day the Lord ſhall ſhave with a razor that is hired, by thoſe that are beyond the river, by the king of Aſhur, the head, the hairs of the feet, and the beard. Here by another metaphor from a razor, the greatneſſe of the judgement to come is ſet forth: for even as a razor takes all the hairs away to the very skin, no ſtumps being left, as in cutting with ſciſſers, ſo all wherein the comelineſſe of that Nation lay, he threatens ſhould be quite taken away, the hairs of the head in the Cyril. captivity of the Princes and Nobles, of the feet in the captivity of the artificers, and the beard is all taken away when the wiſe and the counſellours are deſtroied or captived. For the beard amongſt the Jews was ſo highly eſteemed of, that it was never ſo much as cut, and when Davids Embaſſadours had their beards half Calv. cut off, they were greatly aſhamed, but now it ſhould be all taken away by ſhaving Muſcul. with a razor, when no counſellour or wiſe man ſhould be left in the Land, ſo Calvin and Muſculus: who alſo as Vatablus upon the word hired ſay, either a moſt ſharp razor, becauſe when a man hires for his money, he will have of the beſt; or a razor that he will not ſpare, but make uſe enough of it, as paying well for it: and to an hired razor is the king of Aſhur compared, becauſe God paid him for his hire, the Land of Syria and of Iſrael, and the ſpoils of Iudah. And Note. hereby is implyed, that this king in his expedition againſt the Jews did but ſerve God as an inſtrument wherewith a man worketh his own will. The godly are his inſtruments alſo, but they know for what end God uſeth them, and aim in their endeavours hereat, viz. Gods glory: but the wicked know not, and therefore work for their ambition and malice, and in the end it ſhall come to them accordingly.
Septuagint. dingly. The Septuagint for a razor that is hired, have novacula inebriata, becauſe the word שכרה ſignifyeth to make drunken, but it is שכרה with Sin not Shin, and this ſignifyeth hired. According to the word hired here uſed, Nebuchadnezzar is ſaid to have been paid with the land of Egypt for deſtroying Tyrus, Iſa.29.18,19. and Gods judging them by a razor hired, implies the work of Ezek.18. judgement to be the work of another, and not his work, *Iſa.*28.23. becauſe God delights not in deſtroying, but in his mercy is moſt averſe herefrom, being deſirous that the wicked ſhould turn and not die. Laſtly, By ſhaving with a razor, the ſervitude of the Jews in a ſtrange Land is ſet forth, becauſe ſhaving was anciently of ſervants and ſlaves, ſo Pomponius Letus ſaith of Diocleſians triumph, that the cuſtom was for ſuch as had been ſlaves to enemies, but delivered, to follow the chariot of the triumpher with their heads ſhaven: ſo two thouſands Romans brought out of ſervitude by F. Flamininus, when he triumphed for Macedonia Hieronym. ſubdued, followed his chariot. Ierom ſaith, that ſome think, that the Aſſyrian was he whom the Lord threatens to ſhave, that is, to ſpoil by Perſians a long time after, but this he rejects and that worthily, becauſe it is במלך by the king of Aſhur, he is this ſharp razor: and as abſurd is that of the Rabbins applying it to Sennacherib, who, they ſay, was ſhaven by the Angel to his ignominy in the night that his men were killed. It is meant, that all the decorum and virility of the Jewiſh Nation, ſhould be taken away, for the beard is a ſign of a man, and none but women and other poor weak effeminate creatures ſhould be left by thoſe beyond the river, the Aſſyrians are ſet forth becauſe beyond Euphrates.

Verſ.21. In that day a man ſhall nouriſh a Cow and two ſheep, and for the plenty of milk he Hieronym. ſhall eat Butter. Here is ſhewed in what deſolation the whole Land of Iudea ſhould

ſhould be, there ſhould be but here and there a man left, and he that was left ſhould not keep herds of cattel and flocks of ſheep as in times paſt many men had done, but be ſo poor as that he ſhould keep a cow and two ſheep only, this being all his ſubſtance, and then by reaſon of the few cattel to eat the paſture, it ſhould ſo abound, that a cow ſhould give plenty of milk, ſo that thereof he might have therewith to make butter for his eating, for indeed he ſhould have nothing elſe to eat but butter and honey. Beſides ſome went to make a little bread, as is intimated, *ver.*25, for to what end elſe ſhould mountanous places be filled by digging, but to ſow corn there?

Verſ.23. And in that day where a thouſand vines were at a thouſand pieces of ſilver, it ſhall be to briars and thorns: That is, ſuch a deſolation ſhall be in all the Land, that Gardens, Vineyards, and Olive-yards for want of pruning and husbanding ſhall be overgrown with briars and thorns, and ſo there ſhall be no vines or other delightfull things for the comfort of mans life as in times paſt, for the moſt fruitfull places formerly moſt frequented ſhall be forſaken, the few that remain, not daring to keep there for fear of the enemy, but betaking themſelves to deſolate places formerly incult, as thinking in them to be more out of danger, becauſe men uſed to come little into them, as being hitherto void of inhabitants, and ſo without prey to be gotten in them, ſo that their life now ſhould be moſt miſerable, changing their habitations for incult and horrid deſerts, where wilde beaſts only were wont to live.

Verſ.24. With arrow and bow they ſhall come thither, becauſe bryars and thorns ſhall be in all the Land. That is, to theſe places thus for fear forſaken and overgrown with briars, if any will come they ſhall come armed for the danger that now will be by wilde beaſts, lurking and breeding there inſtead of living in the mountanous places and deſerts, to which they were confined before. And it is ſaid briars and thorns ſhall be in all the Land, meaning all the parts before inhabited, and tilled, Verſ.25. and dreſſed to bear fruits. For *verſ.*25. the mountanous places digged with the ſpade and mattock, ſhall not be ſo, the fear of briars and thorns ſhall not come thither: for men making thoſe now the only places of their habitation, ſhall clear them from thorns and briars, by ſtubbing them up and making ſome of the ground fit to bear corn: and it ſhall be for the ſending out of the Oxe, and the conculcating of the ſheep or ſmaller cattell, that is, the other part of the ground thus cleanſed, ſhall be to feed their beaſts upon for their neceſſary ſuſtenance, the cow being here ſet forth by שׁורי' before by בקור a word of the ſame ſignification: and in this expoſition almoſt all expoſitors agree.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſ.1. ANd the Lord ſaid unto me, Take to thee a great roll, and write therein with the ſtile of a man, Make haſte to the prey, haſten to the ſpoil, &c. This chapter tends by the conſent of all Expoſitors to the ſame with the former, viz. to ſhew that deſtruction was at hand to the kings of Syria and Samaria, and after that to Judah by the king of Aſhur, and yet here is comfort propounded in Chriſt to all the faithfull. But becauſe here a ſon is ſaid to be brought forth by the propheteſſe, in whoſe tender age it is ſaid, that Damaſcus and Samaria ſhallbe ſpoiled, as *Chap.*7, a promiſe was made that a virgin ſhould conceive and bring forth a Son, a Queſtion ariſeth, Whether this be not the ſon before propheſied of? and if ſo, that before-going touching the land of Syria and Iſrael forſaken in the infancy of that childe, and the like ſpoken here, will excellently agree to the judgement threatned, without any new invention to make out the ſenſe of thoſe words, *Chap.*7.15,16. Only Matthew may be to this interpretation oppoſed, becauſe he applyeth the prophecy *Chap.*7.14. to Ieſus the Son of the Virgin Mary, as being then only fullfilled. But his words do not imply ſo much, but that it was then fullfilled, which no Chriſtian will deny, but conſent unto, as moſt firmly beleeving it. Now that his words imply not the fullfilling of it ſolely at that time, appears by other the like applications made by him in other caſes, as Mat. 2.15, 27. Ob. It is ſaid, a Virgin ſhall conceive, &c. here the Prophet went in to the Propheteſſe, and ſhe conceived, who was no Virgin, but a Wife, for ſo Junius renders it, me congreſſo cum prophetiſſa, i. Vxore mea, neither doth Calvin deny but that it may ſo be taken. Sol. This being granted (although not the word קרב Chereb to draw nigh, but the word באה to go in, is uſed Ge. 26.3,4. to ſet forth the carnall knowledge which a man hath of his wife, it makes not againſt this Expoſition, becauſe not only ſingle perſons are ſet forth in the language of the h. G. by the Rev.14.4. name of virgins, but alſo all that are carnally undefiled: therfore although it were no wonder for Iſaiahs wife to bring forth a ſon, and ſo may ſeem impertinent to the prophecy afore-going, yet it is not, for ſo much as this was a ſign of Iſraels deſtruction ſhortly to come, that ſhe not being at that time haply with childe, yet now conceived and brought forth as ſoon as might be, and before that childe ſo brought forth, and grown up to be able to ſpeak, the kings of Syria and Iſrael were both ſlain. And then this puerpery was but a figure of that to come principally aimed at, as wherein our greateſt comfort lies about the deſtruction of the devils kingdom figured out in the kingdom of Ephraim, which kingdom that the Virgins ſon by his incarnation deſtroied, ſee Heb. 2.15. It was then fulfilled in a figure here, which was ſufficient to confirm the faithfull for the preſent, touching a temporall deliverance, and it was the ſecond time, and chiefly fullfilled in the Virgin Mary. And if it be thus taken, ver. 18. the children that thou haſt given me are ſet for ſigns: that is, Shear-jaſhub, and Mahar-ſhalal-haſh-baz will well anſwer to the relations preceding, chap. 7.3. and here ver. 4. whereas I have before followed Junius applying this word the childe to Shear-jaſhub, I have not ſo done, but being ready upon new light diſcovered to be guided by it: whereas the word Alma never ſignifies but a young woman hidden from man, this is controverted by the Hebrews, and therefore here by more rendred, adoleſcentula then virgo: but for the principall thing in this prophecy intended, the Septuagint rendring of it virgo is to be preferred, admitting the double ſenſe before-going, and this may be without prejudice to our cauſe, ſeeing Jeſus born of the Virgin Mary, who knew no man, was the wonderfull accompliſhing of the prophecy ſo as it never was before, but only in ſome ſort precurſory: and the prophecy of the ſeed of the woman, Gen. 3. and of a womans compaſſing a man, Jer. 31.22. make it plain that ſuch a puerpery was to be expected. Ob. But he is not called Emmanuel, but Mahar-ſhalal-haſh-baz, neither can any ſon be called ſo, but the ſon of the Virgin Mary only. Sol. The ſon of the bleſſed Virgin was not expreſly called by this name neither, when he was born, yet this argueth not, but that he was meant, as hath been ſhewed before: again although it can not be ſaid of any but Jeſus being born Emmanuel in that ſenſe, God and man in one perſon, yet now it might alſo be ſaid ſo in this ſenſe, God is with us in performing of his promiſe of delivering us from theſe two kings ſo earneſtly without his help bent to deſtroy us eſpecially which be of the houſe of David. Hieronym. Ierom who ſaith that the childe here ſpoken of is the ſame with that Cha. 7.14. only he hath another name, Make haſte to the ſpoil, &c. to ſhew that he ſhould take away the ſpoils before taken by the devil, according to that ſaying of his, Luk.11.21. When a ſtrong man armed keeps the houſe, all is quiet, but when a ſtronger then he cometh, he diſarms him and divides the ſpoils. But he will not have a thing really done ſet forth here, but only in imagination and viſion: for in viſion only the propheteſſe brings forth a ſon, a ſign of the haſty deſtruction of Syria and Samaria, and this was really after fullfilled, when the bleſſed Virgin conceived and brought forth her ſon Jeſus, And he ſaith, he muſt write in a roll, and take witneſſes to it, becauſe it ſhould not ſuddenly be done according to this viſion, but many hundred years after, for which it had need to be written in a great roll that might laſt long: and whereas before Chap. 7. he ſpake the ſame to the houſe of David, now he muſt ſpeak no more to the people in generall, but write it in a roll, to intimate that it ſhould be as a myſtery or thing hidden, the Virgins conception, for a long time from the generality of the people. And indeed, becauſe the circumſtances of taking a roll to write in, and witneſſes to it, imply a matter of great moment, not only touching the preſent or things near at hand, but alſo things of greateſt concernment to come long after, or elſe what need was there of providing thus for the durability of it throughout many ages, it muſt needs be yeelded, that as *Chap.*7. the birth of Jeſus was propheſied of, ſo it was here further repreſented and figured out together with the ſudden deſtruction of the devils kingdom enſuing hereupon, of his ſpoiling whereof, ſee alſo Heb. 2.15. Col. 2.14. And if this be taken as done in a viſion, then the meaning muſt be this, Iſaiah having a roll preſented unto him, wherein it ſeemed to him that he wrote theſe words, Mahar-ſhalal-haſh baz, he went in the ſpirit to the Virgin Mary, in viſion preſented unto him, and ſaw her bringing forth this ſon, and then ſpake as if he had been born indeed at that time, that before he ſhould have knowledge to cry My father or mother, the riches of Damaſcus, &c. ſhould be carried away. And to this agree Cyril. Baſil, Caldaus, Procopius, Rupert. Auguſt. de civitat. 17. c. ult. Epiphan. hareſ. 78. Euſeb. lib. 7. cap. 2. Demonſtr. Evang. Ambroſ. &c. wherefore to ſhew that this ſon is the ſame, *ver.*8. he is alſo called Emmanuel. And for the other are many grave authours alſo, as the Rabbins, Chryſoſt. Richardus Victor, Tho. Aquinas, Vatablus, Calvin, Junius, &c. But it is excepted againſt this, that if a ſon about this time really born had been meant, that which followeth cannot be approved for truth, *verſ.*4. becauſe the ſpoils of Samaria were not carried away by the King of Aſhur, till the 9. of Hoſhea, and this was but the 4. or 5. of Ahaz, in whoſe 12. year he began to reign, ſo that a childe then born might be at that time 16. years old. Anſw. The riches of Damaſcus were carried away within 2. or 3. years, and then the thing ſpoken of began to be fulfilled, the other following ſoon after in part, when in the beginning of the reign of Hoſhea ſome 7. years after this, he became Salmanaſar's ſervant, and he gave him gifts: Moreover, the ſame exception may be made, if it be underſtood the other way alſo. Only I grant taking it that way, we ſhall not be forced to flee to the underſtanding of a Virgin in conditions, and therefore both being weighed well together, that of underſtanding it done in a viſion will prove the moſt ſolid. But whereas Jerom by the propheteſſe another while underſtands the holy Ghoſt, becauſe the holy Ghoſt in Hebrew Ruah is of the feminine gender; I cannot ſee how it ſhould ſtand, becauſe not the holy Ghoſt but the Virgin Mary by the overſhadowing of the holy Ghoſt, brought forth her ſon. And ſhe may well according to Ierom be underſtood by the propheteſſe, becauſe ſhe propheſied when ſhe ſaid, all generations ſhall call me bleſſed, for ſhe is called ſo to this day. For the name Mahar-ſhalal-haſh-baz, it is not meant that he ſhould be called by this as a proper name, no more then by the name Emmanuel, but that he ſhould be ſuch an one that he might well be thus called for ſpoiling principalities and powers, as was partly touched before. The main thing here being thus cleared, I come to the particulars. To write in the ſtile of of a man is by the conſent of all, ſo as any may reade it, and that in great letters, as Hab. 2.2. becauſe God would have all the people know it, and that he would accompliſh that which he promiſed touching Damaſcus and Samaria very ſpeedily, to be confirmed againſt their preſent fears, and the rather, for that it was ſo improbable, that ſo great forces now joyned together ſhould not prevail againſt Ieruſalem, whenas either of them ſeverally was unreſiſtible before. And that this being written in a roll might be obvious to every ones ſight, it is not improbably thought by ſome, that it was faſtened upon the door of the Temple, as that of Habbakkuk, that a man running might reade it. The words are but few, Lemahar to haſten, Shalal the ſpoil, Chaſh chaffe or huske, Baz the prey: thus the words ſignifie, but I cannot finde them ſo expounded by any Expoſitour, but either paſſed over as a name, as Iunius pro Mahar-ſhalal-haſh-bazo, or as he alſo in his notes explains it, accelera ad ſpolia, feſtina pradam, whereas of Chaſh there is none other ſignification, but as hath been ſaid, and ſo no ſecond word to ſignifie haſten. Wherefore this name may rather be reſolved thus, he hath haſtned the ſpoil, the huskie or chaffie prey; ſo lightly flying from Damaſcus and Samaria,

2 King. 17.

2 King. 16.

maria, as the chaff before the winde, when the Aſſyrian comes, and his coming will not be long deferred, for he haſtens to this, as the end whereat he aimeth.

Verſ.2. And I took to me faithfull witneſſes, Uriah the Prieſt, and Zechariah. This was done for more confirmation of the Prophecie, becauſe by the teſtimony of two witneſſes all things are confirmed: and witneſſes of great note eſpecially as theſe two men were; Uriah the high-Prieſt at that time, for to him it is ſaid, 2 King.16. that Ahaz ſent a patern of the Altar at Damaſcus, to have one made like it at Jeruſalem, which was a thing indeed, that made againſt his credit, but that 2 King.18.2. was after this, and his credit held good hitherto. Zechariah was a man of great eminency, as being father to the mother of King Hezekiah. Theſe two were taken for witneſſes of theſe words written by the Prophet in a roll, as importing the ſpoiling of Damaſcus and Samaria with all ſpeed.

Verſ.3. And I went to the Propheteſs, who conceived and bare a ſon, &c. This was done in the ſpirit, wherein the incarnation of Chriſt to come long after, was now repreſented to the Prophet, as things to come were repreſented to John in the Revelation. But whether theſe two men were alſo preſent in the ſpirit with Iſaiah to ſee this ſon, is uncertain: it ſeems that they were to be witneſſes of the thing, that the more credit and heed might be given unto it by all men. And this is by ſome brought for a ground of witneſſes uſed of old, when names were given at the time of Circumciſion; but I muſt needs confeſſe, that although I have ſometime followed this, yet it is no good ground for it. For witneſſes or rather ſureties are uſed in Baptiſme for more aſſurance to the Church, theſe only to teſtifie this wonderfull Viſion and prophetical writing and name, that all might be aſſured of the thing here propheſied of.

Verſ.4. Before the childe ſhall know to cry, my father and my mother, the riches of Damaſcus and ſpoils of Samaria ſhall be taken away before the King of Aſhur. That is, counting from this time, before an Infant new born now ſhall be able to ſpeak, the pride of the two enemies of the houſe of David, Damaſcus and Samaria ſhall be taken down, they that have ſpoiled Judah, and had thought to have ſpoiled her more, being ſpoiled by the Aſſyrian King. The phraſe is, Shall be taken away before the King of Aſhur, haply becauſe, as amongſt the Romans, ſo amongſt the Aſſyrians the ſpoils taken from the enemy were carried before the Conqueror in triumph.

Verſ.6. Becauſe this people deſpiſeth the waters of Siloe, which run ſoftly, and there is joy to Rezin, and the ſon of Remaliah. Verſ.7. Therefore the Lord brings upon them the waters of the river, &c. Verſ.8. And paſſing into Judah, he ſhall overflow, &c. The Lord having hitherto comforted the faithfull by exhibiting after a ſort his Son unto them, and promiſing ſpeedy deliverance from their two great enemies, now threatneth the common ſort, or multitude of unbelievers in Judea for their ſleighting and contempt of his help thus offered, and amongſt them Ahaz, as the chief; for he, as it is likely with their conſent, not relying upon Gods Promiſes, but ſending for help to Aſhur, againſt theſe two Kings, thus ſhewed, that he deſpiſed the waters of Siloe, that ran ſoftly, the promiſe of deliverance being called ſo in oppoſition to the Aſſyrian Army expected, which came with the ſound of Drum and Trumpet, neighing of horſes, clattering of Armour, ſhouting and a great noiſe: but the Promiſe of God made by the Prophet was without all external ſhew of vigour or force to help, a very poor thing to truſt to, even as the little creeping river of Siloe, ſo called *Nehem.*2. 13. Fons ſerpentis. It is alſo mentioned *Joh.*9. for it ran ſlowly, and ſo was without force to gull and waſh down the ſoil where it ran, or to carry any burthen thereof before it. And this is that which God had againſt the unbelieving in Iudah: now againſt the two Kings, Rezin and Remaliahs ſon, not vouchſafing to call them Kings, he layes to their charge, that they had joy, that is, in the ſpoils by them already taken, and which they made account to take at their pleaſure in Ieruſulem, and to domineer there. And upon this expedition they put themſelves, meerly out of a delight which they took in waſting and taking ſpoils, and deſtroying the Jews, they giving them no juſt cauſe ſo to doe.

Verſ.7. Therefore the Lord will make the mightieſt and moſt abounding waters of a floud to come up againſt them, even the King of Aſhur and all his glory. Here after the ſin of the Syrian and Iſraelitiſh King laid open verſ.7. followeth their puniſhment, the King of Aſhur, as an overflowing and irreſiſtible floud with his Army, that is, his glory ſhall come and deſtroy their lands, as by a deluge.

Verſ.8. And he ſhall aſcend above all his ſtrong waters, and above all his banks, and ſhall paſſe through Iudah, and overflow till he paſſeth to the neck, and the ſtretching out of his wings ſhall be the breadth of thy Land, O Emmanuel. Here the judgement to come after the other upon the Kingdom of Iudah by the ſame King of Aſhur is ſet forth; as their ſin was alſo ſhewed before, yet their puniſhment is put in order after Rezins and Pekahs, as indeed it followed. And becauſe he had begun with an Allegory of a river, he continues by the like to ſet forth theſe judgements. He ſhall paſſe over all his ſtrong waters and banks, that is, the ſtrong ties of his oaths and covenant with Ahaz for his great gifts, and notwithſtanding theſe ſhall come againſt Iudah even to the head City, as he did in Hezekiahs time, for which he ſaith, Till he comes to the neck, which is next the head, for he was not permitted to come cloſe up to Ieruſalem, but near it, and he ſtretcht his wings over all the Land, when in the time of Manaſſeh, and afterwards of Zedekiah he deſtroyed and waſted all; and he ſaith, Of thy Land, O Emmanuel, alluding to the name Emmanuel, Chap.7.14. ſetting forth Chriſt Jeſus to come, as at whom he lookt by the eye of faith, expecting that he ſhould take vengeance for this upon the proud King of Aſhur, when he had made him firſt an inſtrument to execute his judgements upon his own Land or Church, which Mount Zion was allegorically. For ſo indeed the Lord did to the King of Babylon and Aſhur finally, when he gave him and his Land into the hands of Cyrus and Darius. Dan.5.

Junius. Hieron. Thus for the moſt part Junius and Tremellius. Jerom, who ſaw the brook of Siloe, for he lived ſometime there, ſaith, That it begins at a fountain at the foot of Mount Zion, and runneth not continually, but at certain times through moſt hard paſſages of rocks with a great noiſe. And by their deſpiſing the waters of Siloe, is allegorically ſhewed the ten Tribes rejecting of the poſterity of David, which God had ſet up, and their preferring to be under other Kings: but for this he ſheweth, that they ſhall be ſubdued and brought under the King they would not, even the Aſſyrian. But becauſe this is no where laid to the charge of Iſrael, yea contrariwiſe it is ſaid to have come of God for a puniſhment upon Solomon, That they revolted from Rehoboam, I cannot ſubſcribe to this. And as far wide is Muſculus, who will have the Kingdoms of Iudah Muſcul. compared to theſe waters, becauſe it was now in a poor condition; as if he had ſaid, becauſe Judah ſets light by her own condition, and preferreth that of Iſrael and Syria, being now far more potent and opulent; for neither had it been ſo hainous a fault to be thus dejected in the ſenſe of their own miſery; and the Calvin. laſt clauſe is, joy to Rezin and Remaliahs ſon, not in them. Calvin comes neareſt to that which hath been already ſaid, deſpiſing their own weak eſtate, they deſired greater forces for their defence; but neither doth this agree to joy in any relation to Rezin or Remaliahs ſon, becauſe the forces deſired by them were not theirs, but the King of Aſhurs, neither was it ſo great a ſin, or a ſin at all to be caſt down for their own tenuity, unleſſe with a conceit, that being ſo weak, God could not, or would not help them, whatſoever he promiſed by Cyril. his Prophet. Cyril and Procopius, becauſe they being ſo low, believed not Procop. that God could help them, and thought of revolting from Ahaz to Rezin and Pekah, and ſubmitting themſelves to the King, whom they would ſet over them, even the ſon of Tabeal, they are thus threatned. But this is a conjecture without ground, becauſe we read nothing of any intention in them to revolt; but it is certain, that in diffidence of aid from God they ſought for aid to the King of Aſhur. Now whereas Jerom ſaith, That the waters of Siloe run with a noiſe thorow hollow places of the Rocks, whereby this Allegory may ſeem not to agree; it is to be underſtood, that although they run with a noiſe at the firſt, yet paſſing further they run without all noiſe in ſilence, and eaſily, till they come into the Kings Gardens. Siloe for this might well ſet forth the King of Davids line, and the Lord Jeſus, who was to come of David, and was miſſus or ſent, according to the interpretation of the word Siloe, becauſe theſe were the waters, which watered his Gardens, and he was milde and cried not, nor lifted up his voice. For when his help promiſed was deſpiſed, he was deſpiſed, and afterwards when he came, being of the Jews rejected, ſaying, We will have no King but Cæſar. For the ſpreading of his wings over the whole Land, this is ſpoken by another Allegory comparing the Aſſyrian King to an Eagle, ſpreading his immenſe forces as wings.

Verſ.9. Aſſociate your ſelves together (O peoples) and ye ſhall be broken, give ear ye that dwell in the fartheſt parts of the earth, Gird your ſelves, and ye ſhall be broken, &c.

Verſ.10. Take counſel together, it ſhall be in vain, &c. After the judgement hitherto threatned, the Prophet now derideth their confederating together to ſtrengthen them the more againſt all enemies. That this which the Lord hath threatned might not come upon them. For notwithſtanding the Aſſociations made betwixt Syrians, and Iſraelites, and Jews and Aſſyrians on the contrary ſide, who are all meant by peoples; deſtruction ſhall come both upon Syria and Iſrael, and afterwards upon Judah alſo, being for the preſent rather weakened, then holpen by the King of Aſhur, as the ſacred Hiſtory ſheweth. And in calling upon moſt remote dwellers to hearken, threatning them alſo with contrition or tearing in peeces, though they couragiouſly girded themſelves to the battel, he means the Aſſyrians who ſhould after this be deſtoyed alſo, as they were indeed by a mighty deſtruction in one night under their proud King Sennacherib, and after that being ſubdued by the King of Babylon, who joyned the Kingdom of Aſſyria to his own, making both one. Then *verſ.*10. he derides their conſultations as vain, becauſe, ſaith he, God is with us: Junius. Iunius, The word of Emmanuel ſhall ſtand; rather reſpecting the ſenſe then the expoſition of the word Emmanuel. But the ſenſe will be good alſo thus, For God is with us his Prophets, to confirm what we threaten in his name and by his direction; neither can all the ſtrength in the world fruſtrate or prevent it. Hieronym. Jerom extends this no further then to the Syrians and Iſrael, to whoſe conſulting to take Ieruſalem, Chap:7. he alludeth, and then he applieth this to Perſecutours and Hereticks, the one ſort may band together to root out Chriſtian people, but they ſhall themſelves be deſtroyed in the end, and Chriſts Church ſhall continue, and the other may beat their brains, and uſe all means to ſuppreſſe the truth, but they ſhall be in vain, for God is the authour and protectour of the truth to make it ſtand, when all errors ſhall vaniſh. Calv. Calvin and Muſculus expound it only of the Aſſyrians, who were now coming againſt Iſrael, and were afterwards to come againſt Iudah. But forſomuch as the purpoſe of the Lord was to comfort and confirm the Kingdome of Iudah againſt the fear of Syria and Iſrael then joyning together againſt it, reaſon requires that it ſhould be taken as a threatning againſt them, and that the Aſſyrians more remote dwellers are next ſpoken, as who ſhould finally periſh alſo, to abate their pride coming upon them for their great and continual victories, for which they thought ſo highly of themſelves, that none ſhould ever be able to bring them down. But to ſhew certainly, that thus it ſhould be, he doubles the threatning, and to confirm the faithfull, although the enemy being put back once ſhould make the like attempt again, that he ſhall arm but to his own deſtruction. And all this ſhall be brought to paſſe by the power of Emmanuel, the reciting of which name brought this life and courage into the Prophet, as in the midſt of greateſt danger to conclude with an irony againſt the enemies of the Church.

Verſ.11. For thus hath the Lord ſaid unto me, when he laid hold on my hand, and put me back back from walking in the way of this people. This is word for word according to the Hebrew, and herein is ſhewed the cauſe why Iſaiah was ſo bold to deride all enemies ſo contrary to others in theſe dangerous times, the Lord took him by his Spirit, as it were, by the hand, and ſuffered him not to walk in the way of diſtruſt, wherein others walked, ſo that he contrariwiſe was full of confidence through Gods help, that it ſhould be ſo as he had propheſied. There was cauſe indeed, as Calvin ſaith, to fear; both outward, their enemies ſo ſtrongly combining; and inward, the wicked and unbelieving hearts of the people: yet God made the Prophet, as by ſtrength of hand to go this way ſo contrary to them; and hereby it is intimated, that it is by the hand of God guiding them, that ſome few go not in the common way of the multitude, but in another way of doing their diligence to make their election ſure and certain. Calvin. Note.

Verſ.12. Say not A conſpiracy wherein ſoever this people ſaith a conſpiracy, or in all wherein this people ſaith it, &c. That is, as thou haſt by Gods eſpecial grace been kept from doing wickedly, as they have done, as was ſaid *verſ.*11. ſo ſpeak not, and bid other faithfull perſons not to ſpeak diſpairingly, ſaying Rezin and Pekah have conſpired together to ſubdue our City Jeruſalem, and we ſhall never be able to withſtand ſo great a power, whatſoever fair promiſes the Lord makes us by his Prophet, Fear not their fear.

Verſ.13. But ſanctifie the Lord of hoſts, and let him be your fear. That is, acknowledge him to be holy, and true, and allmighty, which redounds greatly to his glory, by nothing doubting of his help againſt your enemies. Sanctifying is here put for glorifying, as alſo in the Lords-Prayer, Hallowed be thy Name. For fearing him and nothing elſe, ſee alſo *Matth.*10.28. Let this be all that ye are afraid of, to offend him, and then ye ſhall have his love, and care not what wrath men have againſt you.

Verſ.14. And he ſhall be for a ſanctuary, a ſtumbling ſtone and a rock of falling to both the houſes of Iſrael, &c. The word ſignifieth either Sanctuary or Sanctification, the meaning is, to you that glorifie him by believing he ſhall be as a place of ſafety, your enemies being never able to hurt you, as thoſe that fled of old to a City of refuge, or he ſhall make you glorious through his miraculous working for your ſafety and preſervation in greateſt ſtraights. The words following are again uſed, *Chap.*28.16. yet not all, but the firſt only, a ſtone, and there it goeth thus, I lay in Zion a ſtone of probation, a corner ſtone and precious, a ſtone of foundation. But *Rom.*9.33. both theſe places are put together and applied to our Lord Jeſus, 1 *Pet.*2.4. That only of *Chap.*28. comparing the preciouſneſs of this ſtone before God, with the vile account in which it was had amongſt men, according to *Pſal.*118.22. and *Matth.*21.42. Having in the former words comforted the faithfull, by ſaying, That God would be to them a Sanctuary; here he turns to the unbelieving of both houſes or Kingdoms, threatning that he ſhould be a ſtumbling ſtone, becauſe when they ſhould ſee themſelves brought into miſery and ſervitude by their common enemies the Aſſyrians, they ſhould fall more and more into infidelity, to ſay, that the Lord was not ſo mighty as they thought formerly he had been. And allegorically our Lord Jeſus is here alſo pointed at, becauſe he is ſanctification and ſafety to all the faithfull, but to the children of Iſrael eſpecially a ſtumbling block or ſtone, for his poverty and curſed death, making them to fall into the higheſt degree of contempt and enmity againſt him, and ſo to ruine by the Romans, but all through their own corruption. And to the inhabitants of Jeruſalem: This is added, becauſe Jeruſalem was the chief place of the principal Kingdom, that it might not be thought, that they of that place ſhould be better then the reſt, but be involved in the ſame ſpiritual judgement, and conſequently in the ſame miſery, although they had this advantage above other parts, that they had the Prieſts and many other learned ones amongſt them. But in ſpeaking of Jeruſalem he varieth the phraſe, ſaying, For a ſnare and a net to the inhabitant of Jeruſalem, denoting their enſnaring or being unawares taken by that erroneous opinion of Juſtification by works, and not by faith only Hieron. Calv. Muſcul.

only in Chriſt Jeſus, as Paul argueth *Rom.*9.30,31,32. applying the words of this place; whereby it appears, that although it were fulfilled long before,yet Oecolamp. it was chiefly fulfilled in the time of the Goſpel, as Oecolampadius well noteth. But it is to be obſerved *verſ.*15. that he ſaith, Verſ.15. Many ſhall fall amongſt them. Intimating,that in all times there is a remnant of the faithfull, even when the times are moſt corrupt, as in the dayes of Elijah, and this is the true Church of God, to which this ſtone is precious to 1 King.19. build their faith upon as a moſt ſure foundation. But the multitude ſhall fall, be broken in pieces, be intangled,and taken; fall by not believing, be broken by accuſtoming themſelves to ſin, be intangled by ones drawing of another, and taken by ſuffering the juſt puniſhments of their ſins; thus alſo Oecolampadius. Or if we take falling or intangling for two Metaphors, expreſſing one and the ſame thing, viz. by unbelief and breaking in pieces and taking, likewiſe for the puniſhment, the ſenſe will be leſſe forced, then if by breaking in pieces be underſtood a being addicted or accuſtomed to divers ſins. Contrariwiſe four Epithetes are given to the Lord tending all to comfort and confirmation in reſpect of the faithfull, 1. A ſtone of probation. 2. A corner ſtone. 3. Precious. 4. A ſure foundation, *Chap.*28.16.

Verſ.16. Binde the Teſtimony,ſeal the Law amongſt my Diſciples. Here becauſe the Jews ſtumbled at Chriſt through unbelief, and ſo fell into great miſeries, the Lord bids the Prophet binde up the Teſtimony to them,that when they reade it,they may not ſee into the end thereof, Chriſt Jeſus, through a ſpiritual judgement upon them for their malice and groſſe unbelief in the midſt of ſo many ſigns, and to ſeal it over to the Gentiles, who ſhould now become his Diſciples, and know that,touching the Moſaical Laws, which the Jews ſhould not, even the Hieron. Doctrine of the true faith to their ſalvation, becauſe both the moral Law was a Schoolmaſter to bring us to Chriſt, by ſhewing the curſe of God to be our due for our ſins thereagainſt, and the carnal rites of the ceremonial ſerved to figure out Chriſt and his Kingdom, to whom we muſt flee, that we may be delivered from the curſe. To this effect almoſt Jerom, and touching the Jews Tremel. Tremellius, who will have the Roll ſpoken of *verſ.*1. meant by the Teſtimony, and that the Lord would have him fold it up, that it might not be in the ſight of this wicked people, as moſt unworthy: but then this judgement muſt be underſtood as taking place in the time of the Goſpel, for now it was written for their reading, and according to ſome ſet up upon the doors of the Temple. Calvin. Calvin underſtands no more hereby, but doing by the written Law, as a man uſeth to do by a letter, binding a thred about it, and then ſealing it, that every one may not reade it, but they to whom it is ſent: Others may have it in their hands, but have no knowledge of that which is in it, but onely they to whom it belongeth. For the word is in all mens hands, but it is as a ſealed letter to moſt, only they that are taught of God, to whom it is ſpecially written, Muſculus. ſee into it and have benefit and comfort thereby. Thus alſo Muſculus, who draweth matter of incouragement from hence to the Prophets of God. When they preach to many, but few are wrought upon by their preaching; the word Sasbont. is as a ſealed letter to moſt. Adam Sasbont differing from all theſe, ſaith,that no concealing or hiding of the counſel of God from any is here meant, but as a man that would remember a thing, binds ſomewhat about his finger to put him in minde of it, ſo would the Lord have Iſaiah do to his Diſciples, not really taking and binding this roll to their hands or arms, but requiring them to have it alwayes in ſuch remembrance, as if it were bound there; a like phraſe ſee *Deut.*6.8. and *Prov.*7.3. And this is the moſt plain ſenſe of all others, and agreeth beſt, becauſe one part of the ſpeech doth not touch one, and the other another ſort of men, as Jerom ſaith, But Binde the teſtimony and ſeal the Law are both ſpoken to the ſame Diſciples, and binding and ſealing are Metaphors to ſet forth one and the ſame thing, for as we make faſt by binding, ſo more by ſealing. Yet if any ſhall like better of ſealing, that the Diſciples onely might know and not others, I confeſſe, that the word ſealing ſeems to imply ſo much, and not remembring only as doth binding alone. To conclude, the meaning is, Charge the Diſciples, ſo as if it were bound to their hands for a remembrance to think upon it, and yet by a ſpiritual judgement let it come thorow the eyes and hands of others as a letter ſealed to my Diſciples view and reading, that they may know it, and have comfort hereby; and by the Teſtimony may be underſtood both this roll for the teſts or witneſſes uſed to it, and the Law or Teſtimony at large.

Verſ.17.

Adam Sasbont.

And I have waited for the Lord, who hath hid his face from the houſe of Jacob, and have expected him. Septuagint, And I will truſt in him. Thus to the Lords Diſciples, I was bidden to do, as verſ.16. and I for my part believe without all doubting, that the Lord will now ſhew the mercy promiſed to his people in delivering them from their enemies, as I have before ſaid, and by a farre greater deliverance through that Emmanuel to come, although his face be ſo turned away for the intervening time from Judah and Iſrael both, as that no ſhew be a long time made of any ſuch favour to come. It is the voice, ſaith Sasbont of the faithfull, when all things ſeem to go contrary, I will yet believe, and will not caſt away my hope. True faith never ceaſeth waiting upon God, although he deferreth long his coming to help, and no ſign hereof be ſeen. Calvin and Vatablus for, And I have waited, render it, Therefore I have waited, as if he had ſaid, becauſe the Lord ſaid unto me, that I ſhould not go in the way of this people, verſ. 11. Therefore though they deſpair of help, I have faith to believe, and hope certainly to expect it in Gods good time.

Verſ.18.
Hieronym.

1 Cor.4.15.
Ezek.24.24.
Zech.3.8.

Behold I and the children which the Lord hath given me, are for ſigns and wonders, &c. Some, ſaith Jerom, underſtand the natural children of Iſaiah, Shenriaſhub and Emmanuel, and theſe, they ſay, were ſet for ſigns, becauſe the one did ſet forth the abjection of the Jews, the other the receiving of the Gentiles, but, ſaith he, they may as well hold, that Hoſea married an harlot indeed, and begat children of her, as this. Therefore he by his children underſtands rather Prophets, who after him were ſent to propheſie of the like things, who at firſt were by him begotten to God, as Paul ſaith, My little children, of whom I travel again till Chriſt be formed in you. Or take a more apt place, Though ye have ten thouſand inſtructers, ye have but one father, for I have begotten you to Chriſt. So God tels Ezekiel, That he ſhould be a ſign unto them. And allegorically he underſtands it, as ſpoken in the perſon of Chriſt, to whom it is applied *Heb.*2.13. for he and his Diſciples, whom he tels, that they muſt be as little children, and ſometime cals little ones, were as ſigns and wonders to the unbelieving Jews, when they ſhewed many ſigns amongſt them, which they flockt to ſee with admiration, 1 *Cor.*4.9. God hath ſet us forth as ſpectacles to the world.

Calvin.
Muſcul.

Calvin and Muſculus, and the reſt of our new Writers underſtand not only Prophets, but any converted by Iſaiah his teaching, and afterwards by Chriſts. The meaning is, that ſuch as in whoſe hearts the Lord doth work by the Miniſtry of his ſervants the Prophets, to live by faith in the moſt dangerous times, when nothing appears but ruine and miſery, are by the wicked world abhorred as monſters and abominable creatures for their ſingular walking in a way by themſelves, that is, of Faith, Obedience, Love, Patience and Humility, and not in the wayes of ſin and wickedneſs, that others walk in. But they come not to be thus contemned, and abhorred through the will of their enemies, but of God, who had fore-determined that it ſhould be ſo, yea even of that God, who dwels in Mount Zion, in whom, and whoſe houſe there, theſe wicked deſpiſers much gloried, as if becauſe he dwelt amongſt them, they were in great grace and favour with him, whatſoever abominations they committed, for which he ſaith, Set for ſigns and wonders from the Lord who dwelleth in Mount Zion. This ſheweth, 1. That it is by God, that children are given to Prophets; it is not by any vertue in them, that they are converted, neither come they to be ſuch of themſelves when they have means. 2. The common

Note.

Cornel. a Lap.

condition of the godly both Prophets and people is to be contemned and wondered at by the wicked world. 3. This is not without the Divine Providence. 4. Even ſuch as glory in the Lord and in his Religion are ſometimes thus ſpitefull againſt his ſervants, for which he is highly diſpleaſed with them, but they flatter themſelves with a conceit, that they only are his true Church, as the Papiſts who are ſo malicious to poor Proteſtants that be moſt godly at this day. 5. Teachers ought to go before their children in Faith, Patience, and all other vertues; for he ſaith, He hath ſet me and the children. 6. Becauſe this is applied to Chriſt and all his; we muſt not make account, that he alone was expoſed to contempt and ſufferings for us (as he was indeed, that by the merit of his ſufferings we might be ſaved) but as we would have true comfort, that we are children by God given unto him, we muſt frame our ſelves likewiſe to ſuffer with him, that we may be glorified with him, for he and his are ſet for ſigns, &c. and not he alone. One ſhewing how the Prophets were made ſigns and wonders, applieth it to Iſaiah going in ſackcloth, and then naked for a ſign three years together, *Chap.*20. and to Ezekiel and Jeremy, and ſince to Paulus the firſt Eremite, who ſhut up himſelf from the ſight of men ſixty years together; and Anthonius the next, who lived an Eremitical life alſo in abſtinence and rigidity, till he was above an hundred years old. And Paula a noble woman of Rome, who went to Bethlehem and ſpent all her ſubſtance in building Monaſteries there, living in continual faſtings and prayers, and ſo poor at her death, that ſhe was not worth a winding-ſheet, but her daughter Euſtochium begged for one to bury her in. And Alexius a young moſt noble man of Rome, when his marriage was ſolemnized in the preſence of many great perſons, at night ſtole from his Spouſe, and went far and wide a begging, and ſo continued ſeventeen years in miſery, and died. And Simeon who went about the ſtreets as a fool or a mad man, making himſelf a laughing ſtock and deriſion to Boyes and Girls, becauſe it is ſaid, God hath choſen the fooliſh things of the World to confound the wiſe. And Francis the firſt of the order of the Franciſcans, who put on a Cap and an Hood like a fool, and bleſſed ſuch as called him fool and clown, and all that nought was, and preferred to be poor as much as others to be rich. And Simeon Stylites, who being a ſhepherd, came into a Church and heard, Bleſſed are ye that weep and mourn; and Woe to you that laugh, &c. prayed to God that he might be ſuch, and then began to faſt an whole week together, and girded his body with an harſh rope till it bliſtered again and mattered, faſted fourty dayes together in Lent and ate nothing, went up unto a beam, and hanged himſelf thereupon by a cord by the foot, till his foot rotted as far as the ancle, ſtood alwayes in the day in the greateſt heat and cold, and watched to prayer all night, continuing thus eighty years and then dying when he was above an hundred. And of theſe the Jeſuite makes great boaſts, as of the rareſt men in the world, applying that unto them, They went about in Goats skins, and Sheeps skins, and kept in caves of the earth being deſtitute and naked. But he muſt underſtand, that thoſe Worthies were enforced by the violence of enemies to ſuch ſhifts, and did not voluntarily forſake all humane ſociety, and expoſe themſelves to ſuch miſeries. And the Prophets by doing and going ſo, as hath been ſaid, wherein they were ſet for ſigns and wonders, had expreſſe command from God therefore. But what command had theſe, That for their groſſe ſuperſtitions they ſhould be likened unto them? verily none, but an affectation of ſingularity and ſhewing humility, which is plainly condemned, *Col.*2.16. and of ſingular righteouſneſs condemned *Eccleſ.*7.16. And ſuch wonders do all Anchorites, Eremites, Cappuchins and whippers of their own bodies (going at ſome times through ſtreets in Italy all naked to the middle, and whipping their bodies till ſtreams of bloud run out, ſo that ſome have died the night following of their wounds) ſhew themſelves, but they are not ſet for ſigns by God, as Iſaiah and his children. The godly, and temperate, and humble, and meek, are truly ſet by God for ſigns and wonders to the wicked world, abiding if they may, each one in his calling, as is commanded 1 *Cor.*7.20. And ſuch ſigns are they that have all Idolatry in abomination, ſo as that they will rather die, then yield to pollute themſelves hereby, as Shadrach, Meſhach and Abednego.

Verſ.19. And becauſe they will ſay unto you, ſeek to wizards and ſoothſayers, &c. ſhould a people go from their God? or ſhould not a people enquire of their God? For the living to the dead? Here the Prophet gives the faithfull to underſtand, that many amongſt them rejecting the predictions of Iſaiah in this time of danger would ſay, Come let us go and conſult with other Divines, ſuch as other Nations uſe to conſult with, who have familiar ſpirits, or in whom theſe ſpirits ſpeak, and he enformeth them how to make anſwer, The Lord is our God, and each people ſhould ſeek to its God, therefore we to the Lord, who anſwers by his Prophets, Shall not any be aſhamed to go for the living, that is, ſuch as live only where true life is, that is, the true Religion, to dumb and dead Idols, or to Necromancers, who ſeek anſwers from dead men, or other creatures, for thus the Heathens do. Calvin prefers this reading of the laſt clauſe, From the living to the dead; as if it had been ſaid, Look amongſt the living and the dead in all places, and ye ſhall finde, that God alone is all-ſufficient to be ſought unto. Wizzards are called Pythons, that is, ſuch as ſpeak, as it were, out of their inward parts, as it were by a ſpirit ſpeaking within them in a moſt ſubmiſſe and low manner; Diviners are ſuch as foretell by Chiromancy, or by looking into the entrails of birds or beaſts, &c. This is ſtraightly forbidden *Deut.*18.10. and therefore warning is given here againſt it to all that fear God. To conclude with Jerom, it is as if he had ſaid, when ye ſhall be moved to enquire of Wizzards, &c. anſwer thus, Doth not any people commonly enquire of their God, though in truth they be no Gods, and for the living ſeek to Idols, which are nothing elſe but images of dead men? Do ye grant all this to be ſo, and would ye take us the people of the only true God off from enquiring of him at the mouth of his Prophets, to go after ſuch wicked inſtruments of the devil, and foul impoſtours, as Wizzards and Heathen Diviners be? rather let us, as they ſeek to their Gods, go to ours: and becauſe his will is made known in his Word,

Calvin.

Luther.

Hieronym.

Verſ.20. To the Law and the Teſtimony, &c. And there ye ſhall finde that Gods people muſt not conſult with Wizzards, but with the Prophet whom he ſhould raiſe up unto them from time to time, If they ſhall not ſpeak according to this word, becauſe there is no morning light in him; for ſo אין לו שחר ſignifie, or Who, that is, Who ſo doth thus there is no light in him. That people then is hereby condemned to be in darkneſs, and ſuch as to whom no morning light hath yet appeared, which acknowledg not the word of God to be our only direction in all difficult caſes, but contrary to it, will ſeek or move others to ſeek in any extremity to Wizzards; now the Wizzards or Pythons of theſe times are ſaid by Muſculus to be the Maſs-Prieſts, becauſe they in conſecrating mutter with a low voice, & they ſtir up to other means of being reſolved and holpen in time of danger, even by going to the reliques of the dead, of the miracles wrought by whom they much boaſt. But by the determination of the Prophet they are for this, and their own written traditions, in darkneſs, and without all light; and ſo be all that ſeek to cunning men, and utter darkneſs muſt be their portion for ever, as they have loved darkneſs more then the light. Calvin ſaith, That ſome taking this for an oath, render it. By the Law and the Teſtimony, but he rather conſents to the expoſition before-going, ſaying, That the Law is called the Teſtimony, becauſe therein is teſtified unto us what the will of God is, ſo ſufficiently, that we need not, yea we ought not to ſeek to any other means, the decrees of Councels and Roman Biſhops, to know it.

Deut.18.18.

Muſcul.

Calvin.

Verſ.21. And he ſhall paſſe in it. So verbatim according to the Hebrew בה in it, being the Feminine gender, and ſetting forth the Land that they lived in. He ſaid before, There is no morning light in him; therefore he is in darkneſs of the night; and becauſe he hath brought himſelf to this evil condition of wandring from the light of Gods Word in the way of error, this ſhall be his puniſhment, niſhment, that he ſhall paſſe or wander as one deſtitute of all worldly comforts through the Land, Hardly uſed and hungry, for all the words are of the ſingular number; and he meaneth that this ſhould be the caſe of every one of the wicked, that regarded not, neither would believe Gods Word; And it ſhall be, becauſe he ſhall be hungry that he ſhall be provoked, and curſe his King and his God, and ſhall look upward.

Verſ.22. And he ſhall look down to earth, and behold ſtraights and darkneſſe, &c. A deſcription of men overwhelmed with miſery, and now having indignation therefore at ſuch as ſeduced them, whereby they come to be thus miſerable, they ſhould curſe their King, that is, wicked King Ahaz, by whom they had been formerly too much miſlead, and their God, that is, their Melcom, to whom they had ſacrificed, and in whom they ſee now that they vainly truſted. Touching their Idol, ſee ſomewhat like before, *Chap.*2.21. of their ſinning by Idolatry through the means of Ahaz, 2 Kin.16. 2 Chron.28. and what diſpleaſure they took at their King, for this verſ.27. They buried him not in the Kings ſepulchres. Hieron. Jerom for him paſſing, that is, wicked and unbelieving, underſtands the light paſſing out of that Congregation, eſpecially in the time of the Goſpel, and they ſhould then be as in the time of a famine, becauſe in a famine of the word, Amos 8. which ſhould be accompanied with other extream miſeries. But becauſe paſſing is in it, for ſo the word ſignifies, not out of it: I with other Expoſitours rather underſtand the paſſer or wanderer in the land. For his looking upward and downward, yet ſeeing nothing but oppreſſion and miſery, they are words tending to aggravate their calamity, as of one that looks every way for help, but none cometh till he periſh. Junius. And to this effect almoſt Junius in annotationibus.

CHAP. IX.

Verſ.1. Y*Et the darkneſs ſhall not be according to the ſtreightning to it in the firſt time, he lightly afflicted the land of Zabulon and land of Nephtali, and afterwards burthened the way of the ſea beyond Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles.* Thus the Hebrew word for word, and it is annexed to chap.8. but all Tranſlatours make it the firſt verſe of chap.9. Here after darkneſs and ſtreights threatned, ver.22. the Prophet begins to adde ſomething more comfortable, by comparing the darkneſs and ſtreights wherein they ſhould ſee themſelves to be, with the miſeries ſuffered by Tiglath Pileſar, when he took ſo many places in the land of Nephthali, 2 King.15.29. and more grievous miſeries by Salmanaſar, who ſubdued all the ten Tribes, 2 King.17. Now for the comfort of the faithfull, leſt they ſhould be overwhelmed with deſpair, when they heard of nothing but miſeries and ſtreights, he ſaith, that it ſhould not be, as at any of theſe two times, when they ſhould ſuffer by the Romans, in the time of the Goſpel, which is threatned chap.8.14. becauſe a great light ſhould riſe unto them, as followeth here, v.2. viz. the light of Jeſus his preaching, which to the faithfull ſhould be ſuch a comfort, as that they ſhould be able better to bear the deſtruction of their City and Temple then, although it were the greateſt blow that ever they had, then either of both thoſe ſufferings by the Aſſyrians, becauſe then they wanted the comfort of this light, ſo full of joy to the beleeving ſoul. And the miſeries ſuffered in Zabulon and Nephtali, and Galilee, are rather brought in by way of compariſon then any other, to make way to the Prophecie of this comfortable light ſhining firſt in thoſe parts, becauſe Jeſus began to preach here firſt, and to do his miracles, and called the twelve. It was the way of the ſea, becauſe near the ſea, and through theſe parts lading Adricomius. was carried to be, by ſea, tranſported to other places: ſo Adricomius, who ſaith, there was a way from Syria to the Lake of Geneſareth, here called, the Sea; which went under this generall name, of the way to the ſea, from the begining to the end. Galilee of the Gentiles was ſo called, becauſe ever ſince Solo- mon gave twenty Towns therein to Hiram King of Tyrus, the Gentiles inhabited there. That this is a Prophecy of comfort through the light by Jeſus brought firſt to theſe parts, ſee *Matth.*4.15. and alſo the expoſition and the apt application of it made by the Evangeliſt. As thoſe parts taſted firſt of miſery, ſo they were firſt made partakers of the light of Evangelicall comfort; as they firſt came into the hands of their cruel enemies, ſo they were firſt by this Mahar-ſhalal-haſhbaz, haſtily taken out of the hands of the ſpoiler, eſpecially ſome of them, whom he particularly called here to follow him. Some, ſaith Calvin, expound this, as if the Prophet meant, that the miſery to come after thoſe afflictions in Tiglath Pileſars and Salmanaſars times, ſhould be greater then thoſe, that the wicked might have no comfort by hoping that it would be but as a ſtorm, which although it be violent for the time, yet after a while it is blown over again; thus Luther: But he contrariwiſe, as hath been already ſaid, takes it as ſpoken for conſolation to the faithfull, that they might with the better courage bear the greateſt miſeries that ſhould befall them, in regard of the light of the Goſpel then ſhining, which ſhould make all outward ſufferings to ſeem nothing: As a man ſuffering ſhipwrack at ſea, if he hath a piece of the ſhip to ſwim upon, and keep him from ſinking, till he comes at the ſhoar, is in a better condition then one in a pond, who ſeeth no help but he muſt needs be drowned, though the waters be farre leſs and leſs raging.

Calvin.

Luther.

Verſ. 3.

Thou haſt multiplied the Nation, not made greater the joy, they rejoyce before thee, &c. Becauſe here ſeemeth to be a contradiction, ſaith Calvin: The Hebrews ſay, that לא not, is put here for לו ei to it. But this word is never any where thus uſed. Some therefore expound it by Sennecheribs Army, thus, Thou haſt encreaſed the Nation, which came againſt Jeruſalem in Hezekiahs time, for by Gods providence was that numerous Army brought together, not the joy, for he had no joy of his great multitudes brought into the field, for they periſhed to the number of one hundred eighty five thouſand in one night, and then the Jews rejoyced as in harveſt, or when ſouldiers are dividing the ſpoils of the enemies. Some either of the Church increaſed under the Goſpel, but by reaſon of their calamities and miſeries, not their joy, or of the Church encreaſed by the converſion of the Gentiles, but not the Jews joy, who envied it. But the true ſenſe is, that the Prophet here comparing the ſtate of the Church, whilſt the Kingdom of Judah flouriſhed and was moſt proſperous under ſome noble Kings, with that it was after their return from Captivity, meaneth, that even in thoſe daies, when the people were ſo many and lived in greater outward glory by farre, their joy was not ſo great, as in the times after their return; although now they were but few and miſerable in compariſon of them in outward reſpects, for they were tributaries to the Perſians, and at their diſpoſe, and after, under the Romans. For the coming of Chriſt now brought more joy and glory to the ſtate, then when in times paſt they had flouriſhed moſt; for which it is ſaid, *Hag.*2.2. that the glory of the ſecond houſe ſhould be greater then that of the houſe built by Solomon. But I cannot herein ſubſcribe to Calvin, but rather to the expoſition by him rejected, viz. the Nation of the faithfull, or Gods Church increaſing in the time of the Goſpel, by the acceſſion of beleevers of all Countries and Nations to the beleeving amongſt the Jews. There was yet no joy to the generality of that people, being hardened in unbelief to their deſtruction. So God increaſed his Church wonderfully, but not the Jews joy, who ſuffered by many miſeries, and finally were rooted out by the Romans. Yet the faithfull, both Jews and Gentiles had exceeding great joy, as men have in harveſt of a plentifull crop ſeaſonably reaped and gathered in. For ſo our Lord compares the time of the Goſpel, *Joh.*4. ſaying, Behold the fields are already white unto the harveſt, and he that ſoweth, and he that reapeth rejoyce together: or, as they that divide the ſpoils; another compariſon being added, as if one were not ſufficient to ſet it forth; and Jeſus who brought this joyfull light, ſaith of himſelf, that he was the ſtronger man coming upon the ſtrong man armed, and dividing the ſpoils. For why we ſhould go from this

Luc.11.21.

Hieronym.

this ſo excellently agreeing to the Prophecie in all things, I ſee not; nor why ſo learned an Interpreter, leaving this, ſhould expound it in part by things paſt, when as it is uſuall with the Prophets to ſpeak of things to come in the Perfect tenſe: and although there be a compariſon with things formerly done, *v.*1. yet here is none, neither note of any. And that which I follow agreeth with Jeroms, who ſpeaks to the ſame effect, applying the joy not increaſed, to S^{t} Pauls ſorrowing for his kinſmen according to the fleſh: And to Chriſts, when he prayed, Father if it be poſſible let this cup paſs from me; that is, If the Gentiles may be ſaved without the Jews deſtruction; but if not, Thy will be done: Let me drink it and ſuffer extremity of ſorrow for my Jews ruine, ſo that a greater increaſe by all Nations may come in to thy Kingdom. So likewiſe Haimo. but they expound the not joying, but ſorrowing, ſo as if Chriſt and his Apoſtles ſhould be grieved for their infidelity and deſtruction following, not as if the wicked Jews lamentable caſe were here ſet forth; but we may well underſtand it of both.

Verſ.4.

Adam Sasbont.

Hieronym.

Judg.7.18.

Calvin.

Heb.2.15.

For the yoak of his burthen, the rod of his ſhoulder, and ſcepter of his oppreſſour thou haſt broken, as in the day of Midian. This is again applied by ſome to Sennacheribs overthrow, expounding his yoak, of the ſervitude whereinto he brought all Nations; the rod of his ſhoulder, of his ſword, ſo terribly ſtriking where he came; and the ſcepter of the oppreſſour of tributes, impoſts by him. But Jerom better, by the oppreſſour, underſtands the devil, who laid a tribute of ſins upon all the world, and ſwayed the ſcepter of government over them, and laid upon them the yoak of ſpiritual ſervitude, when he ruled in them; but by Chriſt, his power and ſtrength is all broken to the faithfull, and they are delivered and brought into the liberty of ſerving God, which is the beſt freedom; and all this without material arms, as Gideon ſometime ſounding with trumpets, with his three hundred men, and breaking pitchers, overthrew the Midianites, who had before mightily oppreſſed Iſrael. Calvin and Muſculus expound it of the Jews deliverance out of their Babyloniſh Captivity, ſo many words being uſed to ſet forth the greatneſs of the benefit whereby they were freed from all theſe evils of Oppreſſours and Tyrants, being again ſet at liberty, that they might never forget it. But chiefly was this fulfilled in Chriſt, by whoſe death, the devil, who had the power of death, was deſtroyed; and the ſpiritual oppreſſion is the greateſt of all others, and therefore deliverance here-from, not unworthily by ſuch variety ſet forth.

Verſ.5.

2 Cor. 10.4.

Luc.3.16.

Act.2.

Act.17.16.

Hieron.

For every warre of the warriour is with noiſe, and garment rolled in bloud, but this in burning, food for the fire. Here the manner of Chriſts delivering us from our ſpiritual enemies is ſhewed, viz. not as by battels fought amongſt men, wherein there is great noiſe of trumpets, drums, and mens ſhouting and clattering of arms, and much bloudſhed, ſtaining the garments of thoſe that fall by the ſword: but to Chriſt, corruptions, which are as the devils ſtrong holds in men, ſhall be but as fewel to the fire, being burnt and conſumed by his Word and Spirit, as any combuſtible matter by fire, in all that are converted, there being no viſible violence offered, as in every warre there is. And accordingly the Apoſtle comparing the preaching of the word to weapons of warre, ſaith, The weapons of our warfare are mighty through God, &c. And it is ſaid of Chriſt, He ſhall baptize you with the holy Ghoſt and with fire; and ſo it was fulfilled, when the Spirit came down like cloven tongues of fire; and S^{t} Paul having this fire in him, burnt in the Spirit; and faith which comes by this Spirit, purifieth the heart, *Act.*15.9. even as gold is purified from droſs by the fire. Jerom upon this ſaith little to the purpoſe, for he ſpeaks only of garments rolled in blood, food for the fire, becauſe the ſtein of blood cannot be waſhed out, but the garments ſo ſteined muſt be burnt; applying this to the devil, who ſhall burn in hell. But he reades not this as a compariſon, but as one continued ſentence, Every battel is with noiſe, and garments rolled in blood and burning, &c. but the particle ו although moſt commonly it ſignifieth and, yet here it is adverſative, ſaith Calvin, ſignifying but; or take the particle כי here rendred for, for although, as ſome do; and then the ſenſe will be the ſame: Although every battel be with noiſe, and garments rolled in blood, this ſhall be with fire, &c. But thus ו will be redundant before הָיְתָה: but rendring it but, and כִּי for, the ſenſe is beſt: For to what end ſhould Iſaiah, after a victory promiſed like that in the day of Midian, which was not by any ſecular power, uſe ſuch an expreſſion, as if Chriſts over coming, and mens overcoming in battel were alike; but that the one ſort ſhould be with noiſe and outward violence, and the other as a fire burning within, without all noiſe; it ſtands with good reaſon that he ſhould ſhew, according to the expoſition before going.

Verſ. 6.

For to us a Childe is born, to us a Son is given, and the principality ſhallbe upon his ſhoulders, and his Name ſhall be called Wonderfull. Having ſpoken hitherto in general of the joyfull time to come to the faithfull; now he more particularly deſcribes the Author of all this our happineſs, viz. The Son of God born of a woman, as other children be. For by a Son, as Calvin well notes, the Son of God is to be underſtood; becauſe when any mans ſon is meant, the word ſon goeth not without an addition of the fathers name, as Ezr. 1. and Luc. 3. And if it be the iſſue of any other creature, as it is uſual with the Hebrews, by the word בֵּן ſon, to ſet forth the young of any creature, beaſt or fowl, this word hath alwaies ſome other added to it, to ſhew whereof it is the iſſue. By Childe born, Oecolampadius underſtands not amiſs the humane nature of Jeſus; by Son given, the Divine. And this giving intimates the free grace of God, and ſingular love herein ſhewed, not any merit of man, as is more fully expreſſed, Joh. 3.16. And this is the ſame Son propheſied of, chap. 7. A Virgin ſhall bear a Son. And becauſe this birth was in imagination repreſented ſoon after, as if the Prophecie had been fulfilled chap. 8. in the birth of Mahar-ſhalal-haſhbaz. He ſpeaks here in the Preſent tenſe, *To us a Childe is born, &c. And becauſe it ſhould ſo certainly be done, as if it had been at that preſent. The principality ſhall be upon his ſhoulder. A phraſe uſual amongſt the Hebrews to ſet forth ſovereign power, chap. 22.22. The key upon his ſhoulders. chap. 9.4. The rod of his ſhoulder] Becauſe a rod was of old born in ſome Kingdoms in token of Sovereignty: Amongſt the Romans, faſces or faggots, ſince the ſword, as Rom. 13. And this phraſe is here in oppoſition to that, v. 4. where the rod of his ſhoulder, that is the devils power is ſaid to be broken, it being here ſhewed who ſhall break it, even this Childe of the bleſſed Virgin, the Son of God, by the Sovereign power that he ſhould have ſo ſoon as he was born, whereby he is declared to be born a King, ſubduing and bringing under all Kings and Potentates, and principalities in high places: And therefore the Magi, who came out of the Eaſt, enquired where he was that was born King of the Jews. And he ſhall call his Name Wonderfull. The word uſed is an imperſonall, It ſhall call, for it is in Cal and therefore according to our manner of ſpeaking beſt rendred, His Name ſhall be called. He had two Names before, Emanuel, and Mahar-ſhalal-haſhbaz, but here ſix more, that by this variety of Names we may know him. It makes not then againſt the bleſſed Virgins ſons, being the Son promiſed, becauſe his Name is ſaid to be Emanuel, the Name of her Son, Jeſus, for he hath many Names for the manifold virtues and excellencies in him: As his Father is ſometime called El, Adonai, Jehovah, Gnelion, Jah, &c. Wonderfull he is called for his two natures in one perſon, and for the wonders which he wrought [a]. God, this is another Name by it ſelf, and not The mighty God, as it is commonly rendred, the next word גִבּוֹר׃ Mighty or ſtrong, being another of his Names, as the two pricks upon the top for a note of diſtinction ſhew. The word אֵל ſignifying God, doth alſo ſignifie ſtrong; but becauſe it is moſt commonly uſed when God is ſpoken of, it is every where rendred God: He is ſo ſtrong, that he is Almighty, one to whom nothing is impoſſible. Chriſts Name is God, for he is the ſame Eſſence with God the Father. Kings and Judges have alſo the name of Gods, for their Sovereign power; therefore much more he, the naturall Son of God, as he ſometime reaſoned. Yet from this we cannot firmly prove him to

Calvin.

Oecolamp.

* To us, is meant not only of the Jews, but of the faithfull of all Nations.

[a] Oecolamp. For his wonderfull uniting together of God & man by the pacification made in him.

to be God no more then other men, who have this name: Moſes was Aarons god, and there is ſo much proof beſides even in this place, that we need not to argue from hence, for he that is the Everlaſting Father, and of whoſe government there is no end, is God indeed, without beginning or end [b]. Counſellour he is called for his incomparable wiſdom, happy are they to whom he is Counſellour, they ſhall be ſure alwaies to do for the beſt [c]. The everlaſting Father. Hebr. אֲבִי עַד The Father forth on, that is, without end, therefore well rendred Everlaſting: He is a Father providing for and governing his for ever [d]. The Prince of peace: That is, Making peace betwixt God and man; our ſins, which cauſe enmity, being expiated by the ſacrifice of his death: So *Rom.*5.1. We have peace with God. He was alſo the true antitype of Solomon for external peace or ceſſation from warres, in that at his birth there was peace all over the world; Auguſtus Cæſar then reigning over all in peace. The Jews, as Calvin noteth, labour two waies to obſcure this Prophecie: 1. By expounding it of Hezekiah, but, as hath been before ſhewed, Hezekiah was born eleven or twelve years before this, for he was twenty five when he began to reign, 2 *King.*18.2. therefore nine when Ahaz began his reign; two or three years after which, this Prophecie was uttered; and this hath plainly reference to the ſon of the Propheteſs, ſaid to be born, *chap.*8. Neither do theſe Names agree to him, or to any meer man, nor the everduring Kingdom ſpoken of, *v.*7. 2. By applying theſe Names to God; but this is without all ſenſe or reaſon, becauſe the Prophet is ſpeaking here of the childe born, and no reaſon can be yielded, why he ſhould immediatly from his Prophecie touching him, go to enumerating of the Names of God.

Verſ.7. Of the increaſe of his Kingdom and peace there ſhall be no end, &c. The word ſignifying of the increaſe, is לםרבה with the letter Mem ſhut, which is never ſo written in the beginning or midſt, but only at the end of a word, and therefore not without a myſtery: But what the myſtery is, divers conjecture diverſly. Galatinus, that hereby is intimated the 600 year after this Prophecy, when it ſhould be fulfilled, this childe being then born: But becauſe this was about Anno mundi 3210, his birth Anno 3960, that cannot ſtand. Some that the perpertual Virginity of Mary his mother was ſet forth: Some that his Kingdom ſhould be ſpread into four quarters of the earth, according to the figure of a final Mem: And Calvin, the cloſe and ſecret way, whereby he ſhould come to reign and ſet up his Kingdom, viz. by his Spirit in mens hearts, in the midſt of many preſſures, that none might expect of it a Kingdom outwardly glorious, but obſcure. He alſo mentioneth the conjectures of others, either Jews being in ſervitude till this birth, or their excluſion out of this Kingdom for their infidelity. I ſee nothing againſt any of theſe, and therefore leave them all in medio to be conſidered by the judicious Reader. Of this Kingdom there ſhall be no limits, and therefore it is ſaid, Of the increaſe thereof no end; for it ſhall be from ſea to ſea, and to the worlds end, as alſo *Pſ. Dan.*7.17. And as it ſhall extend into all parts, ſo it ſhall endure for ever, and not like other Kingdoms of this world in time come to ruine; which ſhews that this Kingdom ſhould be ſpiritual; and likewiſe the peace here ſpoken of, peace of conſcience, by reaſon of the forgiveneſs of ſins and reconciliation with God, to whom ſin makes us as enemies. Upon the Throne of David, &c. Here is ſhewed, where and over what Kingdom this Son of God ſhould reign, viz. the Kingdom of David, that is, the Kingdom whereof Davids was a figure, and wherein this was begun, but much more inlarged and perfected in his Sonne Chriſt Jeſus, who adds to that of the Jews all other Kingdoms and Nations, wherein the Goſpel is propagated. Now it is called the Kingdom of David, becauſe it was promiſed to him, that his Throne ſhould endure for ever, and that his Kingdom ſhould be everlaſting, 1 *Sam.*7. *Pſal.*89. And this is not fulfilled but in Jeſus; for the Lord ſpake of this everlaſting Kingdom, as his Kingdom; and by the name of David, ſets forth the eternal King, who ſhould ſway this Scepter; ſee alſo *Ezek.*37.24. The zeal of the Lord will do this. He ſaith

[b] Calvin, Strong is added to God, becauſe the ſtrong man armed keeps the houſe, therefore he muſt be ſtrong above him, and all other enemies, and death it ſelf.

[c] Calvin, Becauſe he hath revealed unto us the counſel of God, which all muſt follow that will be ſaved.

Calvin, Father here is as much as author of all good unto us. Muſc. He is not called the Father, as if he were that perſon, as the Patripaſſiani hold, but of God the Father he is made to us a Father for all good, though to God the Father he be the Son.

Calvin.

Muſculus.

Chryſoſt.

ſaith not, his power or wiſdom, but that which includes both, a moſt earneſt affection of the Almighty towards his choſen: So that although it may ſeem to us impoſſible, yet he to whom all things are poſſible, hath moſt earneſtly ſet his minde to do it, and therefore it ſhall be done againſt all the world, reluctingand endeavouring the contrary. Chryſoſtom ſaith, that this peace is four-fold; 1. With God, 2. In our ſelves, the fleſh being ſubdued to the ſpirit: 3. Betwixt Jews and Gentiles at the laſt: 4. That peace, which is everlaſting in heaven, no warre at all being any more; whereas in this world there be alwaies warres and troubles. The zeal, ſaith Cyrill, is his indignation againſt his enemies, and exceeding great love to his Church will make him do as hath been ſaid, againſt the one and for the other.

Verſ.8.

Hieron.

The Lord ſent a word unto Jacob, and it fell upon Iſrael. Verſ.9. And all the people of Ephraim ſhall know, &c. The Prophet having from *chap.*7.7. hitherto, ſpoken much of the birth of Emanuel, whereunto he was carried by a Prophetical rapture, when he was ſpeaking, as the preſent occaſion required, of the deliverance of Judah from the conſpiracy of Iſrael and Syria, and the judgements to come upon them both: Now he returneth to threaten Syria and Iſrael again, by a new Prophecy. The Septuagint, for A word fell upon Iſrael,] have, death or plague, as the word דָבָר with other Pricks ſignifieth, ſo ſaith Jerom: But with better reaſon he renders it word, ſeeing it is a Prophecy or Prophetical word, as Prophecies be often called. It was now ſent to Jacob, and fell ſoon after upon Iſrael, that is, the Kingdom of the ten Tribes, when it was done accordingly, for Jacob and Iſrael here are two words to expreſſe one and the ſame thing. But whereas he expounds it thus, The word or command to make a King of the Tribe of Judah, came to the twelve Tribes, ſet forth by the word Jacob; according to the Prophecy of Jacob, The Scepter ſhall not depart from Judah, till Shiloh comes, fell upon Iſrael; that is, the wicked of the ten Tribes, when they made themſelves a King; of whom the Lord ſaith, They have made them a King, but not by me: This agreeth not here, becauſe he doth not here ſet himſelf to repeat what had been done, as if that were the cauſe of the judgements, which he now proceeds to threaten. For there was a more propinque cauſe mentioned, *chap.*7.1,2. viz. Iſraels joyning with the heathen Syrians, to overthrow the Counſel of God touching Davids houſe, by putting down the King which came of him, and ſetting up another: For this and not for caſting off Rehoboam to follow Jeroboam, came this judgement, becauſe that was by the Lords own appointment for a puniſhment of Solomons Idolatry. *Greg. Mor.*3° By Jacob underſtands the Jewiſh Nation, by Iſrael the Church of the Gentiles; for the Word, that is, the Goſpel came to them, but fell to the Gentiles lot, when they imbraced it, being by the Jews rejected.

Verſ.9.

And all the people ſhall know Ephraim and the inhabitant of Samaria,&c. Thoſe whom he called Jacob and Iſrael before, he now calleth Ephraim, becauſe that was the moſt populous Tribe of the ten, and therefore that Kingdom went often under the name of Ephraim; and Samaria, becauſe it was the chief City of that Kingdom. Now they are firſt ſet forth as deriding and ſetting light by Gods judgements through their pride, when as they ſaid, The buildings made with Bricks which were fallen they would turn into ſquare Stones, and the Sycomores a ſoft corruptible wood, into Cedars, which were moſt durable, and their pride was alwaies great in reſpect of Judah, becauſe they were the farre greater Kingdom.

Verſ.11.

And the Lord ſhall lift up the enemies of Rezin againſt him, and ſhall mingle his enemies. Verſ.12. Syria before, and the Philiſtims behinde, and they ſhall devour Iſrael,&c. The judgement firſt began at Rezin the King of Syria, for him the Lord firſt cut off by the King of Aſhur; and this was a great blow to Iſrael, when their confederate, in whoſe forces, united with their own, they ſo much truſted, was taken away; and this was fulfilled, 2 King. 16.9. Then many enemies, and ſome amongſt them, who before had been their friends, viz. the Syrians, joyning together, overthrew the Kingdom of Iſrael. For Rezin being dead, and Syria coming to be under the King of Aſhur, he imployed them in his warres againſt Iſrael, together with the Philiſtims and other peoples under his dominion, till he had deſtroyed that Kingdom and depopulated it, 2 King. 17.6. Therefore in ſaying, He ſhall mingle his enemies, he meaneth not Rezins, whoſe judgement went before, but Iſraels to his deſtruction. For Syria before] The Hebrew is, Syria from the Eaſt,and the Philiſtims Weſt, or behinde; and ſo Jerom renders it, and they ſhall eat up Iſrael with every mouth; a Metaphor to ſet forth Iſraels deſtruction by them together, all helping it forward. For all this his anger is not turned away, &c. After the judgement threatned in general, from hence to the end of the Chapter it is aggravated, theſe words being thrice repeated, and their intollerable miſeries variouſly deciphered, the Verſ.13. cauſe being firſt ſhewed, *verſ.*13. that is, This people turns not to him that ſmiteth them, neither have ſought the Lord of hoaſts. For God ſmiteth to make us by repentance to turn to him from our ſins, and of prophane contemners of duties of piety, to become devout ſeekers to him by prayer, but when mens hearts are hardened ſo in ſin, as that neither threatnings nor judgements will make them ceaſe from ſinning, but they ſtill go on herein even in the midſt of many grievous miſeries, there is no expectation that there ſhould be a ceſſation from judgement but a fearfull aggravation thereof.

Verſ.14. For the Lord will cut off the head and the tail, the bough and the ruſh in one day. Here they are diſtinguiſht into certain ſorts, who ſhall ſuffer. The firſt diſtin-

Verſ.15. ction is explained, *verſ.*15. The ancient and the honourable is the head, the falſe prophet the tail: So called, becauſe as a dog fauneth with his tail, ſo the falſe prophet upon the people, ſpeaking nothing but pleaſing things. 2. Becauſe, as the tail hides the filthieſt part of the body, ſo the falſe prophet, both his own and the filthineſs of the peoples ſins. 3. As the tail is the baſeſt part, placed behinde all others; ſo many falſe prophets do ariſe from amongſt the moſt

D^r Featly's obſervations touching Anabaptiſts. infim ſort of men, Weavers, Taylors, Coblers, &c. teaching falſly becauſe they know not how to teach truly through their ignorance; and feigning many things to purchaſe to themſelves credit, as ſome Anabaptiſt teachers have done; as John Leydon and Cocke, &c. Touching the ruſh, ſome render it the reed, but this is the principal ſignification of the word; neither doth the Prophet ſo expreſly ſhew who the bough and ruſh are: But *verſ.*17. he ſaith, that

Verſ.17. The Lord will take no pleaſure in their young men, nor pity the fatherleſs and widows. Whereby he ſheweth, that by the bough is meant luſty youth, by ruſh

Hieronym. Adam Saſbont. theſe feebler perſons. Jerom for bough and ruſh, hath it incurvantem & depravantem, which Saſbont expounds, making crooked right things, and perverting true, as if theſe two belonged to Princes and falſe prophets alſo. But

Calvin. Calvin better, and more near to that which hath been ſaid, the ſtrong and the weak: And Cornel. a Lapide herein going from the Vulgar Latine, ſaith the ſame: They are two phraſes to expreſs the ſame things, Head and tail, borrowed from beaſts, Bough and ruſh, from plants. The Septuagint have it, Great and ſmall: But becauſe others were to be cut off beſides the Ancient, Honourable and falſe prophets, no age or ſex being ſpared, I take the Prophets own expreſſion, *verſ.*17. to be the beſt expoſition of the laſt Metaphor. The word rendred bough indeed cometh of כָּף Chaphaph to bow or bend, but it is commonly put for a bough, which becauſe it is ſtronger then a ruſh by far, may well ſignifie young men; the ruſh a weak thing, fatherleſs, widows, little children, and ſuch as be of weak and poor eſtate.

Verſ.16. For the Governours of this people are ſeducers, &c. Here is a reaſon why the Princes and falſe prophets ſhould be cut off: But for Governours, Hebr. is Bleſſers, and ſo the Vulgar Latine hath it, and for the governed, the bleſſed ones of it, becauſe they ſpake good words to the people, tending to ſecurity, and to put away all fear of danger, and to make them hope for victory over Judah, whereby they ſhould be more inriched: They are thus called, therefore in rendring it Governours, the ſenſe is more reſpected then the meaning of the Hebrew words: The word alſo rendred ſeducers, ſignifieth makers of them to erre, that is, whilſt by promiſing them all good they animated them to go on in their idolatry and other abominable ſins, but he ſaith, that they of that people thus led into a fools paradiſe, are deſtroyed.

Verſ.17. Whereas *ver.*17. in ſetting forth the deſtruction of their young men, he ſaith, the Lord will not rejoyce in them, it is ſo ſpoken by way of oppoſition to his rejoycing in his people elſewhere ſpoken of, when their proſperous condition is here ſpoken of, when their proſperous condition is ſet forth, contrariwiſe he will now do as one grieved with them, as *Pſa.*95. Fourty years long was I grieved with this generation, viz. execute his judgements upon them, becauſe all are hypocrites and wicked, &c. here is the cauſe why bough and ruſh ſhall be cut off alſo by the ſame judgement, though ſome made a ſhew of religion, yet there was no true fear of God in them, and in ſpeaking otherwiſe, forſomuch as they did it not from the heart, this was a wickedneſſe in them, for which he ſaith, every mouth ſpeaks wickedneſſe. Calvin. Calvin indeed underſtands their boaſting in ſpeech of their wickedneſſe, as the height of ſinning, but becauſe all are ſaid before to be hypocrites, the ſenſe given doth better agree. Now the cauſe of ſo great judgements is ſet down that none might exclaim againſt God as tyrannicall for being ſo ſevere.

Verſ.18. Becauſe iniquity is kindled as fire, it ſhall devour the briars and thorns, &c. That is, the wicked by their ſins kindle the fire of Gods wrath, and being kindled as a fire with ſtraw or ſome other light matter at the firſt, the briars and thorns growing in the fields are afterwards taken by it, and then the thick places of the wood, the trees which are great and tall not eſcaping the fury hereof, and this not without a great ſmoak overſpreading the air on high, to the darkning of all the earth about, as *ver.*19 ſpeaketh, Verſ.19. and ſheweth who ſhall be the fuell of this fire, even the people, helping to deſtroy one another, Manaſſeh Ephraim, and Ephraim Manaſſeh, and they both Judah, as followeth, *ver.*20,21. 20. 21. Thus by other metaphors the prophet both ſetteth forth the cauſe of theſe grievous judgements in generall, viz. their ſinnes, as being of the nature of fire, which at the firſt kindling is little, but ſoon after it rageth and rangeth far and wide, that the thickeſt and greateſt woods are burnt down hereby, that is, the moſt populous places of the kingdom, and ſuch as are of greateſt wealth and power, whereas this fire at the firſt took but the briars and thorns, that is, ſome of the meaner ſort of people, and dwelling in villages ſcattered here and there. Then more particularly ſhewing by what means this judgement was firſt brought upon them, he ſaith, that brother ſhould be againſt brother, they ſhould by inteſtine wars one bite at and devour another, and one tribe another, as the hungry wilde beaſts catching on every ſide at his prey being never ſatisfied, but ſtill going on to devour, as if he had yet eaten nothing. And he doth inſtance in Manaſſeh and Ephraim, becauſe they came of two brothers, ſons to one father Joſeph, and ſhould therefore have been moſt loving together, as if all one tribe, and when they had by civill ſtirs and tumults waſted one another, they ſhould joyn againſt Judah, but in the end the common enemy ſhould come upon them by this means weakned, and be their utter ruine. When this was fullfilled we finde not plainly ſet forth, but becauſe in the kingdom of Iſrael, the ſervant roſe againſt his Maſter, Hoſheah againſt Pekah and ſlew him and reigned in his ſtead, and Pekah 2 Kin.15. before that againſt Pekahiah (which certainly could not be without part-takings, ſome tribes being for one and ſome for the other, and ſo not without bloudſhed, although it be only briefly commemorated, that theſe things were thus done) it may well be gathered that theſe diſſentions are here by the Prophet pointed at, and Pekah his arming of Ephraim, and all the reſt of the tribes under him againſt Judah. in theſe words, and they both againſt Judah, Note. whence note, that it is a dreadfull forerunner of the deſtruction of a kingdom at hand, when the mutuall hatred of the members thereof is ſo great againſt one another, that they fall to bloudy wars amongſt themſelves, and will not be pacified, but brother fights againſt brother, ſon againſt father, and one of the ſame religion againſt another. Calvin. Some take this as implying that when God will deſtroy a people, if there be no other enemies he can in his juſt judgement ſet them one againſt another to work mutually for their own countreys deſtruction, which yet God for his mercies ſake avert from this our kingdom of England, at this day imbroyled in ſuch bloudy wars, by turning the Kings heart to the Parliament, and theirs to him, and ſo this unhappy diſſention into a bleſſed union never more to be broken.

CHAP. X.

Verſ.1. Hieronym. WO to them that decree unjuſt decrees, and write a wicked writing. Here ſaith Jerom, the Prophet paſſeth from Iſrael to Judah, threatning that kingdom as he had done the other of the ten Tribes. But becauſe there is nothing to expreſſe ſo much as is uſuall with him when he paſſeth from one kingdom to another, all our expoſitors take it for a continuation of his invective againſt Iſrael, and the like concluſion verſ,4. ſheweth no leſſe. Having therefore threatned judgements to all ſorts in generall before, he now taxeth Rulers and Judges in particular, as the chief cauſe of Gods judgements by their miſ-government. Their ſin was oppreſſing the poor, as ver.2. is ſhewed, and that they might not ſeem to proceed unjuſtly, they made decrees and laws that were not juſt or equall, for the meaner ſort of people, and then proceeded to the execution of them, whereby they were oppreſſed moſt grievouſly, and could have no remedy in law hereagainſt, for which he ſaith, They drive away the poor from judgement Verſ.2. &c. verſ.2. that is, if by pleading before any judge, they would ſeek remedy, it was objected to them that they could have none, the decrees and laws which were made being plainly againſt them. As now in theſe times of diſtractions we have Committees, who make orders, laying heavy burthens of charges upon whom they pleaſe, and then it is vain for them that are charged to pleade for eaſe although it be never ſo unjuſt.

Verſ.3. What will ye do in the day of viſitation, when your deſolation ſhall come from afar, &c. Becauſe the great ones had thus oppreſſed the poor and mean, a viſitation by Gods judgements is here threatned, when they ſhall not know what to do nor whether to turn them: and it is called a viſitation, becauſe in viſitations the viſiter comes amongſt the viſited apparently, being ſeen by all men, and all delinquents feel his coming to their ſmart; ſo when God viſiteth in wrath to puniſh, when in mercy the miſerable feel it to their joy and comfort from afarre, he ſaith, their deſolation ſhall come, becauſe they ſhould be deſtroyed and carried captive by the Aſſyrins, a people dwelling far North from them. They thought themſelves ſafe, becauſe they were in amity with the neighbour nations, eſpecially with Syria their confederate, but hereby God ſheweth, that he can bring enemies againſt a wicked people moſt remote, that they think leaſt of, and of whom they have no fear. To whom will ye flee for help? he ſpeaks of their caſe as moſt deſperate, but juſtly were they brought to this, becauſe they ſhould have been a refuge for the poor, but contrariwiſe they were their ruining by their unjuſt proceedings, ſo now they ſhould ſtudy to whom to flee for ſuccour when they were oppreſſed by the Aſſyrians, but none to flee unto, and where Muſculus. will ye betruſt your glory? ye have joyed in honours and worldly pomp, lifting your ſelves up as demigods above the people, not being ſpoken to but with ſuch words, your Excellency, Majeſty, Holineſſe, Lordſhip, and other-like bubbles of vanity; but who ſhall then give ſuch titles or have any regard unto you? the enemies ſword will put no difference betwixt you and the meaneſt in that day.

Verſ.4. Not to bow with the bound, or fall with the ſlain. Here he ſheweth why he had ſpoken of their glory as being at an end, for who will preſerve to you, that ye who have been proud of your Worſhips and Honours, ſhould not come down and be made to ſtoop to the enemies bands, many of you when ye ſhall be led away captive, and many to fall by the ſword as well as the pooreſt of all, yea, when the poor people of the Land were left to be vine-dreſſers and huſbandmen, they were carried away, as the hiſtory ſheweth, and to this effect Jerom. Vatablus ſaith, ſome underſtanding here none ſhall eſcape, make this the ſenſe, none ſhall eſcape but he that croucheth amongſt the bound or ſlain, feigning himſelf to be one of them, but there needs no underſtanding of more words, the ſenſe being better, as hath been ſaid. Calvin ſaith that ſome expound בלתי which I have rendred not, and ſo it commonly ſignifyeth tantum, only, or ſine me without me, making this the ſenſe, He that hath not put his truſt in me, but fallen from me, ſhall be bound or ſlain, or only they ſhall fall amongſt the bound or ſlain, for this all of them ſhall come to: or laſtly, he takes it for an oath, as if the Lord in indignation did ſwear, that all ſhould either be ſlain, or carried away bound. But I ſtill prefer the firſt as moſt genuine, To whom will ye commit your glory, that ye ſhould not be bound or be ſlain? ſurely there will be none to ſave you herefrom. To this pride and oppreſſion brings even the greateſt in the day of Gods wrath, when he executeth judgement.

2 King.29.15.
Hieronym.
Vatabl.
Calvin.

Verſ.5. Wo to Aſhur the rod of my fury, he is the ſtaff, in their hand is my indignation. After the threatnings againſt Iſrael, here followed ſomewhat againſt Aſhur, whereby both Iſrael and Judah by Gods juſt judgement ſhould be deſtroyed. Calvin and other new writers for wo to Aſhur, have O Aſhur, as if the Lord did here only call to Aſhur to go againſt Iſrael with ſome expreſſion of grief, that he was conſtrained to this: Bnt becauſe ver. 7. he begins to tax, aud proceeds to threaten him, I rather follow Jerom rendring הוי as indeed it ſignifyeth, wo, and becauſe he began ver. 1. in like manner, yet he firſt commemorates what he had ſet the Aſſyrians awork to do. And he calleth Aſhur his rod for the comfort of the faithfull, intimating that he could do nothing of himſelf againſt Iſrael, as a rod cannot but by the hand of him that uſeth it to correct withall, and it is to the terrour of the wicked, againſt whom ſavage enemies come not to fight of themſelves, for then they might have ſome hope that they ſhould not prevail, but by God in his wrath ſecretly ſtirring them up, although they themſelves think nothing leſſe. Yet as Calvin ſaith, we muſt wiſely diſtinguiſh between Gods actions and mens. 1. God doth give power to every one to move or do, neither can we do any thing of our ſelves, according to *Act.*17. 2. He ſpecially moveth the elect unto good by his ſpirit, and works all their works by them. 3. He moveth the wicked in his judgement by a ſecret inſtinct to deſtroy one another, or to execute his wrath againſt his own peculiar people for their ſinnes, and when they are thus carried on to ſtaughter and bloudſhed, it is malice in them who unwittingly do Gods will, but juſtice in him, and ſo it was in the caſe of Aſhur. The ſtaff he is alſo called, to beat the greater ones as before, the rod to beat the little, ſo Oecolampadius: and both theſe are Gods indignation in their hand, that is, the Aſſyrians, becauſe in indignation brought by him.

Calvin.
Hieronym.
Oecolamp.

Verſ.6. To an hypocriticall Nation I will ſend him, and command him to take the prey. This is ſpoken by way of meeting with an objection: Iſrael is thy people, wilt thou then ſend him againſt them? Anſw. They do but feign themſelves to be the people of the Lord, all their religion is but hypocriſie, then which God hates nothing more, ſee *chap.*9.17. for this he threatens that they ſhall be made a prey of, and troden under as the dirt in the ſtreets, that is, as moſt baſe and vile, every Aſſyrian inſulting over the proudeſt of them, when they ſhould be carried away captive, and made ſlaves in a ſtrange Land. If it be ſaid, he ſinned not then in exerciſing ſuch cruelty againſt Iſrael, if God ſent and commanded him to do ſo, and why then is this complained of, *Pſa.*137. and Babylon therefore threatned. It is to be underſtood, that it is not meant, he gave him any expreſſe command to do thus, but he out of pride and malice tyrannizing ſo, did it not, but according to Gods ſecret counſell, being herein though unwittingly the ſcourge of God, as Attila king of the Goths called himſelf afterwards, becauſe God uſeth the evil affections and bloudy proceedings of ſuch men to chaſtiſe the ſinfull and rebellious againſt him.

Verſ.7. Therefore *ver.*7. it is added, But he will not think ſo, neither will his heart think ſo, becauſe it will be in his heart to root out many nations. He will do that which God in his ſecret counſell hath determined that he ſhall do for a puniſhment to Iſrael, but not with any reference to God in his thoughts, but to make himſelf great, and to get him dominion far and wide.

Verſ.8. For he ſhall ſay, are not my Princes together Kings? verſ. 9. Is not Calno as Carchemis, Armad as Arphad? &c. Theſe are Cities ſubdued by him and his progenitors upon the river Euphrates, and the ſcope of his ſpeech is to ſhew, that it is vain for the people of any place to reſiſt him, ſith theſe cities ſo potent could not, but ſome of them more lately, ſome longer ago had been ſubdued by the Aſſyrian Empire.

Verſ.10. As my hand hath found the Kingdoms of Idols, and yet their graven Images were beyond thoſe of Jeruſalem. Verſ.11. verſ.11. Shall I not do to Ieruſalem and the Idols thereof as to Samaria, &c. Here the Aſſyrian king is ſhewed to be inſolent not only towards men, but alſo towards God. His hand, he ſaith, had found the means to ſubdue kingdoms, where gods more worthy were worſhipped then at Ieruſalem, yea Samaria with the gods thereof had already fallen before him, therefore he doubted not but Ieruſalem ſhould do likewiſe: thus the heathen man bewrayed his groſſe ignorance of him by whom he obtained all his victories, blaſphemouſly inſulting over him, as if he were of no more ſtrength then dumb idols, yea, not ſo potent as ſome of them. For this was the ſottiſhneſſe of Heathens that they thought there were many gods, and that of theſe ſome had more power then others, not acknowledging at all one God almighty, who made and governs over all things both in heaven and earth, yea, and the gods whom they worſhipped and thought to be Gods, but chiefly ſuch as took this or that countrey into their patronage, but not their own, they ſlighted and inſulted over, as not being of ſo great power as themſelves when they were able to come forth in great multitudes to battell. This was after verified in Sennacherib, who did thus vaunt himſelf againſt the true God, Chap. 38. and is here brought in prophetically ſpeaking thus, as if he had already ſaid ſo.

Verſ.12. But it ſhall come to paſſe when the Lord hath fullfilled all his work in mount Sion and Jeruſalem, I will viſit upon the fruit of the great or haughty heart of the King of Aſhur, &c. After the pride and blaſphemy of the Aſſyrian King ſet forth, now followeth his puniſhment and the time when it ſhall come, viz. when he hath fulfilled all his work, whereby is intimated both that the cruelty exerciſed by him againſt Iſrael and Judah was Gods work, although wrought by his hand, becauſe without God he could not have ſo prevailed; and that when God is about the work of chaſtiſement, he will not ceaſe till he hath done it to the full, but then he will, that the faithful may have patience although they think the time of their ſuffering too long, when this work is fulfilled: as a father having corrected his childe, caſteth the rod wherewith, into the fire, ſo the Lord viſits the inſtrument the wicked King of Aſhur, that is, with judgement to his deſtinction, and ſpecially for his intollerable pride of heart, and he cals it the fruit of his haughty heart, becauſe herefrom as from a moſt corrupt tree, came the fruit of blaſphemous and moſt inſolent ſpeeches againſt God and his people.

Verſ.13. Becauſe he hath ſaid; in the fortitude of my hand I have done it, &c, Here the Prophet returns again further to ſet forth the King of Aſhurs proud thoughts, for whereas he was able to do nothing, but God did all by him, he aſcribes all his victories to himſelf in a moſt vain-glorious boaſting manner in this and verſ. 14.

Verſ.15. Shall an hatchet, &c. a ſaw boaſt it ſelf againſt him that cutteth therewith? Hieronym. Shall theſe tools vauntingly ſay, when any thing hath been cut or ſawn down by them, or any work wrought by ſmoothing and carving, we have done it, as if the rod ſhould lift up it ſelf againſt him that lifts it up, as the chaff lifting up as if it were not wood, to be underſtood in the ſame manner, as if they ſhould boaſtingly ſay when any have been ſmitten by them, We have done it, which is abſurd. For ſo the Aſſyrian kings who were but Gods rod or ſtaff, his hatchet or ſaw, in themſelves all dead things and without motion, yet vaunted themſelves themſelves of the mighty works which God wrought by them, and which they could not without him by any means have done. For as Muſculus hath it, If one Hatchet ſhould boaſt it ſelf againſt another, becauſe it is better mettald and ſharper, it were abſurd; ſo for one man to inſult over another, becauſe the workman hath made it ſo, much more for man to lift up himſelf againſt God; and thus doth every one who aſcribes his prevailings and deeds to himſelf. Yet however man be here compared to a dead tool, that hath no motion in it ſelf, ſaith Calvin, he is not to be thought in every reſpect like it. For he by reaſon of that life and ſpirit which God hath put into him, can ſtirre and attempt this or that, but he can effect nothing without God.

Muſculus. Calvin.

Verſ.16. Hieron. Calvin.

Therefore the Lord, the Lord of hoſts will ſend to his fat ones leanneſſe, and a fire, &c. Jerom, He will ſend his Angel, who in one night ſhall ſlay of his hoaſt a thouſand eighty five thouſand, and that by fire burning their bodies, their garments being untoucht, as the Hebrews ſay it was done in Sennacheribs hoſt, for which he here ſpeaketh of a fire burning under his glory, and becauſe then his Captains and principal men were conſumed, he ſpeaks of this judgement as coming upon the fat ones, to the waſting at once of all the fat of their ſtrength and military valour. To this alſo doth Muſculus agree. Calvin by his fat ones underſtandeth proſperity, wealth, and all manner of ſtrength for warre, which is attenuated when this ſtrength is taken away. Deut. 32. 15. Thus Jeſhurun is ſaid to have waxed fat. The Metaphor of burning is taken from the burning of a ſtately building, whereby all the glory and grace of it ceaſeth, and it is brought to nothing being thenceforth but a ruinous heap.

Verſ.17. Hieronym.

And the light of Iſrael ſhall be in fire, and the holy One thereof in a flame, and ſhall conſume and devour his thorn and his briar in one day. Jerom, That is, the Angel of God as a fire and flame ſhall in one day or moment conſume all the malice of the Aſſyrian, which was done in the fore-ſaid judgement.

Verſ.18.

And the glory of his foreſt, and of his Carmel from the ſoul to the fleſh ſhall be conſumed, and he ſhall be as one fleeing a flight. That is, haſtily for fear. Some for Carmel have his fruitfull field, and for fleeing, as the diſſolution of an Enſignbearer; and ſo the words according to the Hebrew ſignifie, The glory of his foreſt, and of his Carmel, that is, even as fire being put to a thick wood, and a place full of trees as Carmel in Galile, till it groweth into a great flame in all parts, ſoon conſumeth and burneth down to the ground all ſuch goodly trees, wherein the glory of it ſtood: ſo ſhall it be with the Aſſyrian hoſt, wherein he ſo much gloried through his inviſible fire of Gods wrath burning in his Camp.

Verſ.19. Calvin. Vatablus.

And the reſt of the trees of this foreſt ſhall be numbred, a childe ſhall write them. That is, of his Army a very few ſhall eſcape this burning; the Hebrews ſay, not above ten. Thus Jerom, who alſo allegorically will have Hereticks ſet forth hereby, who ſhall ſometimes abound, but afterwards through the power of the holy one of Iſrael, that is, God, ſhall be reduced to very few through the truth, as a fiery Law coming out of his mouth. Calvin and the reſt of our new Writers by the light and holy One of Iſrael underſtand God, who ſanctifieth and enlighteneth his people with the comfort of his help in extremity, and the ſame, who is light to them, is fire, and a devouring flame to their adverſaries, who have no more power to withſtand his judgements, when they come to cut them off, then thorns and briars the force of the fire, as it was proved in Hezekiah his time. And to thorns and briars are the wicked enemies of the Church compared for their barbarous cruelty. By Carmel, Vatablus will not have the proper place ſo called meant, for Aſhur was not owner thereof, ſo that it could not be called his, therefore he renders it, His fruitfull field, as the word ſignifieth, noting, that Gods wrath as fire ſhould pierce into his very Land, and not deſtroy the trees only and briars. But if we take his Carmel here allegorically, there will be no abſurdity in following Jerom, his Carmel being put for that wherein he gloried, as the Jews did in their Carmel for the great fruitfulneſs thereof. From the ſoul to the fleſh. Here, ſaith Calvin, is another compariſon taken from a man, whoſe deſtruction is then moſt lamentable, when his body is deſtroyed, and his ſoul lies under the wrath of God alſo. Muſculus ſaith, it is not vainly ſaid, From the ſoul to the fleſh, but to ſhew, That this fire ſhould not be like ours, which firſt burneth the fleſh outwardly, and then takes life away by piercing more inwardly; this contrariwiſe deſtroyes the life or ſoul firſt, then the body lies upon the ground and conſumeth. For the laſt words, wherein he compares their overthrow to the diſſolution of an Enſign-bearer, this is to ſhew the utter ruine of the whole Army, whereof this is a ſign, that their Banners be all taken, for when it comes to this, there is no hope for that Army more.

Verſ.20. And in that day the remainders of the people of Iſrael ſhall no more lean upon their ſmiter, but upon the Lord, &c. That is, After the Aſſyrian ſubdued, they ſhall ſee into their wickedneſſe of ſeeking aid from Aſhur, as Ahaz did, and doe ſo no more, but ſeek it at Gods hand onely, as indeed they did when they returned out of their Babyloniſh Captivity.

Verſ.21. For a remnant ſhall return. As was prophetically ſet forth in the name Shear-jaſhub. Chap.7.

Verſ.22. For if the people Iſrael were as the ſands of the ſea, a remnant ſhould return. If thy people (O Iſrael) Hebr. He turns as it were to ſpeak to Iſrael, who was dead long ago, becauſe a promiſe was in thoſe times made, That his ſeed ſhould be as the ſands of the ſeaſhore; but now for their ſins they ſhould be brought to a ſmall number, The conſumption decreed overflowing righteouſneſſe, or juſtice; that is, the reducing of the people of Iſrael to ſuch a paucity, infinite numbers of them being deſtroyed, is nothing elſe but overflowing juſtice, and not to be cenſured as cruelty in God, for he could not in juſtice but thus rigorouſly deal with them, and then for his promiſe ſake to Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, reſerving a remnant, ſhew favour to them again. This was partly fulfilled in the Babyloniſh Captivity, and their return from it, and more fully in the time of the Goſpel, when ſuch multitudes were deſtroyed by the Romans, eſpecially at the ſiege of Jeruſalem; yet a few who imbraced the faith were ſaved, being called out into Pella. Hieronym. Therefore Paul, ſaith Jerom, the beſt Interpreter, expounds and applies it thus, Rom. 9.28. alledging alſo the words of Verſ.23.

Verſ.23. For the Lord makes a conſumption and determination in the midſt of the whole earth, That is, of the Land of Iſrael, for ſo the Hebrew phraſe, The whole earth or land, commonly ſets forth all that land of which it is ſpoken, and by the midſt is meant in the land, or in any part thereof. Calvin. Calvin by the conſumption determined overflowing in righteouſneſs, for ſo he thinks it may be read, underſtands the few Apoſtles, and other Preachers of the Goſpel called out of the Jewiſh Nation, going forth and overflowing with the floud of truth, that is, the righteouſneſs of faith, all Countreys and Nations. This is good, but a ſenſe, which the word conſumption will not ſo well bear as the proper ſenſe, according to which I have expounded it.

Verſ.24. Fear not (O my people) becauſe of Aſhur, he ſhall ſmite thee with a rod, and lift up his ſtaff againſt thee in the way of Ægypt.

Verſ.25. But yet a little while, and his fury ſhall be conſumed, or come to an end, and my indignation in taking them quite away, Hebr. Yet a little modicum, and wrath ſhall be ended. מְעַט מִזְעָר Having ſpoken of ſo general a deſtruction of the whole Land of Iſrael, in the former verſe, leaſt the faithfull ſhould be quite diſcouraged hereby, he now comforteth them, both by bidding them not to fear, and calling them his people, and ſaying, that he ſhall but ſmite in the way of Ægypt, that is, as Oecolampadius hath it, as the Ægyptians ſometime ſmote them by oppreſſion, but were not able utterly to deſtroy them. Oecolamp. Hieronym. Jerom, when he ſhall be in the way of Egypt to fight againſt Tirhachah the King of Ethiopia, he ſhall write menacing letters to thee, but be able to do no more, and this ſhall be his ſmiting thee, as is ſhewed that he did 2 King. 19.9. Pagnin follows the firſt, and ſo doth Junius, rendering it ratione Ægypti; and that this is the meaning is further made plain, ſaith he *verſ.*26. where the ſame words, In the way of Ægypt, are uſed again, to ſhew the manner of the Egyptians deſtructiou, viz. in the night, for ſo periſhed the hoſt of Sennacherib the *Aſſyrian. The Septuagint render it, That he may ſee the way of Egypt; but herein they go from the Hebrew. Thus ſhall it be to Zion, but the time ſhall not be long before Gods wrath ends in the utter deſtruction of the Aſſyrian, his cruel enemy, and the conſummation or full end of Aſhurs fury ſhall come, he being not able to do any more. For thus it was indeed at that time, when Sennacherib with his huge hoſt came againſt Jeruſalem, and greatly ſtraightened it, and terribly threatned it, this ſtorm was ſoon blown over, his whole Army being by Gods Angel deſtroyed.

Junius.

Verſ.26. And the Lord ſhall ſtir up a ſcourge againſt him like the ſmiting of Midian in the rock of Oreb. That is, as the Midianites were ſmitten before Gideon and his nine hundred men, when Oreb their Prince periſhed on a rock, called ſince by his name, The rock of Oreb, and as his rod upon the ſea, and he lifted it up, in the way of Egypt; that is, when he lifted it up by the hand of Moſes, and made the red ſea come together after it had been divided, upon Pharaoh and all his hoſt to their ſudden deſtruction; ſo Sennacheribs hoſt ſhall periſh by his rod in the way of Egypt, though not in the ſame place.

Verſ.27. And in that day his burthen ſhall be taken from thy ſhoulder, and the yoke ſhall vaniſh before the unction, or oyl. The burthen was the Tribute which the Jews paid to the King of Aſhur, three hundred talents of ſilver, and thirty of gold, 2 King.18. Before the oil, a Metaphor taken from leather thongs, wherewith yokes are tied not to be looſned again, but being made ſoft and ſlippery with oil they are eaſily diſſolved, and ſo ſhould be the Aſſyrians yoke upon their neck. Jerom, By the Spirit of God, and the oil of his mercy. Calvin, Through the power of the anointed one Chriſt Jeſus. The beſt expoſition I take it, is, Before the King who was Gods anointed, and dear unto him, that then ſhould reign, which was Hezekiah, becauſe he did but ſpread Sennacheribs blaſphemous letters before the Lord, and the night following that deadly blow was given. Junius brings Jonathan; the Caldee Paraphraſt for that expoſition underſtanding it of Chriſt, and renders it propter oleum, but Hebrew it is מִפְּנֵי שָׁמֶן Before the face of the oil; yet this, I grant, may ſignifie, By the power of the Spirit ſignified by oil, and conſequently of Chriſt who had the Spirit without meaſure, and this he ſaith, is here ſpoken to make way to the Prophecie touching Chriſt *Chap.*11. which is too improbable, becauſe having ſpoken of the Aſſyrians under the ſimilitude of the Trees of Libanus, *verſ.*34. which ſhould be cut down; he begins *Chap.*11. with this, as a reaſon, For a branch ſhall ſpring out of the root of Jeſſe, &c. let the Reader follow which he pleaſeth. In the next words he propheſieth of the ſeveral places to which the King of Aſhur ſhould come, and what trouble and perplexity the people in thoſe parts ſhould then be in. Jerom ſaith, it was at his return from Egypt, where he had been to fight againſt the Ethiopian. He came in great haſte to Ai, and not ſtaying there he paſſed to Migron, and when he came there, ſo great was his deſire with ſpeed to take the City, that he went immediatly to Michmaſh, and there leaving his carriages, becauſe he thought the City being taken ſoon to return

Hieronym.
Calvin.
Junius.
Hieronym.
Verſ.28.

---

* But becauſe the word בְּדֶרֶךְ is never uſed to ſet forth a like thing, but כ as *v.*28 where his deſtruction is compared to that of Midian; I ſubſcribe rather to Jerom, holding that the place where he was cut off, is rather noted by this word, *verſ.*26. and the place where he threatned Hezekiah by his meſſage in this verſe; for he was either time in the way of Ægypt, for by it he went towards Æthiopia, and returned again being come as farre as Lachiſh, when his Army periſhed. Neither was their deliverance from him like that out of Ægypt, for there they had been long oppreſſed, but this is ſaid to be but a little while, and their burthens were heavy, but now nothing but of boaſting words.

to them again; he went to Gibeah, and ſtayed there a while to refreſh his Army. Then Ramah being near is terrified, and out of Gibeah of Saul, which was the Gibeah before ſpoken of, the people fled at his coming; then the daughter of Gallim lifts up her voice alſo in lamentation, cauſing Laiſh to hear it, and poor Anathoth Medmena was moved, to which he came next; then the inhabitants of Gebim, that is, of mountainous places, at whom he could not ſo eaſily come, are bidden to be comforted for this. And yet whilſt the day laſted, he came to Nob, whence he ſeeing Jeruſalem, ſtretched out his hand in way of threatning it, or wagged it in way of diſdain, that when all other parts in the Eaſt were ſubdued by him, ſo little a City ſhould ſtand out and not yield; Muſcul. ſo Jerom. And this is generally followed, although, as Muſculus ſaith, ſome have expounded it of his journey, when he fled, his Army being deſtroyed: But both the terrour ſtricken into places, whereby he paſſed, and his coming laſt near Jeruſalem, evince the contrary. For if it had been meant of the way that he fled by, Jeruſalem and the place neareſt to it would have been ſpoken of firſt; and when he fled he was rather contemptible then terrible in all places, to which he came. His coming therefore, and the places, whereby are ſet forth, that when it ſhould come to paſſe, the faithfull might be comforted in looking up to God, who had before by his Prophet traced out all the way whereby he ſhould come, as without whom he could do nothing, and be confirmed touching his deſtruction ſoon after to follow, whereof it is alſo propheſied in this place. And again verſ.33,34. touching the places here mentioned, we ſhall not need to enquire curiouſly into them, ſome of them being to us unknown, but of Ai ſee Joſh.8. of Migron, 1 Sam.14.3. of Michmaſh, 1 Sam. 13.1. Gibeah was right over againſt Michmaſh, 1 Sam.14.1,6. Rama was the Town where Samuel dwelt, 1 Sam.7.16. and Laiſh in the fartheſt parts of Benjamin, Judg.18.17. Nob was the City of Ahimelech, 1 Sam.21. Anathoth was the place of which Jeremy was, but of this Madmen and Gebim no more is ſaid Junius. by Iunius, but that they were all in the Tribe of Benjamin, which was joined ſo near to Iudah, that they were alwayes inſeparable, and within the compaſſe of this Tribe was part of Ieruſalem, to come to which Sennacherib paſſed all theſe places.

Verſ.33. Behold the Lord ſhall cut off the bough with terrour. The word פאר here rendred a Bough, is by Jerom rendred Laguncolum, a pitcher; By Pagnin, either Glory or a Bough; ſo by R.Ezra, Chimhi, and all new writers a Bough; By Hieronym. Theodotion and Symmachus, Torcular. Jerom applieth it to Chriſt, ſaying, That here is the Prophecy touching him begun, which is continued Chap.11. as if before the Prophecie of his ſpringing up, his death and cutting off thereby were ſpoken of; to a pitcher alſo he ſaith he is compared, becauſe of his fleſh being frail, in which his Divinity ſo precious was contained. Then that which followeth of thoſe of high ſtature that ſhould be cut down, he expoundeth of the greateſt and mightieſt of the Jewiſh Nation for all their wickedneſſes, and that eſpecially of being inſtruments of ſo bloudy a fact of crucifying him. Calvin. Calvin expounds it alſo of the Jews, but not as Jerom, as if part belonged to Chriſt and part to them, but all to the wicked Jews, upon whom God threatens here to bring his terrible judgements before Chriſts coming, firſt ſetting them forth under the Allegory of a Bough, and then of trees of high ſtature, and the foreſt of Lebanon, holding, that it cannot agree to the Aſſyrians, becauſe it were not ſo proper by Lebanon to ſet them forth, being not of their Countrey, but of the Countrey of the Jews, and he urgeth the word Behold, as beginning a new Prophecie, and not continuing the old. And he ſaith, that Junius. being thus underſtood of the Jews great ſufferings by the Aſſyrians, Cha.11.1. comes in aptly to comfort the faithfull in the midſt of theſe judgements. Iunius expounds it of the Aſſyrian, as a concluſion of the Prophecie touching him, when he ſhould with ſuch earneſtneſſe bend his courſe towards Ieruſalem, the Lord would ſuddenly cut him down, as a Bough growing erect a great height before, but now hanging down and withering: And his trees of high ſtature, that is, his Princes and mighty men ſhould fall, and the wood of his Army by the magnifical one, that is, the Angel which ſhould ſmite his hoſt. Vulgar Latine Lebanus with his high ones ſhall fall. Marlorat, Libanus ſhall fall violently. The word rendred by Iunius by the magnifical, is באדיר and doth ſo ſignifie, or by the mighty or ſtrong one; wherefore the other tranſlations are not ſo apt, as not agreeing to the word here uſed. I ſubſcribe to that of Iunius, as alſo Adam Sasbont, and many more: For the objections of Calvin, they are eaſily anſwered; Libanus is here put for any wood full of high trees ſynecdochically, as Carmel before for any fruitfull field; and metaphorically for the Aſſyrian Army full of high and mighty men. And for the word [Behold] it might well be uſed, although no new Prophecie be begun, but the former concluded. For having before ſhewed the haſty march of Sennacherib with his Army againſt Ieruſalem, it was a thing worthy to be attended that immediatly followed, viz. his ſudden routing, and therefore not amiſſe is the word Ecce, Behold, prefixed. As for Ieroms conjecture, That the deſtruction of the Jews ſhould be here meant, it cannot well be thus underſtood, becauſe the declaration of this pertained to the former part of the Chapter, *ver.*5,6,&c. and then the brags and deſtruction of the Aſſyrians, after which the Jews ſhould no more truſt in them, in whom Gods fury ſhould end. Therefore it is improbable, that having deſcribed his coming by divers places towards Ieruſalem, he ſhould ſo abruptly break off and ſay no more of them, but conclude in threatning the Jews again; but rather we are to hold, that here in brief after his coming ſpoken of, as implying a certain perſwaſion of prevailing in a ſhort time; his downfall is ſet down, together with his numerous Army, upon a ſudden, to the admiration of all men.

CHAP. XI.

Verſ.1.

Hieron.

Calv.

Junius.

A*Nd a ſurcle ſhall come out of the trunk of Jeſſe, and a branch ſhall fructifie out of his roots.* The Chaldee Paraphraſt, A King ſhall come of the ſons of Jeſſe, and the Meſſiah of his ſons ſons. Jerom ſaith, That the Jewiſh Expoſitors underſtand this of Chriſt, but he rendering the firſt word, Branch, expoundeth it of the Virgin Mary, and the next a flower, and ſaith, That Chriſt was the flower of this Branch: and then for fructifying he hath aſcending, and a flower ſhall aſcend out of his roots. Yet the Jews, he ſaith, underſtand Chriſt by both, the Rod ſetting forth his power, the Flower his glory. Others generally with them alſo underſtand Chriſt, as ſpringing out of the ſtub of Jeſſe, which ſtood like the ſtub of a Tree cut down in the ground, ſo that none would have thought after ſo long a diſcontinuance of Kings coming therefrom, that one ſo glorious ſhould have ſprung to rule and reign. Sasbont ſaith, the meaning is, One ſhall ſpring out of his root with a regal Scepter. Calvin, who expounds the cutting down ſpoken of at the latter end of the former Chapter, of the Jews, ſaith, that this is a comfort added immediatly after it, that the faithfull might not be diſcouraged at the hearing of ſuch ſad things. But Iunius better, who expounds that of the Aſſyrians deſtruction, takes it for a third common place of comfort in Chriſt againſt the fear of thoſe things, which the Church of God ſhould ſuffer by their enemies. For once he comforts them by the Virgins conceiving and bearing a Son, *Chap.*7. Secondly, By ſaying, To us a childe is born, Chap.9. Then *verſ.*27. of *Chap.*10. having made a preparative to ſpeak of the anointed one or Chriſt, he here ſets him forth at large after a little more interlaced about the Aſſyrians and their ruine. And Ierom who firſt renders נצר a Flower in ſtead of a Branch, afterwards ſaith, That hereupon Matthew notes, that a Prophecie was fulfilled when he dwelt in Nazareth, He ſhall be called a Nazarite, becauſe he is by Iſaiah here ſpoken of by the name of Netſer, whence Netzeraus cometh. Now although this followeth next after the cutting down of the Aſſyrian, yet it was not fulfilled till a long time after: But the Prophet being to ſpeak chiefly of things pertaining to Chriſts Kingdom, for the comfort of the faithfull, makes theſe from hence forward the chief matter of his diſcourſe, to the end of his book; although many other things of note happened in the interim.

Verſ.2. And the Spirit of the Lord reſts upon him, the ſpirit of wiſdom and underſtanding, the ſpirit of counſel and fortitude, the ſpirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord. This further confirmeth, that by the Branch ſpoken of, *v.*1. Chriſt was meant. For touching him it is ſaid, Upon whom thou ſhalt ſee the Spirit Joh.1.33. deſcend and reſt upon him, that is he who ſhall baptize with the holy Ghoſt. For though the Spirit came upon the Prophets, yet it was but at times; he reſted not upon any of them, as he did upon Chriſt; ſo that from the Spirit in him, as a Fountain, we all receive grace, according to that *Joh.*1.16. Of his Hieronym. fulneſs we all receive. There is an Hebrew Goſpel, ſaith Jerom, which the Nazarens reade, wherein it is thus written, The whole Fountain of the holy Ghoſt ſhall come down upon him: For when he came up out of the water, the voice from heaven ſaid, My Son, in all the Prophets I expected thee, that I might reſt upon thee, for thou art my Reſt, and my firſt begotten Son, who reigneſt for ever. And this Spirit is ſaid to be the ſpirit of wiſdom and underſtanding, becauſe by it all things were made, and made in wiſdom. The word Spirit is not often repeated here, as if this Spirit were more then one, but to ſhew, that all theſe gifts come from one and the ſame Spirit of Chriſt; without this no man is wiſe, no man a Counſellour, or valiant, or knoweth, or feareth the Lord: This ſevenfold number is the Stone with ſeven eies in Zechary. But it is to be underſtood that the fear of the Lord is here ſpoken of, for them that need this fear, who are little ones; for perfect love expelleth fear: And of beleevers it is ſaid, We have not received the ſpirit of bondage to fear again, but the Spirit of Adoption, thus Jerom. But whereas he ſpeaks thus of the fear of the Lord, it is not this filial, but a ſervile fear; of which it is ſaid, We have not received the ſpirit of bondage to fear again. By this filial fear, Whoſoever loveth the Lord feareth him; and herein are all other graces perfected. For 1. It is wiſdom and underſtanding to know how a man ſhould carry himſelf in all things; then counſel in difficult caſes to direct a mans ſelf and others, for thus can he do that is wiſe and underſtanding. 4. Fortitude, for if he be a man of counſel and not couragious to do accordingly, it is vain, and valour without counſel is temerity. 5. The ſpirit of the knowledge of the Lord, for all wiſdom and counſel without this, and courage profits not; but when a wiſe and underſtanding man, a man of counſel and courage knoweth the only true God aright, he is wiſe and couragious indeed to his comfort. 6. Of the fear of the Lord, for this muſt needs follow the knowledge of him; and then is all counſel and courage right, when it is directed by this fear; or make the fear of God the beginning of theſe graces, as *Prov.*1.7. it is ſaid to be the beginning of wiſdom, and then wiſdom and underſtanding and counſel, &c. follow this. Whereas he ſaith, The Spirit of the Lord reſts upon Chriſt, he comes to ſpeak more plainly of him, as *v.*1. he ſpake of him by a metaphor. The Spirit of the Lord is here put for the ſubſtantial ſpirit united unto Chriſt, as he was man, through his Divinity, for the whole Godhead dwelt in him bodily: Yet if we conſider the three Perſons diſtinctly, not the Father or the holy Ghoſt, but the Son, and the holy Ghoſt as one Eſſence together with God the Son. The ſpirit of wiſdom, &c. Here the moſt eminent gifts of the ſpirit, but not all are reckoned up; for he is alſo the ſpirit of love, peace, joy, meekneſs, faith, &c. and yet here be not ſeven, but only ſix gifts of the ſpirit recounted, which ſheweth their annotation to be groundleſs that ſpeak of ſeven; but their ground is the Vulgar Latine, where piety is put for one, between knowledge and the fear of God, which is not in the Hebrew. The Lord had before. *chap.*9. by his Prophet ſet forth Chriſt as the Prince of peace, and one that had an endleſs Kingdom; now he declareth the gifts required in a King chiefly, and ſheweth them to be in him conſtantly, fully and alwaies, in compariſon of whom the preſent Kings were fools and cowards, and without the knowledge and fear of the Lord; and therefore he only to be eſteemed, deſired and longed for. And theſe ſpirituall gifts, called the ſpirit of wiſdom and underſtanding, &c. becauſe they come from the ſpirit, reſted not upon Chriſt for himſelf only, but for us that be his members; for of his fulneſs we all receive them in ſome meaſure, ſome man one in more eminency, and ſome another, but he all without meaſure; to him therefore muſt we go, as to the Fountain, for ſuch gifts as theſe.

Verſ.3.

And ſhall make him ſmell in the fear of the Lord. Thus the Hebrew word הריחו ſignifieth: The Vulgar Latine, The ſpirit of the fear of the Lord ſhall fill him; having rendred the ſame word which is here rendred fear, piety, *v.*2. thus making up the number of ſeven gifts of the Spirit, whereas indeed they are but ſix, as hath been touched before. Some render it, ſhall make him ſagacious, or of a ſharp judgement, able to diſcern the right without outward helps of ſeeing or hearing, as none elſe but the Spirit of God can do. And this indeed is the meaning, but it is expreſſed by a metaphor taken from ſmelling, as if by this ſenſe, without that of ſeeing or hearing, he ſhould be able to diſcern who feared God, to accept of them and to be a patron to them, and who not, to reject them: According to this ſenſe, it is ſaid of many that beleeved in him, *Joh.*2. He knew what was in man; neither needed he that any ſhould teſtifie of him. And *Matth.*9. He knew their thoughts. And when the Phariſées came, making a fair ſhew to him, asking a ſign, he knowing the wickedneſs of their hearts, replied, An evil and adulterous generation ſeeketh a ſign, &c. The Jeſuite here tels of S^t^ Hilarion, and Mary Oigniacenſis, that by the very ſmell they could diſcern a godly perſon and an hypocrite aſunder, when an hypocrite came near, they ſmelling a ſtinking ſavour. But whether this were ſo or not, Chriſt hath ſuch a ſmell, all the wicked to him being as ſtinking Goats, and therefore by him accurſed to hell, *Matth.*25. Some underſtand it, as if it had been ſaid, Shall make him have a ſweet ſavour, becauſe all his ſpeeches and actions ſhall ſavour of the fear of the Lord; which is alſo true, but not ſo genuine here, where he is ſpoken of as a King or Judge, as the words following ſhew: He ſhall not judge by the ſight of the eyes, &c. Here a difference is put betwixt mens judging and Chriſts; they can go no otherwiſe but by that which they ſee and hear from the teſtimony of other men, and ſo may be, and often are deceived; becauſe if they ſee a mans works to be good, they judge him a good man, and by miſinformation they judge him evil that is good; or upon whom they ſee a judgement, as Jobs friends ſeeing his ſufferings, and the people of Melita ſeeing a little poiſonous ſerpent hang upon Pauls hand, which was called a Viper, they judged him moſt wicked. Whereas he that doth good works externally, for want of doing them with a good heart is condemned by this Judge, as the Phariſees; and he that ſuffers, being one that truly fears God, is approved by him and magnified, as both Job and Paul aforeſaid were; which is a comfort to thoſe that are unjuſtly judged by men, and may ſtrike fear into ſuch as are juſtified and honoured amongſt men; and into unjuſt Judges, that indeavour not by the helps of ſeeing and hearing which they have, to finde out the truth, or have not acuteneſs enough to do it, or are not moved ſo much hereby, as by hatred of the accuſed, or favour to the accuſer or accuſed, for ſome worldly end of their own. The firſt ſort ſhall be cenſured by this Judge, for doing the work of the Lord negligently: The ſecond, for inſufficiencie for this calling, into which they have intruded themſelves; the third, for being companions of theeves, aiming more at filthy lucre then juſtice, and acting partakers with the evil, rather then Judges, to the great infamy and diſgrace of their high order. See *Pſal.*58. and 82. and 1 Sam. 8.3.

Vatabl.

Cornel. a Lap.

Iſa. 1.23.

Verſ.4.

Hieron.

He ſhall judge the poor in righteouſneſs, and reprove for the meek of the earth. This, ſaith Jerom, is by the Jews applied unto Chriſt, as which ſhall be performed at his ſecond coming, but by us unto his firſt. For the Apoſtles, whom he called poor, he cenſured, ſaying [O faithleſs and perverſe generation, and to Peter, Get thee behinde me Satan.] And he reproved for the ſake of the meek, and ſmote the earth with the rod of his mouth; as here followeth: When having threatned a famine by Agabus, he ſent it, and both famine, peſtilence and warre by John the Divine, *Revel.6.4,5,&c.* for the perſecutions raiſed up againſt his ſervants: And it is ſaid, that he ſhall ſlay Antichriſt by the breath of his mouth, 2 *Theſ.*2.8. according to the laſt words of this verſe, He ſhall Adam Saſbont. ſlay the wicked by the ſpirit of his mouth. Adam Saſbont, by his judging the poor, underſtands his delivering poor ſouls oppreſſed with ſins; ſo *Pſal.*72. it is ſaid, Thou ſhalt give thy judgement to the King, and he ſhall deliver the poor. The meek of the earth are ſuch ſinners as meekly yield themſelves to be governed by his Word, repenting them of their former ſins; and they are ſaid to be of the earth, becauſe they who received the Goſpel, were for the greateſt part poor and abject amongſt men. And he ſhall ſmite the earth,&c. That is, his Word ſhall ſo ſtrike the hearts of men, that were before earthly, as if it were with a rod, to make them ſmart therefore to repentance: As it is ſaid that he taught with authority, and not as the ſcribes: no Orator ever ſtriking ſo deep an impreſſion in the minde with all his eloquence, as he by his teaching. The Hebrews ſay it is meant, that he ſhould ſmite and deſtroy them by his Word, bringing down fire from heaven, as Elijah did: but this is ſufficiently confuted, where his Diſciples asking if they ſhould call for fire from heaven, as Elijah did, he anſwered, Ye know not of what ſpirit ye are. And ſhall ſlay the wicked,&c. That is, either Antichriſt, or the devil and all the wicked, who by the power of his breath ſhall be commanded into hell fire, there to die eternally. Calvin. Touching the poor, Calvin ſaith the ſame with Saſbont. Touching the meek he alſo addeth, that none come to this, except they be ſpiritually poor, and in their own ſenſe deſtitute of all goodneſs, and then meekly yielding themſelves to be governed by his word, he will take their part and protect them againſt ſatan and all other their enemies. For the next words, He ſhall ſmite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and ſlay the wicked with the ſpirit of his lips. Both he and Muſculus ſometime ſay, that one and the ſame thing is meant, only the laſt words are an auxeſis of the former, becauſe it is more to ſlay then to ſmite, and yet by and by again they make a queſtion, whether the ſame ſort of men be meant by both, that is, the wicked, and Calvin in concluſion ſaith, as Jerom, that by the wicked the Antichriſt is meant, yet not excluding any other wicked men or hereticks, who are ſlain by the breath of his lips, when they are convinced of their ſins and errours, and condemned in the preaching of his Word, by any of his faithfull ſervants. Yet they will have two kindes of ſlaying intimated in both theſe ſentences, 1. Of ſin, in ſuch as are ſet forth by the Earth, becauſe before hearing they were earthly minded, but now, as if the earthly man were killed in them, they are heavenly and ſpiritual. 2. Of perſons who are incorrigibly wicked; the preaching of the word to them, is the denouncing of the ſentence of death, for which it is called the ſavour of death to them that periſh, 2 *Cor.*2.14. And accordingly when a Judge gives ſentence againſt a malefactour to be hanged, we commonly ſay, he hanged him; as alſo of Joſeph but foretelling the hanging of Pharaohs chief Baker, it is ſaid by the chief Butler, he hanged him and reſtored me to my Office.

Verſ.5. And righteouſneſs ſhall be the girdle of his loins, and truth or faith the girdle of his reins. Calvin. The girdle is put for a Kingly enſign, Job 12.18. *Eſa.*14.5. ſaith Calvin. Now whereas other Kings have girdles of golden and glittering matter, Chriſts girdle is juſtice and truth; as if he had ſaid, true juſtice, or juſtice, becauſe he ſhall be glorious for his righteous proceeding before ſpoken of, both for the poor and meek, and againſt the wicked of what ſtate or degree ſoever. And truth or faithfulneſs, as the word אמונה Emunah ſignifies, for his faithfull performing of all which he promiſeth. Hieron. Jerom by faith underſtandeth alſo the faith in us his members, who beleeve in him, who are as near to him as a girdle about ones loins. But this is not ſo proper to this place, as having reference to the things predicated of Chriſt, *v.*4.

And

Verſ.6.

And the wolf ſhall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard with the kid,&c. Theſe things, ſaith Jerom, are literally underſtood by the Jews, and ſuch as Judaize; for they ſay, that when the Meſſiah ſhall come, which ſhall be towards the end of the world, the enmity, which was not by the firſt creation, in wilde beaſts againſt others, to prey upon and to devour them, ſhall ceaſe again, the wolf being as the lamb, the lion as the ox, &c. there being no more any malignity in any of them towards one another, or towards the leaſt of mankinde, but all obedience and obſequiouſneſs, as to Adam in the ſtate of innocency. But, ſaith he, I would ask them, whether other things here ſpoken by the Prophet be alſo to be underſtood literally, as the branch or flower out of the roots of Jeſſe, or his ſmiting the earth with the rod of his mouth, &c. and if not, but if theſe ſpeeches muſt needs be granted to be metaphoricall, why not this of the wolf, leopard and lion? Is the ceaſing of the beaſts enmity more to the glory of God, and well-pleaſing to him, then of the malignity of men towards one another? if not, then moſt probably this is not properly to be underſtood; but by a wolf a man like to a wolf for killing and making havock of Gods people, who are like poor lambs; by the leopard, which is all ſpotted, the ſpotted with foul ſins; the lion which devours the plain ox, the man of might unjuſtly deſtroying men that are not hurtfull, but profitable to the State. As it was propheſied of Benjamin, that he ſhould be a ravening wolf, Saul perſecuting the Church of Chriſt being meant, but being converted he dwelt with the lamb Ananias, to whom he was ſent, and with Peter and other faithfull perſons. And Paul ſaith of Nero, that when he eſcaped his tyranny, he was delivered out of the lions mouth. And in the ſheet let down to Peter, Act.10. all manner of beaſts being repreſented, men in all parts of the world, of divers qualities and conditions were ſet forth, being quietly together to ſet forth this ſame thing. And to this do all our Expoſitors generally agree. Such as be true followers of Chriſt, although many of them have been hurtfull, as being of a wolviſh or lion-like nature, yet now are turned to be like the lamb and the ox, that is, innocent, and by labouring in that which is good, getting their own living, and not by rapine. They that are not ſo, ſaith Calvin, are not worthy to be counted of the flock of Chriſt, and if they will not be ruled by his Miniſters, who are contemptible to the wicked world, as children for their little ſtrength or power; becauſe it is further added, And a little childe ſhall lead them: yet he makes this but the anagoge, and for the litterall, following that of the Hebrews, ſaying, that as before Adam ſinned there was no enmity amongſt the creatures, ſo Chriſt coming and taking away all enmity ſhall ceaſe again, and the golden age, which was at the firſt, ſhall be reſtored, beaſts being reconciled to beaſts and returning to their firſt obedience to man, and no way obnoxious or hurtfull to him. Thus alſo Lactantius, who held that Chriſtians ſhould reign here with Chriſt a thouſand years, the moſt ſavage creatures being then tame and gentle; which opinion many called Chiliaſts then followed, taking it from Papias the Diſciple of John: but both Galatinus confuteth this ſenſe out of Rabbins more ancient. And as Jerom, ſo Chryſoſt. Auguſt. Gregory,&c. underſtand it metaphorically, either of fierce and ſavage Countries and Nations of the Heathens, who were as wolves and lions, before the coming of the Goſpel amongſt them, but now agreeing well with Chriſtians, as being turned to the ſame faith, or of particular perſons in any place thus miraculouſly changed. Some think this was fulfilled according to the letter, when the Apoſtles and other faithfull perſons had power over lions and ſcorpions to tread them under foot, and ſome Martyrs being caſt to wilde beaſts, they were quietly with them and hurt them not. But they are deceived, becauſe then one word muſt be underſtood metaphorically and another properly; and becauſe this is of a thing univerſally to be done in all the holy mountain of the Lord, that was but by ſome perſons in ſome places only. And a little childe ſhall lead amongſt them. So it is word for word, the meaning being, that the childe Jeſus ſhall rule amongſt them and

Calvin.

Lactant. lib. 7. *inſtitut.*c.24.

over them leading them to this by his Spirit, or as was before ſaid, any Miniſter of his, though but as a childe in power, ſhall prevail ſo in their hearts, that they ſhall yeeld themſelves to be lead by him in any virtuous and good way, even as a tame beaſt by a childe that is farre leſſe and weaker then he, and thus ſhall not woolves only do, that is, the baſer ſort, but alſo Kings and Lords ſet forth by lions, for with God there is no difference of perſons: And thus, *Hoſ.*2.18. the Lord ſaith, he will make a covenant for them with the beaſts of the field and the fowls of the air, &c. Laſtly note here that he ſaith not, the lambs ſhall dwell with the wolf, but the wolf with the lamb; becauſe by lambs and ſheep Chriſtians are ſet forth, to ſhew, that cruel idolaters of the Gentiles, that firſt deſtroyed Chriſtians, ſhall be turned to them, and live quietly, and feed with them upon the ſpiritual food of the Word and Sacraments, and not Chriſtians turned into ſuch. Whereas Calvin here makes a queſtion, Calvin. whether any be lambs by nature, according to the ſenſe of the word lambs in this place, I think it needleſs, becauſe by lambs are not meant any that were ſuch from their birth, but ſome of the Jews firſt converted and brought into Chriſts fold, and ſome of the Gentiles turned firſt to the faith alſo, nothing elſe here being propheſied, but that others, who were even perſecutors at the firſt, ſhould alſo be turned and then become as they were; and if their fierceſt and crueleſt enemies, much more it is intimated, that others more moderate ſhould by the Goſpel be wrought upon, and attain this grace of coming into the ſame fold. Theſe ſeven, the Wolf, Leopard, young Lion, called כפיר Chephir, the Bear, Lion, Aſp and Cockatrice, the fierceſt and moſt hurtfull of all others, being named for the magnifying of his power the more, who ſhould cicurate and tame all theſe by the working of his Spirit.

Verſ.7. The cow and bear ſhall feed together, and the lion eat chaff as the ox. This alſo Hieron. is by the Hebrews and Calvin following them, underſtood literally: but by Jerom, of rude and ignorant perſons converted to the faith, who reade the Scriptures, but ſee not into the meaning of many things therein contained, wherein the wheat lieth; yet by this reading they feed upon the chaff of this wheat, and are nouriſhed. But forſomuch as he is ſaid to eat chaff as the ox, and by the ox, the honeſt laborious Chriſtian is underſtood; the meaning rather is, the moſt noble and mighty being converted, reſort to the word and Sacrament, together with the meaner ſort, for the feeding of their ſouls herewith, although to the carnal it ſeems but as chaff, and to have no more heart in it. Whereas he ſaith, Their young ones ſhall lie down together, The meaning is, that children after parents ſhall do thus, and their children after them from age to age, the faith being once imbraced by the Nations, continuing, and no revolt being made to barbariſm any more.

Verſ.8. And the ſuckling looks upon the hole of the aſp, and the weaned puts his hand upon the den of the cockatrice. The aſp is a ſerpent full of poyſon, but it is more latent; the cockatrice more manifeſtly dangerous for killing all that come near it. But whoſo hath been formerly as the one or the other, ſhall now no more be hurtfull to any, no not to little children, that cannot defend them-Muſculus. ſelves; for their poiſonous qualities ſhall ceaſe: Thus Muſculus, who alſo will have hereby intimated the courage, even of Chriſtians but newly entred into the firſt principles, but much more of thoſe that have made further proficiency in divine learning; they fear neither ſubtle hereticks nor devils. And Hieron. to unclean ſpirits and devils, caſt out by the Apoſtles, doth Jerom apply it, ac-Marc.16. cording to the promiſe, They that beleeve ſhall take up ſerpents, and they ſhall not hurt them. But becauſe all other ſavage and hurtfull creatures hitherto ſpoken of, have ſet forth men of like qualities, but now changed, I ſee no cauſe why the aſp and baſilisk ſhould not be likewiſe underſtood, and no fortitude againſt danger by them here intimated: So that it is out of place that is brought here by Cornelius a Lapide, of Joſhaphat a young man, converting his father the King and the whole Kingdom to Chriſtianity: And out of Procopius, touching a childe, who ſeeing his mother by a Tyrant caſt into the fire, bit the thigh

thigh of the tyrant, and then run into the fire and burnt with her, I like rather that of Muſculus, applying it to ſimple well-meaning men like children, and ſuſpecting nothing, companying with men before full of the poyſon of malice, but now this ceaſing in them, they converſe together without being cheated or harmed, wherefore it is immediatly added,

Verſ.9. None ſhall hurt in all the holy mountain of the Lord, that is, in his Church conſiſting of men of all ſorts, becauſe upon Zion the temple ſtood, for the earth ſhall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the ſea: There is ſhewed how it ſhall come to paſſe that none ſhall hurt, viz. becauſe the knowledge and faith of Chriſt ſhall fill all parts of the world, and ſo ſavageneſſe and hurtfullneſſe of man towards man ſhall ceaſe, and this knowledge ſhall cover the earth as the waters the ſea, or as it is heb. the waters in the ſea covering, that is, the waters now kept within the bounds of the ſea, ſometime in the daies of Noah covered the earth, a ſimilitude to ſet forth the greateſt abundance of knowledge, for before it was cooped up within the narrow bounds of Canaan, for the heathen had not the knowledge of his laws, but under the Goſpel both the light in that land was greater, as Chap. 9. and thence as the Sun it went out into all parts.

Pſal. 193.
Pſal. 19.

Verſ.10. And in that day the root of Jeſſe ſhall ſtand for a ſign of peoples, &c. Here he that was called the Branch before, is called the root, even Chriſt ſpringing out of that ſtub, which ſeemed now even dead, and he was an high Enſign or Standard, not for one, but for all people of the world to flow unto. This he himſelf alſo foretold, when he ſaid, As Moſes lifted up the ſerpent in the wilderneſſe, ſo ſhall the Son of man be lifted up, and when I am lifted up I will draw all men to me, He ſhall be required by the Gentiles, that is, be beleeved in, Heb. they ſhall ſeek him: the Septuagint reſpecting the ſenſe more then the proper meaning, they ſhall beleeve in him, and his reſt ſhall be glory, that is, ſaith Calvin, his ſepulchre, or becauſe by reſt death is ſet forth, his croſſe where his dead body firſt reſted ſhall be glorious, but he finally underſtands the Church thus gathered from all parts ſhall be glorious, becauſe of the Church it is ſaid, here ſhall be my reſt for ever, Pſal. 132.14. this laſt is moſt conſonant to Chap. 4.4. where his Church is ſet forth by this word glory.

Joh. 3.
Calvin.

Verſ.11. Hieron. And in that day the Lord ſhall again lift up his hand to poſſeſſe the remainder of his people, which were left from Aſhur, from Egypt, &c. God had once delivered all Iſrael out of Egypt by a mighty hand and ſtretched out arm, when he ſent ſo many plagues upon Pharaoh and his people: now he promiſeth another deliverance under the Goſpel, when Chriſt the root of Jeſſe ſhould be ſet up for an Enſign, but this is not of all but of remnants returning from all parts, where before they had been in captivity. He had long before brought them back ro their own Land in the daies of King Cyrus the Perſian, but now he ſaith, that he would poſſeſſe them by turning them to the faith, that they might be Gods peculiar poſſeſſion, this was fulfilled when Jews and proſelytes out of all countreys ſeeing the miracle of fiery tongues, and the Apoſtles preaching in all languages, beleeved and were baptized, three thouſand being thus added to the Church at that time, ſo Jerom, who alſo relates an opinion of ſome who would have this to be underſtood of the converſion of the Jews, after the fullneſſe of the Gentiles come in, about the time of Chriſts ſecond coming. But becauſe this ſeems to countenance the errour of the Jews, who look for the Meſſiah about the end of the world, he rejecteth this, and ſaith, that this prophecy was fulfilled, as hath been already ſhewed. And for the enmity ceaſing ſpoken of, ver. 13. betwixt Judah and Ephraim, he underſtands it of ſuch of both theſe kingdoms as at the coming on of the Goſpel were converted to the faith, after which all enmity betwixt them ceaſed. For that they were no ſmall number, and ſo not unworthy to bear the name of Judah and Ephraim, appears Act. 21.26. where it is ſaid, that there were in Iudea many myriads or ten thouſands which beleeved. For their flying upon the Philiſtims, &c. verſ. 14. this he underſtands not as to be done in an hoſtile manner, but to beat down their idolatries and ſuperſtitions, and to bring them to the knowledge of one only true God and of his ſon Jeſus Chriſt for their eternall ſalvation. For from Iudea the word was carried out by them into theſe neighbouring countreys firſt, which had been moſt infeſt enemies to the Jews, and the faith being by them embraced, they were ſpiritually ſubdued, and all enmity from thenceforth ceaſed. For his deſtroying of the tongue of the Egyptian ſea, ſpoken of *ver.*15. this he alſo ſaith was by converting the Egyptians, whereupon they ſhould not with their tongues blaſpheme the true God, or magnifie falſe and baſe gods any more, as oxen, and birds, and crocodiles, and cats, as they had done, and it is called the Egyptian ſea, the land of Egypt being meant, becauſe at ſome time of the year the land of Egypt was all covered with water as a ſea. For his ſmiting of it in the ſeven rivers thereof, that the remnant of his people might go over dry-ſhod, he ſaith, was meant of Egypts being ſubjected to the Romans in the daies of Queen Cleopatra, whom Iulius Cæſar overcame a little before Chriſts incarnation, which before was a mighty kingdom, and ſo inacceſſible by the poor Jews, as the great River Nilus impaſſible: but now as if that river had been divided into ſeven, each one running very ſhallow, ſo that a man might go over; ſo that Kingdom ruled in times paſt by one mighty Monarch, ſhould now be divided into divers parts, one being under one governour, another under another, as the conquerour appointed; and opportunity being thus given for thoſe of the Jews who went about preaching the faith, to come thither alſo, as being now fellow-ſubjects under one common Lord, and all having none other Kings or Rulers ſet immediatly over them, but ſuch he appointed: To this effect Ierom, who alſo ſaith, that in ſpeaking of their going over the River Nilus dry-ſhod, he alludeth to the Iſraelites going ſometime through the red Sea, not that a like miracle ſhould now be wrought again, but ſpiritually the like was to be done, that which might hinder the progreſſe of the Goſpel being taken away, viz. the potency of the Egyptian kingdom, it being now in the hands of thoſe that were not ſo infeſt but more friendly to the Jews. Of this ſecond deliverance ſome of the Rabbins underſtood ſomewhat, when writing upon the deliverance out of Egypt, the 15. day of the firſt moneth they ſay, a greater deliverance at the ſame time ſhall come by the Meſſiah, only they erre in this, that whereas it was performed by Jeſus, the ſon of the Virgin Mary at that very time, for then he by ſuffering death wrought the work of our redemption, they expect fondly the Meſſiah ſtill to come to do this great thing, Lyranus, Dionyſius, and Haimo ſay, that Gods ſecond ſtretching out of his hands to poſſeſſe them, was by the Apoſtles preaching and converting many of the Jews, as the firſt was by Chriſts own preaching and converting ſome. Again, others will have this ſecond meant of them that returned from the Babyloniſh captivity, which was a ſtretching out of Gods hand the ſecond time, forſomuch as once before he ſtretched it out for their deliverance, in the time of Hezekiah by ſmiting the hoſt of Sennacherib, but becauſe the deliverance by the root of Ieſſe is here ſpoken of, and the whole prophecy goeth upon things to be done under Chriſt, this laſt fals: and the former ſeems not to be the meaning, becauſe Gods ſtretching out his hand to convert, when the Lord himſelf preached, was not ſo eminent, ſeeing ſo few were then brought unto the faith. For the places from whence he promiſeth that they ſhall return, the 1. is of Aſhur, whither they were carried by Salmanaſar, 2. Egypt, whither they were carried by Pharaoh-Necho. 2 King.23.33. 3. Pathros, by ſome thought to be Parthia, by ſome Phetros, the chief city in Arabia petræa, and by ſome Phatura in Egypt, to which the Jews fled, *Ier.*44.2. 4. Elam, that is, the countrey of the Perſians, Medes, and Sogdians, it was the chief city giving the name to all thoſe parts. 5. Shennaar, that is, Babylon, Gen.11. 6. Amath, which belonged to Libanus, not far diſtant from Damaſcus. 7. The Iſlands of the Sea, Spain, Italy, Greece, and all the Weſtern parts divided from the Eaſt by the ſea, according to the Jews account, who were wont to call them ſo. Here Cuſh hitherto omitted is Ethiopia, beyond Egypt.

Act. 2.

Lyra.
Dionyſ.

Verſ.12. And he will liſt up a ſign, and gather together the out-caſts of Iſrael, &c. Here is nothing elſe but a further explication how he would come to poſſeſſe this remnant again, viz. by ſetting up a ſign, which is, Chriſt crucified: as Moſes lifted up the Serpent in the wilderneſſe, by which all that were ſtung with fiery flying Joh.3.14. ſerpents were gathered together to be healed, and then he addes more generally, from whence theſe remnants ſhould come, if he had hitherto omitted any other particular place, by ſaying, from all the four corners of the earth.

Verſ.13. And the envy of Ephraim ſhall depart, and the enemies of Iudah ſhall be cut off, &c. Heb. קנאת the fierce wrath of Ephraim, that is, of thoſe of the kingdom of Iſrael, or ten tribes, of which Ephraim was the chief, who alwaies after the diviſion of the Iſraelites into two under Ieroboam, were at deadly feud with the kingdom of Iudah under Davids line, ſeeking to bring it under, and at this time they were confederate with Syria to this end. But in the time of the Goſpel this their enmity ceaſed, and thus the enemies of Judah were deſtroyed, becauſe they of the ten Tribes, who formerly exerciſed this hoſtility againſt Judah, being taken away, no more of them now roſe up in this old quarrell, but all agreed together as one kingdom, which was in part fullfilled in the Apoſtles, who, as Euſebius ſaith, were ſome of Judah, and ſome of the ten Tribes, and ſhall be more fully at the time of the Jews converſion to the faith. Then he ſaith, one ſhall not envy another, as they alwaies formerly did, one kingdom ſeeking ambitiouſly to get all the glory from the other, and this effect, ſaith Muſculus, the Goſpel worketh, Muſculus. when it is entertained into the heart, men of divers kingdoms are as one living together in peace and unity, through the power of the ſame religion binding their hearts together. But how this is fullfilled we ſee not in other kingdoms, neither did we ever reade: wherefore it is to be underſtood, not of all, but only of thoſe in whoſe hearts the word worketh effectually. Such in both the kingdoms were together with one accord, Act. 2. although others who beleeved not, and falſe brethren, made the times moſt tumultuous and full of diſſention.

Verſ.14. They ſhall fly on the ſhoulders of the Philiſtims of the Weſt, and upon the children of the Eaſt, The Jews think that this is to be fulfilled in a carnall manner, all their enemies round about being at length ſubdued to them by force of arms, as in time of King David. But becauſe Chriſts kingdom is not of this world, they are certainly deceived, the meaning of this being nothing elſe but ſpirituall: they ſhall fly upon the Philiſtims, &c. by preaching and working miracles for their converſion, and hereby they ſhall be ſubdued unto Chriſt, and brought under the obedience of the Goſpel, who dwelt on every ſide of them, which he intimates by ſaying the children of Ammon ſhall be their obedience, that is, obey their teaching, ſo Jerom. But Oecolampadius ſaith, that this was in part fulfilled, when the Jews Hieronym. returning from Babylon Oecolamp. prevailed againſt their old enemies, the Philiſtims flying upon their ſhoulders being a phraſe to expreſſe their ſubjection to them, and partly when we ſubdue by the ſpirit our ſpirituall enemies, the fleſh and the world, by getting the maſtery over our corruptions. I prefer the former, and according to it the Jews preaching the Goſpel, are ſaid to ſend out their hand, to intimate their ready obedience to it, ſo that if the preachers thereof did but by pointing with their hand ſhew what they would have them to do, they yeelded preſently without any delay, and became obedient in all things. And accordingly in the time of the Apoſtles, Philip is ſaid to have gone to Azotus Act. 8. and Peter to have been at Joppe, which were both in the countrey of Idumæa, as Strabo ſaith. And in the time of Athanaſius and Chryſoſtom, ſaith Adricomius, there were very flouriſhing Churches in Gaza and Aſcalon, and other cities of the Philiſtims. Whereas Ierom referres the putting forth of the hand to the ſubdued, as if a putting Hieronym. forth after the manner of ſupplicants towards victors were meant, it cannot ſtand, becauſe it is added to ſet forth the like caſe of the Ammonites, that Ammon ſhall be obedient them, that is, to them, of the extenſion of whoſe hands it was before ſpoken, therefore not the ſubdued but the ſubduers. The word rendred on the Weſt heb. is the ſea, but becauſe the ſea was Weſtward to the Philiſtims, it is all one. Their going to convert the Philiſtims is ſet forth by fleeing, for their great haſte in doing this, and fleeing upon their ſhoulders for Chriſts yoke, which they put upon them, according to *Mat.*11.28.

Verſ.15. And the Lord ſhall make to vaniſh the tongue of the Egyptian ſea, and lifting up his hand ſhall ſmite her river in the ſeven ſtreams thereof, ſo that men in their ſhoes may paſſe over. Hieron. Ierom by the tongue of the Egyptian ſea, underſtands their blaſphemous ſpeeches againſt God, whileſt they were idolaters, ſo that here it is propheſied of their coverſion, after which time they ſhould be heard to ſpeak ſo no more as they had done, but to the praiſe of God, as if they had new tongues. And whereas they were formerly ruled by one potent King or Queen, ſo that by the greatneſſe of their power ſtrangers were kept out from coming to rule over them, now this their power ſo united, ſhould be divided amongſt many, which was accompliſhed, when Caſar overcoming Anthony and Cleopatra their Queen, ſet up divers Princes, one at Alexandria, another at Ptolomais, &c. to rule over Egypt under him, at what time of this rule thus divided, the Miniſters of Chriſt came and converted them to the faith. For as when a great river runneth all in one channell, it is by footmen unpaſſable, yet being derived into many, a man may paſſe over each one on foot well enough; ſo although the power of Egypt being united in one king, they that were ſent to preach the Goſpel, could not have had ſuch a free paſſage, yet this Monarchy being overthrown, and ſo that power which might have reſiſted being taken away, now they had no hindrance; this being one end that God had in reducing all people under one mighty Monarch, that the Jews going out with the glad tidings of ſalvation might have free entercourſe with all other nations to propagate the ſame every where. Junius. Iunius for the tongue hath the boſom, becauſe it is a piece of earth reaching out into the ſea, like a boſom hindering the marriners paſſage, and making him go ſometimes a great way about to come to the place which he intends. It being meant by the ſtriking hereof, that all impediments of the Goſpels paſſage ſhould be taken away, that it might freely go on to all countreys and nations, one river Nilus being ſpoken of, and the like being underſtood of all other broad and deep waters, whereby men cannot paſſe without ſhips with great labour and coſt prepared. Oecolamp. Saſbout. And thus Oecolampadius underſtands it, and Saſbout, but that he erreth about the river, ſaying, it is Euphrates: yet it may here be alluded unto that river alſo, the waters whereof ran about Babylon, making it impregnable, as the Babylonians thought; but by Cyrus the King of Perſia many large and deep dreins were made, into which the river being let out ſoon became dry, and his ſouldiers went on foot into the city through the river, and took it. But becauſe Egypt is here ſpoken of, and Nilus is well known to be the river of Egypt running into the ſea in ſeven Channels, as great doors, called ſeven Oſtia Nili, and the preſent propheſying is not of a way making for Iſrael to come again into their own land from their Babyloniſh captivity, but of that which ſhould be done in the time of the Goſpel, which was long after, I aſſent to that which hath been ſaid, Cyril. Procop. Calvin. wherein alſo Cyril, Procopius, and Theodoret agree, rather then to Calvin, underſtanding it as a prophecy of their returning from Babylon, wherein nothing ſhould hinder them, a way whereunto was made, when Cyrus their deliverer had done that exploit about Euphrates, becauſe the ſubduing of Babylon was the tranſlating of the Monarchy to him, who ſo greatly favoured them. The meaning then is nothing elſe, but that as Iſrael going out of Egypt towards Canaan, went through the red ſea miraculouſly divided, which would otherwiſe have been an inſuperable impediment unto them, and when they came nearer to the promiſed land, the greateſt rivers could be no hinderance to them, but Iordan was likewiſe divided, that they might paſſe through: ſo in the daies of the Goſpel God would by his almighty power make a way for his ſervants, to go by waies that might ſeem moſt impaſſable, to preach it in Egypt and other parts of the world, that being named in ſtead of more, becauſe it might ſeem hardeſt, as the ſtate of it then ſtood, to be entred by any of Gods people, to work ſo famous a work there, both by reaſon of their moſt notorious ſuperſtition and great power. But their power was broken even a little before by Auguſtus Caſar, who entred by Peluſium in the midſt of mory and fen grounds, ſeeming therefore inacceſſible, but at that time, as if it had been done purpoſely, dried extrordinarily. Whereas the Jews ground upon this place their expectation of the Meſſiah yet to come, when ſeas and rivers ſhall again be dried up according to the letter, that they may again paſſe home to their own countrey under his conduct, as before they went through the red ſea under the conduct of Moſes, it is ridiculous, and it will not hold for their being brought thus to their own land, when they ſhall be converted to the faith, as ſome coming too near the Jews have lately taught. That which is added here is but further to declare the ſame thing which was before ſaid. Thus there ſhall be a path as it were paved with ſtone, for ſo the word ſignifyeth, for the reſidue of Iſrael out of Aſhur, that is, a plain way all impediments being removed, as when they came long before out of Egypt. Verſ.16. And whereas ver. 11. both the reſidue in Aſhur were ſpoken of, and in other countreys; here they only in Aſhur are mentioned, ſaith Muſculus, who were carried away by Salmanaſar, and that furtheſt of all other, and to remain longer then thoſe, that were carried to Babylon, leſt they ſhould deſpair of any return, for even of the ten tribes many as well as of Judah returned to the Lord at the preaching of the Goſpel, and more ſhall return before the end of the world. Muſcul. Rom.11.

CHAP. XII.

AFter deliverance from ſin and death by Chriſt Jeſus here it is ſhewed, how joyful the Church ſhould be for this, and break out into ſinging to the praiſe of God, as Moſes and the Iſraelites did, Exod. 15. when they were brought out of Egypt, and through the red ſea. Verſ.1. I will confeſſe that thou haſt been angry with me, thy wrath hath been turned away, &c. Such as God is angry with and judgeth for a time, ſhall have the more cauſe afterwards to praiſe God in remembrance of that which they have juſtly ſuffered; if they be his people: for his anger is but for a time, and then comes the comfort of his mercy for ever. Note. And the confeſſion is in the ſingular number, to ſhew that all the people of God are as one in their ſufferings, and being delivered, God proceeds with them alike, firſt putting them to grievous ſufferings, and then comforting them, and they are as one in being like affected to one another, and towards God in praiſing him.

Verſ.2. Behold God is my ſalvation, I will truſt and not be afraid, that is, ſaith Jerom, my Jeſus, and made my ſalvation, that is, by becoming man, againſt thoſe hereticks, Hieronym. who will have nothing ſaid to be made, but what was not before, hereupon inferring that Jeſus was not God and man, but man only: for the Church here firſt extols him as God, and then ſaith, he was made. Calvin. And Calvin referres this alſo eſpecially to Jeſus, and Marlorat, bringing in that of old Simeon, Mine eyes have ſeen thy ſalvation.

Verſ.3. Ye ſhall draw waters with joy out of the fountains of our Saviour. By waters here the comfortable doctrine of Chriſt and the ſpirit of grace are to be underſtood, which refreſh more then any other waters, and as living waters of the beſt ſprings, never fail. Hereof therefore he ſaith, Joh.4. I would have given thee water of life, and whoſo drinks of it ſhall never thirſt, &c. And again, If any man thirſteth, let him come and drink of the water of life freely. Joh.7.37. Calvin hereby underſtands doctrines, Calvin. and conſolations, to partake of which a man comes with joy, when chearfully and with an earneſt deſire, as the thirſty hart to the rivers of water. Muſculus the comforts of the holy Ghoſt, which are to the troubled ſoul as waters to the moſt dry and thirſty, exceeding refreſhing.

Verſ.4. And in that day ye ſhall ſay, Sing unto the Lord, &c. Hereby he ſheweth that the praiſe of God ſhall be extraordinarily ſounded forth not only in Judea, but alſo in all parts of the world, implying the converſion of all nations, and the ſame is further ſet forth, *ver.*5. and *ver.*6. Verſ.5. the inhabitant of Zion is ſtirred up to praiſe God, becauſe great in the midſt of thee is the holy One of Iſrael, Verſ.6. that is, being known before only in the ſtreight bounds of Judea, now the whole earth is filled led with the knowledge of him, he being thus made as it were moſt great by ſo inlarging his dominion by the propagation of the Goſpel.

CHAP. XIII.

AFter the prophecy touching Chriſt began, *Cha.*7. and ending, Cha. 12. Here follows ten particular viſions of judgements to come upon divers countreys, Hieronym. which were then moſt infeſt enemies to the people of God, as Jerom diſtinguiſheth them, 1. Babylon, chap.13,14. 2. Paleſtine, chap.14.28. 3. Moab, cha.15. 4. Damaſcus, chap. 17, 18. 5. Egypt, chap. 19, 20. 6. The Deſert of the Sea, chap.21. 7. Idumea, verſ. 11,12. 8. Arabia, verſ. 13. 9. The valley of viſion, Junius. chap.22. 10. Tyrus, chap.23. Junius makes chap. 13, 14. to cohere with the 5. and 6. thus: there judgement is threatned by people of a far countrey, which could not but be underſtood of the Caldees or Babylonians. Now prophecies touching Chriſt and his kingdom coming between, chap. 7, 8, 9, 11, 12. here for the comfort of Gods people by theſe enemies oppreſſed, the deſtruction of Babylon is threatned, *Chap.*13. and joy and a ſong of praiſe and thankſgiving for it promiſed, chap. 14. But it is to be noted that both chap. 7. 8. 9. and 10. contain as manifeſt prophecies of judgements againſt Iſrael and Judah, both by Aſſyrians and Caldeans, as the 5. and 6. and therefore the preſent prophecy relates alike to them all. And the Lord having begun by his prophet to threaten Babylon, proceeds in the ſame kinde of argument, till he hath run through all neighbour-countreys with the like threatnings, and the wicked in Jeruſalem alſo to the end of *Chap.*23. But whereas Jerom makes Egypt the 5. and ſo but 10. in all, Junius makes Ethiopia the 5. Egypt the 6. But to return to Babylon in particular.

Verſ. 1. Hieronym. The Burthen of Babylon, &c. the Septuagint improperly the viſion, ſaith Jerom, becauſe when heavy and ſad things only are foretold, the prophecy touching them is commonly called a burthen. Now Babylon here threatned was the Metropolis of the Caldees, as Nineveh of the Aſſyrians, the Kings whereof Phul, Tiglath Pileſar, Salmanaſar, and Sennacherib, reigned as Monarchs of the world before, and deſtroyed the kingdom of Iſrael, but their City Nineveh was deſtroied likewiſe, and their Empire, by the King of Babylon, and now the city of Babylon is threatned with deſtruction by the Medes and Perſians, when they had firſt under Nebuchadnezzar deſtroied Jeruſalem and the kingdom of Judah, in the 11 year of Zedekiah. Now the Lord foretels by his Prophets heavy things to come for grievous ſins, that all may know that they come from the Lord, and Calv. not by chance, and cals them burthens, yet Jer. 23.36. he reproves the people for calling prophecies burthen, as who did hereby ſeek to render them odious, and conſequently all propheſying, becauſe for the moſt parts by reaſon of ſin abounding propheſying was a terrible threatning againſt the wicked, ſuch as the far greater part alwaies were, yet forſomuch as they tended to move to repentance, and ſo to prevent thoſe judgements, they ought willingly to have heard them.

Verſ. 2. Junius. Hieronym. Lift up a ſign upon the high mountain, &c. Junius, ſuper montem eminentem, Jerom, ſuper montem caliginoſum, a dark mountain according to the moſt proper ſignification of the word נִשְׁפֶּה here uſed, for it ſignifyeth the twilight, and Babylon is ſo called for the judgements to come upon her, which ſhould make her as obſcure, as now ſhe was for her power and wealth glorious. This was not, Oecolamp. ſaith Oecolampadius, the Babylon that now is, but that which was firſt built by Queen Semiramis, of the greatneſſe whereof ſee in my Expoſition upon Ezra, which was deſtroied by the Medes and Perſians, lying ever ſince in obſcurity, and re-built no more. But ſeeing Babylon ſtood in a plain, why doth he call it a mountain? Calvin. Calvin anſwers well, becauſe it was like a mountain in power, and a ſtate which might be thought unmoveable as a mountain. By bidding to lift up a ſign, he means a ſtandard, as is uſed for the gathering together of ſouldiers, for the deſtruction of Babylon, ſo chap. 5.26. and who were they that ſhould do it but the Medes and Perſians, as is ſhewed plainly *verſ.*17. In that the Prophet therefore who had no power over them to call them together, ſaith thus, we muſt look to God, in whoſe name he doth it, at whoſe command all hoſts are. And he ſpeaks as if it were now in doing for the more aſſurance to the faithfull, and for their comfort againſt their ſufferings by the Caldees, which ſhould be before. Muſcul. Enter the gates of the munificent; That is, of the Babyloniſh Princes, who were many inhabiting there, for ſo our Lord ſaith, That they who rule amongſt the Gentiles are called Benefactours, as having abundance of wealth, wherewith they might well be ſo. And this implieth, that they were of great might, yet even their gates theſe enemies ſhould enter and prevail, notwithſtanding all their great power and glory. For the title given to Babylon, A dark mountain; there may be other reaſons alſo given, as that the high buildings and many Towers made it ſeem like a Mountain, though it ſtood upon a Plain, and by reaſon of Fens about it, from whence fogs aroſe, it was dark. But ſpecially for an admirable Garden, the ground whereof was raiſed ſo high, that it darkned the City. Of this Joſephus ſaith, Nebuchadnezzar hung heaps of ſtones upon iron-arches like Mountains, being above ſet with many kindes of trees for his wives ſake, who was a Mede, that ſhe might behold ſome reſemblance of her own Countrey therein. *Joſeph. Antiq. l.*10.*c.*13.

Verſ.3. Hieronym. I have commanded my ſanctified ones, &c. The Septuagint, ſaith Jerom, have it, Princes and Giants. Euſebius, Angelical Powers, becauſe they thought it ſtrange, that the Heathen Medes ſhould be called ſanctified ones, but why not as well as Nebuchadnezzar his ſervant, and done by Jeremy. Calvin renders it, My prepared ones, as the word קדש ſometime ſignifieth; the Syriack, my ſanctification. It is nothing abſurd to call the men whom God ſet apart to this holy warre, to puniſh a wicked people, his ſanctified ones; and Cyrus the chief of them ſeemed to have ſome ſanctifying grace in him, by whom haply more of his Army were drawn to worſhip and acknowledge the true God. And he calleth the ſame his valiant ones rejoycing in his glory, becauſe their ſtrength, whereby they gat them ſuch glory by ſubduing Babylon, was the ſtrength of the Allmighty, and not their own.

Verſ.4. Hieron. A voice of a multitude in the Mountains, &c. The Lord commanded to deſtroy the whole earth. Here he ſheweth, That the Perſian Army ſhould conſiſt of very many of divers Nations; But by the whole earth he meaneth nothing elſe, but the Babylonian Countrey, according to the Scripture phraſe, whereby any Countrey is commonly ſo ſpoken of. So Jerom. Calvin. Calvin addeth, That the Babylonian Dominion is ſo ſingularly called for the amplitude thereof. And the voice is ſaid to be on the mountains, ſaith Muſculus, becauſe the Medes Countrey was mountainous. Muſculus.

Verſ.6. Howl, becauſe the day of the Lord is at hand, &c: Here and *ver.*7,8. the Babylonians miſery is further deſcribed, by ſhewing, how they ſhould lament and be ſtricken with ſorrow, which ſhould appear in their faces, for which, he ſaith, Their faces are the faces of flames, alluding, as Muſculus hath it, to the face of a Smith at dark night, when he ſtands blowing his fire, for his face appears, as if it had no bloud in it, moſt wan and pale.

Verſ.9. Behold the cruel day of the Lord ſhall come, and indignation, &c. From the people that ſhould ſuffer, now the Prophet turns to another rhetorical way of aggravating the calamity of that time, as if then they ſhould have no comfort of the light, but all horrour through darkneſſe, in this and *verſ.*10. And he cals it a cruel day, ſaith Jerom, becauſe execution ſhould then be done upon on the cruel, who ſhould think it cruelty, as the thief who is lead to hanging, thinks the Judge cruel that condemned him. Hieron.

Verſ.10. The Stars and Sun ſhall not give their light, &c. This is ſpoken hyperbolically, the meaning being nothing elſe, but that the light of theſe heavenly bodies ſhould be nothing to them for their anguiſh and ſorrow, accounting the light from heaven, which commonly is comfortable to the inhabitants of the earth, no light or comfort to them, becauſe in their minds there was no light of comfort, Calvin. fort, but darkneſs of ſorrow. For, as Calvin hath it, by the Sun God ſhews his comfortable face unto us, when it ſhineth upon the earth to make it fructifie, for which it is ſaid, He makes his Sun to ſhine upon the good and bad. The Prophet therefore in ſaying, The Sun ſhall be darkned, &c. means, that when the Babylonians ſhall ſuffer this judgement by the Medes, they ſhall have no comfort from God to eaſe their grief, but if they look up to Heaven, more ſorrow added to their ſorrow, there being not one ſpark of heavenly light appearing to them, ſet forth by the ſtars alſo loſing their light. For ſtars, as Jerom ſaith, the Septuagint have Orion, and the Hebrew, who was his maſter, Arcturus, looking at the word Cheſile. But where he found that word, I know not, Hebr. it being Cocabai, Stars.

Verſ.11. Hieron. And I will viſit upon the world their iniquity, &c. Some, ſaith Ierom, think that the general deſtruction of the world is here propheſied of, but by the world he underſtands the Kingdom of Babylon, which for the amplitude thereof, being the greateſt part of the world then known is thus termed, and the rather to ſhew, that if all the world agreed together to ſinne, God can as Calvin. eaſily deſtroy them, as he did once the old world, that none may be hardened in ſin, although it may be moſt common, and millions fear not to commit it. Whereas he further addeth, And upon the wicked their ſins; Hereby the greater and prouder ones are ſet forth, who ſin by pride and tyranny, as the next words do ſhew, And I will caſt down the iniquity of the proud, and haughtineſſe of tyrants. And then by the world before threatned, underſtand the common people in all places; ſo Calvin.

Verſ.12. Hieron. And a man ſhall be more precious then gold,&c. Hereby the general deſtruction of the Babylonians is intimated, there ſhould be ſo few left alive, that a man ſhould be a rare ſight there, where formerly they abounded ſo, that Babylon alone ſeemed to be a little world, for that which is rare is ſaid to be precious, as in the days of Eli, the word of God is ſaid to be precious, that is, rare. Note here that the word man is twice uſed, the firſt being Hebr. אֱנוֹשׁ the ſecond אָדָם, betwixt which if we will diſtinguiſh, the firſt ſets forth the common ſort of men, the ſecond men of more eminency. But how was this verified, whenas at the deſtruction of Babylon by the Medes, the greateſt part were ſpared, as the Hiſtory ſheweth, and the City ſtood full of ſtately buildings and inhabitants after Occolamp. this, till the time of Alexander the Great? Oecolampadius anſwers, that it is meant here, that the deſtruction ſhould then begin, but in proceſs of time be perfected, and not brought to ſuch deſolation upon the ſudden. For ſo the event anſwers the Hiſtory, after the deſtruction of the Babyloniſh by the Medes and Perſians begun, Cheſiphon a goodly City was built not far off, that by this means Babylon might be left, and after this in Seleucus his time Seleucia another fair City, after which that Babylon came to utter ruine.

Verſ.13. Muſcul. Hieronym. And I will ſhake the heaven and the earth. Some, ſaith Muſculus, underſtand this properly, as if it ſhould then thunder and be a great earthquake, but it is better to take it figuratively, as *ver.*10. So likewiſe Ierom.

Verſ.14. And it ſhall be as a young Doe, and a ſheep. That is, ſo fearfull ſhall the Babylonians be, as theſe creatures before the Lion or the Wolf having ſhepherd or keeper, when the Medes ſhall break into their City, as they did, in the night, they being for the moſt part drunken, and becauſe of the great ſtrength of their wals, nothing ſuſpecting the irruption of enemies.

Verſ.15.16. The Prophet proceeds to aggravate their miſery, for none ſhall be ſpared from the ſword of the men, that they can come by, or of the children from being daſht againſt the ſtones; ſee a like paſſage, *Pſal.*137.

Verſ.17. 18. 19. He ſhews by whom all this ſhall be done, viz. the Medes; and if any ſhall think by their wealth to ranſom themſelves, that they may be ſpared, or their children, they ſhall be deceived, becauſe gold or ſilver ſhall not by them be regarded. So Babylon the glory of Kingdoms ſhall be overthrown as Sodom, Chap.1. he ſaith, If the Lord had not left us a remnant, we had been as Sodom. The deſtruction of Sodom was the greateſt and moſt ſtupendious, that ever we read of, being with fire from the Lord from Heaven, and all both edifices and people being burnt to aſhes, and ſo remaining to this day. But in comparing Babels deſtruction to this, he means not, that it ſhall likewiſe be conſumed with fire from Heaven, or burnt down at all: for the event ſhewed the contrary, as was touched before. But that as Sodom was manifeſtly deſtroyed by Gods hand, ſo all ſhall acknowledge that Babel was, becauſe otherwiſe no adverſe power could have done it, not only for its own ſtrength, but the mighty Kingdoms unto it belonging, which were two and twenty, and as Sodom deſtroyed was never re-built again, no more ſhould Babel. Laſtly, not one of Sodom eſcaped deſtruction (whereas Ieruſalem being deſtroyed a remnant eſcaped) no more ſhould any of Babel, not one being ſince the utter ruine thereof left to dwell there. For this is the difference, which God puts betwixt the wicked world and his Church, they all periſh into one; but the Church, though moſt periſh, yet ſome are ſaved in all places everlaſtingly; and here the hotteſt perſecutions have not been able to prevail ſo far, as to deſtroy all Chriſtians, as neither the tyranny of wicked Kings of old to deſtroy all the Jews.

Oecolamp.

Verſ.20.

To ſhew the greatneſs of Babels deſolation after the utter ruining of it, he ſaith, That it ſhall not be inhabited any more from generation to generation, no not ſo much as by an Arabian pitching his Tent there, or a ſhepherd, it being altogether poſſeſſed by wilde beaſts and terrible ſpectraes, fraying all men away from thence for ever. To ſhew the accompliſhment of this Prophecie, Jerom ſaith, that a certain Frier an Elamite told him, that within all the ground incloſed by thoſe huge wals of Babylon, inhabited none but wilde beaſts, to hunt which the King oft reſorted thither. For the Arabian here named, they were a kinde of people thus called, who applied themſelves to nothing elſe, but to keep cattel, living in Tents, and removing from time to time to other places, as they fed up the ground where they came. In ſaying therefore, that an Arabian ſhould not pitch his Tent there, he meaneth, That there ſhould be ſuch a deſolation as was not of any Countrey, but only of Sodom. Calvin ſaith, That by the Arabians thoſe of Arabia deſerta are to be underſtood, who leaving their Countrey, becauſe it is barren, wandered about and pitcht their Tents whereſoever they could finde paſture; but to Babylon the Prophet ſheweth, that they ſhould not come after the deſtruction thereof, either becauſe of the great ſlaughters of men made there, which terrified them from coming, or becauſe of the curſe of God upon the ground, making it barren ever after. But the words following *ver.*21,22. ſhew another cauſe, viz. the terrible things appearing there, as Zijm and Jim, Dragons and Devils, and Obim. By Zijm, ſome underſtand all ſorts of terrible wilde berſts, by Obim Apes with tails, or Wolves, Foxes and ſuch like; by Benoth Jagnanah, young Oſtriches; by Segnarim, ſome Satyrs, ſome Devils appearing in ſuch ſhapes. Jim are by ſome rendred Owls, by ſome Cats; but the word from which it cometh, ſignifieth to terrifie. The Septuagint render Obim, clamours and ſounds; the Hebrews themſelves, ſaith Calvin, are uncertain how to expound theſe words, onely all agree, That devils who delight in deſert places ſhall haunt Babylon thus brought to deſolation, ſo that men ſhall not dare to come and abide any more there. Jerom applieth this to ſpiritual Babylon, propheſied of in the Revelation, which ſhall likewiſe, after ſhe hath long flouriſhed, come alſo to ruine and deſolation. But he ſheweth not, which City now extant this is, but others long ago have not doubted, but that it is Rome, whoſe fatal time is yet to come. Munſter in his Coſmography ſpeaks of two Babylons more beſides this, which was the ſeat of the Caldees Empire, viz. Seleucia, afterwards called Babylon, three hundred and twenty furlongs from this; and another in Egypt, called alſo Cair, being a moſt mighty and populous City.

Hieronym.

Calvin.

CHAP.

CHAP. XIIII.

Verſ.1. For the Lord will have mercy upon Jacob, and chooſe Iſrael, &c. How this was fulfilled after Babylon ſubdued and Belſhazzar the King ſlain, appears in Ezra, Cyrus before appointed by God by name, Iſa. 44. who together with Darius ſubdued it, when the whole Empire fell to him by the death of Darius, as it did within one year, gave leave to the Jews to return and build the Temple, reſtoring the precious veſſels thereof, and out of his Kingly munificence, Verſ.2. adding divers other gifts for the furthering of this work. But whereas verſ. 2. it is ſaid, That they ſhould rule over their oppreſſours, and have of them for Hieron. ſervants and maids, Ierom doubteth how it was fulfilled, unleſſe by a Synecdoche, the part being put for the whole, ſuch of their enemies only be underſtood, as they converted in the time of their Captivity, who voluntarily ſubmitted themſelves unto them for their Religions ſake. But ſpecially he thinks this to have been fulfilled under Ahaſhueroſh, when many of their Heathen enemies turned Jews for fear of them, and by the power given them, they deſtroyed ſo many in all the Kings Provinces in the two dayes of Purim: ſee Heſter.

Calvin. Calvin ſaith, This was not fulfilled in their return from the Captivity of Babylon, but meanly, and therefore it is to be referred to the time of the Goſpel, when the Apoſtles went out ſubduing Countreys and Nations, and amongſt them the Aſſyrians and Caldees, who had formerly been oppreſſours of their Nation. Whereas he ſaith, they ſhall rule over them, this, ſaith Muſcul. Muſculus, is not properly to be underſtood, as being diſclaimed 1 Pet. 5. 1. but becauſe the Gentiles converted ſhould ſubmit themſelves to their precepts, even as they over whom maſters rule to do what they command. And becauſe this was never ſo fulfilled, as under the Goſpel, but the Jews enemies round about Saſbont. oppoſed them in godly attempts, Adam Saſbont alſo ſtands for a ſpiritual ſubjection, as hath been ſaid before. I take it, as fulfilled in part after their return, though not ſo remarkably at the firſt, yet afterwards when the Jews were ſo victorious under Mattathias and his ſons, and their high-Prieſts ſucceſſively reigned in ſo great glory, and their friendſhip was affected by forreign Nations, as appears more at large in my Hiſtory at the end of Eſther: But more fully under the Goſpel, becauſe it is not unuſual with the Prophet to mix in his Prophecies things ſpiritual with temporal, as being indeed the chief wherein all true comfort lieth.

Verſ.3. From hence to the end of the 20th verſe, is ſhewed, what exulting there ſhould be over Babylon thus brought down, and deſtroyed together with the King thereof.

Verſ.8. Even the Firre-trees, and the Cedars of Libanus rejoyced over thee. Ierom by Hieron. theſe underſtands other Princes, and mighty men upon earth, who could not eſcape the King of Babylons power, but were cut down by him, as the mighty trees of the Foreſt, but now they are brought in as rejoycing at his ruine, there being none now to hinder other Kings of earth from reigning in quiet, which Calvin. they could not do whilſt he lived. Calvin and Muſculus better. Here by a Proſopopeia the inſenſible trees are brought in, ſpeaking in way of rejoycing for the overthrow of the King of Babylon, which though they grew in Libanus afar off from him, yet they could not ſtand, but were cut down in abundance when that tyrant pleaſed. For the Prophet proceeds by degrees in ſhewing the common joy in all places for the King of Babels ruine, firſt beginning with the Jews, then bringing in the trees in their Land; and laſtly, the Princes of all Lands rejoycing verſ. 9,10. Neither is it unuſual in holy Scripture to aſcribe to trees and inanimate things, affections and language before God, the more emphatically to ſet forth the thing ſpoken of, that men might be the more moved hereby.

Verſ.9. Hell beneath was moved for thee, and ſtirred up her dead to meet thee coming, even all the Captains of the earth, &c. This is alſo ſpoken for the greater emphaſis, as if the Kings of the world ſlain formerly by the Babylonian, and in Hieron. hell, had ſome joy to ſee him to be brought down thither by the ſword of another, as they had been by his ſword, to ſhew, that his fall ſhould be more Calvin. terrible then any of theirs, and derided both by the living and dead, who are brought in ironically riſing from their places for reverence to receive him coming thither, as ſometimes Diogenes is brought by Lucian deriding Alexander Luther. the Great. The word שאול rendred hell, ſetteth forth the grave, as appears Verſ.11. *ver.*11. in that he ſaith, that worms ſhall be under him and cover him, and ſo it is commonly taken in other places.

How art thou fallen from heaven (O Lucifer) ſon of the morning, &c. The Verſ.12. word rendred Lucifer, ſignifieth alſo ulula, hereby Nebuchadnezzar the proud Hieronym. King of Babylon is meant, who thought no God to be above him, and therefore when he is brought down, his fall is ſpoken of, as being from Heaven, where he exalted his Throne above the ſtars of God, that is, above his choſen people. And I will ſit in the Mount of the teſtimony in the ſides of the North, Pſal.48.2. that is, rule over the Temple of God, and the Mount Zion, where it ſtood in the ſides of the North, as it is alſo elſwhere deſcribed; ſo Jerom. This, ſaith Calvin. Calvin, hath been fooliſhly expounded by ſome of the Prince of devils, for neither is he ever called in any other place of Scripture Lucifer; nor can this be drawn to any, but the King of Babylon, of whom all things here are ſpoken, and he is ſet forth by Lucifer the bright morning ſtar, ſaith Muſculus, becauſe he ſometime ſhined in as great glory upon earth, as that ſtar in Heaven, and thought himſelf as fixedly ſet in that high dignity. And he is ſaid to have caſt lots upon the Nations, becauſe he accounted himſelf Lord of all, and ſo one that had power to divide the Nations ſubdued by him amongſt his people by lot, as the Lord anciently divided the Land of Canaan amongſt his people of Iſrael. The expoſition underſtanding the Prince of devils by Lucifer, which Calvin rejects, is Origens, and herein Euſebius, Ambroſe, Athanaſius, and ſome other Ancients held with him; ſome underſtand Antichriſt, as Cyprian. But becauſe the whole Prophecie is of the proud King of Babylon, it Cyprian. cannot ſo well be drawn to any other, then Nebuchadnezzar, who was for his Epiſt. 55. pride driven from amongſt men to live with the beaſts, having before this cauſed his image made of gold to be worſhipped; and Belſhazzar the laſt King of Babylon, who was deſtroyed by the Medes and Perſians, after that he had reigned a while as his true ſucceſſour in worldly pomp and pride, and contempt of the true God, in token whereof he with his Princes and Concubines ſat drinking in the precious veſſels of the Lords houſe the ſame night that Babylon was taken. And this is the pride of every wicked King, he thinks himſelf above the condition of man, and is lifted up in his heart accordingly, if he proſpereth and prevaileth to bring under all Nations againſt whom he warreth; and he thinks, that as God he hath power in his own hands to eſtabliſh his throne, that it ſhall alwayes ſo flouriſh. But he doth hereby ſhew his pride and folly to be intollerable; and herein Antichriſt is ſet forth to be like unto this King, 2 Theſ.2.11.

I will aſcend above the height of the clouds, and will be like the moſt High. It is Verſ.14. not to be thought, ſaith Calvin, that any mortal could have ſuch a thought, for Calvin. there is ſome light in every one by nature, whereby he knoweth, that there is a God, and is affected with reverence towards him: but this Kings extreme pride is hereby ſet forth to be ſuch, as if he had thus ſpoken, to render him odious, and to make all Princes in their greateſt proſperity to take heed that they be not lifted up, but give all glory to God only. And eſpecially let them take heed how they inſult over Gods people; or machinate any thing againſt his true Religion and Church: for this is taken as doing againſt God himſelf, and this was Nebuchadnezzars caſe, who burnt the houſe of God, and took and carried away the ſpoils thereof; and when Sennacherib railed againſt Gods people, Chap.38. the Lord ſaith, I know thy fury and rage againſt me.

Verſ.15.

But thou art drawn down to the grave, to the ſides of the pit. He had ſaid verſ. 13. I will place my Throne in the Mount of the Teſtimony, and ſit in the ſides of the North; That is, in Mount Zion, a moſt conſpicuous place, where ſtood the Temple, the glory of the whole earth. But here by an elegant Antitheſis to put him to the more ſhame, he threatneth, that he ſhould be drawn down, and be placed in the ſides of the infernal pit, that is, have the moſt baſe room therein, as the vileſt of all others have in burying large place, ſuch as be better accounted of having a better.

Verſ.17. Hieron. Vatabl.

And opened not the houſe to his bound. Jerom, Opened not the priſon] That they might have the comfort of the light, but keeping them in darkneſſe to aggravate their miſery, ſo great was his cruelty. Vatablus. He would not open the priſon doors to let any out, whom he had taken in warre, and bound in priſon, but kept them all perpetually in bands; or would never releaſe them, that the doors of their own houſes might be opened to them, contrary to the manner of all Conquerours, that have any humanity in them, for they at length releaſe their priſoners to win their hearts to love them; but this tyrant cared not for being loved, but feared altogether by all whom he had brought under.

Verſ.19. Hieron. Vatablus. Calvin.

To ſhew the judgement of God yet further upon the King of Babylon, he compares his end with the end of other Kings, *Verſ.*18,19. They had each one an honourable burial when they died in their own Sepulchres, But thou (ſaith the Prophet) ſhalt be caſt out of thy Sepulchre, as a deteſtable branch. The Hebrews, ſaith Jerom, to explain this, tell this tale, that Evil-merodach the ſon of Nebuchadnezzar having reigned ſeven years, whilſt he lived amongſt the beaſts of the field, and then being upon his return put in priſon whilſt he lived after that, could not after his deceaſe prevail with the Princes of the Empire to be accepted for King, till that he had cauſed his fathers dead body to be taken up out of the Sepulchre, drawing it forth with a rope and an hook, becauſe they feared, that he might as well come again to reign after that he had been dead a certain time, or reported ſo to be, as he came after ſeven years departure formerly, when they thought that he had been dead. Others, ſaith he, expound it thus, Other Kings have ſome reſt after death, but thou ſhalt have none, as being preſt with the bloud of all. Symmachus renders it thus, With thoſe that are ſlain in warre thou ſhalt deſerve to have fellowſhip of burial. Theſe words, As the garment of the ſlain with the ſword, going down to the pit, as a carkaſſe troden under foot, Hebr. To the ſtones of the pit; that is, ſaith Vatablus, paved with ſtones; or rather, becauſe it is a reproach, the pit, at the bottom whereof ſtones lie, or are caſt in upon the dead carkaſſe, as upon Abſoloms when he was ſlain, 2 *Sam.*18.17. This is ſpoken, ſaith Calvin, according to the manner of the uſage of their bodies, that are ſlain in the warre: for they are trodden under foot as contemptible to their enemies, and after a while ſome making a pit, drag them in their garments defiled with their bloud, and tumble them into it, leaſt lying above ground they ſhould cauſe an intolerable ſtink.

Toſtatus. 2 Reg.

Abulenſis makes mention of that of the Hebrews touching Nebuchadnezzars body taken up by Evilmerodach, ſaying, That it was by the counſel of Jeconiah, whom he therefore advanced, and that to the end they might be ſure he ſhould never live any more to come and reign again, he cut his body into three hundred pieces, & gave them to three hundred Vulturs to be devoured. But this ſounds like a fiction, therefore leaving it to the Authors thereof, occaſioned by the Prophets ſaying, But thou art caſt out of thy grave or ſepulchre; as if this muſt neceſſarily be underſtood of one taken up again after burial, whereas it may well be underſtood of one neglected, and not buried with any ſolemnity to honour him, but uſed as the common ſort of ſouldiers falling by the ſword, as hath been already ſaid, and as the compariſon in further amplifying this is here made. For the words properly ſignifie, Thou wert ſent from thy grave, and ſo moſt probably was Belſhazzar a branch of Nebuchadnezzars ſtock, when he was amongſt others ſlain at the taking of Babylon, for who, can we conceive, would then regard him, to beſtow upon him a funeral after the manner of Kings? But as here followeth, rather abuſe him as a deteſtable branch, which growing at the root of a Tree, the husbandman uſeth to cut off, and caſt away with indignation, becauſe it ſucks away the ſap and fatneſs of the Tree, if it be ſuffered. And that it is not meant that he or Nebuchadnezzar ſhould be drawn out of the grave, as the Fable ſaith, the laſt words evince, As the garments of the ſlain going into the pit, after the manner of an under foot trodden carkaſſe. For if he went into the pit, how was he brought out of the ſepulchre, and cut in pieces, and given to Vulturs? Wherefore he was firſt in ſtead of being honourably buried, trodden under mens and horſes feet together with other ſlain at the ſame time, and then with them contemptuouſly tumbled into one common pit together.

If it be demanded, Why this is ſpoken of, as a great judgement, when as many good ſervants of God are likewiſe uſed at their death, as is complained, Pſ. 79.2? Or what is there in a burial, that it ſhould be made ſo much account of? Calvin anſwers, That in all Nations, and not amongſt the people of God only, great account is made of burying their dead with ſolemnity; and to be caſt out like a beaſt to rot as dung upon the earth, a diſhonour; the light of nature teaching this, and ſo a difference betwixt men dying and beaſts, becauſe the one riſeth again, but not the other. And amongſt Gods people many rites were uſed about burying the dead under the Old Teſtament to figure this out, when the doctrine of the Reſurrection was not ſo manifeſtly known. But under the New Teſtament it is ſuperſtition to uſe many, ſith it is now known and manifeſted by the reſurrection of Chriſt, and believed by all. And if any true Chriſtian through the rage of tyrants be caſt out and left unburied, it is no curſe or ignominy to him any more then the croſſe to Chriſt Jeſus; yea it is a glory, there being the ſame reaſon of the head and of the members. But if any be left unburied, upon whom the ſigns of Gods wrath are, as it is with the wicked; this is a curſe, and to be taken as the earth refuſing to receive them and cover them up till the time of the reſurrection, as moſt unworthy, being after death neglected as beaſts, as in their lives they have been like them in ſenſuality. Calvin.

Verſ.20. Hieronym. Becauſe thou haſt waſted thy Land, and ſlain thy people, &c. The Septuagint ſaith Jerom, reade it, My Land, and my people, but Hebr. it is, Thy Land, which makes the underſtanding more hard. But he reſolves it, either as meaning the deſtruction by his pride and cruelty brought upon his own Kingdom and people, or of the Lands made his by conqueſt, the people whereof he cruelly deſtroyed. I prefer the former, for ſo it beſt agreeth with the Prophecie of Babylons ruine for ever before-going, which had it not been for the pride and other vices of the Kings thereof, might ſtill have continued. And as Muſculus hath it, we may conceive his cruelty even to his own people herein taxed, whom he ſore oppreſſed, and moſt probably in his rage tyrannically waſted. Muſculus.

Verſ.21. Prepare ſlaughter for his ſons in the iniquity of their fathers, &c. According to this Prophecie it came to paſſe, for Belſhazzar being ſlain, none of that race ever roſe up again to royal dignity, ſet forth in the next words, To poſſeſſe the earth, and fill the world with Cities. Jerom, The world of Cities, or the face of the world; Cities, for it is Hebr. and neither with, nor of, and then Cities are added by appoſition, to ſhew, what he means by the face of the world, becauſe Cities chiefly repreſent the world by reaſon of the multitudes of people in them. But becauſe the word עָרִים here rendred Cities, ſignifieth Adverſaries, there is another reading of the ſentence in Jerom thus, They ſhall not riſe up adverſaries, and poſſeſſe the earth, and fill the face of the world; And this I take to be the beſt. So the Caldee, Septuagint, and Cyril by this word underſtand adverſaries, but only they differ in reading it, They ſhall not fill the world with adverſaries; That is, Armies of ſouldiers as the Babylonian Kings formerly did. Calvin alſo mentions this, yet underſtanding by their filling of Hieron. Calvin.

the world with adverſaries, their filling it with the wicked, who as thorns and briars are enemies to the earth, and keep it from fruitfulneſs. But he followeth the other, and which hath not yet been ſpoken of, he moveth a Queſtion, How the puniſhing of children for their fathers ſins agreeth with Ezek. 18? and anſwereth, That it is not meant of guiltleſs children, but ſuch as be like their fathers in wickedneſs, as all are, except God ſanctifieth them by his grace.

Verſ.22. For I will riſe up againſt them, ſaith the Lord. In this and five Verſes more following, the Prophet proceedeth to confirm in the name of the Lord what he had hitherto threatned againſt Babylon, becauſe it was ſo large, and ſtrong, and ſtately, and ſumptuous a City, that it might ſeem impoſſible it ſhould be thus ruined. He cals us therefore here to look at it, as Gods act, to whom nothing is impoſſible. *Verſ.*21. He ſpeaks to the Medes to do this, becauſe he uſeth what inſtruments he pleaſeth; and even Heathens are ſo ſubject to him, that they cannot but execute whatſoever his Prophets do in his name command. Whereas he threatneth to root out the name of Babel, it is meant of any honourable remembrance thereof, and the remnant is alſo named to ſhew the difference that ſhould be betwixt Babel and Judah, a remnant whereof he promiſed to leave.

Verſ.23. And I will ſweep it with a broom. That is, As one that ſweeps an houſe leaves no duſt in any part thereof, ſo God would leave none of the coſtly buildings undemoliſhed there; ſo that it ſhould from a City be turned into a wilderneſs for wilde beaſts to keep in, no ſign of the old inhabitants being left. And to ſhew further the deſolate ſtate thereof, he ſaith, That it ſhall be the habitation of the ſhell-fiſh, or night-owl, for the word קפּד ſignifieth either, but because theſe words, Ponds of water, follow immediately, it is rather to be underſtood of a kinde of fiſh; yet Junius will have it meant of a kinde of Eagle, which frequents much watery places. How it might become ponds of water we may eaſily conceive, becauſe the river Euphrates, which was wont to run thorow it, being drained otherwayes by Cyrus, ſometimes overflowed into the old channel, thus making many ponds; ſo Calvin, who alſo ſaith, Whereas the Lord is brought in, ſaying, I will riſe up, verſ.22. it is not implied, that he lay idle before, but condeſcending to our capacity, he meaneth, that he would ſhew his power to effect all this againſt Babylon.

Junius.

Calvin.

Verſ.24. For further aſſurance he ſwears to do it, that if they would not believe him propheſying in his name, yet for the oath made by the Lord they might certainly believe it.

Verſ.25. Hieronym. To break Aſhur in pieces in my Land, &c. Here, ſaith Jerom, the Prophet gives them a ſign of the deſtruction of Babylon, which ſhould not come till long after, leaſt they ſhould ſleight that judgement againſt them, that were not yet their enemies, and take no comfort in it through the fear in which they were for the preſent, of Sennacherib the Aſſyrian King. As if he had ſaid, Thus will I do to enemies that ſhall come againſt you hereafter, when they have once puniſht you by deſtroying your City, and carrying you away captive, viz. to the Babylonians; but that ye may believe this, and be the more comforted by that which the Lord will ſhortly do for you, I further promiſe you in his name, that your preſent enemy, the Aſſyrian, by whom ye have and are afraid that ye ſhall ſuffer much, ſhall come and be deſtroyed in your Land, ſo far ſhall he be from doing you the hurt he intends. Calvin contrariwiſe by the Aſſyrian underſtands the Caldeans or Babylonians, of whom it hath been hitherto ſpoken. For, ſaith he, the Aſſyrians and Caldees were all under one King, and therefore he might ſometime have his name from Aſhur, and ſometime from Babylon; and becauſe he ſpeaks of his yoke and burthen removing from them, whereas the Aſſyrian King never had them in ſubjection; and laſtly, becauſe it is not improbable, that the Aſſyrians overthrow was before this Prophecie, though it be related after. But theſe reaſons are too ſleighty to prove it. For, 1. the King of Babylon is no where ſet forth forth by the name of the Aſſyrian. 2. Jeruſalem was burthened by the Aſſyrian King in Ahaz his time; and Hezekiah his ſon is ſaid to have paid a great tribute unto him, 2 King.18.14. but he not ſatisfied with it, threatned him notwithſtanding. The Aſſyrian King Sennacherib came not againſt Jeruſalem till Anno 14. of Hezekiah, and this Prophecy was before the death of Ahaz, Iſa.37. as appears, v.28. To ſay nothing of his threatning the Aſſyrians with periſhing in his land and upon his mountains, whereas the Babyloniſh King and his forces were overthrown in Babylon. Therefore Junius leaving Calvin, aſſenteth Junius. to this of Jerom, ſaying that the overthrow of the Aſſyrian Monarchy, which Adam Sasbout. ſhould ſhortly be, was given for a ſign of the overthrow of the Babylonian.

Calvin.

Verſ.26. This is the counſel againſt the whole land, and againſt all Nations. That is, the whole Babyloniſh Dominion and the Nations pertaining thereunto, which were enemies to the Jews, and holp the King of Babylon againſt them, viz. the Syrians, Samaritans, Moabites, Edomites,&c. againſt whom are the Prophecies following, Chap.15,16,17,&c.

Verſ. 28,29. In the year wherein King Achaz died, was this burthen. Rejoyce not thou (O Paleſtine.) From the 6th Chapter hitherto, the Prophecies in the daies of Jotham and Ahaz, of Jotham chap.6. of Ahaz, 7,8,9,&c. to this verſe: From hence to the end of the book, the Prophecies under Hezekiah. And he beginneth with one againſt Philiſtia, to which Ahaz was a great enemy; and therefore he being dead now, and a young King ſucceeding him, whom probably they leſs feared for his want of experience, they rejoyced. But Iſaiah Hieronym. bids them not ſo to do; for though he that had ſmitten them were dead, yet from this ſnake a cockatrice, he ſaith, ſhall come, and his fruit a fiery ſerpent flying: For no King of Judah did ever ſo waſte and ſubdue the Philiſtines as Hezekiah, 2 King.18.8. And he cals him a Baſiliſk, becauſe it kils by ſeeing; and a fiery flying ſerpent, from whom death ſuddenly comes by ſtinging, as to Iſrael in the wilderneſs. To this effect Jerom. But becauſe Ahaz ſmote not the Philiſtines, but they his Countrey, 2 Chron.28.18. Vatablus underſtands not him Vatablus. by the rod which ſmote Paleſtine, but Uzziah, and the body of the people of God, who had formerly ſmitten the Philiſtines often. And by the Cockatrice Calvin underſtandeth not ſo much Hezekiah, as the ſame body of the people, Calvin. aſcribing the beginning only to him. But Junius beſt, by the Baſiliſk under- Junius. ſtands Hezekiah, and by the Snake out of whom he comes, Uzziah his great grandfather, becauſe he was the laſt before Hezekiah that ſmote them, 2 Chron. 26. And although ſince they not being infeſted by the Kings of Judah, but invading Judah in the time of unworthy Ahaz, took ſpoils, whereat they greatly rejoyced: Yet now this their joy ſhould have an end; a King was now come to the throne, that would be their great overthrow. The rod then ſmiting them was Uzziah, who was broken, as it were in Ahaz his grandchildes daies, when the Philiſtines taking the opportunity of the low eſtate, to which he was brought, made a prey of ſome part of his dominion, as the Syrians and Iſraelites had done of others.

Verſ.30. And the firſt-born of the poor ſhall be fed,&c. That the Philiſtines before threatned might not comfort themſelves by thinking, that if they ſuffered ſuch grievous things, Judah ſhould not eſcape long, but come to drink alſo of the ſame cup. Theſe words are added, by the firſt-born of the poor the Jews being underſtood, who are ſo called for the extream miſeries by them endured in the daies of Ahaz, for which they might well be called the firſt or chief of poor afflicted ones. But here is ſhewed, that when the Philiſtines ſhould ſuffer, they ſhould be in a proſperous eſtate: he that ſhould be as a Baſiliſk or fiery flying ſerpent to them, being to theſe, as a good ſhepherd to his ſheep, doing all things to them which conduce to a well-being, becauſe in theſe two ſtands the well-being of a flock, to be fed ſufficiently and to lie down in ſafety. And I will make thy root to periſh with hunger. Although thou for thy great power art like a mighty tree moſt firmly rooted, yet thou ſhalt die at the root, thy principality being overthrown, as the root of a tree dieth, when it can ſuck no more fatneſs out of the earth; ſo the Cities and ſtrong places of the Philiſtines, wherein the life of their power lay, being taken by Hezekiah, their root was laid bare, and then he ſhall eaſily deſtroy the reſidue, both body and branches, that is, the Villages.

Verſ.31. Hieronym.

Calvin. Junius. Adam Sasbont.

Howl (O gate) cry (O City) all Paleſtine is melted or diſſolved, becauſe a ſmoke comes from the north, &c. By gate, ſaith Jerom, underſtand ſuch as ſit in the gate, Princes and Judges; by the City the inhabitants; the deſtruction from the north, is from the Aſſyrian, who amongſt other Countries deſtroyed Paleſtine in Hezekiah his time. Here the Prophet after the Metaphor of his root dying, uſeth another of being diſſolved, as wax before the fire, for none other the ſtrong places and Cities of the Philiſtines ſhould be before the Aſſyrians, who he ſaith, ſhould begin to come in a fume, that is, of the peoples rumour, and then ſhould follow fire, as is uſual. For firſt, ſaith he, the rumour ſhould go abroad, that Phœnicia and Paleſtine ſhould be deſtroyed, and then their deſtruction ſhould come, which he confirmeth by the like in Jeremiah, under the ſimilitude of a river ſaying, The Waters ſhall aſcend from the north, and ſhall be as an over-flowing floud, &c. Calvin ſo referres it to the Aſſyrian, as that he ſaith, it is ſpoken of Jeruſalem alſo, which ſtood north from Paleſtine. Junius and ſome others underſtand it only of the King of Judah, as the former verſe, and ſo it will appear to him that looks into the place, that one and another enemy to Paleſtina is not here ſpoken of and there, but in both one and the ſame. Hezekiah that ſhall deſtroy the Philiſtines, ſhall come as a ſmoak, which paſſeth into and filleth all places, neither can it be kept out: And it is meant, ſaith Saſbont, that as ſmoak annoyeth the eyes, ſo ſhould Hezekiah and his forces Paleſtina. And none ſhall be alone amongſt his conſtituted ones: So Hebr.verbatim. But Junius, None ſhall look backward of his companies. Jerom, None ſhall eſcape his troops. The meaning is, that the forces appointed by King Hezekiah to invade Paleſtine, ſhall come ſtrongly on, none being left behinde alone, as not daring through faintheartedneſs to come forward to act his part in fighting againſt the Philiſtines.

Verſ.32.

Adam Sasbont.

And What ſhall they anſwer to the meſſengers of the Nations? That the Lord hath founded Zion, &c. That is, after Paleſtina ſubdued by Hezekiah, other Nations about ſending to enquire of this conqueſt, the faithfuls anſwer ſhall be, It is God, by whoſe power this is done for the more ſtrengthening of his people, that hereafter a long time they might be the more free againſt their enemies round about. And the poor of the people ſhall truſt in her. Jerom, in him, that is, the Lord, more reſpecting the ſenſe, then the word בָה. For this indeed is the meaning, they having ſuch experience of Gods goodneſs towards Zion, ſhall be confident, that through his power dwelling there ſhe ſhall ſtand impregnable; and that they who keep in the Church hereby prefigured ſhall be ſo eſtabliſhed, that the gates of hell ſhall not prevail againſt them, as is promiſed, *Matth.*16.16. Of Zion, ſaith Saſbont, properly underſtood, it cannot be meant, for we know what came to it, and to the Jews inhabiting there long ago: To ſpiritual Sion, that is, the Church under the Goſpel, it is and ſhall ever be verified. If it ſhall ſeem more properly to belong to the great deliverance of Jeruſalem from Sannecherib in Hezekiahs time, becauſe he attempted the overthrow of Zion, but the Philiſtines never did, although they invaded ſome parts of Judah. I anſwer, If with Jerom we underſtand *v.*31. as a new Prophecie of the calamities ſuffered by the Philiſtines, (after that Hezekiah had ſmitten them) by Sannecherib, the ſenſe will flow the better indeed: But taking it otherwiſe, as before, it may ſtand very well ſo. This is the cauſe why Zion now ſtands firm, which by the former invaſion of enemies was ſore ſhaken, God hath founded Zion, and therefore no marvail, though Paleſtine be ſubdued by the Jews, that ſhe was not formerly ſubdued by all her enemies, for an arm of fleſh founded Paleſtine, but the Lord Zion, Whoſe power none are able to overcome.

CHAP. XV.

Verſ.1. Hieron. P.Martyr. Calvin.

THe burthen of Moab, becauſe Ar of Moab is waſted in the night. This is the third Country threatned: And the title of the Prophecie being [A burthen] ſaith Jerom, alwaies intimateth ſad things to follow, as the word [Viſion] doth joyfull at laſt. Moab came of Lot, and was ſituated in Arabia, of which Country was Balac, who hired Balaam to come out of Meſopotamia to curſe Iſrael; ſo was the chief City called ſince Areopolis, that is, the City of Mars, whereof Jeremiah ſpeaks much, as a mighty and rich City. And it is threatned with waſting in the night, either in alluding to the inceſtuous begetting of Moab in the night, or intimating the overthrow thereof by mines made under the wals: And I have heard a certain Aroepolitan ſay, that the ſame night that the ſea paſſed over the ſhoar of the City, theſe wals fell down by an Earthquake, ſaith Jerom, in the time of my infancy. Moab, ſaith P.Martyr, ſtood in Arabia Petræa, and was a moſt flouriſhing Country, which made the inhabitants moſt proud, Jer.48. They were near of kin to the Iſraelites, by their father Lots relation to Abraham, who was his fathers brother. But they carried not themſelves like kinſmen towards them, but like enemies, for which they are here threatned with deſtruction: and yet not ſo much that they might make any good uſe of this Prophecy, ſaith Calvin, for it came not unto them, but to the people of God only for their inſtruction and comfort; 1. That they might know, that the great changes in ſtates and Kingdoms were not caſual, but by Gods providence. 2. That God in all his great judgements executing upon the wicked world, had a care of his Church. The places here threatned are Ar ſignifying a City, according to the ſignification of the word ער, and Kir, a wall, whereby therefore taking them appellatively, all the Cities and ſtrong places of Moab may be underſtood: But forſomuch as properly two chief Cities of Moab were thus called, we are to underſtand them only. For their deſtruction in the night, the time preciſely is not ſo much meant hereby, as their ſecurity, and the ſudden and unexpected coming thereof, ſo the deſtruction of the world is threatened to come in the night, that is, when men ſhall look for nothing leſs. And yet in Babylon it was fulfilled according to the letter, Dan.5. and likewiſe we may expect for the day of judgement. However, it comes as a thief in the night, when to the world ſleeping and ſecure in ſin, as men are in the night, that we may never be ſecure in reſpect of that day, but think upon it night and day, and be alwaies prepared for the coming of the Lord, by alwaies doing ſo, as may be well pleaſing unto him, for this is the watching to which he ſo earneſtly exhorteth us all. The deſtruction of Moab here threatned, was by Sennacherib, that Jer.48.4. by Nebuchadnezzar long after. For the word uſed touching either of theſe Cities, brought to ſilence, it is a Periphraſis of death, Pſ.30.

Verſ.2. Vatabl. Hieron. Junius.

He ſhall go up into the houſe, Dibon to the high places, to weep over Nebo. That is, the Moabite ſeeing himſelf periſhing by the hand of the enemy, ſhall, as deſpairing of any humane help, flee to the houſe or temple of their god Chamoz, to cry to him for help, and there weep and houl, but in vain: of Chamos ſee 2 King.23.13. Jerom, for He ſhall go up, hath, The houſe and Dibon ſhall go up to the high places to weep. That is, the Kings houſe and the City Dibon or inhabitants thereof ſhall go up to the high places, becauſe there ſtood the idol Chamoz, otherwiſe called Belphegor; and Medeba and Nebo are named, becauſe two principall Cities of Moab, and in Nebo was that idol placed. Junius hath the Hebr. word Bajith for houſe, and renders it, He ſhall aſcend to Bajith, a town notorious for idolatry, otherwiſe called Beth Baal-Mehon, Numb.32.38. Joſh.23.17. 1 Chron.5.8. it was upon the borders of the Reubenites, Dibon was in that tribe, Joſh.13.17. and likewiſe Bamoth of Nebo, ſee Numb.32.38. of Medeba, c.21.30. But although theſe were Cities in Reuben, there might be others in Moab of the ſame name, which are here threatened. Yet I think with

Junius, that Bajith is a proper name, becauſe otherwiſe it would have been Beth, which is commonly put for an houſe, and ſo it is meant, that the inhabitant of Kir and Ar ſpoken of v.1. ſhall in their diſtreſs flee to theſe places, as wherein they principally worſhipped their idol, thinking thus to attain help, their God being moved by their tears to releeve them, if not in Bajith, yet in Dibon or Bamoth, Nebo or Medeba; or ſome ſhould flee for reſcue to one of theſe places, and ſome to another. Upon every head baldneſs, and beard ſhaven. See the ſame, Ier.8.37. For in time of mourning they uſed to pluck off the hair of their heads, and to ſhave their beards in all the Eaſtern parts, and Calvin. this they did, as counting them their Ornaments, but now in time of ſorrow they put them away: Contrariwiſe in the Weſt, the ſuffering of the hair to grow is a ſign of ſorrow, ſo Calvin. And it ſeemeth to have been the cuſtom of the Heathen in the Eaſt indeed, becauſe the children of Iſrael are forbidden to pluck their hair in mourning, or to cut the corners of their beards: Yet Mephiboſheth in time of mourning for Davids abſence, ſuffered his hair to grow, ſo that it ſeems in the Eaſtern parts all did not alike.

Verſ.3. In the ſtreets thereof they ſhall be girt with ſackcloth,&c. A deſcription of publick calamity and lamentation, they that would not go out before but in gorgeous apparel, now go out in ſackcloth, upon the roofs: Some going up thither, where they might be moſt out of the enemies way, for their roofs were flat;
ſhould come down weeping, their fleeing up thither nothing availing them.
Muſcul. Some expound this of deſcending, as if it were from the high places before ſpoken of, their hopes of help from their gods being fruſtrate.

Verſ.4. Heſhbon and Eleale ſhall howl, their voice ſhall be heard to Jahaz, &c. Theſe, Hieron. ſaith Jerom, were Cities of Moab, the laſt whereof was near the dead, upon the uttermoſt border of Moab; whereby he ſheweth, that howling for miſery ſhould be from one end of the Land to the other. Heſhbon, ſaith Muſculus, was the City of Sihon, Joſh.13.10. Jahaz was the dwelling of the Merarites, Joſh.22.36. there Sihon fell, Numb.21.23. The girt with arms ſhall howl.
So Vatablus renders it, that is, the very ſouldiers, who were ready armed to defend their Country, ſeeing a power irreſiſtible againſt them, ſhall, inſtead of fighting, lament as the reſt, as having now none other weapons left. Their ſoul ſhall cry within him. Some, to it ſelf; that is, mourning inwardly as well Verſ.5. as outwardly. And v.5. ſheweth what each one ſhould cry: My heart ſhall Junius. howl for Moab, her fugitives to Zoar,&c. Or cries aloud to Moab her fugitives, but in vain, ſo Junius; becauſe I call them back, and would ſtay them from Hieron. fleeing, but to no purpoſe. Jerom and all others take it as ſpoken in the Pro-Calvin. phets own perſon; as who would hereby ſhew the miſery of Moab to be ſo great, that it could not but move pity in very enemies; and this is to be preferred, for ſo alſo, Ier.48.36. laments the ſufferings of Moab. Touching Zoar, to which the Moabites fled; it was, ſaith Ierom, one of the five Cities of Sodom, which the Lord ſpared at Lots requeſt, when he deſtroyed Sodom, and it was the uttermoſt border of Moab next the Philiſtines Country: Hereby then he means, that they ſhould flee far off; and in further ſetting forth Zoar he cals it an heifer of three years old; that is, in the full ſtrength, and not yet ſubdued by the enemy. By the aſcent of Luith. This he takes to be a cliff in the way to Aſſyria, and therefore implying their being carried away Captive Junius. thither, and not far from that in a valley, the place called Horonaim. Iunius purſuing his Expoſition begun, underſtands all, as if the cry of the Moabites were ſet forth by the lowing of an Heifer, which loweth moſt ſtrongly, and the voice of their cry coming to Luith and Horonaim, he will have to mean nothing elſe, but the piercing thereof through hils and dales.

Verſ.6. Hieron. There ſhall be deſolations to the waters of Nimrim. Theſe, ſaith Jerom, were ſalt waters near the dead ſea, and therefore the grounds about them were unfruitfull, and to this he either alludeth, or Moab being deſtroyed, theſe waters were Junius. changed by a judgement into ſuch. Junius ſaith, that Nimram is that Bethnimram, Numb.32.3,36. in the Tribe of Gad, running with the waters thereof into the

the Country of Moab, making it fruitfull; but now he ſaith, that even the vallies where theſe waters ran, ſhould be barren and without any graſs. Calvin Calvin. doth not think that a change is meant ſo, that according to the letter the waters ſhould indeed fail, but that the Country ſhould be deſolate, and ſo as if there were no water or graſs growing there, becauſe no inhabitants to make uſe thereof: and this is to be preferred.

Verſ.7. Therefore what is left and their riches they ſhall carry to the poſſeſſion of the Arabians. Jerom, Hieronym. ad torrentem ſalicum; ſaying, this was into the Country of Babylon, of which David ſpeaking, ſaith, that many willows were there planted, or in the way thither, viz. the valley of Arabia, as the words נחל הערבים alſo ſignifie. Junius Junius. is for this laſt; the Chaldees ſpoiling Moab ſhould lay up the goods there taken in Arabia being near, they being their confederates alſo, and for ſuch good offices ſpared, as Herod. ſaith lib. 3. And it is called by the name of a valley, becauſe in the deſcent of Horonaim, which was montainous. Vatablus ſaith, that the enemies carried the Moabites riches thither, to part them amongſt them. But Calvin Calv. will have the Moabites carrying of their own goods into ſecret places amongſt the willows to hide them meant. Muſculus, their carrying of them away, thinking to ſave them, but it ſhould be for Arabian theeves to make a prey of them. Vulgar Latine, According to the greatneſs of their work is their viſitation, and they ſhall lead them to the brook of willows. That is, as Saſbont Sasbont. hath it, According to the greatneſs of their ſin ſhall their puniſhment be, and their enemies ſhall carry them captive into Babylon, or the Arabians fighting under the Aſſyrians ſhall carry them into their Country. But neither doth the word עַל־כֵּן ſignifie [According] but, therefore, neither doth יִתְרָה ſignifie greatneſs, but the remainder, or excellency or riches coming in by their work, for which עשה followeth. The moſt genuine reading then is, Therefore their riches or moſt pretious things coming of their work, they ſhall put in the brook of willows, nothing elſe being meant, but that finding the enemy to prevail in every place, as deſperate, to ſave their gold or ſilver, they ſhould put it into the water, conceiving that haply theſe troubles being over, if they ſurvived, they might there one day finde this treaſure again.

Verſ.8. A cry hath compaſſed the borders of Moab. Here the Prophet returns again to aggravate their miſery, by ſpeaking of their loud and unceſſant crying, mentioning their utmoſt borders in generall, to which it ſhould be heard, and then particularly Eglaim and Beer-Elim. For Eglaim, Junius Junius. hath confluentes, and expounds it of the flowing waters of Arnon one of the borders Numb. 21.15. and Beer Elim, the well of the mighty, or digd by them, for Elim ſignifies the mighty, Exod. 15.15. of a like well in the land of Iſrael ſo digd, see Numb. 21.16. Jerom Hieronym. for Eglaim hath Gallim, and ſaith that Jeremiah hath almoſt all the ſame: But Hebr. it is Eglaim, coming of a word that ſignifieth drops of water, or ſtillings. Pagninus Pagnin. takes it for a proper name, but where any place was in Moab thus called, we know not. Muſculus.

Verſ.9. Becauſe the waters of Dimon ſhall be filled with bloud, for I will put additions upon Dimon to them that ſhall eſcape lions. This was a river in Moab: yet Calvin Calvin. ſaith, that ſome think it to be a City, but againſt the current of Interpreters and reaſon, for what are waters but ſome river or pond, not a City. He doth here then threaten great ſlaughters to the making of rivers to run with blood. The additions put upon the river Dimon, are, according to Vatablus, Vatabl. the ſtreams of blood ſhed running into it: according to Calvin, Lions and other wilde beaſts; as if he had ſaid, This ſhall not be the only ſuffering of the Moabites to have their blood ſhed in abundance, to the filling of rivers by the hands of their enemies, but if any eſcape them, they ſhall be deſtroyed by Lions, yea even all that ſhall remain in the land, when the warre is done, ſhall thus periſh: See a like place, chap. 24.18. Jer. 48.44. Amos 5.19. where ſuch as eſcape judgement by one evil are threatned with another. Thus alſo Jerom, Hieronym. who renders it Dibon, affirming that ב and מ are ſometimes put one for another, but then he will have Dibon the City before ſpoken of, ſignifying flowings, ſo called for the waters running there: whereas Junius. whereas Dimon ſignifieth ſilence. Iunius expounding Dimon bloody, ſaith, that moſt probably the waters appearing like blood, 2 King.3. are here alluded to, Iehoſhaphat the King of Iſrael, and King of Edom had water ſent them miraculouſly in their neceſſity, by the way of Edom, but the Moabites their enemies ſaw that water as blood, whereby they were moved to haſten to the ſhedding of their own blood. As water was then bloody in appearance, ſo now he ſaith, it ſhould be ſo indeed by the blood of the ſlain; in other things he ſubſcribes to Calvin. But Ierom underſtands either Lions properly, or the Chaldees terrible like Lions, becauſe a Lion amongſt the Egyptians was an Hieroglyphick of one moſt terrible: And of Davids Worthies, ſome are ſaid to have had faces like Lions. But becauſe the Caldees or Aſſyrians ſhould ſhed their blood before ſpoken of, and this is another judgement added, the former expoſition is to be preferred.

CHAP. XVI.

Verſ. 1. Junius. S*End ye a lamb of the ruler of the land.* So Junius, expounding it of Lambs due by way of tribute ever ſince Moab ſubdued by David, 2 Sam.8.2. and continuing tributary to part of his Kingdom, viz. the Kingdom of Iſrael, untill the time of Ahaziah and Jehoram, in whoſe daies they refuſed to pay any more this tribute, being a hundred thouſand Lambs, 2 King.3.3. but called here a Lamb by a Syllepſis. Now he bids the Moabites to ceaſe from this their ſin of withholding this tribute due to the King of Iſrael, Lord of their land, threatning them otherwiſe, v.2. that they ſhall be as a wandring bird fleeing to the waters of Arnom, from the rock even to the deſert; that is, from Jockteel, the metropolitan City of Moab, 2 King.14.7. to the deſert of Jordan, which was the furtheſt extent of that Kingdom, he means therefore, that all the Moabites from all parts ſhould agree together to pay it to the King reigning in Jeruſalem then, Calvin. which he expreſſeth by theſe words, To the mount of the daughter of Zion. Calvin contrariwiſe reading it, Send ye a lamb to the Lord of the earth] ſaith, that the Lord, who is ruler over all the world, is hereby meant, and that the ſpeech is ironical, as if he had ſaid, When ye ſhall ſee your ſelves beſet with judgements, and your caſe deſperate, and that no help is elſewhere to be had, then haply ye will think by ſending lambs for ſacrifice at Jeruſalem to be delivered, but your Note. hopes ſhall be fruſtrated, and ſo ſhall the hopes of all the wicked, although they ſeek to God, when judgements irrevocable ceaze upon them. As for the former, he ſaith, it cannot ſtand, becauſe there is no mention made of a tribute of Lambs to be paid to David, and if there were, what had the King of Iſrael to do withall? or if to him this tribute were now, why ſhould it be ſent to Jeruſalem, and Hieronym. not rather to Samaria, the ſeat of the Kings of Iſrael? Ierom differing from both theſe, renders it, buy a lamb, the ruler of the earth, out of the rock of the deſert, &c. that is, By the ſpirit of Prophecy I do here foretell you, that by the Lamb of God, Jeſus Chriſt, who is Lord over all, coming of David, who came of Ruth, married to Boaz; leaving her Countrey Moab to follow Naomi to Ieruſalem, ye ſhall have deliverance from all your ſins and miſeries. Why Ierom ſhould for ſend, as it is in the Hebrew, reade it buy, I know not; but I incline moſt to his Expoſition, becauſe it is not Send a lamb to the Ruler, but the Lamb, Ruler of the earth. Ruler by appoſition being put to Lamb as one and the ſame, and then it muſt needs be meant of Chriſt, in whoſe Name it is here propheſied, that even the Moabites ſhould one day pray, being converted to his faith; for he that prayeth in Chriſts Name, ſends up, as it were, this Lamb, making propitiation for his ſins; and the Ruler of the earth he is, for ſo it is promiſed, I will give thee Pſal.2. the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermoſt parts of the earth for thy poſſeſſion. And whereas Iunius to approve his, renders the 2^d^ ver. Otherwiſe as a wandring bird &c. Hebr. it is, And is as a wandring bird: Where he returns again by another ſimilitude further to ſet forth Moabs miſery, of which he was before ſpeaking. Wherefore *v.*1. comes in as a Prophecy touching Chriſt, a comfort againſt all miſeries, to whom even the Heathens are exhorted to come, and to this he was carried by a Propheticall rapture, immediatly leaving it again, as he did the like before, *chap.*5.14. Or according to ſome, theſe words may go thus, Send a lamb O Ruler of the earth or world] The verb ſend being plurall for the three perſons in the Godhead, yet all one: And to this ſubſcribe Hugo, Lyra, Adam Saſbont and Vatablus, who all take it as ſpoken of Chriſt; yet as was before ſaid, Ruler being by oppoſition put to the word Lamb. But forſomuch as the Hebrews have no caſes, we ſhall not erre whether we render it by the Accuſative or Vocative. Iunius was then miſled herein by the Hebrews, who to elude this Prophecy touching Chriſt, refer it to Hezekiah, as an exhortation to the Moabites to ſubmit and pay tribute to him as they ought, that he might defend them, for they were never his ſubjects. And the rendring of the words, To the Ruler of the land, gave occaſion to Calvin, leaving the old received Expoſition, to excogitate another, and this ſeems to be favoured by our new Tranſlation, rendring it likewiſe, yet herein it differs, that for the rock of the deſert, it hath Sela of the deſert; as if כלע ſignifying a rock, were a proper name. But for the rocks wherewith it is compaſſed, the City meant hereby is called Petra the rock, from whence the Countrey about hath the denomination, Arabia Petræa, according to Strabo. For the Tranſlation of the Septuagint, followed by Cyril, I will ſend as it were creeping things upon the land, I think it ſuch a corruption of the Text, that it is ſcarce worth the mentioning.

Hugo.
Lyra.
Vatablus.

Strabo lib.16.

Verſ.2. And it ſhall be as a wandring bird, going from the neaſt, &c. Here, ſaith Ierom, the Prophecie touching Chriſt being interpoſed *v.*1. Iſaiah returns again to proſecute what he had ſaid, of Lions being ſent againſt Moab, chap.15.9. for by reaſon of them it ſhould be as a bird fleeing from her neſt, that is, the people fleeing from their habitations for fear, and her daughters, that is, they who dwel in all the Cities thereof, at the rivers of Arnon, paſſing thereby into Captivity. For by Arnon, the uttermoſt bounds of Moab, they went, when into Aſſyria Captives. Iunius proſecuting his Expoſition hath it, otherwiſe, that is, unleſs Moab obey the houſe of David, they ſhall flee, &c. But how different this reading is from the Original, I have already ſhewed. Calvin, But it ſhall be like a bird. That is, Let the Moabites ſend ſacrifices to Ieruſalem, and do what they can to prevent ruine and Captivity, they ſhall not eſcape. And as Marlorat hath it, they ſhall as eaſily by Gods power be driven out of their Country, as a bird from her neſt, and ſo ſhall the moſt potent Nation that is wicked, when God will. But thus they make it to cohere with *v.*1. as it doth not, but is joyned by a conjunction copulative with *v.*9. of *chap.*15. And it ſhall be.

Hieron.

Junius.

Calvin.

Note.

Verſ.3. Gather counſel, or enter into counſel, make verdit what is to be done, and this muſt be your way, make thy ſhadow as the night in the midſt of noon-day, hide, &c. As if he had ſaid, this is the beſt courſe that ye can take to obtain mercy of God to be preſerved in danger to be an hiding place to his people, when they for fear of the enemy ſhould flee from their own Country, then to keep them as it were, in the dark of the night from their purſuers; thus imitating Lot your father towards the men that came to Sodom, ſheltring and reſcuing them; and as their father Abraham, by his kindneſs ſometime to Lot hath deſerved that ye ſhould do, when he recovered him with all that he had, out of his Captivity, *Gen.*14. For Moab had rather hitherto holpen the enemy againſt Iſrael, as in many Hiſtories appears. Therefore Calvin underſtands all this as ironicall, as if the Prophet did nothing but upbraid them by their inhumanity to Iſrael in diſtreſs, ſhewing, that they ſhould finde no more favour now in theirs, then they had formerly ſhewed to them. Iunius rather aſſents to Ierom here, and ſo do ſome others, holding that the Prophet gives the Moabites counſel, when Sennacherib by his coming againſt Iudah, ſhould cauſe many of the Jews to flee amongſt them, to uſe them courteouſly, and to protect them; that when Nebuchadnezzar ſhould afterwards indanger their Country, as here is propheſied, God might protect them. Only whereas Ierom underſtands the Metaphor of the noon-

Hieron.

Calvin.

Junius.
Adam Saſbont.

noon-day and night, of light and darkneſs; Saſbont underſtands it of hot purſuit by the enemy to their great pain, as the ſun in hot Countries is tedious to the traveller at noon-day; and their being as dark night to them, of humanity, whereby they might be comforted there-againſt. But herein the difference betwixt Ierom and Adam Saſbont is but ſmal; I hold with Ierom, that the Prophet is ſerious in adviſing Moab, as who doth alſo ſhew a reaſon, *v.*4. He ſhall Verſ.4. ceaſe that oppreſſeth, the waſter ſhall fail. That is, the proud King of Aſſyria, of whom ye may haply be afraid, if ye ſhould do for the Jews as I have ſaid: For in one night his huge army was deſtroyed, and he put to flight: Although they that take the former words to be ſpoken ironically, hold this to be ſpoken not for the comfort of Moabites ſuccouring Gods people, but of Iſraelites againſt their fear of that tyrant.

Verſ.5. And the throne ſhall be prepared in mercy, and one ſhall ſit upon it in truth ſeek- Hieronym. ing judgement, &c. This, ſaith Jerom, is by the Hebrews underſtood of Hezekiah, a moſt righteous King; but by others of Chriſt. And it is not to be doubted, but that Chriſt is propheſied of in this Chapter, and the event is anſwerable:
For even in the Primitive times many trophies built in Moab to the honour of Chriſt, ſhewed his Empire there. Of Chriſt alſo Calvin underſtands it, and Va-
Calvin. tablus, becauſe there is no durable comfort but in him: The word rendred truth Vatabl. therefore is [באמת in truth or firmneſs, intimating the everlaſting continuance; and the tabernacle of David] is added to denote that this Kingdom ſhould not be outwardly glorious, as other Kingdoms of this world, but mean in appearance, as a tent of an ordinary man is in compariſon of a Kings Palace: And in ſaying, the tent of David, reſpect is had to his private condition divers years after his anointing to be King. To haſten juſtice] This is ſpoken to ſatisfie thoſe that think long to have juſtice done them againſt their enemies; if any ſuch ſhall think that too much delay is made, let them reſt in this that he haſteneth juſtice, and it ſhall ſoon be done.

Verſ.6. We have heard of the pride of Moab, &c. Here the Prophet returns again to Prophecie againſt Moab, ſhewing the cauſe of their miſery, their pride by reaſon of their high and ſtrong wals, truſting to which they contemned their more mighty enemies: for that their pride was founded upon their ſtrong wals, ſee Junius. *v.*7. His lies ſhall not ſo ſucceed: Thus Iunius. His indignation is more then his Jerom. ſtrength: So Ierom, and indeed one ſignification of the word עברתו here uſed is fury, and one of בדיו fortitudines, to render it then word for word, reade it thus, And his fury, not ſo his ſtrengths or fortitudes. That is, he is proud of his ſtrength beyond that it is. But Iunius following another ſignification of the word בדיו his lies, gives almoſt the ſame ſenſe in other words. Vatablus hath divers tranſlations, There ſhall be no truth of his lies; or His indignation is nothing but lies, &c. And this of rendring it by lies, Calvin follows. In the ſenſe all agree, Moabs pride and fury was greater then agreed with his ſtrength.

Verſ.7. Therefore Moab ſhall howl to Moab. That is, either one City to another, according to ſome; or the living lamenting the ſlain, according to others; or within himſelf each one, according to others. For the foundations of Kirhare- ſeth, ye ſmitten only ſhall roar. Vulgar Latine, To them that rejoyce over the wals of burnt brick, ſpeak ye their plagues. But why the word is rendred by rejoycing Junius. I know not, becauſe it ſignifies only foundations. Iunius reſpecting more the ſenſe then the words. Of the foundations of Kirhareſeth ye ſhall ſpeak, but they are broken. The ſenſe is, that their greateſt grief ſhould be for this City, being interpreted, A wall of burnt brick, becauſe it was ſo ſtrong, that being once aſ-2 King.3. ſaulted by three Kings, yet it could not be taken, but now the foundations of it ſhould be razed, and the people ſmitten, therefore he uſeth the word תהגו rugi- etis, not loquemini, as Iunius hath it.

Verſ.8. Becauſe the vines of Heſhbon are cut up, &c. Of Heſhbon ſee chap. 15.4. Ier.
Hieronym. 48.31. almoſt as it is here ſpoken of. This and Sibmah, being as Ierom ſaith, but five hundred paces diſtant, it ſeems were fruitfull places as far as Iazer on the borders of Moab, for Vines grow in the fruitfulleſt ſoils. But now they ſhould
be

be all cut down, and ſo the Land deprived of the chief commodity thereof, as Muſculus ſaith the Turks uſe to do when they come into a Countrey of vines, they cut them all down; and forſomuch as they are an occaſion of ſo much ſinning, and there is none other way to beat it down, it were good, ſaith he, that other Potentates would do likewiſe in all places, ſed inconſultò, unleſſe there were no ſtrong drink neither, becauſe that alſo cauſeth drunkenneſs. The Lords of the Nations have trodden down the nobleſt branches, that is, The Aſſyrian Lords, the moſt excellent Vines, wherewith the Countrey abounded even to Iazer, the border of the Land. And by the deſtruction of the Vines he intimateth the Countreys lying waſte. Jerom by their coming to Iazer, and wandring in the deſert, and paſſing over the ſea, underſtands the people of Moab fleeing every way. Some others, by theſe words, They came to Iazer, the Vines planted and growing ſo far; but then under the ſimilitude of Vine-branches of the beſt ſort, the greateſt of Moab fleeing and wandering in the Wilderneſſe, &c. Let the Reader take it which way he pleaſeth. Iunius notes, that Iazer was a Town of the Merarites in Gad, Joſh. 21.29. and applies going over the ſea to choice plants carried over. Muſculus.

Verſ. 9. Therefore weep thou vine of Sibmah with the weeping of Jazer, &c. Vulgar Latine, I will weep with the weeping of Jazer, the vine Sibmah. And thus Hebrew and Junius; it is like that Chap. 15.5. it moves compaſſion even in the Prophet to think of the greatneſs of their miſery. Of Sibmah in Reuben ſee Numb. 32.38. Jazer, Sibmah, Elealeh and Heſhbon, ſaith Jerom, were ſtrong Towns, the overthrow whereof he thus propheſieth of.

Verſ. 10. Upon thy vintage and harveſt ſhall ruſh a ſong. New Tranſlation, The ſhouting for thy harveſt is fallen, Junius being followed herein. Vulgar Latine, Vox calcantium irruit, it being meant, as Jerom hath it and Calvin, That the enemies coming upon them in the time of harveſt, ſhould fill all things with an hideous noiſe in ſtead of the joyfull ſinging that was wont to be at that time, and the ſongs and joy of the wine-makers ſhould ceaſe, as followeth verſ. 10. So that unleſſe the ſame thing be twice repeated, Junius his expoſition cannot ſtand, and the word הידד is rather to be rendred a clamour, then a ſong in this place, although v. 11. by the ſame word a ſong or joyfull noiſe be ſet forth, for it ſignifieth both. Hieron. Calvin.

Verſ. 11. Therefore my bowels ſhall ſound as an harp for Moab, &c. See the like Jer. 48.36. This and verſ. 10. are nothing elſe but a further amplification of that which he ſaid ver. 9.

Verſ. 12. Then he ſhall come to his ſanctuary to pray, but not profit. That is, ſaith Ierom, in his diſtreſs he ſhall ſeek to the Idols, whom he hath ſerved, but ſhall finde no help, for they ſhall go to deſtruction together with him. But here is not only one ſeeking ſpoken of, but another in the beginning of the verſe, When it ſhall appear that Moab is wearied upon the high places, he ſhall come, &c. That is, having ſought in his miſery to his gods in ordinary places, ſuch as every Town and City had, he ſhall at length flee to ſome place reputed more holy, and the common Sanctuary of all diſtreſſed ones, thinking ſurely to have relief there; and this was Chamoz, as Ier. 48.13. is ſhewed. For ſo, ſaith Calvin, the ſuperſtitious Papiſts believe, that by ſeeking to ſome place more eminent for ſanctity, they ſhall rather prevail, as to our Lady of Loretto. But the firſt original of this confidence was doubtleſſe their obſerving, that amongſt the people of God there was one place famous above all others for this, being called ſingularly the Sanctuary, even Solomons Temple. And it is to be noted, ſaith Calvin, becauſe it is ſaid, When it ſhall appear that Moab is wearied, &c. that the wicked are not lead by any reaſon to ſee into the vanity of their ſeeking to Idols, but only by ſenſe and experience, when hereby it appears, even as bruit beaſts are lead, but then it is too late; wherefore let us hearken to right reaſon, and not ſtay to be thus lead, till deſtruction comes, and there will be no remedy. Calvin. Note.

Verſ. 13. This is the word which the Lord brought forth upon Moab from that time. That is, ſaith Jerom, That Moab began to be a people: for he decreed of old, that a Moabite or Ammonite ſhould not enter into the Congregation to the tenth generation. But becauſe Moab was a people before that, it is better with Calvin to underſtand it from the time that Moab was ſo unkinde to Iſrael, becauſe although he was not threatned till now, yet it was thus decreed then. Or from the time that Amos 2. it was threatned in Uzziah his time.

Hieronym.

Verſ.14. Hieronym.

But now the Lord hath ſaid, within three years, as the years of an hireling, &c. That is, Whereas the threatning againſt Moab was before at large, now the certain coming is ſet for the coming of this judgement upon Moab, as the three years are compared to thoſe of an hireling, becauſe he will ſerve no longer, but to the day agreed upon, and then will have his pay, to ſhew the certainty of the time when Moab ſhould be paid with judgement. And this was in Hezekiahs time ſpoken, and in his time performed, or the three years being not counted from the Prophecie, but after that Moab ſhould begin to fall, it ſhould be totally ruined in three years by Nebuchadnezzar, who five years after Jeruſalem deſtroyed Moab, Joſ.*antiq.l.*10,11.

CHAP. XVII.

Verſ.1. Lyran.Eſt punitio Syrorum ad peccatum Iſraelem trahentium. 2. Iſraelitarum illis confidentiũ. 3. Aſſyriorum utroſque vaſtantium. Hieronym. Bern.de oneribus Iſaiæ.

THe burden of Damaſcus. This was the chief City of Syria, and therefore in threatning it the Kingdom of Syria is threatned for their helping Iſrael againſt Judah, Iſa.7.1. and at ſundry other times. 2. Iſrael is threatned for this confederacy with Syria, verſ.4. 3. The Aſſyrians who ſhould deſtroy and ruine them both, *verſ.*12. Thus Lyra; who alſo addeth, That Syria occaſioned ſin in Judah, when Ahaz being there, ſent a patern of the Altar to Uriah the High-Prieſt, that he might make one at Jeruſalem like unto it, 2 Kin. 16.10. Damaſcus, Hebr. is דמשק ſignifying, as Jerom ſaith, either the kiſſe of bloud, or one drinking bloud, and going hereupon he makes it a figure of the Gentiles before their converſion. But letting paſſe ſuch Allegories, Bernard expounds Damaſcus, ſhedding bloud, and ſaith, he truly is of Damaſcus, ſhedding his own bloud, and ſlaying himſelf, that willingly ſinneth: but he that ſtriving againſt ſin is ſometime carried away, is only under the burthen of Damaſcus through grief that ſin cauſeth in him, but dieth not. This Prophecie againſt Damaſcus was fulfilled in part, 2 King. 16.9. when Tiglath Pileſar King of Aſhur ſubdued it, and in part when Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. 49.33. but afterwards it was reſtored again by the Macedonians and Ptolomies, as Jerom ſaith, and is now a noble City of the Eaſt But after the deſtruction thereof by Nebuchadnezzar, it ceaſed for a time to be a City, as is here propheſied, and lay as a ruinous heap. The ordinary gloſſe ſaith, That here Cain ſhed the bloud of Abel, which gave occaſion to the name, and that it was firſt built by Eliezer Abrahams ſteward, of whom ſee *Gen.*15.2. And it hath alſo another ſignification of the name, viz. Sanguis cilicii, becauſe who ſo ſheds innocent bloud had need to put on ſackcloth in mourning therefore.

Gloſſ.Ordin.

Verſ.2. Lyra.

The Cities of Aroer are forſaken, &c. This, ſaith Lyra, was a Countrey in Syria, which was full of inhabitants; but now he foretelleth, that it ſhould be deſolate, and under the power of the enemy, and uſed to feed their flocks in, no Syrians being left, that ſhould dare to come and drive them away. But he ſaith, That the City Aroer was in Judea; of this he ſpeaks not here, but of the Countrey Aroer, ſaith Junius, lying by the River Arnon.

Junius.

Verſ 3.

The munition alſo ſhall ceaſe from Ephraim, and the Kingdom from Damaſcus. Here the Kingdom of the ten Tribes is brought in alſo, and threatned together with Syria, becauſe they joyned together againſt Judah, and it is called by the name of Ephraim, as the chief of thoſe Tribes, and becauſe Jeroboam their firſt King was of that Tribe. For the Syrians might haply bear themſelves upon their union with Iſrael, and ſo ſet light by this threatning, that being a potent Kingdom, being thefore calledhere, The munition of Ephraim. But in ſaying, ing, that it ſhould ceaſe, he takes away all ſuch hope, and this was fulfilled 2 King.17. by Salmanaſar the King of Aſſyria, as that againſt Damaſcus by Tiglath Pileſar. And the remnant of Aram ſhall be as the glory of Iſrael, that is, their great multitudes being by that deſtruction brought to a very few, as Iſraels were: for he cals their multitudes of men their glory, becauſe they much gloried therein, and were proud thereof, and Prov. The glory of a King is in the multitude of his ſubjects.

Verſ.4. And in that day the glory of Iacob ſhall be impoveriſhed. Which was, when ſo many of his children periſhed: And the fatneſſe of his fleſh made lean; that is, his riches, which are as fat (for which it is commonly ſaid of a rich man, that he is fat) ſhall be all taken away. Junius. Iunius by their glory underſtands nobility, proſperity and ſtrength alſo.

Verſ.5. And it ſhall be as when the harveſt-man gathereth the corn. That is, ſaith Iunius, cut down by the enemy, though they were never ſo many, as the multitude of the ears of corn hinder not the reaper from cutting them down, and to ſhew that this is his meaning, he mentions the ears of corn in the valley of Rephaim, which was a moſt fruitfull place, Vulg.Lat. The vulgar Latine, And it ſhall be as one gathering that which remains in harveſt, and as one ſeeking ears in the valley, &c. As if the meaning were, when the great multitudes of Syrians and Iſraelites ſhall be deſtroyed, as hath been ſaid, Syria ſhall be as a corn-field reaped, a very few remaining, as a little gleaning only; and then the Vulgar proceeds, And there ſhall be left therein a cluſter of grapes, as it were, and as the ſhaking of an Olive-tree, two or three Olives,&c. ver.6. and it is underſtood by Lyra and the ordinary Gloſſe; and Hieronym. Haimo. Ierom and Haimo, and others likewiſe. For they ſay, the ſame thing is ſet forth by three compariſons here, 1. Of ears of corn left a field reaped. 2. Of cluſters of Grapes left after Grape-gathering, and two or three Olives after Olive-gathering. And this is allegorically applyed by the ordinary Gloſſe, as ſetting forth, how few ſhall be ſaved in compariſon of them that ſhall periſh. Yea Simeon, ſaith Nilus, an holy man, who lived about an. 1000, being asked, How many ſhould be ſaved? and that by the Princes of Conſtantine anſwered, not above one of ten thouſand; ſo likewiſe Baſil, Chryſoſtom and Ephrem. Calvin. But Calvin, as Iunius, by the former words *verſ.*5. underſtands the cutting of them down by the Aſſyrians, as reapers do corn, and by the laſt the taking away of the very gleanings alſo. And the compariſon ver.6. he ſaith, ſerve to ſet forth another thing for the comfort of the faithfull, who hearing this, might fear that none ſhould be left at all. Againſt this he ſaith, That there ſhould a few be left as a cluſter or two of Grapes, or two or three Olives, &c. And this is moſt agreeable to the original, wherein the word rendred in vulgar Latine, Reſiduum, ſignifieth The Harveſt; and Iunius to ſhew that one thing is ſpoken of *verſ.*5. and another, ver.6. renders it, Yet there ſhall be a gathering of grapes left.

Verſ.7. At that day ſhall a man look to his Maker, &c.

Verſ.8. And he ſhall not look to the Altars, &c. Here is the fruit and effect of Gods judgements in the converted; and this, ſaith Lyra. Lyra, was fulfilled in the dayes of Hezekiah King of Iudah, 2 Chron.30.11,14. Chap.31.1. For at the motion of that good King many of Aſhur, Naphtali and Zebulon came to keep a Paſſeover to the Lord at Ieruſalem, who remained after the Aſſyrian Captivity; and then they holp to deſtroy Altars, and to cut down Groves and Images in Ephraim and Manaſſeh, till none were left. Jerom. Jerom referring this to the time of the Goſpel, ſaith, That the Jews being ſo void of grace, that a little remnant of them only ſhall believe, the Gentiles ſhall turn to the Lord, and break down Altars, built formerly for Idolatry, and Idols alſo. The firſt is beſt and therefore generally followed; and Calvin. Calvin hereupon noteth, That there is cauſe, Note. why the people of God ſhould patiently bear his corrections, ſith they work this bleſſed work of turning from the wickedneſſes, to which we before apoſtatized unto him, and from danger of deſtruction to the way of life. Look to his Maker] Hereby is implied, That before he looked not to him, but forgat him, which cauſed this wickedneſſe in him, and his Maker, he is called not as all other peoples, but in a ſpecial manner in regard of holineſſe, according to the title of God here mentioned, The holy One of Iſrael.

Verſ.9. In that day thy Cities ſhall be left, as the Ploughs and ſtanding corn from before the face of Iſrael. Septuagint, As the Amorites and Hivites left, &c. Here the Prophet returns again to ſhew the miſeries of Iſrael and Syria by the Aſſyrians, even as the old inhabitants fled from them, when they came to poſſeſſe the Land of Canaan, although they dwelt in Cities fenced with ſtrong and high wals through the fear which ſurpriſed them: ſo now ſhould Iſrael do from the Aſſyrians, their wals being counted no better defence, then if they were amongſt ſhrubs in the open fields, or being abroad in ploughing or reaping, they ſhould for haſte in fleeing away leave their ploughs and ſtanding corn to the enemy; the firſt of theſe is Calvins, by חורש and עוזבת underſtanding dumeta & virgulta, the ſecond Ieroms, underſtanding ploughs and ſtanding corn. The New Tranſlation, As a forſaken bough and an uppermoſt branch which they left. Geneva Tranſlation, Shall be forſaken as boughs and branches, which they did forſake; That is, ſaith the Note, which the Canaanites forſook in fleeing before Iſrael. Lyra, Their ſtrong Cities forſaken, as the Ploughs and corn, that is, they being no more able to defend and keep them, then their corn in the open fields. In the ſenſe all agree; The ſcope of the place is to ſhew, That as the Canaanites fled in times paſt before them, ſo they ſhould before their enemies, their ſtrong Cities being no more to defend them, then boughs or buſhes ſet about.

Calvin.
Hieronym.

Verſ.10. Therefore thou ſhalt ſet pleaſant plants and graff ſtrange vine-branches. Having ſhewed the cauſe of the judgement before-ſpoken of in the former part of this verſe, Becauſe thou haſt forgotten the God of thy ſalvation, &c. Here he further explains the meaning thereof. For he threatned fleeing and leaving their corn-fields to the enemy; and here he addes further, that they might plant and graffe, or ſow indeed, but when it was grown up, and they ſhould think to reap the fruit, it ſhould be gone, the enemy poſſeſſing all, as follows,

Verſ.11. In the morning thou ſhalt make thy plant to grow, &c. but the harveſt ſhall be gone in the day of poſſeſſion. Lyra ſaith, That our Expoſitours take this as ſpoken ironically, it being meant, that they were plants degenerating from the true faith and manners. And *verſ.*11. he renders it, In die plantationis tuæ labruſca, and in the morning thy ſeed ſhall flouriſh; That is, Thou Iſrael through confidence in the Syrians help, but ſhalt be gone by the Aſſyrians power in the day of inheritance, or infirmity; for one word ſignifies both; the laſt of infirmity being followed by the Hebrews, that is, Iſraels ſtrength being infirmated; the other by Lyra, it being meant, in the time of harveſt, which is a time of getting corn in to be poſſeſſed by the owner, as part of his inheritance. But R. Solomon ſaith, he takes the future tenſe here for the preter; as if he had ſaid, Thou wert planted at the firſt a faithfull plant in thy fathers, Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, but haſt been changed into ſtrange branches, when immediately after the Law given Iſrael committed Idolatry with the golden Calf. But both this, and Lyra his own are further fetcht; but the firſt expoſition here given is moſt genuine, for ſo it is threatned, *Levit.*26.16. And of this expoſition the Geneva note gives an hint in part, where the ſtrange vine-branches graffed are expounded excellent, and brought out of other Countreys for their extraordinary goodneſſe.

Lyra.

R. Salom.

Geneva Notes.

Verſ.12. Woe to the multitude of many peoples, they ſhall ſound as the ſounding of the ſea, &c.

Verſ.13. He will reprove him, and he ſhall flee farre, &c.

Verſ.14. In the evening behold trouble, but before it be morning he ſhall be no where, &c. Becauſe another Prophecie beginneth here, and nothing pertaining to the former againſt the Syrians; Iunius cutting off theſe three verſes from this Chapter joins them to *Chap.*18. where the Prophecie begun here againſt many Nations, ons, the Aſſyrians in particular with the peoples under that Monarchy, being firſt pointed at, he proceedeth againſt the Ethiopians. This is ſo plainly againſt the Aſſyrian King Sennacherib, that Expoſitors generally underſtand it of him and his Army, which came againſt Iudah as a floud of waters; for ſo he was alſo compared before *Ch.*8.7. and great trouble by reaſon thereof, was in the evening, but the ſame night they being deſtroyed, in the morning no ſuch terrible floud appeared any more, all that multitude although being as a ſea, the overflowing whereof is unreſiſtible by men, yet before God they were but as chaff upon the top of a mountain before the winde, and a light globule apt of it ſelf to roll down before a whirlwinde. Verſ. 13. For even ſo eaſily did he drive them away, making them with all haſte to flee. A ſweet comfort to the people of God againſt the ſtrongeſt attempts of their mightieſt enemies; See Pſ. 46.2,10. *Pſal.*83.14. Some, ſaith Jerom, underſtand all this myſtically of them that raged againſt the Goſpel according to *Pſal.*2. making him that fled the devil, their Prince, leaving his Temples, where he was wont to give anſwers. Calvin underſtands the Aſſyrians, ſo as withall he takes other enemies to the remnant of Iſrael to be meant alſo, becauſe the Prophet was here in this Chapter ſpeaking of the ſufferings of Iſrael, who had therefore need now to be comforted, that they might not deſpair. But I prefer the firſt, and as for Iſrael and Syria he had done ſpeaking of them, and here enters upon a new Prophecy.

Hieron.
Lyra.
Gloſ.ordin.
Saſbont.
Junius.
Yet Cornelius a Lapide is for Syrians and Iſraelites before ſpoken of, joining againſt Judah, being thus as many waters.
Note.
Hieron.

CHAP. XVIII.

Verſ.1.

VVOe to the Land ſhadowing with wings, which is beyond the rivers of Æthiopia.* Vulgar Latine, Væ terræ, Cymbalo alarum. Which Jerom rendereth ſo, becauſe though צל ſignifieth a ſhadow, yet being doubled it rather ſignifieth a Cymbal, as it is here צלצל. Iunius, To the Land ſhadowing the heavens, affirming that all the ſtars in Æthiopia had high mountains overſhadowing them, and compaſſing them about, which he gathers from Strabo lib.ult. ſaying, That all the Havens upon the red ſea were ſuch. Which is by the rivers of Æthiopia, Secundum flumina, Heb. Magnaber Lenachri, Beyond by the rivers, or at them. For Æthiopia was waſhed with two rivers, according to *Strabo, lib.*17. and Pliny, which ran into Nilus of Ægypt. It was that part of Ethiopia and Egypt, which lay between the main Countrey of Ethiopia and Egypt, which is here meant, called Meroe. And this the Prophet cometh now to threaten, becauſe Tyrhacha King of Ethiopia coming out againſt Sennacherib King of Aſſyria, when he was invading Judah in Hezekiah his time, brought him upon himſelf, which thing, and his denouncing warre againſt him by his Legats ſent *Verſ.*2. by ſea, is here propheſied of: to this effect Junius. But Jerom takes this to be a deſcription of Egypt, and that Land to be here threatned, becauſe, as Syria before threatned had by helping Iſrael made them to truſt in them, and not in God; ſo Egypt being made a ſtay by Iudah, incurred Gods wrath likewiſe. And this is followed generally by other Expoſitors, Haimo, Thomas Aquinas, Lyra, Cyril, Procopius, Saſbont &c. becauſe it is not ſaid, The Land of Ethiopia, but beyond the rivers of Ethiopia, implying it to be another Countrey, and Egypt abounded ſo with ſhipping covered with ſails as with wings, that it may moſt aptly be applied thereunto; or it might be ſo called for covering the Jews under the ſhadow of her wings, becauſe they truſted to Pharaoh King of Egypt, and rebelled againſt the Aſſyrians, and would flee thither for ſhelter after that their Land was ſubdued by Nebuchadnezzar. Theſe indeed are great probabilities, but becauſe the burthen of Egypt followeth not till *Chap.*19. this cannot ſtand; and becauſe Egypt is not beyond Ethiopia, but nearer to Ieruſalem, but this beyond: And laſtly in coming to ſpeak againſt Egypt, he ſaith the ſame againſt it that he doth here; ſo that if this be againſt Egypt alſo, there muſt needs be a vain repetition; ſo Cornel.a Lapide hath it, but untruly, as will appear to him that

Junius.

Hieron.

Calvin. Vatablus. Cald. Paraphra.

ſhall compare the Chapters together; therefore laſtly rather Ethiopia is here meant, and Egypt not touched till *Chap.*19. becauſe Chap. 20.4. concluding both theſe Prophecies, he makes expreſſe mention of Ethiopia, as well as of Egypt; and how they ſhould be alike judged by the Aſſyrians domineering over them. So that if Ethiopia be not here threatned as well as Egypt, Chap. 19. more ſhould be in the concluſion then in the premiſes. I reſolve therefore with Iunius, whom the Jeſuite alſo followeth, that Ethiopia is here meant; and to make this yet plainer, we may thus render the wordss, Woe to the Land ſhadowing with wings, which is beyond the rivers, even Ethiopia; for the Hebrews having no caſes, it may as well be rendred by the Dative as Genitive, and ſo agree with Terra, To the Land, by appoſition. And this deſcription is made, becauſe by ſeven ſtreams flowing out of Ethiopia, Egypt was watered, and thoſe ſtreams or heads were on this ſide Ethiopia, and ſo it was a Land beyond the rivers. For, the word rendred ſhadowing, but by Jerom, With a Cymbal, though צלה of which it cometh, ſignifieth a tinkling as a ſhadow, ſo that the derivative may ſometime ſignifie a Cymbal, yet this being a compound of צל and צל put together, as Vatablus noteth rather, ſignifieth a thick ſhadow, and hereby Ethiopia is deſcribed, either for the abundance of Flies and Bees there darkning the air, and ſo it is ſhadowed with winged things being black like the inhabitants of that Countrey, or for their abundance of ſhipping with ſails, which are to ſhips, as wings to flee ſwiftly withall, or haply their offering to be a ſhelter to the Jews in Hezekiahs time is pointed at, when Tirhaka their King came out againſt Sennacherib to divert him from Jeruſalem, which he was haſtening to beſiege; for it is not improbable but that he ſent word hereof by ſome Embaſſadours ſpoken of *verſ.*2. to Hezekiah, though he placed not his confidence in this, but in God. Now that it may yet appear to be more probable, that Ethiopia is here threatned, we may take notice from 2 Chron. 12.3. where the Ethiopians are ſaid to have come againſt the Jews with Necho King of Egypt; and 2 Chron. 14.9. Zarah King of Ethiopia came out againſt Aſa with ten hundred thouſand, that they were great enemies to Gods people; and therefore the Propoſitum of the Prophet being to threaten judgements againſt all the ſeveral Nations, which were their enemies from *Chap.*13. to *Chap.*23. no reaſon that the Ethiopians ſhould be left out. Calvin alſo conceives it to be ſome part of Ethiopia near the ſea. Vatablus paraphraſeth the words thus, O maritin countrey, which aboundeſt with ſhips, being covered with ſails of many ſhips, as with a thick ſhadow. The Caldee Paraphraſt, Woe to the Land to which they come with ſhips from a far countrey, and extend their ſails as an Eagle fleeing with her wings. Muſculus mentioneth ſome other interpretations, as of Euſebius Cæſar. expounding it of the Jews, who wrote letters into all parts to ſtir up perſecution againſt Chriſtians, becauſe *verſ.*2. it is ſaid, ſending in paper veſſels upon the waters; but this is farre fetcht, ſith by paper veſſels not letters, but ſhips made of a wood called Papyrus, are ſet forth: and of others expounding it by the Romans, who in the time of Titus and Veſpaſian deſtroyed Jeruſalem. But becauſe the Jews were then to be deſtroyed for their bloudy ſin in crucifying Chriſt, and other great abominations, and they pulled that deſtruction upon themſelvs and City; this is altogether improbable, although Iuſt.cont.Tryphon. follows the former, & ſome others this. Corn.a Lap. tels of ſome that refer this Prophecy to the Indies ſo far remote, as being of their converſion by the Spaniards, ita quiſq; ſuo ſenſu abundat.

Verſ.2. Junius.

Sending Embaſſadours by ſea upon ruſhen veſſels, Go ye ſwift meſſengers to a diſtracted Nation, &c. Iunius ſaith, That thoſe ſent by Tirhacha to the Aſſyrians to denounce warre againſt them, are here meant, and that the ruſhy veſſels may alſo be read Papyry veſſels, that is, Boats made of ruſhes, or of the light wood of a tree called Papyrus, of which paper to write upon was alſo anciently made. For ſuch did both Ethiopians and Egyptians uſe, and not veſſels of more ſolid matter, which would have been in more danger of breaking by reaſon of many hard and ragged boſoms of rocky matter, as they ſailed down

Plin. *l.*6. *c.*22.

down the river Nilus; and he cals the Aſſyrians a diſtracted and peeled Nation, becauſe the forces come out againſt Judea had not their King amongſt them at the firſt, and ſo were as an Army diſtracted, which being ſet ſuddenly upon could not make any ſuch great reſiſtance, as needed to be feared by them, To a people terrible in that place and further; For ſo were the Aſſyrians both to Judea and other Nations for their great prevailings, Which delineates and conculcates all things; That is, arrogates power over all, and treads them under foot, Whoſe Land the flouds ſpoil; according to Ammanus lib.23. the Aſſyrians Countrey was much annoyed with waters overflowing and doing great hurt. Cornel. a Lap. Cornelius à Lapide diſtinguiſheth ſending Legats in ruſhy veſſels from the next words, Go ye Angels or Meſſengers to a diſtracted Nation; as if the firſt only belonged to the Ethiopian, the next to the Aſſyrian; as if the Prophet had ſaid, The Ethiopian goes out but as a paper or ruſhy veſſel, weakly againſt the Aſſyrians, but Sennacherib their King vaunting over them, ſhould count his Princes as Angels for ſtrength in compariſon, and they ſhould indeed make the Ethiopick Nation poor and diſtracted, as lined out to deſtruction, the Aſſyrians coming upon them, as a floud irreſiſtibly. Hieron. Jerom by the Nation diſtracted underſtands that of Judah, becauſe the Aſſyrians ſhould ſpoil it, yet it was formerly terrible for help miraculouſly received many times from God, making their enemies to tremble; and the Jews alſo in Davids time trod upon divers Nations, but now that Kingdom was to be deſtroyed by a floud of enemies. Calvin. Calvin is ſomewhat doubtfull how to underſtand it, becauſe no Hiſtory gives any light into it; but whereas Jerom expounds the Jews a terrible Nation, becauſe they were in times paſt formidable to their enemies, he contrariwiſe, becauſe they ſhould be overwhelmed with ſuch miſeries, that the beholders ſhould be aſtoniſht at it, and it ſhould be terrible to them to ſee it, as was threatned Deut.28.28. and though they expected help from God, yet as unworthy for their ſins, they were under foot trodden by other Nations. Thus we ſee much diverſity of expoſitions, amongſt which to put in my poor judgement, I do not think with a Lapide, that here are two ſpoken of, one ſending and the other vaunting, neither with Iunius, that the Ethiopian ſpake theſe words in detracting from the Aſſyrians then ſo mighty, but holding as before, that the Ethiopian was he that ſent Embaſſadours to Judea with all ſpeed to certifie them of his coming for their help, I conceive that the next, Go ye ſwift meſſengers, are the Prophets ironically taunting the Ethiopians for their vain confidence, that they ſhould prevail, and ſo help Judea in her ſtraits, and declaring what the condition of the Jews ſhould ſhortly be, in ſtead of being ſuccoured by them, even a diſtracted and peeled Nation, great ſpoils being taken from them by their enemies, although formerly God ſtanding for them, they had been terrible to them; From that time and beyond, that is, Davids time, and the Judges and Joſhua before that, when the Amorites trembled at their approach, yet a Nation full of expectation, for which the word is doubled קי קי Expecting, expecting help from God; but notwithſtanding trodden under foot, and finally ſwept away with a floud, which was fulfilled in Nebuchadnezzar with his prevailing Army.

Verſ.3. O all ye inhabitants of the World, &c. . Here the Prophet to ſhew the greatneſs of the judgment before threatned, ſaith, That it ſhall be ſeen as by an Enſign lifted up upon a Mountain, and heard as by a Trumpet extending in the ſound thereof to all the world.

Verſ.4. Moreover the Lord ſaid thus unto me, I will reſt me in my tabernacle, &c. Hieron. That is, ſaith Jerom, Whilſt theſe things are in doing I will ſit in Heaven, and behold it, my willing of it to be ſo being ſufficient without my labour to cauſe it to be ſo. As the noon-day light is clear, and the dewy cloud in harveſt; That is, as nothing is more clear then that light, and nothing more refreſhing to the ſcorched harveſt-man then a dewy Cloud; ſo my word being fulfilled ſhall be gratefull to all that truſt in me. Junius. Junius, I will look upon my place as the ſerene heat upon herb or graſſe, and a thick dew in the heat of harveſt; That is, I will look upon it becoming ſuch by means of the Aſſyrian, that is, in an ill caſe, as graſſe ſmitten with burning heat, and rain coming in harveſt. The Geneva tranſlation, As heat drying the rain, and a dewie cloud in the heat of harveſt. Vatablus, As fair weather through the ſun,&c. N.T. Like a clear heat upon herbs, and like a cloud or dew in the heat of harveſt. Hebrew word for word, As heat or the ſun lifted up above the morning, as a dewie cloud in the heat of harveſt. And the meaning moſt probably is, that the Lords looking from his place ſhould be moſt comfortable to the faithfull, as the ſun ſweetly ſhining to warm the air and inlighten the world, and refreſh all vegetable things, and a dewie cloud, not rainy to do hurt, but a little to cool in extremity of the harveſts heat, and to make corn the more floury. Calvin. Calvin, that ſome underſtand this as ſpoken by the Prophet in his own perſon, but leaving this, as contrary to the words of the text, he ſaith the meaning is, the Lord will be for a time as one that ſits and beholds and doth nothing, but at length it ſhall appear that he orders all things for the beſt good of his, and ſo that when he ſeems to do leaſt for them, he is yet working out by his providence good unto them. For reſting upon a ſeat and beholding implies a ceſſation from action; but having gone thus far in the former part of the verſe ſo, as I cannot but applaud, he proceeds as indifferent betwixt that before going, and the Expoſition of Junius, as if the wicked Jews were here threatned in ſpeaking words of comfort, it being meant that they ſhould be by favours fatted up as an Ox againſt the day of ſlaughter, prepared as the corn by the heat of the ſun ſometimes, and ſometimes by dews falling upon it, is ripened to be cut down, ſo they to ſudden exciſion: Which cannot agree to this compariſon, ſith the harveſt ripe doth alwaies ſet forth the godly not the wicked, and the Vintage cauſing juice or bloud to runne, the deſtruction of the wicked.

Verſ.5. Becauſe wheleſt the harveſt ſhall be preſent the bud ſhall be perfect, and out of flower fruit waxing ripe, then he ſhall cut off, &c. N.Tr. For afore the harveſt, when the bud is perfect, and the ſowr grape ripening in the flower. Hebrew word for word, In the face of harveſt, as the bud is perfecting, and ſowr fruit waxing ripe ſhall be flouriſhing. Here the Prophet, having in the words immediatly before going interpoſed ſomewhat for the comfort of the faithfull more obſcurely, ſheweth more plainly the deſtruction of the Ethiopians their enemies, as he had done before, and doth *chap.*19, and 20. of other heathens round about, and then their returning home again out of Captivity, as an offering ſent by *Cyrus, v.*7. as ſhall more appear, when we come to it. He ſhews the ſpeedy coming of deſtruction upon the Ethiopians by a compariſon from cutting off the branches of a Vine, before the grapes be ripe, yea but now beginning to appear; for as he that doth thus makes great haſte to the marring of the Vine, ſo the Lord threatens to do to the Ethiopians. Hieronym. And thus almoſt Jerom expounds it, but that he perſiſts in applying it to the Egyptians, which hath been before confuted: And that under the Metaphor taken from a Vine, whoſe branches he ſaith, ſhall be thus ere long cut, he meaneth people, he changeth it *v.*6. ſaying, Verſ.6. They ſhall be left alike to the fowls of the mountains, and to the beaſts of the earth. That is, being in great multitudes ſlain to be devoured by them, when they ſhall lye without buriall. And his ſhewing that the wicked enemies of his Church ſhould firſt come Calvin. almoſt to perfection, and then be cut off, ſaith Calvin, tends yet more to illuſtrate the power of God, in that ſuffering them firſt to grow to this, and not taking them off when they began to bud, which had been more eaſie, he now all at once deſtroyes them. But he applies it as a continuation of that ſaid, *v.*4. Junius. as ſerving further to illuſtrate and confirm that. Junius differing from all others, underſtands it as a cutting off the ſuperfluous branches of a Vine, that it might flouriſh the better and fructifie more; but how then are theſe branches thus cut off left to the fowls and beaſts? He ſaith the Aſſyrians deſtroyed, 2 *King.*19. are meant by thoſe that are ſo left, but they are plainly the cut off branches. Lyra follows Ierom.

Verſ.7. At that time ſhall be brought to the Lord a gift, a people diſtracted and peeled,&c.

Iunius, and after him the N.Tr. Of a people. Where the word of is redundant, as not being in the Hebrew; for the people of Iſrael, who had been carried Captive into Babylon, are the gift here meant by the firſt Perſian King Cyrus ſent home through Gods ſingular providence, as he had by his Prophet foretold: And whereas in the words following, Of a people terrible, denoting the ſame, forſomuch as this is a repetition of that which was ſaid, v.2. It is ſo ſpoken, becauſe many of them being waſted and dead, and ſome willingly ſtaying behinde in Babylon ſtill, they that returned were but ſome of this people. So alſo Calvin underſtands it, noting for the comfort of the faithfull, that howſoever the Church of God be diſtracted, he is both able and will gather them together again in his good time. And that we are Gods ſacrifices, when we mortifie our vile and ſinfull luſts, Rom.12.1. Col.3.5. Ierom rendring it of a people, expounds it of the Jews, when they ſhould truſt no more in Egypt, but in the Lord only, and therefore bring their preſents to him, to his Temple in Zion. But becauſe nothing touching Egypt is here handled, I paſſe this over. Iunius expounds it of the ſpoils of the Aſſyrians, whereof a gift was offered to God at Ezra his return out of Babylon: But the deſcription of a diſtracted people and troden under foot agreeth not to them, as was before ſhewed upon v.2. Lyra more fully then any other, at that time; that is, the time after judgements thus executed againſt Ethiopians and other enemies of the Jews, the Kingdom coming into the Perſians hands, Cyrus ſhall ſend the Jews home, and together with them great gifts, yea and the Jews remaining in Babylon ſhall ſend their gifts alſo, as is recorded Ezra 1. that they did. The Prophecie in every part being thus fulfilled, in the peoples being ſent home, as a gift to the Lord, and the gold and ſilver to his Temple in mount Zion. But he ſaith further, that all this Chapter ſeems to be a Prophecie of Iſrael carried Captive by Salmanaſar into Media, and after that by Alexander, as Ioſephus hath it, incloſed by the Caſpian mountains in a more remote place, from whence they could never get out; but towards the end of the world, a way being miraculouſly opened, they ſhall come forth again and return to their own land; becauſe Zephan.3.10. they are deſcribed by their being beyond the rivers of Ethiopia, as here v.7. And he ſaith, that they are called a land with the Cymbal of wings, according to the Vulgar Latine, becauſe we hear only a ſound of their being there, and becauſe they cannot ſend out by land to their own Country, they ſend by ſubterranean places in veſſels made of ruſhes. Then all Nations are called upon to behold the wonder of their bringing home again, when the Enſign Chriſt is lifted up, and the Preachers of the Goſpel ſound unto them as with a trompet. Then Chriſt reſts, after the work of our redemption wrought in heaven, being yet by his Spirit ſent down as heat and dew to the faithfull. Yet their return muſt not be ſo underſtood, as if it were univerſal, for when they ſhall flouriſh thus moſt, ſome branches not beleeving ſhall be cut off and remain as food for fowls and beaſts. But the other ſhall be by Gods providence brought home as a gift. All which, I confeſſe, were worth the conſidering, but that I know not how they being ſo incloſed, ſhould ſend meſſengers by water under the earth; neither doth any Hiſtory make mention of any that ever appeared, ſince their pretended incloſure here. Therefore we muſt leave it as uncertain, till God ſhall in time reveal the truth herein.

Calvin. Note.

Hieron.

Junius.

Lyra.

*Joſ.*li.11.

CHAP. XIX.

Verſ.1. Hieron.

THe burthen of Egypt, behold the Lord rides upon a ſwift cloud and will come into Egypt. Jerom, who will have Egypt meant in the former Chapter, ſaith, that the Prophet having there obſcurely threatned Egypt, now he doth it plainly, as is ſometimes the manner of the Prophets. But to diſprove this, enough hath been ſaid before, he cometh not till now to Egypt. And he ſaith, ſome underſtand this of our Lord Chriſt coming into Egypt with his mother and Joſeph, when they fled thither with him for fear of Herod, ſhe being compared Gloſ.ordin.

Lyra.
Calvin.
Junius.
Jer.43.12.
Aug. de civit. l.8.c.14.
Chryſ Hom. 8. in Matth.

to a light or ſwift cloud that bare him. The ordinary Gloſſe underſtands this of the Lords coming againſt Egypt in the Aſſyrian Army firſt,that being to him as a light or ſwift cloud ſo ſuddenly and violently coming againſt the Egyptians, that their idols could not help them. Then of Chriſt taking fleſh of the Virgin Mary, being without all heavineſs of ſin, and therefore called light and a cloud, becauſe as clouds ingender above, ſo this fleſh was ingendred by the coming of the holy Ghoſt from above upon the Virgin, according to Lyra; and as was ſaid before, was carried into Egypt; at what time, as the Scholaſt. Hiſtory hath it, the Idols of Egypt fell. And the heart of Egypt ſhall fail.] That is, at the coming of the Aſſyrians, as the Gloſſe; but as Lyra, at the coming of the Romans, in whom the Lord came moſt terribly, when Auguſtus the Emperour warred againſt Antony rejecting his ſiſter Auguſta (for the love of Cleopatra) which was his wife, and overcame him, and he,that he might not fall into his hands, ſlew himſelf. It is childiſh,ſaith Calvin,by the Lord coming into Egypt in a light cloud, to underſtand Chriſt, and by the Idols being moved, their miraculous falling, when he being an Infant was brought into Egypt; becauſe he began not to work any miracles, till he came into Cana of Galilee, as is expreſly ſaid, *Joh.*2. This beginning of miracles did Jeſus in Cana. But this reaſon is inſufficient, for then indeed did he begin to work miracles, hereby ſhewing himſelf to be the Meſſiah; but it cannot hence be proved, that God the Father did by no miraculous ſign manifeſt him before. For the Angels coming to Zechary, and to the Virgin Mary, was a miracle; and John the Baptiſts ſpringing in his mothers belly, at Maries ſaluting Elizabeth, and the heavens bearing of a new Star to ſhew the place where he was born, and the heavens opening at his Baptiſme, were all miracles: Yet I do not think that to be the proper meaning of this place, but the Allegoricall, and ſo Cyrill, Procopius, Theodor. Auguſt. Euſeb. Bernard, &c. take it. The literal meaning being, that God by the Aſſyrians ſhould execute his judgements againſt Egypt for their groſſe Idolatries, and that their doing of it, was his coming againſt them; and becauſe they ſhould come irreſiſtibly againſt them, all their fortifications profiting them nothing to withſtand them, he uſeth this Metaphor of coming in a cloud on high,againſt which no forts would profit them, according to Calvin: or he ſaith thus, becauſe clouds were ſeldom ſeen in Egypt, and were counted ominous when they were, according to Junius; who alſo denotes the time when this was fulfilled, viz. when Sethon, a prieſt of Vulcan, who reigned in Egypt, was dead, ex Herodoti Euterpe. So that they are wide, who expound it of the Romans. The Egyptians Idols, which were ſome of ſilver and gold, and ſome of wood and ſtone, were diverſly moved by the Aſſyrians, and afterwards by the Babylonians, when thoſe of wood were burnt, of ſtone broken, and thoſe of more pretious mettal carried away. And he ſpeaks of their Idols, becauſe they of all Nations were moſt given to Idolatry, as when they imbraced the Goſpel, they were moſt devoted to duties of Piety, as both Jerom commends them, and Auguſt. ex Treſmegiſto,more rightly applying that ſaying of his,Egypt is the Image of heaven, yea the Temple of the whole World. And Chryſoſt. Heaven doth not ſo ſhine with divers companies of ſtarres, as Egypt is illuſtrated with innumerable habitacles of Monks and Virgins, and that Egypt was by Chriſt turned into Paradiſe.

Verſ.2.
Hieronym.
Junius.

And I will make the Egyptians to fight againſt the Egyptians,&c. This, ſaith Jerom, was fulfilled when ſome of them at the coming of the Aſſyrians would have yeelded, but others would not, and ſo fell to civil warres amongſt themſelves. Kingdom againſt Kingdom.] The Septuagint νόμος ἐπὶ νόμον, that is, one prefectureſhip againſt another, whereof Ortelius numbreth ſixty ſix. And this ſaith Jerom, was myſtically fulfilled at Chriſts coming, becauſe he came not to ſend peace, but a ſword, and to ſet variance betwixt thoſe of the ſame houſe. This of the civil warres of the Egyptians, ſaith Junius, was fulfilled, when Sethon being dead, twelve Tyrants divided the Kingdom amongſt them, expelling Pſammeticus from amongſt them, who again obtained all and expelled them, and then reigned moſt tyrannically, ſo Herodotus and Diodorus Siculus. And this is threatned as a great judgement, becauſe nothing more weakens a Kingdom then civil warres: And in ſaying, I will make the Egyptians fight againſt the Egyptians, he intimates, that this alwaies in all Kingdoms comes of the Lord for ſin. Note. And the more fully to ſet forth theſe diſſentions, he proceeds by four degrees; 1. Brother againſt brother. 2. Friend againſt friend. 3. City againſt City. 4. Kingdom againſt Kingdom. What is meant by Kingdom here, and how many ſuch were in Egypt, ſee before: of Cities or Towns are numbred by ſome twenty thouſand.

And the ſpirit of Egypt ſhall fail in the midſt of it, &c. Verſ.3. That is, ſaith Jerom, of thoſe that refuſe to ſubmit to the Aſſyrians or Caldeans, for though they ask counſel of their idols or wizzards, it ſhall be vain. For they ſhall come into the hands of cruel maſters, as *v.*4. that is, of the Aſſyrians, who are every where ſet forth as moſt cruel. Calvin and Muſculus obſerve that the Egyptians were in thoſe daies counted the learnedeſt and wiſeſt people in the world, Calvin. Muſculus. and that they came from Countries moſt remote thither to hear their wiſdom, and to learn the Arts, wherein they were moſt expert: It might therefore ſeem ridiculous, that they ſhould want wiſdom to order the affairs of their own Kingdom, being ſo potent; ſo as that it ſhould evidently appear, that they had done fooliſhly to help one another into a ſervile eſtate. And in ſpeaking of thoſe with whom they ſhould conſult, he mentioneth, 1. Idols. 2. Magitians. 3. Wizzards and Diviners; denoting, as Calvin hath it, certain degrees: Calvin. By the Idols being meant their Oracles, which were moſt highly eſteemed, by the Magi ſuch as were of an inferiour rank, and by the other, ſuch as were conſulted with in lighter matters. Being uncertain and unſatisfied by one means, he ſheweth that they ſhould ſeek to another, but all in vain. And in ſaying thus he condemneth all other waies and means of ſeeking help and counſel in ſtreights, beſides of the Lord in his holy Word.

Then the waters ſhall fail from the ſea, and the river ſhall be dried up. Verſ.5. Jerom Hieron. underſtands this 1. Literally, of the failing of all benefits for the uſe of mans life, which come from the waters, as Fiſhes and things imported thereby. 2. Metaphorically, of the King and Princes of Egypt, in whom ſhould be no help; and the reeds and canes following, v.6. of all the abundance of Egypt. For in Ezekiel, Pharaoh is compared to a Dragon in the river, which he calleth his; and his Nobles to Fiſhes adhering to his fins, all being threatned to be pluckt out. 3. Tropologically, as before, chap. 11.15. The Lord ſhall deſtroy the boſom of the Egyptian ſea, &c. That is, under the Goſpel the evil arts of Egypt ſhall all ceaſe. 4. Hiſtorically, by the ſea dried, the lake of Meroe, becauſe the Hebrews call every collection of waters, a ſea; and the waters of this lake failing, Nilus which was fed hereby, muſt needs fail alſo. Calvin underſtands the defences of Egypt failing, Calvin. becauſe that Country was unacceſſible but by water, and at every landing place ſuch ſtrong Bulworks were built, that they could eaſily repell the enemy. But now their well defenced places ſhould nothing avail to ſave them. Saſbont follows the Metaphoricall Expoſition, underſtanding the decay of the ſtrength of Egypt, Adam Saſbont. both in King and Nobles and common people, ſet forth by reeds and bulruſhes, for out of theſe the Egyptians had many things uſefull both for ſhip and the ſuſtentation of their lives. I conceive, becauſe the not overflowing of Nilus ſo much as was deſired, to make the Country of Egypt fruitfull, cauſed barrenneſs there; that in all this the Prophet ſets forth a great famin, wherewith they ſhould be puniſhed, the earth not yeelding her increaſe as formerly, by means of the failing of theſe waters; ſo that men of all trades, both in land and waters ſhould be confounded for the failing that ſhould be of all neceſſaries, whereby they were wont to ſet themſelves awork to get a living. And ſo here is another judgement threatened of famine and drought, beſides that of the ſword of the enemy bringing them under, ſpoken of in the former verſes: and this is continued, *v.*7, 8, 9, 10. alſo.

Verſ.11. Certainly the Princes of Zoan are fools, the counſel of the Wiſe Counſellours of Pharaoh is infatuated, &c. Here becauſe Pharaohs counſel was thought to be moſt wiſe to order all things in that Kingdom ſo, as to prevent the ruine thereof; the Prophet, who foreſaw that it ſhould come to ruine, againſt the high opinion conceived of them, inſults over them as fools; becauſe when the time ſhould come for them to do good in ſaving their Country by their wiſdom, it ſhould be like Abitophels turned into fooliſhneſs; neither they nor their King, whom they flattered, calling him the ſon of the wiſe and of ancient Kings, being able to do any good for the preſervation of Egypt, when the judgements Note. before threatned ſhould come. Which ſhews that there is no counſel or wiſdom againſt the Lord. And the vanity of Kings and other great perſons, who glory in the antiquity of their houſes, and the wiſdom of their progenitors, being deſtitute thereof themſelves; ſith it is commonly ſeen, that inheritours of their fathers eſtates, do not inherit their virtues, but a wiſe father hath a fooliſh ſon, as Solomon, Rehoboam. The Vulgar Latine, for Principes Zoar, reade Principes Thaneos, following the Septuagint. It was the chief City of Egypt, wherein Moſes did all his wonders, *Pſal.*78.12. *Exod.*7.8,9. And this City is ſpoken of, becauſe there Pharaoh was with his Privy Counſel, ſelected Lyra. out of the wiſeſt of all his Princes. Lyra ſaith, the Kings name that now reigned when this was done, was Anthonius, but called Pharaoh, according to the common appellation of the Kings of Egypt; and yet he refers this Prophecie to the time of Auguſtus Cæſar going againſt Anthony and Cleopatra there, when the name of the King was no more Pharaoh, but Ptolomee; and this Prophecie Hieron. pointed at the deſtruction of Egypt by Nebuchadnezzar. Yet Jerom referres it to the Romans times, when Idolatry began to fall at Chriſts coming into Egypt; for then the wiſdom of the Egyptians, who were counted the wiſeſt, appeared to be fooliſhneſs in matters of greateſt concernment, viz. of Religion, which now appeared in them to be vain, wicked and deviliſh, for their exceſſive ſuperſtition. And thus he alſo ſpake before, upon *v.*5. but by a tropol. Expoſition. How ſay ye to Pharaoh, I am the ſon of ancient Kings? That is, ſpeak ſo in way of flattery to him, that he ſpeaks thus of himſelf? For the Egyptians derived the pedigree of their Kings from gods, Oros, Iſis, Oſirides and Typhon, and boaſted of their antiquity ſo, as if they were before all other peoples, yea before the Moon; for they reckoned their time to be many thouſands of years before the Creation, and hereby doth Lucian deride the Arcadians, calling them προσεληναιοι, Lucian de Aſtrologia.

Verſ.12. Where be thy Wiſe men to tell thee, &c. Here he goeth on with his irony, deriding the Wizzards of Egypt, as not being able to foretell the deſtruction of their Land, coming from the true God, that they might forſake their falſe Muſcul. gods, in whom there was no help in time of need. And Muſculus ſaith, that hereby he condemneth the art Magick, that none may ſeek to ſuch as have skill therein, or to Aſtrologians, who haply by the ſtarres may foretell ſome things of the weather, and of plenty or ſcarcity, &c. yet not certainly, but only conjecturally, yet ſo audacious are they, that they alſo take upon them to foretell of the lives and actions of men, as if all things were known unto them, but moſt vainly, being here condemned together with Wizzards, ſo Muſculus.

Verſ.13. Lyra. They have deceived Egypt, the corner of his people. Lyra referring this to the time of the Romans, as alſo that of the Counſellours before ſpoken of, giving counſel to fight againſt the Romans taking part with Auguſtus againſt Anthony, from whence came their ruine, ſaith, that by the corner, wherein two wals meet, being the chief ſtrength of an houſe, Anthony and Cleopatra were meant, who being deceived by the Wizzards, all Egypt was deceived. But how wide he is in this his reference, I have ſhewed before. Others therefore better underſtand the City Noph here ſpoken of, ſince called Alexandria, a principall Muſcul. City in Egypt, and Zoan making a corner of a wall, as it were, becauſe in them the chief ſtrength of Egypt ſtood; but being deceived by the Counſellours

and

Calvin. and Wizzards,therein making them ſecure by predictions of good, all the land was deceived, and lay open to this judgement, as Muſculus. But Calvin will have the Counſellours and Wizzards hereby meant, as upon whom the people relied, as a building upon the corner; and therefore he reades it as a Nominative, as if it had been ſaid, the corner of his tribes or peoples hath deceived Egypt; Others as an Accuſative, as if by the corner they were ſet forth, that had been deceived, in whom Egypts ſtrength chiefly lay. I preferre that of Calvin, as beſt agreeing to the deceivers hitherto cried out upon, viz. not Cities, but Counſellours and Wizzards, which abounded eſpecially in theſe two; the later otherwiſe called by Jerom Memphis, a City moſt infamous for ſuperſtitions and idolatries. Some, becauſe the chief firmament of a Kingdom is in the King,will have Pharaoh hereby underſtood,whom his flattering Counſellours thus extolling, put him on againſt the Aſſyrians to defend his neighbor Nations, but to his own ruine.

Verſ.14. The Lord hath mingled in the midſt thereof the ſpirit of perverſneſſe, &c. That is, ſaith Jerom, that they do all things erroneouſly,nothing rightly, for ſo alſo he ſaith it may be rendred the ſpirit of errour. Even as they that having ſomething mingled in their wine to make them giddy-headed, ſo ſhould it be by a juſt judgement from God upon the Egyptians, that their wiſeſt men ſhould be idle in their brains, and farre from being able to give good counſel.

Verſ.15. Hieron. Calvin. Neither ſhall there be any work for Egypt, which head or tail branch or ruſh may do. Hierom hath it, Caput & caudam, incurvantem & refranantem: And he expounds it,In Egypt there ſhould be no work, that ſhould have either head or tail, but agreeing to the dotage of crooked age,or the wantonneſs of unruly youth, which needs for his wildeneſs to be bridled. But Calvin, that both the Honourable ſet forth by the head and branch, and the Plebeians by the tail and ruſh, ſhould all be at their wits end, and none able to do any thing to profit Egypt, and this is further confirmed by the ſame words uſed in this ſenſe, *Chap.*9.13,14.

Verſ.16. Calvin. Joſh.2. In that day Egypt ſhall be like unto women, &c. Some think that their effeminatneſs is here touched upon, for which they were noted, the women going abroad to do buſineſs, and the men keeping at home to do domeſticall works. But becauſe this was uſual, and it muſt be a new thing here threatned, Calvin doth well reject this, averring that the Egyptians yet were not ſo effeminate to have hearts like women commonly, for they did many military exploits, and ſometime ſubdued, and ſometime holp the Jews, but now this courage ſhould fail in them, and be turned into the greateſt timerouſneſs; as God is wont to ſtrike them whom he means to deſtroy, whereof the Canaanites may be an example. For the ſhaking of the hand of the Lord.] Whereby it is given to underſtand, that when the Aſſyrians came againſt them, they were brought by God, and therefore this timerouſneſs ſurprized them, and having an Almighty power againſt them, which they could by no means reſiſt.

Verſ.17. Jerom. Note. And the land of Judah ſhall be for a terrour to the Egyptians, &c. That is,ſaith Jerom, when they ſhall recount their former helping of the Jews againſt the Aſſyrians, at whoſe hands they ſhall therefore now ſuffer ſuch grievous things. And Calvin more fully, becauſe they by helping Judah had drawn the Jews away from truſting in God, and to rely upon them; againſt which they had often warnings, and when they did ſo, were much complained of by the Prophets. So that not only the people of God, who are drawn away from truſting and ſerving him only, but they who are the inſtruments ſhall be ſure one day to have it turned into a terrour unto them; thus Calvin. But I marvell how Expoſitours generally were moved thus to render and expound it, becauſe the word is חגא ſignifying not terrour, but a feſtival, or exultation, and therefore Jerom hath it, For a terrour or feſtivity, and ſaith that Haggai hath it ſo, and ſo it muſt be read, if we will take it in the better part, although he for his part ſubſcribes rather to the other reading. I rather think that the Prophet begins here, paſſing from threatnings againſt Egypt to Prophecie of comfort which ſhould be unto them, and that in the beſt kinde; for that being delivered from ſuperſtition and idolatry, they ſhould come to the knowledge of the true God, and the feaſts of his people ſhould be their feaſts: for ſo it is expreſly propheſied of, *Zech.*14.16,18. and he ſaith, Every one that ſhould make mention thereof to it ſhall fear, that is, be moved with reverence towards the God of Iſrael, who hath wrought this marvellous work; therefore it is added, For the counſel that he hath counſelled over it; not againſt it, for it is עליו. And for this makes *v.*18. And in that day there ſhall be five Cities in Egypt ſpeaking the language of Canaan, for this is evidently of their converſion to the true faith. Thoſe Expoſitions then, which will have Judah a terrour to Egypt, becauſe they ſhould be aſtoniſht at the judgements coming upon them, mentioned by Calvin with diſlike; or Egypt aſtoniſht on the contrary ſide at the preſervation of Judah by the miraculous confounding of Sennacherib, when he came againſt it, which Adam Saſbont hath, are not worth the naming.

Verſ.18. And in that day five Cities in Egypt ſhall ſpeak the language of Canaan, and one ſhall be called the City of the ſun. So Jerom, expounding it of Heliopolis, or at the leaſt ſaying that Onias thinking it to be meant, built a Temple there unto the Lord; and he ſaith that Symmachus well rendred it Civitas ſolis. Our Tranſlatours render it commonly, The City of deſtruction, for ſo הרס Heres the word here uſed ſignifieth: But others reading ח for ה, render it the ſun, for ſo חרס ſignifieth: Thus alſo the Septuagint, Caldee, Vatablus, &c. Becauſe there were five chief Cities in Egypt, mentioned *Ezek.*30.17. whereof Aven or Heliopolis was one, it ſeemeth that the Prophet alludeth hereunto, by five meaning all Egypt; and by one particularly named, ſhewing that this above the reſt ſhould be remarkable for piety, viz. Heliopolis, as it had been moſt notorious for idolatry, inſomuch as that it was a City of Idolatrous Prieſts, ſo Herodotus; but being converted, it might for Chriſtian piety therein flouriſhing be called the City of the Son of righteouſneſſe ariſing with healing in his wings, according to *Malac.*4.2. Calvin. Calvin is the firſt that I have ſeen, who renders it, The City of deſtruction; and his Expoſition hereupon is, that by the five Cities, ſpeaking with the lip of Canaan, for ſo the Hebrew word ſignifieth, are ſet forth five parts which ſhall be converted; but one over and above theſe, that is, the ſixth part not being converted ſhall go into deſtruction; thus all who harden their hearts and will not turn at the preaching of the Goſpel being threatned with deſtruction. But becauſe this Prophecie is altogether of good and comfort, for many verſes together, to the end of the Chapter, I cannot ſubſcribe to him or his Expoſition, but muſt needs rather prefer the former, againſt which nothing makes, but a letter varying, ye, this variance is ſo little that it can hardly be diſcerned, the one followed by the Ancients, being thus written ח; the other by our new Writers thus ה; and in this caſe I think we ought to be ſwayed rather by the ſenſe agreeing beſt to the place, then by a letter not acknowledged neither by the Learned of more Lyra. ancient times. Lyra ſaith, that ſome underſtand Alexandria by the City of the ſun, where S^t^ Mark preached the Goſpel, and Simon the Apoſtle; after which the converted built Altars there to the honour of Chriſt; but he is rather for Heliopolis, as was ſaid before. And he ſaith that Onias an high-Prieſt of the Joſeph. Antiq. 13. 6. Jews ſaid that he would go to Egypt and fulfill this Prophecie, and being entertained honourably by the King, and a City given him for this purpoſe, he built an Altar and offered ſacrifices to God there: and thus the Hebrews and ſome of ours conceive it to be meant, and that it was fulfilled. But R. Solomon ſaith, that Sannecherib coming from battell againſt the Ethiopians, brought ſome Egyptian Nobles, whom he had taken, bound before Jeruſalem, thinking to ſhew them to the Jews for their greater terrour to make them yeeld; but being prevented by the ſlaughter made amongſt his men, he fled and left them, and they being by Hezekiah releaſed, returned to Egypt and there built Altars and offered thereon to the true God. And that they might the more acceptably do ſo, they procured Prieſts to go with them, who offered and celebrated the praiſes of God in the language of Canaan, that is, their own tongue. But for the former of theſe, if Onias fondly grounding upon this Prophecie did ſo, that was no fulfilling of it, becauſe that which he did, was not pleaſing to God, as being done againſt his injunction, that Sacrifices ſhould not be offered to him any where, but in the place by him choſen. For the next, it doth ſo ſtrongly ſavour of the Rabinnical forge, that we may well reject it, as a thing feigned. The fulfilling of this Prophecie then was, when the Egyptians received the Goſpel, for then they ſpake and ſtudied the Hebrew tongue, as wherein the true Religion was ſet forth; and it is probable, as Lyra hath it, that many of them by the extraordinary gift of tongues then given to the converted after baptizing by the impoſition of hands, ſpake this tongue ſingularly, as moſt neceſſary for Chriſtian people. And further to ſhew, That the converſion of the Egyptians is here propheſied of, he addeth, They ſhould ſwear by the Lord of hoſts; that is, ſerve and worſhip him, one part of his worſhip, ſwearing by his name, being put for all.

Deut.10.26.
Jer.4.1.

Verſ.19.

In that day ſhall there be an altar to the Lord in the midſt of the Land of Egypt, &c. In this and the three verſes following, the Prophet goes on further to declare the converſion of the Egyptians. The Altar, ſaith Jerom, is one Church, one Faith, one Baptiſm acknowledged in Egypt. And a pillar in the border thereof to the Lord; That is, The Goſpels and writings of the Apoſtles. *Verſ.*20. And it ſhall be for a ſign, &c. That is, of Chriſts paſſion, and when upon the receiving of the Goſpel perſecution ſhall ariſe, they ſhall cry to the Lord for help, and he ſhall ſend them a Saviour, that is Jeſus. Verſ.21. And the Lord ſhall be known to Egypt; That is, both to the perſecuted to their comfort, and to the perſecutors to their terrour, And they ſhall do ſacrifice, &c. Here the Prophet plainly foretels an end put to the Levitical Prieſthood under the Goſpel, according to that of the Apoſtle, The Prieſthood being removed, the Law muſt needs be done away alſo; That is, the Law of ſacrificing by Prieſts of the Tribe of Levi, and in no place but at Jeruſalem: For here it is fore-told that Sacrifice ſhould be done in Egypt, and that by men of that Land. Let the Jews anſwer this if they can.

Hieronym.

Lyra.

The Pillar rendred in Vulgar Latine Titulus, may, ſaith Lyra, be referred to Chriſt, for his Title was written, Jeſus Nazaræus Rex Judæorum. It may alſo be taken for the faith of Chriſt preached in all the borders of Egypt; but whereas he ſaith, Croſſes are therefore ſet up upon Altars amongſt Chriſtians, as if this in part might be the title here meant, we reject as ſuperſtitious, for the holineſs put therein, and the worſhip done to it, as ſometime by the Jews to the brazen ſerpent, which was therefore broken down. For although croſſes might have continued, if they had not been thus abuſed, yet now they are to be broken down, as monuments of the Antichriſtian ſect, degenerating from true Chriſtian Piety, and not of the Chriſtian. Wherefore I doubt not, but as to the praiſe of Hezekiah it was recorded, That he brake down the brazen Serpent in this caſe, and called it Nehuſhtan; ſo it ſhall be in future ages to the praiſe of our preſent religious Parliament. Moreover Lyra by their crying to the Lord becauſe of the oppreſſour, underſtands their crying againſt the devil; and by their Sacrifice the Euchariſt, and thankſgivings made in the Church to the praiſe of God, ſaying, that it is called Sacrifices, becauſe that alone is now in ſtead of the many Sacrifices formerly offered. Wherein he ſaith well in part, viz. in ſaying, that by Sacrifices are meant thoſe of thankſgiving; but in making the Euchariſt, that is, the Lords Supper a Sacrifice, he goeth without ground of Scripture, becauſe it is no where called a Sacrifice, but a remembrance of the Sacrifice of Chriſts death, neither is the place where it ſtandeth called an Altar, but the Table of the Lord: and againſt reaſon, which tels us, that there is no Sacrifice but which is offered to God, whereas this is offered to men and women receiving. And laſtly, whereas he hath it [Sacrifices] it is Sacrifice in the original in the ſingular number, intimating Chriſt the only Sacrifice making all our praiſes and prayers acceptable to Allmighty God.

Of the Croſſe.

The Euchariſt no Sacrifice.

Calvin.
Muſculus.

Calvin and Muſculus, by the Altar, underſtand Chriſt believed in in Egypt, of which the Apoſtle ſaith, We have an altar, Heb.13.10. and by the Pillar or Title, that whereby it is known to what Kingdom ſuch or ſuch parts belong; ſo that whereby it is known that the Egyptians now belonged unto Chriſt, viz. the publick profeſſion of the Goſpel, is hereby meant.

And this ſhall be for a ſign and Witneſſe to the Lord, &c. For they ſhall cry unto him, &c. That is, hereby it ſhall appear, That the Lord approves them for true converts, that they call no more in the time of their oppreſſions upon any other but the Lord only, and upon him they call ſo earneſtly, that they are ſaid to cry unto him, as the Spirit makes the faithfull to do, Rom. 8.15. Gal. 4. Touching which oppreſſions, Calvin ſaith, That Egypt was ſubject to divers, for four hundred years, till the Goſpel was there imbraced, and then they were delivered, according to that which is here propheſied, He will ſend them a Saviour, &c. That is, the ſame Jeſus, to whom they ſhall turn ſhall ſave Oecolamp. and deliver them out of all their troubles at length. One ſaith, It ſhall be a ſign to the Egyptians that the Lord is propitious to them, when crying unto him they ſhall be delivered: but then the former words muſt be read, It ſhall be a Witneſſe of the Lord to them. Which the word ליהוה will not well Note. bear. The Note of Calvin hereupon is very good: Then only doth it appear, and is teſtified to God, ſo that he approves it that we are turned unto him, when in our diſtreſſes we cry unto him, and are delivered; if not, we turn not yet ſo that he approves of it. And alſo, that deliverance from oppreſſours is not given, but to the converted, that Chriſtians, who are now ſo full of trouble may be moved to turn, and not perſiſt in their ſins ſtill.

Verſ.21. Calvin. Note. And the Egyptians ſhall know the Lord, and the Lord ſhall be known unto them and they ſhall not ſacrifice, &c. It is here to be noted, ſaith Calvin, that they muſt be endued with the knowledge of God, who will worſhip God acceptably, becauſe he ſaith, firſt, They ſhall know God, and then they ſhall offer, &c. And we may adde, who ſo doth not, wants this knowledge, although otherwiſe he may ſeem to have it. And to know God, and to be known of God, he ſaith, are all one, but twice ſpoken, becauſe it ſhould be a thing ſo remarkable, that the ſuperſtitious Egyptians ſhould turn from all their falſe Gods, and therefore ſeriouſly to be conſidered. But I think there is more implied in it, viz. which the Apoſtle ſpeaks of Rom. 10.20. I was found of them that ſought me not, and made manifeſt to them that asked not after me. God prevented the Egyptians by making the light of his knowledge to ſhine amongſt them, and then they came to know the Lord: Of their doing Sacrifice he ſaith, That hereby is meant nothing elſe, but their imbracing of the faith, and confeſſing it together with other acts of the divine Worſhip; and hereby he ſets forth the ſervice of the New Teſtament, becauſe in the time when he ſpake thus, God was ſerved by Sacrifices of beaſts, and Oblations of flower and oil, and wine, &c. And he meaneth not, that ſhould be any carnal ſacrificing now, but as our ſpiritual worſhipping of God is hereby allegorically ſet forth. Whereas it is added, They ſhall vow to the Lord and perform it; he ſaith, it is not to be underſtood at large, that men ſhould vow what they pleaſed, and Of Vowes. perform it, but what ſhould be agreeable to the Word of God. For any thing unlawfull, as David vowed to deſtroy all that Nabal had (but being better adviſed he did it not, and bleſſed God therefore) is not to be vowed and performed, neither any thing out of a mans power, but with a condition, wherefore monaſtical vows are not here meant, ſith the gift of continency is not given but to ſome, neither can any vow to uſe it ſaving ſuch as to whom it is given. And to vow to go in Pilgrimage to ſuch a place alſo, or to give this or that to a ſuperſtitious uſe, is likewiſe unlawfull. It ſeems rather by his ſaying They ſhall vow a vow; he means only that vow which all Chriſtians are bound to make and keep, viz. to ſerve God onely, and to cleave to his Laws, as his people did anciently often vow in the times of godly Kings.

Verſ.22. Therefore the Lord ſhall ſmite Egypt, ſmiting and healing, &c. Here is the concluſion of all that was ſaid *verſ.*20,21. becauſe they ſhall cry in their diſtreſſe and be ſaved, and then come to know the Lord and do Sacrifice, &c. it ſhall plainly appear, that Gods ſmiting of them was profitable for them, as tending to their converſion, and healing them by a greater healing, then that of the outward ſtate, viz. of the inward man, being before deadly ſick of ſin, but by the effectual coming of the light amongſt them now perfectly cured. Wherefore it is good to be afflicted, ſith it is not to ruine, but after a while ceaſing again, and a farre greater good redounding to their ſouls that are thus exerciſed.

Verſ.23.
Hieronym.

In that day there ſhall be an high way out of Egypt to Aſſyria, &c. Some, ſaith Jerom, underſtand this of Antichriſt, that he ſhall come out of Egypt into Aſſyria, and reign all over Ethiopia, but abſurdly, for it is meant, that whereas now there was one King of Egypt, and another of Aſſyria, both Nations ſhould be under one, even the Roman, and be in hoſtility one againſt another no longer, but there ſhould be trafficking amongſt them, as being all ſubjects now of one Empire, and freely come and go from one countrey to another, as if they were all one Nation. And the Egyptians ſhall ſerve Aſhur, or it may be rendered more according to ſenſe, Shall ſerve with Aſhur; forſomuch as now Aſhur is not dominatour any more over Ægypt, but the Roman over them both. Calvin underſtands this as fulfilled in the receiving of the Goſpel, which ſhall ſpread not to one Countrey of Ægypt, but all over the world, ſet forth by Aſſyria, becauſe that Monarchy reached far and wide, from Euphrates to Tygris. Before they came to know God, there were alwayes infeſt wars betwixt theſe Kingdoms, and Iſrael imploring the help ſometime of the one, and ſometime of the other was an occaſion of ſetting them together by the ears; therefore he addeth *Verſ.*24. Iſrael ſhall be a third, of thoſe amongſt whom this mutual concord ſhall be. And indeed they that receive the Chriſtian Religion cordially, cannot but live in love and unity together, of how divers Countreys ſoever they be, becauſe they have all one Spirit. And he ſaith, A way ſhall be, becauſe formerly when they were in hoſtility, men durſt not travel that way, but now they might ſafely. But Calvin and Vatablus have the laſt clauſe, The Ægyptians ſhall ſerve Aſhur; Giving this ſenſe, as friends in love do ſervice one to another. Now although את denotes oft times the accuſative caſe, and hath none other ſignification, yet becauſe it alſo ſignifieth [with] it is moſt commonly ſo taken, and ſo agreeth beſt here. But for the way from Egypt to Aſſyria, &c. Lyra refers this alſo to the Goſpel cauſing concord amongſt divers Nations, and to it I do ſubſcribe.

Calvin.

Note.

Hebr. סלה à calcando.

Verſ.24.
Hieron.

In that day Iſrael ſhall be a third, &c. That is, Be no more under Antiochus, or Demetrius, Syrian Kings, as in times paſt, or Ptolomies of Egypt, being thus diſtracted and torn, but now in quiet alſo together with other Kingdoms imbracing the truth, ſo that each Nation in this reſpect ſhall be counted bleſſed, and Iſrael eſpecially, as the Lords inheritance, and from whence this bleſſedneſs came to others, for the Law went out of Zion. But Calvin notes that the word [third] is a feminine, and therefore muſt have reference to bleſſing following in the ſame gender; and ſo *verſ.*25. doth declare, where each Nation is ſaid to be bleſſed, Ægypt, Aſſyria, Iſrael; and not only Egypt and Aſſyria, but all other Nations imbracing the faith, theſe being ſingularly named, as alwayes before moſt inſenſe to the Iſraelites, and therefore if the Lord would be ſo reconciled to them, much more we may gather to any other. And they are ſaid to be in the midſt of the earth, becauſe their ſituation is by Geographers counted to be in the midſt. And he giveth each one a ſeveral title, Egypt my people, Aſſyria the work of my hands, ſo called, becauſe the regenerate are by him made ſuch, and ſo fitted to be veſſels of honour, for which cauſe it is ſaid *Epheſ.*2.10. We are Gods workmanſhip. So are the Heavens and Earth alſo called, but the new creature more ſingularly, as having yet more excellency for the Spirit of God in them. And that which is here ſaid, is no common thing, but rare and admirable, that other Nations ſhould come now to be bleſſed, bleſſed, as well as Iſrael formerly choſen to be Gods peculiar people,all other Nations being excluded: but in Chriſt the partition-wall is broken down, and both Jews and Gentiles are made one. And Iſrael mine inheritance] ſo called, becauſe Gods peculiar people ſo long before others. And this implieth a coming in of the Jews, although they be yet broken off, and have been ſo many hundred of years agone. For if branches of the wilde Olive be graffed in, much more in Gods good time the natural branches, and then ſhall be ſuch a flouriſhing ſtate of the Church, as at the Reſurrection from the dead.

Calvin.

Rom.11.25.

CHAP. XX.

Verſ.1. IN the year that Tartan came to Aſhdod, when Sargon the King of Aſſyria ſent him, &c. The Prophet having threatned Ethiopia and Egypt, Chap. 18. and 19. and concluded with comfort to Egypt, now reſumes his former argument againſt them both, ſhewing by a ſign what miſeries ſhould befall them. And firſt he deſcribes the time. Tartan was a Captain of Sennacheribs, of whom ſee 2 *Kin.*18. whereby Expoſitours gather, that Sargon here ſpoken of, as ſending him, was that Sennacherib, for he had, as Jerom ſaith, ſeveral names, yet ſome think him to have been Salmanaſar. Aſhdod was one of the five great Cities of Paleſtine, and as Joſephus ſaith, was taken by the Aſſyrian in the twelfth year of the reign of Hezekiah, and that he infeſted the Egyptians and Ethiopians at the ſame time. The occaſion of his ſending againſt Aſhdod, ſaith Junius, was becauſe he had taken the Cities of Judah, and of them Aſhdod was one, both of right pertaining to Judah, *Ioſh.*15.47. and now under Hezekiah, as being by him taken 2 *Kin.*18.8. And now the Lord by his Prophet ſheweth the Egyptians miſeries to come, that Hezekiah and the Jews might not truſt to Ægypt againſt the invaſion of the Aſſyrians, but to the Lord onely.

*Joſeph. Antiq. l.*10.*c.*1.

Junius.

Verſ.2. At that time the Lord ſpake to Iſaiah, ſaying, loſe the ſackcloth off thy loins, &c. It is ſaid, That he ſpake by the hand of Iſaiah by an Hebrew phraſe, becauſe the Lord uſed him, as a maſter his ſteward, by his miniſtery doing this or that. Whereas ſome gather from hence, that Iſaiah went commonly in ſackcloth upon his bare body, it is to be thought rather, that he did ſo only in times of calamity by his outward habit to expreſſe his inward ſorrow. Yet *Zech.*13.4. a garment of hair is ſpoken of,as common to Prophets. And whereas the Lord biddeth him go naked, ſome think, that this was not all the three years ſpoken of *verſ.*3. for how ſhould he then have endured the cold of winter? but the ſame God that commanded this, could preſerve him, as well naked as cloathed. Yet haply he did it but at times when he ſhewed himſelf abroad to the people for a ſign of that which was to come to the Egyptians and Ethiopians, *Verſ.*4. If it ſhall be thought undecent for him thus to do, it is to be conſidered, that it was Gods command, and hereby the moſt ſhamefull things are made decent, there being nothing truly ſhamefull, but diſobedience to his commands, otherwiſe to uncover the privities to be circumciſed had been a ſhamefull thing, but by reaſon of Gods Ordinance, honourable. If it be demanded, Whether it be a point of piety now to go in ſackcloth, and ſometime bare-footed for greater humiliation, as many votaries and penitentiaries amongſt the Papiſts do? I anſwer, it was a rite peculiar to the rigid times of the Law, when Gods people were required to do outward and bodily acts of extraordinary humiliation as well as inward, by going in ſackcloth and aſhes: but in the time of the Goſpel, all the humiliation required being ſpiritual by inward ſighing, and groaning, and ſorrowing for ſin and miſeries, either of our ſelves, or neighbours, or countrey, faſting and praying only being over-added, and kneeling at prayer, and being uncovered both in prayer and propheſying, whatſoever is done more is but ſuperſtition, taxed by the name of volun-

Rom.6.21.
Sackcloth wearing.

voluntary humility, and plainly declared to be ſuch as profiteth not, and ſo is going to Jeruſalem, or to any other ſuppoſed holy place for devotions ſake,and the auſterity of mens whipping themſelves, or ſhutting up themſelves in cels, as Anchorites all their daies. Col.2.18. 1 Tim.4.8.

Verſ.3,4. By Iſaiah his going naked the Lord gives a ſign, to ſhew, how the Aſſyrians ſhould make the Egyptians and Ethiopians both young and old to go ſhamefully naked into Captivity, as they had ſhamefully ſinned. They ſhould exerciſe ſuch cruelty againſt them, as is not often heard of in theſe daies, but then much uſed by tyrannical conquerours, viz. To ſtrip their Captives of all their apparel from top to toe, and ſo to lead them away, not leaving them ſo much as a rag to cover their ſhamefull parts. Some by their young men and old, underſtand children, and all the weaker ſort, not able to bear arms, and by the reſt paſt over in ſilence, that they were all ſlain. But I think, that all ages are meant by theſe two, as is uſual, and ſo that men of might as well as the weak multitude were thus carried away to be ſlaves, ſo many as eſcaped the ſword. Young men and old are named, becauſe the one counſelled, and the other fought for their Countrey, according to Pindar, Conſilia ſenum, haſta juvenum ſunt. Of Gods threatning to make bare their ſhamefull parts, ſee alſo *Ier.*47. *Nah.*3.

Verſ.5. And they ſhall fear by reaſon of Ethiopia their hope, &c.

Verſ.6. And the inhabiter of this Iſland ſhall ſay in that day, &c. Here the Prophet concludes with the Jews, as all agree. When they ſhould ſee Gods judgments thus executed upon Egypt and Ethiopia, which were formerly an help unto them againſt Aſhur, they ſhould thus fear and ſay, a reaſon being herein implied, why the Egyptians and Ethiopians were thus puniſht, viz. Becauſe by their aiding of the Jews they gave them occaſion, withdrawing their confidence from God to place it in them. But why is Judea ſet forth by the name of an Iſland. 1. Some think becauſe it was hemmed in with two ſeas, the dead ſea and the mediterranean. 2. Some becauſe it was little like an Iſland in compariſon of Babylon, ſet forth by the name of a ſea, *Chap.*21.1. Hieron. 3. Becauſe it was beaten upon by the waves of the Aſſyrian and Egyptian wars, for ſo the Aſſyrian is ſaid to overflow the Land of Judea up to the neck of Jeruſalem, *Chap.*8.8. which lifted up the head, and appeared ſtill, when all other parts being drowned by this overflowing, ſeemed like a ſea. 4. Calvin, Calvin. becauſe Judea was the Lords peculiar inheritance ſeparated from the reſt of the world, as an Iſland from the main Land containing all other Countreyes and Nations. Of the three laſt I know not whether to preferre, and therefore conclude upon them all, forſomuch as there may be divers reaſons of the ſame phraſe.

CHAP. XXI.

Verſ.1. The burthen of the deſert ſea, as the Whirlwindes come from the South, it comes from the deſert, &c. Hebr. In the South, in paſſing from the deſert, comes. Of what Nation this burthen is *verſ.*2.9. do plainly ſhew, viz. of Babylon,which ſhould be ſubdued by the Medes and Perſians. See more Ier. 51. 36,37, &c. where Babylon is alſo ſet forth by the name of a ſea. For the great multitudes of people therein, according to Jerom, and as others, becauſe Euphrates like a ſea compaſſed it, and as the ſea it was never quiet, but waves aroſe after waves and tempeſts of warre there. Laſtly, for the inexpleble deſire to devour the wealth of other Nations. And it is called a deſert, becauſe God would make it like a deſert, and utterly void of inhabitants, as *Chap.*13.14. was alſo threatned. He compares this deſtruction to that which comes from the deſert in the South, becauſe the deſert of Africa, betwixt Babylon and Media, was full of ſands and ſtrong winds blowing, the places to which were filled with mountains of ſands, whole Armies being ſometime covered and deſtroyed hereby. Wherefore to make this more plain, it is ſaid, That Babylon ſhall become heaps, Ier. 51.37. The deſtruction of Babylon then coming from the deſert is from the Perſians and Medes marching thorow a great deſert to come unto it, and becauſe deſerts are horrible, it is further ſet forth by this name of an horrible Land.

Calvin.

Calvin ſaith, that Babylon is ſet forth by the name of a deſert, becauſe there was a great deſert betwixt it and Judea, for it was fruitfull and populous, and that the Prophets threaten Babylon ſo often, more then any other people, becauſe they were the Jews greateſt and moſt pernicious enemies. And he expoundeth the deſert horrible Land from which their deſtruction ſhould come, of Iudea, according to the name, which he ſaith, was given it before Chap. 18. as if it were meant, that Babylon thus came to utter ruine in way of revenge from the God of Iſrael for their cruelties formerly exerciſed againſt his people, and their Land bringing it to that ſtate, that it was as a deſert full of horrour to all ſpectatours.

Lyra.

Junius ſaith that there was a marſh made by Queen Nitacris towards the North 320 furlongs broad, which was drained by Cyrus. Ex Herodoto in Clio.

Lyra will have Babylon cal'd a deſert ſea, becauſe when it was taken, Euphrates that ran thorow it before as a ſea, being by the Medes and Perſians drained another way, was dried, and ſo like a deſert without water; and for calling it a ſea, it was common amongſt the Hebrews thus to call any great gathering together of waters, as at the firſt the Lord called the gathering together of waters, Sea, which in Hebrew is no more but מים waters. And for the winde coming from the South, rendred by the Vulgar Latine Affricon, whereas other Expoſitours ſay, That the place is hereby denoted, from whence they ſhould come, by whom Babylon ſhould ſuffer ſuch things, and Africa was between the South and the Weſt, he ſaith, That the ſituation of the Medes Countrey was oppoſite to it, and therefore the place is not ſpoken of, but becauſe ſtrong tempeſts uſed to come from thoſe parts, he compares the tempeſt coming by the Medes to theſe winds, only to ſhew their impetuouſneſs, againſt which nothing could ſtand; but for the deſert he ſaith the ſame which was ſaid before, viz. becauſe a great deſert lay betwixt Media and Babylon, and Media is called an horrible Land, becauſe it was ſo to the Babylonians, as from whence that their horrible deſtruction came. Whereas Chap. 13.14. contain Prophecies againſt Babylon, ſo that it may ſeem ſtrange, that he ſhould here again propheſie againſt it, he ſaith, that the Prophets had not all things revealed to them at once, but at ſundry times, as it pleaſed God; and therefore God giving another Viſion here to Iſaiah, he ſets it down alſo otherwaies, as a thing which for the ſtupendiouſneſs of it could never be enough ſpoken of.

Adam Sasbont.

Adam Saſbont thinks, That Babylon was ſet forth by the name of a Sea, chiefly becauſe it was ſo to Iudea, being but as an Iſland to it-ward for the greatneſs and the troubleſomneſs thereof, becauſe it was alwaies raging as the Sea againſt it and other Nations, and a deſert-ſea, becauſe now deſtitute of Gods help, through which it formerly prevailed, but now ſhould be prevailed againſt and overthrown. For the winde, though Jerom renders it by Africa, yet Hebr. it is ſet forth by a word ſignifying the South, and the meaning is nothing elſe, but as tempeſts by the South-wind are raiſed, which are moſt fierce; ſo the Medes and Perſians ſhall come againſt Babylon. Object. Writers commonly agree, that rain comes from the South being called Auſter ab hauriendis aquis; and by the Greeks Notus, for the ſame reaſon, but from the North come tempeſts. Sol. Pliny ſaith, that the greateſt tempeſts at ſea come from the South, and therefore Babylon being here ſet forth by the name of a ſea, the Prophet compares the tempeſt coming againſt it, to a whirlwinde in the South.

Junius.

Iunius underſtands the horrible Land of Media, but the wilderneſs from whence the tempeſt comes, of that part of Babylon in which Nitacris made ſo great a lake. But this not ſtanding with ſenſe may be rejected, and Media concluded to be the Land meant by both. For although the violence done to Gods people were the cauſe of Babylons ruine, yet the Prophet here plainly ſpeaks of the inſtruments, by whom; not the cauſe, as verſ. 2. doth declare, in ſaying, Aſcend, O Elam, beſiege (O Mede) of the former part of the verſe enough hath been ſaid already, amongſt all which I preferr Saſbonts reaſon, why it is called a ſea; but why deſert, Lyra's.

Verſ. 2. The treacherous deals treacherouſly, and the waſter waſteth. Thus Junius, whom our N.Tr. follows: But Vatablus, Tranſgreſſor tranſgreſſori, Vaſtator vaſtatori, reckoning up many Expoſitions more. Jerom, qui infidelis eſt infideliter agit, & populator vaſtat. But Hebr. it is הבגד בגד, &c. the ſame words only doubled, The treacherous, or tranſgreſſour, the tranſgreſſour, the ſpoiler, the ſpoiler: Before which if we put the words beforegoing, A burthenſome viſion was ſhewed unto me, the ſenſe will be plainly this, The Babylonian full of treachery and ſpoiling without end, having their ſins now remembred, that they may be puniſht accordingly with unſpeakable miſery; this was the heavy viſion that was ſhewed me, and if ye ask how, the next words do declare, Aſcend O Elam, &c. Adam Sasbont. And thus I finde one acknowledging that the words may be rendred, but to make up the ſenſe he addeth eſt or ſit, giving this for the ſenſe; the treacherous Median will be treacherous to the Babylonian, or this, let him be treacherous. Lyra. Lyra applieth the firſt words here to Belſhazzar, who dealt like a wicked infidel by bringing forth the holy veſſels of the Lords houſe to carouſe in, and the next to Cyrus coming preſently upon him and ſpoiling his Babylon. Calvin. Calvin, A tranſgreſſour or treacherous ſhall finde a treacherous one, a ſpoiler, a ſpoiler: Giving this for the ſenſe, The Babylonian that againſt all right hath ſpoiled other Nations, ſhall have another come againſt him to ſpoil him, applying to this chap. 33.1. where the ſame is more plainly ſhewed, and thus he ſaith, God proceeded to ſtirre up one Nation againſt another, the Grecians againſt the Perſians, the Romans againſt the Grecians, and the Goths againſt the Romans, and the Vandals and Mahumetans alſo, and the day of judgement againſt the Mahumetans. And the Prophet died a hundred years before this Prophecie was fulfilled. Junius ſaith it was a hundred ſeventy years before the accompliſhment, whereby it appears that Iſaiah ſpake by the Spirit of God, to whom things to come long after are as preſent. And it was Gods will that Prophecies ſhould be written of things, the fulfilling whereof the generations then living ſaw not, that their poſterity yet looking hereupon, might be comforted againſt the miſeries under which they were preſſed, viz. they that ſhould live in the time of the Babyloniſh Captivity, being hereby aſſured that Babylon ſhould fall, and then they ſhould be delivered. But to conclude upon the ſenſe, ſince there needs no word to be ſupplied to make ſenſe here, for it is ſenſible enough to take the words as they are, A burthenſome viſion was ſhewed me, a wicked dealer, a wicked, a ſpoiler, a ſpoiler. Eſpecially if we underſtand by the wicked dealer, the Babylonian, with Lyra; and by the ſpoiler, the Perſian or Median: for then the ſenſe is, theſe two were ſhewed me in viſion; the Babylonian wronging and dealing vilely with others, and then the Perſian accordingly ſpoiling him. Wherefore in the next words it is, aſcend (O Elam) that is, Perſian, a part of Perſia called Elam, being put for the whole. I have made all his ſighing to ceaſe. That is, ſaith Calvin, according to ſome, all the ſighing of the oppreſſed by him, becauſe he ſhould be utterly deſtroyed and ſo oppreſs no more: According to others, all his ſighing to ceaſe in the time of his calamity, becauſe the enemy ſhould not hereby be moved to ſhew any pity, becauſe the Lord would ſhew him none, as he had formerly ſhewed none to others. Hieron. Lyra. Jerom hath the firſt of theſe and this, ſo that he ſhall not dare to ſigh for fear of the Perſian; ſo Lyra alſo. Of all theſe, I preferre the firſt, which alſo Vatablus hath; for the ſighing of the oppreſſed cauſed by him, may well be called his, becauſe he made it; the ceaſing of his ſighing then is the ceaſing of his oppreſſions; unleſs we ſhall underſtand the Babylonians ſorrows and ſighings, when they ſaw themſelves in ſuch an evil caſe; the meaning being, that they ſhould do ſo indeed and grieve intollerably, but an end ſhould ſoon be put to their ſighing, by the Perſians ſword, bereaving them of breath and life and all.

Verſ. 3. Hieronym. Therefore my loins are filled with grief, &c. Jerom thinks that the Prophet ſpeaks this in his own perſon, becauſe being a man he could not but be affected with great grief in declaring the Babylonians miſeries coming ſo univerſally upon them, men, women and children, being many hundred thouſands, and that upon the ſudden, they living before in all abundance and pleaſure, although they were the Churches cruel enemies. Junius. Junius contrariwiſe ſaith, that he ſpeaks in the perſon of the Church which had been ſo ill dealt withall by the Babylonian. Calvin. Calvin in perſon of Babylon it ſelf grieving for their own miſeries. Lyra follows Jerom, Luther, Muſculus and Saſbont, and others agree with Calvin. The Prophet ſpeaks this per mimeſin, bringing in the Babylonian, and in particular Belſhazzer thus perplexed when the hand-writing appeared upon the wall, *Dan.*5. for then he was ſurprized with great horrour and trembling, as is there ſhewed; and if this be compared with that place, it will appear to agree moſt aptly to him. If it ſhall be thought that the Prophet himſelf might be moved, as well in ſpeaking of this as of the miſeries of *Moab, chap.*16.11. if he ſhall but look into *chap.14.4,&c.* where the Church of God is brought in, triumphing over Babylon ruined, or *Pſal.*137. he will be of another minde; ſith it cannot be thought to be the Prophets grief, which is the Churches Jubilee. And as for that of Junius, it is moſt improbable, when the crueleſt enemy of the Church ſhould be quite deſtroyed, that ſhe ſhould be filled with grief. No, it was the Babylonian and their King, in whoſe loins now there was no ſtrength, who had been ſo potent before.

Verſ.4. The night of my pleaſure hath he turned into fear unto me. Vulg.Lat. Babylon dilecta mea poſita eſt mihi in miraculum. The Septuagint as if it had been נֶפֶשׁ Nepheſh, My ſoul was in terrour. But the word is נשפ, ſignifying darknes, or the twilight; and it is as if he had ſaid, in the perſon of Belſhazzar, the night wherein I feaſted and was ſo merry, became a night of terrour. That which moved Jerom to render it Babylon, was becauſe he thought by darkneſs, that Babylon was ſet forth, as being called mons caliginoſus, chap.13.1. but this was a weak ground, and if it be ſo taken, how ſhall we think that the Prophet called Babylon his beloved, ſith he took all this as ſpoken by the Prophet in his own perſon? Cornel. a Lapide, to ſalve this, ſaith that my is redundant, and that it may be rendred without it, Babylon the beloved: That is, of the world, for the glory and magnificence thereof. But there is no need of this ſhift, if we render the words as they properly ſignifie.

Verſ.5. Spread the table, watch in the watch-tower, eat, drink, &c. Vulg.Lat. Contemplate in ſpecula, comedentes & bibentes. Or it may be rendred, The table being prepared, there being watching in the watch-tower, eating and drinking, ariſe ye Princes, anoint the ſhield. The meaning is, Belſhazzar making a feaſt, and eating and drinking with his Nobles, the watchman being in the mean ſeaſon ſet to watch, whether the enemy attempted any thing, he ſuddenly eſpying the Perſians to enter the City, crieth out, ariſe, prepare to reſiſt, the enemy is entred, Calvin. to this effect Calvin, with other Expoſitions: This making all ſo plain here, I will not trouble the Reader, for the words will well bear this reading. And whereas Corn. a Lapide makes this an argument that Belſhazzar was not meant in the former words, becauſe the fear ſpoken of *Dan.*5. came not upon him, till the table prepared, which is mentioned after that; this is of little force, becauſe he proceeds, 1. By ſpeaking in general of his perplexity and the Babylonians to come, and then ſhew more particularly the manner, as he here doth. Muſculus. They are bidden to anoint the ſhield, ſaith Muſculus, becauſe it was their manner ſo to do, when they went to battel to make the enemies weapons to ſlide off. Vulg.Lat. arripite clypeum, reſpecting rather the ſenſe then the ſignification of the word, which is, anoint. And Pagnine hath either anoint the ſhield for the end before ſpoken of, or anoint the King, as a ſhield, but this farre fetcht, though ſome by the King, that he bids them anoint, underſtand Cyrus, to whom he wils them to ſubmit, Balthaſar being now to be ſlain. But the plain meaning is, by laying oyle upon the ſhield and rubbing make it bright, which by neglect is now ruſty, as is commonly uſed to be done, when men prepare to go to battel; according to that of Virgil,

Pars leves clypeos & lucida ſpicula tergunt
Arvina pingui. And he is not likely, ſaith one, to ſhew himſelf a ſtout ſouldier in battel, that goeth out with arms duſty and ruſty.

Set a Watchman, let him declare What he ſeeth. Verſ.6.

Verſ.7. Hieron. Adam Saſbont.
And he ſaw a chariot With a couple of horſemen, a chariot of aſſes, and a chariot of camels, &c. Jerom and others after him give this for the ſenſe, As the Lord hath commanded me, I Iſaiah bid thee Belſhazzar to ſet a faithfull watchman up, that may not ſpeak for flattery, but tell the truth, becauſe he had ſaid before a watchman in the watch-tower, and this watchman indeed will I be unto thee; for ſo a Prophet is called, *Ezek.*3. So that when he ſaith, he ſaw, in the third perſon, he means himſelf, as *v.*8. is made plain: And if thou askeſt me what I ſee, I anſwer, a pair, the Perſian and the Mede in a chariot drawn by an Aſſe and a Camel, for the Aſſe being little and obſcure, ſets forth the Perſian, who before this was but of little power, but the Median alwaies ſtrong and mighty. The Prophet ſaw in the ſpirit this pair of horſemen, ſo long before coming with warre-chariots and men of Perſia and Media, whom they guided as the waggoner his chariot, and brought up to fight againſt Babylon. Ver.8. And Verſ.8.
the lion cried being ſet upon the Watch-tower of the Lord. That is, the Prophet as a lion for his terrible voice here following: Verſ.9. Babylon is faln, is faln.
Verſ.9. And here comes a mans chariot, a pair of horſemen. That is, Cyrus Verſ.9.
bringing an Army of the two peoples before ſaid, for he and not Darius did all, although he came with him in his forces. Then the watchman, the Prophet foreſeeing this, cried, [Babylon is fallen, and all his graven images] Of which he makes mention in ſpeciall, that the Jews might hereby be moved to repent of their idolatry, ſeeing there is ſo little help in idols.

Verſ.10.
My threſhing and the ſon of my floor, &c. That is, either Judea, where the Temple ſtood upon the threſhing floor of Araunah, ſo that he turns by an apoſtrophe to his people, perſwading them to beleeve this, as being nothing but what the Lord had ſhewed, as in the next words. Or Babylon, the meaning being, as thou haſt threſhed and cruelly beaten others, ſo ſhalt thou be threſhed, yet not by any power of mine, but of the Lord, who hath verily ſpoken thus by me. But this he rejecteth, Saſbont is indifferent betwixt both, and yields this, as a reaſon, why Jeruſalem ſhould be called his threſhing, becauſe the Lord was alwaies purging his Church as a man his floor; and he uſed Babylon, as a man his threſhing to beat the Nations. Muſculus is only for this laſt, giving a pro- Muſcul.
bable reaſon, becauſe as the oxen did tread out the corn upon the floor; ſo Babylon trod under foot other Nations, tearing them in pieces, as it is particularly ſaid of Juda, chap.8.9. and *Jer.*51.20. of others alſo, but ſpecially *v.*33. where Babylon is expreſly called a threſhing-floor. And the word here uſed ſignifieth threſhing, or threſher, the ſon of my floor, an Hebraiſm not unfrequent to ſet forth any thing upon the floor. And that this Prophecie might not by the Babylonians be contemned, becauſe it came from a mean private perſon and an enemy, in way of epilogue he aſſures them, that what he had ſhewed came from the Lord of hoſts, who was of power to do it, that they might be affected with it. And nothing elſe ought any of the Prophets to ſpeak. Whereas, *v.*8. he hath it, A lion cried,] the righter reading is, he cryed, a lion, my Lord, meaning that he ſaw a lion, the Perſian or Median fierce as a lion againſt Babylon. And he ſaith, I ſtand all the day and Whole nights] to give the more credit to that which he telleth, becauſe he was alwaies moſt vigilant to mark truly what was coming:
And hereby induſtry and ſtudy is to be commended to every Preacher, that he Note.
never be idle or negligent. Neither ought any Chriſtian to ſleep, but to be watchfull alwaies, as the Lord commandeth all, and the ſpouſe, *Cant.*5.2. ſleeping, yet watcheth in her heart. Petrus Chryſologus ſaith, Watchfulneſs is profitable for P. Chryſologus.
all, a Watchfull King prevents the treachery of the enemy; the ſouldier fruſtrates the attempts of the night; the Mariner paſſeth through doubtfull Waies, and the Shepherd preſerves his flock from Wolves. For the doubling of the word, Babylon is fallen, is fallen; it ſerves to denote the utter ruine thereof, even as Rome called Babylon, Cornel. a Lap. Babylon, Apoc.18. ſhall fall, as the Jeſuites themſelves confeſſe, only they ſeek to turn mens eyes from Rome, as now it ſtands, to that which it ſhall be in the end of the world, when it ſhall become idolatrous, as though it were not ſo now, when as the Pope is made a God, and the Virgin Mary a goddeſſe, the Queen of heaven, and the Saints departed by invocation, and aſcribing to them omniſcience, and even dumb idols by obſequiouſneſſe unto them. See the like alſo, *Ier.*51.8.

Verſ.11. The burthen of Dumah, one cries to me out of Seir, Watchman, What of the night? &c. Dumah was one of the ſons of Iſhmael, Gen.25.14. and of Seir it is ſpoken, *Gen.*17.6. as of the Horites country; but *Deut.*2.22. given to the Edomites, Hieronym. who came of Eſau. The Septuagint reade it Idumea: but Ierom, it is not ſo much Idumea, as a Country thereof, lying ſouth, which by ſome it placed at a City of the Philiſtines now called Eleutheropolis, within twenty miles. Seir had the name from Eſau, who was hairy, as this word ſignifieth. Dumah the Metropolis of the Country, remembring that Eſau came of Abraham, who was in ſuch great grace with God, and they the inhabitants thereof were his poſterity, being beſieged by the Aſſyrian, is here ſaid by way of Prophecie to have cried to the Lord, calling him keeper or watchman, becauſe it is ſaid, he that keepeth Iſrael ſhall neither ſlumber nor ſleep, as if they had ſaid, Oh thou keeper of Iſrael, who defendeſt thy people by a ſempiternal cuſtody, and watcheſt, when they ſleep in the night, that the enemies break not in upon them, why doſt not thou protect us, who are of the ſame ſeed? But the Lord this Keeper anſwereth, the morning cometh and the night. That is, the light of comfort to Iſrael, but to you, O Idumeans the darkneſs of miſery, or the night of miſery being paſt, the morning of comfort comes, if ye ſeek for my help and be indeed Abrahams poſterity, that is, not ſeeking to me in your miſery only, but turning to me conſtantly to ſerve Adam Saſbont. me with all your hearts, as true penitents; thus Ierom: but Saſbont ſetting forth all the Prophecie more fully ſaith. The Prophet makes himſelf a keeper here, as before a watchman, and brings in thoſe of Seir, who were to be deſtroyed alſo, as requiring of him, What of the night? that is, what time of the night is it? when will the morning come? hoping that then they ſhould have ſome eaſe of their miſeries, the meaning being, How long ſhall we be thus oppreſſed and ſuffer by our enemies? The keeper anſwers, that it would not be long till morning, but then they ſhould ſtill continue in their miſery, for with the morning the night ſhould come, or continue ſtill to them. But he preſently ſpeaks more comfort ſaying, If ye ſeek, ſeek, be turned and come, that is, yet if ye will ſeek as true penitents to the Lord, do it from your hearts unfeinedly and not in your Deut.4.29. miſery only, come to him, leaving your ſins, and then ye ſhall be delivered; Now if the cauſe of the Edomites ſufferings be demanded, other Prophets ſhew this, as *Ier.*49. *Ezek.*23. Obadiah 1. Amos 1. viz. their unkindneſſe and harſh dealing Lyra. with their brethren the children of Iſrael. Lyra ſaith, that this is againſt Duma or Edom, for they are one and the ſame, but only Dumah a part, is put for the whole; and hereby is ſhewed, that they being carried into Captivity, as the Jews were, had no liberty granted them to return, as the Jews had by Cyrus. And of this the Prophet ſheweth, that they ſhould complain to God, calling him Pſal.12.7. keeper; becauſe except the Lord keeps the houſe, the watchman watcheth in vain. As if they had ſaid, Why are not we delivered alſo, forſomuch as we are the poſterity of Abraham, with whom thou madeſt a Covenant. How much of the night of our Captivity is yet to come, before the morning of our deliverance ariſeth? He anſwers, the morning of comfort, and night of miſery come of the Lord to all men according to their doing; the Jews have turned to me and ſought me with all their hearts, if ye will ſeek me and turn alſo, do it, and then ye ſhall come out of your bondage, as they have done. R. Salom. underſtands by one crying, the Angel guardian of mount Seir ſtanding for his people, according to Vatablus. the like, *Dan.*10. Vatablus and ſome others take it as the crying of the Edomites to their watchman, when they feared the coming of their enemies: As if it had been ſaid, What eſpieſt thou to night, ſeeſt thou any enemies coming? Anſw.

The

Arias Montanus.
Calvin.
Muſculus.
Note.
Iſa.9.1.

The morning cometh and the night: That is, I ſee that which will little comfort you, viz. That though the morning be near, yet night will ſoon follow again, even the increaſe of your miſery, till ye be deſtroyed. Some others, Why ask ye, What of the night? What of the night? like children, as if your enquiring after this would profit you, look up your arms rather, come and go out againſt your enemies like men, if ye mean to do any good towards the defence of your Country. Arias Montanus, The morning is ſo near, that if ye will go out to ſeek and bring in any proviſion, do it with ſpeed and return, before the enemy who is not far off, be upon you, for then it will be night to you again, wherein ye cannot go out. Calvin and Muſculus and the reſt of our Expoſitors are for the Edomites crying, here propheſied of, that ſhould be in the time of their danger by the enemies coming againſt them, the meaning being nothing elſe, but that they ſhould be anxious and ſolicitous, as people in great ſtraits, firſt one and then another calling to the watchman, what he obſerved in the night, and he ſhould be able to ſpeak no comfort but terrour to them. For though it were day, it ſhould ſtill be night to them, their miſeries continuing and increaſing; ſo that they might ſeek, and having fled out of Dumah for fear, to be more out of danger elſewhere, return and come thither again, yet their caſe ſhould be no whit better. And this is the condition of the wicked, when God comes againſt them with his judgements, they ſhall be full of terrour every where, and in the evening wiſh it were morning, *Deu.*28. Again the Lord made known theſe judgments before they came, againſt divers Countries, that his people might know that they came not caſually, but from divine Juſtice, taking vengeance upon ſin, and that they might not be moved in their calamities to flee to any other Country of the Heathen, thinking to be more out of danger, but keep conſtantly in the Church, becauſe though ſhe be puniſht, yet light ſhall ſoon riſe to her again, out of darkneſs and the ſhadow of death. Thus I have related the divers Expoſitions of divers, amongſt which that ſeemeth to me to be moſt genuine, whereby the Lord repreſented by the Prophet, who was as his mouth, is made the keeper, to whom the cry comes out of Seir: It cannot be a watchman of the Edomites who dwelt there, becauſe it is not ſaid only one cried, but to whom one cried to me. And who elſe can this be, but the Lord, that ſpake by his Prophet? The Edomites crying then to the Lord in the midſt of their oppreſſions is here ſet forth. And what do they cry, but as deſirous of ſome eaſe, What from the night? for ſo the words properly ſignifie; Shall there not come a day of comfort to us again? The Lord anſwers little comfort; but by and by more ſorrow, as when another long night comes, willing them therefore, if they be truly diſpoſed to ſeek to him, to do it by turning, as the Ninevites being in danger did, and coming by true repentance of all their ſins unto him.

Verſ.13.
Hieronym.
Adam Saſbont.

The burthen upon Arabia, in the foreſt of Arabia ſhall ye lodge; O ye travelling companies of Dedanim. Hebr. The burthen in Arabia. In Arabia dwelt the Ammonites, Moabites, Idumeans and Iſhmaelites, being a very large tract of ground from India to Mauritania and the Atlantick ocean. But the Iſhmaelites only are here propheſied againſt; for as Saſbont noteth, he ſaith not as before, the burthen of Dumah, but the burthen in Arabia; that is, in that part of it, wherein the Iſhamaelites inhabited, who came of Iſhmael the ſon of Abraham by Hagar, being therefore otherwiſe called Hagarens, although they now call themſelves by the name of Saracens, as if they came of Sarah, for their greater credit. And that theſe only are meant appears, becauſe *v.*16. the Prophet coming to declare who they were in Arabia, that he propheſied againſt; he ſaith, All the glory of Kedar ſhall fail. Now by Kedar the Iſhmaelites are to be underſtood, as is plain, *Gen.*25.13. where Kedar is named as the ſecond ſon of Iſhmael, and their glory was in their tents, which were moſt ſumptuous; and in their abundance of cattel; as is ſhewed, *Jer.*49.28, &c. Wherefore the tents of Kedar are mentioned, *Cantic.*1.5. For the thing propheſied of, it is fleeing before the enemy, their tents being left for fear, and they being glad to lurk in the Foreſt, where they might not be ſeen. For, Ye travelling companies of Dedanim, Hebr. is ארחות דדנים, The wayes of Dedanim, wherefore others reade it, In the wayes of Dedanim. Whatſoever moved our new Tranſlatours to render it, as before. The Vulgar Latine alſo herein conſents with the Hebrew, although in the words before it varies, ſaying, Ye ſhall lodge in the Foreſt in the evening, becauſe the ſame word which ſignifieth Arabia, if the pricks be altered, ſignifieth the evening, viz. ערב with two ſegols.

Verſ.14. In meeting the thirſty bring waters, ye inhabitants of the land of Tema. New Tranſlation, They brought waters. Vulgar Latine for Teman hath the South] according to the ſignification of the word: But becauſe Tema was one of the twelve Princes which came of Iſhmael, Gen.25.15. it is more probable, that a place having the name from him is meant. The meaning is, That ſuch of the Iſhmaelites as fled would be ready to periſh for thirſt and hunger, if ſome of their brethren did not ſuccour them. Jerom applies this to the Iſraelites, as if they fleeing at the Babyloniſh Captivity were meant, and that in fleeing they ſhould come into the deſerts of Arabia to hide themſelves there, and the Iſhmaelites were here bidden to make haſte to ſuccour them; and this, ſaith Sasbont, is followed by many. But he is for the former, and ſo are all ours, as there is good reaſon, ſith it is not the burthen of Judea fleeing from Nebuchadnezzar, but of the Arabians fleeing from Sennacherib, according to Junius, who alſo ſaith, that Arabia Petraea is here meant, and that they are threatned for their hoſtility againſt the Jews, as they are ſometimes complained of by the name of Hagarens.

Junius.

Verſ.16.
Chap.16.14.
Lyra.

Yet a year according to the years of an hireling, and all the glory of Kedar ſhall fail. Having ſhewed the judgement to come upon the Arabians, that they might be the more terrified; he here ſheweth, that it ſhould not be delayed, but certainly come at the end of one year, that is, ſaith Lyra, one year after Jeruſalem deſtroyed, and the cauſe is intimated in ſaying, The glory of Kedar, and the remainder of the ſtrong archers; they gloried in their tents and abundance of cattel, and valour, and dexterity in ſhooting, wherefore the Lord would thus abaſe them.

CHAP. XXII.

Verſ.1. THe burthen of the valley of Viſion, &c. The Septuagint renders it, Of the valley of viſion, of Zion, expreſſing the place here threatned, which is here Hebr. only by a Periphraſis ſet forth. For Zion and Jeruſalem are certainly meant here, as all agree, becauſe it was the ſeat of the Prophets, to whom by viſions God revealed things to come, and they were called videntes, Seers, therefore reſpect alſo was had to the name Moria viſion. And although it were a mountainous place, yet it is ſet forth by the name of a valley, becauſe brought ſo low by Gods juſt judgements for their ſins, and this was by Nebuchadnezzar, as *Ier.*39. 2 *Kin.*25. ſo Jerom. Some as Sasbont hath it, refer it to the time of Sennacherib, as indeed Iunius doth becauſe Elam ſpoken of *verſ.*6. was a City in Aſſyria, and Shebna, who was in Hezekiahs dayes *verſ.*15. when Sennacheribs Army came againſt Ieruſalem: Some to the deſtruction by the Romans, but he ſtands for this, and Lyra alſo. And Muſculus ſaith, it is the deſtruction to come by the Caldees, that is here threatned, and I cannot ſee how it can be applied to the Aſſyrians, becauſe when they came againſt Ieruſalem, in ſtead of deſtroying it, they were deſtroyed. But Calvin will have the whole Land of Iudea meant by the valley of viſion, being called valley, becauſe however it were mountainous, yet in part it conſiſted of valleys, and it was generally a plain compaſſed about with mountains; and if it be ſo underſtood, haply that coming of Sennacherib againſt the Cities of Iudah, and taking them may be meant, yet *ver.*2. calling the place here propheſied againſt a City of ſtirs, a joyous City, makes it plain, that not all Iudea but Ieruſalem is

Hieronym.
Adam Sasbont.

Lyra.
Muſculus.

Calvin.

meant, and the deſtruction by Nebuchadnezzar. Whereas it is objected, Lyra ſaith, that the Elamites were brought by Nebuchadnezzar as his hired men. Others granting, that the Elamites came with Sennacherib, ſay that the deſtruction by the Caldees being propheſied of to ver.5. he there propounds the danger before this paſt, in which they had been by the Aſſyrians in Hezekiahs time, and were ſaved, but not any whit the more turned in their hearts from ſin, and to fear God and truſt in him, but in worldly means of defence, of which ſee verſ.9,10, &c. which ſeems to be the beſt. The Note of Calvin hereupon is good, in that it is not plainly called Iudea or Ieruſalem, but the valley of viſion, that a check was hereby ſecretly given to the Jews for being ſo wicked in the midſt of Gods Prophets, a Countrey alone of viſions, and ſo of more light, and yet turned by their ſins into obſcurity, as low ground compaſſed with high hils hath leſſe of the Suns light, then higher grounds; thus they made mountains valleys, dark and obſcure by their ſins elſwhere called darkneſs, as Ioh.3.19. They love darkneſſe more then the light. What aileth thee, that thou alſo art gone up to the houſe tops?] See the like touching Moab before, Chap.15.3. for which he ſaith, That thou alſo, being in diſtreſſe by the Army of the Caldees, he ſheweth, that they ſhould go up, and ſeeing the mighty Army of their enemies, in ſtead of going out couragiouſly to fight, ſtand there weeping like women: and that we may not doubt how they could ſtand upon their houſe-tops, it is to be known that their buildings were battlements to walk upon.

Calv. Note.

Verſ.2.

A City of tumult and noiſe, and of joy; That is, of joy before the Caldees coming, but now clamour, fear and trouble. Thy ſlain men are not ſlain with the ſword, viz. Becauſe by famine through the long continuance of the ſiege, for it laſted about ſix moneths, even till bread failed them in the City, and this was a greater judgement, then to die fighting valiantly againſt their enemies, wherein men glory. But theſe had no hearts ſo to do, but being pined away and dying through famine, without having any battel, they periſhed ſo, that the Caldees at length brake in, there being few to make reſiſtance, and thoſe that were, fleeing out another way. One hath a conceit, that they are ſaid to be ſlain, but not by the ſword of the enemy, but by Gods hand, as Titus himſelf acknowledged when he ſaw the ſtrength of their wals, after the City taken, when he ſaid, What power of man could have drawn the Jews out of theſe munitions? it was therefore Gods power that did it, Ioſ.l.7.c.16.

2 King. 25.3.

Verſ.3.

All thy rulers fled together, they are bound by the archers, &c. Or rather, as the word מקשת Michaſbeth ſignifies, From the Bow, that is, as Iunius hath it, from uſing the Bow; The Vulgar Latine hath it, Duriter vincti ſunt, becauſe the word קשה from which this may ſeem to be derived, ſignifieth durus, and ſo indeed the ſenſe will be good. For ſo the Hiſtory 2 King.25. doth excellently accord ver.3,7. and 2 Chron.36. for their rulers, it is expreſly ſaid, They were bound with fetters of braſſe, not only Zedekiah, but alſo Iehoiakim and Iehoiakin before him. All that were found in thee were bound;] That is, all the men of warre left, of whom it is ſaid, that Nebuzaradan carried them away to Babylon, their binding, which was common to Captives, being underſtood. Thus Muſculus alſo underſtands it, or of Iehoiakin and his Princes, 2 Kin.24. ſaying, that theſe things agree not to the time of Sennacherib, when no ſuch thing was done, but I reſt in the former. Touching the words there is alſo another reading, Fled together from the Bow, they were bound, all that were found in thee were bound together, ſo Hebr. verbatim, by diſtinguiſhing it into two ſentences, as it may well be, and then without queſtion this is the beſt reading. They fled from afar off. Some referre this to Zedekiah the King, who fled from the Caldees, but was taken and brought to the King of Babylon, but it is not ſaid afarre, but from afarre, therefore it is better underſtood of ſuch as came from other parts of Iudah in time of this danger, thinking to be ſheltered in Ieruſalem, but all this ſhould not profit them.

Muſculus.

Verſ.4.
Chap.21.3.

Therefore, ſaid I, Look away from me, I will weep bitterly, &c. If for Babylon he wept, and was grieved in humanity, much more in brotherly charity for Ieruſalem, the treading under-foot whereof he foreſaw now, and the making of it a valley of miſery in ſtead of a mountain of holineſſe. And thus ought we all to Note. Rom.12.15. ſympathize with the Church in her diſtreſſe, or elſe we are not living but dead members of the ſame myſticall body, and fail of the duty commanded, Weep with them that weep. And Iſaiah by weeping thus before it came, ſought to move the Jews to repentance and ſorrow, as Chriſt afterwards foreſeeing the deſtruction of Ieruſalem, wept over it.

Verſ.6. And Elam bare the quiver with the charets of men and horſmen, &c. heb. with the chariot of man, horſmen, to diſtinguiſh the chariots in which they came, from others bearing burthens, he ſaith, a mans charet, and the men drawn in theſe charrets are called horſmen, becauſe whether they rode on horſeback or in charrets, they were horſemen. By Elam the Perſian is meant, and by Kir the Junius. Median. For Elam ſee chap.21.2. For Kir 2 King.16.6. where Iunius ſheweth, that it was a part of Media called after the captivity Syromedia, and Kir, ſignifying a wall. becauſe it was compaſſed with an high mountain, being as a wall unto it: Ierom ſaith, that the Prophet goeth on here to deſcribe the taking of Hieron. Calvin. Jeruſalem by the Caldees, but Calvin underſtands it as belonging to the coming of Sennacherib againſt Jeruſalem, by which danger after it was paſt, they were not moved, and therefore it was not likely that they would by his threatning of a deſtruction to come long after, as I have partly touched before and approved If that which was then done were not meant, how could that touching Shebnah verſ.15. be brought in, ſeeing he was over the Kings houſe in Hezekiah's time, and not in Zedekiah's, but put down to be but Scribe, as is here propheſied, Eliachim being preferred to that more honourable office, as appears Ckap 36. and 37. And Kir uncovered the ſhield, Vulg. Lat. and the ſhield made naked the wall: for Kir ſignifieth a Wall, but becauſe it is a proper name alſo, and ſetteth forth the Medes, as hath been ſhewed, our tranſlation is more ſenſible, the meaning being, that having their ſhields covered at other times, now preparing to battel they uncovered them.

Ver.7. Thy choice valleys were filled with charrets, &c. that is, where their vineyards and olive-yards and gardens were, and the horſemen ſhall ſet themſelves in aray at the gate, that is, ſhall come ſo near that there ſhall be no copy of fleeink away for the beſieged.

Verſ.7. And he diſcovered the covering of Judah, and thou didſt look to the armour of the houſe of the forreſt: Here the Prophet ſheweth, what the wicked Jews did in the time of their danger, viz. make preparations by force of arms to defend themſelves, God in whom their help did chiefly conſiſt being neglected: as appears plainly, if we reade ver. 8.9.10.11.12. together. By the covering of Judah then muſt needs be meant the armory, wherein weapons for war in abundance were kept, and ſhut up ſo that they were as covered, and lay hid, but now the doors were opened, and they were diſcovered to the view of all men, many thouſands going forth armed with them. The houſe of the Forreſt wherein they lay, was of the Forreſt of Lebanon built by Solomen, 1 King.7.2. He diſcovered the covering of Iudah, then, is no more, but as if he ſaid, the covering of Iudah Calvin. was diſcovered, thus alſo the Vulg. Lat. reades it: Calvin ſaith, that ſome by the uncoverer of the covering here underſtand God, and ſome refer this uncovering Lyra. to the enemy, but he is for the former. Lyra, who is for the deſtruction by Nebuchadnezzar, ſaith, that by this covering the Temple is meant, which was covered as moſt holy, that none might behold it where the glorious Cherubims ſtood, and wherein Iudah truſted as a covering to protect them, as appears by their Junius. ſaying, The Temple of the Lord. Jer,7.4. Iunius by the covering uncovered, underſtands their bulwarks in the borders of Iudah taken by the enemy, and by the houſe of the foreſt, not that built by Solomon, becauſe that was not now in the Jews hands, but any houſes in forreſts at large, where warlike inſtruments were made. Some will have hidden treaſures meant by the covering, which were now brought forth to maintain ſouldiers, and ſome by the houſe of the forreſt an houſe built and filled with arms by David, which lay hid from the ſight of the common people till now. But to leave divers mens conceits, here is one and the ſame thing ſet forth in two phraſes, viz. the houſe of the Forreſt of Libanus opened to bring forth arms for their defence, where they were before covered and kept, when they had no need to uſe them. For the drift of the Prophet is to ſhew all the carnal means which the Jews uſed to defend themſelves, and to reprove them therefore becauſe they did not flee to faſting and praier to God, which was the chief. And he begins with their ſeeking firſt for ſtore of arms in this verſe, and therefore it doth nothing agree to expound it either of the vale covering the moſt holy place opened to enter in and prophane it, as Ierom doth, or as Lyra, or of the bulwarks entred by the enemy, but only, as was firſt ſaid; and why Iunius ſhould decline that expoſition of the Forreſt of Libanus, I ſee not, becauſe there was none other houſe famous for an armoury but that, and he makes it not to appear to have been at this time in the enemies hands, and out of the Jews. For that which the Jews are ſaid next to have done, ver. 9, 10, 11. reade 2 *Chron.*32.4,5. and we ſhall ſee the things done by the counſell and help of Hezekiah his Princes, which be here ſpoken of, viewing the breaches and repairing them, and ſtopping the waters, that the Aſſyrians coming to fight againſt them might not therewith be ſupplied, only the numbring of houſes here ſpoken of, and the breaking down of ſome in the ſuburbs that might be advantagious to the enemy, are there omitted, and the ditch making betwixt the two wals, yet two wals repaired and ſtrengthned are there ſpoken of. For numbring the houſes, that might be either to know how many men were in them to make an army that they might finde watchmen, or how many perſons that the proviſion for their ſuſtenance during the time of the ſiege might be ordered accordingly, for the ditch it was to hold water for the beſieged, a new one being made, leſt the old ſhould not ſuffice.

Verſ.9,10.

Verſ.11. Calvin. Muſculus.

But ye have not looked to the maker thereof, &c. Ye have thus uſed all outward means to preſerve your city Ieruſalem from coming into the hands of the enemy, but unto the Lord who hath made it an holy city and habitation for himſelf, and that not newly but long ago, ye have not looked to ſeek his aid by faſting and praier, and turning from your ſins. He doth not then ſimply tax warlike preparations for our defence, but a truſting in them and not in the Lord alone, in whom is all our help. Iunius here again differing from all others expounds the matter thereof thus, the Authour of this judgement for your ſins long agoe determined by him to be brought upon you, examples whereof he hath alſo made you to ſee in your brethren of the ten Tribes, that by them being warned ye might repent. But becauſe he made immediatly before mention of the city and parts thereof, it is more genuine to underſtand it, as was before ſaid. And from hence Calvin gathereth, becauſe Ieruſalem was a type of the Church, that God built her up by his almighty power, and not man, and by the ſame power is able alwaies to preſerve her, which they not conſidering, placed not their confidence in him, but in their own preparations. And in deſcanting upon theſe words [of old] he referres them to predeſtination before the beginning of the world. But becauſe predeſtination is one thing, and faſhioning it by Ordinances, and ſanctifying it another, leaving this I reſt upon the former. Now this accuſation was not againſt all in Ieruſalem that fortified againſt the Aſſyrians, for Hezekiah put them in minde of God as their greateſt ſtrength ſtill, and Eliakim who was over his houſe, is ſo highly commended in this Chapter, that no doubt is to be made of him, and ſome others in whom there was piety, but it was againſt the community of the Jews, who were moſt of them carnall, and truſted in carnal means.

Junius.

Verſ.12. Hieronym.

And in that day the Lord called for Weeping, &c. This ſaith Jerom, who expounds all of Nebuchadnezzar, was by Ieremy and Amos, who propheſied at that time. But ours ſay, that the very judgement preſent was a calling, neither did they want then this our Prophet or others to move them to extraordinary humiliation. For the particulars of making bald the head, rending garments, and putting on ſackcloth, he mentions theſe according to the cuſtom of thoſe times, meaning not preciſely, that in times of extraordinary humiliation we ſhould alwaies do thus, for Ioel 2. it is ſaid, Rend your hearts and not your garments, but that we ſhould firſt and chiefly be broken-hearted, and then by outward ſigns of weeping and apparell, ſhewing ſorrow, and all our outward behaviour, let it publikely appear in times of publike humiliation, how deeply we are ſtricken with ſorrow for our ſins.

Verſ.13.

Eccleſ.3.
2 Cor.7.10.
Phil.3.21.
Luk.6.25.
Ezek.9.
1 Cor.5.

And behold joy and gladneſſe, ſlaying oxen, &c. that is, laughing and making merry, all Gods judgements being contemned: Joy is not here ſimply taxed yet, for there is a time to laugh and a time to weep, but in time of calamity, in coming for ſin, or joy in ſin oppoſed to godly ſorrow for it, becauſe ſome are ſo far from mourning for their ſins, that they joy in committing them, and glory in recounting them, and joy to think upon them afterwards, which is an iniquity not to be expiated for ever, as here followeth, *ver.*14. Or to be profuſe in laughter, making it their daily practice to feaſt, laugh and be merry: or laſtly, being unaffected at the ſins of the land, or at our brethrens miſeries, *Rom.*12.15. Am. 6.6. Killing of oxen. Here the Prophet proceeds to aggravate their ſins, heb. it is to kill oxen, &c. the meaning is, that when hearing of Gods judgements threatned, they ſhould have ſought unto him by faſting and praier, they contrariwiſe feaſted, and run into all exceſſe of riot, and made a mock of all the terrible threatnings denounced againſt them, ſaying, Let us eat and drink for to morrow we ſhall die: that is, in way of deriſion of the Prophets threatning of horrible deſtruction at hand, able to make any heart to tremble, they were ſo far from being affected with it, that they ſaid in effect, let death come ſo ſpeedily, we will make merry whileſt we may, for we hold this threatning ridiculous, as which ſhall never take effect. See the like ſaying of Epicures, 1 Cor. 15.32. the Papiſts

Calvin.

ſaith Calvin, becauſe taking of fleſh is here taxed, gather that it is a ſinne to eat fleſh upon a faſting day; but why do they not infer the like touching wine-drinking, which is as well here complained of? Therefore their eating fleſh and drinking wine implyed feaſting, which at times of faſting is an abomination, and to eat or drink any thing, but in caſe of neceſſity for infirmities ſake, in ſome only that cannot faſt from all food without detriment to their health, is unlawful, and not the faſting from fleſh only, becauſe faſting is from eating bread or drinking water, Ezra 10.6. *Eſt.*4.16. Ionah 3,7.

Verſ.14.

And it was revealed in the ears of the Lord of Hoſts, if this iniquity ſhall be expiated, &c. He ſpeaketh thus, not that God needs any revealing of things done upon earth by wicked men, for he ſeeth and knoweth all things, but his hearing by an Hebraiſm is thus ſet forth, the more to terrifie the wicked, who think haply it ſhall not come to his ear, who cannot if he hears of their evill ſayings and doings, but be a ſevere Judge unto them; as a man threatning a malefactor, and his knowing of it, and reproof therefore being deſpiſed, he tels him further that his evill doing in contempt of the Law is come to the ears of the Judge, this will more ſtartle him. The form of threatning uſed here is an oath, ſomething being underſtood, as, I am not juſt, or live not, if this iniquity be forgiven, that Gods full purpoſe to puniſh theſe contemners of his judgements with death might the more appear, and all others might fear to do the like. Some think, that even this ſin upon repentance is remiſſible, but forſomuch as it is a deſpight done to the ſpirit of God, and ſo a degree of ſin againſt the holy Ghoſt, I cannot ſubſcribe unto them, becauſe ſo alſo it ſhould be but as all other ſins, whereas it is here ſingled out from them, being called this iniquity; and Jerom hereupon ſaith, Poſt peccatum erecta cervix, & ex deſperatione contemptus, magis offendit Deum, quam aliquod aliud peccatum. And whereas ſome infer, becauſe it is ſaid, till they die, that there is forgiveneſſe after death, it is abſurd, and without all ground in holy Scripture.

Lyra for, If this iniquity ſhall, &c. hath, this iniquity ſhall not, but this is more emphatical then a ſimple negation, as if the Lord had ſaid, rather then forgive this I will ſuffer any thing to be done unto me.

Get

Verſ.15.

Sasbont.

Get thee to this Treaſurer Shebna, who is over the houſe: Vulg.Lat. go in to him that dwels in the Tabernacle, and is over the Temple, even Sebnah: forſomuch as there is no ground in the Hebrew for this tranſlation, it is worthily rejected even by one of their own Doctors, who ſaith, that there is no word in the Hebrew Text, which ſignifyeth either Tabernacle or Temple, but Jerom, herein following ſome of the Hebrews, who hold him to be high-Prieſt, and the high-Prieſt dwelt in the Tabernacle, though neither be true, preſumed to uſe this liberty reſpecting rather this ſenſe by him affected, then the meaning of the words, which are none other, but as in our tranſlation beforementioned: yea, and he noteth, that Jerom himſelf renders the ſame words præfectum domus, 2 Kin. 19. and *Iſa.*36. and Rabbi Abraham ſaith, that he was treaſurer, and over the Kings houſe. The word is סכן ſignifying a Treaſurer, and not a Tabernacle, although Cornelius a Lapide contends for it, alledging Exod. 1.11, where a word coming from the ſame radix is uſed to ſet forth cities of Tabernacles, but it is not ſo rightly rendred, ſith סכן will not bear it, but rather cities of ſtore, or treaſure: And if it be taken otherwiſe for cities of Tabernacles, that Pharaoh ſhould cauſe the Hebrews to build for him, what ſenſe would there be in it? But he addeth further that the Septuagint render it paſtophorium, i. exedram vel cubiculum, but certainly by a great miſtaking of סכן for שכה, from which a word derived 2 *Chron.*31.11. indeed ſignifyeth chambers, yet not to keep in, but to lay up the tithes brought in: yea, and the Jeſuite himſelf by and by argueth ſtrongly to prove, that this Shebnah was not the high-Prieſt, but the Treaſurer: for 1. the Septuagint and Cyril call him quæſtorem, others treaſurer. 2. Yeelding, that he was over the Temple underſtood by the houſe here, he could not be the High-Prieſt, becauſe he is no where ſo called, but the High-Prieſt. 3. Joſephus in ſetting down the catalogue of High-Prieſts, makes no mention of any called by this name. 4. Azariah was now High-Prieſt, 2 Chron 31.10. 5. The High-Prieſthood was not tranſlared to another family from Aarons and Sadocks, till the time of the Maccabees, but the office here ſpoken of is tranſlated *ver.*20,21, But whether this Shebnah, and that 2 King. 19. were one and the ſame, is by ſome doubted, as by Joſephus and Toſtatus, becauſe this Shebnah and Eliakim were Prieſts, thoſe 2 *King.*19. Laicks. Arias Montanus ſaith, that they were the ſame, ſo likewiſe Calvin and all ours generally. The cauſe of the doubt is partly becauſe according to ſome the man here ſpoken of, was one that lived in Zedekiah his time, when Nebuchadnezzar took Jeruſalem, whereby they expound all that which went before, of the Jews ſtreights by the Caldees, and partly becauſe that Shebna 2 King. 19. is ſaid to be Scribe or Chancellour to the King, and Eliakim over the houſe, but here Treaſurer, in whoſe room Eliakim was to be ſet up. For the firſt enough hath been already ſaid, to ſhew that the things before ſpoken from *ver.*6. pertained to their ſufferings by Sennacherib and even Sasbont, who is for the Caldees, yet coming to Shebnah he ſaith, that here a new Prophecy begins concerning a great man in Hezekiah his time, of whom before, 2 *King.*19. For the ſecond, Calvin obſerves that סכן hath another ſignification beſides Treaſurer, viz. a fautor or cheriſher, which is proved 1 *King.*1.2. where the ſame word is uſed in this ſenſe in ſpeaking of Abiſhag, though there in a good ſenſe, yet here to diſcover evil cheriſhed in the heart of this wicked man, even evil counſell, ſo to ſtand for Hezekiah as to keep intelligence and correſpondency with the enemy, that which way ſoever the world wenr, he might provide well for himſelf. The Hebrews ſay, that he treacherouſly agreed with the enemy to deliver the city into his hands, and that Hezekiah upon this prophecy of Iſaiah put him down from being Treaſurer and Scribe, both which high offices he had ſuffered him to hold, the office of Scribe ſtill, but took his Treaſurerſhip away from him, and conferred it upon Eliakim a moſt faithfull man. But becauſe there is no ground for this in the holy Scripture, I paſſe it over, as Calvin doth, and reſt upon the Etymologie of the word before-going, his office is not here ſo much pointed at, as his quality of cheriſhing in his heart

Calvin.

evill counſell againſt the State, and therefore he calleth him this fautor or cheriſher, in way of contempt, as Chriſt ſometimes called Herod that crafty Fox, whereas by ſome he is thought to have this name given him from a city in Egypt, Sochen, from whence he came, being therefore called a Sochnite, it is but conjectural. But why doth Iſaiah ſo terribly threaten him? paſſing over that which is uncertain, here is enough diſcovered in the verſes following to ſhew that he had great cauſe. For he was proud like Abſalom, and out of his pride he built him a ſtately ſepulchre for a memorial, which could not be without great coſt, and therefore not without pilling and polling the people. And forſomuch as he provided thus for the entombing of his corps, when he ſhould die, he hereby intimated that he was one and the head of them, that contemning the Prophets threatnings ate and drank ſecurely, when the whole city and kingdom were like to come into great ſtreights. And he doubtleſſe was one of thoſe princes ſpoken of 2 King.19. which gave the king counſel to fortifie ſo ſtrongly, that it was now ſuppoſed by the ſtrength of their fortifications without ſeeking to the Lord by faſting and praier they ſhould be ſufficiently defended againſt the aſſaults of their enemies, although the King himſelf did not ſo, but by his ſpeeches to the people ſhewed plainly, that ſtill all his truſt was in the Lord, moving them to do the like, 2 Chron. 32.8. With them is an arm of fleſh, but with us is the Lord, and the people reſted in theſe words.

Verſ.16. What doſt thou here, that thou haſt hewed for thy ſelf a ſepulchre, &c. A moſt unworthy man, becauſe he was in high place, and great in this world, thought by his wealth to make himſelf great and famous in his memory throughout many ages to come, contrary to that, Prov.10.7. The memoriall of the juſt ſhall be bleſſed, but the name of the wicked ſhall rot. But the Prophet takes him up as one that was but a very larva perſonating a great Officer of the kingdom, but having nothing of worth in him, whereby we may ſee both how baſe and unworthy great men make themſelves by their pride and oppreſſions, to learn to flee vices, becauſe God is alſo full of wrath againſt them: and that a good King may have evill Officers about him, he not knowing it, as Hezekiah had this wicked Shebnah.

Verſ.17. Behold the Lord will carry thee away with a mighty captivity, &c, Vulg. Lat. ſicut Gallus gallinaceus aſportari te faciet, taking the word, גבר here uſed for a cock, which properly ſignifyeth a man, becauſe as a man is amongſt his wives ſtrong and imperious, ſo a dunghill cock amongſt his hens. But then it muſt be read thus, he will cauſe thee to be carried captive by the captivity of a cock: becauſe there is nothing ſignifying as, and the meaning is of a cock taken and bound, and gelt, and made a capon, his comb being cut, and then he being carried to the market, not daring to look up, but holding down his head, who ſo proudly lifted up his creſt, and crowed upon his dunghill formerly. This Hieronym. indeed is a good gloſſe of Jeroms. But forſomuch as גבר ſignifyeth not a cock, but a man, or ſtrong, it is better rendred as before, though ſome reade it with the captivity of a man, that is, into a far countrey, becauſe men are carried furtheſt when they are taken, as being more able then women to endure travel, but this is ſomewhat far fetcht, wherefore I adhere to the firſt as moſt ſenſible, the Lord ſhall carry thee away with a captivity, that is afar to live and die in extreme miſery and ignominy, as thou out of thy pride preparedſt for thy long laſting fame and glory, which is further expreſſed, ver.18. Of the fullfilling of this we reade not, but it is not to be doubted of. The Hebrews, if we will beleeve them, ſay, that Shebnah with ſome other of the Jews conſpiring with him, fearing leſt the city ſhould be taken, went to Sennacherib, to take part with him, but ſo great a deſtruction coming upon his army the night following, he being full of wrath, took them and carried them to Nineveh, doing execution upon them there in moſt terrible manner, and tying this man to an horſes tayl, as Muſculus relates it, he cauſed him to be drawn amongſt thorns till he died.

Junius. Junius differing from all other tranſlators renders it thus, Behold the Lord that covered thee with the covering of a man, and cloatheth thee godlily: but he miſtakes ſtakes טלטל taltal, captivating for טלה to cover, confounding two ſeveral radixes טיל and טלה and our New Tranſlation being deceived by him, have put the ſame in the Margin, as if it might be indifferently rendred either way, but the firſt is the only right reading. For the next words, Shall ſurely cover thee, Jerom hath, Shall lift thee up as cloathing, amictum; That is, Shall ſo eaſily take thee up, and carry thee away, as one doth a garment, but Hebr. it is, Cover a covering on thee; that is, as Vatablus hath it, ſhall cloath thee with confuſion, and he alludes to the covering of the faces of thoſe that were condemned of old, as we may ſee in the caſe of Haman carried thus out of the preſence of Ahaſhueroſh to the Gallows. Vatabl.

He ſhall ſurely turn and toſſe thee violently like a ball into a large countrey, &c. Hieron. Coronans coronabit te tribulatione, & quaſi pilam mittet in terram latam, Hebr. It is either crowning, or rolling as a Ball or Bowl is rolled being caſt out of a ſtrong mans hand a great way: But becauſe rolling doth beſt agree, and Jerom once renders it by mittet, it is better tranſlated all the times, which are three in this place alike, Rolling he will roll thee with a rolling like a ball or bowl into a large countrey, with his hands. Some have it large and ſpacious, ſome large of bounds, as if ידים had reference to the Countrey, and not to him that ſhould caſt him thither; but for the word ſignifying hands, it is more proper to referre it to the Lord, who he threatneth ſhall do all this with his moſt mighty hands. The Bold, the Spirit of God makes the Prophet to deal even with men of greateſt honor and power if they be proud and profane. And the chariots of thy glory ſhall be the ſhame of thy Lords houſe; That is, Whereas through the favour of thy Lord and King thou wert ſo highly exalted, that thou rodeſt glorioully in thy charret thorow the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, being croucht and bowed unto by the people, thou ſhalt be brought to ſuch a ſhameful condition in the enemies Land, being made a ſcorn and laughing ſtock to them, that through the contemptible condition, wherein thou ſhalt be, thy Lord Hezekiah, though a godly King, ſhall ſuffer reproach, when they ſhall ſay, This was Hezekiahs favourite, who I warrant you is a good one, that favoured and honoured ſo much ſuch a varlet as this: and to this effect almoſt Calvin, hence warning Princes to beware whom they prefer, leſt it redound at length to their diſhonour. Verſ.18. Calvin.

And in that day I will call my ſervant Eliakim the ſon of Hilkiah, &c. At what time this was done is uncertain, but certain it is that Shebnah his wickedneſſe being diſcovered to the King, he was put down from that higheſt office, and Eliakim ſet up, yet he was not put down all at once, but being now Treaſurer and Maſter of the Kings houſe, he was put from the firſt before Sennacheribs coming againſt Jeruſalem, and was then only in the ſecond office of Scribe, Eliakim being ſet up above him, as we may ſee *Iſa.*37. and this moſt probably was upon Iſaiah his propheſying againſt him: but afterwards he revolting to the enemy, as hath been ſaid, Eliakim had all the honour of both theſe offices, from which it is thought he had been formerly removed through Shebnah his falſe ſuggeſtions to his Lord againſt him. But this is only conjectural, and haply Eliakim was never in any of theſe offices before, but being thought a right honeſt and faithfull man, the King upon the detection of the others fraud, or rather abhorring his pride, preferred him to one of his offices firſt, and then to another. For if he had found him treacherous, it had been no policy in the King to continue him in any ſuch office about him ſtill, neither could he think him a fit man to ſend with Eliakim to Rabſhakeh, or to the Prophet, as he did. And the Lord calleth Eliakim his ſervant, thus moſt highly honouring him for the Graces of Faith, Humility and Fidelity to him, and the Countrey ſhining in him, as we may gather from that which followeth. Verſ.20.

And I will clothe him with thy robe, and ſtrengthen him with thy girdle, &c. That is, I will give thee ſuch favour with Hezekiah, that he ſhall thus promote thee to the honour of being Praefectus domus in ſtead of Shebnah, the Verſ.21.

en-

Lyra. enſigns whereof were a rich Robe and Girdle. Lyra, who ſtands for Shebnah his being high-Prieſt before, and Eliakim now, thinks this confirmed here, becauſe the high-Prieſt had a Robe and rich wrought Girdle put upon him, when he was conſecrated, *Levit.*8.7. But when Jonathan would honour David, 1 Sam.18.4. it is ſaid, That he took theſe enſigns of his own body, and gave them to David to be worn by him. And amongſt the Romans the Girdle was uſed likewiſe by Emperours, honourable perſons, and valiant ſouldiers. Therefore this proves no Prieſt here ſpoken of, although almoſt all Pontificians after Jerom follow it. But Saſbont gives a good reaſon why, viz. becauſe *Verſ.*22. he ſaith, Cyril. Theod.

Calvin. Muſcul.

Verſ.22. I will lay upon his ſhoulder the key of the houſe of David; According to that Iſa.9. The government ſhall be upon his ſhoulder, and he ſhall ſit upon the throne of David: The houſe of David ſetting forth nothing elſe but his Throne or Kingdom, although ſome adhering to Jerom expound Davids houſe of the Temple, becauſe he provided treaſure and materials for the building of it. But let them ſhew any other place wherein it is ſo taken, and if they cannot this muſt needs fall to the ground. But what an high dignity is here ſpoken of, being the ſame that is ſaid of the Son of God, and again applied unto him, *Revel.*3.7. Verily this hath made ſome to expound this as ſpoken of Chriſt, and not of any mortal man; but others better of Eliakim, a man thus preferred by Hezekiah, as a figure of Chriſt; ſo Cyril and Theodoret; but for this end they hold him to have been both high-Prieſt, and over the Kings houſe alſo, thus figuring out Chriſt his dignity both regal and pontifician. But as his having the high-Prieſthood hath been already confuted, ſo it is not neceſſary to make him any otherwiſe a figure of Chriſt thus; but as David in reſpect of his kingly dignity, there being another, who alone typified him as King and Prieſt, even Melchiſedech. And in ſetting forth his authority in Davids Kingdom, he ſpeaks of keys, becauſe by having the keys of the City delivered to him, the King takes poſſeſſion of a City, and hath it under his power, ſo that none can enter in, or go out, but by him, and all things are either confirmed or diſanulled by him. Whereas then this promiſe is made to Eliakim, it doth imply two things, 1. Dexterity and Wiſdom to handle the keys for that end for which they are given him, that is, his authority in confirming or diſanulling any thing rightly. 2. Power to exclude or to let in to the City, and to bring forth things of preſent uſe, and to lock up and keep thoſe things for afterwards, which are not yet uſefull. It was an honour like to that of Joſephs in Egypt for his great wiſdom and fidelity beſtowed upon him by Pharaoh, ſo that without him nothing ſhould be done in all the Land, and by this power he lockt up the corn gathered together, and when he ſaw his time, opened the houſes of ſtore, and brought it out. Whereas keys uſe to be given into ones hands, but here it is ſaid, I will lay them upon his ſhoulder, it is to intimate the glory wherewith he ſhould by this power giving to him, be inveſted, according to *verſ.*24 They ſhall hang upon him all the glory of his fathers houſe, which muſt be upon his ſhoulders. Others take occaſion here to ſpeak of the keys given to Peter, both papal, affirming power of opening and ſhutting out of Heaven by Excommunication given to Peter and his Succeſſours; and ours, as Calvin and Muſculus, that nothing elſe is hereby given but power to preach ſalvation to ſuch as by true faith and repentance turn, and damnation to the unbelieving, according to that Mark 16.16. He that believeth and is baptized ſhall be ſaved, he that believeth not, damned; for this being done by him and his fellows upon earth, is ratified in heaven. But others better, both this and the power of Government for the well-being of the Church, becauſe the keys are never ſpoken of, but in this ſenſe, and this Government was by Eccleſiaſtical Cenſures, which were ſometimes executed by an Apoſtle, and ſometimes by the Church, 1 *Tim.*1.20. 2 *Cor.*5. and this was by caſting notorious offenders out from receiving the Lords Supper, and forbidding other Chriſtians to eat and drink with them to make them the more aſhamed. So that if a Preacher acteth this part or the Government, howſoever it be conſtituted, either of Officers purpoſely ſet up for the eaſe of the Preacher, who ought wholly to give himſelf to ſtudy and preaching, or of rulers in the State where it is Chriſtian, they have ground in the Word for their ſo doing.

Verſ.23. Saſbont. Verſ.24.

And I will faſten him as a Nail in a ſure place, &c. A nail, ſaith Adam, was either made of wood to drive into the ground to faſten a Tent *Exod.*38. Num. 5. or elſe an iron nail to drive into a poſt to hang things upon; and thus the words following ſhew, that he is called a nail, for it is ſaid *verſ.*24. They ſhall hang upon him all the glory of his fathers houſe, the off-ſpring and the iſſue, all veſſels of ſmall quantity, &c. The Vulgar Latine, Divers kinds of veſſels, every ſmall veſſel of goblets, &c. Thus continuing the Metaphor, as he had compared him to a Nail, ſo the people to veſſels great and ſmall; the meaning being, that rich and poor ſhould all depend upon him moſt willingly, and yield ſubjection to him. And becauſe the glory of a King is ſaid to be in the multitude of his ſubjects, this phraſe is uſed touching him, They ſhall hang upon him all the glory of his fathers houſe, that is, when ſo great multitudes ſhall willingly ſubmit to be governed by him, then he ſhall be glorious, as his father, who it ſeems, was a great Prince, yea and an acceſſion of glory ſhall come to his houſe by him, he having more glory then ever his father had, for which it is ſaid, *verſ.*23. He ſhall be a glorious throne to his fathers houſe. Why Jerom renders that divers kinds of veſſels, which Symmachus and Vatablus render Nepotes, or Stirpes & poſteros, I know not, for the word צאצאים Tſatſaim here uſed cometh of יצא, Prodire, ſo that poſterity which cometh from their parents, muſt needs be meant hereby, and the meaning muſt be, as Calvin hath it, that the good coming by this worthy Prince Eliakim ſhall not be flitting, but durable to the generation to come, and to another after that, and therefore it is ſaid, that he ſhould be faſtened as a nail in a ſure place, that cannot be pluckt out again. For a wiſe and good Prince by ſetling good Laws and Ordinances doth benefit not only the people living at that preſent, but alſo the Generations to come, and that not only males, but females, for which to the word Hatſatſaim of the Maſculine Gender is added Hatſephangnoth of the Feminine, ſignifying Daughters or Neeces. The veſſels, which he ſaith, they ſhould hang upon him, are leſſer, as cups; and greater as flaggons or water-pots, and becauſe the word כלי doth ſometime ſignifie muſical Inſtruments, ſome render it ſo, eſpecially who hold Eliakim to be high-Prieſt, ſaying, that hereby it is meant, that he ſhould order all things in the worſhip of God, even to the players upon Inſtruments. But this having been already confuted, it is better underſtood of all ſorts of people both ſmall and great depending upon him, as veſſels of all ſorts are hanged up upon nails or pins faſtened into a wall.

Symmachus. Vatablus. Calvin.

Verſ.25.

In that day ſhall the nail faſtened in a ſure place be removed, &c. That is, In the day when Eliakim ſhall be advanced, Shebnah, who ſeemed to be a nail faſtened ſurely before, eſpecially in his own opinion, for the great favour in which he was with the King, ſhall be removed, that way may be made for this good Prince, and then all his friends that depended upon him ſhall be fruſtrated of their hopes, which they had through him. Thus R. Solomon, Vatablus, Calvin, and generally all Expoſitors, except Jerom, who having mentioned this, reſteth not in it, becauſe it is ſaid, that which hung upon it periſhed, which is not true being applied to Shebnah, becauſe when he fell from his high-Prieſthood, other Prieſts and Levites, and ſingers depending upon him, fell not alſo, but continued ſtill to ſerve in their courſes, till the Babyloniſh Captivity. He therefore ſaith, by this nail is meant the ſame before ſpoken of, this being a Prophecie of Eliakims high-Prieſthood, and of all the Prieſthood and ſervice in the Temple failing for a long time, when by the Babylonians the Temple was burnt, and the Jews were carried into Captivity ſeventy years; and of this high-Prieſthood and Prieſthood utterly ceaſing for ever, the

R. Salom. Vatabl. Calvin. Lyra. Saſbont, &c. Hieron.

the Temple and City being again deſtroyed by the Romans. But all this falleth, becauſe the ground hereof, that is, Eliakims being an high-Prieſt, hath been already razed. And as for his exception taken to the former, it is of no force, for it is meant of the kinsfolk and friends of Shebnah, that hung upon him, and had mainteuance and hopes of preferment from him, from all theſe when he fell they fell alſo. And he twice mentioneth the Lords ſpeaking of this, once ſetting him forth by this title, The Lord of hoſts, that it might not be doubted of, but ſtedfaſtly believed, that Shebnah ſhould thus be brought down, and Eliakim ſet up, though Shebnah were then ſo mighty, and in ſuch grace, that men could hardly believe it. Note. But this conſideration, that God is the Lord of hoſts, who threatneth the wicked of the higheſt rank, that ſtand moſt ſtrongly, with deſtruction, ſhould make them fear it, to turn unto him, and not to go on in their pride and tyranny, as if they were too great ever to be moved.

CHAP. XXIII.

Verſ.1. THe burthen of Tyre, Howl ye ſhips of Tarſhiſh, &c. Tyrus was an Iſland in the time of the Prophets, as we may ſee in *Ezek.*26. and 27. where Gods judgements againſt Tyre are more amply ſet forth, and the cauſe thereof: but afterwards it was by Alexander, when he beſieged it, laid to the firm Land, the narrow paſſage betwixt them being filled up, that his Army might approach to their wals. The Countrey to which it belonged was Phœnicia, and it lay not farre from Galilee, as we may gather, where Chriſt is ſaid to have gone from Galilee into the parts of Tyrus and Sydon, Mat.15. that is, ſaith H.B. in Patriarchs travels fifty ſix miles. The cauſe why Tyre ſhould be deſtroyed is ſet forth, Ezek. 26. to be their inſulting over Jeruſalem at the deſtruction thereof, the means alſo whereby Nebuchadrezzar King of Babylon. Hieronym. And Jerom ſaith, That in the Hiſtory of the Aſſyrian warres, ſoon after the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, the Philiſtims, Arabians, Damaſcus and Ægyptians were ſubdued alſo; and becauſe Tyre is mentioned in the Pſalms, as joyning with them againſt Gods people, The tabernacles of the Edomites and Iſhmaelites, Gebal, and Ammon, and Amalek, with thoſe of Tyre; he doubts not but when they were judged, Tyre was judged alſo. But we need not go by ſuch conjectures, for Ioſephus ſaith, That thirteen years after Ieruſalem was deſtroyed, Nebuchadnezzar went againſt Tyre, and with great labour making proviſion for his Army to approach to it, took it, and made it a place for Fiſhermen to dry their nets. *Ioſep.9.c.*15. Tyre, Heb. is צר ſignifying a rock, ſo called, becauſe ſtrong as a rock, and ſituated upon a rock. It was the metropolitan City of Phœnicia, the Lady of the ſea, and mart of the whole world for the opportunity of the ſcite. Plin. *l.*5.*c.*19. Pliny ſaith, That it was ſometime ſeven hundred paces from the Land, the whole compaſſe of the Land where it ſtood being nineteen thouſand paces, the City two and twenty furlongs, being rather all as a Tower, then a City, and for riches and pomp exceeding all other Cities. For the Antiquity Beroſus ſaith, That it was built by the ſeventh ſon of Iaphet, called Tyras, ſoon after the flood, but now the deſtruction hereof is threatned. For ſhips of Tarſhiſh, that are bidden to howl; Vulgar Latine hath ſhips of the ſea, becauſe Tarſhiſh ſignifieth the ſea, for the sky-colour thereof, which Tarſhiſh properly ſignifieth; ſee before *Chap.*2.16. The Septuagint, Ships of Carthage, becauſe Carthage was a Colony of the Tyrians, according to that ſaying of Virgil,

> Vrbs antiqua fuit, Tyrii tenuere coloni, > Carthago.

And Jerom Ezek. 27. turns the ſame word Carthage alſo, becauſe Carthage abounded with ſhips, which were imployed for the Tyrians. The Caldee renders it Africa, putting the whole for the part, becauſe Carthage ſtood in Africa. But it will be beſt to take it with Sasbont for the mediterranean ſea, the moſt and beſt ſhips of which pertained to Tyre. Now the ſhips are bidden to howl by a Proſopopeia, the more to ſet forth the miſery of their maſters. Vatablus ſaith, that ſome Hebrews ſay, That there was a City not farre from Tyrus and Sidon, called Tarſhiſh, but he holds the mediterranean ſea, which is of a sky-colour, to be meant hereby. Calvin, Tarſus in Cilicia where P. was born. There is no entring in from the Land of Chittim, it is revealed to them. Heb. From entring in; and the words before, devaſtation from houſe, the ſenſe being, ſo that no houſe is left, or entring in &c. By Chittim the Grecians are meant, and therefore by ſome the deſolation brought upon Tyre by Alexander is underſtood to be here propheſied of. But Calvin yields good reaſon to the contrary, Calvin. 1. Becauſe Ezek. 26. where the ſame thing is propheſied of, Nebuchadnezzar is expreſly ſaid to be the King that ſhould do it. 2. Becauſe Alexander took not Tyre till 500 years after, and what comfort would this have been to the people of God to hear, that their cruel enemies of Tyre, dwelling ſo near unto them, ſhould be ſuffered ſo long to go unpuniſht, when all other Nations about ſuffered by Babylon? 3. Becauſe Tyre is ſaid after this to have a King, but after being deſtroyed by Alexander, none, but was reduced to the form of a Commonwealth. The not coming of ſhips therefore from Chittim, is not to be underſtood as if the way were ſtopt up againſt them, but by reaſon of the deſolation to which they ſhould hear that this famous Mart-Town was brought, they ſhould ceaſe coming thither for traffick, and this is meant by theſe words, It is revealed to them, although Calvin refers it indifferently to Grecians or Tyrians.

Be ſtill, O ye inhabitants of the Iſle, &c. Here he further amplifieth the judgement of Tyre, by ſhewing, That whereas in times paſt there uſed to be much noiſe of ſhips coming from Sidon thither, now they ſhould not traffick there any more. Sidon was a City upon the ſea-coaſt about two hundred furlongs from Tyre, and a Colony thereof, and therefore the inhabitants thereof are ſpecially ſpoken of, as coming frequently to Tyre. Verſ. 2.

And by great waters the ſeed of Sihor, the harveſt of the river is her revenue. Verſ. 3. Jerom joining this to the former words, reads it together with verſ. 2. thus. Hieronym. Be ſilent (O inhabitants of the Iſle) the negotiation of Zidon; many waters have repleniſhed thee, &c. whereas ver. 3. is manifeſtly in Hebrew disjoined from ver. 2. beginning not with theſe words [great waters] but, And by great waters, &c. Sihor is the river Nilus, which by overflowing the Land of Egypt makes it ſo fruitfull, and therefore ſeed and fruits are attributed hereunto, becauſe by the overflowing hereof they grow in abundance, the Land being fatned by the black ſlud by this river brought down upon it. It had the name Nilus, ſaith one, from νεὴ ἴλυν, novus limus, which it brought with it. But the Prophet here in amplifying the miſery of Tyre, by ſaying, The corn of Egypt was her harveſt or increaſe, means, that it was ſo, becauſe brought from thence to Tyre to her great benefit: thus it had been, but now it ſhould be ſo no more, for Tyre was the Mart of Nations. Verſ. 4, 5. He inſiſts upon this amplification from Zidon and Egypt further ſaying, Be aſhamed, O Zidon, for the ſea hath ſpoken, even the ſtrength of the ſea, &c. By the ſea ſome underſtand Tyre, called the ſea, becauſe ſtanding in the ſea, and the ſtrongeſt Iſland therein. Others taking the ſea as ſpoken to by a Proſopopeia, and Tyre brought forth as it were thereby, and encreaſed to ſuch riches and glory, becauſe all the Tyrians wealth came in by the ſea. We may take it either way, or rather both the ſea, and Tyre the ſtrength hereof brought in complaining of a deſolation, whereas in times paſt here were many gallant young men and virgins brought forth, and brought up there, now it was not ſo, the place being laid waſte. As at the report concerning Ægypt, &c. Calvin, So ſoon as the rumour comes to Ægypt they ſhall ſorrow] Calvin. That is, ſaith he, as ſoon as they ſhall hear in Egypt, that Nebuchadnezzar hath won Tyre, they ſhall be terrified, as they that are likely next to be deſtroyed. Others underſtanding it in the ſame manner ſay, that Egypt ſhall ſorrow, becauſe their commodities, which they were wont to ſell to their great profit to the Tyrians can now be no more uttered unto them. Some in both theſe regards, for the Egyptians might know out of Ezek. 29.18. Ier. 47.4. that when Tyre fell, deſtruction by the Caldees was not farre from them, as being promiſed for their hire. And this agreeth beſt with the words of the Prophet, which are verbatim, As this heard to Egypt, they ſhall mourn, as the hearing of Tyre. Wherefore Junius, whom our New Tranſlations follows, taking it for an illuſtration by a compariſon made betwixt the fear that ſhould ſurprize the contiguous Nations about Tyre, and of thoſe in the time of Moſes, when they heard of the Egyptians drowning in the red ſea, did much miſtake it; neither will the words bear that expoſition, becauſe it is לְמִצְרַיִם, a rumour to Egypt, not of or concerning Egypt.

Junius.

Verſ.6. Paſſe ye over to Tarſhiſh, &c. That is, Tyre being deſtroyed, which hath been your Mart hitherto, ſeek ye now to get your living by ſailing to ſome other place, as a new Mart-Town, for here is no good for you to be done any more. The Vulgar Latine, Paſſe the ſeas, as it may well be interpreted, no particular place being meant; for if it were meant of a place called Tarſus, it will not thus agree with the words going before *verſ.*1. Howl ye ſhips of Tarſus; for what comfort in going to a place in a lamentable caſe? Beſides here is no word ſignifying [to] but paſſe Tarſhiſh. Howl ye inhabiters of the Iſland; Some render it Iſlands, but it is a ſingular, and may be referred to Tyre.

Verſ.7. Is this your ancient City, &c. Of the antiquity of Tyre, ſee before; but howſoever they gloried in this, now he ſaith, that they ſhould go in a poor manner afarre off, after the manner of beggars or captives to Babylon, Hebr. it is [From afarre off into perigrination] or to a ſtrange Countrey, the ſenſe is all one; for if Tyre from whence were farre from Babylon to which they ſhould go, then Babylon was far from Tyre.

Verſ.8,9. Jer.9.23. Pſal.2. He enquires by what counſel this is done, and ſheweth, that it was the Lords to abaſe all humane glory, whereby we may ſee how ſupereminent in wealth and worldly all the inhabitants of this mighty City were. That we may all learn not to glory in ſuch things, but know that the Lord can ſoon ſtain all glory, and therefore in the midſt of all pomp fear and be ſubmiſſe to ſerve him.

Verſ.10. Paſſe thy Land as a River (O daughter Tarſhiſh) &c. or, Daughter of the ſea. For being taken either way, it agrees well to Tyre, being called a daughter of the ſea, becauſe ſtanding in the ſea, and as it were ſpringing out of it, and daughter Tarſhiſh, becauſe Gen. 10.4. there was a Tarſhiſh coming of Japhet, who repleniſhed the Iſles, and haply he might inhabit here, and thus the ſhips of Tyre were before called the ſhips of Tarſhiſh, verſ.1. Now in bidding her paſſe as a river, he ſhews, the going away of the Tyrians into Captivity out of their own Land, there being no means to ſtay them, as a floud cannot be ſtaid, but flows on, till it be ſwallowed up of the ſea; Or becauſe he ſaith, Paſſe thy Land as a floud, he means, That as a floud riſeth above the banks, and runs divers wayes, ſo they ſhould be ſcattered. Vatablus renders it, Paſſe on to the daughter of Tarſhiſh, as v.6. but in the Heb. it is plainly, Daughter Tarſhiſh, as the party ſpoken to. But how can the Daughter of Tarſhiſh flow to Tarſhiſh, as Verſ. 6? Anſw. Very well, if by Tarſhiſh we underſtand the ſea, as well as a place ſo called, as one moſt eminent off-ſpring thereof. No girdle more, that is, whereas before the waters did gird it about, and were a defence unto it, now they are not, it being joyned by the conquerour to the firm Land, Some by Girdle underſtand ſtrength, which in that City was great to reſiſt the enemy. I think it beſt to join both together. But whereas ſome by Girdle underſtand the meaneſt commodity to be ſold there, and ſo that being full of rich merchandize before, nothing was left, I think this to be far fetcht.

Verſ.11. He hath given a commandment againſt the merchant City, &c. Here the deſtruction of Tyre is further amplified, and he dwels ſo long upon it, becauſe it might ſeem incredible to men, that ſo ſtrong a place, and ſo flouriſhing ſhould be deſtroyed, Hebr. for the merchant City is Canaan, and ſo it is rendred by Vatablus, and Vulgar Latine, whereupon ſome think that mention is made of Canaan, that by recounting how the inhabitants of that Land periſhed, they of Tyre might fear the ſame almighty power now ſet againſt them; ſo Jerom and Hieron. others, affirming alſo that Tyre ſtood in Canaan; ſo *Joſh.*19 29. it is reckoned in the lot of the Tribe of Aſhur, and *Matth.*15. the Canaanitiſh woman, who cried unto Chriſt for her daughter, is ſaid to have come out of the parts of Tyre and Zidon, and by this name is it ſet forth the rather, becauſe it was a City full of merchants, and the word Canaan ſignifieth a merchant. Wherefore it muſt be read according to the Hebrew, He hath given a command againſt Canaan, the ſenſe yet being the ſame.

Thou ſhalt no more rejoice (O thou oppreſſed virgin, daughter of Zidon) &c. Verſ.12. Here is according to Jerom another deſcription of the ſame City Tyre: for al- Hieron. though it now excelled Zidon farre in ſtrength, beauty and riches, yet it was built by the Sidonians, and was a Colony of Sidon. But whereas he threatens Tyre, by ſaying, that ſhe ſhould no more rejoyce, he meaneth not never, for *verſ.*15. after ſeventy years there is a Promiſe made unto her, wherefore it is meant, no more a long time. And a virgin Tyre is here called, not in reſpect of purity or chaſtity, or truth formerly being there, but becauſe ſhe was never before ſubdued or brought under the luſt of any; ſo Calvin, ſaying, that Calvin. the Tyrians goods kept, as it were, lockt up before a long time, were now ſubjected to the Conquerours will, as if Venice never ſubdued, were therefore called a virgin City. Paſſe into Chittim, that is, ſaith Jerom, into Gracia, and other weſtern parts, as before upon *ver.*1.

Behold the Land of the Caldeans, they were not till the Aſſyrians founded it, &c. Verſ.13. Vulgar Latine, There hath not been ſuch a people, the Aſſyrians founded it; That is, ſaith Jerom, if ye would know by whom ye ſhall be brought to this deſtru- Hieronym. ction, the Caldeans ſhall do it, who are ſuch a people for might and power, as Saſbout. that there was never any people like them, and they are moſt ancient, as having their beginning from Aſhur, of whom ſee *Gen.*10. Before *ver.*12. he ſpake to the runawaies, now to ſuch as remained in Tyre, They have captivated his ſtrong ones, dig'd down the houſes, &c. Our new Tranſl. They ſet up the towers thereof, and raiſed the Palaces thereof, and he brought it to ruine. Contrary to the former, and indeed it is a marvel, that Jerom ſhould be moved by one word ſignifying either to raiſe up or to dig down, as עוררו here uſed doth, to pervert the whole ſentence, yea the whole verſe, making it to ſpeak of the Caldeans deſtroying of Tyre, and of their incomparable greatneſs, whenas nothing elſe is here ſet forth, but an example of the Aſſyrians overthrown by the Caldees, from amongſt whom they came, as the more ancient, who when Aſhur was a great Monarchy, had no name of a people, yet at length they overthrew and brought to ruine that Monarchy, and therefore it was not for the Kingdom of Tyre to contemn the Lords threatning of their ruine here, as if they were too mighty to be ſubdued, for a greater Kingdom by farre had been ruined by a people of no name or note, even the Aſſyrians the founders by the Caldees in times paſt under them, the Proverb being thus verified, Mater peperit filiam, filia devoravit matrem, that they might tremble and fear, as being much more liable to deſtruction by the ſame Caldees, if the Lord ſhould bring them againſt Tyre, their ſtrength being now doubled by the acceſſion of Aſſyria to Babylon. Of this an hint only indeed is given here, but Ezek. 26. it is plainly ſhewed, That Nebuchadnezzar ſhould deſtroy Tyre. Now that Ierom and the Expoſitors following him do pervert the ſenſe, is plain, becauſe here are no words ſignifying, There is not ſuch a people, but it was not a people; that is, had no name, but went long under the name of Aſhur, and was under Aſhur; and whereas they reade it, They have captived the ſtrong ones, Hebr. it is, They have raiſed up the towers thereof, &c. that is, ſaith Calvin, by bringing Calvin. them to a civil kinde of living, whereupon they built them Cities, who had been before a rude and wilde people living in Tents, but finally the Caldee made the Aſſyrian Kingdom to fall, as is ſhewed in the laſt words, which are verbatim according to the Hebrew, He put it to falling, Cal. He brought it to vaſtity.

Verſ.15. Hieronym. Tyre ſhall be forgotten ſeventy years, &c. That is, ſaith Jerom, according to the time of Jeruſalems deſolation, over which Tyre inſulted, As the dayes of one King, that is, of Nebuchadnezzar, under whoſe Kingdom Judea was held ſo long, but others, ſaith he, referre it indefinitely to the reign of any King, that liveth longeſt. Other Expoſitors generally agree about the ſeventy years, Muſculus. as being the time that the Babylonians reigned after this, wherein no eminent place, ſuch as Jeruſalem and Tyre were, might be rebuilded for fear of rebellion Vatabl. and trouble. But Vatablus in expounding theſe words, As the dayes of one King Calvin. ſaith, it may be referred to David, who lived ſeventy years; Calvin, to one King, as to any other one man, whoſe age is ſaid *Pſal.*90. to be ſeventy years, but it is ſaid of one King, and not of one man, becauſe Tyre had a King. I preferre that of Jerom, underſtanding by one King, one Kingdom of the Caldees laſting ſo long, and triumphing over Tyre, as over Jeruſalem in the ruines all that time. For why David ſhould be here meant, or man indefinitely, eſpecially one well maintained, as a King, as Cornelius à Lapide hath it, I cannot ſee; but why the Caldee Kingdom ſhould be meant, we may ſee good reaſon, becauſe although Evilmerodach reigned after Nebuchadnezzar, and Belſhazzar after him, before the fulfilling of this, yet they were all but as one King, becauſe of the ſame line, it being the manner of the Scripture thus to ſet forth any Monarch with his iſſue ſucceeding him in his Kingdom, till the laſt be cut off, as *Dan.*2.39. After thee ſhall ſtand up another Kingdom, where but one King is ſpoken of, as ſtanding till another Kingdom, becauſe he ſtood till then in his poſterity; ſo likewiſe Junius, rendring it, Quaſi anni unius, omitting the word Regis. Now Tyre is ſaid to be forgotten all this time, becauſe no City, and no reſort unto it till this time expired. After that ſhall Tyre ſing as Hieronym. an harlot] That is, ſaith Jerom, ſhall have joy for many Nations frequent her, as in times paſt, as many lovers frequent an harlot, being contemned, no not once thought upon all the time, that ſhe lies ſqualidous in her ſordes: for ſo lay Tyre thoſe ſeventy years in his ruines. It is meant then that Tyre ſhould be built again, and be a Mart again.

Verſ.16. She is bidden to ſing as an harlot, becauſe when her lovers have forſaken her, ſhe ſeeks by ſweetly ſinging to bring them back unto her again, ſo Tyre ſhould ſeek after her rebuilding to draw other Nations to reſort thither for Lyra. traffick again, thus Lyra. Now a merchandizing City, ſaith Calvin, is com- Calvin. pared to an harlot, not becauſe it is ſimply evil to get gain by Merchandize, but becauſe this trade of life is commonly accompanied with much deceit in words and ſhew of wares, whereby as the harlot by ſinging, merchants allure men to their great hurt to deal with them. Muſculus ſaith, That as an harlot Muſcul. having the French-Pox, is forſaken of all her lovers, but being healed ſeeks again by decking her body, painting face and ſinging, to allure men unto her, ſo Tyre. And the Prophet *verſ.*16. doth not bid her do thus, but in bidding, Take the harp, &c. he propheſieth, that ſhe ſhall ſo do, her chaſtiſement ſhall not work ſo with her, but that ſhe ſhall Redire ad ſuum ingenium, by all kinde of fraud to ſeek gain and riches, as before in her proſperity in times paſt. Wherefore it is ſaid *Verſ.*17.

Verſ.17. She ſhall return to her merchandize, and fornicate, &c. The ſame word being uſed to ſet forth merchandize, which ſignifieth whoredome; ſo Zuinglius; But the word זנה here uſed, is only put for whoring or receiving as an hoſt, ſo as the merchants there did ſtrangers to their own great gain. Some underſtand whoredom properly, becauſe men coming thither being from their own wives, defiled their women; or ſpiritual whoredom with Idols, but ſo all Nations might likewiſe then have been taxed. But ſith it is here intimated, That Tyre ſhould be built again, and indeed it was, elſe how could Alexander afterwards have deſtroyed it? a Queſtion ariſeth upon comparing this with Ezek. 26.14. Thou ſhalt be built no more; How that was verified? Some anſwer, It is meant not

Hieronym. in Ezek.26.

not in the ſame place, but cannot prove it. Some, that it was built no more to come to that ſtate and glory, becauſe it was alwayes after under others, Perſians, Greeks and Romans, ſo Jerom, and Emman. Sa. Laſtly, ſome not a long time after, for it was not re-built in all thoſe ſeventy years, and ſo the word עוד is there taken, and 1 *Sam.*7.13. Joel 2.19. and herein I reſt, becauſe Ezekiel ſaith not, No more for ever, but only, no more.

Verſ.18.
Hieron.
Calvin.
Note.
Joſephus.
Guil.Tyrius.

And her treaſure and merchandize ſhall be holineſſe to the Lord, &c. As Babylon, Aſhur, Egypt and Damaſcus were before ſpoken of, Babylon as a figure of the everlaſting deſtruction of the wicked, the reſt being to be turned to the Chriſtian faith in the time of the Goſpel, being inſtanced in particularly, ſome for all other Nations, ſo is Tyre here, the laſt of them all. Here then is a Prophecie of Tyres being converted to the Chriſtian faith, at what time her riches formerly gotten by deceit ſhall be well imployed in maintaining Gods Miniſters, which ſhall preach amongſt them the Goſpel of Jeſus Chriſt, and giving to his poor members. It ſhall not be laid up] That is, ſaith Calvin, after their old covetous manner, when all their trafficking was to enrich themſelves, gathering goods together with an unſatiable deſire by any means, but now being converted, they ſhall be liberal in diſtributing them. Their merchandize ſhall be addicted to them that dwell before the Lord] That they may eat to fulneſſe, and have a thick covering; That is, to his Miniſters, who then were Prieſts and Levites, now Preachers of the Goſpel, for they dwell as it were before the Lord, in that as his ſervants they wholly intend his work for the ſalvation of ſouls, which he hath purchaſed by the bloud of Chriſt. And of Chriſtians liberality, which ſhould be to them, ſee *Gal.*6.6. 1 *Cor.*9. And this liberality muſt be, not to afford them a little food for them and theirs, but food to fulneſs, that is, in plentifull manner, and likewiſe cloathing enough, the two moſt neceſſary things for this life being put for all other, which ſheweth, that they who are truly converted, by liberality to the maintenance of Gods ſervice, and to the relieving of his poor, get their riches ſanctified, which are otherwiſe polluted, and therefore are not covetous horders and gatherers without end, as aiming at nothing but to be very rich in this world, as the thing wherein their felicity conſiſteth. For thick cloathing, Vulgar Latine hath, Veſtientur ad vetuſtatem, becauſe the word ſignifies as well old as thick; our New Tranſlation durable, reſpecting rather the ſenſe then the proper meaning of the word, and he that renders it old, underſtands the ſame, viz. cloathing that is not torn, till it be very old. How this was fulfilled under the Old Teſtament we know not, but only *Ioſeph. lib.*12. *antiq.cap.*12. it is ſaid, That the Tyrians were overcome by the Maccabees, and the prey taken was dedicated to the Lord, and Simon is ſaid to have ruled from Tyre to Egypt, 1 Mac.11.59. But under the New Teſtament, Pſal. 45.12. it is propheſied, That the daughter of Tyre ſhould come with a preſent. And one ſaith, That Anno Domini 300. there was a moſt flouriſhing Church at Tyre, which continued ſix hundred years, then it was taken by the Saracens, and retaken by Chriſtians, Venetians, and others, Gnare Mundus Patriarch of Ieruſalem being Captain, and continued in the faith an hundred ſixty five years, till that Anno 1289. it came again into the Saracens hands, or the Turks, who are maſters of it to this day.

CHAP. XXIV.

Hieron.

HEre ſaith Jerom, after deſtruction denounced to particular Nations, from Chap. 13. hitherto, it is propheſied of the deſtruction of the whole world, and of the torments of the wicked, and the comforts of the faithfull. Thus alſo *Ambroſ.de Elia & Jejunio cap.*21. and Lyra, &c. And here firſt this deſtruction is ſet forth *verſ.*1,2,3,4. Secondly, The cauſe of it ſet down, *verſ.*5. &c. Thirdly, That but a few ſhall be ſaved from it, *verſ.*13, &c. with their

Vatablus. Calv. Junius. Muſcul.

joyes. Fourthly, The miſeries of the wicked and ſtraights then, *verſ.*17, &c. Fifthly, Their everlaſting puniſhments after this *v.*22. But Vatablus and ſome others think, that the judgements of God againſt the Jews after their crucifying of Chriſt, are here propheſied of. Calvin and Junius, &c. will have it to be nothing but a capitulation of judgements going before againſt all the Nations about Judea, and againſt Iudea alſo, being before from *Chap.*13. ſpoken of ſeverally, now they are put together and further aggravated, ſome things being interlaced for the comfort of the faithfull, when the world ſhould thus be as in a combuſtion. Lyra ſaith, That ſome apply them to Idumæa, againſt which he propheſied *Chap.*21. but now having more to ſpeak againſt that Countrey, he addeth it here: but let the whole context be conſidered, and there will be found no colour of reaſon for this, only *Chap.*34.5. Idumæa is in particular named, when the greateſt judgement is threatned againſt all the wicked. And whereas it is moſt generally received, that the laſt judgement of the whole world is here propheſied of, it cannot be, becauſe, as Calvin hath it, a flouriſhing eſtate of the Church is after this ſpoken of in this world. Neither may it be reſtrained to Iudea only, becauſe *v.*21. he threatneth the Kings of the earth. Yet I cannot ſee but that all which is ſaid, untill *v.*21. may well be applied to the Land of Iudea, propheſied againſt before *Ch.*22. becauſe he ſaith, ver. 2. it ſhall be with the people as with the Prieſt, and *verſ.*5. he alledgeth this as the cauſe, that they had changed the Ordinances and broken the Covenant, and verſ. 13. ſpeaks of a remnant eſcaping, who ſhould rejoyce, which properly belong all to Iſrael, and not to other Nations. Neither doth he any where inveigh againſt others for drunkenneſs but Iſrael, as here *verſ.*7,8,11. implicitly, as he alſo did *Chap.*5. and doth *Chap.*28. I conceive therefore that the Prophet not having ſpoken all that which he had to ſay againſt Iudah and Iſrael, and other Nations round about before threatned, reſumeth the ſame kinds of argument again, that the hearers might be the more moved to fear and repent, beginning firſt with Iudah. 2. Proceeding to other Kings, *v.*21. 3. Declaring joyfull things to Iudah, for which they ſhould praiſe the Lord, *verſ.*23. and Chap. 25. 26. 4. The deſtruction of Leviathan, whereby the mightieſt enemies of the Jews ſeem to be underſtood, *Ch.*27.1,12,13. for which again a ſong of praiſe. 5. He inveigheth againſt Iſrael for his ſins, threatning deſtruction therefore *Chap.*28. 6. Againſt Iudah again under the name of Ariel, Chap. 29. and 30. in both after judgements propheſying of mercy. 7. Againſt Aſſyria, Chap.30.31. and ſome reproof againſt Iudah coming between, and comfort, *Chap.*31.8,9. the threatning againſt Aſſyria is again renewed. 8. He propheſieth mixedly of joyfull and terrible things to Gods people, *Chap.*32. and 33. 9. Putting all the enemies of Gods people together, he threatneth them with deſtruction in more terrible words, *Chap.*34. Laſtly, He ſpeaketh of the moſt happy and joyfull condition of the Jews, being converted to the faith of Chriſt, *Chap.*35.

Verſ.1. Hieron.

Behold the Lord emptying the earth, making it naked, changing the face of it, &c. All which may be ſeen in the Prophecies before-going, for the earth was then emptied, when the goods of all the Nations round about were made a prey to their enemies, and made naked when their houſes and wals were broken and burnt down, and the face changed, when of free they were made ſervile, and the inhabitants diſperſed] when captived. Jerom who ſeeks to adapt all this to the deſtruction of the whole world, underſtands the diſperſing of the inhabitants, ſome to places of torment, and ſome of joy, but taking it for the emptying of the Land where Prieſts were, and the Law, that is, of Iudea, is moſt agreeable to *v.*2. and *v.*5.

Verſ.2. Muſcul.

And it ſhall be like Prieſt like people, &c. This is ſpoken, to ſhew, that if any ſhould think for their riches or ſuperiority, or their moſt holy function, to eſcape better then inferiour perſons, they were much deceived: for all degrees ſhould ſuffer and be abaſed alike, when Gods judgements ſhould come. And indeed, as Muſculus hath it, ſin and unworthy walking in any office abaſeth ſeth ſuch an officer or ſuperiour, ſo as that now he is no more to be accounted of for his office, but amongſt the moſt infim and baſeſt ſort of men. For it is not ſaid, An elder is worthy of double honour, but, that rules well, if not, then he ought to have no honour at all, but to be uſed, as the baſeſt ſort, agreeable to which is that ſaying of Jerom, Virtus ubique honoretur, vitium ubique deturpetur, Let virtue be honoured in whomſoever, and vice debaſed in whomſoever; In Jac. 2. but Kings are ſtill alwayes to be excepted, whom we are bidden to honour without this condition, as where it is ſaid, Fear God, honour the King, 2 Pet. 2. 17. and children their parents, as Shem and Iaphet did, as in whom is a greater Image of divine Majeſty.

Verſ. 5. The earth alſo is defiled under the inhabitants thereof, &c. The word חנף here uſed hath divers ſignifications beſides defiling, as to be impious, to deal wickedly, to be condemned or puniſhed: Wherefore Vatablus noteth, Vatabl. That divers do render it diverſly. But becauſe verſ. 6. he ſaith, A curſe hath conſumed the earth, it is plain, that the beſt rendring of it is, The earth is puniſhed, for according to this it is ſaid Ier. 23. 10. The Land mourns becauſe of ſwearing; ſee alſo Hoſ. 4. 3. Becauſe they have tranſgreſſed the Laws, &c. The Laws were the ten Commandments, the Ordinances thoſe of circumciſing, ſacrificing, &c. the Covenant, that made with Abraham, whereby it appears, that this Prophecie pertained to the Jews, and ſo doth all that followeth even to verſ. 13. for Ieruſalem, ſaith Calvin, was the City of vanity, which ſhould now be brought to this miſery.

Verſ. 13. There ſhall be as the ſhaking of an Olive-tree. The Septuagint, As if one ſhould ſhake an Olive-tree, ſo they ſhall ſhake them] Neither according to the Hebrew nor the ſenſe, which is, that when Iudea ſhall be ſo judged, a very few ſhall be ſaved according to Chap. 1. 9, 10, 20. But the ſaved ſhall have joy, and praiſe God, Verſ. 14, 15.

Verſ. 16. But I ſaid (O my leanneſſe, my leanneſſe) Vulgar Latine, Secretum meum mihi. Which Ierom expoundeth, Hieronym. as if it had been ſaid, It ſtrikes me with extream ſorrow to ſee, as I do by the Spirit of prophecie, what a wonderfull great number ſhall in the end be deſtroyed for ever, they are ſo many, that I cannot utter it, therefore I muſt keep this ſecret to my ſelf. Cald. Paraphraſt. Cald. Paraphra. The ſecret of the reward of the juſt is revealed unto me, and the ſecret of revenge] But they ſay thus, preſuming that the laſt judgement is here propheſied of. But Hebr. it is, My leanneſſe, for ſo רי ſignifieth, and not ſecret, although ר a Caldee word ſignifieth ſecret. And he meaneth leanneſſe by continual grief in foreſeeing the judgements to come upon his people; ſo Junius. Junius. But Calvin Calvin. having firſt gone upon the ſame expoſition, finally preferreth that, rendring it ſecret within, conceiving that in thus ſaying he laments the troubles and diſſentions within the Church after all the former judgements, and only a few reſerved, which ſtand for the true faith, which is moſt to be lamented of all other judgements, that there ſhould be digladiations of the godly amongſt themſelves, That there ſhould be inteſtine enemies, and domeſtical, which the Church can neither flee from, nor put to flight. Inteſtinos & domeſticos hoſtes Eccleſia nec fugere poteſt, nec fugare. This indeed may ſeem very plauſible, but it is too farre, the word neither ſignifying ſecret, having ' added to it, which as Rab. Joſeph noteth, is not an affix here, but a radical letter, which appears by the next particle לי, neither thus taken doth it agree with the following words, wherein he crieth out againſt tranſgreſſours and wicked men, which cauſed all this miſery, and his ſorrow therefore, as in the next words, the treacherous dealers have dealt treacherouſly. &c. where the ſame word בגד is uſed five times, and hereby are ſet forth not ſimple but malicious and obſtinate tranſgreſſors.

Verſ. 17. Fear and the pit and the ſnare are upon thee: This alſo as the words before-going is ſpoken to the Jews, although it be ſaid, thou inhabitant of the earth, for it may as well be rendred, of the Land, that is, of Judea, although Muſculus Muſculus. preferres the taking of it as ſpoken to all the Nations together before threatned, but becauſe he comes not manifeſtly to others till verſ. 21. it ſeems not ſo good to make any disjoyning of thoſe words from the former, as he doth. The Prophet having complained in the former words of mens intolerable wickedneſſe, after comfort ſpoken to the faithfull, *ver.*14,15. here ſheweth into what miſeries they ſhould fall, that they might not take any comfort from that which was ſaid before of their exceeding great joies, but be diſmaied at their own fearfull condition. And he ſets it forth by wilde beaſts before the Hunters, for as the Hounds coming abroad they fear and run, and ſuch as ſo eſcape tearing in pieces fall into pits made to take them, and ſuch as are not ſo taken, run unawares into a ſnare or net, ſo he ſheweth that it ſhould be with the wicked Jews: See the ſame *Jer.*48.43,44. Note. And in this caſe the hand of God is manifeſtly ſhewed againſt thoſe, that having eſcaped one danger, ceaſe not, neither are long free from another, and a third, till they be confounded, that they may be moved by the firſt and ſecond at the leaſt to repent, and not harden themſelves till the coming of the third.

Verſ.18. For the Windows from on high are open, &c. Some ſaith Calvin, think that it is here alluded to the floud in Noahs time, and ſo do I think alſo, becauſe the ſame phraſe is uſed, and the deſtruction of all, none eſcaping, whitherſoever they fled, could not more aptly be ſet forth then by that, leſt any ſhould bear themſelves upon ſuch an hope. For how ſhould they eſcape that when they climbe up aloft have the windows of heaven open to let out judgements upon them, and if they think to be hid in any cave of the earth, have the foundations thereof ſhaken againſt them? Calvin. Neither doth Calvin when he hath declined this, ſpeak to any other but the ſame effect, that all the powers above and beneath ſhall be moved againſt them to their deſtruction.

Verſ.19. The earth is utterly broken down, &c. That is, The judgement coming, which is here threaned againſt Judea, ſhall not only hunt the wicked to deſtruction, but as when the foundation of the earth is ſhaken by an earthquake, many buildings ſometimes alſo fall, and the earth is rent aſunder in ſome places, filling all men with terrour, ſo by the enemies before threatned to be ſent againſt them, ſhould their Land, their Temple, and goodly buildings, being brought Verſ.20. to ruinous heaps. And he varies the phraſe four times. The earth is clean diſſolved, moved exceedingly: Verſ. 20. Toſſed too and fro and removed, in which Calvin. ſtrain of eloquence, ſaith Calvin, he goeth on proſecuting the allegory from the earth begun, *ver.*18. not out of any affectation of ſhewing his Rhetorick, but to affect mens dull mindes the more with fear before the Lord, whom a little ſpeaking will not move, that if by all this they were not moved, they might be left without excuſe. Note. And for this cauſe ſhould we Preachers be inſtant, and preſſe our admonitions and threatnings home againſt the wicked, as being the way of Gods Spirit ſpeaking by his Prophets, not forbearing through faint-heartedneſſe, nor languiſhing through lukewarmneſſe: Rev. 3.18. In ſaying that the earth ſhall reel to and fro, and ſtagger like a drunken man, he means neither by this nor the words following, the tranſgreſſion thereof ſhall be heavy upon it, and it ſhall fall and not riſe again, and it ſhall be removed as a cottage: That the frame of the whole earth ſhall be thus, as at the laſt day, though ſome take it ſo, who have been before confuted, but the carrying of the Jews into captivity, and the removing of Iſrael into other countreys, Heathens being brought from thence to inhabit in their Land, as 2 King. 17. as a cottage or Tent is to lodge in for a while, and then is removed, and as a drunken man by reaſon of a giddineſſe poſſeſſing his brain, being carried hither and thither, knows not where he is, no more ſhould they, becauſe they were carried into countries which they never ſaw before, thus by the earth ſynechdochically, the inhabitants being meant, with whom God was ſo highly offended for their abominations.

Verſ.21. Calvin. God will puniſh the hoſt of high ones, and the Kings of the earth, &c. Divers Expoſitions are here brought by divers. 1. Some ſaith Calvin, think the firſt words to be ſpoken of the Sun, Moon, and Stars, which are the hoſt on high. 2. Some of the devils, becauſe *Eph.*6.12. they are called powers in heavenly pla- ces. 3. Some of the Jews, who were by Gods ſingular favours towards them made higher then other Nations, whence their Land is called the high places of the earth, Iſa.58.14. for this laſt is Vatablus, yet Calvin holds rather, that none other are meant then kings, who are of the higheſt dignity: and that the next words and the Kings of the earth, are only exegeticall, it being only declared by them, who were meant by the high ones. Vatabl. Vatablus alſo ſaith, as the expoſitions are divers, ſo be the readings, ſome rendring it, the Lord will viſit the hoſt of the high ones on high, ſome exercitum ſuperorum in ſupernis. Sept. The Lord will bring his hand upon the ornament of heaven. But they are Heb. the Lord will viſit on high the hoſt on high: whereby I think it beſt with Vatablus to underſtand the Jews hitherto pointed at for the reaſon before-going, and in the next words the Kings of other Nations round about in the foregoing chapters threatned in particular as well as they. For if the next words of Kings were only exegeticall, the conjunction ו were ſuperfluous, and the word ארץ hitherto uſed to ſet forth the Land or earth, were cauſleſly varied here into אדמה in naming the Kings of the earth on the earth. Others then be manifeſtly meant here, and not the ſame which were ſpoken of before, becauſe the Kings of the earth on the earth are oppoſed to the high hoſt on high, that is, moſt probably, Gods peculiar people: but now for the moſt part degenerated through ſin, yet thus ſet forth in reſpect of that which they were, even an high hoſt on high, as the faithfull under the Goſpel are ſaid to ſit together with Chriſt in heavenly places. Eph.2.6. So that here the excellency of the faithfull, whom God hath peculiarly choſen, even above Kings in this world is ſet forth, Note. theſe are but Kings of the earth on earth, thoſe Kings or high ones on high, elevated by grace above an earthly condition, at the leaſt in their mindes, to heaven above. 1 Pet.2.9. Col.3.1. Phil.3,20.

Verſ.22. And they ſhall be gathered together as priſoners in the pit, &c. heb. they ſhall be gathered, the gathered being bound in a pit, that is, being through the judgement of God againſt them taken captive and bound with fetters of iron by their enemies, and impriſoned, for the word alſo ſignifyeth a priſon, if it be rendred a pit, a dungeon is meant. And hereby is ſhewed to what miſery even kings rebelling againſt God, are ſometimes brought, though not all, for ſome are ſlain, and ſo their impriſoning is prevented. Note. And what an abaſement is this to a king, to go from the throne to the dungeon, that they may learn to ſerve the Lord in humility and fear in this their elevated condition, Pſal.2. leſt not doing ſo, but proudly domineering they be brought thus low? Sasbont and others, Sasbont, &c. that follow Jerom, by the gathered into the pit, underſtand both devils and wicked kings ſpoken of, ver,21. for by devils they expound the hoſt of the high ones on high, and accordingly they ſay, that by the pit is meant the bottomleſſe pit, and whereas it is added, after many daies they ſhall be viſited, it is meant with puniſhments made more grievous. Origen, Origen. who by the high hoſt underſtands the Sun, Moon, and Stars, ſaith, that they having wicked ſouls tied unto them, be caſt into this pit, but after a long time be releaſed again, as all the damned ſhall be. But this groſſe errour is by all the Orthodox long ago cried down as contrary to the truth, which ſaith, theſe ſhall go into everlaſting fire, and Iſa.66. their worm never dies, and their fire never goeth out. Haimo Haimo. expounds their viſiting after many daies thus, they ſhall be viſited in their bodies at the time of the reſurrection being joyned again unto, and tormented with their bodies. Lyra, Lyra. after many daies paſt, ſince their ſins were committed, they ſhall ſuffer in hell therefore. Jerom Hieronym. the time of many daies being paſt they ſhall be viſited, that is, puniſhed ſtill forth on for ever and ever. Some applying both theſe verſes to the Jews in the Romans time, and the Romans who deſtroied them, the Jews being the high ones, the Romans the Kings of the earth, ſay, that the high ones were then viſited, when the Jews and their city were deſtroied by the Romans, and the Romans when after a long time of perſecuting the Church in Conſtantines time their idolatry was put down, at what time Satan was bound up a thouſand years, and after this long time they ſhall be viſited again by the coming of Antichriſt. But going according to the expoſition hitherto followed, here will be no place for any of theſe conjectures, and the laſt words which are hardeſt to be underſtood, will be made plain thus, when the people of God have long ſuffered the grievous things before ſpoken of, they ſhall be viſited with mercy again, and ſo verſ. 23. agreeth excellently.

Verſ.23. The Moon ſhall be abaſhed and the Sun confounded, when the Lord ſhall reign in Zion: for if the judgements before-going be referred to the laſt day, how ſhall the Lord reign gloriouſly in Zion? for then he ſhall no more reign in any part of the earth but in heaven for ever, the earth being deſtroied, But underſtanding this viſiting of the Jews after their great puniſhments, of Gods viſiting them in mercy, as after their 70 years captivity, by bringing them home again, or rather of his viſiting them after their farre longer diſperſion ſince the time of the Goſpel to convert them to the Chriſtian faith, and ſo to reduce them and make them to live in their own countrey in more proſperity then ever, nothing could be ſpoken more aptly to ſet this forth, it being ſuch a glorious condition as that the glory of the Moon or Sun were nothing to it. Calv. And upon this doth Calvin alſo touch a little, although he firſt expounds it of puniſhments, continuing after many daies upon the wicked, that they might not feed themſelves with hope of being ſoon delivered, although their miſeries for a time ſhould be moſt grievous. It may alſo be extended to ſome kings of other Nations before ſpoken of, and their kingdoms: for ſo it is *ch.*23. concluded touching Tyre, and ſome others, as will appear to him that ſhall reade, *chap.*15,16,17. &c.

CHAP. XXV.

Verſ.1. Hieronym. O Lord thou art my God, and I will exalt thee: Jerom taking this and four verſes more together ſaith, that here the Prophet ſpeaks in the perſon of the Nations, that ſhould under the Goſpel embrace the faith of Chriſt, when the Jews rejected it, and he both praiſeth God, *v.*1. for fullfilling his word touching the Gentiles in calling them, and propheſies of Jeruſalem overthrow for the Jews infidelity and malice againſt Chriſt, and that it ſhould never be built again, *ver.*2. and for the Gentiles converſion, whom he cals the ſtrong people and the terrible nations, that ſhould praiſe God for his grace towards them, *ver.*3. Who were ſo called becauſe by their great ſtrength they ſubdued all that oppoſed them, eſpecially the Aſſyrians and Babylonians: *ver.*4. he alſo praiſeth God for his protecting Chriſt in his poor Chriſtians from the fury of perſecutors. For Chriſt is ſet forth as poor, *Zech.*9. and riding upon an Aſſe, and the poor received the Goſpel. Thus he, but he ſaith, that the Jews expound this city of Rome, which ſhall be in the end deſtroyed, and then the Jews called the poor, who are now ſubject to many miſeries, ſhall be relieved. But of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem never to be built again, as here threatned, he is ſo confident, that he derides ſuch as expect a reſtauration of the Jews to their own Land again, and their enjoying a flouriſhing eſtate. Calv. Calvin takes this as ſpoken by the Prophet, who conſidering the judgements of God before ſpoken of againſt the wicked, and the comforts of the faithfull, could not but break out into this affectionate thankſgiving, and praiſing of God and his truth. For he looked at theſe things though not to come till many years after, as certain, and ſo was affected greatly with them, as any true Prophet of God, (forſomuch as he is fuller of faith then the common ſort) muſt needs be. And by the city turned into ruinous heaps, he underſtands the cities of the Nations before threatned, the ſingular being put for the plurall, as is common amongſt the Hebrews. And by the poor ſheltered from ſtorms, ſuch as ſhould fear God in generall, to whom God hath alwaies been a protection in time of danger: Lyra. Lyra having expounded, *chap.*24. of the laſt judgement, when the world ſhall be deſtroied, underſtands this of perpetuall praiſes, that ſhall therefore be given to God by his Saints triumphing over all their enemies in heaven. Wherefore by the city turned into ruinous heaps, he will have the world meant, which ſhall never be built again. But becauſe his foundation faileth, as was before ſhewed, it muſt not be ſo underſtood, and for that which followeth, v.6. of a feaſt that ſhould be made upon this mountain of fat things, being alſo by himſelf expounded of the Lords Supper: but this I ſuppoſe, no man will ſay ſhall be kept any more in heaven, and verſ. 20. it is ſaid, that Moab ſhall be troden under foot, which can by no means be applied to that time, yet he impugneth that of Jerom taking the city for Jeruſalem, becauſe, ſaith he, the city here ſpoken of ſhall never be built again, but Jeruſalem was built again long ago, after the deſtruction by the Romans, and whereas it is ſaid not to be built in the ſame place, he ſaith, but contrary to all others, that it ſtandeth upon the ſame foundation, only all places pertaining to it of old are not within the compaſſe of the new buildings. But receive this and deny the prophecy of Chriſt to be true. Thy habitation ſhall be left deſolate, &c. Mat.23. For the city here to be underſtood, it appears to be meant of Jeruſalem, becauſe that was the city in particular threatned, Chap. 24.10. as the context from *verſ.*5. to the 10. plainly ſheweth. And here being a thankſgiving for things related there, it doth not agree to expound this of any other city but that, whereas this ſaying it ſhall not be built again for ever, ſeemeth to make againſt it, the like was already ſaid before of Tyre, Chap. 23. 17. compared with Ezek 26 14. from which an anſwer to this alſo may fetcht. Moreover the Word לעולם here uſed doth not alwaies ſignifie to the worlds end, but a very long time, the end whereof is not known. And this I ſay the rather, becauſe when upon the Jews converſion their ſin ſhall be taken away, moſt probably the effect hereof deſolation of their city ſhall have an end alſo, and they ſhall return and build it again moſt ſplendidly. And the ſame which is called the city is alſo ſet forth by the name of the palace of ſtrangers. Adam Sasbout. Now by ſtrangers are ſometime underſtood the Heathen of all other Nations beſides Judea, and ſuch as had not the ſame rites with them, and ſometime the wicked of any Nation, as Pſal. 18. Strange children have lyed unto me. and *Pſal.*58. They have been eſtranged from their mothers womb: and in this ſenſe the Jews eſtranged from God by ſin and malice againſt Chriſt, are ſet forth here, their city and the palace of ſtrangers being all one and the ſame. And that by the city turned into ruinous heaps, the deſtruction of Jeruſalem by the Romans is meant, appears further, ver. 3. where he ſpeaks of the city or cities of the Verſ.3. Nations glorifying and fearing God after this. And what elſe can be meant hereby but the rejection of the Jews turned to the planting in of the Gentiles, as *Rom.*11. becauſe they embraced the faith, when the Jews refuſed, according to that *Act.*28.28. The ſalvation of God is ſent unto the Gentiles, and they will hear it?

Verſ.4. Thou haſt been a ſtrength to the poor, a refuge from the ſtorm, and ſhadow from the heat, when the blaſt of the terrible ones is againſt the wall: Hereby he ſheweth that at the ſame time that he deſtroied Jeruſalem, he ſhewed ſpeciall favour to ſuch poor Chriſtians as were there, as indeed he did, calling them to Pella, before the Romans beſieged the city, by which means they were out of that danger which was as a tempeſt being ſo violent in thoſe parts, that unleſſe a man were under ſhelter at the coming thereof, he could not eſcape in ſafety, and likewiſe the heat was extream. But when they were thus under ſhelter, the Romans meant by the terrible ones, overthrew the wals of the city.

Verſ.5. Thou ſhalt bring down the work of ſtrangers, as the heat in a day place, &c. here the Prophet goeth on in his allegory taken from a ſtorm and heat, from which Chriſtians ſhall be ſheltered. As the heat by the ſhadow of a cloud coming between, is abated, and made nothing grievous, ſo he meaneth that the heat of that war made by the Romans ſhould be to Chriſtians, Gods protection coming as a cloud over them, they ſhould not be hurt thereby. And to ſhew the greatneſſe of the heat he cals it heat in a dry place, for in ſuch a place the heat of the Sun is moſt annoying, and he varies the phraſe of terrible ones, calling them ſtrangers, to ſhew that they who ſhould overthrow the city of the wicked Jews, called ſtrangers for their wickedneſſe, were alſo a wicked nation, and ſtrangers from the Covenant of promiſe, as the Gentiles are called, Eph. 2.12. For that which is added, the branch of the terrible ones ſhall be brought low: here again be ſpeaks of the ſtrong Nations imploied againſt the Jews for their ſins, as thoſe that after this work done to which God in his providence had appointed them ſhould alſo be judged, as the Aſſyrians, and Caldees, and Romans alſo, who though they flouriſhed long after Jeruſalem was deſtroied, yet within four hundred years after they were over-run by the Goths and Vandals, and brought very low, continuing ſo many years.

Verſ.6. And upon this mountain ſhall the Lord make a feaſt of fat things to all people, &c. By this feaſt is meant that *Mat.*22. to which the great King inviteth, that is, to beleeve in Jeſus Chriſt, and ſo to be fed with his promiſes of pardon of ſin, and life everlaſting, of which there is joy, as at a moſt ſumptuous feaſt, where fat meats and wines chearing the ſpirits are moſt abundantly. For ſo it is there ſaid, My fatlings are killed, and all things ready, and *Pſal.*22.16. it is ſaid, The meek ſhall eat and be ſatisfied. To this effect alſo Calvin and Muſculus &c. Jerom referring it alſo to the time of the Goſpel ſaith, that all theſe fat things are the priviledges of the Jews, as being Gods peculiar people now turned over to the Gentiles. Before he fed one Nation only with this milk and honey, but now all Nations imbracing the Goſpel. And this feaſt is ſaid to be made upon this mountain, becauſe in Canaan, the Metropolis whereof was Jeruſalem and Mount Zion, the Goſpel was firſt preached, and there men of all Nations under heaven, began firſt to hear it, *Act.*2.

Calvin.
Muſculus.
Hieron.

Verſ.7. And he will deſtroy in this mountain the face of the covering, &c. Jerom præcipitavit faciem vinculi colligati ſuper omnes populos, & telam quam orditus eſt ſuper univerſas nationes: Underſtanding the band of ſinne whereby they were bound, and conſequently of death before Chriſts ſufferings, whereby ſin was expiated, and death turned into life, becauſe by death the faithfull are now let into life, in regard of which bleſſed change tears are wiped from their eyes, Verſ.8. which before they had cauſe to ſhed, as he addeth, *ver.*8. as being moſt miſerable, and in an ignominious and reproachfull eſtate, being counted uncircumciſed and heathen, but now this diſgrace ceaſing, as in the next words, and the rebuke of his people ſhall he take away from off all the earth. But the word הלוש doth not ſignifie a band but a covering, and the word is doubled to ſhew the thickneſſe of this covering. Calvin ſaith, that ſome underſtand hereby the calamities of Chriſts Churches in all places, covering them or overwhelming them, ſo that the glory thereof could not appear, but he and Muſculus both do rather prefer another underſtanding, viz. the covering of ignorance. But forſomuch as the word rendred ſhall take away, ſignifyeth to ſwallow up, and in varying the word, he ſaith, the rebuke of his people, it is not ſo genuine hereby to underſtand their ignorance as their outward miſery, cauſing tears, which he ſaith ſhould be wiped away. Wherefore I reſolve, that the deliverance of the Church in the time of Conſtantine, after perſecutions of long continuance, is here propheſied of. They were all that time covered as it were with ſackcloth, as the two witneſſes in the Revelation, and did ſow in tears, and had it objected to them, that their God was poor, and unable to help them, becauſe they his ſervants were in ſuch want and miſery. But he ſaith, this covering ſhould be ſwallowed up by riches and glory coming to them in ſtead thereof, as Mordecai had his ſackcloth taken off, and royall apparell put on, and then they ſhould reap in joy, and their miſery as a ſign of thoſe that ſerved not the true God ſhould no more be objected to them. After they had ſuffered for a time he here to their comfort promiſeth them deliverance, and this joy begun here ſhall be everlaſting in heaven, for which John ſpeaking of that Rev. 7. 17. hath the ſame words. And herein and in permitting his to encounter with many af-

Calvin.
Muſcul.

flictions firſt the Lord dealeth with his ſervants, as Cyrus did ſometime with his ſouldiers, he cauſed them to labour hard one day in cutting down wood Xenophon. and other works, and the next day made them a great feaſt, then he asked them whether of theſe two daies they had rather have, they all with one conſent ſaid, This: then he, Ye muſt then manfully fight againſt your enemies till you have overcome them, and then ye ſhall feaſt with their ſpoils. Some following the verſion of Ierom underſtand Antichriſt, ſaith Saſbont, Haimo the devil, Carthuſian the effect of originall ſin, Th. Aquin. death, Judei the ſucceſſe of the Gentiles: others of them their craft and ſubtlety covering over their evil intent againſt the Jews.

After this the thankſgiving of the faithfull is ſet forth, and then it is ſaid, In this mountain ſhall the hand of the Lord reſt, and Moab ſhall be troden down, &c. Verſ.10. That the Church ſhould have good cauſe to rejoyce, here are two things promiſed. 1. Gods continuall preſence and protection in his mountain, by which his Church is meant, he would not be to her as a lightning, which ſoon vaniſheth away, but continuing. 2. For her enemies ſet forth by Moab, they ſhall be troden under foot as chaff upon the dunghill, a thing in thoſe parts ſo baſe that they made no more account of it, but to caſt it out and to tread it under foot as dung, Vulg. Lat. Ut plauſtro, an inſtrument to cut withall, but then it muſt come from רנה, but Vatablus and others derive it from דמן ſignifying dung, the word is Madmenah. He ſeems herein to allude to that which David did to them, 2 *Sam.*8.2. But Madmena, ſaith Calvin, is the name of a city, *Jer.*16.4 and haply by treading them under as chaff in Madmenah, he meant in one of their moſt fruitfull cities: thus he, but looking into Jeremy, I finde no ſuch name, but only דמן dung, and looking back to Iſa. 10.31. there Madmenah is mentioned, as a city in the tribe of Benjamin, and not in Moab. Leaving this therefore I reſt in the former, nothing elſe by this ſimile meant, but the greateſt abaſement of Moab that might be, and becauſe Moab was a continuall enemy to the Jews, who were Gods peculiar people, the abject condition in which all the enemies of the Church ſhould be, when God had once ſet it up in all places amongſt the Gentiles.

And he ſhall ſpread forth his hands as one that ſwimmeth in the midſt of them, &c. Verſ.11. Calvin. Here by another ſimilitude, ſaith Calvin, he ſheweth how the Lord ſhould do all that hath been before ſaid for the comfort of his people, and the confuſion of their enemies, viz. not coming with the noiſe of arms and men to fight, but without all noiſe, as one ſwimming pierceth the waters, and paſſeth through them, ſo the Lord by the power of his Spirit paſſeth through all difficulties, there being no reſiſtance in any, that can hinder his effecting of this great work. Ad. Saſbont referring it to Moab ſaith, he ſhall be as one ſwimming Sasbout. ſtretching out his hands and feet, as a man overcome, and in the water ſtrugling to ſave himſelf from drowning. Lyra alſo expounds it thus, rendring it, Lyra. ſtretching out his hands under him, and to make this ſenſe good, he ſaith, he ſpeaks according to our Proverb, when one brings another moſt under, he ſaith, I will make thee lie like a frog, and thus is a man ſwimming. Vatablus Vatabl. refers this to Chriſt ſtretching out his hands upon the croſſe whereby he overcame and brought under the devil, that had the power of death, ſet forth by Moab, and all the enemies of his Church. And this doth moſt arride me, becauſe a man ſtretching out his hands to ſwim in the water, is labouring for life, and may ſeem moſt unfit and unable by ſo doing to prevail over his enemies. In like manner Chriſt having his hands ſtretched out upon the croſſe, when he ſuffered death, might ſeem no way able by this his ſuffering to ſubdue his enemies, yet he did, *Heb.*2.15. and *Col.*2.15. and this is further confirmed by the words following, and ſhall abaſe his glory with the layings in wait of his hands: Our New Tranſlation referring it to Moab, with the ſpoils of their hands, ſome with the holes of his hands: The Vulg. Lat. Cum alliſione manuum ejus, Vatablus, arms or cubits of his hands, ſo ſpoken becauſe herewith a man ſwimmeth, that allegory being ſtill inſiſted in. The word אריבות indeed ſignifyeth cubiti or inſidiæ, but becauſe Chriſts overcoming the devil was after the manner of thoſe that do ſtruere inſidias, that is, unawares, I preferre this. For certainly the devill never thought that by ſuffering death Chriſt ſhould overcome him, otherwiſe he could not have moved Judas to betray him, and ſo he got his overthrow as an enemy his by an ambuſh unexpectedly. For ſpoils, or colliſions: I finde no ſuch ſignification of the word, but Cataracts it ſignifieth alſo, or multitudes, both unapt to expound it by here; of Moabs ſtretching out his hands to ſwimme it cannot be meant, becauſe Moab was before ſaid to be troden under foot by him, and the ſame who trod under foot ſtretched out his hands to ſwim, and not Moab, who was now paſt doing ſo, and can it be thought that Moab ſhould abaſe his own glory, as it is here ſaid, that this he ſhould do: And theſe words in the midſt thereof, Heb. hath it, and not under him, evince, that he who ſwimmeth is not Moab but the Lord.

Verſ. 12. And the fortreſſe of thy high wals, he ſhall bring down, &c. This is added, becauſe the Moabites truſted to the ſtrength of their wals, as impregnable by any power, for which cauſe he uſeth not one but three words, he ſhall bring down, deſtroy, and caſt to the ground, and not reſting here, he addeth, to the duſt, Note. meaning that no memorial thereof ſhould be left. And this concerns all the wicked, if they ſhall think their ſtrength and works to be invincible, and hereupon carry themſelves proudly as Moab did, Chap. 16.6. they muſt know, that there is no ſtrength againſt the Lord, but when he will ſhall be brought down and become as the duſt.

CHAP. XXVI.

Verſ. 1. IN that day a ſong ſhall be ſung in Judah, &c. Here the Prophet returns again to the rejoycing of the faithfull begun to be ſpoken of, Cha. 25. 9. after the deſtruction of Moab, ſetting forth their enemies, by reaſon of whom they could never be free from oppreſſion in times paſt. And herein he did not only Muſcul. Calvin. aim at propounding a form of thankſgiving then, but alſo at the comfort whereupon they might bear themſelves in the time of their miſeries by the Babylonians, and afterwards by the Romans. And by the land of Judah is meant, both it and every other countrey where the faith of Chriſt ſhall be confeſſed, Pſal. 137. they could not for ſorrow ſing in a ſtrange land, but now in their own land they ſhould. And what ſhould they ſing, but We have a ſtrong City, Salvation hath God appointed for wals and bulwarks: this makes the faithfull ſing for joy, becauſe they have a ſtrong city, not like Jeruſalem as it formerly ſtood, the wals whereof were broken down, and it deſtroyed, but becauſe after all thoſe ſufferings by their enemies, a time ſhall come of being walled about with Gods ſingular protection, no enemies being able to prevail againſt them any more. For the defence of a city lyeth not in the wals, but though there be no wals God can protect it, and if there be the ſtrongeſt wals, if God protects it not, they are vain. Yet the beleeving Jews took care about building wals in the time of Nehemiah, becauſe means of ſafety are not to be neglected, but yet they are not to be truſted in where they are, but the almighty power and ſtrength of God only. A like ſpeech to this is alſo chap. 60.18. The ſafe ſtanding of this city is oppoſed to the chief city of Moab before ſpoken of, for as the wals thereof ſhould be caſt down, ſo contrariwiſe it is here promiſed, That none ſhould be able to ruine theſe wals; for which cauſe it is ſaid, not a Saviour, but Salvation in the abſtract, which none can hurt. The Vulgar for wals and bulwarks, hath muros & antemurale; which agreeth better with the Hebrew, for חל the word here uſed ſignifieth a little wall before a greater, or a ditch for the greater ſtrength. Underſtanding hereby ſalvation Jeſus, which Hebr. is the ſame word, he is ſaid to be our wall and fore-wall, 1. Becauſe he is a defence to ſuch as go about any thing in his name, for which the Apoſtle ſaith, Let all things be done in the name of our Lord Jeſus. 2. In time of danger his name being called upon, giveth preſent confidence, although before was fear and diffidence, as Bernard ſaith. 3. Becauſe faith in his name accompanied with works, as Jerom hath it, is a moſt ſtrong defence againſt our ſtrongeſt enemy, the devil, for it is a ſhield able to quench all his fiery darts, Epheſ.6. and who ſo reſiſts the devil being ſtrong in the faith, makes him flee from him.

Bern. in Cant. 15. Cui in periculis palpitanti invocatum ſalvatoris nomen non ſtatim fiduciam præſtitit & depulit metum? Cui in adverſis diffidenti jamque deficienti, ſi hoc nomen ſonuit, defuit fortitudo? Jam.4.7.

Verſ.2. Open the gates, that the righteous may enter in. Having ſpoken *Ver.*1. of a City moſt ſafe and excellent, that is, Jeruſalem to be re-built after their return out of the Babyloniſh Captivity, now it is ſhewed, what manner of perſons ſhould enter into it and inhabit there, and becauſe Jeruſalem was a figure of the Church gathered out of all Countreys and Nations, what manner of perſons it ſhall conſiſt of, viz. of righteous perſons keeping truth, not that there ſhall not be any wicked or hypocrites in the Church, whilſt this world ſtandeth, but becauſe at their return from Babylon, there ſhould be more righteous, and fewer wicked then ever before, for they were a true-hearted company, and full of faith in Gods promiſes that returned, or elſe they would not after ſo many years have returned from Babylon, where they were ſetled in quiet, but have ſtayed ſtill there, as others did. In like manner the Primitive Church was at the firſt full of righteous perſons, and true-hearted, though they afterwards degenerated, as alſo the Jews had done before the next deſtruction of Jeruſalem by the Romans; ſo that there was not a more profligate Nation under heaven. This City then conſiſted not ſoly of righteous perſons, but they that entred are called ſo comparatively, in reſpect of the corrupt conditions in the Church in other times, becauſe no ſuch pure Church ſhall ever be in this world, but chaff together with corn, and tares growing amongſt the wheat, as both Calvin and Muſculus agree. Some, namely the ancient Fathers and others after them, becauſe no ſuch righteous company can be in the time of this life, referre it to the world to come, and the glorified eſtate of Gods people in heaven: but other things following, and particularly *verſ.*4. where hope is ſpoken of, agree not to that eſtate. It might ſeem ridiculous indeed, that ſuch a City with gates ſhould be ſpoken of, to ſuch as lived after the wals and gates broken down by the enemy, lying alſo in the ruines ſo many years, but to faith looking at the power of God, and his truth in his promiſes, it was ſerious, and ſo a ſingular comfort. And in bidding the righteous enter in, who keep truth, he intimateth it to be full of unrighteouſneſs, when he wrote this, but the caſe ſhould be altered after purging by the fire of affliction, as *Chap.*1.29. Note that none enter the City of God rightly, that is, as bidden gueſts, that live in the ſin of injuſtice and fraud, but only the juſt and true in word and deed, who are upright-hearted, others the Lord will challenge, as him without the wedding-garment, ſaying, Friend, how cameſt thou in hither not having a Wedding-garment? But this is not ſpoken, as if any were perfectly righteous here, but ſincere in matters concerning either God or man, and not tainted with hypocriſie.

Muſculus. Calvin.

Note.

Thou wilt keep him in peace, peace, whoſe minde is ſtayed on thee, &c. Heb. The cogitation conjoyned thou wilt keep peace, peace, becauſe he truſteth in thee. The Vulgar Latine, Vetus error abiit, &c. becauſe the word יצר ſignifieth figmentum as well as imagination, and he expounds it, The old errour of the wicked now holds no longer, That they by reaſon of the pleaſures which they had in this world, were the moſt happy of all others, for then they ſhall plainly ſee the contrary, for he underſtands all as ſpoken of the life to come. But although here be a word, which may be rendred errour, yet here is none ſignifying old, or is gone. Wherefore to leave this, it is to be underſtood as ſpoken to God by the Prophet to the comfort of all the righteous, who were bidden *verſ.*2. to enter into the City, the wals whereof are ſalvation; here ſuch are further deſcribed to be the faithfull, whoſe hearts ſet forth by cogitation, are joyned to the Lord, which appears more by the words following, where they are ſaid to truſt in him, for theſe, he ſaith, Thou wilt keep; and to ſhew

Verſ.3.

Cornel. a Lap.

their happineſs, in the midſt of the ſentence he cries, Peace, Peace. Calvin Calvin. renders, Cogitationi conjunctæ tibi cuſtodis pacem; and Vatablus little differs here-from, but by conjoyned cogitation Calvin underſtands Gods thoughts towards man, viz. his thoughts of predeſtination from Eternity, becauſe this is the foundation of the peace and welfare of the faithfull, who do put their truſt in him; the word conjoyned or firm being added to thought, in oppoſition to mens thoughts, which are erratical, and not fixed, and therefore their keeping in ſafety ſhould depend thereupon, they ſhould alwayes be in danger. He hath alſo another Expoſition of the heart alwayes fixed and ſeriouſly ſet upon God, and not by fits and girds, for ſuch God keeps peace in abundance, as is meant by the word doubled here. But this he rejects, becauſe ſo the firſt words and the laſt come all to one. And why they may not ſo do I ſee no reaſon; yea there is reaſon, becauſe of the laſt words, to underſtand the firſt of ſuch as are fixedly bent to Gods truth, as was ſaid in the end of Verſ. 2. That keep truths, going from none, ſith this is yielded as a reaſon why they ſhall be ſafe, Becauſe they truſt in thee. And hence this Doctrine will not kindly flow, Note. that they only whoſe hearts are conſtantly to the truth, believe in God aright, and ſhall be kept in peace and peace, here and after death, here in peace of conſcience, then in everlaſting peace and reſt, that is, the moſt happy and proſperous eſtate that may be, as the word rendred peace ſignifieth.

Verſ.4. Truſt in the Lord for ever, &c. After the ſafe condition of the righteous, who truſt in God, ſhewed ver. 1,2,3. here they are exhorted therefore to truſt in him alwayes, forſomuch as he is a moſt mighty defence unto them not, for a time, but to all eternity.

Verſ.5. For he bringeth them down that dwell on high, &c. This anſwereth to that againſt Moab, Chap. 25.12. and therefore is to be expounded of the whole company of the wicked enemies of Gods people, of all whom Moab is put for an inſtance, and not for any particular City of Jeruſalem, as Jerom would have it, or of Rome, as the Hebrews, but it is the City of the devil, as Auguſtine cals it, diſtinguiſhing all men into two, the City of God and of the devil. And the ruining of this City is ſpoken of, as a reaſon why the faith- Muſcul. full ſhould truſt in God, becauſe there is great reaſon that we ſhould truſt in him, who by his allmighty power confounds all our enemies. Muſculus underſtands it of Babylon, that was then ſo high and mighty; and of ſpiritual Babylon, that is Rome, which ſhall ſhortly be thus brought down, and trodden under the feet of the poor, ſpoken of in the next verſe.

Verſ.6. Calvin. The foot ſhall tread it down, &c. That is, ſaith Calvin, the poor Jews, who lived long exiles there, when once by the Medes and Perſians it was ſubdued, ſhall be exalted by King Cyrus the Conquerour, and then they ſhall have the Babylonians in contempt, as much as ever they had them. But if it be underſtood of the wicked and righteous in general, it will better agree with the premiſſes, wherein Moab and not Babylon is threatned to be thus trodden under foot, and brought down to the duſt.

Verſ.7. The way of the juſt is uprightneſſe, or righteouſneſſes: And he addeth, That God weigheth it, ſome render it, Thou makeſt it equal, but the firſt is moſt agreeable to the Hebrew. The meaning is, in what eſtate ſoever the juſt are, they keep in the right way, never being beaten out of it by any judgements, and ſo God maketh their way finally proſperous, putting it, and the way of the wicked, as it were into the balance, to the one giving a good event at the laſt, and overthrowing the other. It is a confirmation then of that which was before ſaid of the wicked Cities being trodden down under the feet of the righteous, not for any merit in their own juſtice, but becauſe God who loveth Calvin. uprightneſs makes it ſo. And for this for more explanation ſake, Calvin prefers that reading, Thou ſhalt make the juſt mans way equal; but forſomuch as this cannot be without forcing it to another ſignification, beſides that the word will bear, I reſt in the former, which may be conſtrued to the ſame effect, ſith Gods weighing of our wayes implies an end, viz. if they be right, to keep us in them, into which he firſt ſet us, and to make them proſperous, and ſuch as a man may with comfort go in, as in a way plain and equal.

Verſ.8. Even in the way of thy judgements (O Lord) we have hoped in thee, &c. Here the Prophet brings the righteous in ſpeaking, after that he had ſaid, That God made their way delightfull for them to walk in, and ſhewing, how it was thus not only in proſperity, but adverſity, viz. through hope of a good iſſue of ſharpeſt judgements and deliverance there-from through his almighty power, to which effect Calvin ſpeaketh, and noteth it to be a ſign of hypocrites, to hope in God only in proſperity, to the ſincere even the way of judgement is joyous through faith, *Rom.*5.1. The deſire of our ſoul is to thy name, &c. (Calvin. Note.) that is, that thy name may be glorified by working mightily for our deliverance from our enemies, when they ſhall be made to ceaſe detracting from thee, as though thou wert not able to ſave us, for we are more affected with a deſire of the vindication of thy great name from this blaſphemy, then of our own proſperity. And to the memory of thee] That is, that thou maiſt make thy ſelf and goodneſs memorable to poſterities to come by working ſo great a work of deliverance to thy people. Calvin by name underſtands the word of God, wherein he hath revealed himſelf to us, whereas his Eſſence is unknown, and by memory of him, the notions touching him fixed in the minde, and not coming in ſometimes, and then going out again. I reſt in the former.

Verſ.9. My ſoul hath deſired thee by night, &c. Having ſpoken in the name of the faithfull in general, now he ſpeaks of himſelf in particular, and how intent he was to the ſame, both in affection ſet forth by ſoul, and in his underſtanding ſet forth by ſpirit, and that continually both night and day, although ſome by night underſtand the time of adverſity, but there is no need of that Trope in this place. And why was the Prophets ſoul ſo deſirous of God, and drawn by ſo great love towards him in times of ſo great ſufferings, as were to come, he reſolves this in the next words, When the judgements of God are in the earth, the inhabitants of the earth will learn righteouſneſſe. The ſufferings will be more available to turn men from ſinne to righteouſneſſe, then proſperity, which is commonly abuſed to licentiouſneſſe in ſinning. And this he confirms, *Verſ.*10.

Verſ.10. The wicked is in favour, but learns not righteouſneſſe, &c. or, Let him have favour, as in our new Tranſlation, for the word will bear either. Some think this to be ſpoken by way of oppoſition to *verſ.*8. as if the indocibility of the wicked even by judgements were here ſet forth, but it is plainly oppoſed to the words going before *verſ.*9. as if he had ſaid, although ſome inhabitants of the earth by judgements are turned, viz. the predeſtinated to life, yet others there are, which be ſo wicked, that nothing will turn them, although God ſeeks by his mercies to allure them, and placeth them in the land of the righteous, where they have all good means, and Gods glory ſhines in miracles alſo, which are able to move any heart, yet they ſhut their eyes againſt them, and are nothing moved hereby to repentance, as the next words imply, They will do perverſly in the Land of uprightneſſes, they will not ſee the majeſty of the Lord. And this was the caſe of the Jews in the holy Land and City, becoming moſt notoriouſly evil, and as Muſculus addeth of ſuch Monks and Friers as live now at Jeruſalem under a pretence of piety, and of Prieſts and men in holy orders in Rome, counted by them the moſt holy Land. (Muſcul. Note.) And we may adde, it is the caſe of them that live in the reformed Church, and profeſſe to be of it, but are of moſt deformed lives. Let all ſuch know, that hereby their ſins and condemnation are much aggravated, ſo that it ſhall be eaſier for Sodom and Gomorrah at the day of judgement, and therefore this is mentioned here as an aggravation, like unto which is *Rom.*2.4.

Verſ.11. When thy hand is lifted up, they will not ſee, but they ſhall ſee, &c. Hebr. Thy hand is lifted up, when is redundant, or rather rendring it, Thy high hand; we may underſtand it as added by appoſition to glory going before, for more explication, to ſhew what was meant by his glory, viz. The mighty acts done by his high hand. They ſhall ſee] That is, by feeling the weight of it in judgments bringing upon them, and then they ſhall be confounded. The zeal of people, the fire of thy enemies ſhall devour them; we may put the firſt words to the words before-going, thus, They ſhall be aſhamed at the zeal, meaning when they ſhould ſee the Nations honouring Chriſt, whom they deſpiſed, or not being aſhamed in themſelves for their foul ſinne, it ſhould tend to their confuſion before men here, who ſhould debaſe them in every place, and the fire of Gods wrath, whereby he deſtroyeth his enemies, as he did ſometime Sodom, ſhall deſtroy them. Of Gods wrath ſet forth by fire, ſee Deut.31.22,41. and this is thought by Muſculus to be particularly ſpoken of the Jews, to which I alſo agree, if by Jews we underſtand the wicked unbelievers of them. Muſcul.

Verſ.12. Hebr. for us. Jehovah thou wilt ordain peace for us, thou haſt wrought all our works in us. Having ſhewed the deſtruction of the wicked he returns again to the faithfull, and brings them in ſpeaking moſt confidently, that they ſhall not come to ſuch an end as enemies, but enjoy peace and happineſſe, hereby alſo meant, conſtantly and everlaſtingly, and of this they make this an argument, that he had done ſuch mighty works tending to their peace already for them, for they are brought in ſpeaking, as living after their return from the Babyloniſh Captivity, or their return to the faith at length, from which they had gone ſo long. And it is a good argument to which we may truſt, God that hath begun a good work for us, eſpecially of grace and exempting us from miſery, will perfect it in glory and eternal felicity. Note. Calvin. Muſculus. To this effect Calvin and Muſculus, who reject the applying of this againſt the Papiſts, to prove that we have no ſtrength of free-will to attain grace, but that this is Gods meer work in us. For, ſay they, we have plain places enough to prove this, and if we ſhould inſiſt upon this, it would eaſily be eluded. But if we reaſon from hence to peace in Heaven for ever, and to the perfecting of the good work begun in us, as Muſculus doth, I can ſee no reaſon why we ſhould not take in as meant by this word [All our works] all works of grace wrought in us, as well as any other of favour in this world, yea rather, becauſe he ſpake laſt of the uprightneſſe of the way of the righteous, and then comes to this concluſion. And it is a true poſition, God works all the works of grace by his ſpirit, whereby we become acceptable to him, for the bringing of us to his ſpecial favour here, and to life hereafter, our weakneſſe being ſuch, that of our ſelves we can do nothing, yet to ſhew that he works not in us as in dead Images, he bids us turn, and reproves thoſe that will not, thus implying a will concurring with his Grace in the act of turning.

Verſ.13. Calvin. Other Lords beſides thee have ruled over us, only in thee we will remember thy name. Here the faithfull go on to recount their former miſeries, when they were under the Babylonians and Aſſyrians, a like place unto which Calvin noteth Ezek.20.24. to be, I gave them laws that were not good, meaning the Laws put upon them by tyrants tending to their oppreſſion, when they were under the Heathen, to do things againſt a good conſcience, as they that live now under Papiſts are urged to do. Thus they were domineered over, but what do the faithfull now? Only in thee we will remember, &c. That is, to thy glory, or by faith being in thee, for the faithfull are one with Chriſt, and through Chriſt with God the Father, we will even in ſuch an underling condition remember thy name, and what thou haſt, and believe thou wilt do for it, that it may be feared and had in honour, and therefore for us who are ſo dear and near unto thee, though for the preſent thou ſeemeſt to neglect us. Note. And this is the virtue of a true faith, even in miſery to remember how dear we are to God, and therefore to be comfortable, and not in time of proſperity only, when men are againſt us, and we are in their power that hate us, and we have none but God only to think upon, and ſo to be ſtayed up with hope of riſing one day to a better condition.

Verſ.14. Calvin. The dead ſhall not live, nor the ſlain riſe again, &c. Some, ſaith Calvin, underſtand this of the faithfull, but it is manifeſtly ſpoken of the wicked enemies with oppoſing whom to the faithfull, who ſhall riſe again, as he ſaith *verſ.*19. he here beginneth. But he doth not here mean the general reſurrection, for then all ſhall riſe again, both good and bad, but recovering out of the fire before threatned, that it ſhould devour them, from this the ſlain hereby ſhall never recover, but from a temporal death go to an everlaſting, the riſing again of the body to judgement, being counted as no living, but an aſſociating of it to the ſoul in the everlaſting flames of hell fire. Therefore thou haſt viſited and caſt them out, and deſtroyed all the memory of them. This is added for further illuſtration, that the meaning of the former words might the better appear. For this is meant by the wickeds not living nor riſing again, the utter deſtruction of them for ever, ſo that neither they nor their memory ſhall live any more, but rot, as *Prov.*10.7. and if there be any memory of them remaining, it ſhall be but as a rotten and ſtinking carkaſs.

Verſ.15. Thou haſt added to the nation (O Lord.) Here, after utter deſtruction threatned to the wicked, the Prophet returns to the faithfull, and to Propheſie how they contrariwiſe ſhall, from the paucity to which they were brought by many miſeries ſuffered at the hands of their enemies, be hereafter encreaſed exceedingly to the great glory of God, and therefore he doubles the word, Thou haſt added, thou haſt added to the Nation; and yet to make it more plain, Thou haſt inlarged the bounds of the Land. Thus propheſying of the Gentiles converſion to the faith, when the Church ſet forth by the Nation and Land ſhall be made far greater then ever before, as it was fulfilled by the propagation of the Goſpel into all Nations, begun *Matth.*28.16. *Act.*10. ſo that the premiſes in this and Chap. 25. cannot be underſtood of things to be done at the day of judgement, as the common ſtream of Interpreters hath heretofore gone.

Verſ.16. In tribulation they have viſited thee, and powred out their prayer whilſt thy chaſtening was upon them. Hebr. A muſſitation or prayer in ſecret, thy chaſtiſement upon them, the word [being] underſtood. Here the Prophet, to make way to the comfort ſpoken of, *v.*19. brings in the Church complaining to God of her miſeries a long time ſuffered before that happineſs, and the happineſs ſpoken of before, *v.*15. wherein the faithfull ceaſed not to viſit God with their praiers, and ſecret ſighs and grones unto him, as not being without hope, but full of hope, as a woman in travel, that crieth out, expects a joyfull time of deliverance, as followeth, *v.*17,18. though ſhe continues in her pangs a long time, ſeeing nothing to come yet of her hope but an empty winde. *Verſ.*18. Neither Verſ. 18. ſalvation reſtored to the Land nor the fall of the inhabitants of the world. Where by Land, underſtand the Land of the faithfull, and by the inhabitants of the world, the wicked oppreſſing and perſecuting the faithfull, by whoſe fall from all power, ſalvation accrueth to the Church. Note. But this is the condition of Gods people in this world, to be afflicted and oppreſſed by the wicked, they being a long time ſuffered, though praied againſt, to go on in proſperity and power, and theſe all this time to lye in miſery, their hopes and praiers coming to nothing: Verſ. 19. But the comfort followeth, Verſ.19. Thy dead ſhall live, with my dead body they ſhall riſe, awake and ſing, &c. The word with is here added more then needs, for the words Hebr. run thus, Thy dead, my dead body ſhall live. For the faithfull are Chriſts body, *Eph.*4.12. And therefore to ſhew this, My dead body is added by appoſition, to ſhew, how the faithfull being dead and buried are to be accounted of, even Chriſts dead body, which the bands of death could 1 Cor. 15. not hold, for which he is called the firſt fruits of them that ſleep; and it is hence inferred, that if the dead riſe not again, then is not Chriſt riſen, ſith what is done to the firſt fruits, muſt alſo in time be done to the whole crop, by carrying it out of the field. This verſe ſheweth the faith of the Prophet touching a better condition of the faithfull to come, although they muſt wait long firſt; he ſpeaks to the Lord, calling them who were before compared to a woman in travel, his dead. But whereas I have expounded this of the reſurrection at the laſt day, it is not to be reſtrained to that only, but alſo to be underſtood of riſing out of miſery and ſin, to grace and proſperity; for the life which ſhall afterwards be everlaſting, is begun by joy through the Spirit of grace in Calvin. this world. Calvin, by theſe words, My deadbody, underſtands the Prophets carcaſe, touching which he ſheweth his faith, that though it ſhould lye rotting in the grave, yet it ſhould riſe again, as others dead in the Lord. The Lyra. Vulg. Lat. render the word נבלתי My ſlain, whereof Lyra gives this ſenſe, not only they that dye in the Lord, who are called his dead, ſhall live, but my body, which by the Spirit I know ſhall fall by the ſword, even they and it together ſhall riſe again. And Corn. a Lapide, Of this ſpeech there are two parts, 1. Of the Prophet to the Lord, Thy dead ſhall live. 2. Of the Lord anſwering him, My ſlain ſhall riſe again: Then follows the Prophets to the faithfull, Awake out of the duſt,&c. And whereas the word before, Theſe ſhall riſe again, being plural, is of the ſingular number, he helps that, ſaying it is per enallagen numeri. And if we follow this, I confeſs it runs beſt of all without any word Junius. underſtood, or forcing any conſtruction upon it. Junius alſo, for my carkaſs, hath cadavera mea reſurgent, but he will have the next words to be underſtood as ſpoken of the Lord, by a Proſopopeia, and all underſtood of riſing out of miſery, by reaſon whereof it might ſeem as impoſſible for the people of God to come to any flouriſhing eſtate here, as for dead carkaſſes to riſe again; but it was ſhewed to Ezekiel, chap.37. that God was able to effect this. And thus it will anſwer beſt to *verſ.*14. where it is plain, that the dead ſpoken of are not the corporeally dead, but ſuch as are under great ſufferings, being wicked and without all life of grace; of whom it is ſaid that they ſhall not live or riſe, but of theſe, that they ſhall do both. Ariſe out of the duſt,&c. Here the Lord is brought in ſpeaking, as by the power of whoſe word all things are done, and ſhewing how his dead before comforted with a promiſe of riſing again, ſhould ariſe, viz. as eaſily as herbs, which ſeem to be dead in winter, but the ſpring coming with ſweet dews, ſpring and grow up again, for which he ſaith, Thy dew is the dew of herbs, being made ſo by the power of his word who ſpeaketh thus. For though we be brought never ſo low, which is ſet forth by lying in the duſt, yea lye dead and rotting in the grave, for ſo duſt returns to duſt, *Eccleſ.*12.1. yet the Almighty can and will raiſe us, when he utters the word, Ariſe out of the duſt, as *Joh.*5.28. And touching the wicked, whom he cals רפאים diſſolved to death by fear, in the next words, The earth ſhall give up the dead; and not נפלים, as the faithfull being dead are called in the beginning of this verſe; he ſaith not they ſhall ſpring up as herbs by the dews falling, but the earth ſhall caſt them forth as an abortive, as the word ſignifieth, which is here uſed תפל. So that here we have a notable ground of beleeving Note. the Churches riſing out of miſery, when it is hereby moſt dead, and of our riſing out of the grave, that are faithfull, to ſing and rejoyce in heaven: and the difference which ſhall then be betwixt ſuch and the wicked of the world, whom the earth alſo ſhall give up, as *Revel.*20. but as abortive ſtinking carkaſſes, be caſt into everlaſting burning, not being ſuffered to lye in reſt in their graves any longer. Some have for dead, giants, becauſe the word ſignifieth both, rendring it The Land of giants thou ſhalt bring to ruine; and by bringing to ruine the laſt word תפל may be expounded; thus therefore the Vulgar Latine and Lyra. Lyra by giants underſtanding ſinners, ſeeks to make it good, but then they muſt be called giants for their moſt corrupt qualities, whereof ſee *Gen.*6. Junius by adding words, After that thou haſt caſt thoſe that are without life to the earth. Chald. Paraphraſ. But the wicked, to whom thou haſt given ſtrength, but they have not kept thy word, thou wilt caſt to hell: The ſenſe comes all to one, but the firſt is beſt to expreſs the Hebrew according to the letter, and ſuits beſt with the precedent words.

Verſ.20. Come (my people) enter into thy chambers and ſhut the doors about thee,&c. The ſong of praiſe being ended, *verſ.*19. the Prophet doth here in the Name of the Lord, call upon his people to be comforted in the time of calamity to come yet before the joyfull time hitherto ſpoken of. By entring into their chambers he Calvin. Muſcul. means retiredneſs of cogitation, how true God will be of his word to truſt in him in times of greateſt miſery, that they ſhall ſoon paſs away again, and then ſhall come the joyfull time before ſpoken of. For their ſhutting of the doors, this is meant to keep out all temptations from their hearts, whereby they might be made to faint: It is then as if he had ſaid, Let no door of your hearts be open, whereby the devil may enter to make you deſpair, but let it be kept cloſe ſhut by faith and truſt in God againſt all guſts of temptation, that might make you ſtagger. And good cauſe is there, for after retiredneſs thus for a moment, the indignation of God dealing ſo ſternly with his people, ſhall be paſt and gone. For all our ſufferings here are but momentany, being compared to the eternity of joy to come, 2 *Cor.*4.17. Lyra and others that expound the joy beforegoing, of the joy of the Saints in heaven, by chambers underſtand the graves wherein the dead bodies of the Saints lye till the day of judgement, when they ſhall be thus beautified: As if he had ſaid, Reſt quietly in your graves, till my judgements be executed upon the wicked world; as the ſouls under the Altar are bidden to reſt a little while, *Revel.*6.11. and Chriſt bids his diſciples wait a little, *Joh.*16.33. But becauſe the faithfull ſhare with the wicked in ſufferings in this world, this entring into their chambers is better referred to the quieting of their mindes in God whilſt they do ſuffer by ſhrouding themſelves by faith under the ſhadow of his wings, as in cloſe chambers, Pſal 91.

Lyra.
Sasbout.

Verſ.21.

For behold the Lord goeth out of his place to viſit the iniquity of the inhabitants of the earth, &c. As if he had ſaid, Thus (ye my people) may perceive how my indignation ſhall ſoon be paſt, for I now am going out to viſit your enemies with judgements. And he ſpeaks of the Lords going out, not as if he did at any time move from place to place; but becauſe whilſt the wicked proſper, God ſeemeth to ſit ſtill, as neglecting to do any thing againſt them: And in ſaying thus, he had reſpect unto the Ark, ſaith Calvin, where God was ſaid to dwell, but at times, when the wicked prevailed, this ſeemed none other to them but as a poor cottage, wherein he lay hid, as not able to do any thing; but when he executes judgements, he comes forth as it were, and makes his enemies feel his might, as a great King going out with his hoſts and deſtroying his rebels. And the earth ſhall diſcover her blouds and not hide any more her ſlain. Here the Prophet having ſhewed, that God will go forth to judge ſin, ſpecifieth the ſin which above others he will judge, viz. bloudſhed of the righteous. Muſculus ſaith, this is ſpoken, not as if the Lord would judge Countries and Nations, but for the bloudſhed of the innocent, that moſt crying ſin. Oppreſſours and perſecutors may think haply, that their bloud ſinking into the earth, theſe their cruelties ſhall be no more remembred; But when all other means fail of bringing to light their murthers, the dumb and ſenſeleſs earth, that hath long hidden them, ſhall hide the ſlain no more, that have been buried in her, but their wicked enemies ſhall be proceeded againſt, as if they came out in perſon to accuſe them, the earth ſtanding up as a witneſs, which received their bloud, and ſo can beſt tell of their murthers in what part of the world ſoever; becauſe as every mouth of men is dumb, when God ſpeaks not hereby, ſo the mouth of the earth or any creature ſhall ſpeak when God opens it, as *Gen.*4.

Calvin.

Muſculus.

Numb. 23.28.

CHAP. XXVII.

AT that day the Lord will puniſh Leviathan with his ſore and great and ſtrong ſword, &c. Theſe words belong to the 26 Chap. *v.*20,21. as being a further amplification of the deſtruction of the wicked threatned there, becauſe one enemy that ſhall be deſtroyed, as the greateſt of all others, is here ſpecified: And therefore it is beſt with Junius, ending *Chap.*26. at *verſ.*19. to begin this, *verſ.*20,21. making this for the third verſ. as being all of one argument, and then the praiſes of God will aptly follow, for judgements thus executed upon the wicked enemies of the Church, from the leſſer to the greater, *verſ.*2.

which may go for *verſ.*4. of the Chapter. For this verſe, the greateſt doubt is, who is meant by Leviathan; but according to the letter this is eaſily reſolved, by comparing this with *Ezek.*29.3.where Pharaoh King of Egypt is threatned by the name of dragon, Heb. תנים by which name Leviathan is alſo called in this verſe, although in Vulg.Lat. it be rendred Whale: For Leviathan coming of לוה to adde, or accumulate, and therefore properly ſetting forth a body augmented to the moſt vaſt greatneſs of all others that live and move in the waters, hath alſo two other names here, a Serpent and a Dragon, for תנין here, and תנים in Ezek. are all one, as Pagnin. noteth, although there be a change of the laſt letter. But here the word Serpent is twice named with two Epithetes, 1. The Serpent a door-boult, for ſo the word ſignifieth: But in our N.Tr. is rendred piercing, becauſe it goeth from one end of the ſea to another, as a boult overthwart a door. 2. The crooked Serpent, becauſe this is a Serpents form, ſetting forth his crooked conditions and deviliſh ſubtilties. Of Leviathan alſo, whereby the Whale or greateſt Serpent, the Dragon is meant, becauſe Iſaiah calleth him here by both names, ſee *Pſal.*104.26. and Job 41. where his might is in many words ſet forth, that Gods power, who made him, and can eaſily ſlay him might the better appear. Some, becauſe a barre is ſtrong, expound theſe words, The Serpent a barre; the ſtrong Serpent, as Theodotion. Some, becauſe a door with a barre making it faſt, keeps thoſe in ſtrongly that are ſhut in priſon, render it, The Serpent ſhutting faſt up, as Symmachus. But if we take it as alluding to his ſwift motion from one ſide of the ſea to another, and to his ſtrength, overthrowing all things in his way, we ſhall beſt attain to the ſenſe. Now for the Phyſical expoſition made of this by one Rabbin, as Adam Saſbont ſaith, that it is here meant, that God will in the end ſlay the great Whales of the ſea and make them meat for his Saints, it is too groſſe, and therefore followed by none. For it is certain, that not a huge Fiſh or Serpent is here properly meant, but ſome great Potentate moſt terrible to the people of God, as the Whale or Dragon, or Serpent is to all men, and that by Ezek. 29.3. before ſpoken of, where the holy Ghoſt himſelf expounds it of Pharaoh. Here haply ſome other mighty State is meant, which Iſaiah foreſaw by the ſpirit ſhould ariſe to the great terrour of the faithfull; and by whom can this be better expounded, then by the Turk extending his dominion farre and wide, and that in the form of a Dragon, if we conſider how his vaſt Empire lieth? the head as it were in Gracia, and Macedonia and Thracia, in Europe; his body in leſſer Aſia, now called Anatolia; his belly growing out, as it were round in Syria and Phœnicia; his tail ſtretcheth out along by Egypt and the Lybian coaſt, and his State is in the ſea of Pontus, Conſtantinople ſtanding upon a neck of land in that ſea. The great Turk alſo to make the body of his Empire ſo vaſt, hath gathered together many Countries into it, for which he may well be ſet forth by Leviathan, which hath the name, as was ſhewed before from addition. For as the Whale ſwallows up other fiſhes, and things in the ſea, ſo the Turk Countries and Nations; and the Babylonians or Egyptians were never more deadly enemies to the Jews, then he to Chriſtians. But the day ſhall come, when he ſhall be deſtroyed, as all other moſt potent enemies have formerly been, by the ſword of God, that is, by his Almighty power, yet ſharpening haply the ſwords of men, as inſtrumental to ruine this vaſt Empire. And this is the more probable, becauſe after this here is joy in the Church, as in a Vineyard, *ver.*2. which cannot be underſtood of the joy in heaven, after the conſummation of this world, but of ſome notable deſtruction of Chriſts enemies, after which ſhall immediatly follow the joyfull time of the Jews converſion, whereupon this ſong ſhall be ſung. Yet I deny not, but according to other Expoſitours generally under the figure of temporal enemies, our ſpiritual enemy the devil is alſo ſet forth, who ſhall be finally deſtroyed, ſo as that he ſhall be no more formidable to Gods people, *Heb.*2.15. 1 *Cor.*15. becauſe his power, which is by carrying on in the way of death, ſhall utterly ceaſe, the Saints being then in glory paſt his reach and not reducible any more by his temptations to a ſtate of ſin and death, as formerly they were, if Gods power had not ſupported and ſtrengthned them in the good way. And ſo many names are uſed to expreſſe the nature of the devil, of Leviathan for the vaſtneſſe of his Empire, in regard of which Gods people are but a little flock, a ſtrong ſerpent for his power to be perceived when God permits, in Jobs caſe, and the Gadarens ſwine, and a crooked ſerpent for his ſubtleties, and contrariety to God and his waies, which are moſt ſtreight and right, but his crooked: Yet as ſtrong as he is, Chriſt is ſtronger, *Mat.*4. and by faith in him his members are able to put him to flight, *Jam.*4.7.

Adam Saſbont.

Verſ.2. In that day a red Vineyard, ſing to her, The Vulg. a vineyard of red wine ſhall ſing to her, it may be taken both waies, becauſe the imperative and ſecond future amongſt the Hebrews are all one. But by the vineyard here, the Church being underſtood, when in the greateſt purity, becauſe the vineyard which brings forth red wine was of old counted the beſt, *Gen.*49.22. *Prov.*23.31. the meaning is, that as at the time of grapes gathering they commonly ſung for joy when they had plentifull encreaſe of the beſt ſort, ſo now the Church after many ſufferings, and deliverance therefrom, their enemies being deſtroied, there ſhould be great joy to her, as being turned moſt fruitfull, and that of the ſweeteſt and beſt grapes, *Chap.*5.1. There was a ſong of complaint to this vineyard for bringing forth ſowr grapes, here contrariwiſe, ſo that it is plainly oppoſed to that, it being a lamentable ſong, this a moſt joyfull one, as the cauſes were contrary.

And therefore as there the laying open of the vineyard to the wilde beaſts, is threatned, contrariwiſe here, *verſ.*2. the fencing and watering of this vineyard, &c. is promiſed. Verſ.3. I the Lord keep it, &c. This he ſaith, he doth now and alwaies, though in affliction he may ſeem to neglect it for ſin, and he waters it ſo, as is ſaid 1 *Cor.*3. Paul plants and Apollo waters, and that continually by his word and ſpirit, ſeeking to make it fruitful, as the rain doth the earth, and he addeth, I will keep it from enemies, viz. when that day of bringing forth ſuch ſweet fruit ſhall come. Luther. Not Moſes, or the Prophets, but the Lord himſelf is the keeper of his Church, ſaith Luther, ſo happy and ſafe is her condition. But till ſhe be purged to bring forth better fruits, ſhe ſhall be liable to danger by enemies, becauſe in his ſtate only the Lord promiſeth keeping her from their viſitings by war, and other miſeries accompanying wars.

Verſ.4. Junius. There is no fury in me, who ſhall give me briars, thorns? I will go forth in war, and burn them together. Junius will have this ſpoken by way of preventing an objection, which might be made againſt the premiſes, thus; Doth the Lord indeed ſo tenderly defend his vineyard both day and night? how then happeneth it that ſo much hurt is done to it by the enemy, the Caldees, Egyptians, &c? Sol. They bring me forth briars and thorns in ſtead of ſweet grapes, as *Hab.*6.4. and therefore by theſe enemies I warre againſt them and burn up their city. Muſcul. Calvin. Muſculus takes it as an amplification of the premiſes by the ſimilitude of briars, as if he had ſaid, though for a time I may ſeem to be angry with my vine, yet I have no anger againſt it to perdition, but to caſtigation only: if ye ſpeak of anger to perdition, ſet the wicked in the Church before me, who are as briars, and I will come againſt them in way of war, and at once as a fire my wrath ſhall burn them up. Vatabl. Vatablus ſaith, he ſpeaks as one grieved, that by the ſins of his choſen people he was conſtrained to deal ſo harſhly with them, wiſhing rather that he had to do with reprobates, when he muſt come ſo with judgements, and that there might be none occaſion thus to deal with his people. The Reader may follow any of theſe Expoſitions. Verſ.5. And if it be taken for a preventing of an Objection, the next words *verſ.*5. muſt be taken as a means preſcribed by God in time of wrath to recover his favour. If he ſhall lay hold of my ſtrength, and make peace with me, &c. For this is the only way when Gods ſtrength is up in arms as it were, to lay hold upon it by humbly ſeeking to the Lord in praier, for ſo his power that is otherwiſe irreſiſtible, is held from doing any more hurt, and man becomes moſt potent, as Jacob wreſtling and prevailing, yet after the manner of a friend who findes favour with his king, before angry, but now reconciled and at peace with him, and for more aſſurance and elegancies ſake, the word make peace is doubled here. If the former words be taken as a deſire rather to have to do with the wicked in way of wrath, and ſhewing unwillingneſſe to proceed in hoſtility againſt his choſen people, theſe words muſt be underſtood as further expreſſing Gods ſorrow, that his people ſhould ſo provoke him, and not ſpeedily when they have done ſo turn by humiliation, that they might have peace, for which cauſe he ſaith או יחזק Oh let him lay hold upon my ſtrength, &c.

Verſ.6. Afterwards Jacob ſhall make roots, Hebr. Jacob ſhall make his comers to root; So alſo Junius: the meaning is, As in time of peace a Nation is encreaſed which was before diminiſhed in war, ſo the people coming of Jacob reconciling themſelves to God after many ſufferings, and attaining peace again with him, ſhall like a tree which ſeemed dead but had life in the roots, grow and flouriſh again, and encreaſe ſo as they never did, even to the repleniſhing of the whole earth, that is, under the Goſpel, when all countreys turned Iſraelites by embracing the faith, which had the root there in Chriſt and his Apoſtles. For all beleevers now are Iſraelites, after Iſaac heirs of the promiſe, *Gal.*4. and ſo all the world is filled with them, or ſhall certainly be becauſe it is ſaid, the fulneſſe of Rom.11. the Gentiles ſhall come in.

Verſ.7. Hath he ſmitten him according to the ſtroak of him that ſmote him? Theſe words are added by the Prophet further to confirm the former, as if he had ſaid, conſidering the great encreaſe that Iſrael ſhall attain unto, judge now, whether there fury in the Lord againſt his people or no, though he ſmote them and that grievouſly, and it will plainly appear, that it was not in fury, as he ſmites the wicked of the world. He ſmote him not according to the ſmiting of the wicked heathen, that in thoſe daies ſmote him, thinking utterly to root him out, if their malice had been given way unto. For God, as the iſſue will declare, ſought not this, when he was moſt provoked, but that by his ſmiting they might learn to amend, and ſo be reſtored and proſper more then ever they Calvin. did. This I have from Calvin, who alſo addes another, and preferres it, viz. God hath not ſmitten Iſrael; as he ſmites his enemies, the wicked, who ſmote him, for he puts this difference betwixt his own and the wicked of the world, ſmiting theſe to correction, them to utter deſtruction, and therefore the faithfull ought patiently to bear his ſtroak, howſoever it comes, as the wiſe will the ſharpeſt reproof of a friend, which is for his good, Prov. 27.6. Better are the Note. ſtrokes of a lover, then the kiſſes of a deceiver: yet indeed men are never ſo tried, as when Gods ſtroak comes by wicked inſtruments, therefore David would not fall into the hands of men. But we muſt look up to God, and upon theſe wicked executioners but as his red or ſtaff to ſmite us, as Aſhur is called Chap. 10.5. and be ſupported through hope notwithſtanding, in regard of the good by him intended unto us, that gives them this power. And this I alſo prefer, becauſe of the next words, Is he ſlain according to the ſlaughter of thoſe that ſlew him? where, not their ſmiting and Gods are compared together, but Gods ſmiting of the one and of the other, they being ſlain ſo as never to come to a flouriſhing ſtate again; theſe ſo, as a vine is pruned to make it grow the better.

And to this alſo agreeth *verſ.*8. In meaſure, in the ſhooting out he argues with Verſ.8. her, that is, not lik a Tyrant deſtroying his Vine alltogether, but in the branches, which be the ſhootings out, the root being ſtill ſpared, yea, when he brings the greateſt tempeſts, which commonly overthrow all things, and becauſe ſuch tempeſts in thoſe parts came from the Eaſt, he cals it Eaſtern, and from Enous the Eaſt comes, Euroclydon a whirlwinde, for which he ſaith, he ſtayeth his rough Winde in the day of the Eaſt. Some, ſaith Calvin, underſtanding Calvin. by ſhootings out, the fruits of the earth wherein he puniſhed them, will have his judgements in theſe outward things meant, and ſome underſtanding their encreaſe of men to be cut off by civill wars. But becauſe it was another judgement, whereby the Jews were chiefly puniſhed, the very meaning is as before, ſo Calvin. But Junius taking this as an anſwer to verſ.7. renders the words, He contends moderately with him, that is, the Jews, his people, by ſending them out, viz. into Aſſyria and Babylon, But he takes away with his hard ſpirit, him, that is, their enemies, as in the day of the Eaſt-winde. And this he further confirmeth by ver. 9,10,11. which indeed do thus agree excellently well with this verſe. And the word הגה rendred in our New Tranſlation, he ſtayeth by others even when he bloweth, ſignifyeth as Junius renders it, takes away or removes ſo by judgements, as not to be any more. For this is the different dealing of the Lord towards the faithfull, and towards the wicked, if the one ſort be carried into captivity, they are but ſent out, as the word שלח ſignifieth, but this ſhall be for the beſt in the end: the other are blown upon as by a killing eaſt-winde never to recover life any more. Calvin. Junius.

Now verſ.9. he ſheweth in what regard the Lord is ſaid to deal moderately with his, and that by ſending them out for the beſt; Therefore by this ſhall all the iniquity of Iacob be purged, and this the fruit to take away his ſin. That is, being thus chaſtened he ſhall be purged, as gold by fire, and ſeparate from the droſſe of ſin, ſee the like *Chap.*1.23. and to ſhew how reformed he ſhould be, he inſtanceth in one particular, viz. the breaking down of Altars, Groves and Images, When he ſhall put the ſtones of the Altar, as ſtones of Chalke broken, Groves and Images ſhall not ſtand up any more. For this was the greateſt ſin of Iſrael, whereby God was moſt provoked, that they left him to worſhip Images, and ſet up Altars, and planted groves to them, and from this ſin how they were purged appears by their hiſtory after their return out of captivity, they never ſinned thus any more, but were moſt zealous to keep their Temple from ſuch defilement both in the time of Antiochus Epiphanes, and of the Romans. And it is to be noted, that ſin is not purged or done away by affliction or ſorrowing therefore, but when the monuments of ſin are quite demoliſhed, which ſtood up formerly, and that not ſome, but all of them, Altars, Groves and Images, and whatſoever elſe ſheweth ſin rooted in the heart; and that idolatry is the ground of all wickedneſſe, becauſe this only is named, the reſt left to be underſtood; and that affliction cauſeth ceaſing from ſin, when nothing elſe will do it. Wherefore by Altars here, as by groves, appurtenances of idolatry are to be underſtood, and not the Lords Altar; as for us Chriſtians, we have none but Chriſt, who is our Altar, Sacrifice, and Prieſt alone. And amongſt us that have left the idolatry of Heathens and Papiſts, and broken down all monuments of their idolatry, idols yet ſtand as long as covetouſneſſe, and the love of fleſhly pleaſure remains in the heart, for the one of theſe is called idolatry, and for the other ſome are taxed as making their belly their God. Verſ.9. Note. Col 3.5. Phil.3.21.

The fenced City ſhall be ſolitary, and the habitation forſaken, and left like a wilderneſſe. After the iſſue of afflictions to the people of God ſhewed, here follows the iſſue of their enemies ſufferings, their ſtrongeſt cities, as Babylon, ſhall be as a wilderneſſe, and no habitation for men any more, as was ſhewed, *Chap.*13,14. Verſ.10.

When the boughs thereof be withered, they ſhall be broken off, and women ſhall come and ſet them on fire. Calvin, When his harveſt ſhall wither, becauſe the word קציר ſignifieth either a branch or bow, or harveſt. But forſomuch as it was before ſpoken of as blaſted by the Eaſt-winde, it is rather to be thought, that the Metaphor taken from a Tree with the boughs withering after blaſting, is here further proſecuted, and then the fenced City is as it were the great Tree, the Inhabitants as the boughs, who by Gods judgements were made ſo puſillanimous, that there ſhould need now no more an army of men to deſtroy, for weak women could do this. Calvin by women underſtands effeminate men, as *Ch.*12. and both he and Muſculus apply all this to the Jews, not obſerving the diſtinction of Junius, which I have followed, and is in reaſon to be preferred, as hath been already ſaid. And the next words yet make it more plain, that he ſpeaketh not of the Jews but of their enemies that ſmote them, he that made them will not have mercy on them, or ſhew them any favour, whereas this Verſ.11. Calvin.

whole context runs contrary touching the Jews, for to them all favour is promiſed. They were heathen enemies then, of whom Jeremy, ſaith, Pour out thy wrath upon the Heathen that know thee not, and ſo they are here ſaid to be without underſtanding, for which they ſhould lie under judgements and have no favour. Whereas Calvin ſeeks to confirm his from theſe words, The Lord that hath made thee and formed thee, noting, that the Church is formed anew by the ſpirit, and not any other company of people whatſoever. It is not neceſſary alwaies to make this diſtinction betwixt making and forming, for the potter both makes and forms veſſels of diſhonour as well as of honour, and ſo God may be ſaid to make and form heathen people, which ſhall utterly periſh, and his making or forming of Babylon to ſuch an height of worldly glory, may not amiſſe be underſtood in this place, ſith ſuch magneticall things be elſewhere ſpoken of her proud King, Princes, and Armies.

Verſ.12. And in that day the Lord ſhall beat off from the chanell of the River to the ſtream of Egypt. Or according to Calvin, the Lord ſhall ſhake off, as the word חבט ſignifyeth, the meaning is, that when the wicked ſhall be deſtroied, as is aforeſaid, without any favour, then Gods people that were hidden as wheat under chaff, ſhall, as it were by winnowing, be ſhaken out and gathered: ſo ſome. Calvin. Muſculus. I rather think that an earthquake is alluded to, which openeth priſon doors, as Act.16. that the priſoners may come out, as if he had ſaid, They that were held faſt in their enemies countreys, ſome in one place, and ſome in another, as in ſo many priſons, ſhall by my power ſhaking and weakning theſe Nations, ſo as that they want ſtrength to hold them ſtill, come out even from all parts between Euphrates and Nilus, meant by the river and ſtream of Egypt, becauſe the Jews were here diſperſed far and wide, after their captivity into Babylon, but Babylon being taken by Cyrus, they were gathered together into one, and returned into their own Land.

Verſ.13. In that day it ſhall be ſounded with a great Trumpet, &c. Here their gathering together to return into their own Land, to ſerve God there, is further amplified by a metaphor taken from a Trumpet, whereby a Captain gathereth together his ſouldiers into one body, that were before ſcattered abroad, that they may go with him to the places to which he pleaſeth to leade them. For even ſo the Lord by his powerfull word, by a Trumpet ſounding aloud, ſhould gather his people together to follow him, till they came again to Zion: And this was done when Proclamation was made by Cyrus, God ſtirring up his heart, that all the Jews which would, might return into their own countrey and build again the Temple of the Lord. And this gathering of them together is ſet forth by the ſounding of a Trumpet, becauſe by this ſound God of old would have them aſſembled together to the Tabernacle, and it is ſaid, that at the laſt day a Trumpet ſhall ſound to gather all together before Gods Tribunal. And it is more ſpecially to be noted. that in ſpeaking of them that ſhould be gathered, Calvin. he ſaith, The periſhed in Aſhur, and the diſperſed in Egypt, or the runawaies therr, for ſo the word ſignifies: Which is ſpoken to ſhew the deſperate condition of them in Aſſyria, being as good as dead, and unlikely ever to live any more in Canaan, becauſe the Aſſyrians carrying them ſo far off, meant, that they ſhould never return, if the power had ſtill been in them; and the unworthineſſe of thoſe in Egypt, becauſe they fled thither, when God ſo ſeriouſly charged them by Jeremy not to do ſo; and to magnifie Gods mercy and power towards both, in bringing them home again notwithſtanding.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Verſ.1. Lyra. WO to the Crown of pride, the drunkards of Ephraim. In this and Chap. 29,30. ſaith Lyra, is a Prophecy againſt the Jews of both Kingdoms, for their mocking and contemning of the Prophets ſent unto them, and that either preſent Chap. 20,29. or to come *Ch.*30. viz. after their carrying away to Babylon, for then they deſpiſed Jeremy, Chap.43. Junius. Junius will have this Chapter an entire Sermon, or Prophecy by it ſelf againſt both Kingdoms, and Chap.29.30.31. to contain in them all one other againſt the Kingdom of Judah. And this is to be preferred. For having begun with the Kingdom of Iſrael, under the name of Ephraim, verſ.1,2,3,4. he turneth plainly to Judah, ver.7. threatning moſt terrible things, and exaggerating their ſins as no whit inferiour to the ſins of Ephraim. And then, as it were coming to another Prophecy, he begins to thunder, yet more againſt Ieruſalem by the name of Ariel, Chap. 29. Indeed as Lyra hath it, forſomuch as pride and drunkenneſſe are the foundation of contemning and mocking of the Prophets that impugne theſe and other vices, and 2 Chron.36.16. it is ſaid, that they did ſo, for theſe, as the ſins whereby their wickedneſſe grew to the height, it may be held, that they were thus threatned. Hieronym. Jerom ſaith, that pride is aſcribed to this kingdom, becauſe it was by reaſon of many more Tribes in it, far greater then that of Iudah, and ſo proud of its ſtrength and populouſneſſe. But drunkards he will have them called, becauſe like men giddy-headed through wine, and without wit, they went from the true God to ſerve the calves of Ieroboam. And therefore he threatens them with deſtruction from the Aſſyrian, as it were by a floud overflowing, and that they ſhould be to him, but as fruit ſoon ripe in ſummer, which becauſe it is moſt pleaſant, and the firſt, a man doth greedily pluck, and eat, not ſtaying till it be more mellow. For ſo the King of Aſhur ſoon devoured that whole Kingdom, 2 King. 17. Lyra. Lyra underſtands drunkenneſſe properly, ſaying, that they were guilty of two great ſins pride and drunkenneſſe, by exceſſe in drinking, and therefore it is added erring by wine, and that the Kingdom of the ten tribes is called Ephraim, becauſe Ieroboam the firſt King thereof was of that Tribe: Calvin. Calvin underſtands both drunkenneſſe proper, and inebriation by proſperity and riches, which, as drunkenneſſe, make men to contemn and ſlieght all others in what place or authority ſoever they be ſet. And he ſaith, that ſome think it called the crown of pride, becauſe the Kings were proud, or the chief City Samaria; but becauſe plenty and riches cauſe pride, we ſhall not need to look to any other reſpect for which it is thus called. And to denote this to be the cauſe of pride and drunkenneſſe both, it is added, upon the head of the valley of fatneſſes, that is, in a moſt fertile countrey, contriti vino, for ſo the next words ſignifie, abundance giving occaſion to exceſſe, and this being the foundation of all manner of ſin, they come thus to be deſtroied, being glorious, as a flower for a time, but ſoon fading. For this was no ſooner threatned then accompliſhed. Salmanaſar coming againſt it in the daies of Hezekiah, when this was propheſied: Note. a fair warning to all Nations, and to take heed of being intoxicated with wealth and plenty, ſo as to be pround and contemptuous, or licentiouſly to run to all exceſs of riot, for this is to run to deſtruction with ſpeed.

Verſ.2. It is ſhewed how they ſhould be deſtroied for theſe ſins, The mighty and ſtrong in the Lord as a tempeſt of hail, &c. That is, Salmanaſar, the King of Aſſyria, ſtrengthned by power given him of God for the puniſhing of ſin, ſhall as a ſtorm or floud by his army, called his hand, do it, and there ſhall be no power of reſiſting no more then of a tempeſt or overflowing floud, drowning all things when it cometh. And not reſting in theſe ſimilitudes, he addes another, Verſ.3. Verſ.3. of treading under foot which was a great dejection for a crown, and that upon the head of fatneſſe, and to this beſides the repetition of the firſt taken from a fading flower, a fifth taken from fruits ſoon ripe and ſoon pluckt off and eaten, Verſ.4. Verſ.4.

Verſ.5. In that day the Lord ſhall be a Crown of glory, &c. When the Kingdom of the ten Tribes ſhall be deſtroied, as hath been aforeſaid, the two Tribes remaining here called the reſidue of Gods people, ſhall have the Lord as a Crown of glory to them, their King Hezekiah becoming famous for the miraculous deſtruction made for his ſake of the hoſt of Sennacherib, of which ſee Iſa.37. Wherefore it is added.

Verſ.6. For a ſpirit of judgement to him that ſits in judgement, and ſtrength to them that turn the battel in the gate. For the King that ſate in judgement without going forth of the Gate, only ſending ſome of his Councel to Iſaiah, and praying in the houſe of the Lord, prevailed ſo, that a hundred eighty five thouſand of the enemies were ſmitten by the Angel in one night, and ſo Sennacherib their King, who pitcht before Jeruſalem, or was coming in battel-aray againſt it, was confounded and forc'd to flee home alone. And was not this a turning of the battel in the gate, which is oft put in Scripture for the place of judgement? Or the word [Gate] being without a prepoſition may have reference to ſtrength by appoſition, thus, A ſtrength to thoſe that turn the battel, yea a gate, or a ſtrong gate, ſufficient to keep out all enemies, with how great power ſoever they come againſt the City, for ſuch was the Lord to his people.

Verſ.7. Hieronym. And they alſo have erred by wine, and by ſtrong drink have gone out of the way, &c. Having ſhewed Gods ſingular favour to the Kingdom of Judah, *ver.*5,6. he proceeds now to propheſie againſt it alſo, and that, 1. By aggravating the Jews ſins by many more words, as reaſon required, ſith they had warning in the judgements coming upon Iſrael, and yet fell into the ſame ſins, from hence to *verſ.*16. 2. By threatning a like deſtruction to that Kingdom alſo verſ. 17, &c. to the end of the Chapter, having firſt premiſed ſomewhat to the comfort of the few amongſt them, that feared God and believed in him, *verſ.*16. touching Chriſt to come. For the firſt, they are accuſed of more then brutiſh drunkenneſſe, yea the very Prieſts and Prophets, in expounding which Jerom ſticks to his firſt in ſpeaking of the drunkenneſſe of Iſrael, underſtanding it likewiſe here of idolatry, and the filthy vomiting, filling all Tables of the filthineſs of that ſin, tropologically applying it to the Phariſees and hereticks ariſing after, defiling the truth of God moſt foully. Others generally underſtand drunkenneſſe properly, whereby men become ſottiſh, having no wit but to ſcoff and mock at Gods Prophets, and at their ſayings.

Verſ.9. Adam Sasbout. Muſculus. Junius. Whom ſhall he teach or make to underſtand doctrine, them that are weaned from milk, and drawn from breſts? That is, if not only the people of the Land be thus gone with wine and ſtrong drink, but alſo the Prieſts and Prophets, what good effect of the Prophets teaching can be expected in any of them, ſurely none, it muſt therefore be another generation by reaſon of their infancy, through which they are uncapable of being drenched in the abominations before ſpoken of, that ſhall be taught better, viz. the Apoſtles, and others like them by the Phariſees accounted but Babes in compariſon of the wiſe and learned in the Law, as appears by that ſaying of our Lord. I thank thee (O Father) that thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe, and revealed them to babes; thus almoſt Jerom. The Hebrews, as Saſbout ſheweth, do not take it, as an anſwer to the Queſtion here made, but as an addition, ſhewing it impoſſible, that any of them ſhould get good by teaching, being as ſucking children in reſpect of knowledge, and having as little capacity to make good uſe of it, continuing therefore the Interrogation to the end of the verſe. Thus alſo Muſculus, rejecting that of ſome, who by Infants underſtand the new born ſpiritually, according to 1 *Pet.*2.1. and that of referring it to the Apoſtles ſeems not to agree much better, becauſe though Babes comparatively, yet he ſeems not here to ſpeak of any capable of teaching, for they are all reproved and threatned, ver. 10,11,12,13. and ſo Junius alſo underſtands it, proving the ſame by the words following three wayes, 1. *Verſ.*10. When precept upon precept, line upon line, &c. That is, it appears that ye are as uncapable as ſucking children, or a little while ago weaned, becauſe ſuch being taught now a little and then a little, learn ſomewhat, but ye nothing. 2. *Verſ.*11. With a ſtrange ſpeech and forreign tongue, &c This further convinceth you, That ye are uncapable of good by any teaching, becauſe I have brought ſtrangers in amongſt you, whoſe language ye underſtood not to your puniſhment, as in the dayes of Manaſſeh, but ye profited not hereby. 3. *Verſ.*12. He ſaid, This is my reſt, give reſt to the weary, &c. wherein he alludes to 2 *King.*21.8. he had wooed them by promiſes, ſes, neither were they capable of good thereby. All which being ſo, and moreover they being a company of mockers, as is ſhewed verſ. 14, 15. they abundantly proved themſelves to be paſt all teaching, and therefore not thus to be dealt withall any more, but as perſons incorrigible, to be deſtroyed. The Septuagint for theſe words verſ.9. Whom ſhall he teach knowledge? have theſe, To whom ſhall we declare evil? to avoid it, becauſe drunken men fear no danger whatſoever be threatned againſt them; and this is moſt agreeable to the Hebrew, the word not being דֵּעָה which all our Expoſitors follow, rendring it knowledge, but רעה evil, and therefore it is beſt. But for the verb plural, ſhall we, Hebr. it is, ſhall he, meaning the Lord by his Prophets. Septuagint.

Hieronym. *Verſ.*10,11,12. have moſt difference about them. Jerom renders it [For precept upon precept, line, &c. Manda remanda, expecta reexpecta, hic modicum, &c. giving this for the ſenſe, Thou Iſaiah comeſt and commandeſt us in the name of the Lord, and biddeſt us expect now a little and then a little, when thou propheſieſt of comfort, but we tell thee, command and command us ſo again and again, we ſhall but deride thee for it in repeating thy words over and over, to make our ſelves more merry at thy ſayings. For ſo when men mock at others ſpeaking, they uſe to repeat his words over and over to make him aſhamed thereof. Who ſo will may follow Jerom verſ.9. taking the laſt words thereof as an anſwer to the firſt. He ſhall teach the ignorant people in his due time, not the drunken, the Prieſts, or learned, drunken with errour and malice, but the unlearned, whom he ſhould ſend out to preach the Goſpel, counted Babes by them, as *Luk.*10.21. But for the next words being Hebr. צו לצו ſignifying either precept to precept, or command to command, line to line, or leiſurely, or expect to expect, they muſt be taken as a reaſon of the queſtion before-going, Whom ſhall he make to underſtand? As if he had ſaid, For precept hath been upon precept, &c. and yet they live as if they had been without all teaching, ſo that the Lord may well diſclaim teaching them any more, and turn to teach Babes, ſeeing they by teaching and waiting, and then teaching a little more, will profit; but theſe never. Then will the *ver.*11. moſt aptly follow, For with a liſping lip, &c. or becauſe, כי ſignifieth as well ut, as quia, ſo that henceforth he will ſpeak unto them with a ſtrange tongue, and liſping or deriding lip, being unworthy to be otherwiſe ſpoken to any more; that is, he will puniſh them by Captivity into a farre Countrey, where all the language, which they ſhall hear, to the encreaſe of their miſery, ſhall be nothing but contemptuous deriſion of their inſulting enemies, and ſuch as they ſhall not underſtand, that is, of the Caldees, as was alſo threatned by Moſes, Deu. 28.49. For that a liſping lip denotes mockers appears Judg. 12.3,4,5,6. where the ſcoffing Ephraimites are ſet forth as liſpers, not being able to pronounce Shibboleth, but Sibboleth. And of the fulfilling of this Prophecie, ſee *Pſ.*137. and S^t Paul ſpeaks of it as a judgement upon unbelievers 1 *Cor.*14. And this being thus underſtood, we may both gather, that the Jews were judged by this judgement in their kinde, who mocked the Prophets, 2 *Chron.*36. *Iſai.*5. 19. and how *verſ.*12. follows moſt aptly, Who ſaid, This is the reſt wherewith ye may make the weary to reſt, &c. For the word אשר hath plainly reference to him that was ſpoken of, *verſ.*9,11. that is, God. He ſhall ſpeak to this people, who ſaid, This is the reſt, not to whom he ſaid, as our New Tranſlatours and others have it. He means, The Lord would puniſh them by ſpeaking to them in ſtrange tongues, as he might juſtly do, becauſe he ſpake ſometime ſo kindly to them, ſhewing how they might procure good unto themſelves, viz. By giving reſt to him wearied with their ſins, in turning therefrom, as 2 *King.*21.8. For by ſinne God is preſſed, Amos 2.13. and then Sacrifices weary him, *Iſa.*1. 11. neither hath he reſt, but continues wearied, till that by repentance ſinne is waſhed away, if his people go on in ſinne, he will at length eaſe himſelf and procure his own reſt, as he ſaith, *Iſa.*1.24. Ah I will eaſe me of my adverſaries. All this being premiſed, that they wanted not plain and continual teaching, and that the Lord ſought to move them by his judgements, and before that by a moſt kinde offer of reſting with them, but not prevailing, he *verſ.*13. Verſ.13. threatens, That his Word ſhall be unto them, Precept to precept, line to line, &c. that they might go and fall backward, and be broken, &c. That is, forſomuch as they were uncapable of inſtruction by their intemperance, even this great favour of continual teaching, which they had enjoyed, ſhall turn to their ruine, Joh.3.19. as our Lord ſaith, This is the condemnation of the world, that light is come, &c. 2 Cor.2.10. See the ſame Chap.8.15. and Paul, We are to ſome the ſavour of death. In deſcribing their ruine he alludes to their ſinne of drunkenneſs: for as a drunken man going falleth, and if backward upon prerupt ſtony or rocky ground, breaks his back, and comes as it were into a ſnare, and is taken by his enemies, and what can he look for after this, but to die miſerably? ſo he meaneth they ſhould do, that is, fall into the Caldees hands, be broken in all wherein their ſtrength lay, and ſo be in their power, as a beaſt taken in a ſnare to exerciſe what cruelty they pleaſe upon Muſcul. them. Muſculus ſaith, here are two ſimilitudes uſed, 1. Taken from them Note. that againſt ſenſe will adventure to go up a ſteep hill being very ſlippery; The 2. from ſuch as wander out of the way, where ſnares are ſet, to ſhew, that they who wander from the path of Gods precepts, ſhall come into ſnares and periſh, and they alſo that leaving this plain way go up ſlippery places, ſuch as the waies of ſinne are, ſhall fall backward and be broken through unſpeakable Calvin. miſeries. Calvin alſo applies that of ſnares to the ſnares of errours, into which they fall that goe from the plain way of truth, traced out unto us in the Word.

Verſ.14. Wherefore hear the word of the Lord ye ſcornfull men, &c. Here the Prophet ſets himſelf to inveigh in particular againſt the Governours of the Jews, as chief leaders unto, and cauſe of the great enormities before taxed, as before *Chap.*1.10,27. he had not ſpared to ſpeak in the moſt upbraiding manner a-Note. gainſt them. And according to his example the men of God ought, when there is the like occaſion, not being terrified by their greatneſſe, boldly to reprove ſuch, as upon whom the common ſort depend, and if they be evil, are imboldened to do evil alſo. And here is the height of their ſinne, making any un-2Chro.36.16. capable of good by teaching pointed at, when he ſaith, Ye ſcornfull men, or mockers: for they that grow once to this, are ſo nigh to judgement, that there is no eſcaping.

Verſ.15. Hieron. Becauſe ye ſay, We have made a covenant with death, &c. Jerom holding theſe mockers to be the Scribes and Phariſees, who were of greateſt authority amongſt the Jews, expounds this their covenant with death of their ſleighting of the deſtruction threatned by the Prophet, becauſe it might be ſo long in coming that they might be all dead before, and their making lies their covering, their truſting to the words which he ſpake, expect, expect, &c. making this conſtruction thereof, that the judgements threatned ſhould not come till after long expectation, when they that were preſently living ſhould be out of Calvin. Muſcul. the danger of them. Calvin and Muſculus better, They were not ſo groſſe to ſpeak thus, for they had certainly more care to uphold their credit amongſt the people, but by their deeds they ſpake ſo, and thus do all prophane wicked perſons at this day, who are not moved to any repentance by the judgements of Note. God threatned, they ſay in effect, that they have made a covenant with death and hell, whatſoever comes, not to hurt them, which if any man abhors from ſaying with his tongue, let him abhor ſaying ſo by his deeds. When the overflowing ſcourge paſſeth thorow, it ſhall not come at us, &c. Here their vain-confidence is yet further ſet forth, who are ſecure even when judgements are abroad in the world deſtroying many, and that amongſt themſelves, yet they will not be moved to fear, to repent, becauſe they believe they ſhall not come at them; for they think that they ſhall finde means to eſcape, the Jews then by the aid of neighbour Kings, the wicked alwayes by ſome arm of fleſh or other, or by keeping out of the dint of danger, or when they ſee death ready to ſeiſe upon them, repenting by ſaying, Lord have mercy upon me. Now becauſe ſuch ſhall all be deceived, as they that truſt to lies, they are ſaid here to make lies their refuge and protection, that is, in their ſleighting of the Prophets threatnings to have done it, fearing nothing under the ſhelter of ſuch lying and vain imaginations.

Verſ.16.

I lay in Zion a ſtone, a ſtone of tryal, a corner ſtone, &c. The Prophet having reproved the wicked Princes of the Jews, *verſ.*14,15. now becauſe he ſaw that their condition was deſperate, he firſt interpoſing ſomewhat, whereby we might know of what time they were, who thus mocked, and had ſuch a carnal confidence of impunity in this verſe, proceedeth verſ. 17. to threaten them with inevitable deſtruction; as if he had ſaid, Becauſe ye are ſuch deſpiſers, I will for the ſake of ſome few believers amongſt you provide for their aſſured comfort by laying a firm foundation. For the ſtone ſo precious here ſpoken of, it is Chriſt, of whom before *Chap.*8.14. under this name, and herein even many Rabbins conſent, ſaying, that it is ſpoken of the King Meſſiah, whereunto Targum Jonatha cited by Galatinus conſenteth, as Muſculus hath it, though ſome of them expound it of Hezekiah, but without all reaſon, becauſe other things here ſpoken of agree not to any mortal man, but to Chriſt alone. He is truly a foundation ſtone, whereupon his Church is built, and a ſtone worthy to be twice named for his two natures; a corner ſtone, becauſe in him two nations are united, Jews and Gentiles becoming one ſpiritual building; a precious ſtone, becauſe as farre excelling other men in vertue, as precious ſtones do common; and a ſure foundation againſt the building, whereupon the very gates of hell can never prevail. Laſtly, He that believeth ſhall not make haſte] That is ſhall be ſure, though he ſtayes long before he comes, that he will aſſuredly come to his ſalvation, and therefore he ſhall not by doubting in regard of his long delay need to grow weak and languiſhing in his hope, but conſtantly waiting, and patiently bearing all ſufferings in the mean ſeaſon expect his coming, and be herein comforted againſt them all. Hereby then we may gather with Jerom, that though proud men and contemptuous of divine comminations of all times amongſt the Jews are here threatned, yet it is ſpecially bent againſt the wicked Scribes and Phariſees, who were ſo notorious for their deſpiſing of Chriſt and his teaching, and his many threatnings denounced againſt them; and when they prevailed with Pilate to crucifie him, and he to ſhew that it was not through any default in him, but in them onely, took water and waſhed his hands, ſaying, I am clean from the bloud of this juſt man, they impudently, and without all fear of Gods judgements, cried out, His bloud be upon us, &c.

Muſculus.

Matth. 16.16.

Verſ.17.
Calvin.

And I will lay judgement to the line, and righteouſneſſe to the plummet, &c. A phraſe, ſaith Calvin, borrowed from builders, who by a line and plummet ſet up all their building equally; in like manner the Lord here ſheweth, that when the corner ſtone before ſpoken of ſhall be laid, the Church of the faithfull built hereupon ſhall riſe up to a fair and uniform built Temple in the Lord, according to *Epheſ.*2.20. And the hail ſhall ſweep away the refuge of lies, &c. Thus alſo P. Martyr. But Jerom expounds it of judgement againſt the wicked, and mercy to the faithfull: Lyra, of judgements againſt thoſe wicked mockers proportionable to their abominable ſins: Sasbont, of Gods caſting them off without mercy, as they had deſerved, which he did, when preaching the Goſpel to the Gentiles, he left them to the Romans as a ſweeping hail to be quite and clean deſtroyed. Nazianzen and Baſil, of mercy and righteous dealing of men, whereby God will go, as the Maſon in building, by a line and plummet, remunerating every one according to his doings. That of Calvin is moſt probable, becauſe he doth certainly proſecute the metaphor of laying a foundation ſtone, ſpoken of *Verſ.*16. under the ſimilitude of a builder, ſhewing how he will evenly, as by line and plummet hereupon build up his Church. Otherwiſe to underſtand it of judgements, were to determine the Lord to be an imperfect builder, laying only a foundation, and ſo leaving it through haſte to go and break down another building of wicked ſcoffers. The later part of the verſe ſheweth, That when he ſhall do thus for his elect, the wicked who

Hieron.
Junius.
Lyra.
Sasbont.

Nazianz. orat. de miſericord.
Baſil. in Pſ.129.

truſted in their own lying imaginations, ſhall finde how vain their confidence was, all further hopes being ſwept clean away, when by Gods juſt judgements, as by a ſtorm of hail, like the Egyptians they ſhall miſerably periſh, and be deſtroyed.

Verſ.18. And your covenant with death ſhall be diſannulled. From hence to *ver.*23. the Prophet goeth on to amplifie his threatning of judgement further, contrary to their brags before-mentioned *Verſ.*15. as is plain by the words of this verſe, only here having threatned that their covenant with death ſhall be diſanulled, he addeth, Your Viſion of hell ſhall not ſtand] for ſo the word חזות ſignifieth, being in our N. Tranſlation, Your agreement, but more is hereby intimated, viz. their ſecurity grounded upon the viſions of falſe prophets that deceived them, who ſpake to them pleaſing things in the name of the Lord.

Verſ.19. When it paſſeth, it ſhall take you by morning, by morning, day and night, &c. As they had brag'd *verſ.*15. When the overflowing ſhall paſſe thorow, it ſhall not come nigh us. So contrariwiſe he here threatneth, That it ſhall take them. And whereas they flattered themſelves with this conceit, that although it came, yet it ſhould not hurt them, for either it would be ſo long in coming that they be dead and gone before that time, or if not it ſhould not laſt long, and ſo they might outlive it; he addeth theſe words, of the coming thereof in the morning, that is, ſpeedily, and the laſting of it day and night, that is, a very long time. Note. And upon ſuch conceits do the wicked ſtill harden themſelves in their ſins, but let us fear God, whoſe judgements ſhall certainly come and ſeiſe upon all that careleſly go on in ſinne, and that ſo long that through vexation they ſhall curſe the time that ever they were born to ſuffer ſuch intollerable miſeries. And the commotion is only making to underſtand Doctrine; That is, when no teaching will prevail to make them receive and profit by inſtruction, judgements ſhall.

Verſ.20. For the bed is ſhorter then to ſtretch upon it, &c. Calvin, The bed is contracted as not ſufficient. The firſt comes neareſt the Hebrew, and this is aptly added by another ſimilitude beſides that of a covering, taken from a bed to ſhew their ſecurity in their ſins, by their lying herein, as in a bed with covering upon it, wherein they meant to ſleep forth on, ſay the Prophet what he could to make them ariſe by repentance, and to come therefrom. And it is, as if he had ſaid, Ye lie in your ſins as in a bed, thinking to lie at eaſe, and that ye are covered ſo that no judgements ſhall come at you, but ye are utterly deceived, as a man going to bed thinking there to take his eaſe when he is weary and to lie warm in cold weather, but being laid he finds the bed too ſhort to lie upon with any eaſe, and the covering ſo narrow, that he is nipped with the cold notwithſtanding, ſo ye upon the bed of ſin, and under your covering of lies ſhall not finde any eaſe or warmth, but be nipt with the foreſaid hail when it cometh, and ſhall have no true reſt in the mean ſeaſon, but for fear of Gods judgements lie trembling and unquiet through the terrour of an evil conſcience. Hieronym. Jerom both renders it otherwiſe, The bed is ſo ſtraight, that one falleth out, and the covering too narrow to cover both, and giveth another ſenſe, thus, To hold me and the adultherer, a falſe God, but he both goeth from the Hebrew, and from the true ſenſe, which is not to impugn idolatry only, but exceſſe of riot, and that chiefly according to verſ. 8. the verſes before that from the fourth.

Verſ.21. For the Lord will ariſe as in mount Perazim, and be angry as in the valley of Gibeon, &c. Here he proceedeth to confirm further what he ſaid of the ſtorm of hail deſtroying them, againſt which their covering ſhould not ſhelter them. For it ſhould be as that in the dayes of Joſhuah upon the Amorites in Gibeon, Joſh. 10. 10. and as that upon the Philiſtims in Davids time, 2 Sam. 5. 20. To do his work, his ſtrange work. Calv. Some, ſaith Calvin, take this as ſpoken, to ſhew, That it is againſt the mercifull nature of God to bring horrible deſtructions upon his own peculiar people, and that he doth it not but upon extream provocation: Some, becauſe it was no wonted judgement, which was now to be brought, ſeeing alwayes hitherto though he judged them divers times for correction in their own Country, yet he never gave them ſo into the power of their enemies, as to be all deſtroyed, or carried away Captive, or left only to ſerve their enemies in poverty and baſeneſs, their temple and City being burnt; for contrariwiſe he made them famous, as his beloved people throughout all Nations by his noble and mighty acts done for them. But he reſolveth only upon this that he cals it A ſtrange work, becauſe unwonted towards them in former times, and only uſed to be done againſt heathens, their enemies. But I ſee no reaſon why it ſhould not be called a ſtrange work in all theſe regards, becauſe ſo it will more fully appear, why it is thus called, ſith there are divers reaſons commonly of one and the ſame phraſe. And he doth not only call it a ſtrange work once, but the ſecond time, varying the word from מעשה to עבד implying a work reducing them to the condition of ſervants to cruel tyrants, to pleaſe whom they ſhould ſerve Idols. Lyra will have it a ſtrange work, because a further thing is here pointed at, then the deſtruction of the Jews, viz. Lyra.

the judging of the world by Jeſus a man, as the ſame being God had ſuffered by men, which was moſt ſtrange, to be ſcourged, buffeted, &c. And therefore he myſtically applies his riſing up in mount Perazim, to his dividing of the ſheep from the goats, as the word ſignifieth. But if ſo, the conſumption upon the whole earth, v.22. muſt be underſtood of the whole world, againſt which enough before.

For I have heard a conſumption determined upon the whole earth. Here the Prophet Verſ.22.
concludes his threatning with an exhortation not to be mockers any more, as not willing to omit any means of doing them good, by converting them, that judgements threatned might be averted; otherwiſe he ſaith, that their bands ſhould be made ſtrong, that is, their bands of ſervitude, into which they ſhould come, not to be haſtily broken for them to come into liberty again. And this, ſaith Jerom, is ſpoken according to the letter, of the deſtruction to come upon Hieronym.
the Jews by the Caldees, and upon all the world, according to the Anagoge, they ſhould by perſiſting in their deriſion and vain confidence, make their bands of ſervility ſtronger, none of them eſcaping, for the judgement ſhould be upon the whole land in all parts, and all the wicked make the bands of their ſins ſtronger, by going on to ſleight the judgement to come at the laſt day.
Calvin underſtands this conſumption firſt to come, both upon the Jews, and Calvin.
finally upon all the world, but by and by he expounds it as Jerom: Only he ſaith, that the Prophet ſaid he heard it from the Lord to purchaſe the more credit to his Prophecie, and to move them the more to repentance, as not ſpeaking of himſelf, but by the Lords direction; and ſpeaking of their more ſtreightened, or made ſtronger, that herein he ſpeaks by a ſimilitude taken from priſoners, who if they ſtrive to get away are bound with ſtronger chains; and an unruly horſe that kicks and flings, thinking to caſt his rider, gets nothing but more beating thereby; ſo the wicked illuding Gods judgements, do but aggravate Note.
them upon them.

Hearken and hear my voice, &c. Here, ſaith Calvin, the Lord anſwereth an Verſ.23. objection that might be made againſt his proceedings in judging, as if they were not ſo wiſely ordered. And he anſwers it by ſaying, Doth the plowman Verſ.24.
alwaies plow to ſow? he breaks the clods, &c. As if he had ſaid, Ye will grant that God hath more wiſdom to do his works then a plowman to do his, but even he Verſ.25.
doth all things in order for his own beſt benefit againſt the harveſt and after; 26.
by plowing ſometime, and ſometime harrowing, then ſowing his ſeeds, not 27.
confuſedly, but ſeverally, and having gotten in his grain of all ſorts, he proceeds 28.
not alike to beat them all out; but wheat with an heavier and greater inſtrument, 29.
the wheel; ſmaller grains with a wand or ſtaff, and in all this he receives his diſcretion from God; therefore He much more as the Fountain of all wiſdom, muſt needs be wiſe and above all exception in his dealings with ſinfull men. And hereby we may indeed underſtand the ſcope of the Prophet in this place in general, but Jerom particularly ſaith, that by the fitches, which he Hierom.
calleth Gith, and the Comin, ſinners of the Nations are meant; by the wheat,

Hebr. bread or bread-corn, which the wheel being turned upon, tears in the ſtraw with more violence, the people of God; and ſo takes it as meaniug that the Jews, who had more means, ſhould be more ſeverely puniſhed for their ſins then the Gentiles, which wanted means, for theirs: Yet he ſheweth that they ſhould not be alwaies under puniſhments, but after puniſhments live in peace again. For which it is ſaid, *Verſ.*28. Bread-corn is bruiſed or broken in pieces; for he will not alwaies be threſhing it, or tearing it with the wheel of his cart, or bruiſing it with his horſemen. Hieron. with his hoofes, becauſe the Jews had no horſes. The Hebr. is פרשי, properly ſignifying prickings as with ſpurres; and becauſe horſemen commonly prick their horſes with their ſpurres, it is commonly rendred horſemen. But why it ſhould be ſo rendred here, I ſee no reaſon, becauſe not with the feet of horſes, but of oxen, they uſed to tread out their corn; according to that common ſaying, Thou ſhalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Calvin therefore beſt renders it thus, according to ſenſe, Although wheat be threſhed, yet he doth not alwaies threſh it, nor tear it with his Cart-wheel, leſt with its teeth it ſhould break it in pieces; for Cart-wheels, wherewith they uſed to beat out corn, had teeth like ſaws, and therefore if corn were continually torn with the Cart-wheel, it would inſtead of beating out the corn from the ſtraw, be confounded together with it, and quite marred. But although the general ſcope of this place hath been toucht upon by Calvin, and of ſome paſſage more particularly by Jerom, yet this is not enough to make us underſtand all things here ſpoken of. To make uſe therefore of ſome others alſo, Doth the plowman plow all day to ſow? doth he not open and break his ground? as he, ſhall not God, whoſe husbandry his people are, uſe the like diſcretion in his dealings towards them, not alwaies tearing them by his judgements as with plow and harrows; but when he hath thus made them ſufficiently pliable and fit by his judgements ſowing his ſeed, that he may have fruit, where formerly he could have none by reaſon of their hardening their hearts through continued proſperity to the exceſs of wickedneſs? for of this he had before complained, and therefore threatned a conſumption to the whole Land. Now leaſt his faithfull people ſhould doubt, if he proceeded in this great ſeverity, how he would verifie the promiſes of comfort often made, *Chap.*25. and 26.27. 9.13. he ſheweth by a parable taken from a plowman, how thoſe grievous judgements notwithſtanding, finally his people ſhould have eaſe and comfort. *Verſ.*27. For fitches are not threſhed, &c. Here by another ſimilitude of his divers grains growing in ſeverall grounds, and being reaped, beaten out, not all one, but divers waies; he further ſheweth, that the Lord hath divers waies of afflicting his people, ſometime dealing by them, as the husbandman by his ſmaller grain, beating them as with a rod; and ſometime with a more heavy threſhing inſtrument, by more tearing judgements; yet as the husbandman doth not thus alwaies without end, threſh his hardeſt corn, but when he hath beaten it out ſufficiently, ceaſeth from beating it out any more; ſo God will deal by his people: though for a time they be as under the Cart-wheel, and that long, as their hard-heatedneſs requires; yet there ſhall be an end of their ſoreſt miſeries, and then they ſhall magnifie Gods wonderfull councel and excellent working in all this, as it is concluded, *ver.*29. For I cannot think with Jerom, that divers peoples, Jews and Gentiles are here compared together in their puniſhments, for *Chap.*27.8.9. when the Prophet compares their puniſhments together, he plainly ſheweth, that the Jews ſhall not be judged to utter deſtruction, as the Babylonians, but by the divers waies of threſhing he ſets forth lighter and heavier judgements coming upon the ſame his own people, againſt whom all the preceding threatnings in this Chapter are, and experience ſheweth it to have been thus done, other leſſer judgements being firſt brought upon them, and then the greateſt, by the Aſſyrians and Chaldeans.

1 Cor.9.
1 Tim.5.17.
Calvin.
1 Cor.3.9.
Matth.13.

Verſ.29.
Calvin.

The concluſion, *Verſ.*29. Alſo this comes of the Lord, who is wonderfull in councell, &c. is not, ſaith Calvin, to be applyed to the plowman, as *v.*26. as if the ſame were repeated over again in other words, but this alſo is the dealing of God with his people, as the plowman deals by his ground and grains, although he ſeems not by his ſo doing in wrath to care for them, but to hate them, and to be bent quite to deſtroy them, yet it ſhall one day appear, that he did execute all theſe heavy judgements upon them for their finall good, and that he might receive them as pretious to himſelf, as the plowman his divers ſorts of grains. Indeed, v.26. he remembers every plowman and every artificer, or artiſt of rare invention, that he attains not this but by Gods teaching him, that he and not man, who hath invented things ſo profitable and needfull for us, might have all the honour; contrary to the manner of the heathen, who for ſuch admirable skill have numbred men and women amongſt the Gods, as Ceres, Tritolemus, Mercurius, &c.

CHAP. XXIX.

Verſ.1. Woe to Ariel, the City where David dwelt, add ye year to year, &c. The Prophet having *Chap.*28. ſpoken againſt both Kingdoms together, now he ſpeaketh againſt the Kingdom of Judah and Jeruſalem apart. And this Prophecie is continued throughout this and Chap. 30, 31. Here is the judgement firſt threatned, to *v.*13. then the cauſe is ſhewed in reſpect of hypocrites, from *v.*13. to the end of this Chapter. 2. In reſpect of open contemners, *Chap.*30. 3. A concluſion of all this made with exhortation to repentance, *Chap.*31. Ariel ſignifieth the lion of God, whereby the great brazen Altar is meant, the fire made whereupon, devoured beaſts offered, as a lion; ſee *Chap.*31.9. and therefore in naming the Altar, which was a part, he means the Temples deſtruction by Nebuchadnezzar; but to it he addeth The City where David dwelt alſo in his threatning, to ſhew, that it ſhould eſcape no better then the Temple. Add year to year. Hereby is not obſcurely foretold that they ſhould hold out long before the City ſhould be taken, and ſeek by ſacrifices to procure Gods favour to defend them, but all in vain. Verſ.2. I will ſtreighten Ariel, &c. And it ſhall be to me as Ariel. That is, I ſhall deſtroy both Temple and City; thus Junius. For the City where David dwelt, is the City of Davids tent; that is, mount Zion, where he made a tent or tabernacle for the Ark. Let them kill ſacrifices. Junius, Sacrificiis feſtorum capita exſecent, by a needleſs circumlocution, ſith חגים Caggim ſignifieth ſacrifices as well as feaſts, and הנקפ' kill, as well as cut off heads; neither do I finde it in Pagnine ſo rendred, but to cut off lambs. Jerom, by Ariel underſtands both Temple and City, and mentioneth another Expoſition of Davids pitching his tent againſt it when he expelled the Jebuſites; and the numbring of years he will have to be thoſe paſt, ſince the City and Temple built, and how many feſtivals had been kept, as truſting to this, that ſith they had been at coſt to ſerve God there ſo long, he would not leave it as a prey to the enemy. For *v.*2. although he agreeth about the diſtreſs to which this Ariel ſhould be brought by the Chaldees, yet in theſe words [Shall be to me as Ariel] he much differeth; ſaying, this is meant of the time when they returned out of Captivity with Zerubbabel and Jeſhuah the High-prieſt, when the Temple and Altar were built again; and ſo it was as Ariel, that is, the Altar in former times. But herein he goeth certainly from the Prophets meaning, which is here only to denounce judgements, and not to Prophecie of reparations to come. Calvin therefore beſt ſaith, the Temple and City was made as Ariel, when all were full of ſlain bodies, becauſe then there was every where a reſemblance of the Altar for which ſo many ſacrifices were ſlain and lay bloudy about, till they could be offered. Muſculus hath a conceit, that Ariel is oppoſed to Ariel, ſignifying the City of God, it being meant, that it ſhould not now be as his City, but as a lion, whom he would chaſe and deſtroy. But ſome, to me as to Ariel, that is, as to a ſtrong lion, it being meant it ſhould now be a prey to the forces that he would bring againſt it. Calvin alſo ſaith, that ſome think

Junius.

*Ezek.*43.15.

Verſ.2.

Cyril, The City which in times paſt devoured like a lion, but now by God ſet againſt as pernicious, abuſing his ſtrength to rebellion.

Calvin.

Muſculus.

think the Temple called Ariel, from the form wherein it ſtood, but becauſe Note. Ezek. 43. it is plain, that the Altar is ſo called, we may reſt in this. Where David dwelt, this and the Altar are mentioned, becauſe the Jews truſted in the Temple and Altar, and were the more confident for the promiſe made to David, that God would build him a ſure houſe. It is not any outward priviledge either of the place where the moſt famous of Gods ſervants have dwelt, or his moſt magnificent houſe hath been, or ſervice moſt frequent, or is, that can priviledge the wicked inhabitants from deſtruction, that we may truſt to none of theſe, and take notice how ridiculous the Romaniſts are, who truſt that Rome ſhall ſtand for ever, becauſe S. Peters ſeat was there.

Verſ. 3. I will camp againſt thee round about, &c. Here is ſet forth the manner how Jeruſalem ſhould be deſtroied, viz. by war, and how low the proud and ſcornfull there ſhould be brought, ver. 4. to ſpeak out of the ground, as one that hath a familiar ſpirit, who was wont to mutter out of a den within the earth, with a moſt low voice, his words ſo, as that they could ſcarce be underſtood.
An argument of the proud and fierce and high-ſpoken brought low enough, and ſo filled with ſhame and confuſion as to be without all ſpirit to ſpeak audibly.
Note. Thus God can and will ſtop the proud and inſolent mouths of the wicked, who in proſperity will ſpeak in ſpight of God and men.

Verſ. 5. The multitude of thy ſtrangers ſhall be as ſmall duſt, &c. This is by Jerom applied Hieron. to the ſame proud-ſpoken men, who, he had ſaid, ſhould ſpeak out of the duſt: now he calleth them ſtrangers, becauſe the wicked are ſuch to God, and compares them to the duſt blown away by a tempeſt, and to chaff inſtantly gone. And then their brags of making a covenant with death and hell ſhall be but as a vain dream, which profits not him that ſeemeth to eat and drink, Cald. Paraphra. when he is once awake again. The Chaldee applyeth all to verſ. 9. to the enemies deſtroying the City of Jeruſalem, as if it were meant, that their joy hereof Junius. ſhould ſoon be at an end. Junius, That innumerable enemies as the duſt ſhould come againſt them: whoſe power ſhould be as irreſiſtible, as if God fought againſt them, and to ſhew how ſuddenly and impetuouſly they ſhould fall upon them, it is added, it ſhall be at an inſtant ſuddenly, by thunder and earthquake, &c.
And then further to expreſſe their inexpleble deſire to deſtroy the Jews, he addeth v. 7, 8. that their enemies ſhall be as they that dream, that is, Calvin. hungry ſtill of their deſtruction. Calvin by theſe ſtrangers underſtands forces hired by the Jews to help them againſt the Chaldees, for which it is ſaid, Thy ſtrangers. Theſe, he ſaith, ſhould be but as the duſt or chaff ſoon blown away, when the Babyloniſh army ſhould come, and to expreſſe this, it is added, at an inſtant, ſuddenly. For the next words Ver 6. he ſaith, that thunder and earthquakes, &c. are threatned to come from the Lord upon them, to expreſs by many metaphors how terrible theſe enemies brought by the Lord to puniſh them for their ſins ſhould be unto them. And whereas ver. 7. it is ſaid, The multitude of all the Nations that fight againſt Ariel, ſhall be as a dream, it is meant, when they ſhall come, it will appear, that the vain confidence which the Jews had, that they ſhould never be diſtreſſed or brought to ſo great want by their beſieging them, ſhould prove but as a dream, becauſe having no fear of ſcarcity, but being confident of continuall plenty, they ſhould then be pinched with famine and hunger. Lyra takes all this as a Prophecy againſt the Babylonians, Lyra. their enemies, for the comfort of the faithfull, it being meant, that within a ſhort time they ſhould be as the duſt before the Medes and Perſians, coming as a tempeſt upon them, and a flame of fire, as they did indeed, when breaking into Babylon they burnt it. Then all the riches and glory that they had gotten in fighting againſt Ariel, ſhould vaniſh, as food which one thinks that he abounds with in his dream, but awaking he hath nothing, but is hungry and thirſty. And this I muſt needs approve as moſt genuine, there being none which fals in ſo fully with the Text. Not the firſt, applying it to the ſcoffing wicked Jews, becauſe they could not be called Ariels ſtrangers, but of them the City threatned was moſtwhat compounded, and becauſe they were enemies to Ariel, who are threatned here, and ſuch as fought againſt it, and for the ſame reaſon Calvins cannot ſtand, becauſe the wicked Jews are not compared to them that dream, but they that diſtreſſed them. And for that of Junius, it were ſtrange that the Prophet meaning according to his ſenſe, to ſet forth their enemies as irreſiſtible, ſhould compare them to ſmall duſt, which every puffe of winde bloweth away, and as ill doth that agree of their being made the more hungry of the Jews as of a prey, when they had gotten them, and their wealth, like a dreaming man, who awaking hath nothing, whereas they had all which they came for. This laſt of Lyra's agreeth in all things, unleſſe it ſhall ſeem ſtrange, that it ſhould thus be applied to the Babylonians future deſtruction, to which it was 70. years: but a thouſand years are with the Lord but as a day, as a moment, and therefore it might well be ſpoken of, as a thing to come inſtantly. If it ſeems not to agree to the argument in hand to expound it thus, becauſe after a ſiege, and being brought low threatned, what can in reaſon follow, but a deſcription of numerous forces, whereby this ſhould be done? I anſwer, It is not unuſuall with Iſaiah when he is in the midſt of his threatning ſuddenly ſometimes to interlace comforts, leſt the faithfull ſhould be overwhelmed with deſpair. Underſtanding it therfore thus, all things will beſt agree both to the Text, and the event, as it is recorded in hiſtory, and *Dan.*5. For the Perſians brake ſuddenly and unexpectedly into Babylon, which they within thought impregnable by men, and therefore were ſecurely feaſting that very night, and ſleeping according to the words of the Text, when they awoke again, finding how greatly they were deceived, the enemies being then Maſters of the City.

See Chap.8.5. 16,17.

Verſ.9. Stay your ſelves and wonder, and cry ye out, they are drunken but not with wine. Hieron. After propheſying of their deſtruction by the Caldeans, ſaith Jerom, he propheſyeth againſt the Scribes and Phariſees, and the whole Nation of the Jews, that they ſhould be deſtroied by the Romans, beginning firſt with the cauſe, viz. their groſſe errours, and that above all, that they could not ſee Jeſus ſent unto them to be the Meſſiah, through the judgement of God being as it were aſleep, and their eyes covered, ſo as that they could not reade to underſtand the books of the Prophets, which they had, plainly propheſying of him. For none of them could open the book, becauſe it was ſealed, that is, the book of God, as all the Scriptures are called his one book, till the Lamb Chriſt came who opened the Seals, *Rev.*5. and 6. Lyra. Lyra alſo more fully ſaith, they are ſaid to ſtagger but not with ſtrong drink, becauſe as Joſephus hath it, they were full of fear at the coming of the Romans, cauſing them to fluctuate, ſome perſwading to yeeld up the city, and ſome not, as a drunken man reels ſometime to one ſide, ſometime to another.

Verſ.10. He hath cloſed your eyes, ſent you the ſpirit of ſleep, &c. that is, not to be able to ſee the deſtruction coming to repent, by the fearful ſigns appearing before it. For even then they that made themſelves Prophets expounded them to be ſigns of good. Verſ.11. And the viſion is become unto you as a ſealed book, &c. that is, prophecies of your deſtruction, which the learned amongſt you cannot reade, becauſe it is ſealed, nor the unlearned, although it were open, for they depend wholly upon their Rabbins, when they are oppoſed with this, that the time of the Meſſiah his coming is long ago paſt, yea, times ſet by themſelves. And according to the word of ſhutting here uſed, Rabbi Solomon confeſſeth upon Dan. that their modern Rabbies ſay, that the reaſon why they have been deceived in the time is, becauſe the ſayings of the Prophets about this are ſhut. And Ad. Sasbont likewiſe, Sasbont. who, in explaining this, he will ſhut your eyes, ſaith, this is done only by permitting and miniſtring ſuch things about them, as whereby they ſhould take occaſion to ſhut their eyes againſt the light, Of which ſee more in mine upon *Rom.*9.

Junius. Cunctantur, quin admiramini? delicias agunt, quin vociferamini? &c. Applying it to the judgements before ſpoken of, at the hearing of which, the wicked Jews without all fear delaying their repentance, and ſtaying ſtill in ſin, yea, going on in feaſting and drinking, all men are ſtirred up to wonder and to cry out againſt them. Then he ſheweth, that this is come ſo to paſſe by a juſt judgement ſpirituall, for their wicked licentiouſneſſe, ſhutting up their Calvin. eyes, &c. Stay and wonder, they are blinded and do blinde, &c. Heb. התמהמהו a ſtrepitu, and may be with the next word of the ſame radix, be expounded, Cauſe a noiſe to be heard as wondring, and make a noiſe, and then the ſame is ſaid again in two other words, of like ſignification, Cauſe a cry to be heard, and cry out. And this is thus ſpoken, the more to condemn the wicked and blinde and hard-hearted Jews, whom no teaching, or ſigns, or wonders wrought amongſt them, would move to believe and repent any more, then if they had been ſhewed before men in a deep ſleep, as the word תרדמה ſignifieth. Therefore although Calvin alſo underſtands it as ſpoken altogether of the Jews ſtupidity then, not being moved by any threatnings of the Prophets, of judgements to come by the Caldees, to turn by repentance; yet I muſt needs rather embrace the old expoſition, taking it as a prediction of a greater kindeneſſe yet to come upon the Jews in the time of our Saviour Chriſt, when the means were farre more powerfull, and yet they like a company of men dead aſleep through a ſpiritual judgement upon them for the pride and preſumption in them, to urge traditions of men even above Gods precepts, and the malice and envy againſt Chriſt, when he reproved this in them, ſaw nothing to move them, but even unto the end hardened themſelves againſt him, being bold (when Pilate fearing, would acquit himſelf from guiltineſſe in reſpect of his bloud) to cry out, His bloud be upon us and our children, and continuing in the ſame malicious minde unawakened out of that dead ſleep to this day. For *verſ.*13. Teaching for doctrines the precepts of men, with which they are charged, is plainly applied *Mat.*15. againſt the Phariſees, a generation of men unborn long after the daies of this Prophet, or the accompliſhment of the judgement upon the Jews by the Caldeans. And the ſpirit of ſlumber or dead ſleep pouring out, is applied to them of the ſame time, *Rom.*11.8. together with that of having eyes to ſee but Verſ.10. not to perceive, *Iſa.*6.9. And this is ſhewed *verſ.*10. to be the caſe of their very Prophets and Rulers, that is, which took upon them, as men more enlightned, as the Phariſees did, by whom others were guided, their eyes were covered, and ſo they were as Chriſt ſaith they were, *Joh.*9. And Calvin himſelf coming to ſpeak upon *verſ.*11. and 12. applyeth it likewiſe, citing for proof, 2 *Cor.*3. And becauſe this is threatned as a judgement that the Book of God ſhould be Calvin. Muſculus. as a ſealed book, both he and Muſculus note, that the Papiſts are under the ſame judgement, becauſe reading the Scriptures is interdicted to them, or having them in their mother tongue for fear, as is pretended, leſt they ſhould otherwiſe be an occaſion of errour unto them, but in truth, leſt the groſſe errours of Popery being hereby eaſie to be ſeen by any one, ſhould appear, and make men turn from it.

Verſ.13. Becauſe this people draweth near to me with their mouth, &c. Here the reaſon is yeelded, why they were under the judgement of ſpirituall blindeneſſe, viz. becauſe they worſhipped God but in hypocriſie, and his fear was taught by the precepts of men, for which he threatneth to take away underſtanding from the wiſe and prudent, *verſ.*14. as it is alſo applied to the Phariſees Hieronym. under the Goſpel, 1 Cor. 1. 19. Their being farre off in heart, is by Ierom expounded of their infidelity in reſpect of Jeſus, whereby they were far from the Sonne, and therefore from the Father, to whom no outward appro- Lyra. Calvin. aching is a drawing near, but that of a beleeving heart. Lyra expounds it of hypocriſie, and Calvin, as before, and this is beſt, becauſe the cloſing up of their eyes, not to be able to ſee Jeſus to be the Meſſiah, was the judgement which came upon them from God for their hypocriſie and preferring of Phariſaicall traditions before Gods Commandments. The wiſe from whom he threatens for this to take away underſtanding, were the Scribes and Phariſees, ſo called for their learning wherein they had been brought up, and were amongſt the Jews had in ſpeciall account therefore, as moſt wiſe men. But forſomuch ſomuch as they underſtood not Jeſus to be the Meſſiah, but this, though ſet forth in their Law and Prophets, was hidden from them, but not from the Apoſtles and others called to preach the Goſpel, who yet were illiterate men, it is ſaid, that he choſe the fooliſh things of the World to confound the Wiſe: and I thank thee, (O Father) that thou haſt hidden theſe things from the Wiſe, and revealed them to babes. And thus was it with many learned amongſt the Papiſts, when the poor men of Lions in France were enlightened to ſee into the ſuperſtitions and idolatries of Popery, and to deteſt them; but they, who were learned and in greateſt eminency for wiſdom, ſaw not, but eagerly maintained them, as matters wherein greateſt devotion conſiſted. And what a number of hy- Note. pocrites are diſcovered in England at this day by the like ſpiritual judgement upon them, hindering them from ſeeing into the truth, whereby it comes to paſſe, that they dote every one upon his own errour, thus cauſing many ſchiſms and diviſions in our Church, to the hindering of us from a deſired Reformation! And that they are under this judgement appears, becauſe their tenets be meerly new, and were never anciently held in the Church of God, whereas any truth, although becauſe diſuſed, may be called new, yet if it be inquired into, it will appear to have been old, as 1 John 2.7. he ſaith, I Write a new commandment unto you, yet the ſame, Which ye had from the beginning. And this is neither Independency, Anabaptiſm, Antinomianiſm, or any the like.

Woe to them that ſeek deep to hide their counſel from the Lord, &c. Here the Verſ.15. Prophet goeth on to aggravate the wickedneſſe of hypocrites, who would ſeem godly indeed in outward appearance, but were nothing leſſe in heart and in their lives, yet ſuch was their ſimplicity, that they thought by their feigned godlineſſe to deceive the Lord and good men alſo, by carrying the matter ſo cloſely, that neither they nor he ſhould ſee it. For whilſt they did thus dig deep as it were to hide the wicked imaginations of their hearts, the Lord beheld well enough, what conſultations each one had within himſelf, purpoſing therefore to judge them, as hath been already ſaid, by making them to appear to be without the ſight of underſtanding, and in ſtead of wiſe men, and men of deep counſel, very fools and blinde men, when for all their ſins, wherein they thought to paſſe on without check by reaſon of the good ſhew made outwardly, he ſhould ſeverely, and without all pity deſtroy them, as was propheſied *verſ.*2,3,4. and again *verſ.*17. And this ſhall be the end of all that are Note. cunning to do evil, they may pleaſe themſelves for a time in a conceit that they are wiſer then the notoriouſly prophane, but this their wiſdom making them to go on ſecurely in their ſins, ſhall one day appear to be extream folly, when a greater judgement ſhall be laid upon them then upon any other ſort of ſinners. And hereby it appears, that although they be brought in *Chap.*28.14, 15. ſaying, We have made a covenant With death, &c. yet they ſpake not thus with their tongues, but in their hearts, none but good and godly ſpeeches coming from their mouths, as is the manner of moſt men, to conceal the wickedneſſe of their hearts and lives what they can, becauſe otherwiſe they ſhould make themſelves too palpably evil, and be in greateſt diſcredit almoſt with all men, at the leaſt of all that carry the faces of honeſt men, as moſt do where there is frequent propheſying, as was then in Iudea. See the like Iob 22.14. *Ezek.*9.9,10.

Your turning of things upſide down ſhall be eſteemed as the Potters clay, &c. Verſ.16. Calvin. Calvin, Shall it be eſteemed as the Potters clay? And this is beſt, becauſe otherwiſe the particle אם here uſed goes untranſlated, and Im, ſignifying if, is commonly uſed by way of interrogation; and thus the ſenſe will be good, Shall ye be able to work out of your revolution of thoughts within, the thing that ye imagine, as the Potter doth by turning his wheel, a piece of clay into what form he will? No ſurely, for ye may winde and turn, but no ſuch effect as ye expect ſhall follow after all this deep counſel taken in ſo great ſecrecy. To think otherwiſe, is, As if the pot ſhould ſay of the Potter, he made me not, and he underſtood not] for it is all one for a man to ſay of God he made me not, and he knows not my heart to deal with me according to the wickedneſſe lying hid therein, for as the Potter knows the pot both within and without, ſo God his creature, man, and to deny unto him this knowledge, is to deny him to be thy maker.

Verſ.17. Hieronym. Lebanon ſhall be turned into a fruitfull field, &c. This, and *verſ.*18,16,20,21. is by Jerom expounded of the Jews and Gentiles, they being in times paſt as a fruitfull field, after their rejecting and crucifying of Chriſt, became as Lebanon, a barren place, who were before as Carmel, which is the word here uſed, ſignifying fruitfull, becauſe ſince that time, as ground barren of all good fruits, they have been caſt off, and as without a dreſſer and fencer they lie open to the treading under by the feet of all Nations: But theſe being formerly barren, as a foreſt, for ſuch was Lebanon, are by the coming of the Goſpel amongſt them made fruitfull as Carmel, by reaſon of the multitudes of true believers amongſt them, abounding with the fruits of good works. For Lebanon is a mountain in Phœnicia, barren of graſſe and corn, but Carmel in the Land of Canaan abounded with both. And, ſaith he, let the Jews, who cleave to the letter anſwer if they can, how this being litterally underſtood can be verified, and if not, acknowledge the metaphor here. And he ſaith, this ſhall be within a very little while, becauſe ſix or ſeven hundred years are no more with God then a piece of a day.

Verſ.18. Then the blinde ſhall ſee out of darkneſſe, and the deaf ſhall hear the word of the Lord] That is, the Gentiles, who were before in darkneſs ſhall have a great light riſe up unto them, whereby to ſee into the myſteries of God; and whereas the Jews are complained of before, that it was vain to ſhew the hearing to them *Chap.*28.9. it ſhall not be ſo to theſe, although deaf in times paſt, now they ſhall hear and obey the Goſpel. And theſe ſame are in the next words, Verſ.19. called, Meek and poor, that ſhall encreaſe their joy, becauſe poor in reſpect of true riches, as all are, till they come to the knowledge of God and are converted, and to this none attain, but the meek, ſith the word is then only received (Jam.1.) to the ſaving of the ſoul, when in meekneſſe, becauſe the proud who are of another ſpirit, refuſe to ſubmit thereunto, and cavil againſt it, and then comes exceeding great joy, as Acts 8. Iſai. 9. 1. Then he ſheweth the evil caſe of the Jews, ſaying, The terrible one is conſumed, and the ſcorner brought to nought, &c.

Verſ.21. That make a man a ſinner for a word, and lay a ſnare for him that reproveth in the gate, &c. That is, By making men to blaſpheme Chriſt, who is the Word; thus, ſaith he, Nazrai expound it, but we of the devil ſeeking to enſnare Chriſt by his temptations.

Junius. Junius by Lebanon underſtands the proud and contemptuous, as if they were here threatned to be brought down; and whereas before their eyes were covered, they ſhould now be made to ſee and hear whether they would or no, *verſ.*20,21. being ſpent in deſcribing further their wickedneſſe. Vatablus follows Iunius, Calvin. Calvin, that the preſent ſtate of the Jews is compared with the future after that God ſhall have once done puniſhing them by the Caldees, they being now as Lebanon, unfruitfull, ſhall be made fruitfull. But if this be admitted, what ſhall the Carmel be that is turned into Lebanon? Or if that of Iunius, whereunto adde, That it is a phraſe never uſed in way of threatning, That the deaf ſhall hear, and they in darkneſſe ſee, but of promiſing and comforting. And therefore it muſt needs be ſo taken here alſo, eſpecially becauſe *Ver.*19. they are called the meek and poor, to whom this is ſpoken, and the ſcornfull and proud Jews are otherwiſe ſpoken to verſ. 20,21. Wherefore leaving theſe I ſubſcribe to Jerom, and the rather becauſe theſe words, as the former, were ſpoken of the time of the Jews rejection, and the Gentiles vocation, when the wiſdom of their moſt prudent ones failed. For what can then be expected to follow, but that Gods vineyard, which they were, Iſai. 15. growing in a moſt fruitfull ſoil ſhould be turned into Lebanon, a place of Trees and Briars, but without fruit, and then becauſe God will not be without out a vineyard, Chriſtian people of all Nations muſt be it, and therefore hear and ſee that which the Jews would not, viz. that Jeſus is the Meſſiah, although formerly altogether in darkneſs; yet whereas Jerom by making a man a ſinner for a word, underſtands Chriſt, I rather underſtand Chriſt by the man to entrap whom in his words they laid wait, becauſe he was ever reproving their groſſe errors and ſins, as here followeth, becauſe of this we reade in ſome places, but not that they ſought to make any to blaſpheme him, although they themſelves did often, neither is Chriſt any where ſet forth by this name Word, till Joh. 1. Laſtly, He could not ſpeak more plainly to intimate whom he meant by his threatning *verſ.*20. thereby calling them ſcorners, as Chap. 28. 14. for what were the Jews towards Chriſt, but a company of ſcornfull mockers, calling him, The Carpenter, Drunkard, Belzebub, and He calleth to Elias, Let us ſee if he will come and help him, &c. and the terrible one, ſeeing they were ſo terrible to his followers to excommunicate them, and afterwards to put them to death, as they could lay hold upon any of them, and to him, to cry all out againſt him, as one man, Crucifie him. Although Adam Saſbont, By the terrible one, and the mocker, being of the ſingular number, underſtands the devil, and by thoſe That make a man a ſinner in a word, or by a word, the Jews, who by their enticing words drew men from Chriſt. And firſt making a queſtion, How by one reproving in the gate, Chriſt could be underſtood, becauſe this is a deſcription of one to whom power of judgement is committed? He anſwers, That becauſe he that ſits to judge, ſits to reprove alſo, a reprover in publick, though no Judge amongſt men, may alſo be meant.

Sasbont.

Lyra.

Lyra agreeing with that, which I ſaid before, about making a man a ſinner for a word, differs yet in that, by the fruitfull field, as it is commonly tranſlated, Hebr. Carmel, he underſtands barren mount Carmel, where Elijah kept, and by Lebanon a farre higher mountain, adorned with tall Cedars, and therefore by the turning of Lebanon into Carmel, the pulling down of the proud Prieſts and Phariſees, &c. Cornelius à Lapide, By making a man a ſinner in a word, underſtands the word before ſpoken of *verſ.*13. viz. the doctrine derived from mens precepts. To conclude, with Jerom conſenteth Cyril, Procopius, Theod. taking Carmel for a moſt fruitfull place, as *Jer.*2.7. and herein do I reſt, yet preferring that of making a man a ſinner for a word, or in a word, as it is Hebr. whereby it is underſtood of their ſeeking to intrap Chriſt in his ſpeeches, and conſequently any of his Miniſters, whom to trap, or at whoſe ſayings to carp at likewiſe to bring them into danger, is the chief end of ſome wicked inſtruments of the devil in coming to hear them, for this they learn of their father the devil, whoſe trade it is to be the accuſer of the brethren. And this is the rather to be preferred for the words immediatly following in way of explication, They lay a ſnare for him that reproveth.

Of Carmel and the condition of it, ſee my Expoſition upon 1 *Sam.*25.
Note.

Verſ.22. Jacob ſhall not be confounded, neither ſhall his face now wax pale. Vulgar Latine, Shall not be aſhamed, nor his face aſhamed] But the next word rendred here aſhamed, is Hebr. wax pale, that is, for fear; the meaning being, that for this threatning of the Prophet they ſhall not now in his days be affected either with ſhame or fear to turn, but the time ſhould afterwards come, when they ſhould ſee the Apoſtles, and other Preachers of the Goſpel, their children, ſanctifying Gods name, &c. as *verſ.*23. That is, By preaching and miracles confirming the Goſpel, and Jeſus, the holy One of Iſrael to be the Meſſiah. Verſ.23.

Verſ.24. Then the erring in ſpirit ſhall underſtand, and the murmurers learn doctrine. That is, The Gentiles, who wandered after vanities, as they were lead, the light of the Goſpel coming amongſt them, ſhall attain right underſtanding to ſerve the true God; and their Poets, who were their teachers, that derided the people of God formerly in their rithmes made againſt them for their Sabbaths, and their God of heaven, ſhall learn by this teaching alſo. For ſo *Juvenal Satyr.*14.

Quidam ſortiti metuentem Sabbata, patrem, Nil præter nubes & cœli numen adorant.

Adam Sasbont.
Lyra.

To this effect Adam Sasbont and Lyra, taking their hint from Jerom. And it doth excellently agree after the Prophecie of the converſion of the Gentiles before ſpoken of, to ſhew it, leſt any ſuppoſing the Prophet to ſpeak of a time nearer at hand, and that he meant the Jews blinded then by Gods judgement, and ſo think, that his Prophecie was not true, becauſe he had ſaid, Yet a very little while, verſ.17. he ſaith here, not now, for they ſhall ſee their children ſanctifying Gods name firſt, and then they ſhould be confounded for their own malicious oppoſing of the Goſpel: and he moſt aptly calleth the Apoſtles, The work of my hands, becauſe being illiterate God did ſo ſuddenly make them learned above all others by the coming down of the holy Ghoſt, Act. 2. to the admiration of all Nations preſent, then the Gentiles ſet forth by them that erred, came to underſtanding, and their murmurers to know their deriſions of Gods ſervice amongſt his ancient people to be vain.

Calvin.

Calvin and ſome others underſtand the Prophet, as ſpeaking only of the Jews by way of comforting the faithful amongſt them, leſt they ſeeing themſelves overwhelmed with ſo much miſery, as was before threatned, ſhould utterly deſpair. Wherefore he ſaith, That Jacob ſhall not now be quite confounded, nor his face wax pale, whereby, ſaith Vatablus, on and the ſame thing is meant, becauſe though they that be aſhamed look red at the firſt, yet this redneſs ends in paleneſs. No ſuch thing then was to be feared now when Gods judgments had wrought their work upon that people, as that they ſhould be finally confounded hereby, and therefore he makes mention of his redeeming Abraham, of whom they were deſcended, that is, out of Ur of the Caldees, and the dangers that he was in in Egypt, and the Philiſtims Countrey by reaſon of his wife Sarah, here commemorated, to intimate, that they his poſterity might be comforted in hope by the power of the ſame Lord God of hoſts on one day to be delivered alſo out of all their miſeries. And in calling them by the name of Jacob, he gives them an hint alſo of comfort, by recounting, how he was in his time delivered from Eſau, and Laban, and the Shechemites. And whereas he ſaith, Jacob ſhall not now be confounded; he implieth, that their wickedneſſe made even him to bluſh, as it were in his grave, to ſee it, by a Proſopopeia, as Rachel is ſaid to weep for her children the Benjamites, who were killed up many years after her death and burial. Then *verſ.*23. he ſheweth the ground of this happy end to be expected, When they ſhall ſee their children, the work of my hands, they ſhall ſanctifie my name; That is, by mine almighty power made free of bond-men, and brought from miſery to a flouriſhing eſtate again; for this, as the creation of all things of nothing, was the admirable work of Gods hands, therefore ſeeing this, they ſhould praiſe and fear God.

Vatabl.

Verſ.24.
Chap.28.14.
29.10,11.

And then the erring ſhould learn knowledge, and the murmurers doctrine, Verſ.24. And theſe are the ſame, who before were called mockers, who alſo are ſaid to have erred by the ſpirit of ſlumber ſent unto them. Hitherto Calvin, Vatablus, Muſculus and others, neither doth Junius differ.

Cyril.
Th. Aquinas.

Cyril and Thomas Aquinas, Shall not now be aſhamed] to repent, that is, at the coming and preaching of Chriſt, but afterwards towards the end of the world they ſhall, For they ſhall ſee their children, the work of my hands, &c. That is, many of the Nations converted by the Miniſtery of the Apoſtles and other Preachers of the Goſpel ſtirred up from amongſt themſelves, and then at the laſt they ſhall ſanctifie Gods name, and the holy One Chriſt, whom they before deſpiſed, and the erring through blindeneſs of minde ſhall ſee, and the murmurers or mutterers, who were alwayes before muttering, and ſecretly detracting from Jeſus, becauſe ſuch of them as lived amongſt Chriſtians, durſt not for fear of them ſpeak openly againſt him, Shall learn doctrine, Hebr. לקח Doctrine elegantly ſet forth. And hitherto what I finde in Expoſitors for the clearing of the ſenſe here. Now to give mine opinion. The word [therefore] with which this clauſe is begunne, ſheweth it to be a concluſion of that which was ſaid before, and what was it? but that the Jews ſhould fall and be conſumed for their wickedneſſe, *Ver.*20,21.

Therefore it is not now to be expected, that they ſhould be aſhamed and fear to repentance, by this denunciation of judgements, but ſuffer as hath been threatned in all extremity, and then a time ſhould come of ſome of Iacobs children, being new moulded by the almighty working of God, at what time the Jews ſhould be moved to fear God, and to glorify him and Chriſt that holy One coming of them, and this by their underſtanding returning unto them, with the taking away of which for the time determined for their puniſhment they were threatned *verſ.*14. thus for thoſe of them that erred for want of underſtanding through a ſpiritual judgement upon them; and whereas through the ſame defect they muttered amongſt themſelves ſecretly againſt all threatnings, ſaying, that they ſhould be ſafe, whatſoever Iſaiah propheſied againſt them, hereupon ſtorming and contemning all that was ſaid to move them to repentance, for which he bids them, *Chap.*28,14. Hear ye ſcornfull men] and cries out verſ. 9. To whom ſhall he ſhew the hearing? Now he ſaith, That the mutterers ſhall learn doctrine. And to make this favour promiſed finally the more probable, he mentioneth Gods delivering of Abraham in ſo rare and wonderfull a manner, making a Covenant with him to be both his God, and the God of his ſeed, they therefore being his ſeed having his favour entailed to them ſo, as to be never cut off. And againſt this, I take it, can be no exception, as there may be againſt that which expounds it of confounding by judgements alwayes continuing to utter deſtruction, becauſe the confounding here ſpoken of is limited to the time preſent, by his ſaying [Now] and againſt that expounding it of the Gentiles, who erred, becauſe he had fully done ſpeaking of them and their converſion verſ. 18, 19, 20. and againſt another of Forerius not hitherto mentioned, expounding it thus, Iacob ſhall not be aſhamed, although his children degenerated ſo, for by the taking in of the Gentiles to the faith, who thus become Iſraelites, he by this great encreaſe of his poſterity, becomes more glorious, becauſe thus he ſhould conclude, beſides the premiſſes *verſ.*20,21. wherein not the Gentiles, but the wicked and malicious Jews were ſpoken of. And this of mine is almoſt the ſame with Cyrils and Thomas his before-going, and this began to be fulfilled when many thouſand Jews believed at the Apoſtles preaching, upon which it is touched, Act. 21. Act. 2. and we further expect to be fulfilled, when the covering of which they ſaid, Iſai. 28. 14. We have made lies our covering, ſhall by the light of the Goſpel breaking out unto them be taken away, according to S. Pauls prophecie, 2 Cor. 3.

Forerius.

CHAP. XXX.

Verſ.1.
Hieron.
Lyra reckons it 110 years, and it was no more

VV*Oe to the rebellious children, that take counſel, but not of me,* &c. This is another Prophecie againſt the Jews for a ſin to come, ſaith Jerom, an hundred and fifty years after, when they rebelled againſt Nebuchadnezzar in the time of Zedekiah his reign, *Ier.*37. and being brought under, yet they would of their own heads go down into Egypt, having more confidence, that by ſo doing they ſhould be ſafe, then by ſtaying ſtill in Iudea, and truſting in the Lord, as they were directed Ier. 42. and 43. For herein they took counſel, but not of God, and ſought to be covered from danger, but not by any means directed to by Gods Spirit, and therefore as adding this ſin to their former they were in ſtead of being in more ſafety, in more danger, and becauſe they plainly rebelled againſt the word of the Lord in Ieremies mouth, ſtoutly ſaying that they would not obey it, they are called rebellious children. Whereas *verſ.*2. he ſaith, That they took counſel, or asked it, but not from his mouth, and went into Egypt, truſting to Pharaoh, yet Ieremy ſaith, That they prayed him to ask the Lord, here is no contradiction, for when he had asked they would not obey it, which was all one with not asking. Thus almoſt alſo Iunius. So likewiſe Sasbont, ſaying, That ſome think this ſpoken of the Verſ.2.

Junius.
Sasbont.

the ten Tribes, which ſought help from the Egyptians againſt the Aſſyrians, whoſe tributaries they were, 2 King.17.2,3. And ſome, that the Kingdom of Judah is meant, which even in the dayes of Iſaiah ſought help from Egypt, as appears Chap. 20. Lyra. And this doth Lyra make yet more probable, alledging R.Solomon for it, and arguing from verſ.4. where it is ſaid, That his Princes came to Zoan, and his Embaſſadours to Taanes; whereas in that going down to Egypt, Jer.43. they fled and went not by way of Embaſſie. Yet he concludeth with Jerom, and ſaith, that ſo Expoſitors generally take it. Calvin. Muſculus. But Calvin, Muſculus, &c. paſſing over the ſhewing to what time in particular it belonged, ſpeak only in way of aggravating their ſinne for ſeeking to Egypt, and going thither, contrary to Deut.17.16. It is to be held yet, that it is to be referred to a certain time,and whereas if to the time ſpoken of Ier.43.v.4.makes againſt it,if it be referred to the Kingdom of the ten Tribes,2 Kin.17.v.16.and 17. make againſt it, becauſe it is ſaid, In reſting and ſitting ſtill ye ſhall be ſafe] But they fled upon ſwift horſes] which cannot be applied but to that time ſpoken of Ier.43. becauſe Hoſheah and his ten Tribes had no ſuch promiſe. Yet again, how can verſ.31. agree to the Kingdom of Judah, which was not deſtroyed by the Aſſyrian there threatned, but by the Babylonians ? All which conſidered hath made me to think that this Prophecie is neither againſt the Kingdom of Iudah alone, nor of Iſrael alone, but againſt them jointly,ſpeaking therefore moſt aptly ſometime to them of both Kingdoms altogether, as ver.1,2,3. ſometime to Iſrael alone, as verſ.4,5,&c. and ver. 30,31, &c. and ſometime to Iudah alone, as verſ.15,16. as alſo he did Chap.28. beginning with Iſrael, verſ.1,2,3,4. and then proceeding to Iudah, verſ. 5, 6, 7,8. from thence upbraiding them both, and threatning them. But looking into Ier.37.5,7.and Ezek.17. and finding in both that Zedekiah had help out of Egypt, I muſt needs aſſent to Junius, ſaying, that he here propheſieth of that which was to come long after, viz. in Zedekiahs time, ſith all will ſo well agree, as will ſoon appear.

Verſ.4.

His Princes were at Zoan, and his Embaſſadours came to Hanes, &c. Zoan and Hanes were not both in Egypt, as Oecolampadius ſaith, but Hanes beyond Egypt; Zoan, otherwiſe called Tanes or Tanis by the Greeks and Caldees, ſaith Vatablus, was a very great City in Egypt. Junius. Of the antiquity of Zoan ſee Num. 13.22. called alſo by Iunius, Tanis, giving the name to the ſecond door of the River Nilus; and Hanes he ſaith, was Taphanes, a City in Egypt alſo Ier.43.7. ſo that Oecolampadius was then deceived herein. This is a Prophecie of things done by Zedekiah a wicked King of Iudah then, and the laſt King that reigned over Iudah, as appears more plainly Ezek.17.he,ſaith Iunius, ſought help from Egypt, but in vain.

Verſ.6. Junius.

The burthen of the beaſts of the South into the Land of oppreſſion, &c. Here by beaſts of the South Junius alſo underſtands beaſts properly, Camels and Aſſes, and other beaſts uſed to carry burthens, theſe King Zedekiah laded down into Egypt with treaſure, to hire him with his Army againſt the Babylonians, and Egypt is called the Land of oppreſſion from the ſignification of צרה being derived ▭ מצרים Egypt and Iudea, Hieronym. ſaith Jerom, is here called the South in reference to the other parts of Canaan, for it lay South ; but by beaſts he underſtands the men of Iudah, who for want of underſtanding, when they ſet themſelves headily againſt Ieremiah to go into Egypt to their own confuſion, for man being without underſtanding is like unto the beaſt that periſheth, Pſalm.49. And by the burthen of the beaſts of the South, according to his former uſing of this word againſt Babylon, Egypt, Moab, &c. underſtand the miſeries to come to theſe brutiſh men, after that they ſhould come into Egypt, as Ieremy threatned afterwards. Some by the South will have Egypt underſtood, but it is plainly ſpoken of the Jews called beaſts for the reaſon beforegoing, and the beaſts upon whoſe backs they carried their goods, are ſaid in the later end of the verſe to be Camels and Aſſes. Moreover if beaſts properly were meant, it muſt be granted that Iſaiah propheſied againſt beaſts, which is abſurd. Neither ther is by the Land of affliction Egypt meant, but Iudea. in which theſe beaſts were before that they carried away their goods. And all this will appear more plainly, if it be rendred word for word according to the Hebrew thus, The burthen of the beaſts of the South in the Land of affliction, &c. The Jews dwelling South from the other part of Canaan, even in a Land afflicted, becauſe ſubdued by Nebuchadnezzar, let them hear what a burthen of miſeries, is to come upon them for their doing like beaſts uncapable of the good counſel, which Jeremy ſhall give them, and going headily, as their own obſtinate minds ſhould carry them into Egypt contrary to it. Wherefore Vatablus, Pagnin, and Saſbont are miſtaken, who by the Land of tribulation underſtand the wilderneſs, through which they travelled to Egypt, whereunto indeed the next words ſeem moſt aptly to agree, The lion, and young lion of them, &c. becauſe wilderneſſes are full of Lions and Serpents ready to devour paſſengers. But forſomuch as it is the South in the land of tribulation, the later being added to the former word, that it might more plainly appear, what he meant by the South, and it is not ſaid by, or into the land; the way by which they paſſed cannot be meant, but the Land or Countrey of which they were. As for theſe words, The Lion and young Lion of them, for ſo it is Hebr. and Vulgar Lat. and not as the New Tranſla. from whence come the Lion, &c. They ſhew a reaſon why he calleth them beaſts, they were like wilde beaſts that could not be tamed and governed, and as full of malice and pride, as Serpents of poiſon, as Jerom hath it, and Haimo, and Cyril. And Lyra ſaith, That by the Land of affliction is meant Judea, for that it was to ſuffer by Nebuchadnezzar, and by the Lion and Lioneſs, as he reads it, were the King Zedekiah and his Queen ſet forth, and by Serpents coming of them, their children, who were all wicked and a great cauſe of this judgement. I reſt in the firſt.

Haimo.
Cyril.
Lyra.

Verſ.7. Their ſtrength is to ſit ſtill. This further confirms Jeroms expoſition of the Jews in Ieremies time, becauſe he promiſed, that in keeping in their own Land they ſhould be ſafe, but removing deſtroyed.

Verſ.8. Now go write it before them in a table, &c. Becauſe this judgement was not to come till a long time after, viz. 110 years at the leaſt, a charge is given to write it, that it might never be forgotten. And what muſt he write, but that they were lying and rebellious children, *verſ.*9. and ſleighted true propheſying, but affected falſe and flattering. *ver.*10, 11. wherefore he ſaith, That they did bid the Prophets to make the holy One to ceaſe from before them, that is, becauſe his ſendings to them were in way of menacing them for their ſins, that they would not come in his name any more in ſuch a way. Laſtly, His threatning that they ſhould be broken all to ſmall pieces like an earthen pot, *v.*12, 13, 14. and his direction, by following which they ſhould be ſafeſt after Ieruſalem deſtroyed, viz. by keeping ſtill in their own Land ſo many as remained, and fleeing to Egypt, which direction if they refuſed to follow, their miſeries, ſhould yet be farre greater, verſ. 15. 16, 17. whereas verſ. 13. he compareth the judgement to come to the breach of an high wall falling, becauſe by ſuch a fall ſometime many thouſands have periſhed at once, 2 *King.*20.30.

Verſ.18. Lyra. And therefore will the Lord wait, that he may be gracious unto you, &c. Expoſitours, ſaith Lyra, do commonly hereby underſtand comfort promiſed after the Babyloniſh Captivity of being reſtored again to their own Land. But againſt this he makes divers objections. 1. From *verſ.*19. Ye ſhall ſee no more, for after their return from Babylon they ſuffered many things, as is ſhewed in Nehemiah. 2. From *ver.*20. Thy teachers ſhall not be removed into a corner any more; for Ezra their greateſt Doctor came not amongſt them till a long time after their return, and when he died and Haggai and Zechary, they had no Prophets more. 3. From *verſ.*26. The light of the Sunne ſhall be ſevenfold, &c. now by light comfort being underſtood, this was not verified when they were brought back, becauſe they never had ſo comfortable a being, as in times paſt, eſpecially under David and Solomon; wherefore he concludeth, that the expoſition

Hieron. Procop. Cyril. Theod.

poſition of the Hebrews is here rather to be preferred, who ſay, that it is ſpoken of the times of the Meſſiah, only their errour in expecting a Meſſiah to come, is to be abhorred. For to the time of the Goſpel do all things excellently agree, partly to Chriſts firſt coming, ver. 18,19. &c. to *ver.*26. partly to his ſecond *ver.*26. Therefore Will the Lord Wait that he may be gracious unto you, &c. is as much as if he had ſaid, Becauſe ye go on ſo obſtinately in rebelling againſt him, he will ſtay long before he comes with his greateſt grace amongſt you in Chriſt Jeſus, for he is a God of judgement, that will firſt judge and be avenged upon the wicked, and then he will afterwards ſhew this great favour, and bleſſed are all they that Wait for him, that is, who beleeve that he will do thus, notwithſtanding the miſeries, wherein he will leave his people for their ſins a long time. Thus Lyra, but whereas he ſaith all our Expoſitors generally underſtand this of the Jews return out of Babylon, he was miſtaken, for Jerom alſo applies it to Chriſts time, confuting the contrary, ſo likewiſe Procopius, Cyrillus, Theodoret. But they generally hold, that the Prophecy concerning Evangelical comfort, begins *ver.*19. this being added to the former threatnings, as if he had ſaid, Therefore the Lord will not ſuddenly indeed bring thoſe judgements upon you, but forbear a time expecting your repentance, that he may be gracious unto you, and not thus ſevere. For he will be exalted by ſhewing you this favour of deferring, as he muſt needs be every where, when after ſo long forbearance and no amendment following, he ſhall execute his feirceſt judgements upon you. But I reſt in the former, becauſe the particle for wherewith *ver.*29. begins, ſheweth it to be a reaſon of that which is here ſaid, and that his waiting hath reference, not to the time of delaying to judge them as he threatned, for when they thought thus, it is objected as an aggravation of their ſin, Chap. 28. 15,18,19. but to the time of ſhewing them grace, ſo alſo Junius. Junius: but for the favours hereafter following, he reſtrains them to the Church after their return out of Babylon, and in cauſing them to return: Wherein they do better, who apply ſo much of the promiſes here made to thoſe times, as was performed, to them, but the things wherein they exceed all that was then performed to the times of the Meſſiah his coming.

Verſ.19. Hieronym.

For the people ſhall dwell in Zion at Jeruſalem. &c. that is, ſaith Jerom, in ſpelunca & viſione pacis, as the words ſignifie; that is, in the Church, and none dwell here, but he that is holy, and hears him who hath ſaid, Be ye holy as I am holy. They that by faith wait, as was before ſaid, ſo as none do but the juſt, of whom it is ſaid, *Hab.*3. The juſt ſhall live by his faith: Of their coming to Lyra. dwell in Mount Zion, and the Heavenly Jeruſalem, ſee Heb. 12. 22. And he ſaith, they ſhall not then weep, that is, for their hope of Chriſts coming any longer deferred, and that they ſhall cry to the Lord, becauſe being men we are ſtill ſubject to ſin, and for ſin to judgement; we muſt not expect to be altogether free, but this is our comfort, we ſhall in our ſufferings have grace to repent and to call upon God, and then he will not delay to hear and anſwer us in mercy.

Verſ.20.

Though the Lord give thee bread of adverſity and Water, yet thy teachers ſhall not be removed into a corner any more, but thine eyes ſhall ſee them. Vulg.Lat. and the Lord ſhall give you panem arctum, & aquam brevem. Which Jerom underſtands of doctrine contracted or epitomized into a few words, Thou ſhalt love the Lord With all thy heart, &c. and thy neighbour as thy ſelf: referring for proof Iſa.10.22. hereof to theſe words, The Lord Will make a brief and ſhort Word upon the earth.
Lyra. Lyra and Saſbont, the one a ſlender diet for many Chriſtians lived in great abſtinence, the other affliction which the Church ſhould ſuffer by peſſecution
Adam Sasbont. under the Goſpel, as the phraſe is uſed touching Michaiah, Let him be fed Junius. With bread of affliction, &c. and Junius ſaith it is ſpoken by way of preventing an objection, when the faithfull were in adverſity again, he granteth, that they ſhould be ſo indeed, but they ſhould have comfort ſufficient to bear them out. And this is beſt, for both after their return from Babylon, they ſuffered many things, and ſo did and do the faithfull under the Goſpel. For the reading, Heb. it is, and the Lord giveth you, &c. But for the next words, the Septuagint hath, they ſhall not draw near thee that ſhall deceive thee, for thy eyes ſhall ſee them that have deceived thee, and thy ears ſhall hear the Words of thy teachers behinde thee, ſaying This is the Way, &c. But leaving this as too much differing from the Hebrew, which ſpeaks not of deceivers but true teachers, whom to have alwaies is ſo comfortable to the people of God, the word is לא־וכנם rendred beſt by Jerom, He Will not make to flee away from thee any more. Only whereas Heb. it is teachers, he hath it teacher, by whom Lyra underſtands Chriſt, who ſaith of himſelf, One is your Maſter, Mat.23. And loe I am With you to the end of the World, Mat.28. alledging the Chad. Paraphraſt. who renders it, Non recedet ultra divinitas ejus, of Ezra, Haggai, Zechary, &c. it cannot be underſtood, as Corn. a Lapide hath it, beeauſe they ſoon departed: but of Chriſt and his Spirit, and learned Doctors teaching the truth, who ſhould never be wanting in the Church under the Goſpel, as Ad. Saſbont hath it. This is oppoſed to the threatning, Amos 8.11. for as there a famine of hearing the Word is threatned, and not of bread and water, ſo here contrariwiſe againſt ſuffering at any time by ſcarcity of bodily food, which followed upon the going out of the Goſpel, as is ſhewed Rev.6.6. they are comforted by this, that they ſhall never be deſtitute of ſpirituall food any more. For Chriſt hath ſent his Spirit into the hearts of the faithfull, to teach them continually, *Joh.*14. 1 Joh. 2.20. and he by his Miniſters is with them to teach them to the worlds end. Under the Law they were ſometime without King, Prieſt, and Sacrifice, as in the time of the Babyloniſh captivity, but ſince the coming of the Meſſiah never. Whence note what a comfort it is to enjoy true and faithfull teachers, it is even ſo great that corporeall wants are not to be paſſed for, if we have this comfort, yet neither ſhall the faithfull want neceſſaries at any time for this life, ſome bread and water, though but a little, Pſal. 37. aſſuredly thou ſhalt be fed.

Lyra.

Sasbout.

Note.

Verſ.21.

And thine ears ſhall hear a Word behinde thee, ſaying, This is the Way, Walk in it, When ye turn to the right hand and to the left, Vulg. Decline not to the right hand, reſpecting the ſenſe rather then the rendring it verbatim: Calvin incongruouſly either to the right hand, &c. neither the word כי affording it, nor ſenſe according to other Scriptures, wherein declining to the right hand or left, is generally forbidden. But for hearing the word to be guided in the right way, when thou turneſt to the right hand of being overwiſe, or to the left of being overfooliſh, as Jerom expounds it, and Eccl. 7.16,17. good reaſon that we ſhould be called upon by the voice of the Goſpel. But why is it a word heard behinde thee? Jerom referres this to the back of the Lord, who goeth away, as it were, for ſin, but yet out of his great love ſometimes looks back, and ſpeaks again to ſinners, but this agrees not, becauſe it is not ſaid behinde him, but behinde thee, and being thus underſtood it would not anſwer ſo well to v. 20. Haimo therefore better, when men enticed by worldly things turn their backs upon God to go after them, he cals to them by his word to reduce them to the right way again. And Gregory, We turn our backs as it were to our Teachers face, when we deſpiſe his words, and tread his precepts under foot, when he notwithſtanding ceaſeth not to call us. As a loving father ſeeing his childe going towards a dangerous pit, or green place, where ſerpents lie hid to ſting him, cals with all earneſtneſſe after him, to make him turn back, and keep out of that danger of deſtruction, although by the childe not yet perceived.

Hieron.

Haimo.
*Greg. Hom.*34. in Evan. Quaſi terga in praeceptoris faciem vertimus, cum verba deſpicimus & praecepta calcamus, & tamen ille nos vocare non ceſſat.

Verſ.22.

Thou ſhalt defile the coverings, or places of thy ſilver graven images, &c. Here are ſhewed the notable effects that ſhall follow the preaching of the Goſpel amongſt the Gentiles now turned to be Gods people. They ſhall break down their Idols both of ſilver and gold, which they before worſhipped, as filthy and abominable things, as the event ſhewed, when Emperours and Kings began to embrace the faith. And it was alſo in part fulfilled in the Jews, after their return out of Babylon, as was alſo before propheſied, *Chap.*1.30. 2.20. for they alwaies hated Idols after, being willing in the Romans time rather to die, then to ſuffer the Eagle, the imperiall arms to be ſet up in their Temple.

Verſ.23. And he ſhall give rain to the ſeed that thou ſhalt ſow in the Land, &c. After reformation from ſin, the bleſſing of plenty of the fruits of the earth, ſhall follow every where, which apply anſwers to *verſ.*20. where ſcanty bread and water is ſpoken of, as coming by way of correction upon Gods people for ſin, but now the contrary ſhall be upon the leaving of ſin through the word working in the hearts of the hearers.

Verſ.24. Thy Oxen and Aſſes ſhall eat clean provender, &c. a further amplification of their plenty, in that the beaſts which laboured in tilling the ground, ſhould be allowed corn well-dreſſed, the offall being caſt away. The Vulg. Lat. hath commiſtum migma, whereby is underſtood diverſity of grains mingled together as of Oats, Fitches, Peaſe and Barly, to make the provender the more pleaſant to the taſte.

Verſ.25. On the day of the great ſlaughter when the Towers fall. Here the Prophet promiſeth further, that when the great ſlaughter of the enemies of Gods people ſhall be made, and the great ones of the earth ſet forth by Towers, which formerly overtopt them, ſhall fall, Rivers ſhall run upon high mountains, Hieronym. which Jerom underſtands of many wicked ones firſt periſhing by Gods judgements, ſuch waters ſhall flow, as Chriſt ſpeaks of, *Joh.*4. He that drinks of this Junius. water, it ſhall be a river of water flowing out of his belly; Junius likewiſe touching wicked hypocrites, whereof ſome be as Towers for their greatnes, *Ch.*2.15. but for the Rivers of water nothing elſe but a further amplification of moſt plentifull times. The Hebrews by the Towers underſtand the Romane Potentates, holding that this bleſſed time of ſo great plenty ſhall be to them, when they Sasbont. ſhall periſh and their armies. Sasbont by the high places, the high in virtue, in them ſhall run rivers of grace, when the wicked, yea, the greateſt in this world ſhall be deſtroied at Chriſts ſecond coming. For my part I ſee no cauſe if all the good promiſed before upon the deſtroying of Idols, *verſ.*23.24. be temporall, ſtanding in the bleſſing of greateſt plenty, but that this ſhould likewiſe be underſtood. For having ſaid, ver. 23. that rain ſhould be given in every place, and here, that rivers ſhall run upon high places, how can any expoſition be ſo fitly brought of this, but by expounding theſe rivers, as of waters in abundance coming of that raine? ſith in that dry countrey where Iſaiah lived, when he ſpake this, and the parts about, water could never too much abound. And for the time of the great ſlaughter, to what can it more aptly be referred then to that ſpoken of *verſ.*17. where it is ſo many ſhall be ſlain, as that they ſhall be left but as a beacon upon a mountain, and for towers fallen? ſee Junius before.

Verſ.26. And the light of the Moon ſhall be as of the Sun, and the light of the Sun ſevenfold. This is by ſome referred to the Jews deliverance out of Babylon, by ſome to Chriſt glorified more abundantly, who is the Sun of righteouſneſſe, and the Apoſtles after the coming down of the holy Ghoſt having their light encreaſed, and waxing more famous, and ſome to the day of judgement when they think that the Sun and Moon ſhall ſhine more glorioufly, applying to this *Rom.*8.21. of the creatures deliverance into glorious liberty, and ſome to the thouſand years ſpoken of Rev. 20. But forſomuch as the Argument in hand from *ver.*23. is about temporal bleſſings that ſhould be upon the beating down of idolatry, and theſe bleſſings come by the kindely influence of the heavenly Lights, the Sun, Moon, and Stars, the meaning can be nothing elſe, but that theſe ſhall be far more comfortable then ordinary, working upon the earth, ſo as to cauſe far more fruitfulneſſe, and upon the air to cauſe more healthfulneſſe, when once the Goſpel ſo prevaileth, as that the Jews be converted, at Iſa.65.16. what time as heathen Idols were deſtroyed Chriſtianity firſt prevailing in Em- 20.23. perous and Kings, ſo Popiſh Idols ſhall be deſtroyed throughout the world, and all Nations ſhall bow their knees to one true God only. For what is the Iſa.60. encreaſe of the light of heavenly bodies to us, but more comfort by their means through greater fertility and abundance? To the day of judgement this cannot be referred, becauſe then the Sun and Moon ſhall loſe their light; nor to the Jews deliverance out of the Babyloniſh captivity, becauſe the times then were not ſo happy in outward reſpects, as ſometimes paſt before; nor to the glory of Chriſt exalted, when the Goſpel firſt prevailed, becauſe ſo we ſhould confound the cauſe and effect together, forſomuch as this bleſſing is an effect following upon Idols beating down, which was by Chriſt becoming glorious amongſt the Nations. Laſtly, Neither to the thouſand years yet to come, for theſe are paſt long ago, as I have ſhewed upon Rev. 20. Now the time ſet for this great bleſſing is, when he ſhall make up the breach of his people, and heal the ſtroak of their wound; that is, whenas having been reduced to ſo few, as is ſaid *v.*17. they ſhould again grow far more numerous by the acceſſion of many Churches of the Gentiles.

Verſ.27. Calvin. Behold the Name of the Lord comes from a far, his face burning, &c. The Prophet having threatned the people of God for their ſins, and promiſed all comfort to the faithfull in the words before-going; now enters upon threatnings by way of Prophecy againſt their moſt infeſt enemies, the Aſſyrians by whom as Calvin ſaith, he meaneth alſo the Babylonians, becauſe their kingdom was tranſlated to them. And he ſaith, his Name comes from far, that is, his power doing miraculouſly in confounding the great Monarch of the world, to the purchaſing of fame to himſelf in all Nations, for ſo he gat him a name ſometime in Egypt, by deſtroying Pharaoh. And from far, is as much as after a long time, that he had ſuffered that Tyrant to rage, his face or noſtrils burning, that is, fire iſſuing from him, as breath out of mans noſtrils to deſtroy, or his anger burning.

Verſ.28. His breath as an overflowing ſtream that ſhall reach to the midſt of the neck, &c. Having compared the wrath of God to fire extreamly hot and burning, now he compares it to three other things. 1. To a flood reaching to the neck, of which ſee *Chap.*8.8. 2. To a fan that toſſeth and caſteth up the corn commonly to purge the chaff from amongſt it; but this is a fan of vanity, bringing theſe wicked enemies to nothing. 3. To a Bridle, which we uſe to turn horſes with, and to guide them in the right way: but this bridle ſhould be put into the Aſſyrians or Caldeans jaws to cauſe them to erre, that is, to run ſuch a race as ſhould be to their deſtruction, the like phraſe, ſee *Chap.*39.29.

Verſ.29. Calvin. Note. Ye ſhall have a ſong, as in the night, when an holy ſolemnity is kept, &c. When the Aſſyrians ſhould be thus deſtroyed, as they were, Chap. 39. of which alſo ſee before *Ch.*10.16,18. then the people of God ſhould have joy, making them to ſing and to play upon pipes, and other inſtruments of muſick in way of praiſing him, as ſometime did Miriam, *Exod.*15. and the godly are exhorted to do, *Pſa.*92. neither is it unlawfull for the faithfull now to do thus. But it is, as in the night of a holy ſolemnity, in a godly way, as they did of old the evening before their ſolemnity or feſtivall day, for their Sabbaths began in the Evening. So that here is nothing to countenance vain ſongs and pipings; but to ſtir us up to ſolemn praiſing of God, and keeping a day in ſo doing, when in fighting againſt our enemies he takes our part. And to ſhew where this ſhould be done he ſaith, As one going with a pipe to the mountain of the Lord, that is, the Temple which ſtood upon a mountain, now in every houſe of God.

Verſ.30. And the Lord ſhall cauſe his glorious voice to be heard, &c. Here again the Prophet further proſecutes the argument in hand, verſ. 27,28. touching the enemies deſtruction, whom he nameth, verſ. 31. and he amplifieth it divers waies, as firſt, by the glorious or powerfull voice of God, commanding it to be done. 2. By the deſcent of his arm, or ſtrength doing it. 3. By the fury of his countenance appearing moſt terrible in theſe his judgements. 4. By the flame of a devouring fire. 5. By diſſipation as by a tempeſt. 6. By inundation, of which before. 7. By a tempeſt of hail, for thus ſometime he deſtroied the Cananites, *Joſh.*10. Not that the Aſſyrians ſhould be deſtroied all theſe waies, but moſt certainly and terribly, ſeeing it cannot be otherwiſe with them that are beſet with ſo many ſorts of judgements, whenas God is able with any one of them to confound all his enemies, but he uſeth ſuch variety to terrifie the enemy the more, and to comfort his people againſt their moſt violent and proud attempts.

Verſ.31. By the voice of the Lord ſhall Aſhur be broken in pieces, Who ſmote With a rod. In ſaying thus he alludes to *Chap.*10.24. The rod of Aſhur ſhall ſmite thee. They that in times paſt ſmote the people of God, and many other Nations by their unreſiſtible forces, ſhall be now ſmitten without warlike inſtrument, or humane forces, as it were, by the meer voice and command of God, of ſo great power is he, if any doubt ſhould be made how ſo great and mighty a Monarch could be ſmitten. And by thus ſaying is further declared why he ſpake ſo magnifically of the voice of the Lord, *v.*30. The laſt words may indifferently be rendred, He ſhall be ſmitten With a rod, or he ſmote With a rod: Therefore ſome, ſaith Vatablus, underſtand it as ſpoken of God; but that wherewith God ſmiteth, is before ſaid to be his voice; there Aſhur ſmiting in times paſt is rather meant, he being now paid with his own coin, which is more expreſs, *Chap.*33.1.

Vatablus.

Verſ.32. And in every place Where the grounded ſtaff ſhall paſſe, Which the Lord ſhall lay upon him. Calv. And there ſhall be in every place a grounded ſtaff, Which the Lord ſhall inflict upon him. Jun. So every place Whereby he ſhall paſſe ſhall be a moſt grounded rod, upon Whom the Lord hath put it. To multiply no more, according to the Hebrew, it may thus be beſt rendred verbatim, And every paſſage is a ſtaff faſtened, Which the Lord ſhall make to reſt upon him. For he ſpeaks of a thing to come, as already paſt, as moſt commonly for the certainty thereof he doth. And the meaning is, Let him go whither he will in fleeing from the ſtroak of the Lord, the very place whither ſhall prove as a ſtaff to ſmite and break him in pieces, neither ſhall he with all his power be able to keep it away, that it may not ſmite, or when it ſmiteth, to make it ceaſe ſmiting, till he be utterly deſtroyed: for which he ſaith it is grounded and reſts upon him, as a ſtaff ſtuck into his very bowels not to be pluckt out again, as Ehud his dagger ſtuck in Eglons belly. For ſo Sennacherib paſſed from place to place to take Jeruſalem, but before he came there, a fixed ſtrong ſtaff of judgement was ſet, as it were, ſo faſt in his way, that he could come no further, but in his paſſage loſt his Army, and then fleeing home with confuſion; his life, ſee *Chap.*10. & 38. With tabrets and harps, and battels of ſhakings he ſhall fight With it; or With battels of agitation it ſhall be fought With them. For although in the Text it is בה yet in the margin it is בם put by way of correction, meaning the Aſſyrians and Babylonians alſo, for both were by this divine power confounded miraculouſly. For tabrets and harps they are mentioned to ſhew, that to the Aſſyrians overthrow ſhould not be uſed any weapons of warre, but as in Jehoſhaphats time, the Amonites and Moabites were overcome and fell by ſinging and praiſing of God on the Jews part, 2 *Chron.*20. and playing with inſtruments of muſick, ſo they by Hezekiahs praying, there being nothing left to do for the Jews, but to praiſe God likewiſe.

Verſ.33. For Tophet is ordained of old, yea for the King it is prepared,&c. Calvin, Thophtheth Was ordained ſince yeſterday, even for the King it is prepared. And this is verbatim according to the Hebrew: But by yeſterday is meant from the beginning of the world; and by Thophtheth, hell; for it was otherwiſe called the valley of Benhinnom. Hebr. גיבן הנום Geben hennom, contractè, Gehenna, 2 *King.*23.10. *Jer.*7.31. 19.6. Here they making a great fire burnt their ſons and daughters in ſacrifice to Moloch; of which cruel ſuperſtition, and where this valley was, ſee upon *Levit.*18.21. 2 *Chron.*33.6. It was near to Jeruſalem, being a great and deep valley, had in ſuch deteſtation by the Lord, for the moſt odious idolatry there committed: That here in threatning everlaſting torments in hell, he doth it by this name, applying all circumſtances accordingly both of the largeneſs and depth, the great pile of wood and the fire, hereby allegorically expreſſing, both hels capacity, and the extream pangs of the damned there, and that they are ſo deep in, that they can never get out. For having hitherto threatned the wicked enemy with temporal deſtruction, here he addeth eternal, which ſhall be to all the wicked; and the proud King is ſpecially ſpoken of, becauſe he thinks himſelf too great for God to bring under, and by ſuch pride are moſt Kings apt to be lifted up, as Sennacherib and Nebuchadnezzar, and Pharaoh: To this effect Calvin, who alſo ſaith, that no certain place is here to be conceived to be ſet forth, or fire wherewith the damned are tormented, but by things known, the unſpeakable condition of ſuch is declared, to deter us all from ſinning. Lyra following the Vulgar, it is prepared of the King, that is, by God; but he confeſſes the Hebrew to be, [for the King] that is, the devil, who is ſaid, Job 41. to be King of all the ſons of pride; ſo likewiſe *Matth.*25. Go ye curſed into hell fire, prepared for the devil and his Angels. And he ſaith, it is deep, that is, in the center of the earth. But whereas many expound yeſterday of the ſecond day of the Creation, holding all the time of the world after, to be but as to day, he rejecteth that, becauſe the ſecond day was ſpent in dividing the waters; and ſaith rather the beginning of time is meant, when he made heaven and earth; becauſe yeſterday being ſo underſtood, anſwereth better to all the time following. Junius differing from all others hitherto cited, ſaith, That this is but an exegeſis or further declaration of that which was ſaid, *v.*30,31,32. againſt the King of Babylon. By Tophet, of which ſee, 2 *Chron.*28.3. nothing elſe being meant, but as that was a noted place for putting to a tormenting death, they that there died having none other burial, ſo ſhould not the King of Babylon, as was before threatned, *Chap.*14. Of the word yeſterday, put for a long time ago, ſee *Chap.*30.1. and *Gen.*32.1. Some others not much diſagreeing herefrom, refer it to Sennacherib, ſaying that hereby his falling in his Army in Topheth, when the Angel ſmote it, was threatned, and that by burning, as children were burnt there to Moloch. Pagninus holds with Junius, that it was meant of Belſhazzar ſlain in Babylon, and caſt upon a dunghill. To me, ſeriouſly conſidering the three verſes before, and this together, and finding the argument to be ſo alike, it ſeemeth that one only and the ſame thing is here and there ſet forth in more words, for the horribleneſs and miraculouſneſs of the deſtruction. For *v.*32. the word תפים is uſed, coming of Toph a tabret, and here תופתה is prepared, coming of the ſame radix; it being hereby alluded to the tabret there ſpoken of, becauſe Tophet the valley of the ſon of Hinnom without Jeruſalem, had the name from tabrets or pipes wherewith they played there, when children were tormented by fire to death, by way of ſacrificing to the idol Moloch, as the Jews had trumpets ſometimes blown in the offering of their ſacrifices. And if we aſcend to *v.*28. we finde the breath of the Lord as an overflowing floud, and what doth that differ from the words here, The breath of the Lord as a floud of brimſtone; for the ſame word נחל is both here and there. Wherefore Cyril in my poor judgement, applies it beſt to the deſtruction of Sannecherib the King of Aſhur before Jeruſalem, and haply in that valley, for both Aſhur is mentioned, *v.*31. and the ſmiting wherewith his Army, of which he was ſo proud, was ſmitten, moſt probably, was by a ſtupendious fire, called Gods Angel, for he makes his Angels a flame of fire, Chap.10.17,18. for though the King periſhed not herein, yet his Army, his glory did; and therefore it might well be ſaid to be prepared for the King, and his fatall ſtroke began ſo then, that he never joyed after, but fled and periſhed in the very act of idolatry, as many at divers times before had done in Tophet; yet I think it not fit to exclude the Babyloniſh King, but to take him in alſo as meant in this threatning, though not ſo properly, yea and the forces of them both, for the laſt word of *v.*32. בם againſt them, it being no unuſual thing per enallagen numeri, to put the ſingular for the plural, King for Kings. As for hell to be meant here, there is more againſt it then for it; 1. Becauſe the Gebenhinnom is not once named. 2. Although it be meant under the word Tophet, yet for the place of torment, into which the infinite number of the damned ſhall be caſt, there is no veriſimilitude, that it ſhould be ſet forth by that valley, being neither for the depth nor greatneſs a fit type thereof. 3. Here the King only is mentioned, whereas

Calvin.

Lyra.

Junius.

Cyril.
Hugo.
Th.Aquinas.

hell is prepared for an innumerable crew. 4. Although an hideous burning be here threatned, yet it is not added for ever and ever, as is commonly when hell fire is ſpoken of, as Chap.66. 5. If by the King the devil were meant according to Lyra, here were no coherence with the former verſe, but a ſtrange chopping from one thing to another, not yet thought of in this Prophecie, the matter againſt the enemies then not being firſt concluded. Yet I deny not but this may be taken as ſome alluſion to deſtruction in hell, which was not then, but under the Goſpel more manifeſted, all the threatnings before being of temporal judgements and miſeries.

CHAP. XXXI.

Verſ.1. WOe to them that go down to Egypt for help, and ſtay on horſes, &c. Here the Prophet goes on to ſpeak to the ſame effect againſt the wicked Jews, who relied on Egypt againſt the Aſſyrians and Babylonians, adding ſome other reaſons to move them not to do ſo, but to repent and to ſeek help of the Lord.
As firſt, that the Lord is wiſe to know, and reſolute to puniſh them ſeverely for thus doing, *v.*2. Secondly, That the Egyptians are not wiſe as God, but fooliſh as men, and their horſes fleſh, that is, weak and vain to ſave ſuch as truſt in them; and not ſpirit, that is, mighty, *v.*3. Thirdly, That the Lords coming in judgement ſhall be as the coming of a lion, whom a company of ſhepherds cannot fray away, *v.*4. Fourthly, That his people are under his protection, Junius. and therefore need not to be afraid, *v.*5. Upon theſe reaſons he exhorts them to repentance, promiſing if they ſhall caſt away their Idols, that the Aſſyrians, whom they ſo greatly feared, ſhould fall by the ſword, not of man, but of God, Lyra. *v.*6,7,8. To this effect almoſt Junius. Lyra diſtinguiſhing betwixt this and *Chap.*30. ſaith, that the Prophet having there inveighed againſt the Jews, in Zedekiah his time, here threatneth the Kingdom of Iſrael in Hoſheah his time, which I touched upon before, in ſpeaking upon *Chap.*30. And he ſaith that the Lord threatned Iſrael and Egypt by Sennacheribs coming, but if Judah would repent, and put down idolatry, or becauſe they did in Hezekiahs time, he comforts them with a promiſe of deſtroying the Aſſyrians their enemies, without their ſtriking of a ſtroak with their ſwords, as indeed he did *Chap.*38.
wherein I do not much diſſent from him, but that I hold that both Kingdoms were threatned, *Chap.*30. here Iſrael only is threatned, and Judah living now under a godly King, for the preſent comforted, and under the name Jeruſalem the Church of God whereſoever for the future. Nothing more needs explica-Verſ.8. tion here, but all things are plain till *Verſ.*8. where it is ſaid that the Aſſyrians ſhall be made tributaries. Junius expounds this of the enemies of the Church in general, becauſe we never reade that it was fulfilled touching them in particular; but hereby is ſhewed, that the time ſhould come when the faithfull ſhould reign, and then all the enemies of the faith ſhould be under. But the Calvin. word למס here uſed, doth not only ſignifie to tribute, but to liquefaction or melting, and ſo it is rendred by Calvin; and the meaning is, they being diſſolved by death in part, and the ſurviving without all courage and ſtrength as water, and ſo the event proved, for their choice young men, as Captains of the Aſſyrian Army, were deſtroyed by Gods Angel, as by fire, and ſuch as eſcaped with their King, for fear fled, all courage melting away.

Verſ.9. He ſhall paſſe over to his ſtrong hold for fear, or Hebr. His rock ſhall paſſe for fear, or paſſe away, or vaniſh, as Junius: A Periphraſis of the Aſſyrians ſtrength failing him, whereupon he relied and did formerly bear himſelf as invincible, for where was it now, when his great Army was ſo confounded: and his Princes fearing, fled from the Enſign, that is, the ſtandard ſet up by the Lord againſt them, viz. the Divine power whereby they were ſmitten. And in deſcribing the Lord who did it, he ſaith, Whoſe fire was in Zion, and furnace at Jeruſalem; to denote from whence this deſtruction came unto them, even from the Temple, where the true God was worſhipped, by fire continually burning, being ready when he pleaſed to flame out into a conſuming fire to the enemies of his Church and people. A great comfort to the faithfull, and no leſſe terrour to their wicked enemies at all times, when they ſhall dare to attempt any thing againſt them, they do but expoſe themſelves to the danger of a devouring fire, for ſuch is God to them; according to that, Our God is a conſuming fire.

Note.

Heb.12.29.

CHAP. XXXII.

Verſ.1.

B*Ehold a King ſhall reign in righteouſneſſe, and Princes,* &c. The word rendred Princes, hath the letter ל prefixed, ſignifying [to.] Although all Tranſlatours paſſe it over as nothing, yet to me it ſeemeth to intimate, that to this King ſhall be Princes ſutable, becauſe then the Common-wealth is in beſt caſe, when it hath both a good King, and adjoined to him, as eies and ears and hands to ſee to do juſtice, good Princes and under-Rulers. For under Nerva a good Emperour, by reaſon of wicked under-Rulers, the Roman Commonwealth was in a worſe caſe, then under Nero, as many obſerve. Jerom refers this Prophecie to Chriſt, and ſo doth Junius. Lyra and Calvin to Hezekiah; yet ſo as that he is not the only man aimed at, but he as the type, Chriſt as the antitype, and this ſeemeth beſt. Lyra underſtanding Hezekiah after wicked Ahaz, thinketh, that after him wicked Manaſſeth is here next propheſied of, *v.*6,7. it being ſhewed how bad he was, and *v.*8. how good his grandchilde Joſiah ſhould be. Then he ſheweth the deſtruction that ſhould be in the time of Zedekiah, calling upon the women to lament it, *v.9,10,&c.* Laſtly the felicity to come after this, through Chriſt, *ver.*15. And this diſtribution of the chapter I ſhall follow, for it is not improbable by the text, that all theſe things are thus ſet down in order, as will appear to him that ſhall peruſe the whole chapter; and it tends greatly to the magnifying of the Spirit of God inlightning Iſaiah to ſpeak ſo long before ſo punctually of theſe particulars. If it be objected, he ſaith, A King ſhall reign, this may well be underſtood of Hezekiah, although he reigned at the time of this propheſying, for he had as it were, two lives, forſomuch as after the ſentence of death given againſt him, it was miraculouſly reverſed, and then he lived and reigned again after this fifteen years. He was then the King here ſpoken of, and who knoweth whether this Prophecie be not miſplaced, belonging to Ahaz his time, although, order not being ſo much regarded, transferred hither, the people being comforted againſt his abominable wicked reign with a promiſe of a better King ſhortly to come. For which this is begun with this word of attention, Behold, as being a thing moſt remarkable, eſpecially he being the ſon of ſo wicked a father.

Hieronym.
Lyra.
Calvin.

Verſ.2.

And a man ſhall be an hiding place. Hieron. ſhall be hidden. Sept. a man hiding his ſpeeches. But for ſo much as חבא is to hide, and the word is מחבא coming of it in Hithpael, ſignifies to hide himſelf, it may be indifferently taken both waies; if for a nown latibulum, he means that this King ſhall be ſuch, when any tempeſt ariſeth to the poor that might otherwiſe be wronged by the mighty; if as a participle abſconditus, he means that every man being a ſubject of this King ſhall be hidden, that is, kept out of danger by his righteous proceedings, and the Princes ſet up by him to execute juſtice, which is all one with the former; or as Lyra, the tempeſt from which, may be underſtood of the Aſſyrians coming to take Jeruſalem, ſafe from which by his means the Jews ſhould be within the City; the other ſimilitudes added, as a covert from a tempeſt, rivers of Water in a dry land, and the ſhaddow of a rock, ſerve only to declare the benefit of this good King further, and in him to ſhew what every King ſhould be, viz. a defence and comfort to his ſubjects, not a tyrant, being grievous to them by cruelties and exactions, ſeeking the increaſe of his own treaſure, but their welfare. So Ariſtotle, A Tyrant ſeeks his own profit, a King the profit of his ſubjects. Seneca, Know (O Prince) that not the ſervitude, but tuterſhip of the City is committed to thee: And again, The Kings greatneſſe is ſtable and well founded, when all men know that he is as well for them as above them. And Claudian to Honorius,

Ariſt. Pol. 10. 8. Seneca de Clement. Senec. ad Polybium. Principis magnitudo ſtabilis & fundata eſt, quæ omnes tam pro ſe quàm ſupra ſe eſſe ſciant.

> Tu civem patremq; geras, tu conſule cunctis,
> Non tibi nec tua te moveat ſed publica damna.

But moſt of all is Chriſt thus to all his, as was ſhewed before, Chap.4.6.

Verſ.3. Verſ.4. Muſculus. Calvin. Hieronym.

And the eyes of the ſeeing ſhall not be dim. That is, ſaith Lyra, in Hezekiah his time, they ſhall not be ſo dim, but they ſhall ſee into this Prophecie of comfort, and with delight hearken to it, when they ſee it to be thus, as is here promiſed, Verſ.4. And the heart of the raſh ſhall underſtand knowledge. That is, which raſhly followed wicked Ahaz in idolatry, they ſhall now know the difference betwixt ſerving God and idols, and they that for fear ſpake, as it were, ſtammeringly then, ſhall now plainly praiſe the Lord. Hebr. Shall ſpeak elegantly, thus he: But Muſculus and Calvin, who are alſo for things done in Hezekiahs time, extend this to Chriſts, as being words to the ſame effect with thoſe, Chap.29.18. ch.30.21. Jerom, Saſbont and others, reſtrain them altogether to Chriſts Kingdom. I, as before, think that they are to be referred to both.

Verſ.5. Lyra.

It ſhall not be ſaid any more to the fool liberal, nor to the churl bountifull. For liberal, Hebr. is נריב, ſignifying either Prince or liberal; and for bountifull שוע ſignifying alſo wealthy, as being for his wiſdom made ſuch by Gods bleſſing, and ſo mighty. And this is by Lyra applied to Ahaz, who dealt like a fool, for ſo the word ſignifieth, being Nabal, and is ſo expounded, 1 *Sam.*25. for what greater folly then to be an idolater, therefore he ſhall loſe the name of a wiſe Prince, and for his wealth, he was ſo rifled of it by the King of Aſhur, that he was left poor and contemptible.

Verſ.6. Leo, Magnam arbitrabatur ſe ſuſcepiſſe religionem cùm nullius gentis reſpuebat ſalſitatem.

And v.6. The Nabal or fool will ſpeak folly, &c. N.Tr. The vile perſon vilany. He applieth to wicked Manaſſeth, who reigned after Hezekiah, who ſpake fooliſhly, when he ſpake for the worſhipping of more Gods, pretending that thus they ſhould have the more Gods to help them in their need. And his heart works wickedneſſe.] That is, this wickedneſs of manifold idolatry, comes from his wicked heart, in working hypocriſie and ſpeaking errour to the Lord. That is, drawing the Princes on by diſſembling good, that would redound to the Common-wealth hereby: As Leo ſaith, that the Romans did of old take into the number of the gods, the gods of thoſe Nations whom they had ſubdued, that thus they might make them to work for their good. And he ſpake errour touching the Lord; when he worſhipped him ſtill, thinking thus to pleaſe thoſe Princes, who would not be moved to revolt from the Lord altogether: But this was a groſs errour to hold, that any worſhiping of God could be acceptable to him, when it was joined with the worſhip of falſe gods. And he ſhall make empty the ſoul of the hungry, &c. That is, requiring ſo great means to maintain ſacrifices for ſo many gods, that which ſhould be for the ſuſtenance of the common people, being to maintain idolatry, exacted of them, and they left even without neceſſary food.

Verſ.7.

And v.7. The inſtruments, even his inſtruments or veſſels are evil: For thus it is Hebr. verbatim. Vulg. Fraudulentia inſtrumenta peſſima ſunt. N.Tr. The inſtruments of the churl are evil. Jun. Tenacis inſtrumenta. Calv. Avari inſtrumenta. But the words are כלי בליו רעים, which words are never uſed to ſignifie, churle, tenacious, fraudulent or covetous, but veſſels only or ſtuff. And this by him is applied to the evil officers whom Manaſſeth uſed as his inſtruments to ſet up idolatry, and to deſtroy thoſe that would not conſent unto it. He conſulteth devices to deſtroy the poor with lying words, and in the poors ſpeaking judgement or right. That is, Manaſſeh accuſing Iſaiah and other godly men (for they are in the Scripture phraſe called poor) but falſly as enemies to the publick good for ſpeaking againſt the worſhipping of many gods, which he pretended, might make ſo much for the benefit of all, thus wrought their deſtruction; for he both ſawed Iſaiah in ſunder, and killed many more unjuſtly, for which he is ſaid to have filled Jeruſalem with innocent bloud. And touching Verſ.8. v.8. The liberal man deviſeth liberal things; or more agreeably to the Hebrew, The Prince ſhall think things worthy of a Prince; ſo alſo the Vulgar Latine : And by things worthy a Prince ſhall be eſtabliſhed. He applies it to Joſiah the grandchilde of Manaſſeh a moſt godly King, who in his youth ſet himſelf to purge the Temple from pollution, and all parts from all monuments of idolatry thorowout his dominion. But for theſe words, By things worthy a Prince he ſhall be eſtabliſht, he hath, ſuper duces ſtabit, that is he ſhall rule over other of his Princes ſo as to bring and ſettle them in the ſame good way. But forſomuch as the word by him rendred duces, is the ſame with that before going, ſignifying things or thoughts worthy a Prince, or Princelike thoughts, and is of the feminine gender, I ſee no reaſon why he ſhould render it by Princes.

Verſ.9. Riſe up ye women that are at eaſe, ye careleſſe daughters. Hebr. & Vulg. Ye confident daughters. This he applieth to the time of Zedekiah, wherein Jeruſalem was deſtroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, ſaying that the men are here ſpoken to by the name of women for their faintheartedneſs, and their confidence whereby they are upbraided, was the truſt which they had in their ſtrong wals.

Verſ.10. Daies and years ye ſhall be troubled, &c. Hebr. Daies above a year, ſo Calvin alſo, but why the Vulgar hath it, poſt dies & annos, I ſee not: Yet Lyra following this, and R.Solomon ſaith, that the meaning is, they ſhould be a long time multiplying their ſins, and then their deſtruction ſhould come by the Caldees, but rather the time of their being in Captivity is here pointed at, which was many years, wherein their vintage ceaſed, as here followeth, becauſe the ground lay unhusbanded: Or the time that was ſpent in beſieging Jeruſalem, for that was a hundred ſeventy nine daies above a year, as will appear to him that will look into 2 King.25. and this agreeth beſt with the words here uſed, daies above a year. From hence to *Verſ.*15. all things are plain, being applied as *Verſ.*10. Laſtly *Verſ.15,&c.* to the end of the chapter, he underſtands of the time of the Goſpel, when the Spirit came down in the likeneſs of cloven tongues of fire, Act.2. in the vertue whereof the Apoſtles went out amongſt the Gentiles and converted them, who thereupon became fruitfull as Carmel, being before a wilderneſs. But *verſ.*14. a joy of wilde aſſes and paſtures of flocks. He ſaith the land of Judea was even after their return from Captivity as well as before; for there were ſome good of the Jews living there, in reſpect of whom he ſaith, that it ſhould be paſtures for flocks: But becauſe they were alwaies ſubjects to ſtrange Kings after this, firſt to the Babylonians, then to the Perſians, and after to the Grecians, &c. He cals it a joy of wilde aſſes. Verſ.19. *Ver.*19. But hail ſhall be in the deſcent of the foreſt, and the City ſhall be made low. That is, ſaith he, the Roman armies ſhall deſtroy the houſes built with Cedars out of the forreſt of Libanus, both the Temple and Kings houſes, ſo that Jeruſalem, which before was lifted up aloft with ſtately buildings, ſhall now lie low.

Verſ.20. Bleſſed are ye that ſow upon all waters, ſending forth the feet of the ox and the aſſe. That is, ye Apoſtles and other Preachers of the Goſpel, who whilſt Jeruſalem was thus in deſtroying, ſow the ſeed of the word amongſt all peoples and Nations of the world: For both the Preacher is ſaid to be a ſower, *Matth.*13. and the people of many Countries are ſet forth by waters, *Revel.*17.15. and by the ox and aſſe are meant the ſtrong and learned, and the unlearned and weak. Thus Lyra, whom I have thought good thus to trace throughout the chapter, becauſe for the moſt part he is ſingular in his Expoſition hereupon. Hieronym. For Jerom applieth all things here to Chriſt and to the time of the Goſpel, ſaying he is this King, and the Apoſtles theſe Princes governing the faithfull in all Countries, and that Chriſt is both an hiding place and all manner of comfort to the faithfull ſoul; and now ſo many of them that were blinde before, as were ordained to life, attain ſight, and the deaf hearing, anſwerable to the promiſe made, *Chap.*29.18. And for the fool, *v.5,6. he applieth that to the Phariſees, who in times paſt were counted the wiſeſt, and ruled like Princes, but Chriſt coming ſheweth them to be fools and hypocrites; and they ſpake againſt the Lord Chriſt, and deviſed the deſtruction of this meek one, when he ſpake nothing thing but right, but they moſt deceitfully to him, Maſter we know that thou art juſt,&c.* Shall we pay tribute to Cæſar or not? to intrap him, and to keep the ſouls of the hungry empty of the divine inſtructions, wherewith he was ready to feed them; they bad them ſearch and ſee whether the Prophet ſhould riſe out of Galilee. But Jeſus ſpake things worthy of a Prince, *v.*8. when he ſaid, Come to me all ye that are heavy laden, and I will refreſh you: And again, *If any man thirſteth, let him come to me and I will give him of the water of life freely. Verſ.*9. The calling upon women, he takes to be Chriſts preaching, either to ſome women properly, and their daughters, who had formerly been careleſs, or ſome Cities of whom there was ſtill ſome hope in reſpect of converſion; his words alſo agreeing, *Luk.*4. This is the day of ſalvation, the acceptable year of the Lord; to theſe *v.*10. Daies and a year ye ſhall be troubled; and theſe words, The vintage is ended, he applies to the Romans having done their laſt, when they had deſtroyed their City, ſo that now they ſhould ſuffer no more,but after this have comfort. And by the houſes of joy he underſtands the Temple, which ſhould be abuſed by buying and ſelling therein. And by the pouring out of the Spirit, *v.*15. The Spirit of grace given to the Gentiles, who thereupon ſhould have peace with God, and be as a fruitfull field, and the Jews as a wilderneſs through their unbelief. For the hail, *v.*19. he differs not from Lyra, nor in ſaying, Bleſſed are ye] for he applies it to the preachers of the Goſpel ſowing the ſeed of life in all Countries, there being now no more difference put between the Jew, ſet forth by the ox, a clean beaſt, and Gentile by the aſſe, which was unclean, but all alike preached unto, and promiſed life upon turning to Chriſt by faith and repentance.

Calvin.
Muſcul.
Verſ.5.

Calvin and Muſculus, as was ſaid before, underſtanding this of Hezekiah coming to the Kingdom after wicked Ahaz, apply *v.*5. to the great change that was then to the better; fooliſh and wicked men being before preferred,and made Judges and Rulers, for ſuch pleaſed Ahaz beſt, now contrariwiſe no ſuch were in place of authority any more, but were put down, the worthy only being advanced. And myſtically to Chriſts Kingdom, under which by the light of the Goſpel, things did ſo appear as they were; as that ſuch as had been formerly in great account for wiſe and learned men, as the Scribes and Phariſees, were then counted ſo no more, but fools and covetous, as the Lord cals them, *Matth.*23.

Verſ.6.

And *v.*6. to all wicked perſons and hereticks, who ſpeak errour againſt the Lord, and deſpiſe and mock at the truth taught; for that which is done againſt the truth of the Lord, is done againſt him. *Verſ.*7. By inſtruments they underſtand all crafty waies of the covetous to bring in gain, and their circumventing of the poor with deceitfull words in judgement, the turning of the ſeat of judgement, which ſhould be a ſanctuary to the poor, into a place of robbing and ſpoiling them.

Calvin.
Judicium debet eſſe aſſylum pauperum,quid ergo accedet ſi ex eo latrocinium & ſpoliarium fiat.

*Verſ.*8. The liberal thinketh of liberal things; that is, how he may do good to others, being never weary, as *Gal.*6.9. *Verſ.*9. Ye women that are at eaſe, ariſe. Some, ſaith Calvin, think this to be the beginning of a new ſermon or Prophecie touching judgements to come afterwards, but it is the manner of the Prophet when he hath ſpoken comfort, as he hath done in this chapter hitherto, ſuddenly to turn to threatning of judgements, that all might not think the foreſaid comforts to belong to them, but hearing of judgements, which are the portion of the wicked, be moved to repent and fear. But when this judgement ſhould come he ſaith not: but women are ſpoken to, becauſe that ſex is often ſpared in time of warre, but now in ſpeaking to rouze them up, he ſheweth what a bloudy time is to come, wherein no ſex or age ſhall be ſpared; wherefore he names women and daughters; though ſome by women underſtand, as the Hebrews, greater Cities,and by daughters little villages,grounding upon Joſhua, where a City and her daughters are oft ſpoken of.

Luther.
Oecolamp.
P.Martyr.

And for the ſpirit pouring out, the time whereof is ſet, as the limit of theſe calamities, *v.*15. He applies that to ſanctifying grace under Hezekiah, but moſt of all under the Goſpel, which when it ſhall take place,worldly bleſſings ſhall as much abound, as miſeries did before. For the forreſt now ſhall be as Carmel, that is, through the grace of the ſpirit, they that were before barren ſhall be moſt fruitfull, and they that ſeemed to themſelves as Carmel for ſome beginnings of grace in them, ſhall now think, that they were before but as a foreſt barren of fruit in regard of that which they are made now, *verſ.*17. And the work of juſtice ſhall be peace, &c. that is, the people of God being endued with ſo great grace to make them live righteouſly, as *ver.*16. in ſtead of warre to waſte them, they ſhall now have peace perpetual, and in ſtead of briars and thorns before threatned, *verſ.*13. admirable bleſſings upon the Land, ſo that in all places, where they ſhould ſow, yea though ſqualidous with water overabounding, yet their ſeed ſhould ſo plentifully come up, that they ſhould not need to keep their oxen or aſſes out of their corn-fields for fear of doing them hurt by treading and feeding upon their corn, but they ſhould rather ſometime put them in to keep it from being too rank, *verſ.*20. and whereas before they were threatned with deſtruction of their palaces by the enemy, verſ. 14. now they ſhould abide in tabernacles of peace, verſ. 18. and when the hail ſhould fall it ſhould be upon the deſcent of the foreſt, the City being in a low place in ſafety, *verſ.*19. and ſo the ſtorm not coming at it, but falling only in other places, where it might do them no hurt, for they ſhall ſuffer no violence any more. And concluding he ſaith, That the Church hath had no ſuch time yet under the Goſpel, by reaſon that ſinne ſtill remains even in the beſt Churches, and therefore the full accompliſhment of this is not to be expected till the time of Gods creating a new heaven and a new earth in the world to come. I am not of Lyra his minde, that Manaſſeh and Ioſiah are here pointed at, verſ. 6,8. after Hezekiah, becauſe all things cohere ſo together, as that all may beſt be referred to the time of Hezekiah his reign, and after that to Chriſts. But for *verſ.*9,10, &c. to *verſ.*15. I think it beſt to apply that which is therein ſaid to the deſtruction of Ieruſalem by the Romans, and women are particularly called upon to lament the miſeries of thoſe times, becauſe they would be to them moſt grievous, as who had never been uſed to any hardſhip, but lived daintily and tenderly. For in naming not only dayes, but years alſo, a very long time is certainly meant; and becauſe it is ſaid לעולם for ever, whereby a very long time amongſt them is commonly meant, the determination of which is not known *verſ.*14. we may well gather, That the long deſolation of Ieruſalem under the Goſpel is propheſied of, whilſt the Jews continue in unbelief, but being converted an end is put hereunto, as *verſ.*15. And ſo it notably agreeth with *Matth.*23.23. Your habitation ſhall be left deſolate, till ye ſay, &c. And the words *verſ.*12. Lament over the duggs, with Matth. 24. where Woe is to the women that give ſuck in thoſe dayes. And then *verſ.*15. muſt needs be underſtood of the converſion of the Jewiſh Nation, when they ſhall enjoy more peace and plenty, and ſecurity from enemies, then ever before, as the next words ſhew, The deſert ſhall be as Carmel, that is, a fruitfull field, for ſince the deſtruction of Ieruſalem, all the fields about are as a wilderneſs moſt barren, and therefore this may well be underſtood as a promiſe of their becoming moſt fruitfull again, as in times paſt it had been a Land flowing with milk and honey, according to *Pſal.*107. A fruitfull Land turneth he into barrenneſſe, and a barren Land into fruitfull, or ſtanding waters; But what ſenſe ſhall we give of the contrary, and Carmel as a foreſt or wood? A very good one thus, Corn ſhall grow therein as thick as a wood, as our common Proverb is, when we ſpeak of an excellent field of corn. Expoſitours, I confeſſe, generally give another ſenſe of the Jews barren before in goodneſs becoming fruitfull, and yet in the midſt of their fruitfulneſſe humbling themſelves, as thinking their former fruitfulneſs barrenneſs, in compariſon of that which they now were, yea even the beſt of them, and confirming it from the like, Chap. 29. 17. But here are not the very ſame words, but for יער a wood or foreſt, מדבר a wilderneſſe is here, implying the ground to be ſpoken of, and not the perſons, neither can the laſt words without forcing be expounded of any mens thinking themſelves ſo, but as the former words imply a real change, ſo do the latter, and to intimate intimate the ſenſe that I have given, he ſaith not, Carmel ſhall be a Wilderneſſe, but ſhall be counted a Weed, and therefore even Calvin followeth this ſenſe firſt, and interpoſing a more myſtical ſenſe a little ſeconds this through the other verſes to the end, and what he hath ſaid upon them, I take to be moſt genuine. Only whereas he ſeems to think, that this time of ſuch extraordinary bleſſings of peace, and ſo abundant plenty, is not to be expected here, but hereafter. I conceive by comparing this with ſome places in this Prophecy like to it, that he, who made Sodom and Gomorrah a deſert moſt barren, which before was moſt fruitfull as the garden of God, and likewiſe the tract about Ieruſalem farre and wide, can and will upon the Jews converſion make it again moſt admirably fruitfull. And whereas he verſ.20. by waters underſtandeth places moſt unlikely to bear corn for their wateriſhneſs, I cannot finde, that there were ever in that hot and dry Countrey any ſuch places, but when watery places are ſpoken of fruitfulleſt ſoils are meant every where, and Pſ.104 & 107. Iſa.30.25. and ſo I doubt not but ſowing by or upon all waters, here is meant upon moſt fruitfull ground.

Pſal.107.35.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Verſ.1. Hieron. Junius. Calvin. Sasbont. Lyra.

WOe to thee that ſpoileſt, and thou Wert not ſpoiled. that dealeſt treacherouſly, &c. Some referre theſe words to the devil, who ſtirred up perſecution againſt the Apoſtles, but ſhall at length be deſtroyed together with all his inſtruments. Some to no particular, but generally to all wicked enemies of the Church. Some to Sennacherib the King of Aſhur, who was ſmitten in his hoſt by the Angel, as is ſaid here touching this ſpoiler, verſ.3. But the Vulgar rendring it, From the voice of the angel, erreth, becauſe it is, Heb. From the voice of the tumult] When I look back therfore to c.21.2. where the ſame words are uſed in propheſying againſt Babylon, as I have there ſhewed, I cannot but conclude, that this is againſt Babylon alſo, which although it were propheſied againſt largely, c.13.14. and briefly pointed at c.22. and c.29.7,8. Yet becauſe the puniſhment of that City was moſt remarkable of all others, as being by far the greateſt, and the City whereby the people of God, and his City and Temple ſuffered moſt, it is not to be thought ſtrange that Iſaiah ſhould ſo often threaten it. But of Babylon he ſaith no more, but the few words of this one verſe, for the expoſition whereof ſee before Chap.21.2. Verſ.2. See alſo Chap. 25.9. For he immediatly falleth to prayer, O Lord, be gracious to us, We have Waited for thee, &c. much like to Chap. 26.8. Becauſe mercy to the people of God in deſtroying the enemy propheſied of verſ.1. is to be ſought notwithſtanding by prayer. And he praieth God to be their ſtrength to mornings, for ſo the word properly ſignifieth, that is, to morning after morning continually, which he having briefly done turns again to his Prophecie againſt the Aſſyrian, whom he had alſo often threatned before, Iſa.10.24. Chap.25.7. as another moſt infeſt and potent enemy of the Jews, of whoſe coming againſt them he ſpeaks at large ſoon after this in Hezekiah his time, Chap.36.

Verſ.3. At the voice of the tumult the people fled, at thy exaltation the Gentiles Were diſperſed. It is not unlikely, that the Angel who ſmote the Aſſyrians, did it with a great noiſe, haply as of a Trumpet, whereby they being afrighted, as ſometime the Midianites at Gideons ſounding with Rams-horns began to flee, but in vain moſt of them, becauſe he that terrified them ſmote them, ſo that few eſcaped, and now the Lord, whom Sennacherib had ſo boldly blaſphemed, was exalted, by ſhewing to all the world his infinite power to his glory, that all might tremble before him as the moſt high. Calvin. He ſeemed before, ſaith Calvin, to be low and little in power, whilſt he ſuffered the enemies to go unpuniſht, but now he made them know, that he had power above the proudeſt and greateſt, and he ſpeaks of Nations diſperſed, although he meant the Aſſyrians, becauſe their Army conſiſted of divers Nations. But touching the tumult, at the noiſe whereof they are ſaid to flee, he applies that to the Caldees at the coming of the Medes and Perſians, which I alſo would willingly have done, but that I ſee not how the words following *verſ.*5. can be made to agree to thoſe times, He hath filled Zion with juſtice and righteouſnes: For this muſt needs be underſtood of ſomething in judgement done there, at the leaſt in grounds to Zion appertaining, and not ſo farre off as Babylon; and *verſ.*7. The embaſſadours of peace ſhall weep] that is, Hezekiahs Embaſſadours ſent to Sennacherib, ſeeing that they could not prevail. And *verſ.*8. He hath broken the covenant] which is plainly meant of the Aſſyrian promiſing peace upon Hezekiahs compounding with him, of which ſee 2 *Kin.*18.13. Thus alſo Calvin himſelf upon theſe verſes.

Verſ.4. And your ſpoil ſhall be gathered as the gathering of the locuſts. Pagnine rendreth it Bruchus, a kinde of locuſt, having the name from βρύκω to eat, becauſe in the Eaſt they often come in great numbers, and devour the fruits of the earth, ſo that Husbandmen gather abundance of them together, and making an hole in the ground put them in there and earth after them, ſo killing them; they have no wings as other locuſts, and therefore they may eaſily be gathered; Nicander cals it σιτοβόρος, a corn devourer, and to the gathering of theſe, which may eaſily be done, the Prophet here alludes in ſpeaking of the ſpoils of the Aſſyrians when they were ſlain or fled.

Verſ.6. Wiſdom and knowledge ſhall be the ſtability of thy times, &c. That is, this being done in favour to Hezekiah for his wiſdom and fear of God, during the whole time of his reign after, it is here promiſed, that by the ſame means he ſhould have ſetled peace and proſperity, all Nations about hearing how mightily God fought for him, not daring to come againſt Judea, where he reigned any more. And this is myſtically by Cyril, Theodot. and Procopius applied to the Church under the Goſpel, and to Chriſt guiding her by the ſpirit of wiſdom, and the fear of the Lord; ſee *Iſa.*11.2. and happy dayes Gods holy mount enjoyeth being thus governed. Cyril. Theod. And if our happineſſe and ſtable peace be founded upon ſuch knowledge and wiſdom, as cauſeth in us the fear of God, it is our part to eſteem more hereof then of the greateſt treaſures in the world: for that which Hezekiahs treaſure could not procure to him, viz. peace with Sennacherib, although by ſending to him he ſought it, is for this treaſure promiſed him, both in reſpect of Aſhur, and all other enemies round about. And ſpecially now being in ſuch danger of our peace breaking out into warre again, for which moneys be gathered, and forces maintained, let us ſeek ſtability by improving our knowledge to the fearing of God, and eſchewing evil. O fools *Prov.*3.16. that employ your wits to invent errours, or to get treaſures upon earth, but neglect the getting of this greateſt treaſure, that hath length of dayes in peace on her right hand, and on her left riches and honour, ſee a like promiſe to this *Chap.*32.17.

Verſ.7. The Embaſſadours of peace ſhall weep bitterly. Here the Prophet returns to ſhew how it ſhould be proceeded before the deſtruction of the Aſſyrians threatned *Ver.*3., he ſaith, That their mighty and ſtrong ones ſhall cry without, for ſo אראלם ſignifieth, and the word rendred [cry] ſignifieth to utter a loud voice, and ſo may well be applied to Rabſhakeh, and his fellows crying out againſt Hezekiah, and to declare the power of his maſter to make the Jews afraid. Which when they did, Eliakim and Shebnah called here the Embaſſadours of peace, coming to ſpeak to them upon the wall, wept and rent their cloaths to hear their blaſphemies. Calvin. Calvin underſtands Embaſſadours ſent to Sennacherib, but when they could not prevail for peace, returning, and weeping, and crying for ſorrow, ſo that they might be heard before they entred the City. Lyra. Lyra, ſuch as were placed without upon watch-towers, who eſpied the enemies coming, and crying out to them within to keep out of their danger. But neither rightly, for, 1. Their ſtrong ones crying without, and the Embaſſadours weeping, cannot be ſuch as belonged both to one King, for then it would have been ſaid, Their Embaſſadours as well as their ſtrong ones, and the order of the words is inverted, by ſaying, They returned weeping and crying ſo loud; for firſt their crying out is ſpoken of, and then weeping, and they are called by two names, who did theſe two things, as being two ſorts of men, and not Iſa.36.13. one. 2. The word here uſed is never put for watchmen, but for mighty ones or Angels. But for the expoſition given, who ſo ſhall reade the ſtory muſt needs confeſſe it to agree excellently.

Verſ.8. The high wayes lie waſte, &c. That is, before Aſhurs overthrow, he with his Armies was ſo formidable, that men durſt not travel; and the Cities are ſaid to be deſpiſed, becauſe other Cities of Judea beſides Jeruſalem were taken by him, 2 King.18.13. and then doubtleſſe the people were ſpitefully uſed.
And he is ſaid to have broken the Covenant, becauſe being compounded with Note. by Hezekiah for three hundred Talents of ſilver and thirty of gold to depart, he notwithſtanding bent his courſe againſt Jeruſalem, 2 Kin.18.14,15. ſuch is the condition of wicked tyrants, who have no fear of God in them, that they will break Covenants, though never ſo ſolemnly confirmed by oath, when they pleaſe. For it is not probable, that Hezekiah would ſend him ſo great a ſumme of money but upon ſuch a Covenant; and therefore the Papiſts are moſt wicked, like Sennacherib, and void of all fear of God, becauſe they hold it for a maxim, That no faith is to be kept towards hereticks; upon which ground Vladiſlaus the Emperour having made peace with Amurath the great Turk for ten years, by the Popes perſwaſion brake it, and received a mighty great overthrow at his hands; and Henry the third of England brake his Covenant with the Barons, often confirmed, being all of one religion alſo, by the Popes diſpenſation, which coſt him dear.

Verſ.9. The earth languiſheth, &c. An amplification of the miſeries of the Land of Judea in thoſe times, and of the principal parts, Lebanon, where the Cedars were cut down by the Aſſyrians prevailing, Carmel, Baſhan and Sharon, all fruitfull places; and Lebanon is ſaid to be aſhamed by a Proſopopeia; Sharon made as a deſert, becauſe the inhabitants were deſtroied or gone, and their cattel by means of the Aſſyrians.

Verſ.10. Now will I riſe, ſaith the Lord, and be exalted. That is, when all things in Judea ſhall ſeem moſt deſperate by this enemies coming, the courſe ſhall ſuddenly by Gods power be turned, the enemies ſo greatly prevailing being deſtroyed and fugated, and the diſtreſſed Jews filled with joy: and the Word exalted is uſed to ſhew, that the ſame is meant here, that is propheſied of, v.3.

Verſ.11. Ye ſhall conceive chaff and bring forth ſtubble, &c. Here it is ſhewed how the Lord ſhould be exalted, according to verſ.10. viz. by making all the high thoughts of the Aſſyrians againſt Ieruſalem vain and nothing worth, as chaff and ſtubble, and making their own breath to kindle a fire, as it were, upon Calvin. themſelves to burn and deſtroy them, as in the next words, Your ſpirit as a fire Muſcul. ſhall devour you, or The fire of your ſpirit] ſo called, becauſe as a man by blowing kindles a fire; ſo they in meditating miſchief againſt Gods people, blew up a great fire to burn themſelves, when God by his Angel deſtroyed them with fire, as was before touched upon Chap.10. and is more confirmed verſ.12.

Verſ.12. The people ſhall be, as the burnings of chalk, as thorns cut up, &c. For here is both ſhewed, that their deſtruction ſhould be by fire, and to what weakneſs they ſhould then be brought; though before as hard chalk ſtones and pricking thorns, yet now they ſhould crumble away, and be ſuddenly conſu-Note. med. Whereby we may ſee, how vain the wicked enemies of the Church are in attempting any thing againſt her, when God riſeth up to take her part, as he will aſſuredly do when her caſe may ſeem moſt deſperate.

Verſ.13. Hear ye that are farre off what I have done, &c. After deſtruction thus denounced againſt the Aſſyrians, the Lord now calleth all men to hear and obſerve this, that the godly might be comforted: and Chap.34. the wicked enemies, that they might be terrified; for there he ſhews the horrible judgements that ſhould befall them, as Cha.35. again, the bleſſed and happy eſtate of Gods Church, and the peace thereof.

The

Verſ.14. The ſinners in Zion are afraid, fearfulneſſe hath ſurprized the hypocrites, who among us ſhall dwell with the devouring fire? &c. Here it is ſhewed, that when deliverance from the Aſſyrians was graciouſly promiſed, there were ſome wicked hypocrites amongſt the Jews, who ſought contrariwiſe to fill all men with fear like themſelves, ſpeaking yet through hypocriſie reverently of the Lord, as Ahaz had ſometime before done Chap.7. As if they had been brought in ſaying, But how can we that are ſo wicked hope for ſo great a good from the Lord, ſith he is a conſuming fire to the wicked, and ſuch as by Idolatry pollute themſelves and their habitation? ſhall ſuch as we are then finde him ſtill dwelling amongſt us with his favour to protect us? Junius. no, it cannot be hoped, that he will do ſo any longer, but we muſt now periſh by the hands of the Aſſyrians. So Iunius. Calvin. But Calvin contrariwiſe underſtands it, as ſetting forth the horrible fear that wicked perſons and hypocrites ſhall be in, when God comes with his judgements, which before they feared not being onely denounced. Lyra. Lyra, by the wicked hypocrites here ſpoken of, underſtands the wicked Prieſts, who were wont to ſtand and miniſter at the Altar, where fire burnt continually, and therefore is here called, The everlaſting burning. Hieronym. Jerom underſtands it of the Scribes and Phariſees, as if it had been ſaid, Who ſhall dwell with God to declare the everlaſting burnings of hell fire? Sasbont. Saſbont underſtands it, as a deſcription of God, called devouring fire, &c. for his deſtroying Senacheribs Army by fire; as if he had ſaid, What man being of a guilty conſcience, although ſeemingly holy, can abide by God ſo terrible in his judgements! Th. Aquinas. Hugo Card. Thomas Aquinas & Hugo, by the Hypocrites here ſpoken of, underſtand the Aſſyrians, whoſe coming againſt Ieruſalem made a great ſhew of power unreſiſtible, but their power was proved to be of no force, when they approached near Ieruſalem, where God dwelt, who is a conſuming fire to the wicked, as they ſoon found it. And whereas theſe words, ſinners in Zion, may ſeem to make againſt this expoſition, they ſay, the Aſſyrians are ſaid to be in Zion, becauſe in the land of Zion. But it is plainly meant of the wicked and hypocritical dwelling in Zion, who when they ſaw God to have ſo terribly deſtroyed the Aſſyrians, feared leſt they ſhould be next deſtroyed alſo, whereupon the Prophet cries out, Which of us ſhall dwell, the fire devouring, &c. for ſo it is, if we render it verbatim, as if he had ſaid, The condition of the wicked and of all hypocrites within ſhall be fearfull and trembling, when God ſhall ſo ſeverely execute his judgements againſt the enemies without; but if any faithfull perſon ſhall ask, What ſhall become of the truly godly, ſhall they ſtand, when God comes to make a general judging of the world by fire and brimſtone, after which ſhall follow everlaſting burnings & tormentings in hell? this is in the next words *v.*15,16. reſolved, they ſhall not by all this be moved, but continue with God in his greateſt favour for ever in all joy and glory. Being any otherwiſe underſtood there will be no coherence of the next words, *v.*15. with theſe, He that walketh righteouſly, and ſpeaketh uprightly, &c. Verſ.15. A deſcription of a right godly man, like unto that *Pſ.*15. & to ſhew that this is an anſwer to the Queſtion, *v.*14. he addeth, *v.*16. Verſ.16. He ſhall dwell on high his place of defence ſhall be the munition of rocks, &c. That is, in heaven, where no evil can come at him, by moſt ſtrong & ſafe places upon earth, the ever ſafe eſtate of the inhabitants of heaven, being ſet forth, & likewiſe by the bread and water here ſpoken of, their continual never failing ſupply of all comforts, for to ſpeak properly, there is no need there of any thing to eat & drink. And in ſetting forth the place where, and with whom the righteous ſhall dwell, he uſeth another Periphraſis here, that it might the better be underſtood what was meant by the everlaſting burnings, *v.*14. even the Lord that is ſo to the wicked to deſtroy them both here and hereafter, but to the righteous as a moſt ſtrong defenced place to ſave and provide for them, that they ſhal never want in this world, or in that wch is to come. Whereas in deſcribing the righteous, *v.*15. he ſaith, That ſtoppeth his ears from hearing of bloud. Gregor. Moral. Gregory ſaith hereupon, What is this, but not to conſent to the ſins to which fleſh and bloud perſwades him? Calvin. But it is better with Cal. and others to underſtand it of conſultations tending to the ſhedding of the bloud of the innocent,or to conſpiracies againſt them for any miſchief. And the ſhutting of his eyes againſt ſeeing evil,is meant either of any object whereby luſt may be kindled in his heart or evil done by others, as abominating the very beholding Verſ.17. of it. Thine eyes ſhall ſee the King in his glory,they ſhall ſee a Land farre removed.

Hieronym. Jerom by this King underſtands Chriſt reigning gloriouſly in heaven, of whom he ſpake before Iſa.32.1. and the Saints looking from thence ſhould ſee the Lyra. earth afarre off,as little and contemptible. Lyra takes him for Hezekiah, who for the overthrow given to the Aſſyrians was glorious in all Lands round about, as we may ſee 2 Chron.32. and in particular he applies it to Eliakim, of whom the Prophet ſpake before Iſa.22.20. becauſe he was ſuch a righteous man that his eyes ſhould ſee the Land afarre off, that is, the Land of Judea before covered with the Aſſyrian Army, but now cleared of them, for from Zion by reaſon of the height thereof he might ſee into the countrey of Judea Muſculus. very farre. Muſculus conſents with Lyra touching Hezekiah here meant, whom to ſee ſitting faſt in his Throne, the Aſſyrians Army being confounded, could not but be an exceeding great comfort to every faithfull heart, and not to Eliakim only, as he expounds it. But we muſt not reſt in this as all aimed at here, but from Hezekiah look to Chriſt his antitype, who ſhould long after this be ſeen gloriouſly reigning farre and wide, his Goſpel being propogated into all Countreys and Nations, and they ſubjected unto it, for which it is added, They ſhall ſee the Land afarre off] That is, Countreys farre remote from Judea, where Chriſt was born King, living under his obedience, ſo greatly in him ſhall the Jewiſh Kingdom be enlarged. Being referred to the faithfull in Hezekiah his time, it is meant, that they ſhould after the Aſſyrians deſtroyed, who pent them up within the wals of Jeruſalem, be at liberty to travel again afarre off,as they might formerly do,as occaſion ſerved,and that their Kingdom ſhould be inlarged, in which as the true ſenſe I reſt.

Verſ.18. Thine heart ſhall meditate terrour; Where is the Scribe? Where the receiver,&c?
Junius. That is, ſaith Junius, Think with delight upon the danger paſt, according to that ſaying, Olim hæc meminiſſe juvabit; and ſo theſe words,Where is the Scribe, &c? are taken up exultingly 1 Cor.1.20. Here is an enumeration of Officers neceſſary in the ſetting forth of an Army, 1. Counſellours, for ſo he hath it for Scribes. 2. Payers of money, for receivers. 3. Numberers of the Towers, that is, to appoint how many, and where they ſhould be made to prevail in the ſiege. Such indeed were in the Aſſyrian Army, but now they have all periſhed, Muſcul. and ſo ſhall all the wicked before God, Pſal.68.3. Muſculus not much differing, yet more fully gives this for the ſenſe; Although I have ſpoken of thy ſeeing King Hezekiah in his glory,yet know, that firſt much terror ſhall be to thee, although ſoon over, and then thou ſhalt thus inſult over the Aſſyrians, amongſt whom ſome were appointed to write down the men of Jeruſalem particularly who ſhould be tributaries, ſome to gather and receive this tribute, and ſome to ſet down all the Towers or principal houſes to be diſpoſed Sasbont. of according to the will of the conquerour. Ad. Saſbont ſpeaking much upon the word meditate, ſhewing that it ſignifies a ſerious and often thinking upon any thing, adjoins the firſt words here to ver.17. as ſpoken of often recalling to minde their great dangers to ſtirre up themſelves the more to fear God, Note. who had ſo miraculouſly delivered them. For this ought not to go out of our hearts, but be often thought upon, when dangers are paſt, this good uſe being made by us all thereof, to love and fear almighty God, who did it, and not as is the manner of moſt, forgetting our deliverances paſt, and looking only at our preſent ſafety to be ſecure, and to go on ſtill in our ſins. For the next words, Where is the Scribe, &c?] Jerom for Scribe hath literatus,at which Saſbont wonders, becauſe 1 Cor.1.20. it is rendred Scribe, ſeeing literatus is a word more general, the word Scribe peculiarly uſed to ſet forth one learned in divinity in all places of the New Teſtament, except Act.19. Amongſt other Greek Authors it is ſometime put for one that only writes res geſtas, as Demoſthenes upbraids Eſchines by this, that he called him γραμματεὺς a writer only of the publick actions. The Septuagint render it Grammatici, ſometime applying it to civil things, and ſometime to divine; to the firſt, 2 King.12. 2 Chron. 24. Eſth.3. to the other in this place, and all others. And concluding, he ſaith, the meaning is, in the time of the danger by the Aſſyrians, what did the Learned Doctors of the Law, who before ſpake highly of themſelves, towards the ſaving of the city from deſtruction? Verily nothing, God alone did all. Lyra applies it particularly to Shebnah, threatned before, Ch.22. and to Eliakim, ſaying, he ſhould meditate of the fear of the Lord, but Shebnah to whom theſe three Epithetes are given, ſhould, as he well deſerved, be depoſed from his dignity, to ſhew which this queſtion is put, Where is the Scribe now? as if he had ſaid, His place is no more to be found. Some apply this only to the terrour at the apprehenſion of the everlaſting burnings before ſpoken of, in conſideration whereof, and the faithful eſcaping them, who were but babes in knowledge in compariſon of the Scribes and other great Scholars, it is thus cried out; it being meant, that all they dying without the knowledge and faith of Chriſt, periſhed in thoſe burnings for ever, and this is moſt conſonant to the Apoſtles applying of it, 1 Cor.1.20. and therefore though it firſt concerned thoſe times, as hath been ſaid, yet it is certain that the Prophet had herein a further reach, even to tax and terrifie the learned amongſt the Jews and Gentiles, who under the Goſpel wanted Evangelicall learning. Lyra.

Verſ.19. Thou ſhalt not ſee a fierce people, &c. Vulg. Lat. Populum impudentem, by whom he means the Aſſyrians, for they ſhould not get the dominion over them, nor become a judgement to them by their ſtrange tongue, as was threatned that the Caldeans in time to come ſhould be, Iſa. 28.11. And this is oppoſed to Verſ. 17. he ſhall ſee the King in his glory. And whereas there was danger of ſeeing the enemy rather getting the kingdom from him, he aſſures them that it ſhould not ſo be, neither ſhould the faithfull afterwards ſee the Scribes and Phariſees accounted of for learning and power any more, but declared fooliſh and blinde, and ſo accounted amongſt Chriſtian people, and proved, when by their folly they had brought deſtruction upon themſelves and all the Jews by the Romans. Hieronym.

Verſ.20. Look upon Zion the city of our ſolemnities, that is, ſaith Jerom, upon the Chriſtian Church, wherein daies ſhall be ſolemnly kept to the praiſe and glory of God. And this he ſaith ſhall be quiet in alluding to the old Tabernacle which was removed from place to place, but the Tabernacle of this Church ſhall be unmoveable for ever, and that Tabernacle ceaſed, but this never; that was taken away, when the Jews were broken off from being a people, but this of the Gentiles continues firmly eſtabliſhed as built upon a rock to the worlds end. Whereas it is added

Verſ.21. The Lord ſhall be a place of broad rivers, wherein no gally or ſhip ſhall go, hereby is meant, that God as a broad river ſhall compaſſe his Church about, and no enemies ſhall be able to arrive at her, or the devill ſet forth by ſhip or tower. Some yet applying it to the New Jeruſalem, deſcribed alſo by a river, Rev.21. as the Garden of Eden, a Type hereof, had formerly been by four Rivers compaſſing it, will have the meaning of no ſhips coming there to be to bring in any proviſion, for it ſhall not need, God that is this River being all in all to this City, and his bidding the faithfull to look to Zion the place of our ſolemnities to be, in any of their ſufferings to look up to this moſt bleſſed place, where ſolemnities and feſtivals ſhall be continually kept in all joy for ever to be herein comforted. Cyril. Procop. Sasbout.

Lyra applyeth all ſtill to the time of Hezekiah, ſaying, that it is here propheſied of the great peace wherein ſolemnities ſhould be kept in Zion after this, the people being free to come from all places to the Temple there at feſtivall times, whereas before in the time of the ſiege by Sennacherib they could not. And he ſaith, the Tabernacle ſhall not be removed, in alluding to that in the wilderneſſe, which was often taken down, and carried from place to place, and ſet up again by Tenons and pins joyning the parts together, yet ſo as that Lyra.

it might again be taken down, but the Temple here meant was not ſo, but ſtood firmly alwaies, and could not be taken down and removed, neither ſhould Sennacherib ever be able to do it by all his forces. And by the place of broad Rivers he underſtands the waters made by Hezekiah, by digging into a great pond becoming thus a defence to the city, and that ſo as to ſupply them within with water, but not the enemies without, that which was ſuperfluous being made to run another way, and the waters as broad as they were being unuſefull for them to approach againſt the City with Ships or Galleys. Calvin. Calvin doth ſo expound it of the time of Hezekiah, as that he takes it moſt to concern the time of the Goſpel, Rom. 5.1. and that outward peace is not ſo much meant as peace of conſcience, and inward ſecurity through faith againſt all that our ſpiritual enemies can do unto us, Chriſts Church being not like a city approachable by ſhips upon the water to be taken or diſquieted, but being abundantly ſupplied with waters of comfort by God; he that is ſuch a ſupply unto her, takes continuall care to keep off all enemies that might annoy her. And forſomuch as to underſtand this more waies, doth both agree with reaſon, and being ſo underſtood, is moſt comfortable, I ſhall not exclude any of theſe waies, but taking them all three in, underſtand it firſt with Lyra of Jeruſalems ſafety under Hezekiah; 2. With Jerom of the ſafety of the Church in this world, being impregnable by all her enemies through God who is her ſtrength, and where true joy ſuch as in holy ſolemnities only is to be found through peace of conſcience. 3. With Cyril of the future moſt happy eſtate of the Church in heaven, becauſe the word rendred for ever is not, לעולם but לנצח for ever world without end.

Verſ.23. Hieronym. Thy tacklings are looſed, they could not well ſtrengthen their maſt, &c. This is by Jerom applied to the earthly Jeruſalem, and the Jews, that for their unbelief were deſtroyed, when the Church before ſpoken of was ſo eſtabliſhed under the Goſpel, and they that of themſelves had no ſtrength like lame men, took the ſpoils, being yet forgiven, becauſe they did nothing but the will of God herein. Lyra. Lyra proceeds in applying it to the caſe which then was, as if they that could not faſten their Tents, were the Aſſyrians: for when they attempted ſo to do, the Angell ſmote them with death, and then none in Jeruſalem were ſo lame, but being allured by the richneſſe of the prey they went all out to take it, neither for joy did they feel their infirmity, and if it be enquired how this ſhould come ſo to paſſe, they in Jeruſalem having formerly ſinned by idolatry, the laſt words may ſerve for anſwer, God ſhall take away their ſin, his favour to Hezekiah was ſo great, becauſe he ſerved him with a perfect heart, that the ſins of the people paſt in Ahaz his time ſhould not come up in remembrance againſt them. Oecolamp. Luther. Vatablus. And this is followed by Oecolampadius, Luther, and Vatablus, the former by Saſbont, Saſbont. who by the ſpoils of the Jews ruined when the Church of the Gentiles was ſet up and eſtabliſhed, will have the ſpirituall priviledges meant, which the old Church of the Jews had, but now the Evangelical. Calvin. Junius. Calvin and Junius underſtand it of the wicked enemies of the Church in general, Note. who ſometime are like a mighty ſhip overtopping the leſſer veſſels of the faithfull, but in the end the cords being broken, and the Sails falling, it ſtands unmoveable either for offence or defence, till it be rifled, and all the goods therein taken away, which is good if it be taken as a morall, but certainly the literall meaning is that of Lyra, and Jeroms the myſticall.

And from the concluſion *verſ.*24. Calvin rightly gathers, both that ſin is the cauſe of all our ſufferings, and that we are in a moſt happy and joyfull condition, when our ſins are pardoned, we need not now to fear any moſt potent enemies for their riches wherein their power lies, for they ſhall become as a prey to us, though but of poor and weak condition.

CHAP. XXXIIII.

THe indignation of the Lord is upon all Nations, and upon all their hoſts, &c. After particular threatnings againſt divers Nations,here is thought by Jerom and many others to be a generall againſt all the world at the laſt day, much like unto the courſe taken *Chap.*14. after particular Nations threatned, Chap. 13,14. &c. thitherto, ſo *Chap.*28.29.30.31.32.33. having further propheſied againſt divers particulars, he here propheſieth againſt all Nations of the world, and as *Chap.*25. and 26. after judgements againſt the wicked, comfort is ſpoken to the faithfull, ſo after this *Chap.*35. Calvin and Muſculus, and many more of ours underſtand this, as *Chap.*24. before-going, viz. of the wicked enemies of the Jews, who envied them and banded againſt them for their religion. But now being firſt called to attend to that which God determined to bring upon them, *verſ.*1. he declareth *verſ.*2. what that ſhould be, they ſhould be ſlain terribly, and *verſ.*3. proceeds to amplifie it, by the caſting out of their dead carkaſſes, and the melting of the mountains with their bloud, which is hyperbolicall, and *verſ.*4,5. by the heavens being rolled together as a ſcroul, and his ſword being bathed in heaven, for all this is ſpoken only to ſhew the greatneſs of the judgement, as if the very Heavens were made to fear, and to ſhrink up upon an heap at the ſight of Gods anger, and to be as thruſt thorow with his ſword, when he addreſſed himſelf to do this ſtrange and terrible execution, ſee the like *Apoc.*6.12. and at the day of judgement, to ſhew the dreadfullneſſe of that time much more, the ſame is ſaid, 1 *Pet.*3.19. Verſ.2. Calvin. Muſcul. Verſ.3.

And Idumea is named in particular, *verſ.*5.6. becauſe the Edomites being the poſterity of Eſau, and ſo nearer to the Jews in the fleſh then other Nations, yet they were moſt malicious againſt them, and ready at all times to joyn with forreign enemies to deſtroy them, as 2 *Chron.*20. &c. And they holp the Babylonians in the deſtruction of Ieruſalem, as we may ſee, *Pſa.*137. and therefore they ſpecially are threatned alſo, *Chap.*21.11. *Ier.*49. *Ezek.*25. The ſword of the Lord is ſaid to be bathed in heaven againſt Idumea, becauſe God in heaven decreed to bring upon them this deſtruction, and he ſpeaks of a ſacrifice in Bozra, becauſe that was the chief city of the Edomites, being ſo called for the great ſtrength thereof; yet the inhabitants with ſlaughter,as Lambs and Goats are ſlain for ſacrifices in great abundance. Verſ.5,6.

And the Unicorns ſhall come down with them, &c. that is, not only the common ſort and weaker ſet forth by Goats and Lambs, but alſo the moſt valiant and mighty ſhall be ſlaughtered together with them, neither ſhall their valour, ſtrength, or riches ſave them. Verſ.7.

And the ſtreams thereof ſhall be turned into pitch, and the duſt into brimſtone, &c. which is ſo ſpoken to aggravate the judgement, for ſo the Lord did to Sodom turning the waters into a pitchy ſubſtance, there being therein and in the aſhes covering the land a continuall monument of that hideous burning. And by ſaying, that ſo it ſhould be done to Idumea, he means horrible deſolation, that ſhould come upon it, and that for ever, as he further ſheweth. Verſ. 10. &c. to *verſ.*16. ſee the like before threatned againſt Babylon, *Chap.*13.19,20. &c. Cha. 32,13. But it is not, ſaith Calvin, to be taken otherwiſe then hyperbolically, to ſtrike the greater terrour into enemies of Gods people, who are neareſt to them, yet bear the greateſt malice againſt them. And the Prophet is the larger now in threatning the Edomites, becauſe he but briefly touched them before, *Chap.*21.11. And that his propheſying of ſuch a deſolation to come to their enemies, might by the Jews be credited, Verſ.9.

*Verſ.*16. he ſaith, Search in the Book of the Lord, and reade, &c. Which, as Calvin ſaith, is beſt expounded of the Book of the Law, and the divers ſorts of threatnings againſt the wicked, therein contained, eſpecially Lev. 26. *Deut.*28. and 32. For whatſoever God threatneth againſt his own people ſinning, their their enemies muſt expect ſhould come upon them much more. Then proceeding Verſ.16. Calvin.

ing to ſpeak of the Owls and Vulturs that ſhould dwell there, males and females, as he had ſaid, verſ. 15. he ſaith, none ſhall want his mate, Heb. his female, implying that the Land ſhould be full of them, and that not for a long time only, but for ever and ever, *ver.*17. wherein yet an hyperbole muſt needs be acknowledged.

Hieronym. Ierom and others that follow him, taking the firſt part of this prophecy to be againſt the whole world in generall, ſet forth by Idumea which ſignifyeth the earth, the wicked inhabitants whereof ſhall lie in everlaſting burnings, and the inhabitants of heaven which fell, ſhall then have Gods ſword againſt them and fall, even the whole hoſt of them, as is meant, *ver.*4,5. by ſaying, Verſ.4,5. Verſ.8. All the hoſt of Heaven ſhall be diſſolved, and fall down, and my ſword ſhall be bathed in Heaven. Having I ſay expounded it ſo to *verſ.*8. he ſaith, that there the Prophet turns again to the Jews, and threatens them after their overthrow by the Romans for their great infidelity, with perpetuall deſolation. But becauſe it is added as a reaſon of dealing ſo ſeverely with Idumea, For it is the day of the Lords vengeance, and the year of recompence for the controverſie of Zion, it is a wreſting of the words to underſtand them otherwiſe then of the ſame Idumea, and other like countreys of wicked enemies to Gods people. Lyra. So alſo Lyra, who ſaith, that in ſome part of Idumea there is ſtill aſcending a ſmoak of fire and brimſtone, as out of Mount Etna in Sicily, and that this perpetuall deſolation of that countrey is to be underſtood of the waſting of all the old inhabitants, ſo as that none of them ſhould remain to multiply again and repeople it.

Hitherto Lyra having ſet forth the literall ſenſe, becauſe it doth not ſo well agree either to the Idumeans, for that it was not left in deſolation for ever, nor yet to the Romans, whom ſome underſtand by Idumea, for their enmity againſt the Jews, as here threatned with utter ruine, or rather becauſe Rome is the ſeat of the beaſt, *Rev.*17. drunken with the bloud of the Saints, and there be many moſt notable prophecies of the utter ruine thereof for ever. Burgenſis. He bringeth out of Burgenſis another Expoſition myſticall hereupon, that Idumea ſets forth the Jews after the Goſpel preached unto them, moſt like unto Iſaiah, deſpiſing this their birthright, and therefore well worthy to be ſet forth under this name, and for their hatred againſt Chriſtians, as in Eſau, of whom the Idumeans or Edomites came againſt Iacob. For their countrey indeed hath been ever ſince their city deſtroied by Titus, in deſolation, no Jews being permitted to come and dwell there by the Romans the conquerours, howſoever the Turks having it ſince in their power, have permitted ſome for money.

Verſ.11. But in them is this Prophecy fullfilled, The Cormorant and Bittern, the Owl and the Raven ſhall be there, &c. that is, men black and foul by abominable errours, to which the Jews are given over, as God of old, in forbidding ſuch to be meat becauſe unclean, would have vicious men, and men black by errour, as blaſted by an evill ſpirit underſtood by them. For it is ſtrange to recount the ſtuff, that is to be found in their Talmud, as That God was never merry, nor would have any mirth made before him, ſince he ſuffered Ieruſalem to be deſtroied, and That he weeps therefore three daies in a week, That by the Law-giver and Scepter that ſhould not depart from Jacob, was meant, that the Jews ſhould never want Rabbins to rule them by their teaching, as by a Scepter, till the Meſſiah comes, &c. He alſo ſaith, that they might be ſet forth by Idumeans, becauſe they had one Rabbi Mayr that was a Proſelyte of the Edomites who bare great ſway amongſt them in his teaching, that when God gave his Laws unto Iſrael, he meant not ſo as he ſaid, &c. For this and the like abſurd and blaſphemous commentings upon the word, were a turning of their Rivers into pitch and brimſtone. And Verſ. 11. in Vulg. Her Nobles ſhall not be there, they ſhall there call their King, he ſaith is meant, that the Scribes and Phariſees, whom they ſince counted their Nobles, ſhould ceaſe, as they have done long ago, and they called Cæſar their King, when they ſaid, We have no King but Cæſar. Calvin. Luther. But Heb. it is No Princes ſhall be there, and they ſhall call it a Kingdom, that is, when all ſhall be deſtroyed, yet the Idumeans ſhall be ſo proud, that they ſhall call their ſhattered and miſerable ſtate a kingdom ſtill, but this ſhall be a vain brag. Hitherto he, and becauſe the Prophet is myſticall, and hath a further reach then according to the letter, and that even to the worlds end we may apply this to the laſt burning, when the earth being on fire ſhall burn everlaſtingly, to the tormenting of the wicked world, being turned to an hell unto them who have formerly taken ſuch pleaſure in earthly things.

CHAP. XXXV.

Verſ.1. THe Wilderneſſe and the ſolitary place ſhall be glad for them, &c. After all Nations and Idumea in particular judged moſt ſeverely Chap. 34. which were enemies to Gods people, now he returneth to comfort the faithfull again under the name of a wilderneſſe, meaning hereby the Jews ſurviving after the Babyloniſh captivity, who were brought back to their own countrey again, whereof they had great joy, when the Perſians having taken Babylon deſtroyed that Monarchy with the appendices thereof, of whom Idumea ſpoken of *Chap.*34. was one. Then Jeruſalem that had lien ſo long deſolate, was glad to ſee, that God had thus judged their enemies, and began to flouriſh again. But the Expoſition is not to be limited to that time, for more magnificall things are ſpoken then agreed thereunto. Wherefore the Church under the Goſpel conſiſting both of Jews and Gentiles, is principally meant here; ſee the like before Chap. 32.15 and *Chap.*35.20. and to this do our Expoſitours generally agree: Lyra refers it wholly to the Church under the Goſpel, expounding the wilderneſſe by the Gentiles, who before the faith preached among them, were barren of all goodneſſe, as is a wilderneſſe of good fruits.

Lyra.

Verſ.2. The glory of Lebanon ſhall be given to it, and the excellency of Carmel, &c. that is, whatſoever pertains to decency, or fruitfulneſſe, or piety, ſhall be in Chriſts Church, though imperfectly here, yet perfectly in heaven.

Verſ.3. Strengthen the weak hands, confirm the feeble knees, &c. that is, the Lord bids the Apoſtles and other preachers of the Goſpel thus to comfort and confirm beleevers who before had no courage to endure any thing for Chriſt, till that by their preaching and examples, who ſuffered perſecutions with joy, they alſo were encouraged to the like. Or it may be taken as neceſſary for the Prophets of thoſe times to do, that the timerous in hearing of the calamities to come, might be comforted againſt them in expecting timely deliverance and revenge to be taken upon their enemies, for which it is ſaid, *Verſ.*4. The Lord will come with revenge, and ſave you; how the Apoſtle applies this, ſee *Heb.*12.12. And hence note, that the weak and timerous are not to be rejected by Gods Miniſters, but to be comforted and confirmed with Gods gracious promiſes, *Rom.*14.1.

Calvin.

Note.

Verſ.5. Then ſhall the eyes of the blinde be opened, &c. that is, when the Goſpel is preached with efficacy and power, contrary to that which was threatned, Chap. 29.9,10. For all the time that men are unconverted and in the ſtate of ſin and infidelity, they are blinde, and deaf, and lame, as is here intimated, but turning to Chriſt, their eyes and ears are opened to ſee and hear, and underſtand the myſteries of the kingdom of heaven to their comfort and ſalvation. For herein doth our Lord comfort his Diſciples, *Mat.*13.12. ſaying, To you it is given to know the myſteries of the Kingdom of heaven, but to them not, &c. ſee the ſame, *Iſa.*6.9.

Verſ.6. And the lame ſhall leap like an hart, &c. that is, the lame that could not go in the waies of God, ſhall now go with all nimbleneſſe, and the dumb that could not ſpeak to the praiſe of God ſhall now ſing clearly: Lo here, ſaith Luther miracles to confirm the Goſpel to be of God, againſt thoſe that deride his Miniſters, ſaying, They cannot make ſo much as a lame horſe ſound. For all they in whoſe hearts it taketh effect, of blinde are made to ſee, of deaf to hear, of lame to go, and dumb to ſpeak. Then another great bleſſing is added of barrenneſſe turned into fruitfulneſſe, for rivers ſhall be in the wilderneſſe, and *verſ.*7. where Dragons lay, graſſe ſhall ſpring, and reeds and ruſhes, which are a ſign of watery places, whereas Dragons lying there was a ſign of barrenneſſe and drineſs; but this fruitfulneſs is more ſpiritual then earthly, as the rivers cauſing it are, according to *Ioh.*4.10. If thou hadſt asked of me, I would have given thee water of life. And who ſo drinks of the water that I ſhall give, it ſhall be a river of water flowing out of his belly to everlaſting life.

Luther.

Verſ.8. And there ſhall be a path, and a way in which no unclean perſon ſhall go. As in the time of barrenneſs there were no comers or goers to the Church of God, which he intended ſhould be, inſomuch as there was no way to be ſeen to walk in to true bleſſedneſs, for this was the condition of all Nations before Jeſus Chriſt revealed unto them: So after this, according to the manner of fruitfull places, which are able to yield food to all comers, there is great coming and going of many people, to the beating out of a plain path, that any man, though never ſo ſimple, may ſee to walk without wandring from it another way. And this way is called holy, becauſe holy perſons only, and none unclean go in it, they ceaſing now to be unclean, becauſe they are waſhed and ſanctified in the name of our Lord Ieſus, and by the Spirit of God, as is ſaid, 1 Cor. 6.11. by believing, and the Spirit of holineſſe and righteouſneſſe now guiding them in all things. Before indeed they were unclean through idolatry, fornication, theft, &c. as *verſ.*10. and ſo the place was polluted; but now they being ſanctified, it is holy, as *Tit.*1.15. To the pure all things are pure, but to the defiled all things are unclean, yea their very conſcience. It is not hereby meant, Calvin. ſaith Calvin, That in the Church of Chriſt there ſhould be none but holy perſons, unleſſe it be underſtood of that in heaven, for here the Church is, and will alwayes be mixt, being called holy from the better part. But becauſe there is no way or beaten path in heaven, for then travelling is at an end, it cannot be ſo well underſtood of that Church, but of this upon earth, wherein no unclean perſon walketh, when no idolaters are amongſt the worſhippers of the true God, and of Jeſus Chriſt any more, or which deny Jeſus to be the Son of God, or his Ordinances of preaching or baptizing, but come and ſubmit hereunto and confeſſe his faith. For as of old no man was counted unclean, that was circumciſed, and by outward waſhing cleanſed from legal pollution, and ſo might not be kept out of the Camp; ſo now it may be ſaid, that no unclean perſon walketh with the clean in the path or way of divine worſhip, when none but ſuch as outwardly profeſſe the faith of Chriſt, and ſubmit to his Ordinances are in our Congregations, as members thereof, eſpecially if upon uncleanneſſe of life appearing in any, they be kept out of the way of communicating with the clean in the Lords Supper, becauſe an unclean perſon, whoſe uncleanneſſe appears not, as in hypocrites, cannot, ſo farre as men can judge, be called unclean, although before God they be ſuch, and therefore all their ſervice is abomination unto him. For the words added, It ſhall be for them, and the wayfaring men though fools ſhall not erre, Hebr. למו and he therein, that is, God in this way to go before them, as ſometime he was by his fiery pillar in the way that they went in the wilderneſſe, that they might come to Canaan; and where God is thus guiding his people, the traveller, though all in the company were fools, yet not one of them can go out of the way, as is ſaid in the next words. And to this Calvin, after other expoſitions firſt brought, agreeth. Only he thinks that travellers in this way are thus ſpoken of, though fools, becauſe they are ſo in the opinion of the world, that are godly, 1 *Cor.*1.20. and think themſelves ſo, being conſidered in themſelves, 1 *Cor.*3.18. and were ſuch indeed before their converſion, *Tit.*3.3. But to render the words altogether to the end, according to the Hebrew they go thus; And he therein walking the way, and fools ſhall not erre] for הלך walking, is a ſingular, and אוילים Fools a plural, and therefore cannot be put together, as ſetting forth the ſame walkers, but walking hath reference to him, that is

God in the way to guide men, and ſo very fools are kept from wandering out of it, touching whom I miſlike not, that it ſhould be taken, fools in the worlds account, yet I think ſomewhat more to be herein implied, viz. that the leaſt worldly wiſe, who have not great wits, are here meant, according to 1 Cor. 1.19. Not many wiſe are called, if they be not ſo acute as ſome other Chriſtians, yet he that walks with them guides them, that they go not out of the right way of holineſſe and truth. Therefore *Pſal.*25. it is ſaid, That the word of God giveth light unto the ſimple, and of the ſpirits going before them, after whom they walk, *Rom.*8.1. which walk not after the fleſh, but after the ſpirit.

There ſhall not be a Lion or ſavage beaſt, &c. Becauſe he had ſpoken of a wilderneſſe, wherein the holy way ſhould be, and wilderneſſes are not without ſavage beaſts ready to devour paſſengers, he ſecures the redeemed from fear of them in their travel towards heaven. Now the devil is ſaid indeed to be a roaring Lion here, 1 *Pet.*5.8. and Paul ſaith, That God delivered him out of the Lions mouth, meaning Nero a perſecuting Emperour, ſo that both devils, and their inſtruments, wicked perſecutours are in their way to devour them. But God here promiſeth, That his ſhall be as ſafe, as if there were no ſavage beaſts there. For as it is with the Church in general, The gates of hell ſhall not prevail againſt it; ſo in particular with every true faithfull perſon, there ſhall be no Lion or Bear to hurt his ſoul in the way, or to hinder him from ſalvation, Mat. 10.28. They can only kill the body, not the ſoul, that is carried away unhurt by perſecutours into Abrahams boſom, as it is ſaid of poor Lazarus. And when God ſees that it will make for his glory, he cicurates and tames the fierceſt Lions towards his Church, ſo that in ſtead of perſecutours they turn Fathers and Preachers, as Saul, Act.9. and nurſing Fathers and nurſing Mothers, as Kings and Queens converted, or at the leaſt their rage is made to ceaſe, as Trajans againſt Chriſtians; and thus alſo the Lamb and the Lion ſometime dwell together, as *Ch.*11. God making a Covenant, as it were, for his people, with beaſts, not to hurt them, *Hoſ.*2.18. and it may be applied to beaſts properly underſtood alſo; for God hath ſometime ſo reſtrained them, that they have contrary to their natures forborn to hurt his ſervants being expoſed to them, as Daniel and many Martyrs, as is intimated in an Epiſtle of Ignatius, ſaying, when he was condemned to be caſt to the wilde beaſts, if they would not tear him with their teeth, he would provoke them, that he might be made fine meal for God. Contrariwiſe the wicked are threatned with devouring by wilde beaſts, *Deut.*28. and Bears did execution upon them, 2 King. 2. and 2 King. 17. Lions.

Verſ.9.

Note.

Luk.16.

Verſ.10.

Therefore the redeemed of the Lord ſhall return and come to Zion, &c. As he began the Chapter with joy, ſo he concludeth, That Gods people, as they had begun to ſpring in the Decree made by Cyrus of liberty to return, ſo they ſhould joyfully return to Zion after a long Captivity under the Babylonians, for their way, though long and dangerous thither, ſhould be ſafe by his providence that redeemed them, even till they came to the end thereof, and therefore ſorrow and heavines, of which they were full before for their being detained in a ſtrange Land, now ceaſeth. But myſtically it is further to be extended to ſuch as in all Nations turn to the faith, for they thus come to Zion with joy, that is, the Church, as Acts 2. and 8. And although they have many times outward cauſe of ſorrow, yet ſpiritual joy doth ſo abound in their hearts, that it is as nothing, *Rom.*5.1. *Act.*4. *Jam.*1. But they with whom it is thus, are The redeemed of the Lord] Before that any can attain to ſuch joy, they muſt by faith be aſſured of this, all others being uncapable of true joy, how merry ſoever they are, and this joy begun here ſhall be everlaſting in heaven, *Pſ.*16. *Apoc.*4. and Chap. 7.

For *Cha.*36,37,38,39. they are the ſame verbatim with 2 *King.*18,19,20. and therefore the Reader may have recourſe to my Commentaries upon them for the underſtanding of theſe.

CHAP. XL.

Verſ.1. Junius. Lyra.

COmfort ye, comfort ye my people, ſaith your God, &c. In this Chapter, and the next, ſaith Junius, is one Sermon Propheticall touching the benefits by Chriſt, and the conſolation which the faithfull have in him. Lyra, The Prophet having hitherto ſpoken of Chriſt to come, mingling with the Prophecies touching him, judgements againſt the wicked, here he propheſieth comfort to the faithfull. And this his propheſying conſiſts of two parts, 1. An inducing of them to expect the promiſes touching Chriſt to come in general, to *Chap.*45. 2. A more particular declaration of them, Chap 45,46,47,48. For the firſt he induceth to expect, 1. From Gods power, *Chap.*41. 2. From his charity, *Chap.*42,43. 3. From his verity, *Chap.*44. Hieron. Jerom likewiſe applieth this Prophecy to Chriſt, expounding the double, which Jeruſalem received at the Lords hands, verſ. 2. of her ſufferings by the Babylonians firſt, and ſecondly by the Romans; Lyra, of double comfort of ſoul and body coming by Chriſt, for though it be ſpoken of in the Preterperfect tenſe, as if ſome thing paſt were meant: yet it needs not to be ſo underſtood, but he ſpeaks thus for the certainty of the conſolation, as if it had been already come. Oecolamp. Calvin. Oecolampadius and Calvin ſay, That this is a Prophecie of their deliverance from the Babyloniſh Captivity, and comfort that they ſhould have therein, and Calvin addeth, That this doth moſt aptly follow *Chap.*39. where the ſervitude of the Kings in Babylon was ſpoken of, yet in this conſolation, he ſaith, he alſo comforteth all the faithfull by the benefits coming to them by Chriſt Jeſus, whereſoever diſperſed throughout the whole world, and that this muſt needs be ſo extended appears *v.*3. The voice of a crier in the wildernes, &c. which is applied to John the Baptiſt by all the Evangeliſts.

Verſ.2.

Speak comfortably to Jeruſalem, &c. Hebr. Speak to the heart of Ieruſalem, and ſay, Her warfare is accompliſhed; that is, ſhe ſhall ſuffer no further the miſeries coming by wars, as ſhe hath done hitherto by the Caldeans, but as a ſouldier at fifty years of age was allowed to reſt, as being now emeritus miles, ſo Ieruſalem, that is, the Jews, being toſſed with many miſeries in Babylon, in ſeventy years of their Captivity, had thenceforth reſt in their own Land. But becauſe this was not ſo fully then performed, for they had enemies which hindered them in their building, it was moſt perfectly accompliſhed in Chriſt to all believers, who againſt the terrours of all aſſaults and fightings againſt them of their ſpiritual enemies, by juſtification through faith in Chriſt have Rom.5.1. peace with God, and peace and joy not to be broken off by the rage of the wicked world againſt them. For then only can we have true peace, when our ſins being not imputed, but all pardoned, neither the devil nor our conſcience accuſing can diſquiet us any more. Becauſe ſhe hath received double from the hand of the Lord in all her ſins. N. Tranſlat. For all her ſins. That the Lord may not be thought here to give occaſion to think, that it is meant he puniſht the Jews twice as much as they deſerved, according to the ſound of the words, ſome expound this of comfort, as Lyra before; and Vatabl. Vatablus ſaith, that ſome underſtand abundance of benefits by Chriſt, ſome by the double one of grace, and the other of glory. But forſomuch as the comfort was to come, and here it is ſpoken of that which was paſt before the coming on of this comfort, Calvin. Calvin underſtands it better of ſufferings, ſaying, That they had ſuffered abundance of puniſhment, ſo that the Lord was now moved with compaſſion, as having done more againſt them, then he by the goodneſſe of his nature was willing; as if he had ſaid, They have ſuffered too much already, I will not therefore proceed againſt them any further, but forgive them, and put an end to theſe miſeries by deſtroying the Babylonians their enemies, by whom I have chaſtiſed them, and ſetting them again at liberty with joy, to go home and poſſeſſe their City and good Land, as in former times of their proſperity. Whence it cannot be gathered, that God puniſheth any more then they deſerve by their ſins: for then it could not be ſaid, Her ſins are forgiven, after all this (ſeeing this argueth, that more puniſhments were ſtill due, if God ſhould in juſtice have proceeded againſt them) but only that the Lords anger was now over, and that he was moved in the bowels of his mercy in a manner to repent him of the miſeries wherewith he cauſed his own people to ſuffer. That no man may dare to think, That God in his greateſt anger exceeds the meaſure of mens ſins in his puniſhments, as the truth is that he doth not, forſomuch as ſinne deſerves death, Rom.6.23. and therefore what puniſhments ſoever we ſinners ſuffer, that come ſhort of this, which is everlaſting deſtruction both of ſoul and body in hell fire, we have no cauſe of complaining that we are puniſht beyond juſtice. Whereas Jerom applieth this double puniſhment to that by the Babylonians firſt, and after by the Romans, I cannot herein ſubſcribe to him, becauſe then this comfort ſhould in no part have place at the end of the Babyloniſh Captivity, which the Lord was ſo carefull to comfort the faithfull amongſt the Jews by. It is rather then meant of a double grievous puniſhment upon the Jews, 1. In the deſtruction of their City and Temple. 2. In their Captivity and miſeries therein of ſo long a continuance. And being applied to all Gods faithfull people under the Goſpel, they may be ſaid to have received double, becauſe Jeſus Chriſt hath ſuffered death for them, to juſtifie them from their ſins, and yet they ſuffer by perſecutions alſo, as all that will live godly muſt do to the worlds end. Although herein God hath another end beſides judging for ſinne, viz. the bringing of his faithfull ſervants to the greater glory in heaven for ever, when they have patiently and chearfully ſuffered for his ſake upon earth for a ſhort time.

2 Tim.3.12.
2 Cor.4.17.
Rom.8.16.

Verſ.3. The voice of one crying in the Wilderneſſe. Who was meant here John the Baptiſt declares Joh.1.23. and in naming the wilderneſſe, he alludes to that Chap. 35.1. where the wilderneſſe is ſaid to rejoyce, and to ſpring, meaning the Church hitherto, as a wilderneſſe; but now valleys are filled, when Gentiles low in confeſſion are raiſed to confeſſe Chriſt, the high by pride are humbled, for their ſins paſt, wherein they had gone blindely on, and the rough made plain, when they of rough manners were made meek and gentle, and then all fleſh ſaw the ſalvation of God, when being by John baptized, the heavens opened, and a voice was heard ſaying, This is my beloved Son, &c Thus Ierom. The Hebrews underſtand this of their return out of the Babyloniſh Captivity, which cannot be, but as hath been already ſaid, and even ſome of them conſent, that it is ſpoken of the time of the Meſſiah, only they would hereby prove, that he is not yet come, becauſe the earth is not yet made plain, as is here propheſied, for they underſtand the words literally. But they are indeed allegoricall, as are many things more ſpoken by Iſaiah of Chriſt and his Kingdom. And R.Moſes one of their own men is clearly againſt them, who ſaith, That in the world there ſhall then be no alteration in reſpect of the earth, but it ſhall continue, as at the firſt Creation; ſo Lyra, who agrees with Jerom about high things and rough things; and for valleys he underſtands thereby the humble, who were exalted by gifts and graces beſtowed upon them; and by crooked, walkers in the ways of wickedneſſe, who are now brought into the way of righteouſneſſe. Thomas Aquinas, Calvin and ſome others expound this of Cyrus making Proclamation of liberty to the Jews to return home, and removing all impediments of their paſſage: wherein they ſay ſomewhat, which might have been probable, but that John, who overpoiſeth all Expoſitours, hath made it plain, that it was meant of him. And for further explication of the words, enough hath been already ſaid in my Expoſition upon Mat.3. and therefore I ſpare it here.

Hieronym.

Lyra.

Th.Aquinas.
Calvin.

Verſ.6. The voice ſaid, Cry, and he ſaid, What ſhall I cry, &c? Jerom applying this to the Prophet, ſaith, becauſe Chap.6. he bad him ſay [Hearing ye ſhall hear, and not underſtand, &c.] now he remembring that, deſires what he ſhould ſay further, as fearing an hard meſſage, about which he ſhould be imployed again. But now he bids him ſay nothing, but what daily experience teacheth to be true, viz. That all fleſh is graſſe, for ſo do the faireſt women ſoon wither, that erewhile drew flocks of vain men after them by their beauty, and are as much deſpiſed as before they were loved: but the word of the Lord, and they that are ſociated to it, endure ever. So that by fleſh here is meant the outward man, of whom it is ſaid before, All fleſh ſhall ſee the glory of the Lord: For multitudes were preſent at Iordan, when he being baptized, who is the glory of the Father, was ſo graced. But this notwithſtanding the carnal were but fleſh ſtill and withering, but Chriſt and his body, the Church of the faithfull meant by the Word, as Lyra further explains it, ſhall endure for ever. Calvin. Muſculus. Luther. Calvin, Muſculus and Luther being larger upon theſe words, ſay, That ſome underſtand this, as ſpoken of the Jews enemies, whom they ſhould not need to fear, for they were but as graſſe ſoon to be cut down and withered: But againſt all fear of them be comforted in the word of God coming to them by his Prophets, becauſe that ſhould ſtand and ever take effect, ſaving all that into believing hearts receive it, as is hereby promiſed, and that both temporally and eternally. Which although it be true, yet much more is here intimated, viz. the vanity of man in himſelf, and his eternity by receiving worthily into his heart the word of God. A voice ſaying, Cry. This is not to be reſtrained to the voice before-ſpoken of, but to be underſtood generally of the charge given by God to Iſaiah, and all other Prophets, how to proceed in their miniſterial office at all times. The thing to be taught by them is the vanity of all men in themſelves, not only in reſpect of the body, or any thing that graceth it, but alſo in reſpect of the indowments of the minde, wiſdome, memory, courage, eloquence, and pious and charitable performances, and whatſoever elſe makes him ſeem glorious in the eyes of others, as riches, goodly apparel, honour and worldly power. For a man in the midſt of all theſe is but as graſſe or flowers of the field, upon which fierce winds blowing they wither and ſoon fade away: So the Spirit of Gods wrath blowing upon men even of greateſt eminency, they with all their pomp and pride, and ſeeming glory, fade, and come to nothing. But the Word of the Lord endures, &c. That is, entring into the heart to regenerate and ſanctifie, makes ſuch as were before ſo vain and withering, flouriſhing green by grace, and everlaſtingly glorious in heaven, 1 Pet. 1.23. Note. And this is conſtantly by every Preacher to be taught with all freedom and boldneſſe every where, not with a voice ſuppreſſed, but lifted up aloud, whereby the dulneſſe of men to hearken and to be moved by this is intimated, and yet no true happineſſe to be by any man attained, till he comes to this, every one being otherwiſe as graſſe, yea vanity and miſery for evermore. The word חסד rendred glory in this place ſignifieth properly mercy, but as Vatablus hath it, is diverſly tranſlated, clemency, or piety, or beneficence, but it may beſt be rendred decor, any thing about man being hereby meant, that makes him beſt eſteemed of amongſt men. Ad.° Saſbont. And that which is here ſaid is taught by every Philoſopher, ſaith Saſbont, why then are the Prophets bidden to cry this? Verily becauſe it is never taught effectually, till by the Prophet of God and his Spirit, for which it is not uttered without a preparative to ſtirre up to attention A voice ſaying, Cry. And he ſaid, What ſhall I cry? A Dialogue betwixt God and his Prophet as if he had ſaid, A voice came from heaven ſaying to the Prophet, that will ſhew himſelf moſt obſequious to God, Proclaim with a loud voice that it may pierce into all mens ears and hearts, which is moſt neceſſary for all, the thing that I ſhall now ſay. Whereunto the Prophet replying, What worthy and remarkable thing is that? who can but give all diligent attention?

Verſ.9. O Zion that bringeſt good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain, &c. Now returns again to Jeruſalem, to whom he had ſpoken comfort, *verſ.*1. by Zion and Jeruſalem meaning the Preachers of the Goſpel ſent out from hence with the glad tidings of ſalvation by Chriſt. And he bids them get up into an high mountain, and yet Zion was an high mountain; meaning that they ſhould go further forth, that they might be heard every where throughout the whole world; world ; for being thus aſcended they are in the next words bidden lift up their voice, Lift up thy voice with ſtrength, lift it up : Becauſe a man ſtanding on high and ſpeaking with a ſtrong voice, is heard afar off. So that here is propheſied the going out of the Goſpel from Zion into all Nations, as it was fulfilled in the time of the Apoſtles. And whereas it is added, Fear not, the dangers wherewith they ſhould be compaſſed about, againſt which they are incouraged, both which were accordingly fulfilled; for both their ſound went into all lands, Rom.10.18.

and they were hotly perſecuted by the Jews firſt, and then by the Gentiles, that they had great need of this comfort not to fear, as they had, Matth. 10.28.
And Jerom noteth here, that the word bringing good tidings, is Hebr. of the Hieron.
feminine gender, and that it may be referred either to the law or precept * Lyræ additio, Mary coming into the hill Country to Elizabeth, hears her telling the good tidings of her being the mother of our Lord ; and to point at this the word is a fœminine.
which is a feminine, and then it is to be rendred, Aſcend thee up on to an high hill bringing glad tidings to Zion ; or to Zion it ſelf, being read as before ; becauſe Cities are commonly ſet forth as daughters, that be feminines, and this reading is to be preferred *. The meaning is, that the Apoſtles going out of Zion to preach ſhould aſcend higher in opening the myſteries of ſalvation to all peoples far and near, then any Prophets or Preachers that went before them, and be without fear of Perſecution that ſhould be ſtirred up againſt them in ſo doing.
But to ſhew where they ſhould begin firſt to preach, it is added, Say to the Cities of Judah, Behold your God. For they were bidden firſt to preach to none, but to the loſt ſheep of the houſe of Iſrael. And firſt his Incarnation is preached, Behold your God,] for then God was viſible to the eyes of mortal men ; according to that, We beheld his glory, as the glory of the only begotten of Joh.1.14.
the Father.] And [That which we have heard and ſeen.] This is the ſame with 1 Joh.1.4.
that *v.*5. All fleſh ſhall ſee the ſalvation of the Lord ; and what is this, but Jeſus a Saviour ? Then is preached his ſecond coming in power at the laſt day, *v.*10.
Behold the Lord cometh with a ſtrong arm, &c. But he ſhall firſt in time of his Verſ.10.
humiliation do as a ſhepherd, *v.*11. He ſhall feed his flock like a ſhepherd, he ſhall gather the Lambs with his arms, &c. As he alſo ſets forth himſelf unto us, John 10. and *Luk.*15. in the parable of the loſt ſheep. And he ſhall gently lead thoſe Gal.4.19.
with young. That is, ſaith Jerom, the Apoſtles and other Teachers, who travel in birth with the people under their teaching. Lyra, by his coming with a Lyra.
ſtrong arm, underſtands his divine power to work miracles whilſt he lived here, and by his ruling by his arm, his arms ſtretching out upon the croſſe ; after which he ſaid, All power is given to me in heaven and in earth. Laſtly his reward Mat.28.18.
with him being as certainly to be beſtowed at his ſecond coming, according to his promiſe, as if he had then brought it with him. But I reſt in the former, becauſe it is ſaid, he comes in power, and his arm, that is, his ſtrength, rules.
For when his arms were ſtretched out upon the croſſe, he was in his loweſt humiliation.
Muſculus proceedeth to apply all this to the deliverance out of the Muſcul.
Babyloniſh Captivity, which filled Zion and Jeruſalem with ſo much joy : And Calvin by Zion and Jeruſalem underſtands the true Church, which is hereby Calvin.
ſhewed to be that, wherein the word of God, and nothing elſe, is continually ſounded out aloud, as by the voice of a crier, for which ſhe is called The ground 1 Tim.3.15.
and pillar of truth : But if any Church ceaſeth ſo to do, it is but a vain brag for her to pretend her ſelf to be ſuch, as the Church of Rome doth. I hold it not amiſs to take this as ſpoken firſt and literally of that deliverance of the Jews, but the thing chiefly intended here is Chriſts coming, both firſt and ſecond, as hath been already ſaid : Although Cyril and Procopius, as Lyra, apply all to his firſt coming, when by his Almighty power he caſt out the very devils.

Who hath meaſured out the waters with the hollow of his hand, &c. To purchaſe Verſ.12.
credit to that which was ſaid before, he here declares the greatneſs and Almighty power of God, whereby he is able to do whatſoever he pleaſeth, and therefore to ſhew himſelf viſibly by taking fleſh upon him, and to come in power at the laſt, and to rule over all, and to give rewards to them diverſly, Hieron.
and in the mean ſeaſon to tender and do for his people, as a ſhepherd for his lambs, ſo Jerom, Lyra, &c. And there is need that the faithfull ſhould be hereby confirmed touching the great works of redeeming and ſaving them, having ſo many and potent enemies to hinder it, as the devils of hell and their curſed inſtruments endeavouring nothing more then the deſtruction of their ſouls, and the overthrow of the Goſpel by continued Perſecutions; ſo that unleſs God be apprehended as infinite, we cannot conceive how theſe things can be. And comprehended with three fingers the duſt of the earth So Calvin reades it: and Jerom, Who hath weighed with three fingers the heap of the earth. N.Tr. Comprehended the duſt of the earth in a meaſure. Hebr. And all the duſt of the earth in three; there being no verb either comprehended or weighed; ſo that this is by Tranſlatours ſupplied out of the words beforegoing; but why the N.Tr. ſhould leave the old rendring by three, to turn it meaſure, I ſee not.

Lyra. But why it ſhould be rendreed three fingers, good reaſon; becauſe, as Lyra hath it, this argueth the facility of his taking up the whole maſſe of the earth; for when a man takes up any great weight, he doth it with his whole hand, yea with both; but when a little, with two or three fingers; and fingers may well be added to three, becauſe he ſpake before of the hand of God and the hollow and ſpan thereof. And he ſaith [the duſt] meaning the whole earth,
Calvin. to ſhew how light a thing it is to him; ſo Calvin: for the duſt is ſo light, that the winde blows it away. And from hence to *v.*18. he amplifieth further the theme begun touching Gods power and greatneſs, and wiſdom. All men and things are nothing to this infinite and incomprehenſible Eſſence, and he only is wiſe and of counſel to bring to paſs whatſoever he pleaſeth: And the drop of a bucket is ſpoken of, becauſe that is a thing of nought, which a man regards not, but lets it fall.

Verſ.18. To whom then will ye liken God, &c. Now he fitly comes to ſhew the vanity and fooliſhneſs of idolaters, that preſume to repreſent God by an Image, for what Image or ſimilitude can be made of him that comprehends all things, and is himſelf incomprehenſible? And he proceeds to this next that he might move mens mindes when Chriſt ſhould be preached, to turn from dumb Idols unto him, they being but the works of mens hands; who if they be all put together, are to himward but as the drop of a bucket and the ſmall duſt of a balance, and therefore extream folly and madneſs it would be in any to adore Hieron. them. Thus Jerom, who alſo draws it to an allegory againſt Hereticks, that ſet up Idols in their hearts, made, as they think, of firm and incorruptible matter, ſhining by the gold and ſilver of humane eloquence, and faſtened by Logick ſo ſtrongly, as not to be moved.

Verſ.21. Have ye not known and heard, hath it not been told you from the beginning, &c. Having ſpoken before of Gods greatneſs, and the vanity of Idols, how coſtly and artificially ſoever made, now he comes to challenge Idolaters for this their wickedneſs, as not being able to plead ignorance, ſith from the beginning of the world they were better taught by Gods works of Creation; ſo that they might eaſily have gathered, what his infinite wiſdom and greatneſs was, as is ſhewed, *Rom.*1.19.

Verſ.22. He ſits upon the circle of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as graſhoppers, &c. That is, ſaith Lyra, as King, and becauſe men being compared to
Lyra.
Hieronym. him are ſo little, they are ſaid to be as graſhoppers. Jerom, in compariſon of the vaſt earth, if they be lookt upon, from one end thereof to the other. He ſpreadeth the heavens as a curtain, and as a tent to dwell in. That is, for men and other earthly creatures, who are under the canopy of heaven as the covering of a tent; and ſo it ſeemeth indeed in the horiſon to compaſſe us round, even to the earth, which hangs in the midſt as a ball, ſupported by nothing, but by Gods Almighty power, the baſis being only a thinne and empty air round about.

Verſ.23. That bringeth Princes to nothing, and makes the Judges of the earth as vanity. That is, If their power, glory and wiſdom be compared with his, as experience daily ſheweth: For they come but up a little while to act a part, and then all their glory vaniſheth again and is gone; ſo Xerxes, and Alexander, Nebuchad- nezzar, and Solomon; and other Aſſyrian, Babylonian, Perſian and Roman Monarchs.

Verſ.26. He bringeth out their hoſts by number, &c. So the Pſalmiſt ſaith, he calleth them all by their names; but Abraham could not number them, and the ſtars are his hoſts, whereby he ruleth earthly things, and fighteth againſt his enemies, and for his people when he pleaſeth, *Judg.*5. And ſuch hoſts be his Angels, of whom he hath Legions, ye twenty thouſand thouſands, and ten times more. Dan.7.10.

Verſ.27. Why ſaieſt thou (O Jacob) and ſpeakeſt (O Iſrael) My way is hid from the Lord. That is, conſidering how powerfull and wiſe the Lord is, why doeſt thou Jacob, or the two Tribes, and Iſrael or the ten Tribes lead into Captivity, ſpeak deſpairingly, as if he did not regard or take any care of you, but left you to the will of your enemies?

Verſ.28. Haſt thou not heard, that the everlaſting God, &c. fainteth not? He ſpeaks in the ſame manner to his own people, that he did before to Idolaters, *v.*21. laying a great taxation upon them, that they being ſo well taught ſhould doubt of Gods care over them and humane affairs, and whether he moderated in that which they now ſuffered, or not, or would even put an end to their calamities, as he had promiſed. Note. Thus intimating, that no errour is ſo groſs, but even Gods own people are ready to fall into it, notwithſtanding the good inſtructions that they live continually under, if temptation cometh. And that this is a groſs one, that God either ſees not or cares not what becomes of his ſervants, if they have once by their ſins provoked him; it is a very heatheniſh errour, neither did they fault more that made and worſhipped Idols, then ſuch. For God will as ſoon ceaſe to be God, as to regard the tranſaction of things amongſt men here upon earth: a ſparrow fals not to the ground without his will.

Verſ.29. He gives to the weary ſtrength, &c. Here he comforts the faithfull by teaching that the Lord will not fail to ſupply all thoſe that put their truſt in him, with any thing that they ſhall ſtand in need of, although others, who be young and luſty ſhall become faint and feeble, theſe in their feebleſt eſtate ſhall be ſtrengthened and have ſpirit put into them, as more largely appears by putting to this, *v.*30,31. And this is not ſpoken for Iſrael only then in diſtreſs, but for all Gods faithfull ſervants that fear him in all Countries and Nations to the worlds end.

CHAP. XLI.

Verſ.1. O Iſlands, be ſilent before me, and (O people) gather ſtrength. The Lord being now about to declare his dealings of old with his people, firſt gives a charge to the Iſlands, beaten upon by the ſea on every ſide with a great noiſe, to be ſilent; as when a Judge is to ſpeak in the face of the Country met together, the Crier firſt enjoineth all men ſilence, that he may be the better heard. And then he wils his people that were faint-hearted and weak through many ſufferings and of long continuance, to gather ſtrength to hear him; becauſe when God utters his voice, there is need of extraordinary ſtrength to bear it, the infirmity of man not being able, unleſs ſupported by God and his word encouraging him, as we may ſee in Daniel. To this effect almoſt Jerom: But for theſe words, Gather ſtrength, he hath theſe, mutent fortitudinem; but in the ſenſe giving he agreeth, Change it into greater, that they may be able to bear the voice of God ſpeaking. Lyra, Let them change their ſtrength to do evil, into ſtrength to do good. But forſomuch as the next words, Let them ſpeak, let us come together into judgement; it is manifeſtly a challenging of them, if they had any thing juſtly to except againſt the Lords dealings towards them, to ſpeak; and that they might be able to ſpeak moſt to the purpoſe, to ſtrengthen themſelves with arguments, as Calvin and Muſculus have it. Whereby is Hieronym. Lyra. Calvin. Muſculus.

Note. intimated, that if men would but diligently hearken to the word of God, the noiſe of worldly things not ſounding in their ears, when they are in hearing, by wandring thoughts, but they being attentive to the ſound reaſons by him brought, they could not but be wrought upon by being brought home to him by true repentance.

Verſ.2. Who ſtird up the righteous from the eaſt, and called him to his foot, &c. Hebr. Righteouſneſſe; and ſo Calvin renders it: But Jerom, juſtum; and N.Tr. The righteous man, which is according to meaning, ſith Abrahams righteouſneſs by faith is thus ſet forth; and it was by vertue of his faith, that when God called him, he went from Ur of the Chaldees, which was Eaſtward from Canaan. And that by righteouſneſs the man, in whom it was, is meant, appears by the next words, And called him to his foot. And he cals him righteouſneſs, ſaith Cal- Calvin. vin, becauſe he was the father of the faithful, and what he did to him he being the ſame God is ready alwaies to do to all his faithfull people. Wherefore he mentioneth his calling out of Caldea, a very remote place, to intimate that he could as eaſily bring them out of Babylon home again. This ſtirring of him up, was *Gen.*12.1. and was of great force to be remembred, becauſe he was a lone man, having only two or three more with him, when he went out from Ur; and therefore if God preſerved him in all places where he came, much more could he bring home his poſterity, being a great number, coming together in ſafety. And he is called righteous, not becauſe he was ſo before God called him, for *Joſh.*24 ſhews the contrary. Gods effectual calling him, working in him faith and obedience, made him righteous, and not becauſe he was Jam.1.17. righteous God ſtirred him up, for he is the authour of all good unto us, And in me, ſaith Paul, there is no good. But when God pleaſeth he can ſtir up righteouſneſs in the midſt of the moſt notoriouſly unrighteous, ſuch as the people of Ur of Caldea were. And it is ſaid, He called him to his foot] meaning, to go to a Country which he would ſhew him, not naming it unto him, but making him to follow him as his guide, ſtep after ſtep. And ſubdued Kings to him, &c. That is, the four Kings whom he overcame, *Gen.*14. He ſubdued them and their Armies, making a great ſlaughter of them; which he ſets forth, by ſaying, He gave the Nations before him, he gave them as duſt to his ſword, &c. Jerom Hieron. recites this, as an Expoſition of the Hebrews, and another applying it to Cyrus, who ſubdued the Babylonians. But he reading it, He will give the Nations before him, and Kings, &c. applieth all to Chriſt our righteouſneſs, who Mal.4. is ſaid to be raiſed up out of the Eaſt, as the ſun, becauſe he is the Son of righteouſneſſe. And to him Nations and Kings are ſubdued, when converted to his Lyra. faith. But Lyra ſaith the ſame with Calvin and Muſculus: And whereas he Muſcul. following Jeroms Tranſlation, reades it, He will give the Nations before him, &c. in the future Tenſe, he ſaith this is frequent amongſt the Prophets, by the future to ſet forth things paſt: But all our Tranſlations are in the preter Tenſe, and ſo take away all occaſion of queſtioning how it can be applied to Abraham, whoſe time was paſt long before: yet Hebr. it is in the future, yea and the word call him to his foot alſo. And he ſaith, that both Catholick and Hebrew Expoſitours underſtand it of Abraham. But I marvel how he could ſay ſo, ſeeing Jerom did not, nor Cyril, nor Procopius, but of Chriſt. And although before in ſpeaking hereupon, I have repreſented others applying it to Abraham, yet conſidering the word righteouſneſſe here uſed, whereby no man was ever called, but Chriſt only, and his ſpeaking in the future Tenſe, as of a thing to come and not already paſt, and laſtly of Nations and Kings to be ſubdued by him, being to him but as duſt and ſtubble; I cannot but hold with Jerom, that a greater then Abraham is here meant, even Jeſus Chriſt both God and man. For although the preter Tenſe be ſometime put for the future in Prophecies, to ſhew the certainty, yet the future is never uſed for the preter: and therefore neither Lyra nor Cornelius, who ſeek thus to ſalve it, produce any like paſſage; Cornel.à Lap. and whereas Cornelius ſaith, that the conjunction [and] coupleth theſe futures to the preter Perfect, to ſhew, that all is to be underſtood alike; for [he ſtirred up] is the preterperfect, it is gratis dictum, for the conjunction [and] doth not couple tenſes but perſons, and it is as good Grammar to ſay, he hath ſtirred up, and will call to his foot, as he hath ſtirred and called, for he is ſtirred up when in the decree of God, as he was ſlain from the beginning of the world, and when the time ſet in this decree ſhall come, he will call him to his foot, &c. that is, he ſhall having humbled himſelf to come in the form of a ſervant, be obedient in all things, and then he ſhall give the Nations before him, and kings, that is, all Nations to be ſubdued by the Goſpel, a thing often ſpoken of, and promiſed to Chriſt, whereas if it be applied to Abraham, that conqueſt once made by him over a few Kings only, will not bear theſe magnificall words and thoſe following: much leſſe can it be applied to Cyrus, who was but an heathen King, and therefore moſt unaptly ſhould have been ſet forth by the word righteouſneſſe, although Hugo, Saubont and Pagnin be for it. And being applied to Chriſt it will beſt anſwer to the promiſe of his coming before-going, Chap. 40.9,10,11. with ſo great power and ſuch a mighty arm. And whileſt the Lord ſpeaks of this, no marvell though he requires the Iſles to be ſilent and attentive (as to a thing of the greateſt moment in the world, and moſt concerning all Nations) and all people to come with their ſtrongeſt arguments, if they had any thing to ſay, why they ſhould not, leaving dumb idols ſerve this mighty conquerour, being otherwiſe in danger to be conſumed, and utterly to periſh.

He ſhall purſue them, he ſhall paſſe in peace, by the way he hath not gone with his feet. Verſ.3. Vulg. Lat. Semita in pedibus ejus non apparebit, The meaning being, as both Jerom and Lyra have it, he ſhall paſſe on conquering with ſo great celerity, that no prints of his feet ſhall appear upon the ground, his expeditions being rather like a flying with wings, then a going with feet. But the words are verbatim, the way with his feet he ſhall not go, that is, any beaten way wherein others have gone in their conqueſts, but by a way before unknown, by death deſtroying him that had the power of death, that is, the devil, Heb.2.15. and by ſpirituall arms of miracles and preaching, the Spirit cooperating, ſubduing Kings and Nations, and not with force of arms, *Pſal.*45. it is ſaid, Ride proſperouſly, verſ. 4. not go on thy feet, and Rev.6.2. a white Horſe, and the Word of God upon him goes out to conquer. And becauſe he ſhould thus proceed, it is ſaid, that he ſhould paſſe in peace, that is, in a peaceable and quiet way, not ſtriving by force, but coming with theſe words, Peace be to this City, or peace to this Houſe, he ſhall ſweeten ſouls, and make them ſubject to him every where. They that expound of Abraham, ſay, that when he had done purſuing the Kings, he returned in ſafety with his whole company, not one of them being ſlain or wounded, which was miraculous, he having never been uſed to war before, for which it is ſaid, The way with his feet he hath not gone formerly.

Who hath wrought and done it, calling the generations from the beginning, &c. Verſ.4. that is, firſt making man, then chuſing an Abel, a Sheth, an Enoch, a Noah, Shem, Abraham, &c. generation after generation, untill Chriſt, and after him 1 Apoſtles, 2 Prophets, 3 Paſtors, time after time, thus the Cald. Paraphra. in part, Cald. Paraphra. and more fully Cyril and Procopius; Cyril. and becauſe none can anſwer but God, ſaith Jerom, who moveth the Queſtions, he anſwereth, I the Lord, the firſt and the laſt am he, where as Calvin hath it, Calvin. he doth not ſo much mean in reſpect of his eſſence, as of his being in continuall action, bringing into the world generation after generation, and ordering and diſpoſing of all things. ſee the like *Rev.*1.8.

The Iſlands ſaw and feared. Verſ.5. By the Iſlands and all the ends of the earth, here Jerom Hieronym. underſtands the Gentiles, whom he had called upon, *v.*1. to keep ſilence, ſeeing the miracles done in the name of Jeſus by the Apoſtles, they were ſtricken with fear to ſee ſuch powerful acts, and ſo came and drew near to Chriſt by embracing the faith, after this recounting with indignation, what fools they had been in animating one another in idolatry, as followeth, Chap.6. and 7. Lyra Lyra. according to Euſebius in Chronico, ſaith, Ninus the builder of Nineveh, Idolatry begun, how.

the 7. year of Abraham ſet up an Image of his Father Belus, granting to guilty perſons that fled to it pardon, whereupon they obtaining ſo great a benefit adored it as the Saviour of their lives. After which example other Kings ſet up to their friends departed Images likewiſe, calling them after Belus his name, Belzebub, Belpeor, or Baalim. And of theſe Iſaiah ſpeaks, ſaying, they ſaw and were afraid, drew near, and came to worſhip them, being in time moved with reverence towards them, as thinking them Gods and of great power. Therefore they encouraged one another to the making of theſe Idols, and by ſpeaking of the Smith, the ſmiter with the hammer, and the former, the one working the matter in the fire to a ſtate fit for hammering, the other forming the parts with an hammer, the third joyning them fitly together, three are intimated who were employed in this work.

Calvin.

Calvin, that they ſaw the mighty acts done for Iſrael, Abrahams poſterity, in the judgements upon the Egyptians, and dividing the Red Sea, and the River Jordan, that is, they heard hereof, and therefore were taken with great fear at the approach of the Hebrews to their Land, as Rahab confeſſed. But being in this fear what did they? turn from their idolatry? No, but encouraged one another more in it, they drew near, and came, that is, gathered together, and by their mutuall exhortations to one another, were more hardened to go on in their wicked ſuperſtition, hoping, the more intent they were and conſtant in that, which they counted piety to the gods, the better they ſhould be defended from their enemies. That of Jerom ſeems not ſo probable: for both the words are forced about the ſpeeches mutually had amongſt Idolaters, being expounded as ſpoken after converſion to the faith, and a plain difference is put betwixt theſe here ſpoken of, and Iſrael verſ.9,10,11. Theſe ſaw and feared, they are bidden not to fear, and by them doubtleſſe the ſeed of Abraham by faith is to be underſtood. And how by the Iſlands and the uttermoſt parts of the earth the Cananites ſhould be meant, who dwelt upon the firm Land, and that in the midſt of the earth, I cannot ſee: wherefore I prefer that of Lyra, expounding this as nothing pertaining to that which went before, but an intimation of the beginning of idolatry in all the world, for the reaſon by him rendred, they were moved with reverence towards Idols, out of an opinion growing upon them, as hath been ſaid, that they could do them good, and ſo combined together to ſet them up. Or it may be taken as cohering with the former words thus, I the Lord will ſet up one that is of all power to ſubdue Kings and Kingdoms, that is, the Meſſiah. Therefore though all countreys have been ſo fooliſh as to adore and reverence the work of their own hands, being upon falſe grounds drawn hereunto, yet be not thou (my ſervant Iſrael) ſuch a fool as to fear their fear, but adore and reverence him only, that is to come, and in reſpect of his deity now is, who is able indeed to ſave all them that beleeve in him, and yeeld him due reverence.

Verſ.8. Hieron. But thou Iſrael, my ſervant Jacob, whom I have choſen, the ſeed of Abraham my friend. Iſrael, ſaith Jerom, is two-fold, either according to the fleſh or the ſpirit, but here he ſpeaks to Iſrael according to the ſpirit, whether Jews or Gentiles, that is, ſuch as into beleeving hearts receive the Goſpel, for they are Gods choſen and ſeed of his friend, yea, his friends whom he moſt dearly loveth, Joh. 15 15.

Verſ.9. I have taken thee from the uttermoſt parts of the earth, &c. Here is further confirmed, that by Iſrael beleevers of all countreys and Nations are meant, becauſe they are taken out of all parts of the world to conſtitute one ſervant, one Iſrael or Church.

Verſ.10. Fear not, for I am with thee, &c. I will ſuſtain thee with the right hand of my righteouſneſſe. Here is the end of Gods ſpeaking ſo comfortably to the faithful, abhorring now from Idols, and by teaching Chriſt, beating them down every where, he fore-ſeeing how the world both of unbeleeving Jews and Gentiles would perſecute beleevers, for this confirms them by ſetting his ſingular love before their eyes, and his being with them in all times and ages to the worlds end, as he ſaid *Mat.*28.20. and his ſuſtaining them with his right hand, that is, Mat.10.28.

his moſt powerfull arm, then which what can the greateſt friend in the world ſay more? But it is to be noted, that he ſaith, The right hand of my righteouſnes, as alluding to verſ.2. I have ſtirred up righteouſneſſe out of the Eaſt, and further proving, that the righteouſneſſe there ſpoken of was not Abraham, becauſe by him the faithfull are not ſuſtained in time of trouble, but Chriſt, to whom ſtrength or a right hand to ſuſtain doth well agree.

Verſ.11. They ſhall be made aſhamed and confounded that provoke thee, &c. that is, both Jews and Gentiles, their machinations and conſpiracies to ſtop the courſe of the Goſpel coming to nothing, Pſa.2.

Verſ.14. Fear not worm Jacob, ye dead of Iſrael I will help thee, &c. he cals the faithful thus, becauſe ſo much contemned by the wicked world, as David ſpeaking in the perſon of Chriſt, ſaith, I am a worm and no man, and therefore his body the Church may well be ſo called, and for humility and lowly walking. And dead they are called becauſe in daily danger of death for Chriſts ſake, according to that Rom.8. We are counted daily as ſheep to the ſlaughter.

Verſ.15. I have made thee as a threſhing inſtrument having teeth. What the threſhing inſtrument then was, ſee before Chap. 28. 27. and to this are the Preachers of the Goſpel compared, and ſpirituall powers ſtrong and high, as mountains oppoſing them and ſtopping up their way, to mountains and hils, which ſhall before the word be brought to very duſt, which the winde bloweth away, 2 Cor. 10.4. they are called ſtrong holds. The proud and hard hearts of wicked men may alſo be underſtood, which are broken by the preaching of the Word. Hitherto according to Jerom, Lyra expounds it as ſpoken of the Hebrews in Egypt and brought out by a mighty hand, as if he had ſaid, Ye are not Pharaohs ſervants but mine, therefore fear him not, and the right hand of his juſt one ſets forth Moſes who brought them out of Egypt. And by their enemies fighting againſt them who were confounded, whom they ſhould ſeek and not finde, are meant the Egyptians drowned in the red ſea. By the worm and dead of Iſrael, they are meant, who were but as dead men whileſt they were under Pharaohs tyranny, who killed their male children ſo ſoon as they were born. By their being as a threſhing inſtrument tearing the mountains in peeces, is meant, their deſtroying of the Cananitiſh Kings and their people. And he proceeds ver. 16. The poor and needy ſought water, &c. that is, in the wilderneſſe, when the Lord ſoon made waters to flow abundantly out of an hard rock. Verſ. 19. I will plant in the wilderneſſe the Cedar, &c. that is, I will give variety of graces to my people, and the thorn which was firſt ſent as a curſe for Adams ſinne, but now is a glory to the beleeving Gentiles, their Preachers being hereby ſet forth, who feel not gently, but prick their hearts, as Act.2. Then he goes on, Verſ. 22. Let them ſhew us what ſhall happen, &c. which they cannot any more at Chriſts coming do, for all Oracles then ceaſed and were mute. But this and that *verſ.*19. is Gloſ.Ordin. Lyra by the Cedar and other Trees underſtands the comfort of the ſhadow by the cloud in the wilderneſſe, and his provoking of Idols to foretell what ſhall come to the Idols of Babylon, which being afterwards to be deſtroied by the Medes and Perſians, they could foretell them nothing of it: applying therefore *Verſ.*25. I have called one out of the North, to Cyrus, and from the riſing of the Sun, to the Medes. Sasbout follows Jerom, and ſaith, that the ſix Chapters following, do all further ſet forth Evangelicall comforts by Chriſt to poor ſinners of any countrey or Nation, that by faith and repentance turn to him. Likewiſe Auguſtine lib.de Vnitate Eccleſiæ, c.7,8. *Cyril, Theodoret, Euſebius, Papa, Epiſt.*1. decret. But Junius follows Lyra concerning Egypt. Calvin, Muſculus, and others underſtanding the Jews according to the fleſh, coming of Abraham, ſay, that the Lord having hitherto inveighed againſt the idolatrous Gentiles, here ſpeaks to the Jews, as out of his ſingular grace ſeparated from them to be his peculiar people, and therefore bound more then they to ſerve, not Idols, but the true God, ſeeking to move them hereunto by many expreſſions of his great love towards them. And he ſaith, that he brought them out of the ends of the earth, either reſpecting their Father Abraham, in whoſe

Lyra.

Qui non palpant ſed pungunt corda.

Sasbout.
Auguſt.
Cyril.
Theod.
Calvin.
Muſculus.

loins they were, brought from afar to Canaan, even from Ur of the Caldees, or himſelf that brought them, who ruleth over all the ends of the earth; but their bringing out of Egypt cannot be hereby meant, ſo Calvin, neither indeed can his Expoſition ſtand, referring this bringing from the ends of the earth to one Abraham, for though he came from one end, yet he came not from the other alſo, and therefore if it had been meant of him, the plurall number [ends] ſhould not have been uſed, but the ſingular, and to put it out of doubt that he means not him, he ſaith expreſly, the ſeed of Abraham was brought from the ends of the earth. And for the other way of expounding, that agrees worſe, becauſe the ends of the earth are plainly applied to them that were brought, and not to him that brought them. But to the faithfull who are Abrahams true ſeed, all things do very well agree, and therefore we ſhould do ill forſaking that of Jerom and other Ancients, to prefer another new Expoſition, although it ſeems plauſible enough, but only in reſpect of the place from whence gathered, of which I have ſpoken enough already, whereunto may be added, that from Verſ. 10. &c. he ſpeaks in the future tenſe, as of a thing not paſt, as was Abrahams bringing out of Ur, and the Hebrews out of Egypt, but afterwards to be done. Wherefore I reſt in the Expoſition upon theſe words firſt made.

Verſ.17. Hieronym. When the poor and needy ſeek water and there is none, &c. *Verſ.*18. I will open rivers in high places and fountains, &c. That is, the Gentiles, like unto people in a dry wilderneſſe, ſhall ſeek comfort by Philoſophers and Wizards, but in vain: for what true comfort can there be in ſuperſtition? Idols and their Prieſts can afford none, but all muſt be, notwithſtanding theſe, as men whoſe tongues cleave to the roof of their mouth through thirſt. Then the Lord will abundantly ſupply them with water, yea, rivers of living water, as *Joh.*4.10. Chap. 7.37. by giving them the holy Ghoſt to their exceeding great and everlaſting comfort, as is *Ioh.*7. further expreſſed, and was fullfilled Act. 2. Chap. 8.10.19. when ordinarily upon the laying on of the hands of the Apoſtles, the Spirit was given, and ſometime in praying, ſometime in baptizing, and ſometime preaching, great refreſhing and joy thus coming to weary ſouls.

Verſ. 19. I will plant in the wilderneſſe the Cedar, and Shittah Tree, the Myrtle, and Oyl tree, &c. Hereby variety of graces being meant, which ſhould be conferred upon the faithfull, being before as a barren and dry wilderneſſe, wherein no Trees grew, but now being well watered fit for planting trees of all ſorts. The Cedar, Cypres, and Myrtle Trees are well known to be of a ſweet ſmelling ſavour: touching the Shittah, Theodotion renders it a thorn, and it is like a white thorn, but ſingular for durability, without corruption, lenity, ſtrength, and ſhining, wherein it exceeds all other, and therefore was uſed about the Ark, and the Elm and Poplar are good to joyn Vines together to them, as it were in marriage, and are fit for works to be made upon them. Laſtly, The Oyl-Tree affords light, and is the Embleme of peace. And it is promiſed that all theſe ſhall grow here, to ſhew, that no good grace ſhall be wanting in the Church of God, but it ſhall be as a muſicall inſtrument, not wanting one ſtring to make ſweet melody in his ears. Hitherto Ierom and the Prophet ſaith, rivers in high places, becauſe this is contrary to the courſe of nature, but ſpoken of alſo before, Cha. 30.25. For it ſhall be as miraculous a thing for the Gentiles who were void of all drops of grace to abound herewith, as they did ſince their receiving of the Goſpel, as for rivers to flow upon the tops of mountains. And I doubt not, but the Prophet in all this Prophecy from *ver.*8. alludeth to things miraculouſly done of old for Gods people, the ſeed of Abraham according to the fleſh, and ſo good uſe may be made of Lyra his Expoſition before-going, for the applying of all things here to thoſe Hiſtories. But not to reſt therein, as the full meaning of the Prophet, for this were to wrong the Prophecy, ſith thoſe temporall and worldly bleſſings ſerved to ſet forth the ſpirituall in Chriſt Jeſus; Then he called the Jews out of Egypt by miracle, now the Gentiles out of all parts to the faith, whereby they might be ſaved, being before in continual danger ger of death by the bondage, wherein they were held by the devil. Then their enemies the Egyptians, that came to fight againſt them were drowned in the Red Sea, and they ſaw them no more. Now the Jews that perſecuted the Chriſtian Religion were deſtroied together with their City, and the Gentiles perſecutors were likewiſe drowned by the breaking of a Bridge, together with Licinius their Emperour, being forced by Conſtantine to flee, after a cruel battel fought betwixt them. Then they had no more ſtrength then a worm, neither were they better accounted of, yea, they were as dead men, when Pharaoh with all his hoſt in ſo great fury purſued them. Now the Chriſtians life was but as a death all the three hundred years of perſecution, but then their enemies were torn as it were to duſt, there being not many left after Conſtantines peaceable enjoying of the impeiall Diadem. Then they being in diſtreſſe for want of water, were miraculouſly ſupplied out of the rock, now the ſeed of Abraham amongſt both Jews and Gentiles, wanting ſpirituall water of true doctrine, whereby they might be comforted and live, (becauſe the Phariſees amongſt the Jews troubled the fountain with mens traditions, and the Philoſophers amongſt the Gentiles with naturall reaſons) were refreſhed by Chriſt and his Spirit, as by Rivers of water in dry places, when the myſteries of the Kingdom of Heaven were opened to them, and the Spirit of comfort beſtowed upon them. Then alſo they had ſhade in the wilderneſſe by the cloud, that went before them day after day: now by Trees of all ſorts of the beſt, made to grow in great abundance, where it could not have been expected, viz. graces of the ſpirit in the hearts of beleeving Gentiles, who were before barren and bare nothing that was good. And here is 1. the Cedar ſetting forth the grace of ſolidity, keeping from corruption by worldly things. 2. The Thorn or Shittah Tree ſetting forth pricking in the heart for ſin. 3. The Myrtle ſetting forth compaſſion to the tempering of their pain, who are in tribulation. 4. The Olive-Tree, Mercy and Charity. 5. The Fir-Tree growing up on high, Heavenly-mindedneſſe. 6. The Elm, which ſuſtaineth the Vine, the ſupport of Gods Miniſters by ſecular men miniſtring of their goods unto them. 7. The Box, which is alwaies green, the Faith in young ones not able yet in works to ſhew it ſelf, yet keeping green by holding what they have received from their faithfull parents: thus Gregory. Luther putting all theſe Trees together, ſaith, they are almoſt all barren, but good for ſhade, and therefore ſerve to ſet forth peace and comfort to the ſoul after temptation. Calvin applies it to the Jews return out of Babylon to their own Land, to which end they muſt go through a vaſt barren wilderneſſe in the heat of the Sun, but by this enumeration of Trees that ſhould grow there, to be a ſhadow unto them, he means whatſoever comfort ſhould be neceſſary for them upon the way. But chiefly the ſpirituall comforts by Chriſt, which ſhould abound to miſerable men when the converſion of the whole world ſhould be to Chriſt. And this laſt, and applying theſe trees to divers graces, wherein Gregory is moſt punctuall, is beſt.

Ne ſaltem una corda cytharæ Domini, & aliqua virtus gratiarum Eccleſiæ deeſſe videatur. Item de prædictis arboribus dicit, quarum ſublimitatem & verticem ad cæleſtia feſtinantem illuminaret lignum olivæ, quod nutrimentum lucis eſt & laborantium requies.

Greg. Moral. 20. in Evang.

Luther.

Calvin.

Verſ.20. That they may ſee and know, and conſider together, &c. That is, I have ſpoken and will do all things that have been ſaid before, and hereby all men ſhall know how great and mighty a God I am. But how impotent Idols and gods of the Heathen are, it ſhall now alſo appear to all that will underſtand, becauſe they have power to do nothing, neither do they know any thing that is to come, Verſ. 21, 22, 23. yea, he challengeth them to tell things paſt, viz. touching Chriſt and his power, ſo Jerom, who will have this to be ſaid to thoſe of the Gentiles, that when others embraced the Goſpel, refuſed it, What cauſe or reaſon can ye yeeld? yea, I challenge you Idols. If ye be Gods, ſhew it by ſpeaking of things paſt or to come, for when Chriſt was born all Oracles grew ſpeechleſſe, both that at Delphos, Delos, Loxe, and Clari. If it be objected, they have foretold many things in times paſt. Sol. If any thing true, ſomething falſe withall, as in that to Pyrrhus,

Verſ. 21, 22.

Hieronymi.

Aio te Æacida Romanos vincere poſſe. Et Crœſi, Crœſus perdet Halin tranſgreſſus maxima regna.

Ob. But the devil can do evil. Sol. He cannot without Gods permiſſion, as we may ſee in Job and the Gadarens ſwine. Or it may be ſaid, that the dead and ſenſeleſſe images of mens bodies, ſuch as the Heathen Gods were, can do nothing, for they have eyes and ſee not, &c. with Jerom all Expoſitors here agree, Origen. only about telling things paſt. Origen ſaith, he meaneth, Tell what God did Cyril. from eternity before, the worlds creation, Cyril and Theodoret, Tell what hath Theod. been done touching your ſelves, when and by whom ye were made, ſome Tell yee Images, any thing paſt or to come, for they can ſay nothing, having mouths Calvin. but ſpeak not. Calvin, tell, that is, Tell things paſt before they come, for ye never yet could do it. Let the Reader follow which of theſe waies he pleaſeth, that of Origen ſeemeth beſt to me, or if not devils but Images be meant, that which aſſigns this for the cauſe, they are dumb, and ſo can tell nothing.

Verſ. 25. I have ſtirred up from the North, and he ſhall come from the riſing of the Sun. He Hieronym. proceeds here to ſpeak to the Gentiles under the time of the Goſpel, that would not beleeve when others did, but ſerved dumb idols ſtill, meaning by him whom he raiſed out of the North, ſome Northern Nation, by whom God would judge them, and they ſhould ſuffer great miſeries, that ſo they might turn to him that came out of the Eaſt, that is, the Sun of Righteouſneſſe, Chriſt Jeſus, elſewhere called oriens. He ſhall tread Princes as clay, no power ſhall be ſo great but he will tread them under his feet, as the potter clay, making of ſome veſſels to honour, ſome to diſhonour, and this he ſaith after his challenge made to Idols, who can tell nothing, that contrariwiſe it appearing that he knew and could do all, even ſuch great things, all men might be drawn to ſerve and worſhip him alone. And he ſpeaks of it as already done for the certainty, as is common Lyra. amongſt the Prophets; thus Jerom. But Lyra will have by him out of the North and Eaſt Cyrus meant, who together with Darius ſhould deſtroy the Babyloniſh Monarchy: becauſe the Perſians were Eaſtward, and the Medes Northward, and Cyrus is ſaid to call Gods Name, becauſe he in his Proclamation made for the Jews return, acknowledgeth, that God had given him all Countreys and Nations, and he is ſaid to tread upon Princes as clay, becauſe he ſubdued all the babyloniſh Princes, and diſpoſed of them at his pleaſure, as the Calvin. Potter of his clay: Calvin, by him out of the North, underſtands the King of Babylon, who ſhould deſtroy Ieruſalem, and carry the Jews away captive, and Cyrus by him out of the Eaſt, ſo that two things are here propheſied of, which none could now imagine ſhould come to paſſe, but by Gods revealing them. For the Jews were now in amity with the King of Babylon, and there was no Junius. ſuch Eaſtern Potentate till long after. Junius ſaith, that Chriſts Church is meant, which under the Goſpel ſhould be raiſed from all parts of the world, North and South, Eaſt and Weſt, two being named, and their contraries left to be underſtood, which ſhould joyn together to deſtroy the kingdom of darkneſſe. Corn. a Lapide cites Zanchy and Ferrerius, expounding this of Abraham, and approves it moſt, as if it were a repetition of that verſ. 2. but paſſing this over as moſt improbable, becauſe there the Eaſt only is named; here North and Eaſt, and it is ſpoken in the future tenſe, as of a thing to come, I approve above all other Expoſitions that of Calvin, that two men are here meant, the words being as if he had ſaid, I will raiſe one out of the North, and another ſhall come from the riſing of the Sun, and each one of them ſhall ſubdue Princes, and do with them as he pleaſeth, even as a Potter with his clay, and ſhall call on my Name: for ſo did Cyrus, when he took order to build Gods houſe at Jeruſalem for prayer, and Nebuchadnezzar after that he had been driven from amongſt men ſeven years, knew, as it is ſaid, that the God of heaven ruleth, and therefore it is to be preſumed, that thenceforth he called upon him, and before neither of them could any King or Potentate ſtand, but were ſubjected by either in his time, and by the North the judgement coming upon the Jews from Caldea, is commonly ſet forth by the Prophets. At for Ieroms applying it to Chriſt, I think it may well be taken in as the allegoricall ſenſe, for of him it is Pſal. 2. ſaid, thou ſhalt break them in pieces as a potters veſſell, and he called men to him in Gods Name, as being ſent of him. But Iunius his Expoſition ſaith more then the text gives warrant for; wherein, if Weſt and South had been meant alſo, they might as eaſily have been expreſſed; and if a multitude had been meant, the word [ſhall come] ſhould not have gone in the ſingular, but plural number. Laſtly, For Lyra's, it is not ſo full as that which I follow; and it is more for the glory of Gods preſcience and power, to expound it of two diſtinct things by ſo long an interval of time disjoyned, then two conjoyned at one time, eſpecially the ſcope of the place being by fore-knowing and power to do, to prove God the only true God, and Idols vain things; and becauſe pretended to be gods, when they are but ſtocks and ſtones, abominations. And that this is the ſcope is further manifeſt by v.26. Who hath declared from the beginning, &c. that we may ſay He is righteous, &c. Verſ.26. This is God alone ſpeaking by his Prophets, as ſhall appear when theſe predictions are fulfilled, and ſo he ſhall be juſtified to be the only true God, but others not, who can foreſhew nothing.

Verſ. 27. The firſt ſhall ſay to Zion, Behold, behold them, &c. Sept. The beginning I will give to Zion, and will comfort Jeruſalem in the way. Calvin, more according to the Hebrew, Firſt Zion behold, behold they themſelves and I will give a joyfull meſſage to Jeruſalem. That is, Do thou Zion firſt behold and conſider theſe things to be confirmed that thy God is the only true God, and then let Heathens themſelves behold, that comparing Gods power, with their Idols impotencie they may be aſhamed of theſe vanities. And for Jeruſalem, that is, my Church, conſiſting of both beleeving, I will give my Goſpel, of which they ſhall all have joy.

Verſ.28. For I beheld, and there was no man, &c. That is, amongſt Idolatrous prophets, that could foretell any thing, ſo that it is folly and madneſs not to give them over as vanity, v.29.

CHAP. XLII.

Verſ.1. Behold my ſervant, I will reſt upon him, &c. The Sept. Jacob, my ſervant, Iſrael, my choſen. But Hebr. there is neither Jacob nor Iſrael; and Matth. 12.18. it is applied to Jeſus: And the Cald. Paraphraſt. hath it, My ſervant Meſſiah. The Hebrews expound it alſo of Cyrus, but abſurdly; for to Jeſus it excellently agreeth, and to none elſe. Hieron. He, ſaith Ierom, hath this title, My ſervant, becauſe he humbled himſelf, and came in the form of a ſervant, Phil.2. And upon him was the Spirit ſent down in the likeneſs of a Dove, *Matth.*3. and a voice came from heaven, ſaying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed. He ſhall not cry, nor lift up his voice, becauſe he ſhall be meek and gentle. He ſhall make judgement to go out to the Gentiles, and yet his voice ſhall not be heard abroad; that is, He ſhall contain himſelf within the limits of Iudea, preaching, whilſt he lived upon earth, to the loſt ſheep of the houſe of Iſrael only, but after ſending his Diſciples out to teach all Nations, who knew nothing before of things pertaining to ſalvation. The bruiſed reed he ſhall not break, for he ſhall be placable to all, forgiving their ſins; and the ſmoaking flax he ſhall not quench; that is, they that were near quenching out for their ſins, ſhall by him be ſaved, and their dark blackneſs ſhall be turned into light. He ſhall bring forth judgement in truth. Not reſpecting the perſons of any, but boldly inveighing againſt the hypocriſie of the Scribes and Phariſees. He ſhall not be of a ſad or troubled countenance till he ſets judgement upon earth, the Iſlands ſhall expect his Law. That is, by his terrible look, making any afraid to come unto him, till the laſt day, when he will execute judgement upon all the world: And by the Iſlands expecting his Law, he means the Nations imbracing his faith, who were by Perſecution beaten upon, as Iſlands by the waves of the ſea; and his Law expected by them, is that Law of which Ieremy ſaith, I will make with them a new Covenant, that is, of grace and free pardon of ſin. Thus Ierom; Lyra. from whom Lyra little differing, ſaith, By his not crying, is meant, with the voice of contention, not of preaching or praying, for ſo he cried, *Ioh.*7. and upon the Croſs he cried out, Eli, Eli,&c. The bruiſed reed he ſhall not break. That is, the Gentiles void of true grace, and ſhaken with divers errours, as with windes, he ſhall be ſo far from breaking, that he will confirm them to ſtand unmovably in the truth. The ſmoaking flax ſets forth the Jews weak as flax againſt the Romans; the fire kindled by the Romans amongſt them, he will not quench any more, till all their edifices be conſumed: And by Iſlands, he ſaith, Sicily, Brittaine, and other Iſlands imbracing the Chriſtian faith are meant; and his judgement bringing forth in truth, of his difference putting betwixt ſome, imparting his grace unto them and letting others go. He ſhall not be of a ſad countenance. That is, not underſtanding it of a natural paſſion, ariſing out of the ſenſe of ſorrow, for ſo he ſaid, My ſoul is heavy to the death; but of heavineſs darkening the underſtanding: Wherefore Hebr. it is, He ſhall not be darkened. Calvin, Muſculus and Iunius apply this alſo to Chriſts meekneſs of ſpirit, in dealing with broken-hearted ſinners, He will not by a loud and terrible voice affright them, as is the manner of cholerick Judges; no man abroad ſhall ever hear of paſſionate ſpeeches coming from him, for he will cheriſh and comfort the bruiſed in minde for their ſins, and not break their hearts by deſpair; and as a man deals with a light, the week whereof is linen, of linum, if it ſmoaks and burns not clearly, he puts it not out, but uſeth means to clear it up; ſo he will give to ſuch as are clouded with diſcomforts for their ſins, a clear ſight of his grace. He ſhall bring forth judgement according to truth. That is, againſt hypocrites, ſuch as the Scribes and Phariſees, he ſhall not ſpare to inveigh, being nothing milde towards them. He ſhall not fail nor be broken, untill, &c. The ſame word כהה is here uſed, that *v.*3. being there rendred ſmoaking, and it ſignifieth to darken: The meaning is, although he ſhall be ſo milde to the bruiſed and darkened through diſcomfort of ſpirit, yet this ſhall not be in him out of puſillanimity, for his courage for the light of truth ſhall not be broken, by ſuffering any thing at the hands of wicked men that hate him; neither ſhall his light ſhine more dimly, but continually in the like brightneſs, Till he ſettle judgement upon earth, that is, by his Apoſtles and other Miniſters, ſpreading the light of truth all over the world to continue, none being ever able to extinguiſh it. And the Iſlands ſhall expect his Law. That is, the moſt remote people of the world ſhall be converted to his faith. And this ſeems to be the very meaning here; yet for ſo much as *Matth.*12.18. applies it after contumelious ſpeeches uſed againſt Chriſt by the Phariſees, whoſe ſick ſeeking to him he ſtill went on to heal, but injoined them ſilence, It is not amiſs applied, as I have there ſhewed, to the wicked Jews, who were weak as a bruiſed reed to withſtand Chriſts power, and were but like the week of a candle made of linen cloth, being almoſt out and ſmoaking, yet ſuch was his mildneſs, that he did neither break nor extinguiſh them by his immediate judgments, but was patient towards them, and would have nothing reported that he did, to inrage them more to the increaſe of their ſins, till that they being full they ſuffered by the Romans, for then judgement was brought in righteouſneſs. So alſo *Gregor.Moral.*33.*c.*3. The ſhaken reed was the Kingly ſtock, which failed when Herod was made King: The flax ſmoaking, was the Prieſthood, ſet forth thus for the linen worn by Prieſts, and becauſe they had loſt then the heat of a true faith, they were not burning any longer, but ſmoaking; that Chriſt brake not, this he quenched not, becauſe he ſmote neither of them with the power of his judgement, but tollerated both, by the longanimity of his patience. Baſil by the bruiſed reed underſtands him that doth good, but not with that ſincerity which is required: By the ſmoaking flax, him that doth no duties with that ardency of zeal; the one is not to be rejected, but better taught; the other to be quickened by putting him in minde of Gods judgements againſt the lukewarm, and his promiſes to the zealous. And if he be the Lords delight that is milde towards weak Chriſtians or malicious enemies, helping the infirmities of the one, and having patience towards the other, Then it is a grace that we ſhould

Calvin.
Muſcul.
Junius.

Flax in Latinis linum, of which linen is made, and of this by ſome is the week of a candle made, and accordingly is a candle almoſt ready to go out called here, ſmoking flax, by a Synecdoche of the part for the whole.

Gregor.

Neutrum judicii poteſtate perculit, ſed utrũq; cum patientiæ longanimitate tolleravit.

Baſil. *Reg. brevior.reſp.*291.

Note.

ſhould endeavour after. Iuſtinian of this ſaith, Nihil tam peculiare eſt imperiali majeſtati, quem clementia, per quam Deus imitatur. Alex. Severus, when it was objected, that by his mildeneſs he had made his power weaker and more contemptible, anſwered, But more ſecure and longer laſting. M. Antoninus to his wife, willing him for his better ſecurity to cut off the complices of Avid. Caſſius, that had been a Traitor to him, anſwered, I will ſpare his wife and children, for nothing commends an Emperour ſo much as clemency; This made Cæſar a god; This conſecrated Auguſtus, and this adorned thy father: Be then ſecure, the gods will defend me, my clemency is cordial to the gods.

Juſtin. in Cod.

Verſ.5. Thus ſaith the Lord that created the heavens, &c.

Verſ.6. I the Lord have called thee in righteouſneſſe, &c. Having propheſied of Chriſt that was to come, by whom all the faithfull from one end of the earth to the other ſhould be ſaved; he now brings in the Lord ſpeaking to him, firſt ſetting him forth by his Almighty power, in oppoſition to heathen gods (that the great and miraculous work that he was about to do in bringing ſuch a man into the world, might be the rather credited,) Then the ſpeech concerning him, I the Lord have called thee in righteouſneſſe, &c. Ierom, becauſe *v.*1. begins with Ecce, behold my ſervant, but it is not ſaid who ſpake theſe words; here it is ſhewed to be the Lord, who ſpake ſo to Chriſt. I have called thee; that is, to declare me to the world, to be God both of Jews and Gentiles, who are yet ignorant of me. And will hold thy hand: That is, Working wonders by thee and with thee; according to that, My Father hitherto worketh and I work. I have given thee for a Covenant of the people: That is, in performing my Covenant or Promiſe that thou ſhouldſt come, made long ago. To open the eyes of the blinde: That is, both corporal and ſpiritual, which had before no ſight of God or of his truth. And to bring the bound out of priſon, for ſins are as bands. My glory I will not give to another: He ſaith not, I will give it to none, but, not to another; So cauteloully ſpoken, that it is to be admired. For it is not meant that he would not give it to his Son, for he glorified him with the ſame, Ioh. 12. but not to another God, as is in the words following expreſſed. Lyra, I will give thee for a Covenant: That is, by ſuffering death, and the bound in priſon he expounds of the fathers of old held in Limbo from the ſight of God, who is light. Calvin alſo and others generally underſtand it of Chriſt, whom he is ſaid to have called in righteouſneſs, meaning juſtly, and therefore he ſhould be eſtabliſhed for ever, and for this cauſe he ſaith he held him by his hand. Touching the blinde whoſe eies he opens, all conſent with Ierom, and for the bound in priſon, they are the ſame ſpiritually blinde, and bound and held by Satan as in a priſon, till converted. For Lyra his Limbus, it muſt firſt by ſome plainer place be proved before we receive it; ſee chap. 61.1. where the ſame is again propheſied, and applied to Chriſt, Luk. 4. ſo that they who expound in of Cyrus are far wide.

Hieron.

Lyra.

Calvin.

Verſ.9. Behold the former things are come to paſſe, and I declare new. Theſe words are uſed to perſwade men to beleeve Prophecies of things to come by their experience of things before ſpoken of from time to time by the Lord, falling out accordingly. To Abraham he foretold the multiplication of his poſterity, their ſervitude, and deliverance, and poſſeſſing the land of Canaan. To Moſes the judgements to come upon Egypt, the diſmiſs of the Hebrews from thence, and when they had ſinned by murmuring, their periſhing and long ſtay in the wilderneſs. To Ioſhuah, that none ſhould be able to ſtand againſt him all his daies, and that he ſhould conquer the Land and divide it, &c. all which was fulfilled. Now nothing having failed hitherto, great reaſon there is to beleeve the new Prophecies coming from the ſame God, before mentioned of the Babyloniſh Captivity, Babylons deſtruction, and their deliverance, and of Chriſt Jeſus. And that there ſhould be for him ſuch rejoycing and ſinging, as followeth, Verſ.10, 11, 12. *Verſ.*10. Sing to the Lord a new ſong, ye that deſcend to ſea, &c. After mercy promiſed, as is uſual in other places, ſo here the Prophet ſheweth what praiſe and glory God ſhould have in all parts of the world for ſending his Chriſt; of the like ſee before, *chap.*26. and 30,29. and hereby was intimated, that his Goſpel ſhould be preached in all Lands, as was propheſied, *Pſal.*19. and it is applied *Rom.*10.18. wherefore all the earth is mentioned and the ſea and Iſlands, the wilderneſs, Cities and Villages of Kedar, that is, Arabians dwelling in tents, and thoſe in rocks and mountains.

Verſ.13. The Lord ſhall go forth as a giant,&c. This is ſpoken, becauſe when the faithfull conſider their many and potent enemies, they might fear that the promiſed joyfull time of their deliverance ſhould never come. To ſupport them then againſt this fear, cauſing great ſorrow in ſtead of joy, he declares the irreſiſtible power of God by a Giant, known amongſt men to be ſo mighty, that none can ſtand againſt him. And he ſaith, he ſhall ſtirre up zeal, to ſhew his wrath againſt his enemies, which ſeems to be nothing, whilſt they are in proſperity or aſleep, but when he executeth his judgements upon them, then he ſtirs it up to their coſt.

Verſ.14. I will cry as a woman in travel. This may ſeem not ſo well to agree to the Lord of all power, when he cries out, and comes upon his enemies with force that cannot be reſiſted, as *v.*13. But he puts the perſon of ſuch a woman upon him, to ſhew how dear and near his people were to him, even as the childe to the mother in travel with it, who makes but little noiſe for a time, but keeps within the compaſſe of ſoft and low groaning, but her pangs becoming more extream, ſhe can hold no longer from crying out aloud. In like manner the Lord would hereby ſhew, that he was pained extreamly, as it were, and longed to be delivered by bringing his people out of the danger of their enemies, by deſtroying them. Wherefore it is to be taken only as an expreſſion of his affection, not of his weakneſs, as in ſuch a woman, to work for their deliverance, though he had hitherto only ſilently groaned a little, as it were, through compaſſion towards them, and done nothing for their deliverance, yet now the time of their deliverance ſhould come, and an end be put to his pain for their miſeries, as of a woman in travel, when ſhe crieth out loudeſt. Note. A notable place of comfort for all the faithfull in their miſeries, God is pained, as it were, with them, and therefore will not certainly ſuffer the wicked alwaies to oppreſs them, but longs for their deliverance, and it ſhall not be long delaid.

Verſ.15. I will bring mountains and hils into a deſert,&c. That is, By the fierceneſs of mine anger burning them up that be mine enemies, although like mighty mountains; and drying them, although as rivers, and then they ſhall become as Iſlands, firm earth, where water before abounded.

Verſ.16. Calvin. And I will leade the blinde by the way which they knew not,&c. That is, ſaith Calvin, ſuch as could ſee no way of eſcaping out of dangers, to them will I lay open a way; which ſhould ſupport us againſt deſpair, when our caſe ſeems at any time to be moſt deſperate, and we can ſee no more how we ſhould come out then a blinde man the way that he ſhould go. Hieronym. Jerom expounds the blinde of the ſame, which were ſpoken of *v.*7. and the way, of Chriſt, who is the way, the truth and the life; and then the eies of the blinde are opened, when Chriſt is ſeen prefigured in the Law, in regard of the ſeeing of whom therein, they were as blinde men, which was foreſhewed in the vale put upon Moſes his face, according to 2 *Cor.*3. And this I imbrace, but reject not the other, becauſe it may well be deduced from hence, if in regard of the way to eſcape death eternal, God opens the eies of his, that they may ſee it when they were blinde of themſelves and knew it not, he will alſo ſhew them a way in his good time to come out of all other dangers, who depend upon him, and wait for his direction, truſting nothing to their own wits.

Verſ.17. Hieronym. They ſhall be turned backward, and be counfounded, who truſt in graven Images,&c. This is otherwiſe and not according to the plain meaning of Iſaiah, rendred by Jerom, They are turned backward, and they ſhall be confounded that truſt in graven Images. As if the meaning were, that the Lord ſaid that he would do to the Jews as he ſpake before, but they through unbelief turned from him, thus making themſelves uncapable of this great good. For to them doing ſo and truſting to Idols, he threatneth confuſion: Or having ſhewed their obſtinacy at the firſt, he brings them in as crying out upon ſuch as truſt in Images after this, intimating hereby their future converſion. But the meaning is, As the faithfull formerly blinde ſhould be ſo graciouſly dealt withall, as hath been ſaid; ſo contrariwiſe perſiſters in idolatry ſtill ſhall be made to fall backward to deſtruction, and confounded for ever.

Verſ.18, 19. Hear (O ye deaf) and yee blinde, look.

Who is blinde, but my ſervant? &c. Having propheſied of the opening of the eies of the blinde by Chriſt, in the former part of the Chapter, now he comes to ſpeak to the Jews, who ſhould be blinde and not able to ſee Jeſus to be the Chriſt, when the Gentiles ſhould ſee; for who is his ſervant but Iſrael? and who his Meſſengers, but the Learned amongſt them? and of the cloſing of their eies he ſpake before, *chap.29.9,*10. and of their blindneſs Chriſt ſpeaks, Joh.9. Ierom renders the laſt clauſe, Who is deaf, but he to whom I ſent my meſſengers? but it is plainly Hebr. as the meſſengers I have ſent. The wicked Prieſts being hereby meant, as Muſculus noteth, Whoſe lips ſhould preſerve knowledge, and who is called the meſſenger of the Lord, Mal.2.7. Calvin ſaith, that all men are here taxed as blinde, *v.*28 but ſpecially the Jews and Prieſts amongſt them, for whom it was the greateſt ſhame, becauſe they had all means of knowledge: Yet he ſaith, that ſome expound theſe words, as if they were the words of the wicked retorting upon the Prophet that which he had ſaid to them, Hear (ye deaf, and ye blinde) ſee: As if they had ſaid, Who is ſo blinde as thy ſelf? but he rejects it, as it is well worthy, if we conſider the words following, *v.*24. and in the very 20th verſe, Seeing, but not obſerving, hearing, that he may not hear, as was before threatned to Iſrael, Iſa.6.9. Verſ.20.

Muſcul.
Calvin.

Verſ.21. The Lord willing for his righteouſneſſe, &c. That is, He is willing to have it otherwiſe with his people, whom he hath peculiarly choſen, viz. that they ſhould ſee and imbrace the things pertaining to their peace, that no evil imputation might be laid upon him, when it ſhall fall out ill unto them, as if he were not juſt to perform to them his promiſes, when they ſhould ſuffer ſuch grievous things at the hands of their enemies. That he might magnifie his Law. By drawing mens hearts unto it through benefits conferred upon them, to whom it was committed, whereby it might be gathered that all others, who ſhould live under it and keep it, ſhould alſo be happy. This was truly Gods good will unto them, but they through their own default were deſtroyed, inſnared, &c. This is by Ierom applied to the deſtruction of the Jews by the Romans after their blindneſs and malice ſhewed againſt Chriſt; for then their deſtruction was the moſt grievous by farre, and they were impriſoned and captived, as is here further expreſſed, yea although hidden in the holes of the rocks, they were drawn from thence, and ſpoiled, and made ſlaves of, thirty being ſold for one piece of ſilver. But Calvin expounds it of their deſtruction by the Babylonians, againſt which maketh that it is after the coming of Chriſt propheſied of, and therefore it cannot be ſo underſtood. Moreover, *verſ.*23. he foretelleth, that when this deſtruction of them ſhould be made, they ſhould not know or attain to the ſight of the cauſe, or for what ſin eſpecially they were brought to ſuch miſery, as *verſ.*24. But when they ſuffered by the Babyloniſh Captivity, they ſoon came to a ſight of their ſins, eſpecially their idolatries; only ſince their crucifying of Chriſt in this moſt long ſpace of time they are not come to the perceivance of this to be the cauſe, but only that they have committed a greater ſin then ever before, which hath cauſed the Lord to leave them longer then ever before without any glimpſe of his favour.

Verſ.22.

Verſ.23.

CHAP. XLIII.

Verſ.1. ANd now thus ſaith the Lord, thy maker (O Jacob) and thy former (O Iſrael) Fear not. This Jerom denieth to be ſpoken of the whole Nation of the

Hieron.

Jews, as if their converſion to come were reſpected, at the ſecond coming of the Meſſiah, becauſe they are *Chap.*42. ſpoken of as a people ſpoiled and deſtroyed, and even then without hearts to conſider the cauſe. Wherefore to expound theſe words as ſpoken to the ſame, is altogether diſcrepant. But if we diſtinguiſh Iſrael into two, according to the fleſh and according to the ſpirit, they agree very well to the laſt, that is, the Apoſtles and other Preachers of the Goſpel ſent out by Chriſt at the firſt amongſt the Jews, and thoſe that were of that Nation converted to the faith by them, of whom it is ſaid, *Act.*21. That there were many thouſands that believed, or any afterwards converted, or that ſhall be converted to the worlds end. Theſe he bids not to fear water or fire, intimating great and hot perſecutions, that ſhould be raiſed againſt them. But the Hebrews by four things here named, water, floods, fire, and flame, underſtand the Aſſyrians, Babylonians, Macedonians and Romans, Lyra. from all which Iſrael ſhall be preſerved. Lyra underſtands the faithfull of the Gentiles, who upon their believing become Gods people, and are ſtiled accordingly Jacob and Iſrael, as is more plainly ſhewed *Ch.*44.5. And therefore he ſaith, Whom I have created and formed, by the ſpirit working in the preaching of the Apoſtles to form the new man in them, which is in righteouſneſſe and holineſſe. For going thorow water and fire without hurt, hereby is meant, that they ſhould ſuffer perſecutions of divers ſorts, yet the Church ſhould again come out of them, and not periſh hereby, but rather flouriſh more, as it did indeed, when Sanguis Martyrum was ſemen Eccleſiæ, according to the old Calvin. Proverb. Calvin applieth it particularly to the faithfull amongſt the Jews, who, he ſaith, are comforted againſt the deſtruction before threatned. I ſubſcribe to Lyra, becauſe theſe Prophecies begun *Chap.*42. are plainly of the times of the Goſpel, wherein Iſrael properly ſo called, or Iſrael according to the fleſh is not ſo much reſpected, but the Iſrael by faith; and whoſo ſhall conſider the miſeries in the Primitive times, ſuffered by the faithfull at the hands of Perſecutors, cannot but acknowledge, that they had great need to be thus comforted. Yet I would not have the Gentiles ſo underſtood as to exclude Gen.32. the faithfull of the Jews, but taking them in alſo, as appears by verſ. 3. and 14. I have called thee by thy name; herein he alludes to his giving Jacob the name of Iſrael, when he had wreſtled with God and prevailed.

Verſ.2. When thou walkeſt thorow the waters, they ſhall not drown thee. As they were not drowned when they went thorow the red Sea, and afterwards the three children were in the fire of Nebuchadnezzars fornace without burning, and in ſome of the faithfull, ſaith Lyra, it hath ſince been fulfilled according to the letter, they have walked miraculouſly upon the waters, as Chriſt did, and the flames of fire have had no power to kindle upon them, but have been extinguiſhed, or made to burn up their Perſecutors.

Verſ.3. Hieron. Lyra. I gave Egypt for thy ranſom, and Ethiopia, &c. That is, ſaith Jerom, the ſalvation of the peoples which ſhall be called by the Miniſtery of the Apoſtles, ſhall be reputed the ſalvation of their ſouls. Lyra, They are ſaid to be given for Iſrael, when by imbracing the faith they are joyned to Iſrael; or rather, I conceive, they are made the Iſrael of God. And Egypt and Ethiopia are ſpoken of in ſpecial, becauſe the Goſpel was ſo ſoon received there; in Egypt by the Miniſtery of Mark in Alexandria, and by Matthew his Miniſtery in Ethio-Calvin. pia. Calvin, Egypt and Ethiopia were given for a ranſom for Iſrael, when Sennacherib the King of Aſſyria being about to beſiege Jeruſalem, was by a ſingular providence called away to go againſt the Egyptians and Ethiopians, to fight againſt and overcome them, and returning again was ſhamefully put to 2 King.19. flight from Judea, Jeruſalem being preſerved in ſafety. And this is the true literal meaning moſt commonly followed. But of the Ethiopians and Egyptians ſee more in relation to the Jews, *Iſa.*45.14. But myſtically here is further foreſhewed, that the enemies of ſpiritual Iſrael ſhould impugn it, and by perſecution ſeek his deſtruction, but they themſelves ſhould be deſtroyed and this Iſrael preſerved, and Egypt and Ethiopia and Seba only are named, becauſe cauſe they were the moſt potent, that were continually at enmity with Iſrael, all idolatrous perſecutours being by them figured out: ſo likewiſe Cyril. To apply it to the converſion of idolatrous peoples, at what time they are made Sacrifices to God, according to *Rom.*12.1. *c.*15,16. as ſome do, were to confound the perſons ranſomed and made the ranſom. And it is improper to ſay, I will give the Egyptians a ranſom for thee, as meaning to be redeemed with thee, for to this ſenſe it ſhould rather have been ſaid, I will redeem them together with thee. Cyril.

Verſ.4. Since thou waſt precious in my ſight, thou haſt been honourable, therefore I will give, &c. Here a reaſon is rendred, why the Lord would do for his Iſrael, as he ſaid before, viz. he was precious and honourable upon his turning Iſrael, by imbracing the faith, a great incouragement to us to turn, ſuch are honourable, the wicked baſe. Note.

Verſ.5. I will bring thy ſeed from the Eaſt, and gather thee from the Weſt, &c. The like ſpeech is uſed by Chriſt Luk. 13.28,29. declaring plainly, that by theſe children the faithfull of all Countreys and Nations are meant, and not the generality of the Jews, for of them he ſaith, And your ſelves thruſt out. Calvin and Muſculus apply it to the Jews captived into divers parts of the world, whom the Prophet here comforts againſt the fear that might ſurprize them in their enemies Countrey afarre off leſt that being there they ſhould be forgotten, though not at home in their own Countrey; againſt this fear he promiſeth to bring them out of all parts. This I grant may be ſomwhat here aimed at, but the principal is that which hath been ſaid, whereupon Jerom alſo goeth, and Calvin. Calvin. Muſculus. Hieron.

Verſ.7. All that are called by my name, for my glory I have created them, &c. This ſheweth, That the Iſrael hitherto ſpoken of is the Church of Chriſt conſiſting of men and women called Chriſtians by Chriſts name, and to ſhew that he ſpeaks of the ſame Iſrael, he repeats the words of *verſ.*1. I have created and formed thee for my glory; theſe words, For my glory] being added to ſhew what glory ſhould redound to God by the converſion of the Gentiles.

Verſ.8. I will bring out the blinde that have eyes, &c. Here is ſhewed, how the Lord creates him a people to his glory, viz. by giving ſight to them before blinde, and hearing to them before deaf, yet having eyes and ears, which doth moſt properly belong to the Iſraelites, that were now converted, becauſe of them it is ſaid, *Iſa.*6.9. that they had eyes to ſee, but not to perceive, and the generality of them remain ſo to this day, but many amongſt them who had the light of the Law and Prophets, which were as eyes to them, ſaw not the things which in the time of Chriſts coming in the fleſh, they ſaw to their comfort and believed.

Verſ.9. Let all the Nations be gathered together, and let the people be aſſembled, &c. Having hitherto foretold wonderfull things to come, whereby it might appear to all the world that he is God, now he challengeth the ſervants of other gods to do the like, if they will juſtifie them to be Gods, and not vanities and dumb Idols. Whereas in bidding them declare former things to juſtifie that they are gods, but this may ſeem to be a point of ſmall knowledge for gods; ſee the like before *Chap.*42.22. and the explanation thereof. Or Let them hear and ſay, it is truth, Hebr. And they ſhall hear and ſay truth, Calvin, But let them hear, and they will ſay, it is true, giving hereupon this good expoſition, If they that are moſt rude and ignorant, would but hear and conſider, that the Lord reveals things to come, but none elſe can do it, they would ſay, It is true, he alone is God, and none other. Jerom, Let them hear and ſay, truly ye are my witneſſes, adjoyning the words of *verſ.*10. that is, ſaith Lyra, Let them hearken and learn, if they can, from their gods, what ſhall come, and ſpeak of it before to others for the juſtification of their Deity, but if they cannot truly ſpeak any thing this way, it is plain that thoſe gods are but vanities. Then follows, Truly ye are my witneſſes; the word אמת in our Hebrew Bibles, as we now have them diſtinguiſhed by pricks and verſes, being pulled without reſpect of pricks from *verſ.*9. and joyned to *verſ.*10. Cornel.a Lapide Calvin. Lyra.

notwithſtanding this diſpointing and diſplacing in their authentical vulgar Latine, reſtores the word truly to verſ.9. giving this ſenſe, which I cannot but acknowledge to be beſt; Let Idols ſervants foretell things before they come, and they ſhall be juſtified truly to be gods by others that ſhall hear them, ſaying Truly they are. Cyril. But of this Cyril is the firſt Author. According to my tendering of the Hebrew before, They, that is, ſome ſhall hear their Prophets from them declaring them long before, and as witneſſes on their ſide ſhall be able to ſay, it is truth, and not a feigned thing, they are gods.

Verſ.10. Thus he challengeth all peoples of the world that were lead away by falſe gods, and puts them to a non plus, to prove them true. But for himſelf, he hath many witneſſes, as it follows *Verſ.*10. Ye are my witneſſes, and my ſervant whom I have choſen, &c. That is, Ye Jews amongſt whom I have ſent my Prophets and declared many things formerly, which ye have ſeen fulfilled, and Jeſus my ſervant ſhall be my witneſſe above all others, Joh.17.3. both by having my predictions fulfilled in him, by his averring me to be the only true God, and by the miracles which he ſhall work in my name.

Verſ.14. For your ſake I have ſent to Babylon, and I have brought down all of them bound, or as the Vul. Lat. hath it, All their bands, meaning, thoſe whereby they held the Iſraelites in ſlavery, which were pulled off and thrown down, when they were out of that Captivity by Cyrus delivered, and Babylon with the great ſtrength thereof before broken. And he ſpeaks of it, as a thing done, though not done till above an hundred and fourty years after, for the certainty thereof, and he inſtanceth in this of ſo great note, which was to come long before his beloved ſons coming in the fleſh, who ſhould bring the greateſt happineſſe to all true Iſraelites, that ſeeing this fulfilled they might be in aſſured expectation of that in Gods appointed time. Why our new Tranſl. for Bars hath Nobles, I know not, Calvin renders it more agreeably to the words, They are all fugitives] for ſo the Hebrew word alſo ſignifieth, and then the ſenſe muſt be, he hath brought Babylon down, the inhabitants thereof are become fugitives before the Perſians, who in times paſt made all men fear and flee, being moſt mighty both by Land and Sea, for which he adds, The Caldees crying in ſhips, that is, ſhouting in an exulting manner, when they went to any Sea-fight in aſſured hope of victory, for the Caldees were the inhabitants of the City Babylon.

Verſ.16. That maketh a path in the Sea, and a way in mighty waters, &c. To make it the more credible which he had ſpoken *ver.*14. he ſtiles himſelf their King, recounting the miraculous acts formerly done by him in dividing the red Sea *Exod.*14. And the river Jordan Joſh.3. and the drowning of Pharaohs chariots and horſmen there. Verſ.17. Thus he ſeeks to move them to believe their deliverance from the Babyloniſh Captivity, by ſhewing that God had done greater things for them already. But from hence *Verſ.*18,19. he proceeds to foretell of a farre greater mercy yet to come after that, viz. a ſpiritual by Chriſt Jeſus, of whom he had ſpoken *Chap.*42.1. And therefore he extenuates both their deliverance out of Ægypt and out of Babylon, as not worthy to be remembred in compariſon of this, Verſ.19. ſaying, Remember not former things: Behold I do a new thing, I make a way in the wilderneſſe and rivers in the deſert, &c. Lyra. Which is by Lyra expounded of Chriſts incarnation, and of all Nations as barren in reſpect of good, as a wilderneſſe, being therefore hereby likewiſe ſet forth *Cha.*35.1. and of the ſpirit ſaid to be as a river alwayes flowing, *Joh.*4.14. See alſo Chap. 35.7,8. where the ſpirit given by Chriſt is likewiſe ſet forth by ſprings of water, and a way is alſo ſpoken of there. And for the new thing, he ſaith, it is alſo ſpoken of, *Jer.*31.22. A woman ſhall compaſſe a man. Hieronym. Thus alſo Jerom, who ſeeks to draw that *verſ.*14. to Chriſts times alſo, as if by Babylon were meant the wicked world, and by the bound ones the bound in ſinne, and by Caldees devils, who were deſtroyed by Chriſts coming, and their captives looſed from their bands. But herein I rather prefer Lyra and others underſtanding that properly, becauſe he ſpeaks not of the new and moſt admirable thing above all others, that is, Chriſt and his Kingdom, till now, and in ſuch words, as plainly exclude the thing related *verſ.*14. as not pertaining to this Prophecie, *verſ.*19,20. So Procopius, Ad.Saſbont.&c. But Calvin, Junius, &c. will have it meant of the ſame deliverance out of the Babyloniſh Captivity, taking in all the time following, till the coming of Chriſt, in which time he recounts many admirable mercies ſhewed to the Jews, for which the doings of the Lord towards them might well be thus magnified, but eſpecially his comforting of them by Haggai in reſpect of the Lords houſe built after their return, by this, that he would fill it with more glory, then that formerly built by Solomon, which was fulfilled when Chriſt came into it. I ſee no reaſon, why this ſhould be mingled with other things done before, although all exceeding great mercies, becauſe the Prophet plainly diſtinguiſheth betwixt thoſe outward mercies, and theſe here promiſed, by calling theſe new and preferring them ſo far beyond them, as to call off from remembring them any more in compariſon of theſe. For if the compariſon had been betwixt the old acts of the Lord done for them, and thoſe in bringing them out of Babylon, and ſuch others as followed after, what reaſon can be rendred why theſe ſhould be ſo much extolled above them, being indeed not equal to them, as will eaſily appear to him that ſhall conſider the many miracles wrought then, and but few now, and the ſervile condition, that the Jews were almoſt alwayes in after their return from Captivity, and their free, before, living under ſome moſt glorious Kings of their own. And the word New, doth plainly intimate not the like, but another kinde of mercy farre more excellent. Yet in ſpeaking of it the ſpirit alludes to corporeal mercies before ſhewed them in their coming through the wilderneſſe towards Canaan at the firſt, that they might be the more ſenſible of it.

Calvin.
Junius.

Verſ.20. The beaſts of the field ſhall honour me, the Dragon and the Owl, &c. Having compared the graces of the ſpirit overflowing under the N. T. whereby a way is made for the faithfull to heaven, with the way ſometime thorow the red ſea, and the waters flowing out of a rock in the wilderneſſe, whereby the Iſraelites paſſing were refreſhed: now becauſe not only men, but beaſts then had comfort by thoſe waters, that the many rivers of grace flowing in the moſt vaſt wilderneſſe of Heathen Countreys in ſtead of one then in one wilderneſſe might not ſeem to come ſhort of that in any thing, he ſheweth here, that beaſts ſhould have comfort of theſe waters alſo, that is, the moſt beſtial ſort of men, and the unclean fowls ſetting forth the uncleaneſt of men, becauſe grace coming into their hearts, they are again of beaſts made men dear unto God, and choſen by him, as is intimated in the laſt words of this verſe, To give water to my choſen people; To this effect Jerom, who alſo ſaith, that Theodotion for Owl hath Thannim, others Syrens, denoting men drawn away by pleaſure to become a prey to the devil, becauſe the Syrens allured paſſengers by ſea by their ſweet ſinging to be devoured by the Scillean Dogs. But he prefers the former reading of wilderneſſe-birds, putting yet Oſtriches for Owls. Gregory hereupon ſaith, Dragons are earthly-minded men, creeping, as it were, upon the ground; and Oſtriches hypocrites, becauſe they have wings, and yet flee not: but theſe being converted, or having drunk of this water, do ſincerely or ſeriouſly worſhip and ſerve God. Plato ſaith, That in man, as in the Trojan-horſe, are all ſorts of beaſts; the Fox, in the ſubtill and deceitfull; in the cruell, the Lion; in the luſtfull, the Sow loving the mire; in the ſlothfull, the Aſſe; in the greedy-gutted, the Wolf; in the curious and fine, the Peacock, &c.

Hieronym.

Gregor. Moral. 31.*c.*5.

Plato *de repub. lib.*3.

Verſ. 22. But thou haſt not called upon me (O Jacob) Having propheſied of the vocation of the Gentiles, now he prevents an Objection, which the Jews might make thus, Wilt thou indeed thus be indulgent to the Gentiles, when they ſhall be converted unto thee? What can they do more then we have done and do daily? For we pray often unto thee, offer many Sacrifices and incenſe daily. Contrariwiſe he ſaith, That they had not prayed nor offered him Sacrifices, mean-

Note.

Hieronym.

Ad. Sasbont.

Calvin.
Muſculus.

meaning, that their prayers and ſacrifices were as nothing, forſomuch as their ſins made them all abominable, as *Chap.*1.14. So that they ſerve not God who do duties unto him, but they make him to ſerve with their ſins, as verſ. 24 that is, by laying on a load thereof upon him, as Amos 2.13. which they lookt he ſhould bear by ſuffering them to go unpuniſht, and notwithſtanding bleſſing them every way ; and he ſaith, That they wearied him with their iniquities both in this regard, and becauſe that all the time of his forbearing to puniſh them, he ſtrove with his juſtice putting him on to puniſh even till he was weary. Some referre his being made to ſerve with their ſins, to Chriſt, that for ſinne came in the form of a ſervant to redeem them from ſervitude. Of the Expoſition before-going Jerom layes the ground in brief, taking it alſo as prophetical of their obduration by unbelief when Chriſt came, for then they turned not in his name to call upon him ; and what they did before in ſacrificing was nothing, ſeeing they were not obedient, and obedience is the beſt ſacrifice, 1 *Sam.*15. Some will have this ſpoken, as alluding to that which was ſaid before of the beaſts praiſing God, but Iſrael called not upon him, that is, to be accepted. Some take all that which is ſpoken from hence to the end of the Chapter, as a rendring of a reaſon, that the good before promiſed to his people was not of their merit, but of Gods mercy, therefore he here firſt chargeth them with not ſerving him ſo as to be worthy of any thing, but of judgement, becauſe if they prayed or ſacrificed, it was done but unwillingly, they not knowing by reaſon of the Law requiring it how to do otherwiſe, which is intimated, by ſaying, Thou haſt been weary of me, or wearied in me, as the word בי ſignifieth, that is by counting it a wearineſſe which thou doſt in my ſervice, and their ſacrifices were accompanied with many ſins. Some, ſaith Calvin, underſtand this as ſpoken of the time of their Captivity in Babylon, but he rejects this.

Cornel. a Lap.
Sasbont.

*Joh.*6.44.

Verſ.25. I, I am, that doth away thine iniquities for my ſelf, &c. Upon the ground before laid down of their unworthineſſe, and the Gentiles being before their converſion as beaſts, he now inferreth, that all the favour done to his ſpirituall Iſrael was meerly out of grace, that hereunto only and not to merit of man remiſſion of ſins and ſalvation might be aſcribed, as even the Jeſuite Cornelius a Lapide yieldeth: ſee the like *Ezek.*36.22. And Sasbont a Papiſt is forced by the evidence of truth to determine thus. When it is ſaid, I do thy iniquities away for my own ſake] It is not thus ſpoken to teach, that nothing is required on our part, that we may be forgiven, for we muſt believe in Chriſt, as Abraham believed and it was imputed to him for righteouſneſſe. But when we do, it is ſtill for his own ſake that he forgives us, becauſe he both draweth us to faith in his Son, and when being drawn we believe, it is not for the merit of our faith, that we are forgiven, but becauſe to the believer God imputeth not ſinne. Again, we muſt be baptized and repent, but when we do thus, it is not therefore that we are forgiven and ſet clear from ſinne, but for Gods own ſake, and his grace, who in meer mercy is thus pleaſed to juſtifie and ſave us: If it be ſaid, he forgives us for Chriſts ſake, and becauſe he by his death hath ſatisfied the divine Juſtice, and paid our ranſom; it is true, but when he forgives for his ſake, he forgives for his own, ſith he ſent his Son, and the Father and Son are one. Thus he, moſt orthodoxly confirming our tenet of Juſtification only by grace, and not in any part by works, cloſing with Paul, Epheſ.1.6,7. In whom we have redemption through his bloud, the forgiveneſſe of our ſins, to the praiſe of the glory of his grace.

Thy firſt father hath ſinned, and thy teachers have tranſgreſſed againſt me. To make good what he had ſaid, that he did away their ſins for his own ſake, he aſcends here to the conſideration of their and their fathers condition from the very firſt that he took Iſrael to be his people ; the words rendred, Thy firſt father] may better be rendred, Thy fathers, the firſt of them. For it is אביך not a ſingular, but a plural, Thy fathers, then [הראשון that firſt] whereby he plainly means Abraham, not Adam, as ſome would, for Abraham was firſt choſen to be the father of the faithfull, and he ſinned before his calling, by Idolatry, as is intimated *Joſh.*24.2. See my Expoſition upon it. As for their other fathers, from whom the Tribes of Iſrael had their names, they were notorious for ſome ſins, Reuben for inceſt, Simeon and Levi for deceit and murther, and all the reſt for being helpers herein, and for meditating the death of Joſeph, and man-ſtealing, Judah for inceſt alſo with Thamar his daughter in law, yea their very teachers, or Legats ſent from God to them to deliver them out of Egypt ſinned, for ſo the word מליציך ſignifieth, or interpreters, and theſe were Moſes and Aaron, who ſinned at the waters of Meribah, for which God was angry with them, and took them away, before they came into the Land of Canaan.

Verſ.28. Therefore I have prophaned the Princes of the Sanctuary, &c. That is, the ſame men, who were over the Sanctuary of God, dealing with them as with the common ſort of the Jews, cutting them off for that ſinne in the wilderneſs, as the whole multitude of murmurers, who were all deſtroyed from twenty years old and upward, and two only ſaved that oppoſed them in their murmuring, Caleb and Joſhuah; ſo Jerom. Hieron. For to be prophaned is to be made like the common ſort in their bodily death, and I gave Jacob to the curſe, and Iſrael to reproaches, that is, when they were by the curſe of God held in the wilderneſſe fourty years, till all the murmurers were conſumed by divers judgments, and were fain to hear of their wickedneſſes to their great ſhame and reproach, when they were by Moſes and Aaron upbraided hereby. And if their fathers and teachers, even the beſt of them, were not without their ſins, yea a whole generation of which they came groſly tainted, and accordingly puniſhed, then it muſt needs follow, that the great mercies promiſed before in this Chapter muſt ſpring from Gods meer grace pardoning their ſins, which deſerved the contrary, much more then their fathers had done, as being greater ſinners, which is the main ſcope and end of this commemoration. Muſcul. Muſculus expounds this of their fathers in common conſidered as one body, and their Prieſts and Prophets leading them on in ſinne, till they were deſtroyed and ſhamefully enthralled by their enemies, Caldeans, Aſſyrians and others, who ſcorned and diſgraced them. Gen.15.8. But becauſe it ſeems to be an argument à majore ad minus, it will hold better from Abraham and Moſes and Aaron, &c. to them, becauſe they were of eminent holineſs, theſe baſe Idolaters and deboiſht ſinners. And whereas he for the ſin of Abraham refers us to a query made by him, How he ſhould know that he ſhould inherit the Land of Canaan? I ſee not how it can be counted a ſinne any more then Hezekiahs asking a ſigne, or Gideons afterwards, ſeeing as to them and to the Virgin Mary a ſign was given in mercy without a reproof, ſo to Abraham. Yea he is ſet forth above all all others, as a patern of believing without doubting through unbelief, *Rom.*4.

CHAP. XLIV.

Verſ.1. YEt now hear (O Jacob my ſervant) Heb. for Yet is And. He proceedeth to comfort his ſpiritual Iſrael, as *Chap.*43.1,19,25. there being nothing almoſt ſaid here more then there, till *ver.*9. for *verſ.*1,2. run parallel with *Cha.*43.1,2. the 3. and 4. with *verſ.*19,20. the 5. with *verſ.*7. the 6. and 7. with *verſ.*11,12. taking in *Chap.*41.4. and *ver.*8. with *verſ.*10. So that for the expoſition little more is to be ſaid upon theſe verſes. Only after convincing them of the pardon of their ſins coming from Gods meer grace, and telling how he had dealt with Jacob and Iſrael in judgement, and that not without cauſe, for they had ſinned, as *Chap.*43.27,28. it ſeemed good unto him to ſpeak to his ſpiritual Iſrael here again, as he had done before, that the difference betwixt Iſrael according to the fleſh, and Iſrael according to the ſpirit might be perceived. For there he ſaith only Jacob and Iſrael, here Jacob my ſervant

Hieronym.
Verſ.2.
*See my Notes upon the word Jeſhurun there.
Verſ.4.
Verſ.5.
Gregor. Moral. 31.c.5.

ſervant, and Iſrael whom I have choſen, as Jerom noteth, and the word is varied verſ.2. into Jeſhurun ſignifying righteous, Deut.32.15. * And whereas ver. 3. after watering promiſed by way of explaining what he meant, he ſaith, I will pour my ſpirit upon thy ſeed, and my bleſſing upon thine offſpring, by two compariſons ſetting this ſeed forth after the water of Baptiſm poured thereupon, 1. Taken from the graſſe. 2. From willows growing by the waters-ſide, whereby, he ſaith, are two ſorts of people ſet forth, making one Iſrael of God, the beleeving Jews, by the graſſe, and the Gentiles by the willows, amongſt whom theſe waters ſhall chiefly flow, being in times paſt as dry as a wilderneſs, ſo that without a miracle no trees could grow there. Verſ.5. ſheweth as was noted before, Chap.43.7. that the Iſrael here ſpoken of, ſets forth the faithfull of all Nations, becauſe they ſhall now begin to be called from the name Jacob, and Iſrael, and God, as they were not before, according to Hoſ.1.10. But upon verſ.4. note, that there are not two compariſons, but one only to willows; for it is, As the willows grow amongſt or between the graſſe; the meaning being, that the faithfull now ſhould be to others, that were Gods people before for knowledge and grace, much over-topping them, as the willows do the low graſſe. Gregory ſaith, the faithfull are compared to willows by the rivers ſide, becauſe they are alwaies green, and being cut down they grow more, ſo they in affliction. Whereas verſ.5. it is ſaid, This man ſhall write himſelf with his hand the Lords. Some popiſh Expoſitors apply it to the ſign of the Croſſe, which he making with his hand, or putting with his hand a Crucifix about his neck, declares himſelf to be the Lords. But to ſet to the hand to the Lord, is nothing elſe but to ſubſcribe to him, which is done, when Paul writes himſelf the ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt, and a follower of him, making it good in taking up his Croſſe, and learning humility and meekneſſe of him. And he that is called Iſrael hath alſo his name from the Lord; a ſincere Chriſtian is a true Iſraelite, Joh.1.43. And he that lives in all things according to the Law, a Jew within, pretious before God, Rom.2.29. So that mens calling themſelves after Iſraels or Jacobs name here, doth not countenance the ſuperſtitious, now calling themſelves by the name of Francis or Dominick; or any in Corinth by the name of Paul or Apollo, &c. as they are taxed, 1 Cor.3.

Verſ.9.
Hieron.

They that make graven Images are all of them vanity. See before, chap. 40.19. & 41.7. and he inlargeth himſelf more here in ſhewing the vanity of Idols, as turning to that Iſrael again, whom he had ſaid, that he had given to the curſe, chap.43.28. the cauſe whereof was this, their moſt groſſe ſin of idolatry; yet their idols being but blocks of wood, could foretell nothing, as he both ſheweth, that he had done, v.7,8. and after this debaſing of the idolater, v.20. ſheweth more: For thitherto extendeth his declamation againſt idolaters. Jerom ſaith, that Flaccus a Satyriſt derides Idols in like manner, as Iſaiah doth here.

Olim truncus eram ficulnus, inutile lignum,
Cùm faber incertus ſcamnum faceretne Priapum,
Maluit eſſe Deum; Deus
Inde ego furum atq; avium maxima formido.

Verſ.20.
Calvin.

He feeds upon aſhes. That is, The Idolater, againſt whom he hath declaimed hitherto feeds his with delight in a piece of wood, being fully ſatisfied, when he hath made, and formed, and worſhipped his Idol, which indeed ſhall one day be burnt into aſhes, as the other part of the tree was, of which it was made, v.19. Calvin turns it another way, viz. to feeding upon the winde, as it were, for which he citeth, Hoſ.12.2. and by this winde he underſtands the deceitfulneſs of his own heart, making the next words, a ſeduced heart inclineth him, an amplification of theſe. The Vulg. to put it out of doubt, that the matter to which the Idol ſhall be reduced, viz. aſhes, is meant; rendreth it, Part of it is aſhes. And Hebr. a word is uſed ſignifying either feeding, or a friend or fellow, and in this ſenſe רעה is ſometime uſed; and ſo it may be rendred, The piece brought to aſhes, ſpoken v.19. was his fellow, for it was part of the ſame tree; or retaining our Tranſlation the ſenſe is plain, as before; and the next words, A ſeduced heart, &c. is a rendring of a reaſon, why or by what means he is brought to deifie ſuch a contemptible thing, viz. becauſe his ſeduced heart permits him not to ſee Idols to be lies, that upon this conſideration he might repent, and ſo have his ſoul delivered from death, of which he is by his idolatry in continual danger, Hab. 2.18. An Idol is alſo called a lie, as in this place, A lie in his right hand, that is, working and forming it with his beſt skill, and thinking that herein he doth moſt lie, if it be well formed.

Verſ. 22. I have blotted out as a cloud thy ſins, &c. Returning to ſpiritual Iſrael again, *v.*21. he ſpeaks as at *v.*1,2. ſtirring him up to attend to this comfort of comforts, the doing away of his ſins, as *chap.*43.25. only he here ſets this his great favour to the faithfull forth, by a compariſon taken from a cloud vaniſhing before the ſun, or diſperſed by the winde.

Verſ. 23. Hieron. Sing (O ye heavens) for the Lord hath done it. Jerom joyning the two former verſes and this together, ſaith, that he would have Iſrael remember the vanities of idolaters before ſpoken of, to flee from this groſs ſin, propheſying here of the fall and vaniſhing away of Idols at the coming of the light of the Goſpel; as the clouds in the morning having covered the face of the heaven before, yet when the ſun is got up to ſome height, vaniſh all away before it, and diſperſe and ſcatter by the power of the Spirit accompanying this light, as by the force of a mighty winde: For even ſo did Idols vaniſh by means of the Goſpel inlightning all parts of the world, and the ſpirit working with it, which being done, joy followeth both amongſt Angels in heaven, and men upon earth, as is exemplified, *Luc.*2. in the heavenly hoaſts ſinging, Glory to God on high, in earth peace, and good will towards men. And for men upon earth he ſaith, Ye lower parts of the earth, becauſe the earth is lower in compariſon of heaven, and he means the inhabitants of all Nations in general; and by the forreſt, which he biddeth to break out into ſinging, and the trees thereof, the ſame Nations being formerly as a deſert, dry and barren, but now planted with high growing and proſpering trees, as a forreſt, that is, men eminent for divers virtues and excellent gifts and graces of the Spirit, according to the allegories whereby he ſpake before, *v.*3. and *chap.*41.18,19. and *chap.*35.1,2. The ſame alſo is meant by mountains here, which ſhould ſing alſo, ſome men being magnified or made great and conſpicuous for the power to work wonders given unto them, as the Apoſtles and ſeventy ſent out by Chriſt. Cornel. a Lap. Cornelius a Lapide, by the lower parts of the earth, underſtands Limbus patrum, wherein the Papiſts fein that the holy men of God were detained, till the time of Chriſts aſcention, but then carried up to heaven with him, and therefore they are bidden for this to rejoice. But he goeth herein from Jeroms Tranſlation; wherein for the lower parts of the earth, it is extrema terra: And from the ſenſe given by all Ancient Expoſitors that I have ſeen, who generally underſtand thereby the common ſort, as by the trees and mountains, the moſt eminent for gifts and graces; although the Hebrew words indeed do ſignifie the low parts of the earth, for they are תחתיות ארצ, whereby nothing elſe is meant, but as hath been already ſaid. Calvin. Calvin will have all theſe ſpoken to, though inanimate, as bidden to rejoice; to ſhew the exceeding greatneſs of the benefit of our redemption, it being ſuch, as, if it were poſſible, might affect heaven and earth, and all things both high and low.

Verſ. 24. Thus ſaith the Lord that maketh all things, &c. Here the Lord not being content to prove himſelf the only true God by all which he had ſaid hitherto, capitulateth many things together further to confirm it, becauſe he knew that the wicked Jews were ſo prone to Idolatry, that he could never ſpeak too much againſt it, or to keep them to the worſhip and ſervice of him the true God only. Wherefore he ſaith that he made heaven and earth, and formed man in the womb. And if for all this they would not be moved, he addeth, *v.*25. Verſ. 25. Ch. 47.10, 11,12. his fruſtrating the tokens of liars; and to ſhew whom he meant by liars, ſaying further, that he made diviners mad, and the wiſe fooliſh, that is, Wizzards and Soothſayers, either becauſe they could not ſee what ſhould come to paſs to the deſtruction of their own Nation, the Caldees, to forewarn them hereof, or if they foretold any good unto them, and gave ſigns for confirmation, they were fruſtrated; no good, but grievous evils befalling them: at which theſe Wizzards were mad to ſee themſelves ſo much diſgraced by this means, as ignorant ſots and falſe prophets, whom all men formerly admired as the only wiſe men of the world for their ſagacity, and extraordinary inſight into ſecrets.

Hieron.

Jerom applieth Gods ſpeaking of his creating the heaven and the earth, and forming Jacob from the womb, as an argument to prove, that he could do in deſtroying Babylon, and rebuilding Jeruſalem, as he had promiſed. For how ſhall this ſeem difficult for him to do, that hath done farre greater things? And as for the ſigns of liars fruſtrating, &c. he ſpeaks thus, as foreſhewing the overthrow of Idols and all falſe gods, whom moſt cunning Wizzards ſought by all ſubtle means to uphold as true Gods, but when they ſhould be put down, as they were, at the coming on of the Goſpel, what ſhould all their ſigns formerly ſhewed, and their ſeeming wiſdom making them to be ſo highly reputed, then be thought of but as meer vanities and groſſe fooliſhneſs? Thus alſo others generally. But becauſe he ſpake before againſt the deity of Idols, about whom he is in a controverſie in this Chapter, whether they were gods or he only; and having proved them none, but himſelf God, now for a concluſion of all this, he fetcheth proof from the beginning of the world for it, and goes on to other proofs of things ſince daily done, and alledgeth the Perſians prowes and ſucceſs for one againſt the Babylonians, which ſhould as certainly come to paſs, as if it were already done, and their King that ſhould do it were now born, although he ſhould not be born till a hundred years after, he nameth, viz. Cyrus. Whereas if the ſcope of this place were to make it credible, which he promiſed in favour of the Jews and againſt the Babylonians their enemies, he would not doubtleſs have alledged the thing in queſtion to prove it by, as it muſt needs be yielded that he doth, if the firſt words, v. 24, 25. be brought as a proof of it, becauſe he continueth in the ſame ſtrein to the end of the Chapter. Laſtly, That the main propoſitum of the place is to prove him only to be the Lord, appears by his ſaying, I am the Lord: As if he had ſaid, Thoſe of whom I have hitherto ſpoken, ſhewing that they are ſenſleſſe ſtocks, are no gods; but attend to that which I ſhall ſay, and it will eaſily appear that I am the Lord, both by my deeds of creating the world, croſſing Wizzards, the prieſts of Idols in their preſages, and raiſing up Cyrus to be the ruine of them and of their country, and declaring this ſo long before, ſith theſe were the two things whereby Idols were put to it before to prove themſelves gods; foreſhewing things to come, and doing mighty things ſurpaſſing the ſtrength of all creatures. For tokens or ſigns of liars; Vulg. Lat. and Calvin have, tokens of diviners. But the word בדים ſignifieth liars; unleſſe becauſe Aſtrologers, that take upon them skill by the ſigns of heaven to foretell things to come, yea the great mutations in Kingdoms, are commonly found liars, their predictions not taking effect, as the Lord's by his Prophets do; they be ſet forth by their proper name Diviners, the ſenſe being more reſpected then the ſignification of the word.

Againſt judiciary Aſtrology.

But forſomuch as the Lord puts the term of liars upon them to their diſgrace, we have no reaſon in our Tranſlations, baulking this name, to ſet them forth by any other. And although Calvin in rendring the words, forbeareth to put lying upon them, yet he utterly condemns the art of judiciary Aſtrology, as being not only vain, but tending to the robbing of God of his honour of invocation and dependance upon him, and to the eſtabliſhing of the Stoicall opinion of the Fatall neceſſity of things.

Calvin.

For he ſaith, that the Lord ſimply condemned this art, when he forbad the permiſſion of ſuch amongſt his people, Levit. 19. 31. Deut. 18. 10, 11. And therefore no certainty is in this Art, but meer impoſture, for which it is to be abhorred by all the godly. Ob. The ſtars are given for ſigns. Sol. It is true, that by obſerving how they keep their courſe, we may glorifie God, who directs them ſo to do, and they are ſometimes ſigns of judgements to come, that we may be moved to repent. But that hereby the ends of principalities and Kingdoms, or notable events in Kingdoms, or to particular perſons may be foreſeen, is not to be held, neither ought any man hereby to dare to pry into ſuch things to come, it being a wickedneſſe to ſearch into them, or to finde them out. For let it be granted that all things in the world are ſubject to the empire of the ſtars, then Gods tribunal is overthrown, and he is no more Judge to inflict puniſhments upon ſinners, or to ſhew mercy to men in a deſperate condition: Neither is any thing left to him, but all attributed to fate: Thus the judgements of God being buried, all piety is extinguiſhed, and all invocation upon him aboliſhed.

Res arcanas & occultas ſcrutari aut inveſtigare nefas omninò eſt.

Verſ.26. That confirmeth the word of his ſervant, and performeth the counſel of his meſſengers. Here, by his ſervant, Jerom underſtands Chriſt, and by his meſſengers, the Apoſtles, becauſe *chap.*42.1. he is thus called. (Hieron.) But Lyra by his ſervant, will have Moſes meant, whoſe word about bringing the Hebrews out of Egypt he made good; (Lyra.) and by his meſſengers, the Prophets, and the things by them revealed he cals their counſels, becauſe God at the firſt declared them in ſecret unto them, (Amos.3.) thus making them, as it were, of his privy Councel, and in his appointed time fulfilled them all. Calvin thinks, (Calvin.) that by his ſervant, Iſaiah is meant, and by his meſſengers, other Prophets, ſpeaking of our redemption and deliverance by Chriſt; and by counſel he meaneth the word of God taught by them, for ſo the word is ſometime called, *Act.*21.27. *Luc.*7.30. It is indeed Gods councel, but called theirs, becauſe by them declared at his appointment. The word מקים here rendred confirming, is, raiſing up; whereupon Muſculus (Muſcul.) noteth, that it is well ſo ſaid, as implying Chriſts death and burial, in the time whereof there ſeemed to be no hope of its taking effect, but the word of promiſe ſeemed to lie, as it were, dead and buried. I ſubſcribe to Calvin, that by his ſervant here is meant Iſaiah, and by his meſſengers other Prophets, diſcloſing what God in his ſecret counſel purpoſed to do, whether in reſpect of the Jews affairs after the Babyloniſh Captivity, or the good of his faithfull people of all Countries under the Goſpel. All this he ſaith, that he confirms and performs, and ſo can no falſe god do to his ſervants. For reaſon requires that having ſpoken of his fruſtrating of the ſigns of the Caldees, thoſe great Diviners, and ſhewing their wiſdom to be fooliſhneſs, who promiſed haply to the King of Babylon, that his Kingdom ſhould be perpetual, and that the Jews hearkening to Iſaiah and other Prophets did but hope for a good day in vain: he ſhould now ex oppoſito ſpeak of his certain performing of the predictions of his Prophets touching the Jews deliverance, that they might by all men be beleeved, and not the other.

Verſ.27. That ſaith to the deep, Be dry, &c. Here another ſign is added, the dreaning of the rivers of Babylon by Cyrus King of Perſia, by making many dreans, into which they were all let out in one night, and ſo they entred and took Babylon, which they could not do before, becauſe the waters compaſſing it about, ſuffered them not to approach; as I have ſhewed in my continuation of the hiſtory, from Nehemiah, &c. Calvin will have it ſpoken allegorically of fetching up the Jews, as it were, out of the bottom of the deep, as ſometime through the red ſea. Muſculus, of the Princes ſubject to the King of Babylon, who were to him as rivers to the deep ſea, but now the greatneſs of them all ſhall ceaſe.

Verſ.28. That ſaith of Cyrus, Be is my ſhepherd. Vulg Lat. Saith to Cyrus, He wiſe. But it is Hebr. רועי my ſhepherd: And therefore Jerom, although he ſets down that as the Tranſlation of the Septuagint, yet he follows this. Here Cyrus is named long before he was born, that things preſent and to come might appear to be alike preſent to the Lord; and his ſhepherd he cals him, becauſe he ſhould tender the good of his people, as a ſhepherd of his ſheep, leading them out of Babylon to their own Country, as a ſhepherd his ſheep into large and freſh paſture, being before ſhut up, as it were, in a pin, for ſo had the Jews been in Babylon. The accompliſhment of this, ſee in Ezra and Nehemiah, and how the the foundation of the Temple was laid, and Jeruſalem rebuilt, as is here further propheſied.

CHAP. XLV.

Verſ.1,2. HEre for five verſes together the ſame Cyrus is further propheſied of, and how the loins of Kings ſhould be looſed, and the gates of braſſe broken before him; for the underſtanding whereof ſee my Expoſition on Ezra 1. Thus ſaith the Lord to mine anointed Cyrus. Hebr. it is Cores, and ſo ſome reade it: And Hieron. ſome, ſaith Jerom, To mine anointed Lord. But if the word be turned into Latine, it is commonly rendred Cyrus, both here and *Ezr.*1. where is the ſame word in ſpeaking of Cyrus. His anointed he is called, becauſe a King by him ſet up, it being uſuall amongſt the Hebrews to ſtile the King, the anointed, that is Hebr. Meſſiah, Græcè Chriſtus.

I have given thee the treaſures of darkneſſe, and for my ſervant Jacobs ſake I Verſ.3. have called thee by thy name, though thou haſt not known me. The Lord here tels Verſ 4. Cyrus, that whereas he ſubdued Babylon and enjoyed all the treaſures thereof, much being hidden in ſecret for fear of the enemy: it was by Gods gift that he came to them, that he might acknowledge him to be the only true God.
And he was thus with him and gave him power to prevail for Jacobs ſake, that he might deliver the Jews from the Captivity wherein they had now been held ſeventy years. And he ſaith that he named him, as one ſpecially choſen, as he had before named Jacob Iſrael, though he knew him not, by ſaying which, he intimated that he was an Idolater, and not the Chriſt to come to ſave beleevers; which makes Jerom admire their folly, that expound the Chriſt or anointed here, of Chriſt the Lord, adding alſo this title in ſtead of [Mine anointed Verſ.5. Cyrus,] eſpecially becauſe, *verſ.*5. he ſaith, I girded thee, though thou kneweſt me not; which can by no means agree to Chriſt, but to Cyrus only.
As it is here ſpoken to Cyrus, ſo God in his providence took order, that in due time he ſaw and read it, being by the Jews ſhewed unto him, and he hereby ſtirred up to do by the Jews, as he did, Ezra 1. See my Expoſition there.
Calvin. Calvin notes, that the parts from whence Cyrus came, were far remote from Babylon, and the Country a poor place; wherefore it was moſt improbable that a King ſhould ever come from thence, able to carry forces ſo far as Babylon, and ſubdue it, and be infinitely inriched with the treaſures of others; but what is impoſſible with men, is poſſible, yea eaſie with God.

Verſ.6. Therefore he adds, verſ.6. That they may know from the riſing of the ſun, and from the Weſt, that I am the Lord. That is, In all parts of the world, the Eaſt and Weſt being named, and the other two underſtood: That is, When the fame hereof, and that this was done by the God of Iſrael, ſhould be blazed abroad in all Countries and Nations, which could not be known, but to near dwellers only preſently, to all others by their means in proceſſe of time. And coming to know this, how can they but know that God is the Lord, ſith none but the Almighty can before appoint, and ſo long after do ſuch mighty things as theſe?

Verſ.7. Forming light and creating darkneſſe, &c. Here he alludes to the beginning of Gods works of creation, *Gen.*1. by light underſtanding comfort and joy, whereby it is commonly ſet forth, meaning the joy which the Jews ſhould then have for their deliverance out of Captivity; and by darkneſſe, miſery, meaning their Captivity, whereby they had extreamly ſuffered, yet not without the Divine providence bringing this upon them for their ſins. And to theſe two the two next words anſwer, I create peace and make evil; that is, proſperity, comfort, and all kinde of felicity in this world and that which is to come, all is my doing, coming from nothing of merit in man preceding, as creating is to make ſomething out of nothing. And by evil is meant the evil of puniſhment by the ſword, plague or famine ſent for ſins, and all other miſeries which men ſuffer here or hereafter; not the evil of ſin, for of this he is not the Author to any man, *Jam.*1.14. *Hoſ.*13.9. And therefore having ſaid, Creating peace] he varies the word, ſaying, Making evil; that is, when men are unworthy of peace, by reaſon of their ſins, turning it into miſery. Gregory explains it thus, He makes evil, when he forms things well made into a ſcourge to us for our ſins; as poiſon, meat to ſerpents, is death to men.

Cum res benè conditas nobis peccantibus in flagellii format, Greg.Mor.7.3.

Verſ.8.

Calvin.

Drop down (ye heavens) from above, and let the clouds rain righteouſneſſe. Some (ſaith Calvin) take this for a form of prayer to be uſed by the people, till they ſhould attain the ſalvation before promiſed; ſome for the Prophets prayer; ſome for Gods command of all bleſſings both heavenly and earthly, to come upon his people, which ſhould be when Cyrus before ſpoken of ſhould attain to that greatneſs. But Jerom beſt, it is ſeparate from the words foregoing, as a Prophecie touching Chriſt; a like place unto which is *Pſal.*85.12. where Chriſt is manifeſtly ſpoken of, as alſo Calvin ſaith. By righteouſneſs dropping from heaven, the coming down of the Son of God is meant, who came from heaven, *Joh.*3. And by the earths opening, ſpoken of in the next words, Let the earth be opened and health and ſalvation come forth, the Son of man his bringing forth by the Virgin Mary; for what is man but Adam, earth? as *Gen.*1. and the woman is the ſame, for both male and female have one name [Adam] Gen.5.2. And that Chriſt is ſalvation, ſee *Matth.*1. *Luk.*2. Matth. 21.11. and that he is righteouſneſſe, Iſa.41.2. and The Lord our righteouſneſſe, 1 *Cor.*1.30. If it be applied to Cyrus in reſpect of bodily ſalvation, and juſtifying the Jews to be the people of God, and he be ſaid to have come from heaven, becauſe appointed miraculouſly by God in heaven to this; and out of the earth, becauſe from baſeneſs raiſed to ſo great dignity; the words following ſeem to make for it, *verſ.*13. but that this is not the Prophets ultima meta, but further in Cyrus, ſome figure of him, to ſet forth Chriſt, appears, *verſ.*22,23,24. where it is ſaid, In the Lord I have righteouſneſſe, and all the ſeed of Iſrael ſhall be juſtified in him: And as intimating the times of the Goſpel when this ſhall be fulfilled, he ſaith, every knee ſhall bow to me.

Hieronym.

Verſ.9.

Woe to him that ſtriveth with his maker, the potſheard with the potſheards, &c. In this and *verſ.*10,11. the Prophet returns to the condition of the people before their deliverance by Cyrus, and afterwards by Chriſt, knowing how impatient they would be of their ſufferings in Captivity, and afterwards murmuring and complaining againſt God for making them ſo miſerable, and not beleeving therefore that he would ever bring to paſſe ſo much good for them as he had promiſed. Againſt this he oppoſeth, Woe to him that ſtriveth, &c. meaning, that as it were an inſolent part in a ſon to challenge his father for his deformities or infirmities which accompanied his generation; and the pot howſoever miſhapen, and to what baſe uſe ſoever it be made, doth not challenge the Potter therefore, for this were monſtrous: So no man ought to dare to challenge God or murmure againſt him, although he creates him darkneſs and evil, as *verſ.*7. how long ſoever he be in miſery, but in ſilence quietly bear all things, till light and peace come. Then *verſ.*11. he ſheweth about what they ſhould rather buſie themſelves. Ask of things to come concerning my ſons, and concerning the work of my hands command me. This laſt clauſe to make the ſenſe good is to be read interrogatively, Concerning the work of my hands do ye command me? For he had reproved their inſolency againſt him in murmuring, by two ſimilitudes, of children and pots; now to that of children he ſaith, Enquire of me future things, concerning my ſons] what miſeries I will make them ſuffer and why, and how I will again deliver them; this I allow you to do, and it will be profitable to repentance, and for the ſtrengthening of your faith to do ſo, and this ye may do by the mouth of my Prophets. But concerning the work of my hands, which ye are alſo, as the Potters is the pot; Will ye take upon you to command me what I ſhould do, or when? Oh do not ſo abſurdly, neither be ſo petulant, if the Potter be left to himſelf to do what he pleaſeth in his own profeſſion, let me alone much more, to do as I pleaſe with

Verſ.11.

Calvin. all people. Calvin hath this, but thinks it ſomewhat inforced, and therefore he prefers another, viz. as if all were ſpoken by way of increpation; When a ſon will not be ſo bold with the father to ask an account of him of his actions, ye ask me forſooth, and command me as it were. But I reſt in the former, as nothing coact; unleſſe keeping to the imperative in the word command, as well as ask; we take it thus, Bid my Prophet Iſaiah and other Prophets tell you what I mean to do, and they ſhall tell you; and thus far will not every father Hieron. go in making his ſon acquainted what he means to do. Jerom takes all as ironicall thus, Shall not a ſon be ſo bold with his father as to ask, as afore is ſaid; ye then are very dutifull to uſurp thus over me, to ask and as it were to command me, as if you could teach me what I ſhall do with my children under the Goſpel? ask on therefore and command on, for ſurely it becomes you well ſo to do. But neither by this or any other Expoſition, can there be any ground for Gods ſubmitting himſelf to be commanded by men praying, to which ſome draw it to extoll the force of prayer.

Verſ. 12. I made the earth and man, and extended the heavens, &c. Still he continues in the ſame argument of taxing ſuch as are ſo bold to expoſtulate with him, as ver. 10. For he is not only as an earthly father, but the Creator both of heaven and earth, and all men, therefore intollerable petulancy for any man to reprove his doings towards men, whether in judgement or mercy, for this were for man a worm, to lift up himſelf above heaven.

Verſ. 13. Hieron. I have raiſed him in righteouſneſſe and will direct all his waies. Some, ſaith Jerom, expound this of Cyrus, to ſpeak of whom the Prophet now returns again; and ſome of Zorobabel; but he of Chriſt; becauſe the things here ſpoken of agree to neither; not to Cyrus, for he was not directed by God in all his waies, for he knew not God, *verſ.*4. neither did he build the City, but Nehemiah: Nor to Zorobabel, for he ſet not the Captives at liberty, neither built the City; but Chriſt both built the City of God, which is his Church; according Mat. 5. to that, Upon this rock I will build my Church; and this is a City ſet upon an hill that cannot be hid: and ſet the captivated in ſin at liberty, *Iſa.*61.1. and went aright in all his waies, and ſet the people at liberty without any price paid by them; for he gave himſelf a ranſom for them, *Matth.*20.28. And to this agree Procopius, Euſebius, Origen, Haimo: But Calvin is for Cyrus. The beſt, as was ſaid before, to expound it of Cyrus as the type, and more fully accompliſhed in Chriſt his antitype. And he ſaith, I have raiſed him in righteouſneſſe, to ſtop the mouths of any that ſhould ſay, Why not ſome Hebrew, but Cyrus an Heathen? and why not before this time? Gods will was to do it now, and this is the moſt exact rule of righteouſneſſe, wherefore all muſt reſt therein. Although Cyrus built not the City, yet he laid a foundation by ſending home thoſe that did it afterwards, and he began the race of thoſe Kings that furthered the building of it: And of his free diſmiſſing of the Captivated Jews, ſee Ezra 1.

Verſ. 14. Hieronym. The labour of Egypt and merchandize of Ethiopia ſhall come over unto thee, &c. Here alſo he rejects the Expoſition of this applyed to Cyrus, becauſe it is ſaid, They ſhall make ſupplication unto thee, and ſay, God is in thee: And *verſ.*15. Thou art a God that hideſt thy ſelf; which by no means can agree to Cyrus, but to Chriſt only, as any rational man muſt needs yield. For is Cyrus a God, beſides whom there is none? and was God in him; or how was he hidden? But to Chriſt all theſe agree excellently. For in the man Chriſt, God dwelt bodily, but was hidden under the vale of mans nature, and no God is there beſides him; whereby as when it is ſpoken of the Father, the Son is not excluded; ſo when it is ſpoken of the Son, the Father is not. The Jews to elude this teſtimony touching Chriſt, ſay, that Jeruſalem being before ſpoken of, which is the City ſaid to be built; that this is ſpoken of it, God is in thee, and there is none other: And then by a ſudden apoſtrophe he turns to God, *verſ.*15. ſaying, Thou only art the true God, who haſt hidden thy ſelf; becauſe not ſeeming to be of ſuch power to ſave thy people all this time, but now appearing to be a God of all power indeed. But this is to divide things conjoyned, making verſ. 14.

to ſpeak of one, and verſ. 15. of another, whereas they both ſpeak plainly of one and the ſame God, Chriſt Jeſus. And by the Egyptians, Ethiopians and Sabeans, he meaneth all Nations, ſome moſt notorious for Idolatry, as Egypt and Ethiopia for ſtrength, ſtature and ſtoutneſſe unſubduable by any being put for all. Their riches ſerved Chriſt, when imbracing the Goſpel they built Temples to his honour, and gave maintenance to his Miniſters and poor members moſt liberally, ſee more of Egypt and Ethiopia, Chap. 43. 3,4. and with Jerom agree Procopius, Euſebius, Cyril, Hilary, &c. Yet it is not to be denied, but that it doth in ſome part belong to Cyrus, of whom he ſpake before in this Chapter. For Egypt and Ethiopia, and Sabæa the chief Province thereof were brought under Cyrus, Xenophon li. 7. & 8. Cyripædia, and then their Xenophon.
adoring of him is to be underſtood of outward honour, and becauſe he did not theſe great things of himſelf, but a divine power going along with him, which Heathen men took no notice of, God is ſaid to have been in him, and hidden in him. Vatablus applieth this to the Jews, with whom the Egyptians and Vatablus.
Ethiopians ſeeing God to be, joyned themſelves turning to their Religion: ſo Hugo Card.
alſo Hugo. Calvin and Oecolampadius will have Ieruſalem underſtood in theſe Calvin.
words, Shall come to thee, becauſe it is the feminine gender, and therefore can Occolamp.
not be applied to Cyrus, yet Cyrus ſhould be the means, when having ſubdued them, and thus gotten riches in abundance, he gave ſo liberally to the Temple at Ieruſalem. But this Calv. ſaith, was chiefly fulfilled in Chriſt, when theſe Nations and all others were ſubdued to his Goſpel, for then their wealth went to ſerve his Church. And they were lead after his Miniſters in chains, when by the ſpirit coming upon them in hearing they were bound in their minds and affections, as his Captives, to follow the Jews, amongſt whom the evangelical Church firſt was, that is, thoſe choſen ones, the Twelve and Seventy ſent out to preach, who together with other faithfull perſons were now the only true Ieruſalem there. For the next words touching God, and God is hid in thee, both he and Muſculus underſtand them, as ſpoken properly of God. Only in thee is God, and there is none without thee] That is, they ſhall have the Chriſtian Church in Muſcul.
ſuch honour, as conceiving now, as the truth is, that God is in her, although he ſeemed all this time to be hidden in reſpect of his power, becauſe he ſuffered his own people to lie ſo long ſubject to many oppreſſions of Heathens and grievous miſeries. For when he helps not, he is ſaid to hide his face, Pſalm.
13.1. and then the wicked enemies of the Church are bold to ſay, Where is now their God? Pſa. 79.9. Lyra applieth all to Cyrus, till we come to theſe words [in thee only is God] wherein he ſaith, the Prophet turns to God in way of Lyra.
magnifying him, who did ſo wonderfully by Cyrus for the comfort of his people, meaning, that God who by Cyrus did all, as being in him by the ſpirit of fortitude, muſt needs be for this acknowledged the only true God, although in his Divinity hidden from the eyes of men, or rather he ſhould have ſaid, as he was in Cyrus, hidden and not perceived by carnal men, who attributed all to Cyrus his own valour.

They ſhall be aſhamed and bluſh, &c. The power and providence of God being hitherto aſſerted againſt all Idolaters and their wiſe men, who ſtood Verſ.16.
for other gods, now he returns again to inveigh againſt them that they might all be aſhamed, who had truſted in ſuch gods, as neither knew nor could do ought. Againſt whom he oppoſeth Iſrael, verſ. 17. ſaying, That he ſhould not be aſhamed, becauſe ſaved by his God by an eternal ſalvation] That is, Verſ.17.
the faithfull of Iſrael according to the fleſh, as the faithfull of the Gentiles ſhall alſo be verſ. 20. And this the Prophet addeth, ſaith Calvin, that they might not look only at their deliverance from the Babyloniſh Captivity, and ſaving out of the hands of thoſe enemies; but from thence take occaſion Calvin.
to look to a farre greater ſalvation to come by Chriſt in heaven for ever and ever, being delivered from all ſpiritual enemies, ſinne, death and the devil.

Verſ.18, Verſ.19. Hieronym.

Then repeating again his making of all things Verſ. 18. he ſaith, That although he had been hidden, yet his Word, whereby he ſtirred up Jacob to ſeek him in aſſured expectation of being ſaved, was not hidden, but plainly ſet forth by his Prophets, that they might all know it. Jerom having ſpoken upon theſe words, He formed the earth to be inhabited; that the meaning is, the inhabitants thereof ſhould hereby come to know and worſhip him, ſaith, that the word which he ſpake to the ſeed of Iſrael, not in an hidden place of the earth, was the Law of the ten Commandments, which he ſpake from the top of mount Sinai before them all, forbidding falſe gods and images, and commanding to acknowledge, and love, and ſerve him, or rather the Goſpel, though firſt ſpoken to the loſt ſheep of the houſe of Iſrael in their Temple and Synagogues, yet afterwards the ſound thereof went into all Lands, and they rejecting it, the Apoſtles turned to the Gentiles. Oecolamp. Calvin. Muſcul. Occolampadius is for the Law given by Moſes here meant, Calvin for the Goſpel, but Muſculus better for Law and Prophets, and the Goſpel alſo. For as the Law was given openly, ſo Chriſt taught publickly, and in ſecret he ſaid nothing, Joh. 18. 20. and he bad his Diſciples Preach upon the houſe top, Mat. 10.27. And the Prophet Iſaiah is bidden, Cry aloud, lift up thy voice like a trumpet. And Habakkuk muſt write the Prophecie ſo plainly That he who runs might reade it; whereas 2 *Pet.*1.19. the word of the Prophets is ſaid to be as a light ſhining in a dark place, the meaning is nothing elſe, but that herein was a light directing unto Chriſt, in a time of types and ſhadows, whereby the knowledge of him was kept in darkneſſe, Judea it ſelf was then but a dark place in compariſon of the Church under the Goſpel, but becauſe there were Prophets they were not without a light. And what was this word that was not in a dark place? Seek ye me, and this was not in vain, none ever ſought the Lord in their diſtreſſes, but he delivered them, and to ſeek by Jeſus Chriſt under the Goſpel is a ſure way to ſpeed, *Joh.*14. which condemns ſeekers to Saints departed. Note. Laſtly, he ſaith, his word was not in an hidden place of the earth, alluding to them that had ſpirits of divination, who ſpake out of a Cave, or low dark place of the earth with a muttering voice. Note. The true God doth not ſo, and therefore they that teach in ſecret places, or ſeek to make the word of God obſcure by keeping it in an unknown tongue, as Sectaries and Papiſts, are no true Miniſters of God, but rather of Satan, who as he is the Prince of darkneſſe, loves to have all done in darkneſſe. Let no man here object and ſay, The Word is hard to be underſtood, and the Word rightly underſtood is the word of God, but till then it is in darkneſſe; and therefore though tranſlated into a tongue commonly underſtood, it is ſtill in a dark place. Sol. There is enough in the Word plain and eaſie to be underſtood, as that by knowing and believing it a man may be ſaved, if he deceiveth not himſelf for want of doing accordingly; neither can the dark places be dangerouſly miſtaken by him that holds him cloſe to the truth ſet forth in the plain. If it be ſaid, Wherefore then ſerve obſcure places? Anſw. To draw the minde from other ſtudies to exerciſe it ſelf in the ſtudy of Gods holy Word, and to ſhew the neceſſity of Interpreters, whom otherwiſe the people would be ready to think ſuperfluous, and their lucubrations hereupon ſuperfluous alſo; and becauſe the knowledge of divine things moſt hardly attained is moſt delightfull, as the kernel is the ſweeteſt of the nut, and treaſure within the earth being found, the moſt precious part thereof, and in digging for this treaſure to finde as much of it as he can; to labour, is a wiſe part, but a fooliſh to be content without it, ſith he is Bleſſed that meditates in the Word, and exerciſeth himſelf herein day and night; Pſal.1, Revel.1.3. And of the obſcureſt book thereof it is ſaid, Bleſſed is he that readeth and heareth the Words of this book; that is, with underſtanding, for he is elevated more high towards heaven, whilſt he lives upon earth, that underſtands moſt of the myſteries of God, ſith the perfection of heavenly bliſs is to know perfectly what we know here but in part, 1 *Cor.*13.

Verſ.20. They underſtand nothing that extoll the wood of a graven image, and pray to a

God that ſaves not. But in the words before in this verſe, he invites the Gentiles alſo to ſeek to God, as he had done the Jews before *verſ.*19. ſaying, Come ye, draw near ye that are ſaved of the Gentiles, as Jerom, The eſcaped of the Gentiles, as the New Tranſlation to the ſame effect, becauſe the word פלטי ſignifieth Hieronym. eſcaped or delivered; and here he intimateth, that all the Gentiles ſhall not be converted together, but when ſome turned and were ſaved, others ſhould worſhip idols ſtill, to whom he ſpeaks in the next words, They underſtand nothing, &c. Calvin. Calvin renders it, Abjects of the Gentiles, becauſe the word alſo ſignifieth ſo; and thus without diſtinction takes all here ſaid to be ſpoken to the idolatrous Gentiles, whom he cals abjects, not meaning the pooreſt amongſt them, but even the greateſt; for by Idolatry even the beſt are made abjects and ſlaves, putting their ſhoulders under the Idol to carry it, and then bowing unto it; and therefore he makes nothing elſe of this, but a repetition of that which was ſaid *Chap.*41.21. *Chap.*43.9. Others, ſaith Vatablus, by the eſcaped here underſtand the Jews eſcaping home from amongſt the Gentiles, and ſome actively, Ye deliverers of the Gentiles, as if their Idols were meant, whom they counted their Saviours, although they could do nothing leſſe. The word I grant may without wreſting be taken this laſt way; but if it be underſtood as ſpoken to the Idols, the next words will not agree, to the Jews it cannot be applied, becauſe the words are, Ye eſcaped Gentiles, not Ye eſcaped of the Gentiles. For the word Abjects of the Gentiles, if we conſider what followeth *verſ.*22. That all the ends of the earth ſhall be ſaved, it can have no place here. For who are the ends of the earth that ſhall be ſaved, but the Gentiles, who though they come of ſuch, as through their Idolatry periſhed, yet imbracing the faith of Chriſt they eſcape damnation, and attain Gods Kingdom? and therefore I doubt not but the ſame are here ſpoken of and bidden draw near to hearken, as to the vanity of their fellows ſtubbornly adhering to falſe gods ſtill, ſo the grace that they ſhall one day partake of, viz. ſalvation, *ver.*22. And in ſpeaking in the later part of this verſe of Images, which they pray to, that cannot ſave, he makes an oppoſition to that ſpoken of the true God, *verſ.*19. My word was not to Jacob, Seek ye me in vain; here they that pray or ſeek to Idols ſhall do it in vain, for they cannot ſave their petitioners.

Verſ.21. Having cenſured Idolaters as void of underſtanding verſ. 20. here he challengeth them in the name of the true God, if they had any thing to ſay in defence of their Idols, to bring it forth. Who gave intelligence of this from the beginning, and of old, &c. Here is the Lords juſtification, that he is the true God, his foretelling of many things from the beginning of the world, which have been accompliſhed, and of ſalvation to come to the Gentiles, and of the overthrow of the Babyloniſh Monarchy of old, that is, long before it comes: for he that knoweth muſt appoint all theſe things, and by his power effect them, and he that doth ſo is the true God, and there is none other. Then he Verſ.22. comes to that greateſt ſalvation of all, *verſ.*22. Look to me and be ſaved all ye ends of the earth] That is, turn from Idols, look not after them, nor ſeek to them in your diſtreſſes, but to me who alone can ſave you. Verſ.23. Yea and that ye ſhall do ſo, I do here certainly foretell, I have ſworne by my ſelf, To me every knee ſhall bow, &c. And this is applied to prove the ſubjection of all to Chriſt at the day of Judgement to be judged by him, Rom. 4.10,11. Calv. But as Calvin well noteth, One, that is, the laſt part of all mens ſubjection to him, is only named here, all being meant, viz. both the ſubjection of obeying his Goſpel, by believing and making profeſſion thereof, and by humbly ſubmitting to his ſentence at the day of Judgement, none daring to mutter againſt it. And therefore *Phil.*2.6. the ſame words of bowing the knee in his name are uſed, to ſhew, that all ſhould turn to his Goſpel from dumb Idols, ſeeking to the Father in his name and mediation only, and if any ſhall not voluntarily here, at the day of Judgement they ſhall bow to him, and crave admiſſion into his Kingdom in vain, whether on earth, as the now living, or under the earth, as the dead and buried, or evil ſpirits in heavenly places. For as they Matth. 7.21. beg, Lord, open to us, ſo moſt probably ſhall all both wicked men and devils, being ſtricken with the horrour of hell, in moſt humble wiſe. Now the Lord confirms this, as being moſt hard to be believed, by oath, that no Jews might harden their hearts againſt it as impoſſible, to the magnifying of themſelves, as Gods only people alwayes, and the deſpiſing of the Gentiles, which Note. they were moſt apt to do. And he ſwears by himſelf, becauſe none is greater, and hereby he teacheth all ſwearing by any other thing to be unlawfull, for all ſwearing muſt be by the greateſt in all the world only, otherwiſe the glory of the greateſt is taken and given to inferiours to his high diſhonour. For he by whom men ſwear, hath this honour done to him, That he is acknowledged the hearer of prayer, for or againſt a mans ſelf, and one that hath power to be revenged upon the perjured. And therefore ſwearing by my name, in the next words, after bowing to me, is added for further expreſſion, how all ſhould bow to him, viz. in praying to him; one caſe, wherein there is need to pray to him Note. in ſwearing, being put for all. And here again Calvin notes well, that it is not enough in heart to bow to God, but externally alſo in prayer, and becauſe this is ſpoken in oppoſition to Idols, they ſin that bow to an Idol, and deceive themſelves, if they think, that forſomuch as their heart is to the true God, they do not ill, though with the knee in ſome place and company they bow to an Idol. The knees that bowed to Baal in the time of the general overſpreading of Idolatry were none of theirs, whom God had reſerved to himſelf.

Verſ. 24. Only in the Lord, ſaith he to me, righteouſneſſes and ſtrength, to him he ſhall come, and all that rage againſt him ſhall be confounded. That is, every one turning to me, as is before-ſaid, confeſſeth me only to be righteous and omnipotent, and none other to be God, that is, mighty, as the word אל God, ſignifieth, but worſhippers of falſe gods, who have and ſhall ſtill impugn God and his truth, ſhall be brought to nought.

Verſ. 25. Contrariwiſe they ſhall glory in the Lord that be the ſeed of Iſrael, and he ſaith, the whole ſeed, becauſe his ſpiritual ſeed, of which he here ſpeaketh, was the elect company both of Jews and Gentiles, now they having abandoned Idolatry and imbraced the truth of God, ſhall be the moſt glorious Church in the world, as having the Son of God for their Head.

CHAP. XLVI.

Verſ 1. Bel boweth down, Nebo ſtoopeth, &c. The Goſpel with the light thereof ſhining, Bel called alſo Iupiter Belus, the chief god of the Heathen, and Nebo ſignifying Prophecy; and therefore moſt aptly ſetting forth Apollo his Oracle, being in moſt high eſteem before now, fall to be of no reckoning, becauſe Oracles ceaſed, and the worſhip of Bel was had in abomination, and the true God in all countreys only worſhipped and ſerved. Their graven images were in the cattel and the beaſt, that is, they had other gods alſo, the images of cattel leſſe and greater, for ſo idolatrous were the Egyptians, that they worſhipped ſuch Images for gods, Dogs and Cats and Lions, and therefore from them gave divers of their Cities names, as Cuno, from a Dog, Leonto from a Lion, yea by the Deluſian religion an Onion and a fart were terrible gods, ſaith Jerom, Your carriages are heavy laden.

Verſ. 2. They could not deliver the burthen, but themſelves are gone into captivity. Vul. Your burthens were heavy in weight, even to wearines: and this agrees beſt with the Hebrew, the meaning being, that the burthen of Idols were heavy to them that for honours ſake unto them carried them, by reaſon of their maſſineſſe of gold and ſilver of which they were made, ſo that their Prieſts were by bearing ſo great a burthen much wearied and fainted. Then Vulgar Latin, proceeds verſ. 2. They could not ſave the bearer, but משא ſignifieth the burthen then moſt properly, and therefore the Idol, which was the burthen, is meant, it could not ſave it ſelf, but went into Captivity, that is, the riches and trea-ſure thereon, being taken and carried away as ſpoils by the enemy. Hebr. it is,

Their ſoul went into Captivity] and this Jerom retains, expounding it of the ſouls of them that carried Idols formerly as their gods, they could not ſave them; but notwithſtanding this great obſequiouſneſſe they were led away Captive. But taking it as ſpoken of Idols, he ſaith, That ſouls are improperly aſcribed to them, as in the Proverbs, an hand to the tongue, where it is ſaid, Life and death are in the hand of the tongue; and then concludeth, That Idolatry is an heavy burthen, and makes mens ſouls go into the captivity of the devil.
Junius ſaith, by Bel ſome underſtand Jupiter, ſome Saturn, and ſome the Sun; Junius.
to which laſt he rather agreeth, becauſe Aſſyrians, and Babylonians, and Per-ſians worſhipped the Sunne and the Fire, as a God, becauſe a parcel, as it were of the Sunne. The word Bel ſignifieth Lord, as coming of Baal, Dominus. Nebo he renders a propheſying God, underſtanding hereby all the rabble of the Heathen gods, giving anſwers by their Prieſts ſtanding behinde them, which way of their Oracles anſwering, he ſaith, is intimated in theſe words, The propheſying God is bent back, for ſo he renders it. For the carriages ſo heavy here ſpoken of, all agree that they were Idols of ſilver and gold, which the Perſians having taken laded many beaſts with, and ſo carried them away; and expreſſing who went into Captivity, he names the Babylonians. But however the fall of the Babylonians Idols be literally meant here, and their impotency to ſave themſelves out of the hands of their enemies, yet the Prophecie extends further, as hath been ſaid, to the foretelling of the ruine of Idolatry in all coun-treys, when Jeſus came into the world, and his faith was preached and imbraced. And to this agreeth Muſculus. But whereas the words, They were a Muſcul.
burthen to the beaſts and the cattel, have been by Jerom expounded of Images of beaſts made gods, it hath no place here; but it is meant that the beaſts of burthen were heavy laden by them, when they were carried away in Carrs by them. Calvin by Nebo underſtands ſome god of the Babylonians, ſecond to Calvin.
Bel, and by theſe two all others.

Having thus propheſied of the ruine of falſe gods ſo certainly, as if they Verſ.3.
had been then fallen, for he ſpake in the Preter tenſe; he now commemorates what he had done for Iſrael, and what he would do in carrying them in ſafety from the very beginning of that Nation out of Egypt, and now again out of Babylon, that they might be aſhamed to have forſaken him, and to have gone after falſe gods.

Then laying open the vanity of Idolatry, as he did *Chap.*40.25. & 44.9. he Verſ.5,6,7.
exhorts them to recount both that and this, and to do as men that have wiſ- Verſ.8,9.
dom and underſtanding ought to do; and not as fooliſh Heathens, and ſo they muſt needs all acknowledge him the true God and none other; and to be the God alone that foretelleth, and doth whatſoever he pleaſeth, and ſo hath Verſ.10.
done of old, even from the beginning; of Gods care of Iſrael from the womb, ſee before *Chap.*44.25. Of his declaring things of old *Ch.*45.21. Then coming to that wonderfull thing in particular touching Cyrus, named *Chap.*44.28. he now calleth him a ravening bird out of the Eaſt, as *Chap.*41.25. He had ſpoken Verſ.11.
of one to come out of the North, and from the riſing of the Sunne. For that by this bird he meant a man, the next words ſhew, The man of my councel.
But to ſet him forth, Hebr. there is one word only עיט a bird uſed, and ſo Jerom renders it, applying it to Chriſt, but it it plainly meant of Cyrus, whom in his divine Councel he had appointed to make a prey of the Babylonians and their Idols.

But in the next words he cometh again to the times of the Goſpel, verſ. 12, Verſ.12,13.
13. Hearken to me ye hard hearted, &c. meaning the houſe of Jacob before-ſpoken to *ver.*3. But now he cals them hard-hearted, and farre from righteouſneſſe, Act.7.
becauſe they hardened their hearts againſt Chriſt, rejecting his faith, and conſequently righteouſneſſe. But he ſaith, That he would bring it near, and place it in Zion for or to Iſrael his glory, that is, Chriſt, who is ſalvation and glory, for he was near them, becauſe he was in the City of Zion and in the Land of Iſrael, although their own hard-heartedneſſe they neither attained Hieronym. Juſtification nor Salvation hereby. Thus Jerom who alſo applieth it to Cyrus his revenging the Jews wrongs upon the Caldeans, and ſaving and delivering them out of Captivity. Whereby they came to be moſt glorious and renowned amongſt the Nations. Yet he cals them hard-hearted, and ſuch as were farre from righteouſneſſe, although he made his righteouſneſſe to come near, that is, becauſe through unbelief they counted not God righteous in promiſing this deliverance, and ſo they that then lived when this was propheſied, periſhed in their ſins, but to another generation his righteouſneſſe came near, and his ſalvation when that was performed, which he promiſed; and they were delivered and made glorious. In the Hebrew Bible theſe two verſes are made the beginning of Cha.47. as if the Babylonians were here begun to be ſpoken to, againſt whom he propheſieth Chap.47. and I ſee no reaſon why they ſhould be taken from that Chapter, and added to this. But rather as the Prophets beginning to ſpeak to the Caldees in the name of the Lord, who did greatly harden their hearts againſt the Jews to exerciſe all cruelty upon them; Junius for [Ye hard-hearted] hath it, robuſti corde, Stout-hearted, that relent nothing at the judgemerts threatned againſt you for your cruelty againſt my people, to uſe any whit the more lenity towards them, as is expreſſed Cha.47. 6. And that which further makes it probable that it is ſpoken to the Babylonians, is his ſpeaking, not of them, but to them in the next words Chap. 47.1. where he foretels their utter ruine, and therefore in reaſon theſe words muſt be premiſed to ſtirre them up to attention to hear their doom, although not to profit them, yet to comfort the faithfull Iſraelites, when it ſhould come to their hands. Moreover at other times when Iſrael is ſpoken to, he is named, but here not; only he ſaith, Hear ye hard-hearted] and then as being oppoſed to Iſrael, he ſaith, I will make my righteouſneſſe come near, and ſalvation to Iſrael, And if it be thus underſtood, in ſaying, they were farre from righteouſneſſe, he meant They were moſt wicked, but to Iſrael, whom they ſo much contemned righteouſneſſe ſhould be near, when by their afflictions God had thorowly purged away their ſins, and conſequently ſalvation out of the hands of them their cruel enemies.

CHAP. XLVII.

Verſ.1. C*Ome down, and ſit in the duſt, O virgin, daughter of Babylon*, &c. In theſe and the next words it is ſhewed, that Babylon the head-City of the world, and now as a beautifull virgin in her chiefeſt glory, ſhould become as a poor Captive debaſed with the loweſt debaſement, and grinding at a mill, which Hieronym. Jerom ſaith, ſome apply to ſpiritual Babylon, Rome, for by this name Peter in Verſ.3. his Epiſtle calleth Rome. Whereas it is added, Thy nakedneſſe ſhall be ſeen, it is meant, that ſhe ſhould be proſtituted to the will of others, as an whore; in which ſenſe the uncovering of a womans ſhame is often uſed Levit.18. and this is taken by Jerom as added to grinding at a mill for explanation; ſo Samſon is ſaid to be made to grinde by the Philiſtims, when they had put out his eyes, by lying with their women to get ſtout and ſtrong men. But this is only a vain fancy both there and here, if none other words had been added but thoſe of grinding; but here the Prophet intending to ſet forth the ſlaviſh condition of Babylon, not only being put to ſo hard and baſe a work as grinding at a mill, but alſo in continuing his Allegory of a virgin her being forced and raviſhed as it were by her enemies, and ſo ſpoiled of her virginity, and turned into the baſe condition of a common whore; he doth to ſhew this uſe a further expreſſion, Verſ.2. Vncover thy lock, make bare thy thigh, uncover thy hip, thy nakedneſſe ſhall be Calvin. uncovered, &c. Here is a deſcription, ſaith Calvin, of a people in all manner of miſery, being before curiouſly deckt as a fair and rich Virgin of Noble deſcent, her locks curled, and her body cloathed with moſt gorgeous apparell from top to toe; but now her hair hanging neglected and ſhe being ſtript naked, no not the privy parts, which nature tels ſhould be kept ſecret and covered, being ſpared, and thus forced to go through the waters all filthy and ſqualidous into Captivity. And in ſpeaking of the waters he alludeth to the ſituation of Babylon, compaſſed about with great rivers. Verſ.3. Thy nakedneſſe ſhall then be uncovered, and thy ſhame ſeen; that is, as whilſt the body is curiouſly deckt, the blemiſhes thereof are not ſeen, but ſtrip it naked and then the deformity appeareth; ſo a ſtate being in honour the blemiſhes thereof are hidden by the outward cover of worldly proſperity and glory, cruelty is but juſtice, oppreſſing of others, valour; pride glory, and covetouſneſs worthineſs to the greater ſtrengthening of the ſtate: But ſtrip it of wealth and power, and bring it under, and then theſe ſhamefull vices are ſeen and talked of by every one, as they are to their ſhame that are thus blemiſhed. I will take revenge and will not meet man. Some, as a man, whoſe force may be reſiſted. Vulg. Man ſhall not reſiſt me: But Hebr. it is in the firſt perſon, I will not meet, or occurre, or come againſt man. Some, I will not be met by man, although any ſhould come out to intercede when I am about to take revenge, but will proceed. The firſt is beſt and leaſt coact: I will not as a man oppoſe her, but as God Almighty, ſo that ſhe ſhall not be able to withſtand theſe my terrible judgements, when the time of execution is come. I that now bid Babylon come down, will make my word powerfull to bring her down: As at the firſt I ſaid, Let there be light, and Let the waters gather together, &c. and it was ſo: and as from time to time I ſpeak of any Nation, Be plucked up rooted out, and deſtroyed: Jer.18.7. And I am in none of theſe as a man, whoſe words are but winde.

Verſ.4. As for our redeemer the Lord of hoſts is his name. Having hitherto ſpoken of the miſeries of Babylon, of which alſo he goes on to ſpeak, verſ.5. he anſwers a queſtion that might be made here by reaſon of the laſt words of verſ.3. I will not come againſt her as a man. Why, what art thou then? Anſ. Our redeemer, who will redeem us out of Captivity when this is done, is the Lord of hoſts, with whom no armies or hoſts in the world are able to deal; therefore it ſhall certainly be ſo. And becauſe it ſhall be ſo, Verſ.5. Sit in darkneſſe, O daughter of the Caldees; Babylon being ſo called, becauſe built by the Caldees: That is, abide in miſery, expecting no more dominion over Nations.

Verſ.6. I was wroth with my people, and have polluted mine inheritance. If any man ſhall ſay in Babylons behalf, Why is ſhe thus threatned, ſeeing ſhe hath done nothing againſt Judah but what God appointed her to do? Anſ. She exceeded the meaſure, as not underſtanding by what means and for what cauſe ſhe prevailed. God gave his people into her hands, and made her Lady over their Land, thus polluting or making it common to other Nations, which was the Lords inheritance peculiarly, and his peoples; and this he did but for a time in his wrath, becauſe they had greatly ſinned. But the Caldees taking no notice of this that the Lord did it, and that for their correction, not their deſtruction, proudly tyrannized over them as their vaſſals, brought thus under by their own ſtrength, not ſparing from cruel and contemptuous uſage, the very ancient, who by the law of nature are venerable in all Nations. Note. A warning to Victorers at any time ſubduing the faithfull, to take heed of pride by aſcribing victory to themſelves (for God gives it to whomſoever it happens) and exceeding meaſure in the cruel and ſpitefull uſage of the vanquiſhed, eſpecially of the ancient.

Verſ.7,8. Thou ſaieſt, I ſhall be a lady for ever, &c. Here the ſecurity of Babylon is ſet forth, notwithſtanding her ill deſerts threatning terrible judgements to come upon her, ſhe yet feared nothing, either widdowhood or loſſe of children; but he threatneth her with both in one day, for her ſorceries and inchantments ſo greatly abounding. And this was fulfilled when Babylon being taken by Cyrus, her people were ſlain, none being ſuffered any more to inhabit there; and her King at the ſame time, viz. Belſhazzar, Dan.5. for he was, as it were, Hieron. her huſband, and the people her children: Thus alſo Jerom. And full of ſorceries and inchantments ſhe was, becauſe full of Wizzards and Aſtrologers, deeming themſelves to be the wiſeſt men in the world, as being able to ſee into, not only things preſent, but to come long after, by the conſtellations, whereupon I have touched before, chap 44.25.

Verſ.10. Thou haſt truſted in thy wickedneſſe, &c. Here he cals that which the Caldee Aſtrologers counted wiſdom, wickedneſſe: They could ſee no evil coming upon them by the ſtarres, and therefore feared none; for which he ſaith, Thy Verſ.11. wiſdom hath deceived thee. And *verſ.*11. Evil ſhall come upon thee and thou ſhalt not know. If not, let them prove it otherwiſe by ſaving thee and themſelves, *verſ.*12,13. which he ſheweth that they ſhould not be able to do, becauſe, as fire burneth the ſtubble, ſo ſhould Gods judgements conſume them, *verſ.*14.
Verſ.14. and then it is added, There ſhall be no coal to warm at, whereby he meaneth that they ſhould be conſumed as ſtraw to aſhes, not as wood that muſt be longer in burning to coals; whereby both the ſuddenneſſe of their deſtruction is ſet forth, and their utter deſtruction, nothing combuſtible remaining to Babylon after this any more, as there did not to Sodom or Gomorrah, which were turned Hieronym. to aſhes. Jerom ſaith, that the Hebrews by a coal not remaining to the Aſtro-logers, underſtood a coal or ſpark to give the leaſt light; but it is not ſaid, coal to give light, but to warm them, fire to ſit before, Hebr.

Verſ.15. Thus ſhall they be to thee with whom thou haſt laboured, even thy merchants, &c.
Vulg. Thus they are made to thee in whom thou haſt laboured, thy merchants. That is, Thy Aſtrologers are become, as then ſhall appear, evil negotiatours for thee, changing thee from better to worſe, and ſo leaving thee finally to deſtru-Calvin. ction. And he ſpeaks of their labouring about Aſtrologers, becauſe they had that art in eſteem, and laboured therefore to promote it, and to increaſe their number; and he compareth them to Merchants, becauſe as they, ſo Aſtrolo-gers had all crafty waies to beguile thoſe that had to do with them.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Verſ.1,2. HAving *chap.*47. threatned Babylon with deſtruction, whereby deliverance ſhould come to the Jews; now leſt they ſhould for this think highly of themſelves, and the better of their Idols, as if by their help this great work had been done; he chargeth them with groſs hypocriſie, that they made a ſhew of piety in calling upon the Lord, and calling themſelves Jews from the waters of Judah, that is, his ſeed of which they came; and holy, from Jeru- ſalem the holy City; but he ſaith they did it not in truth nor righteouſneſſe.
Verſ.3. Then he inculcateth his declaring before that theſe things ſhould thus come to paſſe, that they might have no colour, as he knew they otherwiſe would, of aſcribing them, when they ſhould come to paſſe, to the Idols, whom they treacherouſly ſerved, and he knew would ſeek to honour above the true God, who alone doth all. And he doth not only ſhew that it is he, and not Idols, that declares thus long before the deſtruction of Babylon, but that he had uſed from the beginning of the world to declare things to come, as Noahs floud, Sodoms burning, the Canaanites ſpewing out of the Land, and the Iſraelites enemies prevailing againſt them round about in caſe of their tranſgreſſing, *v.*3, 4,5,6. but alſo this new thing hitherto concealed but now revealed, touching Babylon, and themſelves delivered thence; that if their hardneſſe of heart, and perverſneſſe hindered not, might be good for them to know to make them Ver.6,7,8,9. turn to the worſhipping of God in ſincerity, *verſ.*6,7,8,9. Jerom takes all this Hieronym. to be ſpoken, as if the Lord had called upon them to hear, not what he did of old in Egypt, in the wilderneſſe and in the Land of Canaan, caſting the Cana- anites out and planting them in: But a new thing which he was now about to do, whereby it might yet further appear that he was the true God, and none other.

other. But that which he biddeth them hear is not ſingle, but double, for he ſaith, I have declared the former things. Verſ.3. And I have ſhewed thee new things from this time, verſ.6. and thus it is alſo underſtood by Lyra and others, and *chap.*42.9. he ſpake before to the ſame effect and in other places

For my Names ſake I will defer mine anger, &c. The condition of the Jews Verſ.9. being ſo bad, as hath been ſaid, if any ſhall marvel why they were ſpared ſo long, and that judgements cut them not quite off before this time, he ſheweth here, that he hitherto deferred for his own ſake, as chap. 43.25. as being tender over his own name and glory; not becauſe they deſerved not utter deſtruction from their very beginning to be a Nation. And now that he did put them into the furnace of adverſity by the Caldees prevailing againſt them, He ſaith, that he tried them not as ſilver, that is, till all droſſe was purged out, none Verſ.10. but pure mettal remaining; for that he could not do without utterly ruining them, leaving none alive, becauſe there is nothing pure in any man, but what God giveth him, and that by afflictions, for which he ſaith, I have choſen thee in the furnace of affliction: Thus alſo Calvin. But why did he thus favourably Calvin. by them, being ſo vile and ſinfull, for his own ſake? Sol. verſ.11. How ſhall my Verſ.11. name be prophaned, &c. As if he had ſaid, I cannot do otherwiſe, unleſſe I ſuffer my Name to be vilified, whilſt that giving my people over to utter deſtruction by the hands of idolatrous enemies, they ſhall ſay That their Gods are moſt mighty, and the God of Iſrael of no power; for this were giving his glory to another, as is here ſaid, and *chap.*42.8.

Hear me (O Iſrael) my called, &c. Having hitherto called upon Iſrael to Verſ.12. hear of his ſins and unworthineſs, that he might acknowledge whatſoever ſhould be done for him in deferring his puniſhment or delivering him again from it, to come from Gods meer mercy; now he calleth upon him to hear again, and to beleeve what he heareth touching his deliverance, which might ſeem impoſſible: And he beginneth 1. With his ſpeciall calling to be his peculiar people, for which they might beleeve that they ſhould never be utterly caſt off. 2. With his power ſhewed in making the whole world; and his eternity, Verſ.13. being the firſt and laſt.

Then he ſaith, All ye aſſemble your ſelves and hear, and hear. Whereby Iſrael Verſ.14. muſt needs be meant, being before called upon twice by name to hear, *verſ.*1. and *verſ.*12. Which of them hath declared theſe things, the Lord hath loved him, &c. That is, Which of the Caldee Aſtrologers could foretell of the things concerning Cyrus, to whom the Lord ſhewed ſo much love as to bring the Babylonian Empire into his power, and ſo to inable and ſtirre him to the building of his Temple? *Verſ.*16. He ſtirres them up again to hear it; for he ſaith that he Verſ.16. ſpake it not to be kept ſecret, but by his people to be divulged to their comfort and his glory. From the time that it was, I was there.] About theſe words, ſaith Calvin, much doubt is made who is meant by this word [I] but he thinks, Calvin. God, who made all promiſes of comfort to his people, and by his power effects all things in his due time, that nothing may be aſcribed to chance. Some, ſaith Muſculus, draw to Abraham; ſome to Chriſt, and ſome to Iſaiah, as if he were preſent by the Spirit when theſe things were done; but this laſt is by Calvin mentioned and rejected, as coact; but to me it ſeems moſt genuine, if we put this Paraphraſe upon it. This prediction touching Cyrus doing the will of God upon Babylon, was never ſecretly uttered when it was firſt afoot, for God made me the inſtrument ſo ſoon as it was his pleaſure that it ſhould be publiſhed, to ſpeak openly unto you of it; and now the Lord and his Spirit ſends me again further to confirm you touching the ſame. That it cannot be underſtood of ancient promiſes, but of this promiſe only, is plain from the words מעת היותה From the time that this was; and then it worſe agreeth unto God to refer it to him, that he was from this time, who verſ 12. ſaith, I am the firſt and the laſt; and therefore long before the going out of this decree, even from everlaſting. Jerom, who expounds all of Chriſt, as myſtically Hieronym. meant by him, verſ.14. that he ſhould do all his will upon the Caldees, that is, upon the devils, underſtands this of Chriſt alſo; He was with the Father then when he ſo loved him, and when he came in the fleſh it was by his ſending, and in all that he did, ſpake and ſuffered. But the laſt words, And now the Lord God and his Spirit hath ſent me, are manifeſtly ſpoken by the Prophet of himſelf, that he might have them to beleeve his Prophecie.

Verſ.17. I am the Lord which teacheth thee to profit, Hebr. to make thee profit. Here is ſhewed why the Lord ſo often calleth upon his people to hear his word, viz. not that any benefit ſhall hereby redound unto him, but to themſelves, if the fault be not their own, great ſhall be the benefit; for hereby they ſhall be directed in the way of bleſſing and life; which ſhould ſtirre all men up with all diligence to hear to be directed; not ſaying with the wicked in Job, We care Job 21.14. not for the knowledge of his waies, What profit ſhall we have if we call upon him?

Verſ.18,19. That it might appear what profit cometh by Gods teaching, if they would have been directed thereby, *verſ.*18,19. he ſaith, Oh that thou hadſt hearkened to my commandments! then thy peace had been as a river, &c. That is, in abundance, becauſe then thy righteouſneſſe ſhould have been as a floud to make this river to runne full; as it is ſaid, *That the fruit of righteouſneſſe is peace, Iſa.*32.17.

Verſ.20. Go ye out of Babylon, &c. This he ſpeaks for their greater comfort, as if it were now in doing, which ſhould not be till above an hundred years after; and he ſtirs up to talk much of it, that it might be commonly known and expected. Verſ.21. And *verſ.*21. to make them expect then a comfortable paſſage, and the ſupply of all neceſſaries even miraculouſly, he remembers them of the rocks flowing with waters in the wilderneſſe, through which they came, when out of Egypt, Exod. 17. *Numb.*20.

Verſ.22. There is no peace to the wicked. That all might not promiſcuouſly lay hold upon the comfortable promiſes beforegoing, but the faithfull only, ſometime called the remnant whom the Lord will ſave; he thus concludeth againſt the multitude of the wicked, that they may never expect peace or comfort, whe- Note. ther of the Jewiſh Nation or of any other. They may have preſent proſperity indeed, but yet none of Gods ſervants ſtumble at this, to be made the more remiſs in their piety, but conſidering what horrible deſtruction ſhall at length come unto them, be conſtant even under ſufferings in the good way to the end, leſt fainting and falling off, they come into the ſame danger.

CHAP. XLIX.

Verſ.1. Liſten ye Iſles, and hearken ye people from far, &c. Having ſpoken in the former Chapter to Iſrael, to comfort the Jews in reſpect of their deliverance to come out of Babylon; now he ſpeaks to the people of all Countries and Nations, of another greater deliverance to come by Chriſt Jeſus, becauſe it concerned all Nations, as is plain, verſ.6. I will give thee a light to the Gentiles, that Lyra. thou maieſt be my ſalvation to the ends of the earth. Yet the Hebrews, ſaith Lyra, apply it to Cyrus, but Paul and Barnabas to Chriſt, *Act.*13 47. And Simeon, *Luk.*2.32. And therefore all Chriſtian Expoſitours agree about it, amongſt Calvin. whom Calvin ſaith, that they who divide the Prophecies of Iſaiah into Books, make the ſixth and laſt to begin here, wherein Chriſt is plainly ſpoken of, who was before ſet forth more obſcurely. Yet R.Solomon agreeth that the Meſſiah is here propheſied of, but not he in whom we beleeve, but one who they ima- Hieronym. gine is yet to come. But Jerom divideth theſe Prophecies not into ſix, but into Junius. eighteen Books. Junius ſaith, that two deliverances are ſpoken of by this Prophet, one from the Babyloniſh Captivity, *chap.*40. and hitherto; the other by Chriſt, from hence to the end of the Prophecie. Howſoever I aſſent not to him in the firſt, becauſe both deliverances are touched in the premiſes; yet I do in the latter. And with him I take theſe words, Liſten ye Iſles, as ſpoken in the perſon of Chriſt, intimating, that his Goſpel ſhould be preached to all Nations, even the furtheſt off from Judea, as well as the neareſt; that is, to the Iſlands, for they were furtheſt off: And therefore Muſculus noteth, that by the Iſlands and thoſe afar off, are meant the ſame, and not divers people: ſee the like compellation, chap. 41.1,5. 34.1. From the bowels of my mother he hath made mention of my Name. For ſo it was ſaid by the Angel to Joſeph, the husband of Mary, when ſhe was with childe, Thou ſhalt call his Name Jeſus. Matth.1.18.

Verſ.2. And he hath ſet my mouth as a ſharp ſword. Chriſt is here ſet forth by two compariſons, 1. Of a ſharp ſword. 2. Of a bright and ſharp arrow, to ſhew that his words ſhould not be vain, but piercing into mens hearts, galling the malicious wicked, as the Scribes and Phariſees, and pricking others to their converſion. Of the Phariſees ſee *Matth.*21. Of others *Joh.*7.36. So the word is alſo compared, *Heb.*4.12. and it appeared to be ſo in the mouth of his ſervant Peter, Act.2.37. when his hearers were pricked in their hearts: and out of Chriſts mouth is ſaid to come a two-edged ſword, *Revel.*1.16. And, as for a ſword, there is a ſcabbard; for arrows, a quiver to hide them in: ſo Chriſt was ſheltered under Gods protection, till that voluntarily he went to his paſſion; thus Calvin and Muſculus. Calvin. Muſcul. But Jerom expounds his hiding of his Divinity, hidden under the fleſh, which he took, as in a quiver; ſee *chap.*45.15. Thou art a God that hideſt thy ſelf. And he ſaith that the Apoſtles were arrows to wound the hearts of them to whom they preached, but he a choſen arrow above them all; Hieron. and that there are more arrows, is implied by ſaying, a choſen arrow; that is, one more excellent amongſt many, and *Pſ.*45. Thy arrows are ſharp, and thy enemies ſhall be ſubdued unto thee. And he is a ſword to divide between the good and the bad, for which he ſaith, I came not to ſend peace, but a ſword.

Verſ.3. Thou art my ſervant (O Iſrael) in whom I will be glorified. Here God the Father ſpeaks to his Son, calling him his ſervant; for ſo Chriſt ſaid of himſelf, that he came to miniſter, *Matth.*20. or to ſerve; and *Phil.*2.6. he came in the form of a ſervant; and Iſrael, becauſe he came of Iſrael, and was moſt worthy of this name of all others; for not all that come of Iſrael according to the fleſh, are Iſrael, though of Iſrael, Rom.9.6. But one ſpecially is honoured with this name, and who can this be but he, who is ſingularly ſaid to be the ſeed of Abraham, that is, Chriſt, *Gal.*3.16. and in and through him all the truly faithfull, being his members; who yet I cannot think are together with him here meant, as Calvin contendeth; and this the next words evince, *verſ.*4. Verſ.4. I ſaid I have laboured in vain. Wherein the Son and not the whole body of the faithfull, anſwereth to the Father, ſaying before, My ſervant in whom I will be glorified: But alas, ſaith he, how ſhall this be, ſeeing I labour for this indeed, but in vain, ſeeing ſo few were converted to the faith by his teaching. And few, ſaith Saſbont, to this day, will take time to conſider his labour in preaching, in prayer and faſting, and ſuffering a cruel death for us; Ad. Saſbont. for if they did, they would be more affected with love towards him that loved them ſo dearly. Yet my judgement is with the Lord, &c. That is, to judge betwixt me and the people, with whom my labour takes none effect for their converſion, pronouncing on my ſide that I have done all that could be done for their ſalvation; and denouncing againſt them damnation, who would not be moved to repent and beleeve, what pains ſoever I took to bring them hereunto. By which words, ſaith Jerom, he intimateth a liberty of will in them, Hieron. which becauſe they abuſed to make them averſe from Chriſt, they ſhall be moſt juſtly condemned. And my work with my God. That is, the reward of my work; for although the Jews, through the hardneſs of their hearts beleeved not, his labour was not loſt, but highly rewarded, when he had a Name given him above all names, *Phil.*2.6. Neither ſhall the labour of any faithfull Miniſter of his be loſt, although uneffectuall to thoſe amongſt whom, through their own malice.

Verſ.5. That I ſhould bring Jacob to him, and that Iſrael ſhould not be gathered. Hereby, ſaith Jerom, Hieron. is meant that Chriſt ſhould firſt preach only to the Jews, and ſeek their converſion; according to which he ſaith, I am not ſent, but to the loſt ſheep of the houſe of Iſrael. But when they in ſtead of imbracing his doctrine, ſought to kill him and did kill him, as is ſet forth in the parable, *Matth.*21. of the husbandmens having the Vineyard let unto them, then this doom againſt them took effect; that he intended the gathering of them no more, but he ſent his Apoſtles to the Gentiles. And whereas the Septuagint hath it, and I Iſrael ſhall be gathered, And Aquila, ſo skilfull in the Hebrew, That Iſrael ſhould be gathered to him; he cenſureth both, as eluding a moſt pregnant teſtimony againſt the Jews, of their obduration and being forſaken, after that they had been a while by Chriſt preached unto; ſaying that it is לא not, and not לו to him, which is here uſed: and therefore Symmachus and Theodotion render it not alſo. The Hebrews ſay that there be fifteen places in the Bible, in which לא is put for לו, and this is one, and therefore in the margin it is לו; hereby Aquila is thought by Jerom to have been deceived; but we muſt take heed Ad. Sasbout. how we be led about all the rules of the Jews; ſo Saſbont. Retain we therefore the reading in the text in the ſenſe before going, and yet neglect not that in the margin, being haply appoſed to intimate their future converſion, when they ſhall ceaſe to be abdurated any longer, *Rom.*11. 2 *Cor.*3. I ſhall be glorious in the eyes of the Lord, that is, Although Iſrael be not gathered, as in our N.Tr. ו and, being rendred by although. Theſe words are added to ſhew how Chriſt ſhould not loſe his labour, of which it was ſpoken before, *verſ.*4. for he ſhould be glorious notwithſtanding, and of great power amongſt other Nations; as is immediatly ſhewed, verſ.6.

Verſ.6. Having turned ſome of the Jews firſt, he ſhall be a light to lighten the Gentiles, &c. upon which I have ſpoken before, *verſ.*1.

Verſ.7. Thus ſaith the Lord to him whom man deſpiſeth,&c. Here, as *verſ.*5. the Lord replieth to his Son Chriſt again, comforting him in this, that although he were contemptible to man, yea to the Nation of the Jews, and uſed like a ſervant by their Princes, Herod, Annas, Caiphas, and Pontius Pilat; that is, baſely; Hieron. yet Kings and Princes ſhould ſee and riſe and worſhip him; that is, ſaith Jerom, firſt, at the day of judgement; but by and by better, imbracing his faith, and ſo doing him reverence, as the Son of God. But ſome, he ſaith, by the deſpiſed here, underſtand the Jews, whom he alſo calleth an abominated Nation, Muſcul. Calvin. and this is followed by Muſculus and Calvin, referring it to the contempt wherein the Jews were had under the Babyloniſh Kings in the time of their Captivity, being made their ſervants: But when Cyrus the Perſian was King over all, the King himſelf and his Princes roſe up for honours ſake to them, and in ſo doing they are ſaid to worſhip him, that is, God. But he preferreth Junius. the former, as there is good reaſon. Junius is alſo for Chriſt, here underſtood by the contemptible ſoul; for ſo it is Hebr. and whereas Calvin renders the next words, The abominable Nation, he whom the Nation abominates, meaning the Nation of the Jews; but Calvins reading being admitted, as agreeable to the Hebrew, and followed by the Vulg.Lat. yet it is not neceſſary to underſtand Lyra. the Jewiſh Nation here ſpoken of: But as Lyra hath it, The Chriſtian had in abomination by the Jews, for beleeving in Chriſt, and made ſervants by being condemned to the mines by Heathen Emperours, for Chriſt and his Church are one. But when the whole current of the Prophecie is touching Chriſt, it is altogether from the purpoſe to bring the Jew in here delivered by Cyrus, eſpecially their obduration being before propheſied of, *verſ.*5. It is therefore undoubtedly ſpoken of Chriſt and his Church, the miracles done wherein when Kings ſhould ſee, they ſhould riſe up and turn Chriſtian alſo, and worſhippers of Chriſt, as Conſtantine the great and other Emperours after him. But Chriſt might well be called a contemptible ſoul or man, becauſe ſo hated by the Jews; that, as Jerom ſaith, they curſed him in their Synagogues three times in a day.

Verſ.8. Thus ſaith the Lord, in an acceptible time I have heard thee,&c. Here the Prophet goeth on to ſpeak more comfort to Chriſt, who was by the wicked Jews despiſed, and in deſpight crucified. The Lord ſaith, that he heard him in an acceptable time; that is, ſaith Jerom, when hanging upon the Croſſe he cried out, My God, my God, Why haſt thou forſaken me? For God made it appear, that he heard him and forſook him not, in that he raiſed him from the dead, and gave him for a Covenant to the people, that he ſhould raiſe up the earth, &c. For thus S^t Paul applieth it, 2 Cor.6.2. Having chap.5.2. ſaid, He made him to be ſin for us, that knew no ſin, that we might be made the righteouſneſſe of God through him. He here to prove it to be ſo ſaith, For in an acceptable time I have heard thee, &c. That is, through thy death to be ſo reconciled to all that beleeve, as to juſtifie them by thy righteouſneſſe, and to ſave them. For accordingly he gave him for a Covenant to the people, that is, to ſuch of the Jews as beleeved: And ſtirred up the earth, that is, men of other parts of the earth, who lay buried in the errour of idolatry, And poſſeſſed the diſſipated inheritances, or deſert inheritances: So called becauſe they had not God dwelling in them, but now he takes them into his poſſeſſion when they are converted. And he ſaith to them that are bound, Go out; that is, bound with ſin and in darkneſſe of ignorance as in a dark dungeon; Be refreſhed with the light of ſaving knowledge. They ſhall be fed in the way, That is, with wholſome inſtructions out of the world whilſt they live in this world, for here we are in the way, and afterwards in heaven they ſhall neither hunger nor thirſt any more, but enjoy perpetuall ſatiety of joyes and pleaſures unſpeakable; ſee the ſame, Revel.7. And I will ſet all my mountains for a way for them. That is, heightening low places, that all their way may be plain and ſo delightfull. Laſtly, ſhewing who they be with whom he will deal thus, he ſaith, Behold theſe ſhall come from farre, theſe from the north, and the ſea, or weſt, and theſe from the land of Sinim, that is, the South; and then thoſe from afarre, are from the Eaſt. But the Septuagint, for the Land of Sinim, hath, the land of the Perſians, which is Eaſt, and then they from afar muſt be South. Thus Jerom, ſaying, that it is here propheſied of the converſion of peoples in all parts, Eaſt, Weſt, North and South, and conſequently of their ſalvation according to that of our Lord, Luk.13.29. They ſhall come from the Eaſt, Weſt, &c. and ſit down in the Kingdom of heaven. Lyra differs little from Jerom, and whereas it is ſaid, They ſhall be fed in all plain places. He ſaith, hereby are meant the good examples of the Saints, which are more available to teach ſimple people then the inſtructions of the word: And he is ſaid to be a Covenant to the people, becauſe they came by him to be in Covenant with God. They ſhall be brought to the fountains of water. This implieth full reſt in the good attained in heaven: So Calvin applieth all this from, v.8. to v.13. Chriſt, that he draweth almoſt all firſt to the Jews delivered out of Babylon, and generally to all Gods faithfull people, both Jews and Gentiles. For firſt, In an acceptable time I have heard thee. This is manifeſtly ſpoken to the comfort of every beleever, and to Chriſt in relation to his Church, the good whereof he ſought and not his own continually; and ſo it is applied by the Apoſtle, 2 Cor.6.

Hieronym.

Lyra.

Verſ.10. Neither ſun nor heat ſhall ſmite them. This is ſpoken in alluſion to the pillar of a cloud ſhadowing them in the wilderneſſe: And whereas he ſpeaks of their feeding upon high places, he aſſimulates them to ſheep, and Chriſt to a ſhepherd, leading his ſheep into divers paſtures; intimating that every where there ſhould be paſture enough, even upon the tops of hils. Here the Vulg. having it, In plain places, is to be amended, for the worn שפים here uſed is high places. Verſ.11. I will make all my mountains waies, That is, I will remove all impediments from before them. Verſ.12. Some by Sinis underſtand mount Sinai, and hereby the South, becauſe it was ſouthward; ſome Siene, under the tropick of Cancer: But without contending further about it, we may reſt in that which hath been already ſaid.

Verſ.13. Sing O heavens, &c. Of this ſee before, chap.44.23. being the ſame almoſt verbatim.

Verſ.15. Can a woman forget her ſucking childe? In the former verſe Zion is brought in complaining, The Lord hath left me,&c. to that it is here replied.

Hieron.

Now Zion or Jeruſalem, ſaith Jerom, is taken four waies; 1. For the place properly ſo called. 2. For the Congregation of Saints, both of Jews and Gentiles; of which it is ſaid, the Lord loveth the gates of Zion more then all the habitations of Jacob: For hereby cannot be meant Zion properly, which was long ago deſtroyed, but that Zion which God loves cannot be deſtroyed. 3. For the company of Angels, according to *Heb.*12.22. Ye are come to mount Zion, to the heavenly Jeruſalem, to an innumerable company of Angels. 4. For that Jeruſalem which ſhall be, ſpoken of *Revel.*21. and 22. of which our Judaizers ſpeak many things which they underſtand not, and upon the deſcription of it, *Ezek.*44. Here, by Zion, of which God will be ſo mindfull, the Congregation of Saints is to be underſtood. Thy builders came, which deſtroyed thee, they ſhall go out of thee. Who were the builders but the Scribes and Phariſees? for they were the builders which refuſed the Stone, which is the chief Stone of the corner, building by traditions of men, and ſo deſtroying thoſe that were thus built by them; for they compaſſed ſea and land to make one Proſelyte, and then he is twofold more the childe of hell then themſelves. But now they ſhall go out from the true Zion, the Church of Chriſt, and ſo ſhall all hereticks, for the Church ſhall not follow ſuch any more in their teaching, but ſeparate from them. Lift up thine eies and ſee, all theſe are gathered to thee. To this our Lord alludeth, when he ſaith, Lift up your eies and ſee, the regions are already white unto the harveſt. As I live, ſaith the Lord, thou ſhalt be clad with all theſe as with an ornament. Here for more aſſurance the Lord confirms by oath, that the faithfull Jews, that is, Apoſtles and other preachers ſhall convert the Gentiles to the true faith, and the great multitudes of them that they converted ſhall be as an ornament making them glorious in all the world in the eyes of beleevers, as a brides ornaments doth her of the ſpouſe of Chriſt, the Church thus adorned, ſee *Pſ.*45. Her cloathing is of gold, wrought about with divers colours, For thy deſolate places and wilderneſſes ſhall be ſtreight for thy inhabitants. That is, The Goſpel being ſo readily every where received by ſo many. And they that devoured thee ſhall be driven far away; that is, falſe teachers before ſaid to deſtroy her, And the children of thy barrenneſſe ſhall ſay in thine ears, the place is too ſtreight, &c. That is, whereas thou wert formerly barren and deſpairedſt of ever having any children, thou ſhalt now have ſo many as that it ſhall drive thee into an admiration how thou cameſt by them.

Calvin.
Muſcul.

Calvin and Muſculus underſtanding Zion literally of the inhabitants of Zion; the Jews ſay, that this is ſpoken for their comfort, although their City ſhould be deſtroyed and lie long deſolate; yet God did not all this time forget it, no more then a man doth the ſignet upon his finger, the continuall ſeeing whereof maketh him that he cannot forget it. Wherein it is alluded to that precept which God gave of binding the commandments to their right hand. And becauſe he alſo addeth [Thy wals are continually before me] But when they ſhould afterwards ſee the City lie in ruinous heaps ſeventy years together, they might deſpair of this promiſe, ſaying, Alas our wals are all down and lying in ruinous heaps: He ſaith, *verſ.*17. Thy builders make haſte, thy deſtroyers ſhall depart far from thee. That is, The Perſians taking care to build the Temple and City again, when the time which God hath appointed ſhall come, ſhall provide for the doing of it with all ſpeed; and the Caldees their enemies, who deſtroyed and kept them under, ſhall go out of their Countrey, as having nothing to do there any more. Here the reading of the text, I confeſſe, is more according to the Hebrew then that of Ierom, ſo that it needs to be corrected. But being thus corrected, the ſenſe will be good of the Evangelical Church, Thy builders haſten; for the Apoſtles went preaching from place to place, and being perſecuted in one City, went to another; and falſe teachers, who had formerly miſled the people, and ſo indeed were their deſtroyers, continued not in any credit amongſt the faithfull any longer, which is meant by their going out of thee.

Verſ.18.

But whereas he ſpeaks of the people returning to Zion in great multitudes, as an ornament unto her; Calvin noteth rightly, that when the Church of Chriſt hath many children, that imbrace the truth from their hearts and live accordingly, ſhe is adorned and beautified indeed, but not when the Temple is decked with glorious Images, which the Papiſts count great ornaments. So St Paul calleth the Corinthians his crown, and Cornelia a great Lady in Rome, as I remember, her two ſons, the Scipio's her ornaments; ſaying to a noble man that ſhewed her the coſtly furniture of his houſe, they coming in in the interim, Et hæc ſunt ornamenta mea. Verſ.19. And *verſ.*19. finding that the great multitudes of children making that Jeruſalem was too little to contain them, cannot be applied to the Jews returning from Captivity, for Jeruſalem had ſo few inhabitants, that they were conſtrained for a ſupply to provide by laws for the peopling thereof out of the Countrey, he applieth it with Jerom, to the times of the Goſpel, and likewiſe *ver.*20. where the Church is brought in admiring at her own ſo numerous a brood, all true children that any knew of, failing, and the means of begetting them, true doctrine, till Chriſt and his fore-runner and Apoſtles came. Note. Whence note how vain the Papiſts are in making the perpetual viſibility of the Church a mark thereof, ſeeing at Chriſts coming ſhe was ſo deſtitute of children, and ſo ſhall be at his ſecond coming, of which he ſaith, When the ſon of man cometh, ſhall he finde faith upon the earth? And the Churches lying hid in the wilderneſſe before that 1260 dayes argueth the ſame, that none be deceived hereby.

Verſ.22. I will lift up my hand to the Gentiles, and ſet up a Standard to the people. This is ſpoken in anſwer to the Church complaining of her barrenneſſe, but comforted with a Promiſe of a moſt numerous off-ſpring. Here it is ſhewed, how this ſhall be, even as a King by ſetting up his Standard, gathers multitudes of men about him to encreaſe his Army; ſo he ſaith, that he would by the Goſpel lifted up by his hand of miracles, and made ſo glorious that Nations ſhould deſire it, draw innumerable multitudes out of the Nations to the faith of Chriſt herein ſet forth. Jerom thinks the ſign of the Croſſe to be meant by this Standard. Of lifting up an enſign, but for another end, ſee before Chap. 5.22. Ad. Sasbont. Sasbont, the firſt ſign lifted up was the Goſpel, the ſecond, the whole word of God, the third, the ſign of the Croſſe. And they ſhall bring thy ſons in their arms, &c. That is, ſaith Lyra, their children to be baptized, and thus to be made ſons of the Church, for which he ſaith, Thy ſons and thy daughters, Note. he meaneth, that they ſhould firſt by hearing believe, and be admitted into Act.16. the Church by Baptiſm, and then all their little ones alſo, as it is commonly ſaid, Believe and thou ſhalt be ſaved and all thy houſe, and he was baptized and all his houſe. A plain place againſt them that deny the baptizing of Infants; for to whom is ſalvation promiſed, but to him and all his family upon his believing? and what were his children but of his family? When he was baptized then, and all his houſe, who can deny that his children were baptized alſo? If any man ſhall ſay, haply he had none, we may more certainly affirm, if he had, they ſhould have been baptized, becauſe otherwiſe all his houſe ſhould not have been ſaved, becauſe not all baptized; and yet I ſay not, that all are ſaved that are baptized, but whomſoever we would have ſaved, we ought to baptize upon this ground. And Parents cannot ſay of their children to the Church, They are thy children, unleſſe they bring them in their arms to be ſo made by Baptiſm. I know that it is by ſome expounded metaphorically, as *Deut.*32.10. God is ſaid to have carried the Hebrews in his boſom, *Hoſ.*11.3. But it is a rule in Theology, That when any ſentence of Scripture may be taken properly without abſurdity, it is ſo to be underſtood; as when children were brought to Chriſt to be bleſſed, and he took them up in his arms; ſo here there being no abſurdity to ſay that Parents carry their children in their arms to be baptized, the literal ſenſe is to be taken, and no need to flee to a metaphorical. If it be objected, he ſaith not Theirs, but Thy children, ſpeaking to the Jew; Sol. He ſaith Thine by anticipation, meaning ſuch as I will preſently making them to be of Iſrael, whereby the children of Zion, that is, the mother-mother-Church of the Jews ſhall be ſo wonderfully encreaſed, as hath been ſaid.

Verſ.23. And Kings ſhall be thy nurſing Fathers, and Queens thy nurſing Mothers. The children of the Church growing ſo wonderfully numerous, as hath been ſaid, if ſhe ſhall begin to take care how to nouriſh and maintain ſo many, here that Query is ſatisfied, Kings ſhall be thy nurſing Fathers, &c. Now the Nurſe feeds the childe, and defends it from harm, ſo it is hereby intimated, That Kings and Queens ſhould do by the faithfull under the Goſpel, 1. Providing that the Preachers thereof may have ſufficient maintenance, that they may not need to trouble themſelves about worldly things. 2. For the maintenance of Schools of good literature, as Seminaries of godlineſſe and learning, that the Church may thence have a continual ſupply of able Paſtors. 3. For the relief of poor Widows and Orphans, and other impotent perſons, that none may be ſuffered for want to wander as vagabonds, which is a diſgrace to Chriſtianity: and to this end to build Hoſpitals and Alms-houſes, and indowing them with means. 4. Defending the innocent from oppreſſors by judging righteouſly, and the Church in general from enemies, that ſeek to overthrow it, either by force of arms, or to corrupt it by any kinde of hereſie. They ſhall worſhip thee with their faces bowed to the ground, &c. That is, Chriſt Jeſus, believing him to be the Sonne of God and very God. For although the ſpeech be directed to Zion, that is, the Church, yet when any thing of adoration is brought in, it is to be referred to the Head thereof, who cannot be conſidered as ſeparate, but joyned as one with his Church. Wherefore it is meant firſt, That Kings and Queens, as well as common people ſhould ſerve Chriſt with all reverence. 2. Bow to the truth taught by his Miniſters becoming in all things obedient unto it, and ſubmitting themſelves to hear it with fear and reverence, and ſuch Kings as do not theſe things are unworthy of Chriſt, and the ineſtimable benefits coming by him. But this is not to be applied to any man of the Church or men, though never ſo eminent, as if Kings and Queens were bound thus out of their piety to bow to him or them, Note. as the proud Biſhops of Rome apply it to Peter, and to themſelves: But if they would look into *Act.*10. and ſee how Peter would not endure Cornelius to bow to him, they would be greatly aſhamed of this their pride, whereby they rather repreſent Heathen Emperours who were ambitious of divine honours, Joh.13. then Chriſts Miniſters, whoſe greateſt glory is humility towards one another; and therefore much more towards Kings and Princes. Neither can it be hence commended for Kings to be profuſe towards any of Chriſts Miniſters in reſpect of worldly honours or riches, becauſe he ſaith, They ſhould be nurſing Fathers, and honours of this kinde, are plainly interdicted, Matth. 20. and a Biſhop muſt not be given to filthy lucre, 1 *Tim.*3.

Verſ.24. Shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or the captive juſtly taken delivered? Having ſpoken hitherto of the deliverance of the faithfull by Chriſt, that it ſhall certainly be, and of their glorious condition after this deliverance, now he removeth an objection againſt it, and ſo ſeeks further to confirm it. Although it be not commonly done, that the prey is taken from the mighty, or the captive taken in warre juſtly without agreeing upon a price, yet as the Jews had this performed to them, when they were pluckt out of the hands of the King of Babylon, who had made a prey of them, and delivered out of Captivity gratis, ſo Gods choſen people of all Countreys and Nations being before made a prey by the devil, Matth.12. whilſt they lived in Idolatry, and ſo juſtly taken captive, although held by a ſtrong man armed, were taken away by a ſtronger, and by him delivered, he being deſtroyed in reſpect of all his ſtrength againſt them by his death. Heb.2.15. And he renders a reaſon hereof, verſ. 25. Verſ.25. I will contend with him that contends with thee, &c. And the Lords power is irreſiſtible.

Verſ.26. And I will feed thy ſpoilers with their own fleſh, &c. That is, as they had deſtroyed his people the Jews, thus feeding, as it were, upon their fleſh, and drinking their bloud, ſo they ſhould be deſtroyed, their feeding upon the fleſh of others according to this ſenſe being turned into feeding upon their own fleſh, when they ſhould be ſlain in great multitudes, as they had ſlain others in moſt cruel manner: they are then threatned Lege talionis, and it is not neceſſary as Muſculus and Calvin do, to expound it of their falling together by the ears amongſt themſelves, thus by their ſwords mutually devouring one another, as ſometime the Edomites and Moabites did 2 *Chron.*20. For God makes them to feed upon their own fleſh, to whoſe ravenous deſire to eat the fleſh of others, he putteth an end by deſtroying them by whomſoever, and making them to fall thick one upon another, and to lie deep in their own bloud. For the Babylonians never ate ſo their own fleſh that we read of, but this was done when the Perſians overcame Babylon, and according to this Thomiris the Scythian Queen did ſometime to Cyrus, when having cut off his head ſhe put it into a veſſel filled with his and his mens bloud, with this exprobation, Satia te ſanguine quem diu ſitiſti, Fill thy ſelf with bloud which thou haſt long thirſted after. Neither did the Heathen afterwards, who had ſhed the bloud of innumerable Saints under the New Teſtament, pay for it by deſtroying one another, but the Chriſtians under Conſtantine overcoming Lycinius, and his Army, and under Theodoſius the idolatrous people that came againſt them.

CHAP. L.

Verſ.1. Hieron.

WHere is the bill of your mothers divorcement that I have put away?* &c. Here by mother Jerom underſtands Jeruſalem, whom the Lord ſuffered to be deſtroyed, and then by her children muſt be underſtood children according to the fleſh. And he ſaith, it was not through harſhneſs in the Lord giving her a bill of divorce without cauſe that this came unto her, but by her own ſins.

Verſ.2.

Wherefore when I came was there no man, none to anſwer? And this he applieth to Chriſt coming in the fleſh, to whoſe calling none of the carnal Jews anſwered, and he noteth that he ſaith [no man] becauſe they were all turned into beaſts, Herod their King into a fox, ſome into a generation of vipers, ſome that are fleſhly and luſtfull and ſenſual into ſwine, the impudent into dogs, for which it is ſaid, Caſt not your pearls before ſwine, &c. and he called them, by ſaying, Come to me all that be weary, and, If any man thirſteth, let him come. And to this agreeth Cyril, Procopius, Euſebius, Ambroſe and Origen, who upon *Matth.*26. ſaith, that the whole Church conſents about it. The ſame alſo appears by Lyra. Yet ſome underſtand it of the Jews in Captivity: But we may well reſt in the firſt, taking it, as further ſpoken to the complaint made *Chap.*49.14. of being forſaken. Only there the faithfull amongſt the Jews complain and are comforted, here the carnal are challenged for laying the fault upon the Lord, that Jeruſalem was deſtroyed by the Romans. If ſo, he bids them ſhew their mothers bill of divorce, whereby it might appear that the fault was in the Lord and not in her that ſhe was put thus away. For as Calvin hath it, a woman being put away by a bill of divorce from her huſband, was hereby juſtified, that it was not for her fault, but through his moroſity that ſhe was put away. Wherefore he bids them if they can to bring forth ſuch a bill, but this they could not, and therefore the cauſe was manifeſt, their ſins. The Jewiſh Church had been the Spouſe of God, but now ſhe is for her ſins put away, and the Church of the Gentiles called to this honour. And this was her main ſinne, that he calling to the faith of the Goſpel, none would anſwer, but all hardened their hearts. And being hereupon put away, when for the Jews refuſal the Apoſtles turned to the Gentiles, her deſtruction ſoon followed. For the cauſe of this could not be any inability in God, or muta-

Cyril. Euſeb.*l.*2.*c.*34. Ambroſ.*l.*8.in Luk.1.

Calvin.

mutability in reſpect of good will: For his hand he ſaith was not ſhortened; and to ſhew how able and willing he was he recounteth his drying up of the ſea, that is, the red ſea to let them go thorow upon dry Land, thus delivering Verſ.3. them from the Egyptians that purſued them, his drying of rivers, that is, Jor- dan in like manner, and ſmiting the rivers in Egypt that the fiſhes died, and covering the face of the Heaven over that Land ſo with darkneſſe, that they Ad. Sasbont. could not ſee for three dayes. Saſbont expounds this only, as ſhewing what Lyra. God can do. Lyra varieth only about covering the Heavens with darkneſſe, referring it to the darkneſſe upon all the earth at the time of Chriſts paſſion.
The Hebrew words are all of the future tenſe, whereby I think with Saſbont, that God can do it when he pleaſeth, and being able to do theſe things he can doubtleſs deliver his people alſo, not only from Babylon, but from ſin and death by his Son Jeſus Chriſt.

Verſ.4. He hath given me the tongue of the learned, that I might know in ſeaſon a word exciting to the weary. Thus it is Hebr. and the meaning is plain, how to ſpeak a word of comfort to the weary, whereby their drooping ſpirits might be ſtirred up and cheared. And although the Hebrews, and Thomas Aquinas, and Calvin apply this to Iſaiah and other Prophets of God in general, ſet to comfort his afflicted people after threatning and reproof, yet I doubt not but with Jerom and all other ancient Expoſitours, to referre it to Chriſt, as Junius alſo doth. For having declared his power to ſave verſ. 2,3. challenging the hard-hearted Jews for their obſtinacy, of whom none would anſwer, when he came into this world, and taught, and did wonders amongſt them, ſhew-ing therein ſo great power indeed, as that they might eaſily gather him to be Almighty, and ſo able to do all the things mentioned there. Now he is brought in further ſpeaking of his admirable gift in teaching; for it is ſaid, Matth.7. That he taught with authority, and not as the Scribes, and the Officers ſent to Joh.7. take him, ſaid, Never man ſpake as he did; and for the weary in particular, Matth. 11.28. Come to me all that be weary and heavy laden. And whence this admirable faculty came, he ſheweth in the next words, Morning by morning he ſhall ſtirre up my ear, that I may hear as the learned; that is, God makes me from day to day to hear, and ſo to ſpeak what he biddeth me, and how. For ſo Chriſt the ſon of man often ſaith, That he did and ſpake nothing but from his Father, and what he heard of him. And well may his ſpeaking ſeaſonably to the weary be here ſpoken of; and whence he had this learning, now that he is declaring his power. For his comfortable ſpeeches were not bare words, but words accompanied with power, to heal the ſick, to give ſight to the blinde, to cleanſe lepers, to caſt out devils, to appeaſe tempeſts, to make fiſhermens labours proſperous, when they had before toiled all night for nothing: And which is above all; to raiſe the dead, and even the dead in ſinne, and to forgive ſins, wherein the greateſt comfort in the world lieth to ſuch ſouls as feel the load Verſ.6. of ſinne, and are weary of it. Moreover the words following ver. 6. I gave my back to the ſmiters, and my cheeks, &c. do moſt notably agree unto Chriſt, whom they whipped, and buffeted, and ſpit upon, but of any ſuch thing done to Iſaiah we read not. Whereas Calvin ſaith, Neither were Davids hands or feet pierced, neither had he gall and vinegar given him to drink, &c. as Pſa.
22. many things that were done to the ſervants of God of greateſt note, not being ſet down, and therefore theſe things might be done alſo to Iſaiah, though we read not of them; It is of no force to juſtifie the expoſition applying it to Iſaiah: for we are ſure that they were done to Chriſt, but know not that they were done to Iſaiah, and it is unprobable that thoſe things *Pſal.*22.
were ever done to David; therefore the moſt certain underſtanding of both places is of Chriſt in *Pſ.*22. typified in David, or by him ſpoken of in the per-ſon of Chriſt, here properly, as brought in ſpeaking. And it is to give advantage to the Jew to apply this place otherwiſe, who will not endure to hear that Meſſiah ſhould be thus miſuſed, but reign as a King in great glory, ſubduing all the Jews enemies to them, which made them to deſpiſe Chriſt when he

he came ſo poor, and ſuffering himſelf to be ſuch a ſcorn and reproach amongſt men. And the like is manifeſtly ſpoken of Chriſt *Cha.*53. expounded thus, *Act.*8.

Verſ.5. The Lord hath opened mine ear, and I was not rebellious. That is, He hath not only given me learning to ſpeak to others by opening the ears of my minde to hear him inſtructing me, but to obey his will in keeping all his Commandments, yea the very hardeſt, even by ſuffering death upon the Croſſe. And herein every Miniſter of Chriſt ſhould make him his patern, 1. By endeavouring to be taught of God to ſpeak moſt effectually, to this end praying for the aſſiſtance of his Spirit, and not depending upon words taken out of Books. 2. To live in all things in obedience to Gods will. 3. Conſtantly to bear ſufferings in what kinde ſoever.

Verſ.7. For the Lord is with me, therefore ſhall I not be confounded, &c. God was joyned with man in the perſon of Chriſt ſuffering, and therefore he could not Verſ.8. be confounded, how ſhamefully ſoever abuſed. And God, he ſaith, juſtified him, therefore none can condemn him, as ſuffering for his own ſins, for Verſ.9. he ſuffered all to ſave his people, as *Chap.*53. For which cauſe he challengeth his adverſaries to contend with him, and prove the contrary if they could, but becauſe they could not, and yet laid wickedneſſe and deceit to his charge, he threatneth them, that they ſhould be as a Garment eaten by moths, a ſimilitude often to ſet forth the utter deſtruction of the wicked, from which there is no recovering again. Of this, or the worm that never dieth, read again *Iſa.*66. for Jerom makes them both one, gnawing upon and ſtinging the conſcience for Lyra. their evil doings. But Lyra better ſaith, becauſe Pilate and the Prieſts condemned Chriſt unjuſtly, they were deſtroyed as a garment by moths; Pilate being baniſht by Tiberius, and the Prieſts by Titus burnt in the Temple; ſorrow eating upon the one, and fire upon the other, of whom Titus ſaid, That it was fit that they which ſerved in the Temple, ſhould periſh together with it.

Verſ.10. Who is there amongſt you that feareth the Lord, that walketh in darkneſſe? &c. Having threatned Chriſts enemies *verſ.*9. now he layeth all the fault of the deſtruction threatned upon the wicked Jews themſelves, challenging them to ſay, if they can, whether there be any amongſt them that fear the Lord and hearken to Chriſts teaching, who are left in darkneſſe, that is, to ſink in the foreſaid miſery: No, let ſuch truſt and ſtay themſelves upon God, for when this time of deſtruction cometh, they ſhall be ſafe, as indeed they were, the Chriſtians a little before the ſiege of Jeruſalem being by a voice from heaven called out to go to Pella; ſo Joſephus.

Verſ.11. All ye that have kindled a fire, &c. That is, The fire of Gods wrath by your ſins, as ye have made it burn about you, ſo ye ſhall walk in it to your torment; And lie down in ſorrow, that is, periſh miſerably, and this is ſaid to have come to them from Gods hand, becauſe that although the Romans deſtroyed them and their City, yet it was by Gods arming them ſo to do, and in revenge of their malice and cruelty againſt Chriſt and his faithfull ſervants. To this effect Hieronym. Lyra, and Jerom ſaith the ſame upon *ver.*11. but upon *verſ.*10. That walketh in darkneſſe and hath no light; theſe words are by him referred to Chriſt, as a deſcription of him, being the ſervant before-ſpoken of, to hear whom is commended to all that fear the Lord. And by his being without light he underſtands the light of outward glory, for this was hidden under the form of a ſervant, wherein he appeared, as the light of the Sunne being hidden by a thick dark cloud, and whilſt it is ſo walks in darkneſs. In this ſenſe it is an exhortation to ſuch as fear the Lord, that is, with ſuch a fear, as to flee all ſinne, and hearken to Chriſt to believe in him, though nothing outwardly appeared in him to induce them to it, to truſt in the Lord and to reſt upon his help in the middeſt of greateſt dangers that ſhould come, for in ſo doing they ſhould ſurely be in Junius. ſafety. Iunius refers it to them, whom Chriſt called to faith and repentance, that walked in the darknes of ignorance, & of Phariſaiſm, but now gave ear to Chriſts Sasbont. teaching. Sasbont, Who is there that feareth the Lord, which hath walked in darkneſſe, but now heareth his ſervant Chriſt? Verily none; if there be let him truſt in the Lord. But I propound this in vain unto you, for ye make you a fire to burn you by obſtinate going on in ſinne, in ſtead of being moved by any good inſtruction to fear the Lord. Of all theſe I preferre the firſt, taking it as a conſolation to ſuch as fear God, though for the preſent in the darkneſs of miſeries, and without all light of worldly comfort or proſperity.

CHAP. LI.

Verſ.1. Look to the rock whence ye are hewen, and to the hole of the pit, &c. Having ſtirred up the faithfull to truſt in God *Chap.*50.10. although they ſhould lie long in miſery, here he ſeeks to confirm them by the example of Abraham, who was, as it were the rock out of which they were hewed, and he is ſo called for his firm faith. Of the like to which when Chriſt heard from Peter, he ſaid, Upon this rock I will build my Church, which although I do not expound of Peter, but of Chriſt, as the main foundation and the corner Stone, yet neither he, nor the reſt of the Apoſtles are to be excluded, for we are built upon the Apoſtles and Prophets, Jeſus Chriſt being the chief Stone of the corner, Eph. 2.20. and Abraham and Peter may as well be ſaid to be rocks for their admirable faith, wherein they began to others, the one in the Old Teſtament after the floud, the other under the new by a communication of the name from Chriſt the rock of us all, as other believers Chriſti, or anointed from him, the anointed above his fellows. And by the hole or cavern of the pit, out of which they were digged, Sarah is ſet forth, who was alſo famous for her faith *Heb.*11. and ſo had power in her old age to conceive and bring forth a ſon, of whom Iſrael, and all Iſraelites deſcended. Some think that it is alluded here to the water coming of the rock *Numb.*20. but this cannot be, becauſe hewing is here ſpoken of. They render a better reaſon, who, becauſe a family is like unto a building, think Abraham to be compared to a rock, and Sarah to a pit, for the materials of which a building is made ſtone out of a rock, and cement out of a pit. The difficulty alſo of their being begotten and brought forth is intimated, as it is hard to hew ſtone out of a rock, and to dig ſtuff for buildings out of a pit that is deep, for ſo Iſaac was brought forth, when it was thought by reaſon of Abrahams and Sarahs age impoſſible. Now to theſe he bids them look, that their faith might be ſtayed, becauſe to Abraham the promiſe of inheriting Canaan was made four hundred years before the accompliſhment, and therefore although many years paſſed before the Meſſiah came, in whom the comfort of all that feared God lay, they might well be comforted, even untill the accompliſhment of that moſt bleſſed Promiſe. Touching the rock here ſpoken of and the pit, excellent is the ſaying of Cyril, As it is a moſt hard thing out of a ſolid rock to cut ſtones, and to draw out of a deep pit; ſo, that a ſonne ſhould be born of an old man, and a barren old woman; but this was done beyond all mens opinions by the command and beck of God. Calvin. Calvin thinks all this is ſpoken in reſpect of the encreaſe of the Jews again after their diminution, and that they were brought to ſo few by the Babyloniſh Captivity. For God could as eaſily multiply them again, as he did Abrahams poſterity formerly. This I deny not to be true, but cannot underſtand it of the encreaſe of Iſrael according to the fleſh, becauſe in ſhewing how they ſhould be ſo greatly encreaſed, he ſaith verſ. 5. The Iſles ſhall wait upon me; and Chap. 49.22. I will lift up an enſign to the Gentiles; upon which ſee what hath been written.

Cyril. Sicut difficillimum eſt ex petra ſolida & immani lapides exſcindere, & puteum profundum exhaurire; ſic ex ſene viro & ſterili muliere naſci filium; verùm hoc effectum eſt ſupra opinionem juſſu & nutu Dei.

Verſ.2. For the encreaſe of Abrahams ſeed, that it is meant is plainly ſhewed *v.*2. I called him alone, and bleſſed, and encreaſed him. Whereby he intimates that he could do ſo again in reſpect of ſpiritual children, who only are his true ſeed, *Gal.*4.

Verſ.3. For the Lord will comfort Zion. That is, ſpiritual Zion, the Church, re-erecting her decaied buildings, by the converſion of many in all Countries to the true faith, of which the Church ſhall have great joy.

Verſ.4. For a law ſhall proceed from me, and I will make my judgement to reſt for a light of the people. This law, ſaith Lyra, is the Goſpel, which went out as a light Lyra. to all peoples, as alſo the words following declare. Yet ſome Chriſtian Expoſitours do herein more Judaize then the Hebrews themſelves, expounding it of the Decree going out from Cyrus, for even their rare Rabbins do not ſo underſtand it, but of the Meſſiah. Judgement is the ſame with the Law, the ſame being ſometime called by one of theſe names, ſometime by another; and by this that it was a light to peoples or Gentiles, the preaching of the Goſpel is often celebrated.

Verſ.5. My righteouſneſſe, or righteous one, that is, Chriſt, is near, Mine arms ſhall judge the people; that is, by my ſtrength overcoming the devil they ſhall be delivered out of his power; according to that, Now is the judgement of the world, now is the prince of this world caſt out.

Verſ.6. My ſalvation ſhall be for ever. Here is a compariſon made betwixt this world conſiſting of heaven and earth, and ſalvation to come by Chriſt, theſe ſhall wax old and vaniſh, but that is everlaſting. Jerom takes occaſion here to ſpeak of theſe creatures, as not quite to vaniſh, but to be burnt unto a change into better. But of this I have ſaid enough upon 2 *Pet.*3.10. and upon *Rom.*8.21.

Verſ.7,8. Unto this taken from the heavens, &c. he addeth another from men, the enemies of his people, whom he biddeth them not to fear, for the moth ſhall eat them as a garment; of which before, *chap.*50.9.

Verſ.9. Awake, put on ſtrength thou arm of the Lord,&c. Becauſe the Lord had made ſuch gracious promiſes, *verſ.*6,7,8. here the faithfull are brought in, ſaith Jerom, Hieron. ſtirring up the Lord by his Almighty power to do as he had promiſed, recounting his ancient mighty acts, Art not thou it that cut Rahab, or as he reades it, The proud one, expounding it of Pharaoh the King of Egypt, called alſo the Dragon, both here, and *chap.*27.1. See a like place, Pſal. 74.13. and of proud Egypt ſet forth by Rahab, Pſal.87.4. and Pharaoh again by a Dragon, *Ezek.*29.3. and the word Rahab ſignifieth ſtrength or pride. And that Egypt is meant hereby in this place appears, becauſe the mighty acts done of old recounted here, were in drying the ſea to make a way through it, and the bringing it upon the Egyptians, and the ſtriking of Egypt with divers plagues before that, for then that proud Nation was cut, and their King being terrible before as a Dragon near the river Nilus deſtroyed. As for the words, Awake, awake, it may be taken either for the Prophets prayer, teaching us how we Note. ought to ſeek the accompliſhment of Gods gracious promiſes by prayer, and not to ſay, He that hath promiſed will perform, whether we ſeek to him or no; or for the Churches prayer, not calling upon the Lord here ſet forth by his arm, ſometime by his eyes, ears, or his name to awake, as if he ſlept at any time, for he that keepeth Iſrael neither ſlumbereth nor ſleepeth: But becauſe as when the Champion ſleepeth, they that ſhould be defended by him are indangered by the enemies coming, he muſt be awaked to ſave them; ſo the Church is brought in calling upon the Lord when ſhe is in danger, and ſo continueth long and no help yet appeareth, and that after the manner of men. By the arm of the Lord, ſome underſtand Chriſt, who deſtroyeth our proudeſt and ſtouteſt ſpiritual enemies, becauſe, verſ.6. he ſpeaketh of the ſalvation for ever, and that is by Chriſt: and of this Zachary ſpeaking ſaith, He hath raiſed up for us a mighty ſalvation; and what is this but the arm of the Lord? And indeed both, I take it, are here meant, the power of God, whereby, as by his mighty hand and ſtretched out arm he brought his people out of Egypt, and his Son by as great power delivering from ſin, death and the devil. And to ſhew this, it is added, The Redeemed of the Lord ſhall come, with ſinging to Zion, Verſ.11. and everlaſting joy upon their heads, as before, *chap.*35.10. intimating the redeemed by Chriſt, and not only from the Babyloniſh Captivity, for their joy was but temporany, neither was it ever ſo full.

Verſ. 12. I, even I am he, who art thou that thou ſhouldſt be afraid of a man. The Church having called upon the arm of the Lord to awake, verſ.9. now the Lord anſwereth;
I am he that comforteth thee, &c. That is, by promiſing deliverance from all enemies, yet thou art afraid of the leaſt of them all, Of a man that ſhall die; that is, Thou (O my Church) of men ſtirring up perſecution againſt Verſ.13. thee, and he challengeth the Church for fearing not a brunt for a little time, but daily and continually becauſe of the fury of the oppreſſour: And as if this were a thing not to be feared, he ſaith, Where is the fury of the oppreſſour!
As if he had ſaid, it is a thing of naught, ſith his power is but over the body, and this ſhall ſoon have an end alſo; ſee the like *Matth.*10.28. and how much they forget the confidence that David had in God againſt all men that ſought Pſal. 56. his deſtruction, I truſt in God and will not fear what man can do to me. Verſ.14.
Verſ.14. He ſhall ſoon come that goeth to open, and he ſhall not ſlay to death, neither ſhall his bread fail; Thus Jerom. N.Tr. The captive exile haſteneth, that he may be looſed, and that he ſhould not die in the pit, nor his bread fail. Junius, He will haſtily bring forth his bound one afar off, who is to be looſed, he ſhall not die in the pit, Hieron. neither ſhall he be failed of his bread. And Jerom accordingly expounds it of the Son of God, as if it had been ſaid, My Son ſhall ſoon come and open thee the way of victory; when thine enemies rage moſt, and yet he will not ſlay them to death, but ſave ſuch of them as ſhall be converted; and his bread of heavenly doctrine feeding the ſouls of them that are ſaved, ſhall never fail, but be in his Church plentifully. Verſ.15. But I am the Lord thy God, which trouble the ſea, and the waves thereof ariſe. Here by an apoſtrophe, God the Father turns from ſpeaking to the Church, to his Son, telling him that the troubles of his Church, as of the ſea, did not ariſe without him, and therefore he could eaſily appeaſe them again: And he addeth, I have put my words into thy mouth;
according to which Chriſt ſaith, that he ſpake only what the father bad him Verſ.16. ſpeak: That thou ſhouldſt plant heaven and earth, and ſay to Zion, Thou art my people; that is, that new heaven and the new earth. Hitherto for the moſt part Jerom. For the divers readings of *verſ.*14. the Hebrew will bear any of them; but forſomuch as *verſ.*13. ſpeaking of the fury of the oppreſſour, he ſaith, laſtly, Where is it? This verſe ſeems to me to anſwer it better, being underſtood of the Son of God haſtening the opening of the priſon to the bound. For it is, as if he had ſaid by way of anſwer, His fury is nothing, becauſe his oppreſſion ſhall not continue, forſomuch as the opening of the priſon to the bound there ſhall ſpeedily be, ſo that he ſhall not die there; and untill this time he ſhall want no bread, as poor priſoners in bands uſe to do. And that this ſenſe may be more apparent, we may render it thus verbatim, The bound is haſtened to the opening, he ſhall not make him die in the pit, and his bread ſhall not fail.

Verſ.15. For Which trouble the ſea. N.Tr. Which divide the ſea, for ſo the word ſignifieth; and he meaneth the red ſea, of which he often ſpeaks, as moſt remarkable, that they might not be unbeleeving; and this verſe is to be read as coupled to the other by the word and, not but; another act of the perſon, who is ſaid there to open to the priſoners, &c. being here mentioned to make that the more credible, That thou mighteſt plant the heavens and found the earth. This Lyra. is by Lyra expounded, the heavens of contemplative men, and the earth of active. By Saſbout, of the Apoſtles and other Preachers addicted only to heavenly Ad. Saſbout. things, and of other Chriſtians, who although they be converſant about earthly things, yet their hearts are lifted up to heaven. But the beſt Expoſition Muſcul. is by Muſculus made thus, I will ſend you forth to preach my word, the power whereof ſhall be ſo great, through the Spirit accompanying the ſame, that the world ſhall hereby be renewed; and becauſe the world conſiſts of heaven and earth, he cals this renovation the planting of the heavens and earth.
For the Evangelical Church is often called the Kingdom of heaven: And in Auguſt. lib.2. reſpect of this, ſaith Auguſtine, that we have ſouls from heaven and bodies contr. Julian. from the earth, we may be called both heaven and earth. Therefore purge In Pſal.96. out the earth, that is, earthly affections, from thy heart, and thou ſhalt be heaven;

ven; thou beareſt fleſh indeed, and ſo art earth, but in thy heart thou art heaven. Again, God dwels in heaven, and he dwels in all the righteous and holy, Therefore the Apoſtles, though they were in the earth in the fleſh, were heaven, and God ſitting in them walked all over the world; in Pſalm. 122. 2. The faithfull are called heaven, becauſe of an heavenly life, and earth, becauſe firmly founded by faith, as the earth that cannot be removed. 3. That they are called heaven there is another reaſon from the name of heaven, Lat. Cœlum, quaſi cœlatum, carved or adorned with ſtars; ſo the faithfull with graces that ſhine more brightly: ſo Varro etymologizeth heaven; or as Iſidor, a celando from hiding, becauſe in them much more virtue is hidden then appears. Græcè ὀυρανὸς ab ὁρῶ to ſee, becauſe it was the firſt of viſible things; or ὅρος a boundary, becauſe it is the utmoſt bound of all things viſible, according to Philo; ſo the faithfull are, as it were, the bound or end of Gods creating all things in this world. 4. Bernard likeneth the faithfull to heaven, in whom virtues ſhine as the ſtars there, yet as the ſtars are not ſeen in the day, but in the night, ſo their virtues ſhine moſt in adverſity. 5. Chryſoſtom ſaith, We are made heaven, when we are alwaies clear by virtue as the heavens; for when it looks dark, it is not through any change, but becauſe the clearneſſe is hid from our ſight by clouds. 2. When we are ſo high lifted up in our minds, that as the heavens are not corrupted by rain or tempeſts, becauſe they are above them, ſo our faith and grace is not impaired by Perſecution. To conclude this verſe, there is no need with Junius to, going from the native ſignification of the words, to turn them, that I will plant, but to render it, I will put my words into thy mouth, to plant heaven, &c. as they properly ſignifie; for it is לנטע ad plantandum.

Bernard. Serm. 27. in Cant.

Chryſoſt. Hom. 16. in Hebr.

Verſ. 17.

Awake, awake, ſtand up (O Jeruſalem.) As verſ. 9. the faithfull ſtir up the arm of the Lord to awake, ſo the Lord doth the Church or company of the faithfull here, recounting what they had ſuffered to verſ. 21. and he thenceforth comforteth them to the end of the Chapter: Thus Junius, Calvin and our other new Writers generally. But Jerom and others following him expound the firſt words of awaking, and riſing up by repentance, as if old Jeruſalem were meant, hardening her ſelf in ſin and infidelity, but moved earneſtly under the Goſpel to turn therefrom; which becauſe ſhe did not, the Prophet ſheweth what miſeries ſhould befall her, both temporally by the Romans, and ſpiritually by the enemies of their ſouls carrying them on in blindneſs and hardneſs to everlaſting deſtruction. And Saſbont argueth from verſ. 18. There is none of her ſons to guide her. That it muſt needs be meant of Jeruſalem ſuffering by the Romans, and not by Nebuchadnezzar, becauſe then ſhe had Prophets meant by theſe ſons to guide and inſtruct her, ſundry Prophets; but in the time of the Romans not one Prophet more. And verſ. 21. a conditionall deliverance only is promiſed, ſaith Ierom, viz. if the Jews would turn. Dionyſ. Carthu. that they ſhould turn towards the end of the world is here propheſied. Saſbont, that it is ſpoken of a remnant of them only who imbraced the Goſpel, the reſt being hardened. But I prefer the firſt, expounding it as a ſtirring up to be comforted againſt the miſeries ſhortly to be ſuffered by the faithfull in that common deſtruction of the Jews by Nebuchadnezzar; becauſe the ſame afflicted City is ſpoken to, verſ. 21. as having been drunken, and now promiſed that ſhe ſhould be ſo more, but the enemy ſhould after this have his turn of drinking of this cup of Gods wrath. As for that which is ſaid v. 18. that ſhe ſhould have no ſons to guide her, it may well agree in the ſenſe before ſpoken of; if by ſons to guide or govern, we underſtand Kings to rule her, for the Jews were alwaies after their Captivity under the rule of others, although by the permiſſion of the Perſians they had Princes to rule amongſt them of their own Nation, yet not in that abſolute power, which they had formerly had in the time of David, Solomon, Aſa, &c. For which he ſaith, they had no ſons to rule, that is, but only permiſſu ſuperiorum. The ſcope of the place being thus cleared, that it is to comfort the faithfull by the promiſe of a full and finall

Calvin.
Junius.

Hieron.
Ad. Saſbont.

deliverance from all evils by which they ſhould firſt be grievouſly preſſed, that they might in all extremities ſtay themſelves upon this as a ſure anchor-hold.
The ſenſe of particular paſſages will now be eaſie to be underſtood. Thou haſt drunk at the hand of the Lord the cup of his fury, &c. That is, thou haſt ſuffered grievous things; but although he ſpeaks of them as paſt, it is in a Propheticall manner, whereby things to come are ſpoken of as preſent or paſt, and this cup was drunk when Ieruſalem was ſo cruelly deſtroyed by the Caldeans, and afterwards by the Romans. For ſuch a great judgement is often called a Cup, becauſe as a cup of wine mingled with intoxicating things, operates ſtrongly upon the brain, making ſuch as drink ſometimes very ſick, ſo that the power of nature is overcome and ſudden death follows; ſo the Lords judgements ſtupifie and trouble the heads of the judged, that they cannot deviſe any good Verſ.18. counſel to eſcape, but periſh under them. *Verſ.*18. hath been expounded already, only the miſery of Ieruſalem is here aggravated by a compariſon from a mother in diſtreſs, which had ſons able to help her, but now none, when ſhe Verſ 19. hath moſt need. Verſ. 19. Theſe two things ſhall happen to thee in one day, deſolation and contrition, famine and ſword. That is, famine bringing deſolation, and the ſword contrition; there be four things named, but they are only two coming by the other two, and in this miſery he ſaith there ſhould be none to pity her, but contrariwiſe inſulting over her and deriding her; as is alſo ſhewed,
*Pſal.*137.

Verſ.20. They be at the head of every ſtreet, as a Wilde Bull in a net: Or, as Jerom, Oryx a kinde of Goat, taken by hunters, ſo the Jews by their enemies.

Verſ.21. Muſcul. Thou drunken, but not with wine. Muſculus here noteth that there be two ſorts of cups that make drunken; the one of ſin, when the head is intoxicated with infidelity, errour, pride and corrupt affections; and the other of Gods judgements, making ſuch to ſtaggar and fall and to be taken, as being without all power to help themſelves againſt their enemies, as Belſhazzar and his Babylonians that night in which they were taken by the Perſians and deſtroyed. And this cup of Gods fury is offered, and men are made to drink it by God, as a puniſhment for their other drunkenneſs in ſin and errour.

Verſ.23. I will put it into the hand of thy oppreſſours, which ſay to thy ſoul, Bow, &c.
Here, and *verſ.*22. an end of the Jews miſeries by the Babylonians, is prophecied of, and their coming into the like, as was fulfilled at the deſtruction of Babylon; and the condition wherein the Jews were when they were under them, their ſouls, by which word yet their bodies are meant, as the next words declare, lay as the way in the ſtreet, upon which men tread and go, not being moved with any compaſſion hereat, ſo without all mercy had they been under their enemies feet. But now the Lord promiſeth a bleſſed alteration, and this may well be extended to the Church under the Goſpel, which after many miſeries long ſuffered at the hands of Perſecutors, had their caſe likewiſe altered by Conſtantine the Great, to their great joy and comfort; and ſo ſhall Note. it be with all the faithfull and their Perſecutors, that now tread Gods people under foot, and deſpiſe them as moſt baſe, they ſhall be brought down in like manner, and theſe deſpiſed ones ſhall be had in honour, as is promiſed to the Church of Philadelphia, Revel.3.9.

CHAP. LII.

Verſ.1. A*Wake, awake, put on ſtrength (O Zion.)* Here the Lord repeateth again that of *Chap.*51.17. but for Jeruſalem he ſaith both Zion and Jeruſalem, meaning hereby one and the ſame, viz. the Church of God conſiſting both of Jews and Gentiles, when ſhe ſhall be moſt purged from uncleanneſs; according to that which is here further added, There ſhall no more come into thee the uncircumciſed or unclean; of which ſee before, Chap. 35.8. He goeth on to Prophecie of Zions joyfull condition, which is fulfilled when a ſtrict care is had of ſeparating the notoriouſly wicked in any kinde from others, and not permitting them promiſcuouſly to the holy Ordinance of the Lords Supper, as hath been done in the Primitive Church, and is now done in Churches moſt reformed, and endeavoured to be done in the Church of England.

Verſ.3. Ye have ſold your ſelves for nought and ſhall be redeemed without money. In the former verſe he bids her ſhake off her duſt in alluding to the Metaphor begun, *Chap.*51.23. where ſhe is ſaid to have lien down to be troden upon on the duſty ground, and to caſt the bands off from her neck, implying her bound eſtate then, but her deliverance and advancement now; for ſo the advanced by God from a moſt low eſtate, are ſaid to be raiſed out of the duſt, *Pſal.*113. In this third verſe he ſets forth by another Metaphor what her condition had been, viz. as of thoſe that are ſold for ſlaves, but they take no price; for ſo indeed the Jews for their ſins were made ſlaves to their enemies, and now he promiſeth that they ſhould likewiſe be ſet at liberty, nothing being paid for ranſom; ſee the like before, *Chap.*41.13. where their being ſet at liberty by Cyrus is plainly ſpoken of, and therefore this is likewiſe to be expounded. But a ſpiritual application is to be made of all, the things done then not being only aimed at by the Prophet, but under them the ſpirituall deliverance of the faithfull from the ſordes or duſt and bands of ſin by Chriſt, figured out in Cyrus, both by juſtification and ſanctification, whereby this filth is ſhaken off, and there is newneſs of life. And as men ſell themſelves for ſlaves to ſin and the devil, receiving nought, ſo beleevers are again delivered; the devil, by whom they were held, receiving nought therefore; and yet to ſatisfie Gods juſtice a great price is paid, even Chriſts moſt precious bloud, 1 Pet. 1.18. If profits and pleaſures which men have for their ſouls ſold by ſinning, ſhall ſeem to be ſomewhat, they all verily are nothing, being compared unto the ſoul, Note. becauſe they are momentary; the ſoul everlaſting, they earthly and inferiour, the ſoul ſpirituall and ſupernall, as coming from heaven, and ſo of a condition ſo farre excelling, that if all earthly things be compared hereunto they are as nothing, for which our Lord ſaith, What ſhall it profit a man to win the whole world and to loſe his own ſoul?

Verſ.4. And the Aſſyrians oppreſſed them without cauſe. He commemorates here, firſt their going down into Egypt, being inforced by famine, and then ſpeaks of their going into Aſſyria as Captives, upon no ſuch occaſion; for which he ſaith Without cauſe, yet not excluding a cauſe in themſelves, viz. their ſins; whereby, as was ſaid before, they ſold themſelves into their hands.

Verſ.5. Now therefore what have I ſaith the Lord, that my people is taken away for nought? their rulers make them to howl, and my Name is every day blaſphemed. The Lords people being carried away for nought, he here asketh what he had, as meaning that he had nothing; it was not a bargain of his making, but of their own, they had ſold themſelves, not he them, for then he would ſurely have taken a price for them. And having ſhewed that he was not the cauſe of their oppreſſions by the Aſſyrians, and coming into their hands, he next ſheweth who were; Their rulers make them howl: Which Jerom expounds of the Hieronym. wicked Prieſts and Elders of the Jews, who ſtirred them up to cry againſt Chriſt, Crucifie him, crucifie him; and the blaſpheming of Gods Name daily, of their cuſtom in their Synagogues three times a day to blaſpheme Chriſt Jeſus conſtantly ever ſince. Junius, Their rulers howl, as if he had ſaid, Not only Junius. the common people ſuffer grievouſly, but even men of greateſt eminency, their rulers, to the making of them to cry out and howl, And my Name is daily provoked. But forſomuch as the word is in Hiphil, this cannot ſtand. Calvin Calvin. expounds it of the rulers ſet over them by the Aſſyrians, who oppreſſed them ſo greatly, that they made them even howl under their oppreſſours, and hereunto was added daily blaſpheming on the enemies part, being ready to detract from their God, as if he were not able to deliver them, which is ſpoken in way of ſhewing the cauſe why the Lord would now deliver and reſtore his people, as being full time ſo to do, leſt he ſhould ſeem to thoſe Heathens moſt contemptible. This I grant is good, but when *Rom.*2.24. I finde the laſt clauſe otherwiſe applyed by the Apoſtle, the beſt Interpreter of the Spirits meaning, viz. againſt the guides and leaders of the Jews, teaching well but practiſing the contrary, to the opening of the mouths of the Gentiles againſt their God, as if he were a patron of licentiouſneſs and all manner of wickedneſs; I cannot ſubſcribe to him, but hold that the rulers making of them howl here ſpoken of, was their own rulers miſleading them (of whom it is ſaid before, They that rule over thee cauſe thee to erre,) and conſequently bringing them to all the miſeries, under which they lying, cried out moſt lamentably. And likewiſe of blaſpheming on the enemies part, who upon this, that his people came into their power, vilified him as unable to help them, or ſeeing their wickedneſſes exclaimed upon him as a God of adulterous, ſacrilegious and theeviſh people. And becauſe the Prophet in ſpeaking of the Jews miſeries, ſuffered by the Aſſyrians and Caldeans, had a further aim withall to ſpeak of things done under the Goſpel; that of Jerom may well alſo have place here, They like wolves howled againſt Chriſt, and blaſphemed his Name, and then God in his juſt judgement left them to the deſtruction of the Romans.

Verſ.6. Therefore my people ſhall know my Name. Becauſe God had been vilified, he would do ſo for his people; that is, all ſuch as ſhould beleeve in Chriſt, that they ſhould know him to be ſuch a God as he publiſhed himſelf to be, that is, Almighty, by his ſaving them and confounding their enemies. And hereupon the Prophet crieth out, as if he then ſaw John the Baptiſt going before, and Chriſt coming ſoon after, proclaiming ſalvation to all that repent and beleeve.

Verſ.7. How beautifull are the feet of them that bring glad tidings of peace, &c. And this is ſhewed by the Apoſtle, *Rom.*10.15. to extend alſo to all other preachers of the Goſpel. In ſaying, How beautifull are the feet, he alludeth to the long travel of the Apoſtles on foot to preach the Goſpel into other Countries and Nations, whereby their feet were indeed fouled and worn; but in the ſight of thoſe to whom they came and were converted by them, they ſeemed beautifull and amiable. But it is ſaid here, How beautifull are the feet of him, although *Rom.*10.15. it be of them, for Chriſt is firſt and chiefly meant, and then the Apoſtles, by whom alſo he preached. For all honour and bleſſing indeed is to be aſcribed to him, not his inſtruments, as he taught when he anſwered the woman that bleſſed the womb which bare him, &c. Nay rather bleſſed are they that hear the Word of God and keep it. Yet even their feet are ſaid to be beautifull, becauſe ſo joyfull a meſſage was brought by them that walked upon theſe feet: As we ſay of a box having in it the Kings pardon of a condemned perſon, a bleſſed box bringing ſo great a good in it. Upon the mountains. This is inſerted to ſhew both whence this preaching firſt came, and where it firſt was, viz. in Zion ſtanding upon a mountain, and how eaſily all might hear, as from a mountain one ſpeaking is heard by all round about, *Chap.*4.9.

Verſ.8. Thy Watchmen ſhall lift up their voice. That is, the Apoſtles and other preachers ſaid to watch for your ſouls, *Heb.*13.17. For the Preacher ſtands, as it were, upon a watch-tower, and tels the joyfull news of Chriſt coming to ſave, expreſſed here by ſinging, which is the expreſſion that joy maketh commonly; and ſo John the firſt Preacher of Chriſt ſaid, that he was the friend of the Bridegroom, and that he heard his voice and rejoiced. Whereas it is added, [They ſhall ſee eye to eye] it is meant that they ſhould not go upon the report of others, ſo that the thing declared and joyed in by them ſhould be uncertain, but they ſhould be eye-witneſſes thereof; according to which is that 1 *Joh.*1.1. That which we have ſeen with our eyes, &c. declare we unto you. When the Lord ſhall

Calvin. bring back Zion. That is, ſaith Calvin, firſt out of Babylon, to declare which ſome went from thence to Judea firſt, and after that by a ſpiritual bringing back of ſins captives by Chriſt figured out thereby. After this he ſtirreth up to Verſ. 9,10. rejoycing again for the Jews deliverance and ſalvation coming to all Nations, *v.*9,10. as he had done *chap.*51.17. and 49.6.

Depart,

Verſ.11. Depart, go ye out from thence, touch no unclean thing. *Chap.*48.20. the ſame is ſpoken in other words, go out of Babylon; and here to ſhew that not only the Jews going out thence is meant, but ſeparating from idolaters, it is added Touch no unclean thing, which is thus applyed, 2 Cor. 6.16. Whereas in the words following they are bidden to be clean that bear the veſſels of the Lord. Hereby are meant the Prieſts and Levites, to whom this office belonged. But in ſpeaking to them he meaneth all the people, they being named, as who ought to go before others in holineſſe, and indeed all Gods people are here ſpoken to, who under the Goſpel are made Prieſts unto God, *Revel.*1.6. And if they purge themſelves, they are his veſſels of honour. 1 Tim.2.21.

Verſ.14. His viſage was marred more then any mans. This is ſpoken of Chriſt, whom he calleth his ſervant, *verſ.*13. and *chap.*42.1. ſaying that he ſhall deal prudently and ſhall be exalted very high; ſee *Phil.*2.10. how this was done. But before that his viſage was ſo marred, being in the form of God he came in the form of a ſervant, that the Jews were aſhamed to own him for their King and Meſſiah.
Verſ.15. But he ſhall ſprinkle many Nations. Though the Jews rejected him, yet the Gentiles ſhall imbrace his faith and be ſprinkled or baptized in his Name, and by his bloud be cleanſed from their ſins, as the phraſe is uſed, Heb. 10.22. and this is now fulfilled in our Church, wherein we Baptize either by dipping or ſprinkling; and therefore although we do but ſprinkle on water in baptizing, here is good ground for it; his Miniſters ſprinkling is his ſprinkling, and therefore he will not have it be in vain no more then if the party Baptized were waſhed all over. Kings ſhall ſhut their mouths, for that which had not been told them they ſhall ſee. That is, Shall, renouncing their own wiſdom, whereby they formerly ſpake againſt Chriſt and Chriſtians, commanding that they ſhould be rooted out of their dominions, ſilently and reverently ſubmit unto him, as holding him worthy of all honour; and this, he ſaith, ſhall be at the ſight of things to which they had not formerly heard the like, that is, the miracles wrought by his Miniſters in their Countries. For the power of working mi- Iſa.49.23.
racles continued five hundred years after Chriſt, even till the Saxon Kings here in England were converted. And their reverent ſubmitting to Chriſt may well be ſet forth by their ſilence, becauſe thus ſervants commonly reverence their Maſters, and children their Parents, when they are in their preſence.

CHAP. LIII.

Verſ.1. W*Ho hath beleeved our report*, &c. Here the Prophet further amplifieth the ſtrange thing touching Chriſt before declared, *chap.*52. 14,15. that his viſage was ſo marred, and yet he ſhould ſo mightily prevail, that Kings ſhould ſubmit unto him. And he beginneth with the Jews infidelity touching the ſame, as if he had ſaid, We the Prophets of God have ſufficiently ſet forth Chriſt, the power and arm of God, to come, and by powerfull miracles ſhewing himſelf to be the Son of God, and an arm to ſave all that beleeve in him, but few of the Jews will beleeve this, and to few ſhall he be revealed to be ſuch. Of the arm of the Lord ſpoken of in this ſenſe, ſee before, *Chap.*5.9.

Verſ.2. For he ſhall grow up before him as a tender plant, and a root out of a dry ground. By this name of plant or branch, he was ſet forth before, *chap.*11.1. and he is here propheſied of as a root out of a dry ground, to intimate his coming forth out of the Virgin Mary, a Virgin, that knew no man, being like unto the dry and barren ground in reſpect of fruit-bearing. Of this he ſpake before more plainly, *chap.*7 14. He hath no form nor comlineſſe: of which *chap.*52.14. and it is chiefly to be underſtood of him being poor and deſpiſed, and hanging upon the Croſſe. But how doth this agree with *Pſal.*45. Thou art fairer then the ſons of men: and in Cantic. My beloved is white and ruddy, the chief of ten Hieron. thouſand. Jerom anſwers that he was ſuch when the earth quaked, and the ſun loſt his light, and graves opened, for then his excellency was ſeen, and likewiſe in his wiſe anſwers and incomparable gracious ſpeeches.

Verſ.4. Surely he hath born our griefs and ſorrows. That is, he made not a ſhew only, as hereticks ſay, that he was ſorrowfull, but was verily and truly filled with ſorrow, as he had a true humane body, but not for any ſin of his own, but only for ours whom he came to redeem, but we, ſaith he in the perſon of the Jews, judged him to be ſmitten of God, for they traduced him as a notorious deceiver, a drunkard, and one that wrought by the devil.

Verſ.7. He was oppreſſed and afflicted, yet opened not his mouth. That is, He patiently bare it, as the Hiſtory of his quiet ſuffering at the hands of his wicked enemies ſheweth.

Verſ.8. Hieron. He was taken from priſon and judgement, and who ſhall declare his generation? This is by Jerom expounded two waies, either of his being unjuſtly dealt with, when he ſtood before Pontius Pilate to be judged, as if the meaning were, He was taken away to execution, there being in him found no cauſe why, but the Jews malice and rage againſt him, that would needs have it ſo: Or of his taking away by God, ſoon after his unjuſt being condemned, into heaven: And Junius. this laſt is followed by Lyra and Saſbont, the firſt by Junius, expounding judgement yet of Gods righteous judgement, of whom it came that Chriſt Acts 2.23. was cut off by death, for he fore-appointed it to be ſo out of his infinite mercy for the ſaving of us ſinners from death everlaſting: And by the former word עצר by him rendred [coarctation] he underſtands all his ſufferings before his execution; and by the next words he underſtands his glorious living in heaven after his paſſion: Who ſhall declare his generation? that is, the glory that he attained to after this his baſe uſage, for it is unſpeakable. With Junius conſenteth Muſculus; but Calvin with Lyra, and I with them: For it were a ſtrange manner of expreſſion, to ſet forth his being taken to death, by ſaying, He was taken from judgement; it ſhould rather have been ſaid, by an unjuſt judgement, if it were ſo meant: Therefore the words being From priſon and from judgement he was taken, we muſt needs underſtand his deliverance from both, by being raiſed again after this, and ſet on the right hand of God in heavenly glory, which cannot be ſufficiently declared what it is; which is meant by his ſaying here in the next words, Who ſhall declare his generation? Wherein I aſſent to Junius, and ſo doth Calvin alſo, holding that Phil.2.6. to be a further explication of this; for after ſpeaking of his humbling to the death of the Croſſe, he addeth, Wherefore God hath exalted him and given him a Name above all names. He was taken ſo from the judgement of death, by being rai- Calvin. ſed to life as never any man was before, for now he liveth and never dieth any more, and that in glory which never any other man did being raiſed, for all others dye again; ſo Calvin. But I reſt in that of Junius before touching this clauſe, not holding Calvins expreſſion to be ſo good, becauſe all his members ſhall be raiſed alſo to life after their ſufferings, never to dye any more, but to live likewiſe in unexpreſſible glory. Some underſtand by his generation here ſpoken of, his generation of God the Father; ſome of his Incarnation, and ſome of the generation of Beleevers to come of him, being after this begotten by his Word and Spirit in all Countries and Nations, being a company ſo numberleſſe, that none can declare how many they are, as is ſaid Revel.7.9. And for this Saſbont reaſons ſtrongly, as being confirmed further, *verſ.*10. where it is ſaid, He ſhall ſee his ſeed, when thou ſhalt make his ſoul an offering for ſin; and I ſee not how this may be rejected, but received alſo to make up the full meaning. For it is not only ſaid, He ſhall ſee his ſeed, but alſo, He ſhall prolong his daies; as if both his exceeding glory, and innumerable offspring following after his paſſion were meant by his generation. And then the next words in this verſe and *v.9,*10,11,12. are to be underſtood as an exegeſis and declaration in more words of the two things already briefly ſpoken of, theſe and thoſe v.9. of his judgement, 10,11,12, of this high exaltation following in his ſeed and in his glory, his ſufferings being again repeated in way of the remuneration whereof he was thus honoured. For he was cut off out of the Land of the living: That is, he ſuffered death as ſentence was given againſt him.

Verſ.9.

He made his grave with the rich, and with the wicked in his death. Vulgar. He will give the wicked for his grave, and the rich for his death. Calvin, He will expoſe his grave to the wicked, and to the rich his death. Hebr. He ſhall give the wicked his grave, and the rich in his death: If the particle אֵת be taken only as a note of the Dative caſe, as it ſhould ſeem it is here, becauſe it is dabit, he ſhall give. Yet it is ſometime put alſo for cum, and then the firſt reading ſtands firm, and the ſenſe will be eaſie, he was crucified together with the wicked thieves, ſuffering where ſuch notorious wicked perſons commonly did, viz. without the gates of the City, for the grave and death are ſometime ſet forth by one and the ſame word שאול as *Pſal.*49.15. and Joſeph of Arimathea, a rich man laid him in his own Sepulchre; thus alſo Vatablus. Jerom and others following him, expound it of Gods taking revenge upon the wicked Jews for his death; by the wicked being meant the common ſort, and by the rich the chief Prieſts and Elders, all of whom were given over to deſtruction for their malicious conſpiring againſt him; and thus the reading in Vulgar Latin indeed ſoundeth, and the particle אֵת hath this ſignification, pro for alſo. But becauſe the Prophet ſpeaks only of his death and deliverance in this place, and not of the judgements againſt his enemies, it is better to expound it by cum, as we have done. Marlorat contends that by his grave here is meant nothing but his death, and ſo the ſenſe is, That he was left to the will of the wicked, and of the rich to be crucified and ſlain, the ſame that are called rich being alſo called wicked, becauſe rich men are commonly wicked, as being proud and oppreſſours of the poor. The particle I grant will alſo bear this reading, He gave to the wicked his grave. But if one and the ſame were meant by the wicked and the rich, why having ſpoken of the wicked in the plural, doth he ſpeak of the rich in the ſingular number, as of one? I conclude therefore for the former expoſition, from which me thinks we ſhould not go for the events ſake ſo aptly anſwering to the Prophecie, when rich Joſeph laid him in his own ſepulchre in his garden.

Vatablus.

Verſ.10.

Having ſpoken hitherto of Chriſts ſufferings verſ. 10. he beginneth further to declare, what his generation ſo unſpeakable was, touched upon *verſ.*8. When thou ſhalt make his ſoul an offering for ſin, he ſhall ſee his ſeed, and prolong his dayes; That is, an innumerable company ſhall be converted unto him, who becauſe they are begotten by his Word, are before called his generation, here his ſeed, and being riſen again he ſhall live long in the higheſt glory, yea for ever and ever. And the pleaſure of the Lord ſhall proſper in his hand; That is, the Goſpel, to preach which he ſhall ſend out his Apoſtles into all Nations, ſhall prevail for their converſion and his Kingdoms encreaſe. But it is to be noted that he ſaith, He ſhall make his ſoul a ſacrifice for ſin, which is varied 2 Cor. 5. 20. He made him ſinne for us that knew no ſin, &c. for when he ſuffered for us, our ſins were laid upon him, as by the law of ſacrificing of old the ſinner was to lay his hands upon the head of the beaſt confeſſing his ſins, and then the beaſt was ſlain and offered for expiation; thus having the mans ſins, as it were, taken and put upon it, and hereby made the ſinner, the man righteous. Whereas it is ſaid, He ſhall ſee his ſeed, it is well noted by Muſculus, that his living again after death is implied, or elſe how ſhould he ſee them? But here is a wonderfull thing ſpoken of, that a man ſhould have any ſeed after his death, and that the ſame whom he calleth his brethren and Spouſe ſhould be called his ſeed, but he being dead liveth again, and begetteth them by his Word and Spirit, they being therefore in this reſpect called [his ſeed] and in reſpect of the exceeding great love which he bears to them, his Spouſe and his brethren for his participating with them of fleſh and bloud. For which cauſe as he is called the firſt-born amongſt many brethren; ſo becauſe all the faithfull are begotten by his Word, he is called the everlaſting Father, Iſa.9.6. Calvin. Calvin by the will or pleaſure of God proſpering in his hand, noteth that by his hand he ſetteth forth his Miniſtery, wherein he ſerved to the death, this proſpereth when we are hereby delivered from our ſins, and from his death vertue cometh to us to make us die to ſin and live to righteouſneſſe.

Muſcul.

Verſ. 11. Of the labour of his ſoul he ſhall ſee, he ſhall be ſatisfied. Here in other words he expreſſeth the ſame that he had ſaid before, for when by his Word preached ſouls are begotten, it is the fruit of his labour by his Miniſters, which his ſoul thirſted after, and now it is ſatisfied: a notable expreſſion to ſhew how our converſion and ſalvation is by Chriſt longed after, and taken pleaſure in, even as one hungry takes pleaſure and is ſatisfied with his meat. By his knowledge ſhall my righteous ſervant juſtifie many; That is, by knowing him to be the true Sonne of God, and believing in him ſo, as to reſt wholly and only upon the merits of his death. For juſtification and ſalvation, and not in any part upon our own or other mens, we are juſtified before God, and ſo ſhall ſtand and appear ſo at the laſt day, none of our ſins being once remembred to endanger us in reſpect of the ſecond death, but in his righteouſneſſe we ſhall live for ever. According to this it is ſaid *Joh.*17.3. This is life eternal to know thee to be the only true God, and Jeſus Chriſt whom thou haſt ſent. For he ſhall bear their iniquities] That is, of all them that know him, as hath been ſaid, all their iniquities being put upon him, as the common ſacrifice for their ſins, as he was called *verſ.*10. and when our ſins are taken and put upon him, what ſtrange thing is it to ſay, that we are perfectly righteous, againſt thoſe that count it abſurd to ſay that we are righteous by the righteouſneſſe of another? For this is righteouſneſſe that will hold, when that which is by entring into this or that religious order, or doing the works of the Law, or any good deeds being truſted to, will prove but like a broken reed.

Verſ. 12. He ſhall divide the ſpoils with the ſtrong. One and the ſame thing is ſet forth by theſe words, and thoſe immediatly before them in this verſe. I will divide a part unto him with the great ones. The meaning being, I will impart unto him ſuch glory and riches after his ſufferings, as conquerours uſe to have, and he ſhall have them, as a reward of his conflict with reproach and death by him undergone, as is expreſſed again in the next words, Becauſe he poured out his ſoul to death, &c.

CHAP. LIV.

Verſ. 1. Sing (O barren) thou that didſt not bear, &c. After Chriſts paſſion undergone for our ſins, and a generation or ſeed ſoon coming from him after this ſpoken of *Chap.*59. here the Nations amongſt whom this ſeed ſhould be begotten, are ſtirred up to rejoyce in it; ſo that theſe words are directed to the Church of the Gentiles, as Paul alſo teacheth *Gal.*4.27. being a Prophecie of the great encreaſe of the faithfull amongſt them, and he ſaith, That ſhe had more children then a woman having an husband, hereby meaning the Church of the Jews, whoſe husband God had been, forſomuch as they had his teſtament, whereby he bound himſelf to them, and they likewiſe were bound to him, but now through infidelity ſhe was divorced, and the Church of the Gentiles taken in her ſtead, which abounds much more with children then ever ſhe did.

Hieron. Thus Jerom ſtanding ſo yet for the Church of the Gentiles ſo to be meant here, as that the believers of the Jews be not excluded, but both together underſtood to make her that is bidden to rejoyce. Lyra. So likewiſe Lyra. The Church of God which is alwayes one and the ſame, becauſe conſiſting of them that hold the ſame faith from the beginning to the end of the world, of what Countrey or Nation ſoever, whether Jews or Gentiles, is here ſpoken to, and ſhe is ſet forth as barren and without an husband firſt, but then on the ſudden made moſt fruitfull, which may beſt be referred to that part of the Church firſt, which conſiſteth of Gentiles. Then ſhe that is ſpoken of as having had an husband, but now in widowhood *verſ.*4. ſetteth forth that part of the Church which conſiſteth of the Jews, whoſe husband God is often ſaid to have been, when there were many of them living in all righteouſneſſe, but ſhe had a time of widowhood and barrenneſſe, when Chriſt being preached to them, they rejected him and his faith, having before maliciouſly crucified him, whereupon Paul leaving them went to the Gentiles. But both parts of this one Church are here comforted with a promiſe of fruitfulneſſe in children beyond all that ever the Church had ſince the beginning of the world. Some, ſaith Lyra, underſtand this of the Jews in Captivity ſo many years, when their ſtate was like unto both a barren woman and a widow, unlikely ever to flouriſh again, and to encreaſe in their own Land, yet after their return out of Captivity they reflouriſhed and filled the Land; but this, he ſaith, cannot ſtand, becauſe although they encreaſed then, yet nothing ſo much as they had done in former times, neither had they ſo much cauſe of joy, as at ſome other times before, when Kings of their own reigned over them in greateſt proſperity, for now they lived in ſubjection to ſtrangers. Calvin. Yet Calvin underſtands it ſo, as if the Church of the Jews had been called barren in reſpect of Babylon, which flouriſhed ſo greatly when the Jews were in miſery, but then he ſaith, That the ſtate of the Church ſpoken to here, is to be conſidered from the Jews coming out of Captivity to the end of the world, before which all that is here promiſed ſhall be perfectly fulfilled. Some again, ſaith Lyra, underſtanding the Church of the Jews, referre it to the deſtruction made by the Romans, after which ſhe is barren till the coming of the Meſſiah, but then ſhall abound thus with children again. But this is a Rabbinical dotage, that will not be beaten from the expectation of the Meſſiah yet to come. And for that of Calvin, the order of the things here propheſied of after Chriſts being made an offering for ſinne, and ſeeing his ſeed, ſheweth plainly, that nothing is meant done before, but after Chriſts death. Then the barren being before without an husband living in fornication by multifarious Idolatries, was converted to the faith, and the Church, that is, the Congregation of the faithfull both of Jews and Gentiles encreaſed ſo as is here ſaid, but ſpecially of the Gentiles, the Nation of the Jews for the farre greateſt part living ſtill, as it were, in widowhood.

Verſ.4.
Verſ.5.
Ver.7,8.

But this reproach he ſaith alſo ſhall be done away *verſ.*4. *For thy maker is thy husband. Verſ.*5. That although for a moment he forſook her, yet he would ſhew her everlaſting mercy, amplifying this from the waters of Noah, which he ſaith ſhall no more drown the whole earth, yea he hath ſworn to it, ſo wrath ſhall no more come upon her, yea the mountains ſhall rather be removed then the Lord will be moved to diſpleaſure againſt his Church, being once fully gathered, as it ſhall be before the end of the world. Neither indeed will he ever be moved to diſpleaſure ſo againſt his Church, as to deſtroy her, as he did the old world, or the Jews being unbelievers, only ſhe ſhall be temporally chaſtiſed, but continue ſtill inexpugnable by the gates of hell to the worlds end, and then attain a full fruition of Gods favour for ever and ever. But to what time is it to be referred, that he ſaith, For a moment I have forſaken thee? Anſw. If by the Church we underſtand, as hath been ſaid, the company of the faithfull in all times and ages, we muſt begin our account of the time that God forſook her in reſpect of her greater part, that is, the Gentiles from the dayes of Noah. For ſoon after the floud men being again multiplied forſook God for Idols, and then they were forſaken of God, being left in a moſt miſerable condition to run on to everlaſting deſtruction, untill that by the preaching of the Goſpel they were converted and by faith married to God, or taken by him to wife again, as they had been for ſome time after the floud, till they degenerated and were caſt off for all that long intervall of time betwixt that and the Goſpel. But this may ſeem to be too long to be ſet forth by a moment being two thouſand years at the leaſt, yet being compared with eternity, it is but as a moment; and therefore the Promiſe being here of everlaſting favour, and never caſting off again world without end, that time may well be thus ſet forth. The Jews indeed deride this Expoſition as improbable, but in applying this moment of time to their being in deſolation till the Meſſiah cometh, whom they have now expected in vain ſixteen hundred years, they deride themſelves as much as us Chriſtians; yea our Expoſition is made good by the event, but theirs ſhall never be made good. According to this Expoſition alſo verſ.6. where the Church is called a wife of youth, or young wife, but refuſed, agreeth very well, for ſuch was the Church of the Gentiles taken by God to wife betimes in the beginning of the worlds renovation after the floud, but ſoon after refuſed, Abraham and his ſeed being choſen, to the fifty year of whoſe age Noah lived.

Verſ.11. Hieronym. Behold I will lay thy ſtones with Saphires and fair colours, &c. Here Jerom having ſpoken ſomewhat of the different reading of the ſtones mentioned betwixt the Septuagint, Symmachus and Theodotion giveth this for the ſenſe, Chriſt is the moſt precious ſtone, having in him the fair colours of the moſt excellent, and upon him as a foundation I will build my Church, which ſhall be moſt glorious, and other parts of this building added to him are the Apoſtles, and other faithfull perſons, who together make a perfect Temple of the Epheſ.2.20. Pſal.118. 1 Pet. 2.4,5. Lord compleat in reſpect of all parts: For it is common in holy Scripture to ſet forth Chriſt as a ſtone elect and precious, and the foundation and corner ſtone, and the Prophets and Apoſtles alſo, as a foundation, and the faithfull generally by the name of living ſtones. So that the beauty of the Church, and fair ſtones of her foundation, windows and gates here ſpoken of, ſet not forth a flouriſhing eſtate of the Church and rich in this world; but in reſpect of righteouſneſſe, as is further intimated, where varying the words he ſaith, verſ.14. Thou ſhalt be built in righteouſneſſe] And for the ſtones in particular here mentioned, the Jaſper is of a sky-colour, ſetting forth the heavenly-minded, and ſuch as by ſtudying the holy Scriptures ſoar higheſt in divine knowledge, and are ſtrongeſt to hold up the truth againſt all oppugners. For Agates he hath Cryſtal, ſetting forth purity and clearneſs. By Carbuncles being of a red colour like fire, fiery Doctrine purging out errour. And he finally expounds all this of the Church triumphant in heaven, of which only the next words are true, They ſhall be all taught of God, becauſe then all ſhall ſee God, and be Lyra. alwayes in his preſence, as Lyra further expreſſeth, The Church here deſcribed being the ſame with the new City Jeruſalem, Revel. 21. And being thus underſtood, the ſtones here ſpoken of are the Saints in heaven in their ſeverall manſions and degrees of glory; but if of the Church militant, of holy men ſhining diverſly by graces and gifts moſt excellent of the Spirit. I take it to be meant of the Church militant upon earth, becauſe this Church hath been hitherto deſcribed by the multitude of her children, which was before barren and forſaken, but now received and with all love imbraced; and becauſe he ſpeaketh of one made to ſlay after this verſ.16. and of weapons formed againſt her in vain, verſ.17. And whereas he ſaith, Her children all taught of God, hereby is meant, That all the true children of the Church ſhall not only be taught outwardly by the Word, but alſo inwardly by the Spirit, becoming ſuch as they are taught to be, for divine knowledge, and all graces; ſee the like *Jer.*31.33. Calvin and all ours generally agree to this, and he renders it, I will lay thy ſtones upon the Carbuncle, as the word פוך alſo ſignifieth as well as Stibium, that is, a painting, wherewith women paint their faces to make them Verſ.12. ſhew fair. And *verſ.*12. whereas N.Tr. hath, I will make thy gates of Carbuncle, he hath it, Ex lapide rutilante, of a ſtone looking red; but the word ſignifieth a Carbuncle, although the word of which it cometh ſignifieth to burn, but the Carbuncle hath the name from burning, becauſe it looks like a fiery cole. Here be three parts of the ſpiritual building, that is, the Church ſpoken of, the foundation, the windows and the gates: the foundation is Chriſt, the windows the Apoſtles and Prophets, by whom the light enters, the gates Gods protection, continually defending it; ſo Muſculus. Now becauſe all the ſtones of which this building is ſaid to conſiſt, are precious ſtones, ſome gather, that the Church under the New Teſtament conſiſteth only of Saints, and therefore it is no true Church, which conſiſteth of precious ſtones and common, good and bad perſons together in one Congregation; for which cauſe they hold it neceſſary not to reſt in any Congregation in England, but that there ſhould be a gathering together of Saints only into companies, and for him that will be ſaved to joyn with ſuch a company leaving all others. But the meaning is not ſo, but that the Church under the N.T. ſhould be more glorious and beautifull then that under the Old, as *Hag.*2.9. is ſhewed under the types of the Temple built by Solomon, and that built by Zorobabel after the Captivity, concerning which laſt, he ſaith, That it ſhould be of greater glory then the former, and how ſhould this be, but for the light of knowledge, being now greater (in regard of which the time paſt is called the night *Rom.*13.) and of the graces of the Spirit much more illuſtrious in the faithfull, and the abundance of the Saints, in whom theſe graces ſhone more then in former times, there being then alſo but few in compariſon of the Saints under the New Teſtament, and all being put for very many, or the farre greater part, as it was indeed in the Apoſtles firſt beginning to preach, they being above three thouſand, were altogether of one accord or minde. Of the Temple built after the Captivity it cannot be underſtood, becauſe that was never of ſo great glory, as Solomons. But to return to our argument in hand, the Church continued not long in that glorious condition, but corrupt members intruded themſelves, as is ſhewed Jud. epiſt. *Act.*5. 1 *Cor.*5.& 15. Gal. 1.5, &c. This Prophecie then was accompliſhed in reſpect of the outward conſtitution of the Church only, as hath been ſaid, and the like is never again to be expected in this world; and therefore whereas a perpetuity is promiſed, it is to thoſe only that are ſanctified in heart, who are viſible to God alone and not to us, amongſt whom are ſo many hypocrites undiſcernable by the eie of man. The company of the truly ſanctified ſhall have this Promiſe made good unto them to the worlds end, and then in heaven everlaſtingly, when indeed all the ſtones of this building ſhall be precious, not one excepted for ever.

Muſculus.

Act.2.46.

Verſ.14. In righteouſneſſe ſhalt thou be eſtabliſhed. Having ſpoken before figuratively by ſtones, now he telleth plainly what he meant thereby, viz. righteouſnes, by which word alone are meant all graces, as by unrighteouſneſſe all vices, *verſ.*13. he ſhewed what manner of perſons he meant by thoſe precious ſtones, viz. her ſons, who were all taught of God; here what qualities, viz. righteouſneſſe, graces, which are alſo ſet forth by gold, ſilver, and precious ſtones, 1 *Cor.*3.12. And he meaneth that her righteouſneſſe, that is, taking divine Doctrine to heart, and living accordingly, ſhall be her eſtabliſhment, ſo that ſhe ſhall not fear the violence of her enemies, or coming into ſuch miſeries again any more, becauſe God is a protectour of the righteous; for which cauſe it is ſaid, *Chap.*52.17. The effect of righteouſneſſe is peace, &c. being the ſame in effect which is here ſaid; thus alſo Haimo. A notable place to be lookt at by all rulers: Would you have your Kingdom enjoy ſtable peace, and not be brought into danger of ruine? eſtabliſh it by righteouſneſſe, let judgement be adminiſtred to all men alike in juſtice and equity, and encourage all your righteous ſubjects, but puniſh and diſcountenance all the wicked. Calvin underſtands that which is oppoſite to oppreſſion practiſed hitherto againſt them by their enemies, whereby they could not ſtand but fall; contrariwiſe God that had promiſed would now be juſt of his word to do, as he had ſaid, not only by reſtoring peace unto them, but alſo to keep them in peace and quietneſſe for ever. I preferre the former, as being moſt agreeable to the words before-going, and to the place before-cited.

Haimo.

Calvin.

Verſ.19. I have created the Smith, &c. To ſhew that his Promiſe of keeping them from oppreſſion ſhall be made good, he here declareth this further by giving them to underſtand that whereas nothing can be done againſt them, but by weapons of warre, and not by weapons without the hand of man, having power hereby to deſtroy, there ſhall neither be weapons made, nor an hand to deſtroy therewith againſt them. For weapons muſt be made by Smiths, and God makes Smiths, and giveth them their skill this way; and he giveth power to men to deſtroy, when ever they have power; but neither ſhall Smith make a weapon, nor man go forth with weapon againſt them to prevail; yea if the tongues of any did but riſe againſt them power ſhould be in their hands to judge and do execution upon them, *Verſ.*17. And to ſhew that this ſhall not be for a time only but for ever, he ſaith, It is the heritage of the Lords ſervants, and their righteouſneſſe, whereby they come thus to walk in his wayes, and conſequently enjoy ſo ſafe a condition, is of the Lord, becauſe of his Spirit, as *chap.*32.15. for we of our ſelves are averſe herefrom, and then only encline to it when we are moved by Gods Spirit. Some by tongues ſpeaking againſt them, which they ſhould judge, underſtand the tongues of hereticks, who are to be judged and cenſured by the Church, and the authority ſet up therein, and not only that peace and ſafety, but the gems before-ſpoken of ſhall be made as firm to the faithfull as an inheritance, and by righteouſneſſe the reward thereof being given by the Lord, that is, the reward before-ſpoken of, and what he will give is given indeed againſt all men that ſeek to fruſtrate it.

CHAP. LV.

Verſ.1. OH every one that thirſteth, come to the waters, and he that hath no money, let him come, and buy and eat. Having concluded the former Chapter with theſe words, Thy righteouſneſſe is of me, ſaith the Lord. Now he ſheweth how it may be attained, viz. the Spirit, which being received into the heart worketh all grace, which giveth a ſure ſetling in peace, viz. if we thirſt after it. For it is common with the Lord to ſet forth himſelf and his Spirit by waters, as before Chap. 32.15,16. *Joh.*4. & *Joh.*7.37,&c. But to intimate the dulneſſe and backwardneſſe of men to thirſt after this drink, though ready to periſh for want thereof, he ſaith, Ho, he that thirſteth, after the manner of one making Proclamation, or of a Crier that crieth aloud (O yes!) But what meaneth he after calling to the waters the thirſty, to bid them buy and eat, he ſhould rather one would think bid them buy and drink? Sol. Although waters only be firſt named, which are to be drunk, yet milk is alſo immediatly ſpoken of, and bread *ver.*2. which are to be eaten, and hereunto he hath relation when he biddeth eat. The ſpeech is conciſe, being as if he had ſaid, Let every one that is thirſty come to the waters and drink; Let the hungry come and buy milk and bread and eat; Wine is alſo named, becauſe this water is as much chearing the heart as wine. And the Spirit is thus variouſly ſet forth, to ſhew the full ſatisfaction that is to be had herein by thoſe that receive it, for wouldſt thou being dry drink water to moiſten and cool thee? the Spirit is living water. Wouldſt thou drink wine to put away the heavineſſe of thy ſpirit, and to cheer thy heart? the Spirit is wine. Wouldſt thou being young and tender have milk to nouriſh thee? the Spirit is milk. Wouldſt thou have bread or other ſtrong meat to ſtrengthen thee? the Spirit is bread, and the only bread. For which he ſaith *verſ.*2. Why do ye ſpend your money for that which is not bread? And by bread in Scripture all food is commonly ſet forth. But what meaneth he to bid us buy, and yet without money? Sol. By buying here is nothing elſe meant, but getting, and becauſe this is the common way of getting food, he ſaith Buy, as alſo Revel. 3.18. It is no more then but as if he had ſaid, Get ye wine and milk; to explain which further he ſaith, Without money or price, Muſcul. therefore not properly called a buying; ſo alſo Muſculus; It is a getting of this ſpiritual food, as a poor man that is hungry and thirſty getteth an alms by begging; ſo we muſt get the Spirit by thirſting firſt, and finding the great need that we have; yea that our need is ſo great, that if God extend not this charity to us, we muſt needs periſh; and ſecondly begging moſt earneſtly at the throne of grace for the Spirit, and then we ſhall be ſure to have it given us, as the Lord ſaith Luk. 11. God will give his Spirit to thoſe that ask him. And Note. of our ſo great poverty we muſt be perſwaded by hearing it laid open in the preaching of the Word, and alſo hunger and thirſt, and beg thus, as therein we are moved to do, leaſt any ſhould ſay we neither do nor can finde, that our danger is ſo great of periſhing for want, but are rich and want no grace Revel. 3.

that is ſufficient for us; or if we do, we are of our ſelves blinde, and ſo cannot ſee or know it, much leſſe thirſt and beg ſo earneſtly for it. And to move to get this food, he ſpeaks as if all food elſe without this were nought worth;
Why do ye ſpend your money for that which is not bread, and your labour for that which ſatisfieth not? By labour men get money, and with money they buy bread for the body, yet the body thus carefully provided for, muſt to the duſt and to rottenneſſe, and whileſt nothing is gotten for the ſoul, that it may live for ever, all that food whereby the body is fed with ſo much pleaſure is in fine nothing beneficial. Eat that which is good, and let your ſoul delight in fatneſſe.
Corporeal things, as daintieſt food, and apparel, and riches, are not good, but vertue and grace only, and theſe worldly things are good to the good, evil to the evil. Then doth a man eat of the fat and beſt, when he receives the Spirit of God bringing joy which paſſeth underſtanding: ſo that poverty or impotency, or any other bodily miſery is not evil in it ſelf, by the reaſon of contraries, but to the wicked; to this effect Jerom.

Verſ.3. Incline your ear and hear, come to me and your ſoul ſhall live. Here the Lord doth further inculcate the ſame, which he before exhorted to in other words, ſomewhat enlarging himſelf, and ſhewing how we ſhould come, as he had moved *verſ.*1. viz. Encline your ear to hear, and to whom, Come to me, and to what end, And your ſoul ſhall live; whereby is intimated, that to the end we may hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſſe, we muſt be forward and diligent in hearing the Word of God, a thirſt after this is a beginning of the thirſt after the ſpirit. But we muſt hear to come to God who cals us to him in his Word, which is when we believe and obey him in all things, And thy ſoul ſhall live, in which words he ſheweth to what end the food before ſpoken of, is to be thirſted after, viz. that ſoul might be fed and live for ever. And I will make an everlaſting Covenant with you, even the ſure mercies of David. Hereby he meaneth the Covenant of the New Teſtament confirmed by Chriſts bloud, which is not temporary as that of the old made by the bloud of beaſts, but everlaſting. And what this Covenant is the Pſalmiſt ſheweth, ſaying, I have made a Covenant with David, and ſworn, Thy ſeed will I eſtabliſh for ever, Pſal. 89. 3,4. *verſ.*28,29,34,35. by which ſeed he meaneth Chriſt, who is alſo called David, that ſhould be ſent to feed his people, but herein is the difference, this David died, he liveth for ever, he fed them by ruling them aright for a time, Chriſt the ſecond David with his own fleſh and bloud, and by ruling them righteouſly for ever. After the death of that David they ſuffered many miſeries, and were long left to the will of their enemies for their ſins, and were finally brought to deſolation, but this David dying roſe again and reigneth in all the world ſo, as that his faithfull people ſhall alwayes be preſerved, and continue as a Fort impregnable here, and everlaſtingly in heaven hereafter; and that not for their merits, but for his mercies, for which he calleth this Covenant, The ſure mercies of David. But this Covenant, as Calvin noteth, is all one in effect with the old, for thereby God bound himſelf to Abraham and his ſeed for ever, but being broken by his ſeed according to the fleſh, he as need required renued it with his ſeed according to the ſpirit both of Jews and Gentiles to continue for ever and ever.

Verſ.4. I have given him a witneſſe to the people, a leader, &c. That is, the foreſaid David, Chriſt Jeſus, and he is ſaid to be given as a witneſſe of the Covenant mentioned verſ 3. becauſe as witneſſes ſerve to confirm; ſo by him was this Covenant made by God with his people abundantly confirmed, and accordingly he telleth Pilate, For this cauſe came I into the world, that I might teſtifie the truth. And to Nicodemus, We ſay what we know, and teſtifie what we have ſeen; and Revel. 1.5. he is called The faithfull witneſſe; ſo Muſculus, and A commander to peoples. Muſculus. Joh. 18.37. Joh. 3.11. The ſame Chriſt who was ſaid Chap. 53. to have been as a ſheep before the ſhearer, is here ſaid to be a Leader and commander, as Lord and King. And over what peoples he ſhould be thus advanced is ſhewed verſ.

Verſ. 5. 5. Thou ſhalt call the Nations whom thou haſt not known, and the Nations which knew not thee ſhall run unto thee. That is, the Gentiles called by the preaching of the Goſpel, for they knew not God in former times, and God paſſing by them as if he knew them not, tendred the Iſraelites, and taught and delivered them, and put them into a moſt fruitfull poſſeſſion. For ſuch as God neglecteth and puts away, he is ſaid not to know, Mat. 7.21,22. See the like ſpeech uttered by David in the perſon of Chriſt, Pſal. 18.43. it being hereby further confirmed, That David ſpake there of Chriſt, as I have alſo ſhewed upon that place. Note. And here the miſery of the unconverted or uncalled is ſhewed; till they come to Chriſt, they neither know God, nor are known of him, nor regarded whatſoever evils befall them, no, though they call and cry unto him, as is ſhewed in the ſame Matth. 7.21. and Pſal. 18.41. But when Chriſts voice calling them is heard by their hearts being opened, as was the heart of Lydia, Note. they do not come but runne unto him, as in the next words. Wherefore if any think they will come by turning from ſinne, but they need not make any ſuch haſte, Chriſt hath not yet ſpoken to their hearts, though he hath to their ears, they have no dramme of grace in them, but continue ſuch as he will not know at the laſt day. All that hear with their hearts runne unto him; neither can the pleaſures of Sodom make them delay one moment longer, becauſe they now know and ſee ſo much glory and happineſſe in Chriſt, that all the profits, pleaſures and glory of the world are nothing to it, as is ſhewed in the next words, For the Lord thy God, the holy One of Iſrael, who hath glorified thee. The faithfull do ſee ſo great glory in Chriſt, through whom they are united unto the Father, when they come unto him, as that this is a ſpurre to make them runne to him without any delay. Now God made him glorious in his Birth by his Angels, in his Baptiſm by his ſpeaking of him from Heaven, as his beloved Sonne in his Transfiguration, in his Reſurrection, and aſcent into Heaven.

Verſ. 6. Seek the Lord whilſt he may be found, call upon him whilſt he is near. Having ſhewed how the Gentiles ſhould runne unto Chriſt, he here ſtirreth up the Jews to do likewiſe, whereby their ſlowneſſe and backwardneſſe in coming to him is intimated, for which they had need to be prickt on. For theſe words, Whilſt he may be found, Hebr. is, in making him found] meaning, that to finde him is to ſeek him, for he that ſeeketh findeth, and how we ought to ſeek him, the next words ſhew, and with what ſpeed, Call upon him whilſt he is near. He is indeed alwayes near to every one of us, Act. 17.28. in reſpect of his univerſal preſence, whereby he is every where: but then he is ſaid to be near according to the meaning of this place, when he offers his grace to the penitent and believing; ſo his Word is ſet forth as moſt near, Rom. 10.8. But he is near only to day whilſt he is offering it by the Miniſtery of his Word, whether he will be near thee to morrow or no, knoweth no man. Wherefore he that will turn from prophane to a devout caller upon God whilſt he is near, muſt do it to day, leſt to morrow he be further off, and hear not. And it is to be noted, That whoſo ſeeks the Lord calleth upon him, and dares not ſin any more, leſt he pray in vain, forſomuch as God regardeth not the prayers of the wicked, Iſa. 1.12.

Verſ. 7. And therefore verſ. 7. the wicked is charged to leave his evil wayes and thoughts alſo, and ſo to come to the Lord.

Verſ. 8. For neither are my thoughts your thoughts, nor my wayes your wayes. This is

Muſculus. by Muſculus underſtood of Gods thoughts and wayes of mercy ; and of theſe he ſaith thus, meaning that he was not implacable when he was angred, as men commonly are. Hieron. Jerom, That he was not like unto men, to purpoſe one thing now, and after to change his minde, or to have in his thoughts to do a thing, and not to be able to perform it, as men : and this is ſpoken, leſt they ſhould doubt of his performing what he had promiſed, in calling the Nations to his grace, who had gone ſo long away from him ; or in ſhewing mercy unto, and pardoning the Jews, who had ſo greatly ſinned againſt him. And thus indeed theſe words will anſwer well to thoſe immediately before-going, He is mercifull and will abundantly pardon. But if they be referred to the former, Let the wicked turn from his wayes, and from his thoughts : Theſe words will more aptly anſwer to thoſe wayes, to wayes, and thoughts to thoughts, and then the meaning will be, Till ye turn from your wayes and thoughts, and come into my wayes, ye cannot partake of my mercy, for my wayes and yours are contrary, yours earthly and ſenſual, mine heavenly. Verſ.9. So alſo *Ezek.*18. Gods wayes and mans wayes are oppoſed, and whoſo will live is required to turn from his wayes, which be the wayes of unrighteouſneſſe, into Gods wayes, which be the wayes of righteouſneſs ; and theſe wayes are ſo high above mans wayes as heaven is above the earth, and therefore he muſt be much elevated in his minde by heavenly thoughts, as *Col.*3.1. Note. and in his converſation, which muſt likewiſe be heavenly, that would have his former ſins pardoned, and be made a veſſel of mercy. And for the laſt words of verſ.7. thoſe of *verſ.*10. and 11. do better anſwer ; and to thoſe before-going alſo verſ. 5. where he promiſeth to call the Gentiles to his grace, and to pardon the Jews, and bring them out of their miſery, if they turn ; for though this might ſeem to men impoſſible, Verſ. 10,11. yet as the rain coming from heaven effects that for which it is ſent down, and returns not fruſtrated of this end, viz. the making of the earth fruitfull, ſo ſhall it be in reſpect of any word or promiſe that cometh from the Lord by his Prophets that ſhall certainly be effected, that is thus ſpoken of whatſoever it be. Yet if theſe words, My thoughts are not your thoughts, be referred to both this of earthly and heavenly, and to that of conſtancy and power to do as in mercy he promiſeth ; we have for this laſt a like compariſon in ſpeaking of Gods mercy made *Pſal.*103.11. And ſome look yet further back to *verſ.*3. where a promiſe is of making an everlaſting Covenant, and will have theſe words of the ſublimity of Gods thoughts above mans ſpoken, as anſwering to that. As if the Lord had ſaid, Doth any man ask how this everlaſting Covenant ſhall be made ? I anſwer, The way whereby is ſo high that man cannot reach unto it ; Believe it therefore, and reſt in expectation of the accompliſhment of it, for the Lord whoſe wayes are ſo high, hath ſaid it, and therefore knoweth the way, and will do it undoubtedly. I have nothing to except againſt this, and therefore conceive that the ſenſe may extend to that Promiſe alſo.

Verſ. 12. For ye ſhall go out with joy, &c. That is, Ye both, the called of the Nations, and converted of the Jews, from your own wayes ſhall go out of them with joy, becauſe there is no joy to that which comes to mans heart by the Spirit of grace entering, as is propheſied Iſa.9. and fulfilled *Act.*8. in Samaria. But in ſaying, Ye ſhall go out, he alludes to the Jews going ſo joyfully out of Babylon in Cyrus his dayes. And this is the fruit of the rain of Gods Word, according to that before-ſaid *verſ.*10,11. for then it took effect, when the Jews in great multitudes believed, and the Gentiles imbraced the faith preached amongſt them. For the rejoycing of the mountains, ſee before upon *Chap.*49.13. And for the Trees it is hyperbolical, For the thorn the fir-tree, the Vulgar Latin Pro ſaliunca abies, which ſaliunca is deſcribed to be low and buſhy, but ſweet, and therefore doth not ſo aptly ſet forth the condition of man before grace cometh, but the thorn and the nettle for their baſeneſſe do, but now they are turned into Firres and Myrtles, that is, whereas their mindes were ſet upon things below, now they are lifted up to things above, and whereas by the harſhneſs of their manners they did prick and ſting as thorns and nettles, now they are gentle as myrtles. Gregory, This is done, when for the baſeneſſe of earthly thoughts the height of ſupernal contemplation doth ariſe, and hereby the itching deſires of the fleſh tending to vice are extinguiſhed, a better temper of the whole man being attained. The Cald. for wicked ſhall ſpring up righteous, and for ungodly ſuch as fear God.

Of more trees, ſee before Cha. 41.19.

Greg. Mor. Dum pro abjectione terrenæ cogitationis, altitudo cœleſtis contemplationis exoritur.

Verſ.13. And it ſhall be to the Lord for a name and a ſign. That is, this admirable converſion of the Gentiles ſhall make Chriſts name famous in all parts of the world, when they ſhall glory to be called by his name, Chriſtians; and as Emperours having obtained great victories ſet up monuments thereof for ſigns, to continue the memory thereof to future generations; ſo the Nations turning Chriſtians ſhould be a monument to the honour of Chriſt, who by his Word and Spirit ſubdued them to himſelf everlaſtingly. Some will have the ſign of the Croſſe, meant by this ſign; ſome the ſcars in Chriſts body being unto it a greater glory; as alſo the marks of the ſufferings of his Martyrs; ſome his Baptiſm which he inſtituted for our Regeneration that we might be compleat Chriſtians. But I reſt in the firſt.

CHAP. LVI.

Verſ.1. THus ſaith the Lord, Keep judgement and do juſtice, for my ſalvation is near. Having comforted the faithfull in ſhewing the happy and joyfull condition to which they ſhould come by Chriſt *Chap.*55. Now leſt any ſhould think to partake of this happineſſe, and yet live ſtill in ſinne; the Lord here exhorts us all that would have joy of ſalvation by Chriſt, to judgement and juſtice, that is, to do righteouſly in all things, and ſpecially ſuch as are in place, to judge righteouſly betwixt man and man, and to ſtand for the juſt cauſe of the poor, without reſpect of perſons or bribes. And to this he moveth from this conſideration, that his righteouſneſſe, Chriſt Jeſus, who is alſo the ſalvation whereby we are ſaved from our ſins, is near; as when Chriſt came indeed, he cried, Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand; becauſe there is a remedy in Chriſt againſt ſinne, the wicked are the more licentious, ſaying, Let us continue in ſinne that grace may abound. But the faithfull know, That the grace of God hath appeared, that denying ungodlineſſe and worldly luſts, we ſhould live temperately and righteouſly, becauſe as he is ſalvation, ſo he is righteouſneſſe and ſanctification, not ſaving any, but ſuch as are firſt made juſt and holy as well by inherent as imputative juſtice.

Note. Rom.6. Tit. 2.12. 1 Cor.1.30.

Verſ.2. Bleſſed is he that doth this and layes hold upon that. That is, doth juſtice, and by faith layeth hold on this ſalvation. That keepeth the Sabbath, and his hands from doing any evil. Beſides righteouſneſs towards men, every one is exhorted to keep the Sabbath, which then was a ſign betwixt God and his people, and he ſpeaketh to men then living, and both then and alwayes a Sabbath is to be kept, that is, a reſt from doing evil, which is the devils work. And to intimate that the Apoſtles and other faithfull perſons kept ſuch a Sabbath, and no ſix working dayes, Chriſt ſaith unto them, Ye are not of the world, meaning, as Jerom hath it, Ye are not of the world made in ſix dayes, to work the works of ſinne in them, but every day's a Sabbath perpetually to you, or muſt be. The keeping of the Sabbath was not then to reſt only, and in idleneſſe to keep at home, for God takes no pleaſure in this. But to reſt from labour, to attend to duties of devotion; and thus, ſaith Muſculus, the Lords day is now to be kept, and that by keeping the Sabbath, as wherein all duties of piety are to be performed, all ſuch duties are meant, wherein a man muſt be daily converſant that will be bleſſed, as is here promiſed.

Hieron.

Verſ.3. And let not the ſon of ſtrangers ſay, &c. Here becauſe ſuch might fear, that the bleſſedneſſe ſpoken of was nothing to them, but belonged to the Jews only, and hereby be diſcouraged from a godly care of righteouſneſſe, he bids them not thus to deſpair, or the Eunuch, as if he were a dry tree, that could not ſpring up, as was before-ſaid, *Chap.*55.13. that for Thorns ſhould come up Fir-trees, &c. Verſ.4. For the Lord promiſeth even to ſuch, if they keep his Sabbaths and pleaſe him, Verſ.5. a name better then of ſons and daughters. And this is ſpoken, ſaith Jerom, not of Eunuchs gelt by men, but of thoſe that make themſelves chaſt for the Kingdom of heaven, as Chriſt afterwards ſpeaketh. For ſuch if they refrain from women indeed, to live the more freely to God, and to care for the things of the Lord, are famous in the Church, yea more then they that beget many children in whom their name is continued; becauſe that although they have no natural, yet they have many ſpiritual children, wherein they are more bleſſed. Calvin. Calvin by Eunuchs underſtands all ſuch as had any note of diſgrace, becauſe to be barren was counted a curſe amongſt Abrahams poſterity, one of whoſe bleſſings lay in the encreaſe of poſterity. But here are two ſorts ſpoken to, 1. Sons of ſtrangers, 2. Eunuchs, both which were baſely accounted of amongſt the Jews: For the reaſon before-ſaid. Eunuchs and ſtrangers, becauſe out of the Covenant made with Abraham and his ſeed, of which they were not. And the time was coming wherein all that contain, ſhould be exhorted to it, as they were *Matth.*21.12. Therefore to move men the rather to do ſo that could; Eunuchs, others of ſtrangers children, that is, of the Gentiles turned to the faith, are thus encouraged to uſe their gift. And although the Prophet began with ſons of ſtrangers, and then came to ſpeak to Eunuchs, yet in promiſing he ſpeaks firſt to Eunuchs, as whoſe devoting of themſelves wholly to God, refuſing for his ſake to take ſuch pleaſures as lawfully they might, was moſt highly accepted of before him; and Ver.6,7. then to the Gentiles converted of all ſorts, *verſ.*6, 7. comforting them with the like comforts, of bringing them to his houſe, and accepting their Sacrifices, thus making his houſe an houſe of prayer to all Nations, that is, not the Temple, for that was deſtroyed together with the City not many years after that the Jews had wickedly crucified Chriſt, but any houſe built in any Countrey for divine worſhip. Wherefore this is a Prophecie of the converſion of the Gentiles, betwixt whom and Jews believing now there is no difference, but all are one in Chriſt, *Gal.*3.28. The Papiſts here and upon *Matth.*19. take occaſion to extoll too highly the ſingle life of Prieſts and votaries, and to debaſe the married life: but in ſo doing they have no ground in either place, or 1 *Cor.*7. for Virginity is no where ſo commended that marriage is on the contrary ſide any whit blemiſhed, but pronounced honourable in all men, *Heb.*13. 4 and no more difference put between the married and unmarried, but that the one doth well, the other better. Alwayes provided alſo, that the Eunuch or unmarried be a keeper of the Sabbath and of the Covenant, and pleaſe God in his wayes, as it is in this place; otherwiſe his forcing of himſelf to this ſeeming continency being mean while incontinent and defiling himſelf with harlots, is moſt damnable hypocriſie, taught him, not by God, but by the devil, whoſe Doctrine it is ſaid to be 1 *Tim.*4. of which ſort there are ſo many of the Prieſts and Votaries in Rome, that all Writers cry ſhame againſt them therefore.

Verſ.8. The Lord who gathereth the out-caſts of Iſrael, I will yet gather others to him, Hebr. Above him to his gathered ones. That is, the Lord, who gathereth together the diſperſed Jews, bringing them from Babylon into Judea, will as certainly to the Jews gather Peoples, Countreys and Nations all over the world to be his Church in the time of the Goſpel, in which ſenſe alſo Chriſt ſaid, When the ſon of man is lifted up, he will draw all men to him.

Verſ.9. All ye beaſts of the field, come to devour. Having hitherto ſpoken comfort by Chriſt, now to the unbelievers and perſecutours of Chriſtians amongſt the Jews he ſpeaketh terrour, eſpecially to their Prieſts, the greateſt adverſaries of the Goſpel. The beaſts, whom he inviteth to devour, are the Romans, the people to be devoured, the Prieſts, Scribes and Phariſees, and other unbelieving; ſo that this is a Prophecie of Jeruſalems deſtruction to come by Titus:

Hieronym. Cyril. Calvin. Muſculus.

Thus Jerom, Cyril, Theodoſius, Saſbont, &c. Neither doth Calvin or Muſculus diſſent, but that Calvin will have not only the deſtruction by the Romans here propheſied of, but by Antiochus Epiphanes, and the Caldees, but chiefly by the Caldees; and they underſtand beaſts properly, by inviting of whom is intimated a great deſtruction of the Jews to be made by their enemies, ſo that their dead bodies would ſuffice all beaſts of prey coming from farre or near. Oecolampadius is for men cruel and bloudy called beaſts; and I ſee no reaſon but that it may be taken either way; ſee the like Jer. 7.33. chap. 34.20. but that the deſtruction by the Romans was chiefly meant, ſeemeth to be implied, *ver.*10. where he crieth out againſt the watchmen as the cauſe, and that not by reaſon of their Idolatry, as when the Caldees deſtroyed Jeruſalem, but of their blindneſſe and ignorance wherewith Chriſt oft upbraided them, their drunkenneſſe and covetouſneſſe and other notarieties following thereupon. For when the Romans came againſt Jeruſalem, all abominable ſins, ſaith Joſephus, did ſo abound, that if they had not come and deſtroyed ſo wicked a City, fire and brimſtone muſt needs have come down from heaven upon them as upon Sodom. All the watchmen are blinde, they are dumb dogs. So Chriſt ſaid often to the Scribes and Phariſees, calling them fools and blinde, Mat.23. and dumb dogs, the Prophet ſaith they are, which lay ſleeping, becauſe as the dog which ſhould by barking keep the Wolf from the flock; but if he lieth ſleeping and barketh not, ſo that the Wolf cometh and makes havock of the ſheep, is worthy to be hanged, eſpecially being ſcarefull and given to devour exceſſively that he ſhould not alſo; in like manner if ſuch as are appointed to watch over the Lords flock, do nothing leſſe then by ſound and diligent teaching chaſe away Wolves or Lions, as devils are called, that they may not devour; but contrariwiſe by their ill example teach them riot and intemperance, and make it all their labour to get worldly gain, they ſhall have the great Judge of the world moſt infenſe againſt them to the hanging of them in hell for ever, as they are well worthy.

Verſ.10.

CHAP. LVII.

Verſ.1. Hieronym.

THe righteous periſheth, and no man layeth it to heart, &c. This is by Jerom applied to Chriſt and his Apoſtles, thus. The righteous man Chriſt is put to death by means of the blinde watchmen before-ſpoken of, who inſtigated the people againſt him, and by much preſſing of him prevailed with Pilate to condemn him, although by his wife he had warning to do nothing againſt that righteous man; and amongſt the Jews there were few or none that conſidered it afterwards to repent. But they generally took him to be juſtly cut off, as one that wrought by the devil and deceived the people. Yet the true cauſe, as the Prophet aſſigns it, when he repeats again, The righteous is taken away, by reaſon of malice, *Heb.*מפני הרעה, which if we render it word for word, is, from the face of the malefactour, or malice. To the Apoſtles he applieth the next words, Mercifull men are taken away, none conſidering it. For as they perſecuted Chriſt, ſo they did them who preached and offered the greateſt mercy in the world, Forgiveneſs of ſins, to all that would believe in Chriſt, and were ſo mercifull that they could not be made to curſe, but prayed for their Perſecutours, as Chriſt had done, and it is expreſſed that Stephan the firſt Martyr did.

Verſ.2.

He went away in peace, they reſt in their beds, he that walketh before him. Jer. In directione ejus, becauſe the word ſignifieth either Before him, or right over againſt him, that is, keeping equipage with him, as when one friend walketh with another. N.Tr. That walketh in righteouſneſſe, reſpecting rather the ſenſe then the words. He, that is, Chriſt, went away in peace, as being Prince of peace, and bequeathing the legacy of peace to his Diſciples a little before, ſaying, My peace I leave unto you: They, that is, the Apoſtles cut off by perſecution reſt in their graves, as in beds, every one that walks before him, and is upright ſhall alſo do likewiſe. But the Jews, ſaith he, underſtand all this as ſpoken of the righteous ſlain by Manaſſeh, or of Iſaiah himſelf, who was cut aſunder with a ſaw. Others underſtand any righteous perſons, who are taken away a little before greateſt miſery coming upon their Countrey, that they might not ſee it, as Joſiah, and Auguſtin before the enemies taking of Hippo his City. But all things do ſo aptly agree to Chriſt and his Apoſtles, that I cannot but think Jeroms expoſition moſt genuine, and to him agree Cyril, Procopius, Theod. Tertullian, Juſtin, Cyprian, Rupertus, Lyra, &c. Yet touching theſe words מפני הרעה, which may alſo be rendred, Becauſe of evil] there may be another Expoſition, Chriſt died for the ſins of his people, which otherwiſe would have deſtroyed them, as is expreſſed *Iſa.*53. If any man ſhall apply this Text to the righteous in general periſhing by the hands of the wicked, or otherwiſe evil, being now ready to invade his Countrey, or when ſuch die they are but taken away from evil of ſinne and miſery to the good of ſanctity and glory, I ſhall readily aſſent unto him: only the firſt, as I take it is the moſt proper meaning of the place.

Cyril, Juſtin, Cyprian, &c.

Verſ.3. But come hither (ye ſons of the ſorcereſſe) ye ſeed of the adulterer. Having ſpoken to the comfort of the righteous, *verſ.*2. now he turns himſelf to wicked perſecutors of Chriſt and his ſervants, the malicious Jews, whom he calleth the ſeed of the adulterer for their ſpiritual adultery with Idols by worſhipping them in every place, as is expreſſed *verſ.*5,6,7,&c. For ſuch were the Progenitors of the wicked Jews which perſecuted Chriſt and ſlew him. And he challengeth them, ſaying, Againſt whom do ye ſport your ſelves and make a wide mouth? wherein he pointeth at their ſcoffs, He ſaved others, let him ſave himſelf, &c. and He crieth to Ely, and reproaches, He caſteth out devils by none other but Belzebub the prince of devils, &c. Thus Jerom. And this is further confirmed from *Pſal.*22.7.13. where in the perſon of Chriſt it is ſaid, They ſhoot out the lip at me, they gaped upon me, &c. Calvin. After comfort to the righteous, here followeth terrour to wicked and rebellious idolaters, who ſurvived after that the righteous were taken away, and becauſe they eſcape hitherto, think of impunity for ever. By bidding them [Come hither] he meaneth, that they ſhall come to judgement; neither ſhall they be able to lurk in any place without being found out and brought to ſevere puniſhment. And he upbraids them by their parents to meet with their high conceitedneſs of themſelves in reſpect of Abraham their father, calling them witches children, &c. as Chriſt afterwards tels them, Ye are of your father the devil. He cals them the children of wizzards or witches, ſaith Lyra, becauſe in the dayes of Manaſſeh, and of other idolatrous Kings, they were much addicted to divinations, as indeed idolaters commonly are; and therefore to Jehoram was objected by Jehu the abundance of his mother Jezabels witchcrafts, as well as whordoms ſpiritual. But he, as Jerom, applieth all againſt Chriſts perſecutors; but Calvin, Muſculus, &c. to the wicked Jews of thoſe times, underſtanding their mocking and contemptuous ſpeeches of which they are accuſed to have been againſt Iſaiah and other Prophets of the Lord, as 2 Chron. 36. 16. But in asking them Againſt whom have ye put out your tongues] he intimates, that it was not ſo much againſt them as againſt God their maſter, that they might be terrified to think upon it, and all other wicked deſpiſers of Gods Miniſters at this day. Which is indeed a good and pious application, and will hold as well if it be expounded of the perſecutors of Chriſt and his Miniſters, as was ſaid before; and ſo I take it, we ſhall beſt go with the ſenſe of the Prophet. And he cals them alſo a lying ſeed] becauſe they falſly gloried that they were the ſeed of Abraham, who, as Chriſt ſaid unto them, did not ſo; therefore he tels them, That they were of their father the devil, adding, that he was a liar, and ſo in effect pronouncing them a lying ſeed for the ſame reaſon, as in this place.

Verſ.4. Hieronym.

Calvin.

Joh.8. Lyra.

Verſ.5. Inflaming your ſelves with Idols under every green tree, ſlaying your children. That which followeth here of their Idolatry, and offering their very children in Sacrifice in valleys and groves, hath been ſo much ſpoken of, 2 King. & 2 Chron. that I ſhall not need to ſay any more hereupon, but referre the Reader to my Commentary upon the Hiſtories of Ahaz and Manaſſeh, &c. Only Iſaiah in ſetting forth theſe abominations continueth his Allegory begun, taken from adulterers and whores, who commit their wickedneſs in beds, and in ſecret behinde doors being ſhut, *v.*7,8.

Verſ.9. Thou wenteſt to the King with oyl, and didſt encreaſe thy perfumes. Here alſo he goeth on ſtill in the ſame Allegory. For an whore anoints or paints her face with oyl, and takes to her much ſweet perfumes to make her the more amiable to the adulterer: ſo he ſheweth that wicked Idolaters, who ſerved Molok, which ſignifieth the King, did; and this was the Idol of the Ammonites, to whom they ſacrificed their children, as is ſaid before verſ.6. The oyl and perfumes with which they went, were offerings which they brought to that Idol. And thou didſt ſend thy Meſſengers farre off, that is, to the Aſſyrians, whoſe gods thou didſt alſo worſhip, of which more is ſpoken *Ezek.*16. and of thoſe of the Babylonians. And debaſedſt thy ſelf even to hell] by ſuch an humbling, as whereby Amon humbled Thamar, of which Jerom ſaith, A great humbling, from the light and height of chaſtity, to the darkneſſe of the Stews. Calvin expounds it of forrain and remote Kings, whoſe friendſhip they ſought by ſending them gifts of oyls, moſt precious and ſweet odours, wherewith their Countrey abounded, as to the King of Aſſyria ſometime, and then to the King of Babylon, becauſe they were moſt mighty, as they thought, to defend them: and to intimate this, Legats are ſaid to be ſent farre off. But becauſe the whole ſcope of the place is to declare them to be groſſe ſpiritual adulterers with all ſorts of falſe gods, whether of the Nations near or farre off, and killing their children was before mentioned, which is notoriouſly known to have been done to Molok the King; I rather aſſent to Jerom in the firſt; and for Meſſengers ſent farre off in this negotiation, which implieth nothing, but that as they committed adultery with Molok, the God of the Ammonites, who were near, ſo they had their factours to bring in Idols alſo, ſuch as they had amongſt the Heathen in Countreys more remote.

Hier. Grandis revera humilitas, præcipitatio ad inferos, quia à luce & culmine caſtitatis ad tenebras lupanaris.

Verſ.10. Hieron. Calvin. Yet ſaidſt thou not, There is no hope, thou haſt found the life of thine hand, therefore thou waſt not grieved. Vulg. Non dixiſti, quieſcam. But the Hebrew word ſignifieth deſperatum eſt, there is nothing but deſpair, if I go on thus ſtill. Thou haſt found the life of thy hand, that is, hereby thou haſt been hardened to go on in theſe abominable wayes without repentance, becauſe thy wealth which is as a life to thee is great, making thee proud, and to ſleight all admonitions of the Prophets without being moved to grieve for thy ſins: Of the like obſtinacy taxed, ſee *Jer.*18.12.

Verſ.11. Hieronym. Of whom haſt thou been afraid, that thou haſt lied? That is, ſaith Jerom, Conſider ſince thy heart hath been hardened by reaſon of thy wealth wherein thou haſt truſted, and haſt not been grieved for thy ſins, that thou mighteſt call upon and turn to me, what other Potentates thou haſt feared, who indeed have been a terrour unto thee; and if then being by neceſſity enforced, thou haſt ſometime ſought unto me, Thou haſt lied, for thou haſt not in truth remembred me then, but thy heart hath ſtill been towards thy Idols: Have not I held my peace of old, and thou feareſt me not, Hebr. Am not I ſilent even from everlaſting; the meaning, As I have not been called upon, ſo I have left thee in miſery at all times moſt anciently, And thou haſt forgotten me; or forgetting thee, as thou haſt forgotten, and put me out of thy minde. Thus Jerom. But the Hebrew, Thou haſt not feared me; and the ſenſe is given otherwiſe thus by Calvin, Have not I ſhewed as much patience as any God could ſhew in forbearing all this while to execute my ſevereſt judgements upon thee, and yet thy hard heart is not wrought upon to fear me?

Calvin.

Verſ.12. And this ſeemeth to be beſt, becauſe *verſ.*12. he ſaith, I will ſhew thee thy righteouſneſſe and thy works, and they ſhall not profit thee; As who ſhould ſay, I have not hitherto done it, as now I will, but have held my peace, as it were, in times paſt,and have not ſpoken by the voice of ſo great and long-laſting judgments,as now I will.For all the judgments of God againſt Iſrael in former times were nothing to that by the Babylonians, and afterwards by the Romans, which is ſpecially meant, for he chargeth them with their deſpiſing of his dear and only Son, v.4.

Verſ.13. When thou crieſt, let thy companies deliver thee. Symmachus, for companies or congregated ones, as the Septuagint have it, render it, Thy Synagogues] to the ſame effect, that is, the company of gods which thou haſt gathered together, and made thee from all Nations farre and near, according to that which hath been already ſaid. Thus Deut.32.37,38. they are bidden to do likewiſe; and Elijah biddeth Baals ſervants to cry aloud to him; 2 King.19. and Eliſhah Jehoram, to get him to the gods of his father and mother, 2 King.13. but when they did ſo ſo, he ſheweth that it ſhould be vain, onely ſuch as truſt in God ſhall not do it in vain, but poſſeſſe the Land, as it followeth in the next words.

Verſ.14. Caſt ye up, caſt ye up, prepare the way. Having ſaid, that the faithfull ſhould poſſeſſe the Land, he now ſheweth how a way ſhould be made for them; ſee the like before, Chap.40.1. 62.10. It is a metaphorical ſpeech taken from the making of a cauſie by caſting up the earth high; and becauſe great ſtones ſometimes lying in the way hinder paſſengers by their ſtumbling at them, it is further added, Take up the ſtumbling block out of the way of my people, Chap.62. 10. the ſtones; whereby, ſaith Jerom, Hieronym. the Jews underſtand the removal of all impediments of the way, that they might ſafely and without any let return out of Babylon to Mount Zion according to the letter; but it is rather and more agreeably to the premiſſes to be underſtood of the Church of Chriſt, which is commonly compared to a mountain, as Matth.5.15. and Iſa.2.1,&c. and becauſe it is ſuch, it is ſaid, Caſt up, caſt up, as intimating, that the way muſt be made high to come to this high mountain: And then is every ſtumbling block and ſtone, at which men might ſtumble, taken away, when all things obſcurely ſet forth in the Word, are by the induſtry of the Paſtours of the Church made plain; and hereby Chriſt is made manifeſt to be the Meſſiah that was to come.

Verſ.15. For thus ſaith the high and lofty One, &c. Having promiſed to ſuch as truſt in him, that they ſhall inherit his holy mountain, and have a way made thither, now he ſheweth a reaſon why it ſhould be ſo, viz. becauſe he that dwelleth on high, dwelleth with the humble and contrite in heart, who are the onely men that have this grace beſtowed upon them to truſt in God, according to to that, God deſpiſeth the proud, and gives grace to the humble; ſee the like Chap.66.2.

Verſ.16. For I will not contend for ever, nor be alwayes wroth. As if he had ſaid, I have indeed ſtriven by my judgements with theſe my humble ſervants to bring them to this grace, but now I will do ſo no more. For if I ſhould be extream this way, all the ſouls that I have made muſt needs periſh.

Verſ.17. For the iniquity of his covetouſneſſe I ſmote him, &c. It was not becauſe I delight in the deſtruction of ſinners, but to correct and amend them, that I might pardon their ſins and ſave their ſouls after that I have thus judged their bodies. But what is meant by covetouſneſſe here? Sol. Some underſtand it of that love and deſire of money, which is ſaid to be the root of all evil, ſome of an inexpleble deſire of ſinning, as the word is uſed Epheſ.4.19. Hieron. and ſome of ſinfull deſires of the heart in general, Calvin. which God puniſheth as well as acts, becauſe they make men guilty before him, but this differs little from the former, and according to either of them, if for covetouſneſſe we render it deſire, it will be beſt.

Verſ.18. I ſaw his wayes, and will heal him. That is, even when I ſmote him I ſaw his obſtinacy and incorrigibility in ſinne, yet I thought I would not proceed in judgements any longer, but allure him by mercies, delivering him from the miſeries of which he is even ſick unto death under the hands of his enemies.

mies. And this is firſt ſpoken of the Jews, with whom he dealt thus, and then of all ſinners amongſt whom the Goſpel cometh, it cometh as unexpected or undeſerved, for which the Lord ſaith, I was found of them that ſought me not. But when their wayes were moſt wicked, and they had been ſtriven withall by many dreadfull judgements in vain, by offering the grace of the Goſpel the Lord healed them. And he ſaith, That he will comfort him and his mourners, whereby ſome few godly perſons amongſt the Jews were meant according to Ezek.9. who mourned for the ſins of the Land, and not only for external miſeries, of whom it is ſaid, Bleſſed are they that mourn for they ſhall be comforted. Matth.5.

Verſ.19. Muſcul. I create the fruit of the lips, peace to the farre off and the near. The conceit of ſome mentioned here by Muſculus, because שָׂפָה ſignifieth a bank of a river as well as a lip, that the abundance of peace is meant, running as a river full of water between two banks is not ſo well agreeing, becauſe neither is a river any where called the fruit of two banks (for the word here uſed is of the dual number) implying two; neither is this word put for any thing but two lips. To follow therefore the common reading, hereby is meant either the event of Gods gracious promiſes made by the mouth of his Prophets, for theſe bring forth their expected fruit, as it were, when it is peace according to the promiſe made, the enemies being quite ſubdued. And this he ſaith, to declare how they ſhould come to have ſo plain and open a way, as was ſaid, verſ.14. there ſhould be all peace, and therefore no enemies to keep them from their ſo much deſired Countrey; Thus Jerom. Hieronym. Or hereby is meant, that ſuch as came to bring tidings ſhould bring the glad tidings of peace; or that the Prophets and Apoſtles ſhould thenceforth preach and comfort, whereas the Prophets had been formerly ſo much in denouncing the judgements of warre and deſtruction: So Calvin. Calvin. By the farre off are meant the Gentiles, by the near the Jews; or if it be in any part referred to the Jews, ſome taken and carried into Babylon, and ſome left to till the ground, the farre off were thoſe in Babylon, the near thoſe at home in Judea. But it is applied to Jews and Gentiles, Epheſ.2.17. the Jews being made the farre off there, becauſe rejected for their unbelief, and the Gentiles near, Act.2.39. the afarre off are the Gentiles, becauſe to be called, but not then called.

Verſ.20. But the wicked are like the troubled ſea that cannot reſt. Leſt ſuch ſhould lay hold of this promiſe of peace they are here cut off from ſo doing, ſuch as by true repentance turn ſhall have the peace promiſed verſ.19. but the wicked going on preſumptuouſly ſtill in ſinne ſhall be reſtleſſe as the ſea, which is continually toſſed with tempeſt after tempeſt; ſo they with one miſery after another, after miſeries upon earth with miſeries in hell for ever and ever. And if any wicked man hath peace external and proſperity as ſome have ſometimes, yet he never hath ſuch peace as is called the fruit of the Prophets lips ſpringing from faith which juſtifieth, that is, peace of conſcience, which is ſaid alſo to be peace with God. For although he ſeems to himſelf ſometime to have this peace, becauſe his cauterized conſcience doth not for the preſent accuſe him, Note. yet indeed he never hath it, but is like to a condemned perſon ſuffered to live for a time; but when the Judge cometh again is full of fear of being condemned: So he, whenſoever God will, ſhall have his conſcience ſet awork to do the office by remembring his ſins, and aggravating them againſt him to the making of him fear even to deſperation, as hath been the caſe of many at ſundry times, who to avoid the horrour of a troubled conſcience have moſt unnaturally laid violent hands upon themſelves, as Judas did. Hieron. Jerom aſſenting to this, that it may thus be underſtood of all the wicked, yet ſaith, it may more particularly be underſtood of the Jews who were reſtleſſe in perſecuting Chriſt, crying with one conſent, Crucifie him, crucifie him; and therefore have ever ſince been reſtleſſe in reſpect of miſeries; and thus, as the ſea by being troubled is made to foam, and that foam turns into dirt, ſo the Jews are of all men conculcated and trodden under foot as mire and dirt in the ſtreets. And herein

I will not go againſt Jerom, but it is beſt to take it, as hath been ſaid, and ſo it is generally by our new Writers.

CHAP. LVIII.

Verſ.1. Cry aloud, lift up thy voice as a trumpet. Having condemned the wicked Jews in the former Chapter to perpetual inquietude, now he cometh by Gods direction to declare aloud that all might hear what the ſins be that make men ſo wicked that they can have no peace, as hath been ſaid, particular perſons with God and their own conſcience, whole Nations with God or men, for the foundation of the peace of a Nation is righteouſnes, as hath been ſaid before *Ch.*32.17. therefore the wickedneſſe of a Nation cauſeth diſſentions and wars, ſo that there can be no laſting peace. And he cals them his people yet, to ſhew his inclination to mercy, if they would turn, and if not, that they might know what a gracious God they loſe by obſtinate going on in ſinne. And the Prophet is bidden to lift up his voice above the ordinary tone, to ſhew how deaf they were to hear to converſion; and the ſimilitude of a Trumpet is uſed in alluding to that which was done when the Law was given *Ex.*19.16. and which ſhall be done, when the Lord ſhall come at the laſt day to take revenge upon the 1 Cor.15. tranſgreſſors of his Laws, that men thinking the voice of the Preacher to be a ſummons to preſent repentance, or like the trumpet that ſhall laſt ſound upon Note. earth, a ſummons to judgment, might be ſtirred up by turning without delay to uſe it as a ſummons to repentance, and not ſtand out, leſt it prove a ſummons to judgement, unto which how nigh he is even then no man knoweth.

Verſ.2. Yet they ſeek me daily as a Nation that delights to know my wayes. Here he ſheweth, that for their coming diligently to the Synagogues, or care to learn the Laws and Ordinances of God, they were ſingular; and Joſephus ſaith of them, that they could as readily give account of them as of their names; yea, and they faſted alſo, *verſ.*3. Why have we faſted, &c? But he ſheweth imme- Verſ.3. diately the cauſe, why all this notwithſtanding, they were rejected by God as wicked, In the day of your faſt ye finde pleaſure or deſire, that is, your own evil luſts and deſires are ſtill afoot, for ye afflict not your ſoul, that is, your bodies (for ſo by an Hebraiſm the body is often called, becauſe of the ſoul within it, and animating it) to the mortifying of your ſins as ye ſhould, but ye go on ſtill in them, and this whoſo doth, his faſting is vain. Wherefore Greg. in Joh. Hom.16. Incaſſum caro atteritur, ſi à pravis ſuis voluptatibus animus non refrænetur. Gregory ſaith excellently upon the words of *Joel chap.*2. Sanctifie a faſt; what is this, but other good things being adjoyned to ſhew abſtinence worthy of God, let anger ceaſe, let chidings be ſopited: for the fleſh is macerated in vain, if in the minde it be not refrained from fleſhly luſts. And ye exact all your labours, or ſorrows; or as others turn it, All your worldly goods, Omnes facultates veſtras, being ſo called, becauſe gotten with labour and ſorrow, ſaith Pagnin; or becauſe being lent to poor men, it was to their ſorrow, that they Matth.18. were rigorouſly required of them again, as by that ſervant to whom his fellow-ſervant ought an hundred pence. And this is one ſinne, from which God looks that we ſhould turn, or elſe our faſting is vain, the exacting of our debts Note. with rigour, putting our poor debters to as much charge and trouble as we can, and uſing no patience, or in caſe that they be ſo poor that they have nothing to pay, not forgiving them, or ſo much as their neceſſity requires, accepting of what they have for all, and forgiving the reſt, if without fraud, or firſt breaking for a colour as many do, they faithfully declare what they have. Hieron. He that requires debt of him that hath nothing to pay, ſaith Jerom, doth violence to God, meaning ſurely, becauſe he doth violence to one of Chriſts poor members.

Verſ.4. Ye faſt to ſtrife, and to ſmiting with the fiſt. As a man that is faſting is more cholerick and quarrelſom and ready to ſtrike naturally, becauſe choler doth the more abound in an empty body, ſo they being lead more by corrupt nature then by grace grew more impatient, the fleſh prevailing above the Spirit, in which caſe nothing can be expected ſave death; but if by the Spirit we mortifie the deeds of the fleſh, we ſhall live: for what profits paleneſſe in the face by faſting if envy be in the heart? or humbling thy body by faſting, but in minde to be lifted up with pride? to which effect Jerom ſpeaks, Ye ſhall not faſt as ye do, to make your cry to be heard on high: That is, either the cry of your prayers made with a voice lifted up on high for oſtentation of extraordinary zeal, or the cry of the poor debtor being thus cruelly exacted upon by you, for the cries of the oppreſſed come up into the ears of the Lord of hoſts to provoke him to take revenge, as *Exod.*22.22. In ſaying therefore, Ye ſhall not faſt, &c. he admoniſheth us not to do ſo, therefore the Vulg. renders it, Do not faſt as ye do.

Quid prodeſt pallor in ore, ſi ſit livor in corde?

Verſ.6. Is not this the faſt that I have choſen, to loſe the bands of wickedneſſe, to undo the heavy burdens? The Septuagint which Jerom rather approveth for expreſſing the true ſenſe, The obligations of violent cautions, whereby were meant written obligations, whereby uſurers bound their debters to pay them the unjuſt gain of uſury: for this was a burden complained of in Nehemiahs time, which they were not able to bear; and this was the hundreth part a moneth, that is, twelve pound in the hundred for a year, one pound a moneth monethly to be paid. It is not in the Scripture ſenſe an heavy burden laid upon debtors, to require of them in any Court of Juſtice, when it cannot be otherwiſe gotten, our due debts, for then ſuch Courts ſhould be abettours of oppreſſion, becauſe kept purpoſely to provide that every man may have what is juſtly due unto him; but either, as hath been ſaid, or debts made ſo by forged writings, or by the like deceitfull way wronging a man in any part of his eſtate. To let the oppreſſed go free, and to break every yoke; that is, ſervants unjuſtly kept after ſeven years expired, for this was amongſt the Hebrews unlawfull, and therefore an oppreſſion; therefore he requires if they would not faſt in vain, that they would let them go free, or in any Nation, the time of ſervice agreed upon being expired. To break every yoke is alſo rendred by the Septuagint, To cancel every unjuſt writing, which is by forgiving poor debters that have nothing to pay, not caſting them into priſon, as is the manner now, nor compelling them to be ſervants, as in thoſe dayes.

Verſ.7. To break thy bread to the hungry. This is added for him that ſhall ſay, I have no debtors or ſervants, what ſhall I do? yet thou haſt bread, one at the leaſt, give, I ſay, not all, but part of it to the hungry; and if any ſhall ſay, I have no bread, it is added, Bring the poor wandring into thy houſe] Thou haſt yet a place to harbour in, bring him in thither to be ſheltered; and he addeth further as a motive, Deſpiſe not thine own fleſh] for every one loveth his own fleſh and cheriſheth it, and we took all fleſh from Adam, who was but one, to ſhew that we are one, and ſo ſhould love as one. To this effect Jerom, noting the ſweet conſent betwixt the Old and New Teſtament, ſhewing that they both came from ſpirit; for as there, ſo here, to feed the hungry, to fear to caſt the poor into priſon, or to do violence to any, or to oppreſſe ſervants, is ſtrictly forbidden; but to ſhew pity, and that to ſtrangers, as to near neighbours, is enjoyned in that Parable of the man that travelled from Jeruſalem to Jericho, &c. Luk.10.30.

Verſ.8. Hieronym. Then thy light ſhall break forth as the morning, and thy health, &c. That is, ſaith Jerom, The Sunne of righteouſneſſe, as Chriſt is called, With healing in his wings, Mal.3.2. becauſe by him we ſuddenly are healed of all the ſores of our ſins, to ſhew which it is here added, Thine health ſhall ſpring forth ſpeedily, Heb. Thy mattery ſore ſhall haſtily heal, and thy righteouſneſſe ſhall go before thee; that is, thy charity, for this is often ſet forth by righteouſneſſe, as *Pſal.*112.9. *Dan.*4.24. *Act.*10.35. in ſaying that it ſhall go before him, he meaneth to make him gracious to God, ſo that he will have him in remembrance to protect him, as followeth, And the glory of the Lord ſhall be thy rereward; Hebr. The glory of the Lord ſhall gather thee; ſo likewiſe Jerom, it being meant, that ſuch ſhall be gloriouſly protected, as was Moſes ſometime being in danger of the murmurers, the glory of God appeared at the door of the Tabernacle, whereby they were daunted. But for thy light breaking out as the morning, it is more generally underſtood of a comfortable and proſperous eſtate in ſtead of a miſerable; for light is often put for proſperity, and darkneſſe for miſery: So Luther. For the ſore, or wound ſoon healed, this is the ſame in other words, Luther. for a man in miſery is, as it were, wounded; but his caſe being altered, as was ſaid before, he is healed. By righteouſneſſe going before thy face, he Calvin. meaneth the righteouſneſſe in our dealings and mercy before-ſpoken of, they ſhall make manifeſt that we are not feignedly but truly pious, as Officers with enſigns of honour going before honourable perſons, ſhew them to all that are preſent to be ſuch; ſo Zuinglius. By the glory of God gathering Zuinglius. thee, ſome underſtand a mans gathering to the Congregation of Saints in heaven after death; but Muſculus rejects this, becauſe all the good here promi- Muſcul. ſed is in this life, and ſaith, that nothing elſe is here meant; but whereas when thou didſt bear the puniſhments of thy ſins thou wert in diſgrace, now being delivered and brought into proſperity, thou ſhalt be honoured, God bringing it thus about, for which it is ſaid, His glory ſhall gather thee, thou ſhalt be by him brought into the number of the honourable.

If thou ſhalt take out of the midſt of thee the burden, the putting out of the finger. Verſ 9. Vulg. The chain or band, being by Jerom accordingly expounded of the chains Hieron. of our ſins; for ſo Peter ſaid to Simon, Thou art in the gall of bitterneſſe and bands of iniquity. The putting out of the finger at thoſe that we would diſgrace. But the ſame word מוטה here uſed and verſ.6. ſheweth, that the ſame thing is meant, viz. the burden of oppreſſion, whereby a man of mean eſtate is brought down lower, according to the ſignification of the word, which is to decline] The chain of our ſins then is not hereby meant, but any oppreſſion of the poor. By the putting out of the finger, ſome underſtand wicked confederacies, ſome ſmiting with the fiſt, as verſ.4. but becauſe here are other words uſed, I think that any way of diſgracing others is meant, either by pointing with the finger, which is one, or by any other geſture, as making mouths, imitating another in his imperfections, or by jeſting or mocking at him, one way of diſgracing being put for all. Laſtly, vain words muſt alſo be put away, where by idle words that profit not, as the Vulgar hath it, are meant, or deceitfull to circumvent his neighbour, or curſed ſpeaking. And it is to be noted, That God will not hear us to make our eſtate proſperous, unleſſe we put away all theſe evils.

If thou ſhalt pour out thy ſoul to the hungry. He ſpake before of breaking thy Verſ.10. bread to the hungry, verſ.7. but now he ſheweth that it muſt be done out of the bowels of compaſſion, love cauſing a ſympathy and chearfulneſſe in doing this. For without love the giving of all my goods to the poor is vain; and 1 Cor.13. God loves a chearfull giver. Then thy light ſhall riſe out of darkneſſe] To 2 Cor.9. the ſame effect with verſ. 8. for miſery thou ſhalt enjoy proſperity and joy.

And the Lord ſhall lead thee continually. That is, Be with thee to bleſſe thee Verſ.11. even in times of greateſt want, that thou ſhalt alwayes have enough.

And they ſhall build from thee. That is, which deſcend from thee, Thy chil- Verſ.12. dren ſhall build the old waſte places; that is, ſhall not only have enough to live plentifully upon, but alſo wherewithall to build this ruinous City of Jeruſalem, as indeed the children which came of ſome of them that now lived, did after their return out of Babylon. So that here is implied miſery and ruine to come to Jeruſalem, but withall a repairing of theſe ruines thereof promiſed, and not only of Jeruſalem, and other Cities of Judah, but of the world by building men and women upon the foundation Chriſt Jeſus, that they might be a glorious Temple, who lay before as it were, upon ruinous heaps, when they were by reaſon of their Idolatries and other abominations under the curſe bringing inevitable ruine. And theſe children of theirs were the Apoſtles and other Preachers, who went out from Jeruſalem into all countreys repairing the breaches, which were made amongſt men by ſinne, for this is done when Heathens attain Juſtification by faith, wrought by the preaching of the Goſpel, as they then did every where. For the Apoſtles and ſeventy ſent out to preach, and to caſt out devils, are called their children in that ſaying of our Lord, If I by Belzebub caſt out devils, by whom do your children caſt them out? And the next words, The foundations of generation and generation, that is, many generations, they ſhall raiſe them up, that is, foundations having lien ruinous generation after generation, which doth not ſo aptly agree to Jeruſalem, becauſe it lay deſolate but ſeventy years, but to other Nations which had lien deſolate in reſpect of the knowledge of the true God, and his grace, being left to be tyrannized over by devils, no buildings of his being all this time amongſt them, but Satans ſtrong-holds only, and that generation after generation ever ſince Abrahams time, whom and his ſeed God choſe peculiarly, paſſing by the reſt of the world. But now by theſe Miniſters of the Goſpel they were built. Muſculus I know and Calvin expound theſe words The foundation of many generations, of the time to come, as if it had been ſaid to laſt from generation to generation; as if it were meant that the ſpiritual building reared up by them ſhould never be ruined again, and this we are ſure ſhall be ſo, for Chriſts Church is built upon a Rock, &c. And therefore not excluding it, I hold that foundations lying in the ruines are alſo meant here, and ſo Vatablus hath it. And then it is as if he had ſaid, Peoples and Nations having lien deſolate many generations by ſinne and unbelief, they ſhall raiſe up to a Temple of God, and this building ſhall ſtand, not as the Temple at Jeruſalem many hundreds of years, but generation after generation to the worlds end. And thou ſhalt be called the repairer of the breach; that is, the Jew ſhall be famous, as being uſed by God for an inſtrument of ſo great a work; and this he attributeth to the Jews, becauſe the Apoſtles and ſeventy were Jews, who went about repairing theſe decayes, and the breach whereby the Gentiles were broken off from being the people of God, for now the partition-wall is broken down, and there is no breaking off of any any more; but in every Nation all that fear God and believe in Chriſt are accepted alike before him. And in the ſame ſenſe it is added, The reſtorer of paths to dwell in, or to habitation, Vulg. Turning paths into quietneſſe, and that not diſagreeably to the Hebrew, for the meaning is, As in time of warre bringing ruine, the very wayes are dangerous to travel in, by which means Cities and Towns lie unfrequented, and the wayes thither are overgrown with graſſe, now by means of peace they ſhould be renewed again, and by travellers frequented. And this is no ſmall glory to men to be happy inſtruments of ſo great a bleſſing, and therefore it is ſpoken of accordingly in praiſing the Apoſtles, and whoſo turns any to God from his ſins, participateth in the ſame honour.

Verſ. 13. Hieron. If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, &c. Jerom will have no ſtrict keeping of a day here meant according to the ſound of the words, both becauſe it cannot thus be fulfilled, that a man ſhould ſit ſtill and not ſtirre from his place an whole day together, as is here ſaid, If thou ſhalt turn away thy foot, and becauſe not one day of ſeven muſt be kept in refraining from our ſinfull pleaſures and wayes and words, but all the dayes of our lives. Wherefore he underſtands it of this kinde of reſt, as before alſo upon Chap. 56. 2. neither do any of our Writers diſſent from him herein. When the Lord next unto mercy and charity commends unto us the worthy keeping of the Sabbath both here and in other places, ſaith Calvin, he meaneth not ſo much the external reſt of the body upon a day, but a continual reſting from walking in ſinfull wayes, doing ſinfull works, or ſpeaking vain words, and then we conſecrate the Sabbath as honourable, when our minds and affections are taken off from worldly things, and lifted up to heavenly. Wherefore they erre that underſtand theſe words as forbidding any other thoughts or talk upon the Sabbath-day beſides heavenly, expounding finding pleaſure of any other pleaſure beſides that which is in hearing, praying, &c. and doing thine own wayes, of doing any worldly thing though lawfull, and ſpeaking words of words touching worldly things. For as in deſcribing a true faſt that which is ſaid is not peculiar to one day, men being at liberty to do otherwiſe the dayes following, as is intimated *verſ.*5. Is this a faſt for a man to afflict himſelf for a day, &c. So touching the Sabbath, and therefore all things here muſt be ſo underſtood, as agreeing to the Sabbath day, and to all the dayes of the week following, for we muſt no day finde our pleaſure, that is, as was before expounded, *verſ.*4. in drunkenneſſe or whoring, or any other unlawfull thing that we delight in, or do our own wayes, that is in oppreſſing, deceiving, unjuſt dealing in any kinde, or ſpeak words, for ſo it is Heb. that is, ſwearing in our common talk, lying, curſing, railing, being obſcene or ſcurrilous, or flattering herein. Touching the external keeping of the Sabbath, it was no part of the Prophets purpoſe to preſcribe how that ſhould be done, but rather to tax hypocrites who ſtood ſo ſtrictly upon that, that they regarded it only, thinking if they kept it outwardly according to the letter, yea more ſtrictly, they highly pleaſed Almighty God. But that without this perpetual Sabbath-keeping is nothing, and this is moſt highly pleaſing, and whoſo keepeth ſuch a Sabbath is in the right way to an everlaſting Sabbath or reſt from all ſorrow in heaven in all joy and glory.

Calvin.

Verſ.14. Hieronym.

I will make thee to ride upon the high places of the earth. See a like paſſage to this *Deut.*32.13. Jerom renders it, I will lift thee up above the heights of the earth: giving this for the ſenſe; If thou ſhalt keep the Sabbath, as hath been ſaid, Thou ſhalt delight thy ſelf in the Lord, that is, have delight and joy unſpeakable in him, and be exalted to the new earth above, which is far higher then the higheſt parts of this, touching which it is ſaid, Bleſſed are the meek for they ſhall inherit the earth, where by earth it is plain, that this earth is not meant, becauſe *Pſal.*37.11. this being promiſed. *Verſ.*18. it is ſaid, That he ſhall delight himſelf in the abundance of peace, And inherit the earth for ever. And verſ. 29. this inheritance is ſaid to be everlaſting, which cannot agree to the earth upon which we now live. And this is further confirmed by the promiſe of long life in the Land or earth which the Lord giveth them made to children that honour their parents: for this cannot be underſtood of this earth, becauſe many ſuch children die young, and ſo it is not fulfilled to them. It is the new earth then above, that is both there and here touched upon, according to that of Peter, We look for a new heaven and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteouſneſſe. And I will feed thee with the heritage of Jacob; that is, ſuch food as eye hath not ſeen, nor ear heard of, neither hath it entred in mans heart to conceive. Yet not according to the opinion of the Millenaries, who hold eating and drinking and marrying, and living in corporeal pleaſures a thouſand years, whereas we are taught, that we ſhall be as the Angels, neither marrying nor giving in marriage, and that this happineſſe ſhall laſt not a thouſand years only, but for ever and ever. Thus Jerom, with whom conſenteth Cyril and Procopius. Some others number three benefits here promiſed, 1. Thou ſhalt delight thy ſelf in the Lord, and having joy in the holy Ghoſt which paſſeth underſtanding, and whereunto he that hath it thinks no joy comparable. 2. I will carry thee above the altitudes of the earth] That is, thy minde being thus filled with ſpiritual joy, thou ſhalt look upon the earth and all earthly things, as farre below, to ſleight and deſpiſe them in compariſon. 3. I will feed thee with the heritage of Jacob, that is, give thee actual poſſeſſion of all the good promiſed to all true Iſraelites in the world to come. Which becauſe it is bound and ſealed for a truth by theſe words, The mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken it, it ſheweth, that there are very few mercifull and righteous perſons, becauſe ſo few have this joy to contemn earthly things therefore, and for this cauſe few ſhall have that heritage. According to this expoſition Gregory ſaith, It is a priviledge of the elect, that they know they are now come to high things, for which they trample upon all worldly things, as being under them. And hence it is that the Lord ſaith by the Prophet to the ſoul that follows him, I will lift 1 Regiſt.Ep.5. above the heights of the earth. And what are the heights of the earth, but gain, flattery of Subjects, ſublimity of honour? &c. But when the heart is fixed in heaven it is ſoon perceived how abject theſe things are, which before ſeemed ſo high. And in another place ſpeaking of himſelf, when he lived ſolitarily, giving himſelf wholly to divine contemplation, deſiring nothing and fearing nothing in this world,me thought I ſtood as it were upon the top of all,and that the ſaying of the Prophet was fulfilled in me, I will ſet thee above the heights of the earth. And this is favored by the words here uſed,which may as well be rendred, I will make thee to be carried above the heights of the earth, as I will make thee ride upon, becauſe רכב ſignifieth as well to be carried as to ride. Yet it is not to be denied, but that the Prophet alludeth to what Moſes ſaith God would do for his people in Canaan, but not reſting here he certainly ſoareth up higher, as hath bin ſaid. But herein, I confeſs, I go from Calvin, Muſculus, &c. who dwell upon the ſenſe that leadeth only to a promiſe of a worldly benefit, to be brought out of Babylon, which was low in compariſon of Judea, and where the Jews were of low condition, into Canaan again, the ancient inheritance of the ſons of Jacob, there to live in liberty and abundance. But alas what had this been in compariſon of the happineſs whereby this place hath been expounded, and what to the promiſes by Chriſt to the faithfull of all Countreys, of whom the Prophet plainly ſpeaks, as well as of the Jews, even from *Chap.*40. hitherto.

Gregor. Moral. 32.*c.*19.

CHAP. LIX.

Verſ.1. THe Lords hand is not ſhortened, that it cannot ſave, &c. Having made ſo excellent a promiſe *chap.*58. to the mercifull and righteous, now he cometh to ſhew what was the cauſe of theirs, and the Nations ſo great miſeries before the fulfilling of this, viz. ſinne ſo greatly abounding, and not any want of power in God to hear and to help the miſerable calling upon him. But ſinne, Hieronym. as Jerom ſaith, makes a partition-wall betwixt God and us, that keeps the reaching of his hand to us away, and likewiſe his hearing, for he heareth not ſinners. Verſ.3. Then *verſ.*3,4,5,6,7,8. he capitulateth their ſins, 1. Plainly, Cruelty Verſ.4. acted with their hands, lying and other wicked ſpeaking with their tongues, *verſ.*4. their ſins of omiſſion, none ſtood for juſtice or truth, thus ſeeking ſhelter from God againſt the ſtorms of adverſity that were coming, but they vainly truſted in their wealth and worldly power, conceiving that by reaſon thereof they ſhould be ſafe, whatſoever the Prophets threatned againſt them, Verſ.5. for this he meaneth by ſaying, They truſt to vain things, &c. 2. Allegorically by a ſimilitude taken from a Baſilisk, the moſt poiſonous of all ſerpents, and of a Spider which is alſo full of deadly poiſon; ſo that it hath been obſerved by ſome that a Spider hath poiſoned and made a Toad to ſwell, and a Baſilisk kils by ſeeing. Now to ſhew how dangerous to bring death in ſtead of help, the devices of the wicked were to thoſe that follow them, he ſaith, They hatch the cockatrices or baſilisks egge, and weave the ſpiders web: he that eats of their Verſ.6. eggs ſhall die. Verſ.6. And their webs ſhall not be a garment, &c. as he had ſaid, *verſ.*4. They conceive trouble and bring forth iniquity] That is, which tends to more trouble in ſtead of delivering out of trouble, and makes both them and others that truſt to ſuch conceptions fuller of trouble and miſery, which are the fruit of iniquity, and therefore are here ſo called. For as he that eats the Baſilisks egge dieth as by poiſon, and he that truſteth to a Spiders-web for a covering, if a ſtorm cometh ſhall finde it to be none; ſo he that animates himſelf to go on in ſin, bearing himſelf upon ſuch vain imaginations, that by ſome worldly means he ſhall be preſerved, friends being made hereby, or ſuch defenſible towers, as that the enemy ſhall not be able to break into, ſhall contrary to his expectation be ſuddenly deſtroyed, as one that lieth open to a dart without any cover that is able to retort it. The word rendred, They hatch, ſignifieth properly to break, and becauſe in hatching the egge breaks, it is rendred to hatch, the Vulgar retains the word break; but they that follow it do ſome of them expound it by hatching, ſome by breaking to eat thereof, as if it were an hens egge, as Jerom; becauſe ſome by being deceived receive ſuch Hieron. evil imaginations of others into their minds, and are poiſoned to death hereby. And this is beſt, as for which the words following make, He that eats their eggs ſhall die, becauſe eggs are not hatched to be eaten, but broken. And whereas this hath been before applied to the imaginations of worldly great men, and danger by enemies, he applieth it to them that are ſtill in expectation of Chriſts coming, ſaying, Theſe are they that talk vanity, conceive trouble and bring forth iniquity, as indeed they do, for a world of troubles have come upon the Jews by this means, and great is the iniquity upon this conception acted by them in crucifying the Lord of life. And they that have and do take this conceit into their minds at this day, as if they had broken and eaten the Cockatrices egge, die and periſh for ever in great numbers; and their arguments whereupon they harden their hearts in infidelity, though they ſeem to them a goodly contexture or well-woven web, yet it is but a Spiders web, and inſufficient to cover them from miſery. And thus I think it not amiſſe to apply theſe things in the ſecond place, as myſtically implied here, and ſo in every paſſage ſome touch is given touching Chriſt and his Kingdom, in propheſying of whom he began to ſpeak *Chap.*40. and continueth to the end of his Prophecy, as hath been already ſaid. But whereas the ſame Jerom following the Seventy expounds breaking this egge, of their breaking it, that having thus done preſently perceive by the ſtinch what it is, and abhorre from it, I ſee not how it can agree, becauſe the ſame who are ſaid to conceive trouble and to bring forth iniquity, or the like unto them, are ſaid to break the Cockatrice-egge, and are threatned with death, and are further ſet forth, as moſt abominably wicked, verſ.6,7,8. The Vulgar Lat. for Cockatrice hath Viper, ſome the Aſp moſt like unto a Cockatrice for incurably poiſoning, for againſt all other Serpents to taſt of a Frog, ſaith Elianus, is a preſent remedy, but none againſt the biting of an Aſp. Hitherto allegorically of their ſins, next he returns again plainly to inveigh againſt them, making a long catalogue both in this ſixth verſe, and 7,8. Their works are works of iniquity, &c. Their feet runne to Verſ.7. evil, they haſten to ſhed innocent bloud, deſtruction and calamity is in their way, &c. Whereby their ſinne in crucifying Chriſt and perſecuting the Prophets are chiefly meant, for theſe works were indeed works of violence in their hands, as it followeth here, verſ.6. and then more particularly, ſaying, They haſten to ſhed innocent bloud, as is alſo objected to them, *Matth.*23.23. and by Verſ.8. Stephan, Act.7. Deſtruction is in their way, and the way of peace they have not known, for in rejecting him that came and preached peace unto them, yea the prince of peace, they overthrew their own peace, and ran headlong the way to deſtruction and calamity, as they have ſince found by wofull experience. And partly from hence, and partly from *Pſal.*14. the Apoſtle draweth an argument to convince the Jews of as great guiltineſſe, if not greater then the Gentiles, *Rom.*3.10. Neither is there judgement in their goings; becauſe there is no peace in their wayes, for in rejecting him, in whom all true peace lieth, they put judgement alſo from them, ſeeing this is he, of whom it was ſaid before, Behold my ſervant in whom my ſoul delighteth, he ſhall bring forth judgement to the Gentiles. Where judgement is put for the judgement of abſolution from ſinne, and of inviting in mercy to his grace here, and his kingdom of glory hereafter.

Therefore judgement is farre away from us, and juſtice layes not hold upon us. Verſ.9. Here after the wickedneſſes of the Jews declared, and indeed generally of all men, for all are groſſe ſinners, he inferreth, That for this cauſe God left the Jews whom he had moſt favoured, to the fury of their enemies, and ſtood not to avenge their quarrel. The fault was not in God, or in his want of mercy, but altogether in themſelves and their abominable ſins. Wherefore though they looked for the light of proſperity and comfort, there was nothing but darkneſſe of miſery and ſorrow.

Verſ.10. Hieronym. We grope for the wall as blinde. Jerom referring all to the light of the Goſpel, ſaith, That the Prophet having laid open the ſins of the Jews, cometh verſ.9, 10, &c. in their perſon, to teach them what to ſay and confeſſe, to acknowledge that the light of ſaving knowledge was farre from them now that the Goſpel is by them rejected and gone to the Gentiles. For by this means they are deſtitute of all true judgement and righteouſneſſe, and are in darkneſſe of minde in ſtead of light, having the Scriptures in their hands, but not able to feel or finde out the truth touching the Meſſiah therein ſet forth, as the blinde gropeth for the wall, when it is nigh to him, and cannot finde it.

Verſ.11. We roar like bears, and mourn like doves. He compares them to two ſorts of creatures of contrary quality, the one cruel, the other fearfull, yet both agreeing in roaring and mourning, the Bear being robbed of her whelps, or Mat.10.16. taken in a pit, roareth; the dove continually mourneth. To be like the Dove for innocency is commended to us, but not without wiſdom. The Jews mourn ſimply now, and are Dove-like full of fear and trembling, but they have no wit to know the original cauſe hereof, their crucifying of Chriſt, and tearing his fleſh like cruel Bears, this light ſhineth brightly in all the world, but they alone have no eyes to ſee it; ſo Jerom. And I doubt not, but as in other paſſages, ſo here he hath a further reach then to ſet forth the outward calamities by the Jews ſuffered, and to teach them to mourn for their ſins in general, as the cauſe thereof; and what can this be, ſeeing he is propheſying of Chriſt, but to bring them, if it may be, to a ſight and ſenſe of that moſt foul and deadly ſinne of all other, to lament and confeſſe it, that it might be done Calvin. away, and they might be converted? Some expound roaring of crying out with a great noiſe, and mourning with little noiſe, it being ſought to ſup-Muſcul. preſſe the grief. Some by the roaring like Bears, the impatient cryings out of the wicked, and by the mourning like Doves, the ſorrow of the godly. But ſeeing he ſaith, We all roar, here is no place for this diſtinction, but the lamentation to be made by all for their wicked fact done out of cruelty and fear, that if they let Jeſus alone all men would follow him, and then the Romans would come and deſtroy them and their City, is here ſet forth.

Verſ.12. *Verſ.*12,13,14. are nothing elſe but an Argument of the confeſſion which the Prophet teacheth them to make of their wickedneſſes grown to that Verſ.15. height, that as he concludeth, *verſ.*15. Whoſo departed from evil made himſelf a prey] Wickedneſſe was grown to that height, that if there were any one that would not conſort with them in their unjuſt and malicious proceedings, they would like ſavage beaſts fall upon him, and ſpoil him of that which he had, and tear him as enemy to the ſtate, as the wicked Lacedemonians ſometime had a kinde of baniſhment called Oſtraciſm, for any honeſt and temperate man; and this is by Jerom ſpecially applied to the Phariſees, who caſt them out of their Synagogues that departed from their evil wayes and believed in Jeſus, as we may ſee in the blinde man receiving his ſight, Joh.9. and in Stephan perſecuted to the death meerly for ſtanding to the truth, and reproving their wickedneſſe. And the Lord ſaw, and it diſpleaſed, &c. Here after ſinne laid open and judgements coming therefore, the Prophet proceedeth to ſhew how diſpleaſing this was to God, and for the comfort of every one that departed from evil and ſuffered therefore, that God himſelf would be a Saviour to ſuch, in whoſe reſolution to ſave every juſt man might ſafely confide. And therefore this part of the verſe is well by Jerom divided from it, and put Verſ.16. to *verſ.*16. as the beginning of that which there followeth, He marvelled that there was no interceſſour] Jerom, That there was not one that occurred; And the Hebrew is occurring or coming out to meet, the meaning is, That they were ſo univerſally wicked, that there was ſcarce one to be met with, that ſtood right and firm in the truth ſpoken of *verſ.*15. ſee the like *Jer.*5.1. and he meaneth eth not only one juſt through eſchewing evil, but one oppoſing the unjuſt proceedings of the wicked againſt ſuch, that was a man of power in the Commonwealth, as the inference made hereupon intimates, Therefore his arm brought ſalvation to him. When there is no mighty man of courage to ſave the juſt from being made a prey, the power of the Lord ſhall do it, and his righteouſneſſe, that is, his righteous judging their malicious and bloud-thirſty enemies. For which *verſ.*17. he proceedeth ſaying, He ſhall put on righteouſneſſe as a breſt-plate, and the helmet of ſalvation, after which follow the garments of vengeance, and his repaying them according to their deeds, as to his adverſaries, *verſ.*18. and this Jerom expounds as a Prophecie of the Jews deſtruction by the Romans; neither is it to be miſliked, becauſe the Lord ſeemed then to be more enraged againſt them then ever, and the juſt One, who is the head of all the juſt, and the fountain of juſtice or righteouſneſſe, had his bloody paſſion by their hands moſt remarkably revenged: as they had crucified him, and cried out, Let his bloud be upon us and our children, ſo it came unto them, and thus they were recompenſed according to their doings, as is here threatned. But what is this, that it is ſaid, The Lord marvelled? The Hebrew ſignifieth, he was aſtoniſhed, and through aſtoniſhment was as dumb for a time, which is ſo ſpoken to ſet forth the ſtrangeneſſe and prodigiouſneſſe of the thing, able to make any man amazed, that ſuch abominable wickedneſſe ſhould overſpread all ſo, as that there was not one that oppoſed it, that men being ſo generally corrupted might be aſtoniſhed in themſelves to think upon it, and ſome at the leaſt in the corrupteſt times be forward to oppoſe violence offered to the innocent.

Verſ.17.

Hieron.

Verſ.18. Hieronym.

He ſhall recompenſe to the Iſlands. That is, not only to his enemies in Jeruſalem, where Jeſus was crucified, ſaith Jerom, but alſo to the other Cities of Judea, which were to Jeruſalem as Iſlands to the continent. But becauſe the word Iſlands is no where elſe uſed in this ſenſe, I rather ſubſcribe to them that expound it as meant of the inhabitants of Iſlands properly, that is, the remoteſt parts, and he meaneth, That revenge ſhall be taken upon wicked oppreſſours of the righteous there, as well as in any other parts, for God will be alike ſuch in what place ſo ever, as by his providence adminiſtring juſtice alike in all parts of the world. And if any ſhall ſay, But how is this to bring ſalvation to him, of which he is ſpeaking? Anſw. The deſtruction of the wicked enemies of the Church is the ſalvation of the faithfull; and therefore it is obſerved, that ſome tyrants being at the point of death have ceaſed perſecuting, as Antiochus Epiphanes of Syria, and Valerius and Maximianus Roman Emperors, who raiſed the tenth and moſt bloudy perſecution againſt Chriſtians; or if not, their mighty enemies being deſtroyed, they are ſaved, as were the Jews by the fall of the Babylonians by Cyrus a friend, coming to the higheſt height of power, in ſtead of an enemy an oppreſſour, the King of Babylon.

Verſ.19.

Therefore they ſhall fear the name of the Lord from the Weſt, &c. This ſhall be the effect of Gods judgements againſt the enemies of his Church, that peoples of all Countreys and Nations all the world over ſeeing it, ſhall fear the Lord, and turn worſhippers of him, as the Gentiles indeed did, when the Apoſtles leaving the Jews to their deſerved deſtruction went and preached to the Gentiles. When the enemy ſhall come in as a floud, the Spirit of the Lord ſhall lift up a Standard againſt him. The Vulgar, The Spirit of the Lord compelling, Hebr. The Spirit of the Lord ſhall lift up a Standard in him, or by him, which makes the ſenſe more eaſie, when the Romans ſhall come againſt the Jews as a violent floud that beareth down all things, they ſhall not come without the Lord and his power, and ſo they ſhall be unreſiſtible; for that it is meant of Jeruſalem, ſee *Dan.*9.26. the end whereof is ſaid to be with a floud. Some expound the laſt words, as if it were meant, the Spirit or power of the Lord ſhall repreſſe him, when he ſhall come like a floud upon the righteous drowning all by his Almighty power, yet he ſhall be turned back with confuſion.

Calvin. Calvin queſtions of what enemies this is ſpoken, and neither liketh of their opinion, who reſtrain it to the Jews only deſtroyed for their obſtinacy againſt Chriſt, nor of theirs that reſtrain it to the deſtruction of Babylon by Cyrus, ſaying that it may beſt be underſtood of the whole time of Gods proceeding in ſeverity againſt the enemies of the Church, from the time that Babylon was overthrown to the time of Jeruſalems deſtruction.

Verſ.20. There ſhall come a Redeemer to Zion, and to them that turn from iniquity. This is by the Apoſtle *Rom.*11.16. applied to the Jews to prove their converſion to come, about which he alſo argueth otherwiſe in that Chapter at large, and layeth this in fine as a ground of it, The gifts and calling of God are without repentance; Upon which I have there written. But it is to be noted, leſt it ſhould be thought that all Zion ſhall be ſaved, that it is added for further explication, To them that turn from ſinne in Jacob; ſo that none ſhall have benefit of this redemption but converts, who caſt away their tranſgreſſions and believe, for which alſo Chriſt came preaching Repent and believe.

Verſ.21. My Spirit which is upon thee, and my words in thy mouth ſhall not depart out of thy mouth, or thy ſeeds or ſeeds ſeed for ever. Here after a Redeemer promiſed to Zion, that is, the Church or Congregation of the faithfull, *verſ.*20. The Lord is brought in ſpeaking for the greater aſſurance of this Church, This is the Covenant that I make with thee, My Spirit and my words, &c. whereby the ſame in effect is promiſed with that which our Lord ſpeaks of, I will ſend the Spirit of truth unto you, and he ſhall lead you into all truth. God was pleaſed firſt to make a Covenant with Abraham and his ſeed according to the fleſh; now he fore-tels of another Covenant with Zion after the coming of the Redeemer, of which alſo *Jer.*31.33. and the meaning is, As a thing covenanted betwixt man and man ſtands firmly, ſo farre forth as the covenanters have truth or power in them; ſo this ſhall continue ratified for ever, that the words of the Goſpel, and the Spirit being once put into the Apoſtles and their mouths to preach them, ſhall never die any more, but there ſhall be a ſeed of faithfull preachers generation after generation, going on to preach the ſame to the worlds end, and in them the Spirit of truth, ſo that they ſhall not erre therefrom at any time. Wherefore although the repreſentative Church, that is, a general Councel convened, may poſſibly erre in ſome things, yet the univerſal Church can never erre, but ſtill there ſhall be ſome faithfull ſouls holding the truth conſtantly and not corrupted, when errours do moſt abound; as in the dayes of Elijah, when he thought none of the true ſervants of God to have been left, but himſelf alone, the Lord told him that there were ſeven thouſand left in Iſrael, whoſe knees never bowed to Baal, &c. And the like is obſerved in the corrupteſt times under the Goſpel by him that wrote the book called Catalogus teſtium veritatis, upon which I have touched in my Catechiſm in ſpeaking of the Church; ſo that although the Church of Rome in preſent calling her ſelf the Catholick Church be degenerated and gone from the truth, yet Chriſts promiſe faileth not, Upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell ſhall not prevail againſt it. See alſo upon this my Antidote againſt Popery. This ſeed may indeed ſometime be very little as the name of remnant, whereby it is called, and A very ſmall remnant, doth imply, but it is never quite extinct, and although it lieth hid from the world for a time, yet it lifts up the head again, and is conſpicuous, as a City ſet upon an hill. And bleſſed are they that be of this ſeed, for ſuch only are redeemed, and are one and the ſame Zion, to which the promiſe is made, whether Jews or Gentiles; and it is not being an Iſraelite or a Chriſtian by outward profeſſion that makes a man one, but ſtill he may be accurſed. Wherefore let none be moved by the marks of this ſeed reckoned up by the Papiſts, Univerſality, Viſibility and Succeſſion, &c. But is the Spirit in the Apoſtles at the firſt, and the words in their mouths, in the mouths of your Prieſts and none other? then ye ſay ſomething, otherwiſe not, but the deſpiſed Proteſtants having the ſame words in their mouths ſhall prove this ſeed and continue, when ye with your vice-god the Pope ſhall go into perdition. The Hebrews, that make nothing of this but a command, as if it had been ſaid, Let them not depart out of thy mouth, or thy ſeeds for ever, do manifeſtly wreſt the Text, and obſcure a main ground of faith, and mark of the true Church. For whatſoever might be ſaid of words, it cannot carry any good ſenſe to ſay of the Spirit, Let it not depart, ſith it is not in mans power to hold it.

CHAP. LX.

Verſ.1. ARiſe and ſhine, for thy light is riſen upon thee, and the glory, &c. Having ſpoken of the Redeemer coming to Zion, Chap.59. now he proceeds to apply this to the comforting of the Church. For when Chriſt came and went about Galilee preaching and healing the diſeaſed, Matthew noteth, That the people who ſat in darkneſſe had a great light ariſen upon them; and Simeon calleth them, A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Iſrael. As it followeth verſ.3. The Gentiles ſhall come to thy light, and Kings, that is, by Chriſt being made Kings and Prieſts unto God, Revel.1.6. By the anointing of the Spirit getting dominion over the fleſh, and offering up themſelves in ſacrifice to God by mortifying their members upon earth, that they may offer an acceptable ſacrifice unto him. Yea and Kings indeed came to this light, and were nurſing fathers to the Church, Iſa.49.23. See the like unto this before Chap.52.1. But before that Chap.32.18. My people ſhall ſit in the duſt; and to Babylon it is ſaid, Deſcend, ſit in the duſt, Chap.47.1. The meaning then is, That the Church of believers beginning amongſt the Jews, of whom Chriſt and the Apoſtles were, but enlarged by the coming in of the Gentiles, ſhould after great dejection have great exaltation. And here it is to be noted for the confuting of them that would reſtrain it to the Jews, that although in the Septuagint and Vulgar Jeruſalem be here named, yet it is not in the Hebrew, but without naming any particular the Church left to be underſtood, conſiſting both of Jews and Gentiles; but as hath been ſaid, of the Jews indeed firſt; and therefore it may be taken as ſpoken to the Jew, that is, ſuch amongſt them, as believed and publiſhed the faith to others. For they were at the firſt a poor little company, not above an hundred and twenty, Act.1. but this Church aroſe, as ſhe is here bidden, to great ſplendour, ſhining in a ſhort time all over the world.

Matth.4. Luk.2.32.

Verſ.2. Darkneſſe ſhall cover the earth, &c. To magnifie the mercy of God the more towards his Church in this ſhining light, he amplifieth it in comparing the condition of all others in the world with hers. All elſe are in darkneſſe, that is, ſpiritual darkneſs, only in the Church there is light and true ſaving knowledge, in which alone there is comfort indeed, which was ſometime ſhewed as in a figure, when light was only in Goſhen, and in all Egypt beſides palpable darkneſs repreſenting hell.

Verſ.4. Lift up thine eyes round about, all theſe gather themſelves to thee. See the like to this Chap.49.18.

Verſ.5. Then thou ſhalt ſee and flow together, and fear. The word rendred flow, is by Calvin rendred, Thou ſhalt ſhine, for נהר ſignifieth either. I preferre flowing, becauſe he is ſpeaking of the Gentiles gathering themſelves to the believing Jews round about, as waters gather together till they make a great floud, and then the place to which is ſaid to flow with water; ſo the Church with multitudes coming from all parts. But what meaneth he by adding Fear, and be enlarged in heart with joy? But fear, as Calvin well noteth, is put for aſtoniſhment at the firſt, as not perceiving what this flowing in of the Gentiles meant, becauſe it ſhould be ſudden, but perceiving it to be to fullfill the Congregation of Chriſtians, the heart is by and by enlarged with joy. For it is great joy to all true Iſraelites, to ſee their company encreaſed, and Countreys and Nations coming in to Chriſt as ſubjects of his Kingdom, as a thing that tends to his glory, and to the making of the Church the more illuſtrious, for the amplifying whereof and proſperous condition by the ſuperabounding of grace all good Chriſtians daily pray. The Vulgar for fear hath, Thou ſhalt wonder the abundance of the ſea, the ſtrength of the Gentiles ſhall be gathered to thee; Calvin, The riches; but the word ſignifieth ſtrength or fortitude, as the Vulgar Latin renders it. By the abundance of the Sea, meaning abundance of people, for their exceſſive greatneſs compared to the vaſt Ocean; and by the ſtrength of the Gentiles, ſuch as were mightieſt and greateſt amongſt them, and not the common ſort only, which was fulfilled in Conſtantine's time.

Verſ.6. The multitude of Camels ſhall cover thee, &c. That is, ſo many ſhall come with Camels and Dromedaries to tender their ſervice and gifts to the Lord, as that they ſhall cover the Land, he ſpeaks according to the manner of thoſe times, wherein none appeared before the Lord empty, but all with their gifts, as the Magi coming out of the Eaſt to worſhip Chriſt brought and preſented to him in way of homage, Gold, Myrrh and Frankincenſe, the moſt precious things of their Countrey, ſo here, they ſhall bring gold and frankincenſe. But his meaning is not, that according to the letter the Church ſhould have it thus done unto her, but then Camels and Dromedaries came in ſuch abundance, when men that are wealthy, and great multitudes of ſuch ſubmit themſelves, and all their ſubſtance to be at the Lords diſpoſing, liberally relieving his poor members, and giving full and ſufficient maintenance to his faithfull Miniſters, a taſte whereof was given by ſome *Act.*2. who communicated to the Apoſtles and poor believers all that they had. So that they, who underſtand it of abundance of riches conferred upon Church-men and other religious perſons, are much miſtaken, ſeeing the glory of the Church lieth not herein, but in mens ready ſubmiſſion to the Lord in all things, as hath been ſaid, and in faith more precious then gold, and holineſs and righteouſnes. For the places here named, they were all Eaſtward, and had their names from Abrahams children which he had by Keturah, for Midian was his ſon by her, and Ephah the ſon of Midian, and Seba likewiſe.

Verſ.7. All the flocks of Kedar ſhall be gathered together unto thee, and the rammes of Nebaioth. Kedar and Nebaioth were parts of Arabia, where the Iſhmaelites inhabited, and they abounded with herds and flocks of cattel greatly; now the Prophet here foretels of their converſion to the faith under the ſimilitude or metaphor of flocks, and rammes that ſhould be gathered together to Zion, that is, the Church. Before he ſpake of other Eaſtern parts, as Midian and Ephah, &c. Under the metaphor of Camels and Dromedaries that ſhould come in, now of the Iſhmaelites thus ſet forth, becauſe they moſt abounded with flocks; wherefore in naming beaſts he meaneth men, and ſets forth their coming, as an acceptable ſacrifice upon the Altar of the Lord. For the time of the Goſpel, touching which theſe things are ſpoken, is no time to have Altar or carnal ſacrifice, but only the living Altar Chriſt Jeſus, by whom the faithfull of all Countreys offer the ſacrifices of praiſe to God continually, Heb.
Muſculus. 13.15. Shall come up acceptably to my altar. Muſculus here noteth three words,
Note. 1. Come up. 2. Acceptably. 3. Upon my Altar, intimating that then men come and offer themſelves to God as they ought, whenas, 1. They are elevated to heaven in their minde, as the Sacrifice of old was lifted up. 2. When there is faith in them that praiſe God, which only can make a Sacrifice acceptable. 3. When in the name of Chriſt, who is our Altar. And I will glorifie my houſe of glory, that is, not the Temple built of wood and ſtone, but the Church his houſe, 1 *Tim.*3.15. for then is ſhe glorious when abounding with faithfull and holy people.

Verſ.8. Who are theſe that flee like a cloud. Here the Prophet goeth on by ſimilitudes further to illuſtrate the argument in hand of the thick and threefold coming in of the Gentiles to the unity of the Chriſtian faith at the preaching of the Goſpel, for a cloud covers the sky farre and wide, and fleeth more ſwiftly then any bird; ſo he means that the people coming in to Chriſt as his Church, ſhould be a wonderfull great company able to cover a large Countrey, if they were all gathered together to one place, and this their coming ſhould be with incredible celerity, for which he ſaith, Who are theſe that flee as clouds? as wondering at it, as indeed it was wonderfull and exceeding all credit, that when the Jews had been taught ſo long and were not moved, that the rude Gentiles who never had teaching before, ſhould be ſo docible as upon the ſudden to turn in ſo great multitudes. Again, Doves flee together in great companies to their Dove-houſe-windows, and very ſwiftly alſo; & herein they differ from all other fowls that flee in companies, for they flee but from the open fields in one place, to the open fields in another, but theſe to the houſe where they are fed, and are by this food and the neatnes of the houſe drawn to it, and being got in are ſheltered from being a prey to the Hauk. And therefore moſt aptly are the faithful compared to Doves, for their diligent and ſpeedy coming to Gods houſe to be fed by his precious Word and Supper, and to be ſafe from ſpiritual enemies, that ſeek to devour them, having this houſe in eſtimation for the ordinances therein beautifying it, and making it more glorious in their eyes, then any other building, to ſay nothing of the Doves innocency, chaſtity, clean feeding, continual mourning and being without gall, as not pertinent to this place, but rather to Mat. 10.16.

Verſ. 9. Surely the Iſles ſhall wait for me. As the continent before-ſpoken of, ſo the Iſles ſhall come in to wait upon the Lord; and hereby, as hath been ſaid before, the furtheſt parts of the world are meant; and becauſe they cannot come to Zion, but by ſhips, he addeth, The ſhips of Tarſhiſh firſt, or In the beginning, whereby is intimated the converſion of the Iſlands at the firſt going out of the Goſpel, as ancient Hiſtory ſaith, That this our Iſland of Brittany was by Joſeph of Arimathea coming hither, and Philip, and then their ſons and daughters are ſaid to be brought by the ſhips of Tarſis, or of the ſea, for Tarſis ſignifieth the ſea, or is the proper name of Tarſus a City in Cilicia, famous for ſhipping; and therefore hereby may be meant ſhips of all parts, one being named, and others underſtood. And ſons and daughters of Zion are brought in them, when the inhabitants of the Iſlands occupying ſhips are converted, becauſe the faithfull of all countreys are ſons of the Church; and the bringing of them in ſhips is ſpoken of only by way of Allegory, and likewiſe the bringing of their ſilver and gold with them, becauſe they coming to be children of the Church, their riches muſt ſerve for the neceſſary uſe of their poor brethren, who are fellow-members of Chriſt with them; ſee verſ.6.

Verſ. 10. And the ſons of the ſtrangers ſhall build thy wals, &c. He goeth on ſtill in the Allegory begun, and becauſe the Church is ſet forth under the name of Zion, the wals whereof needed building, and in the Temple there ſome muſt miniſter, he ſpeaketh accordingly touching the Church under the Goſpel, whoſe wals the ſons of ſtrangers build, when Preachers are raiſed up of the Gentiles to edifie Gods people in knowledge and grace, and Kings miniſter to her, when by their power they are alwayes ready armed to defend her, as all Chriſtian Kings at their inauguration are ſworn to do. For I was wroth with thee for a time, this is ſaid in reſpect of the Babyloniſh Captivity, whereby the Church that then was, ſuffered, which was partly the ſame under the Goſpel, viz. as it conſiſted of believing Jews, to whom the Gentiles being joined in the ſame faith, were one and the ſame, *Gal.*3.28.

Verſ. 11, 12. Thy gates ſhall ſtand open continually. This is ſpoken for the great multitudes of comers in by believing, The Nations that will not ſerve thee ſhall periſh, that is, by being obedient to the ſame faith, and defending it againſt all oppugners, becauſe he or they that believe not are damned everlaſtingly.

Verſ. 13. The firre and pine tree, &c. Whereof *chap.*41.19. & 55.13. it is ſpoken in alluding to a material building, to which timber of all ſorts is brought to adorn it, ſo the ſpiritual Temple with excellent men, ſometime called precious ſtones, ſometimes Cedars, Firres, Pine-trees, &c. I will make the place of my feet glorious; So the Temple of old was called Gods footſtool,and the heaven is his throne,the earth is his footſtool, but thoſe parts ſpecially where the Goſpel is imbraced,and they are ſaid to be the place of his feet,that we might be moved to look up higher to Heaven, where his ſeat is. For although his footſtool be high and glorious,yet his ſeat is much more;the meditation whereof, and that we ſhall once come thither, is moſt comfortable.

Verſ.14. The ſons of them that afflicted thee ſhall come bending unto thee. See the like Revel.3.9. here he propheſieth of the converſion of Kings children, whoſe fathers before were perſecutors, and ſpake reproachfully of Chriſtians, which was long ago fulfilled in all parts, when Emperors and Kings ſo greatly reverenced the Church of Chriſt, and ſo highly accounted of being children thereof, as Theodoſius, who profeſſed that he joyed more that he was member hereof,then the head of many Nations. For then do Kings bow at the Churches feet, when they eſteem thus reverently of her, and ſubmit to her teaching and diſcipline thereof.

Verſ.16. Thou ſhalt ſuck the milk of the Gentiles, and the breſts of Kings. There is ſomething like unto this Chap.49.23. of Kings being nurſing fathers, and of their bending and bowing, as verſ. 14. is ſaid; for the further expoſition therefore of both theſe paſſages, the Reader may have recourſe thither. Only here is one thing more, Thou ſhalt ſuck the milk of the Gentiles, whereby is meant, that they ſhould not only be ſuſtained by Kings of the Nations, but alſo by the precious and moſt excellent things of their Nobles and other principal men of their Kingdom, as ſometime Artaxerxes and his ſeven counſellors (Ezra 7.15.) gave precious gifts to the Temple. And becauſe milk was one of the things by which the Land of Canaan was commended, for in praiſing it, it is ſaid to have flowed with milk and honey, the precious things conferred by the great ones of the earth upon the Church under the Goſpel are ſet forth hereby. For that by milk things moſt precious in this world are meant; ſee *verſ.*17. where Verſ.17. coming to enumerate them, he ſaith, For iron I will bring gold, for braſſe ſilver, &c. Which is ſpoken in alluding to the materials of the Temple of old, but meaning, that the Church ſuſtained and protected, as hath been ſaid, by Kings, ſhould ſhine by the Miniſtry of the Word therein, being more precious then gold and ſilver, as *Pſal.*19. and *Revel.*1. the Churches are ſet forth by the ſimilitude of golden Candleſticks. For underſtand it carnally of abundance of wealth wherewith the Church ſhould be endued, and what glory were this, but vain and tranſitory? whereas Peter gloried in this, that he (Act.3.) could ſay, Silver and gold have I none, and Paul wanting theſe, yet ſaith, he abounded, yea, and that he and other believers being not only poor, but perſecuted, and all the day long killed, were more then Conquerours.

Verſ.18. Thou ſhalt call thy Wals ſalvation. That is, whereas wals ſerve to ſecure the inhabitants of a City, and gates for Judges to ſit in of old, that by executing Juſtice and Judgement there all may be kept in peace and righteouſneſs, and ſo be ſafe from violence and wrong; in like manner he that is the ſalvation of his Church ſhould be as wals about her continually, and by means of righteouſneſs flouriſhing there, and wickedneſs ſuppreſſed, her gates ſhould be called praiſe, for the joy in Gods favour and continual praiſe aſcribed unto him in every Church for all this, as the place where Jehoſhaphat and his people ſometime (2 Chron.30.) praiſed God ſo much was called the valley of Beracha, or bleſſing, long after.

Verſ.19. Hitherto the happineſs of the Church in reſpect of riches and honour from men, and ſafety through his everliving protectour, now followeth her happineſs for the light of Gods countenance alwayes upon her, ſet forth by this, The Sunne ſhall be no more a light to thee by day, &c. For the Lord ſhall be an everlaſting light unto thee. Not meaning indeed that no Sunne ſhould ſhine any more, but becauſe they ſhould have greater comfort, and more light by Gods Grace and Spirit beſtowed upon them in their hearts, then the world hath by the Sunne, ſo great and comfortable is ſpiritual light in compariſon of worldly; ſee ſomething like it before, where it is ſaid, The light of the Moon ſhall be as the Sunne, and the light of the Sunne ſevenfold. For it is common with the Prophets to ſet forth comfort and proſperity by light, and miſery and ſorrow by darkneſs. And the Lord ſhall be thy glory, As the Sunne and Moon are to the world, ſo the Lord to his Church, a glory, no company being for this ſo glorious as ſhe is. This paſſage ſeemeth to have been made uſe of by John the Divine, *Rev.*21.

Verſ.21. Thy people alſo ſhall be all righteous. Like unto this is the ſaying before, No unclean perſon ſhall enter in there; which is not ſpoken, as if any Congregation in this world were pure and without any wicked perſons in it, for the ſheep and goats ſhall ever be mingled together here; but this is ſpoken to take away the confidence of ſuch as apply the comforts before-going to themſelves, becauſe they are of the true Church, although they live ſtill in ſinne. The meaning therefore is nothing elſe, but that the true Zionites ſhall excell for this, that they ſhall be all righteous; ſo that if any live in ſinne they are none of this number, although of the Church, for all are not Iſrael that are of Iſrael, (Rom.9.) and there are ſome cenſured for going out from us, of whom it is ſaid, That they were not of us. (1 Joh.2.20.) Ob. If it is ſaid, What ſuperexcellency is it above that of the faithfull in all times? I anſwer, it is ſpoken in regard of the paucity of ſuch in the old Church of the Jews, and the great number of ſuch true Iſraelites of all Countreys under the Goſpel, and it ſhall be according to the words verified by that time Chriſt hath done purging of his floor, and having fanned out the chaff, burnt it in unquenchable fire, as Calvin (Calvin.) well noteth, by Zion, whereunto this promiſe is made, underſtanding the profeſſors of the faith of Chriſt of all times and ages, whilſt the world ſtandeth, and at the laſt day conſidered altogether. If then there be any in Chriſtian Churches that layeth hold upon this comfort, who is unrighteous ſtill, he is utterly miſtaken, (Note.) becauſe all to whom it belongs are righteous. And they ſhall inherit the Land for ever. This is no new promiſe but ſuch as was made *Pſal.*37. The meek ſhall inherit the earth, the meaning being, not that the Jews converted to the faith, ſhould dwell again in their own Land for ever, for he is ſpeaking now of Jews (Act.2.) fearing God of all Nations, for ſuch are Jews within, *Rom.*2.29. and comforting all ſuch by this, that they ſhould as heirs of promiſe hold theſe worldly things, all the powers of hell not being able to root them out of the earth to the worlds end, and not by the right of ſtewardſhip only, as the wicked do that muſt give an account, and be turned out at laſt, becauſe they are not able to do it. So that here is a ground of Chriſtians continuing as long as the world laſteth; of which alſo ſee a ground *chap.*59.21. and of the difference betwixt the righteous and the wicked in reſpect of theſe earthly things, the one ſort have them as heirs, the other but as ſtewards. A branch of my planting] He alſo thus ſet forth the Chriſtian Church, to ſhew that it cannot be rooted up, becauſe a plant planted by our heavenly Father, there a contrary reaſon of ſuch, and of a plant not planted by him, which our Lord ſaith ſhall be rooted out.

Verſ.22. A little one ſhall become a thouſand, and a ſmall one a ſtrong Nation. This is added to ſhew, That although the Chriſtian Church at the firſt were very ſmall, yet it ſhould encreaſe to admiration, as hath been alſo before ſhewed in other words.

CHAP. LXI.

Verſ.1. THe Spirit of the Lord is upon me, becauſe he hath anointed me, &c. He that ſaid in the laſt words of *chap.*60. I the Lord will haſten it, now ſheweth, how ſuch an incredible company ſhould come in to encreaſe the Church beyond all that man could have conceived, by ſaying, The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, which is to be underſtood as ſpoken by Chriſt as man, as the former words by him as God. For ſo we reade Matth. 3.16. That the Spirit of the Lord came down upon him in his Baptiſm, and this was his anointing ſpoken of *Pſal.*45. and of the ſame ſee before *Iſa.*11.1. and that it was ſpoken of Chriſt, *Luk.*4.18. where the Lord applieth it to himſelf, To binde up the broken-hearted, Verſ.2. the opening of the priſon-doors, &c. For this ſee before *Chap.*42.7. & 49 9. and of the acceptable year of the Lord, Chap. 49.8. And the day of Hieronym. the vengeance of our God, that is, as Jerom rightly, againſt the unbelieving Jews, upon whom vengeance was taken ſoon after by the Romans. And if this was fulfilled then, as Chriſt ſaith it was, *Luk.*4.18. How ſay ſome, that they are yet to be fulfilled at the converſion of the Jews, unleſs it be meant in more perfection? So Jerom. To comfort them that mourn, that is, for the hardneſs of the Jews hearts, as Paul did *Rom.*9 for he upon whom was the Spirit, pro- Matth.5. nounceth comfort to all ſuch, ſaying, Bleſſed are they that mourn, for they ſhall be comforted.

Verſ.3. Beauty for aſhes. A figurative expreſſion of the ſame that was ſpoken plainly before. For in time of mourning they put on ſackcloth and aſhes in thoſe dayes, therefore he ſaith contrariwiſe in ſpeaking to comfort; Beauty for aſhes, making filthy and foul, And the garments of gladneſs for the ſpirit of heavineſſe] that is, goodly apparel ſetting forth the body in moſt decent manner for ſackcloth worn in heavineſs, making it uncomely; it is a periphraſis of joy reſtored for ſorrow to ſuch Jews, as being touched with compunction for their own ſins, and the ſins of their brethren, turned to the Lord, of which ſort we reade that there were three thouſand at one time *Act.*2. and not only to Jews, but to all other of what Countrey or Nation ſoever that mourn likewiſe, for all come under the name of inhabitants of Zion.

Verſ.5. Strangers ſhall ſtand and feed your flocks. Here I omit *verſ.*4. being the ſame with *chap.*58.12. And *chap.*60.10. in other words ſaith the ſame with this, The ſons of ſtrangers ſhall build thy wals] For preaching the Goſpel is ſometime ſet forth by building, and ſometime by feeding of a flock, and the Preacher is both called a Builder, 1 Cor.3.11. and a feeder of a flock, 1 Cor.9. neither is the meaning of the next words any other They ſhall be thy husbandmen and vine-dreſſers, for as we that be Preachers are builders, ſo we are husbandmen, as is implied, where the Apoſtle ſaith, We are labourers together with God, ye are Gods husbandry, and Gods building. And by ſaying ſo it is implied alſo, that we are vine-dreſſers, which is one part of husbandry, as plowing is another; ſee alſo *Mat.*20. *Joh.*15.

Verſ.6. And ye ſhall be called the Prieſts of the Lord, the Miniſters of our God. Here the Prophet ſeems to make a diſtinction, as if by thoſe whom all ſhould ſerve, as hath been ſaid *verſ.*5. and *chap.*60.12. the Nation of the Jews were meant, and that when they ſhall be converted to the faith, they with their King ſhould reign over all Countreys. Thus indeed ſome of late dayes have ga- Hieronym. thered: but Jerom ſaith, That this is ſpoken to the very ſmall remnant of them, which appeared for Chriſt, and preached him, when others perſecuted him, viz. the twelve Apoſtles, for they as Prieſts or Princes, for the word כהנים ſignifieth either, ruled in all countreys, where the Goſpel was imbraced, and were highly accounted of, as the Miniſters of the living God, as Act.16.17. ſhe that had the ſpirit of divination ſaid of Paul and his fellows. Others Calvin. without this diſtinction referre to all the faithfull generally, alledging Revel. 1.6. where it is ſaid, He hath made us Kings and Prieſts unto God, and 1 Pet. 1.9. for before the Jews themſelves were not all Prieſts, but only ſome of the Tribe of Levi. But if this Expoſition be admitted, why doth the Prophet make a diſtinction, as he doth? Verily this cannot otherwiſe be anſwered, but as by Jerom before, All lawfull Preachers are Miniſters of God indeed, and both they and all the faithfull, Prieſts unto him, but the twelve Apoſtles above the reſt; and a like diſtinction muſt needs be alwayes in the Church, or elſe ſhe cannot be well governed, and for want of government, all will go to confuſion.

Verſ.7. Hieronym.

In their Land they ſhall poſſeſſe the double. For the double ſhame which they had, the Jews for their infidelity, and the Gentiles for their Idolatry in their Land, that is, the Land promiſed for inheritance to the meek, they ſhall have double comfort, 1. In this life by believing, 2. In the life to come by actually enjoying. Luther. Epheſ.5.12. Or by double ſhame with Luther we may underſtand, before God and before men, for till a man be converted he doth that which is ſhamefull before God, and for a reward is put to confuſion by being abaſed amongſt men; and contrariwiſe the double in their own Land, of honour before God, exalting them by a proſperous eſtate, and by his grace firſt, and before men, both good, who honour grace in whomſoever they ſee it, and natural, who honour thoſe that are lifted up to dignity. Some expound it of the Miniſtry, called before ſingularly, The Prieſts of the Lord, holding the double to be the double honour ſpoken of, 1 *Tim.*5.17. Calvin. Calvin without any exact diſtinction, for abundance of ſhame and miſery, and abundance of ſpiritual comfort even in this world, not for a time, but for ever, this world being denoted in theſe words, In their Land, that is, the Land where the wicked worldling thought that he only ſhould have a portion, and that the power ſhould ever be in his hands, and the everlaſting continuance of their joy, expreſſed in the next, Everlaſting joy ſhall be unto them. The Hebrew may well be rendred, For your double confuſion and ſhame, they ſhall joy in their part or portion: And expounded thus, for your great ſhame and reproach (O ye holy Apoſtles) which ye have had at mens hands, to whom ye have gone preaching, they being converted ſhall be glad of their portion in ſpiritual comfort through believing coming to them hereby, and good cauſe, for they ſhall have double in their Land, that is, heavenly comfort, which is twice as much as any worldly that they could have before, and this ſhall never end.

Verſ.8.

For I the Lord love judgement and hate robbery in a burnt-offering. That is, out of the love which I bear to righteouſneſs, and the hatred of rapine, that is, of any gain coming in unjuſtly, though it be imployed for burnt-offering, I will turn the condition of the righteous, as hath been ſaid, from ſhame to glory. And will direct their work in truth, Heb. Will give their work in truth; ſo alſo Vulgar Latin; here the word אמת truth, ſignifieth alſo firmneſſe and ſtability, the meaning being, I will make their work ſtable, that is, this work wrought upon them to their ſo great joy, ſo that it ſhall not flit and vaniſh again, but continue for ever, as unto which I binde my ſelf by an everlaſting Covenant, as in the next words.

Verſ.9.

And their ſeed ſhall be known amongſt the Gentiles. By their ſeed meaning eminent Chriſtians like unto the Apoſtles ſhining in grace and vertue, whom all men that eſteem of the vertuous ſhall count the bleſſed of the Lord. And he cals ſuch their ſeed, becauſe born again of the immortal ſeed of the Word which they preached, for ſo Paul tels the Corinthians, That he begat them to Chriſt. 1 Cor.4.

Verſ.10.

I will greatly rejoyce in the Lord. In this and verſ. 11. the Church is brought in praiſing and exulting in God for all the gracious Promiſes preceding, acknowledging that hereby ſhe was moſt glorioully cloathed above all other Congregations. And to ſhew her nothing doubting of the performance, ſhe concludeth, That as things and ſeeds having life in them, ſpring commonly out of the earth; Verſ.11. ſo ſhe firmly beleeved, That righteouſneſſe and praiſe ſhould ſpring forth before all Nations, that is, upon the preaching of the Goſpel in all Nations many ſhould be converted ted and grow famous for their eminent ſhining in grace, as was before promiſed.

CHAP. LXII.

Verſ.1. F*Or Zions ſake I will not keep ſilence*, Hebr. For Zion I will not. That is, for the exceeding great love which I bear to the Church, I will not, I cannot hold my peace, nor ceaſe from ſpeaking of her Saviour, ſaith the Prophet over and over, if any man ſhould ask, why, having already ſpoken ſo Hieronym. much of him, he ſtill went on to ſpeak more till her juſt one cometh as brightneſſe: Calvin. thus the Hebrew and Vulgar, but Calvin, Till her righteouſneſſe, but it com- Muſcul. eth all to one, for Chriſt is hereby meant, as Jerom ſaith, although others expound it as meant of actually declaring Zion to be righteous in Gods acceptation, which was when the Jews were delivered out of their long Captivity, in the time whereof no ſuch thing appeared, but then it came forth, as it were, as is here ſaid, and was as manifeſtly ſeen by all men, as the brightneſs of a burning Lamp. But Marlorat reſteth not here without adding Chriſt, as chiefly hereby meant, as there is great reaſon he ſhould be, ſith the joy for Zion in reſpect of her deliverance by Cyrus, was nothing to her juſtification and ſalvation by Chriſt. But how is it ſaid, that he would not be ſilent, till he came, whoſe coming was not till many hundred years after? Anſw. Iſaiah continued ſpeaking by his writings, which by Gods providence were preſerved till Chriſts coming, and ſince to this day.

Verſ.2. And the Gentiles ſhall ſee thy righteous one. That is, Chriſt, who came of the Jews, which they did, when he being preached unto them, was believed in. And thou ſhalt be called by a new name. Moſt of the ancients agree, that this new name, is the Church of Chriſt. Whereas before the faithfull were called Iſrael, Zion or Jeruſalem; ſome unaptly ſay, The new name here meant is Jeſus, as if it had been ſpoken to Chriſt, when as it is ſpoken to Zion. But ſome more rightly will have by this new name meant that which is ſet down by way of ex- Calvin. plication of this, *Hephzibah, My delight in her, verſ.*4. Calvin ſeems to think nothing elſe to be meant, but that the Church ſhall be ſpoken of as renewed, which was before ſo greatly decayed; ſo that as a City new built out of the ruines, hath a new name by the builder given it, in like manner the Church being re-built by the Lord, hath by his mouth a new name; and forſomuch as he hath expreſſed what it is, why ſhould we doubt what it is? and not reſt in the name before expreſſed, a Church dearly beloved of God, as a woman new married of her husband: for that the Church is ſo now, ſee *Epheſ.*5.30. And the name Eccleſia or Church, is not found given to the faithfull, till the N.T. and this name implieth a calling out from all parts of the world, a company Note. peculiar to God and precious for holineſs, in regard whereof this company is otherwiſe ſet forth by the name of Saints. Wherefore think upon this (all Chriſtians) which is alſo another moſt excellent new name, whereby ye are called, and be aſhamed to bear a new name, and yet live after the old man in all manner of vile luſts, for whilſt ye do thus, ye have a name from Chriſt, but none other benefit by him, as being ſtill out of him, ſith he that is in Chriſt is a new creature.

Verſ.4. Thou ſhalt be called Hephzibah, and thy Land Beulah. Vulg. My will or pleaſure in her, according to the ſignification of the word, for Chephtſi is my pleaſure or complacency, and bah in her, as it was ſaid of Chriſt the head of the Church, ſo through him of her, In whom I am well pleaſed, or if it be rendred by his will, the meaning is, My will is done in her, becauſe ſhe prayeth daily for this, Thy will be done in earth, as in heaven; and every true member of the Church deſires from his heart to be continually doing of it, and doth it ſo, that he is not in the courſe of his life like the wicked, there being betwixt him and them this manifeſt difference, He that is born of God ſinneth not, but he that committeth ſinne is of the devil, 1 Joh.3.9,10. And for Beulah, the Vulgar hath inhabited, but Pagnin and Vatablus, married; the word בעל of which it cometh, ſignifieth to poſſeſſe or to hold, as a Lord or Maſter Land; and therefore it may beſt be rendred (poſſeſſion) for as the Land of Canaan was of old called the Lords inheritance or poſſeſſion, ſo now every Countrey where the faithfull inhabit, is his poſſeſſion alſo, whereas before it was deſolate in reſpect of good inhabitants, but now is inhabited by many ſuch, as is ſaid in the next words.

Verſ.5. The young man ſhall dwell with the Virgin, &c. That is, there ſhall be marrying amongſt the faithfull, whereof ſhall come many children filling the Land, the Parents being Chriſtian ſhall have children Chriſtians alſo, and by reaſon hereof even when hot perſecution aroſe Chriſtian Lands were not deſolate, but had a daily encreaſe of young ones coming on in the room of thoſe that were by perſecution cut off, to prove which to be ſo, it grew into a Proverb, Sanguis Martyrum ſemen Eccleſiæ, as ſeeds ſown many come up for one, ſo proved the martyred Saints in the Church. Our New Tranſlation, As a young man marrieth a Virgin, thy ſons ſhall marry thee; but the Vulgar before-going better, for a young man and maid ſhall inhabit, children ſhall inhabit. For ſo it is in the Hebrew, being a reaſon, as כי noteth, of the name Beulah before-going, whereas if it be taken for marrying, the ſenſe is marred, ſith it is improper to ſay of ſons, that they ſhall marry their mother.

Verſ.6. I have ſet watchmen upon thy wals (O Jeruſalem) which ſhall never be ſilent. Here is ſhewed, how it ſhould come to paſſe that there ſhould never be a deſolation in the Land, where the Church is, but children ſtill coming on to inhabit it, there ſhall alwayes be watchmen, otherwiſe called Paſtours or Prophets, who by daily inculcating the Doctrine of the Goſpel, ſhould as by immortal ſeed, hereby beget children from time to time unto Chriſt. But in ſaying Note. that they ſhould not be ſilent night nor day, he intimateth the duty of watchmen, to be not rarely now and then to preach, but very often, and not only in the day, but when need requires, as in the time of perſecution, in the night alſo, as Paul preached till mid-night, viz. in times of perſecution, whereunto he alluding ſaith, Preach in ſeaſon and out of ſeaſon. 2 Tim.4. Ye that make mention of the Lord, keep not ſilence. Having propheſied of the zealous and painfull Preachers, which ſhould be under the Goſpel, now he exhorts them and all others, Prophets of his time and after, to pray alſo without ceaſing unto God, that Jeruſalem might be made a praiſe in the earth, Verſ.7. which is by the coming of Chriſt; and therefore the Prophets before are exhorted to pray for his coming in the fleſh, and the Prophets ſince for the propagation of the Goſpel into all parts, and for his ſecond coming in glory, as John doth Revel. 22. For then is Jeruſalem a praiſe in all the earth, when Chriſt, who came of the Jews, ſhineth by miracles, and glory and praiſe is aſcribed to him in all Lands, and finally he ſhall appear to the view of all men in glory, attended by Note. the holy Angels. Theſe things ſhall be, yet it is the Prophets duty to pray for them, and the duty of the whole Church, otherwiſe we cannot ſhew our faith and earneſt deſire after them, becauſe faith and zeal cannot but utter themſelves in prayer, as it is ſaid of Saul, ſo ſoon as he believed, Behold he prayeth, Act.9.

Verſ.8. I will no more give thy corn to be meat for thy enemies. This the Lord ſwears by his right hand, and the arm of his ſtrength, that is, his fidelity, a token whereof is giving one the right hand, and his almighty power, Hebr. For I will not give it, is, If I ſhall give; being a form of an oath thus to be ſupplied, If I ſhall give thy wheat, &c. let me not be counted faithfull or omnipotent. He alludeth, ſaith Jerom, to what had been formerly done in the dayes of their Hieron. oppreſſion by the Midianites Judg.6. and ſhould be done by the Babylonians, for of theſe laſt it was ſaid, Chap. 1.9. Strangers devour your labours, but he means the Churches meat, which is the meat and life of the ſoul, and by their enemies, devils, who are ſaid to have devoured it, or of whom it is ſaid, that it was meat to them, becauſe in time of blindneſs and ſuperſtition they offered to Idols, which were devils, whereby their bread became meat to theſe their enemies, and becauſe they counted it meat unto them thus blindly to lead John 4.

Calvin. Muſcul. them in the truth. Calvin and Muſculus underſtanding all literally, expound it of an eſtabliſhed peaceable eſtate of the Jews after their return out of Babylon, when their enemies ſhould no more eat what they had laboured for, as was threatned *Deut.*28.33. But forſomuch as this was not verified according to the letter, for they were under enemies ſometimes again after that, Egyptians, Syrians, and Romans, and he is ſpeaking not of an Eutopia of Jews, but of the Church of Chriſt, whoſe proſperity is not ſo much worldly, or in the enjoyment of worldly things, but ſpiritual and heavenly, I rather preferre the allegorical ſenſe before-going.

Verſ.9. And then the place where it is ſaid verſ.9. They that laboured for it ſhall eat it, In the courts of the Lords houſe, ſets forth the Church, wherein the Communion celebrated by bread and wine is eaten and drunk, and heaven afterwards, where the faithfull ſhall ſit down feaſting with Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob for ever, not with material bread and wine, but ſpiritual joyes and pleaPſal.16. ſures at Gods right hand. In ſaying, In the courts of the Lords houſe, he doth but allude to the old manner of feaſting when they brought peace-offerings in way of thankſgiving, meaning the like to be done by Chriſtians in their Churches or Oratories, in eating and drinking the Lords Supper, and then as it is here ſaid, They ſhall praiſe the Lord; ſo Chriſtians do, calling this ſolemnity from hence Euchariſtica. And this corn and wine is not given to our enemies to be meat, when all the powers of hell cannot hinder, but that this feaſt is kept by the faithfull from time to time, till Chriſts coming again, as he hath commanded. Note. But when either through perſecution or trouble ariſing in the Church, it ceaſeth at any time, or upon any other deceivable ground, as at this day, in many Churches of England, it is meat to our enemy the devil, who rejoyceth over them that are thus drawn to neglect it. And becauſe the Word preached is bread, Amos 8.11. and wine, *Iſa.*55.1,2. the ſame is to be held touching it, if at any time it be not preached in any Church at due times, it is meat there to the devil; but God that hath ſworn it, will provide that it ſhall never be ſo in the Church univerſal to the worlds end; for which ſee alſo before *Iſa.*59.21. The Word preaching, and Supper of the Lord, ſhall never fail in his Church, neither ſhall Satan be able to hinder any of Chriſts faithfull people from eating and drinking that which they have laboured for, in heaven, as is promiſed, *Heb.*6.7. God is not unfaithfull to forget your labour in the Lord. Note. Dan.12. To be noted againſt them that teach falling away from grace into damnation; and the Papiſts applying that of Daniel of the ceaſing of the continual Sacrifice three years and an half, to the Lords Supper to be ſo long intermitted, when Antichriſt ſhall reign, which is contrary to that which the Lord here ſwears, for it is without limitation of time that he will make this feeding of his Church good, and not for a long time, or many generations onely.

Verſ.10. Go through the gates, prepare the way. So before *Chap.*40.3. & 57.14. where ye may ſee the Expoſition, and they be the Watchmen, ſaith Jerom, ſpoken of verſ 6. that are bidden to prepare the way for people of all Nations to Verſ.11. come in, as is intimated *verſ.*11. The Lord hath proclaimed to all the ends of the earth. And whereas it is added, Say to the daughter of Zion, Behold thy ſalvation cometh] By Zion, he meaneth the Church conſiſting of all Nations, but called Zion, becauſe it was firſt begun to be gathered there, and Jeſus is her ſalvation, and his reward is eternal life, according to that *Joh.*10.28. My ſheep hear my voice and follow me, and I give unto them eternal life.

Verſ.12. And they ſhall be called an holy people. This was promiſed to Iſrael, Exod. 19.6. Deut.7.6. and is fulfilled in the redeemed by Chriſt; For he is made of God unto us Wiſdom, ſanctification, righteouſneſſe and redemption, 1 Cor.1.30.

CHAP.

CHAP. LXIII.

WHo is this that cometh from Edom with died garments from Bozra? &c. Some, ſaith Jerom, expound all that hath gone before from Chap. 60.1. hitherto, and theſe words alſo, of the time when Chriſt ſhall come to judgement. But becauſe *chap.*61.1. Chriſts firſt coming in the fleſh is plainly ſpoken of, he underſtands all of that time, and this in particular of his Aſcention into heaven, about which the Angels are here brought in wondering, and ſaying, Who is this that cometh, &c? for the incarnation of the Sonne of God, his death, and after that his Reſurrection and Aſcention into heaven was to them a great myſtery at the firſt, which cauſed them to break out into this admiration. Lyra excepts againſt this, although he ſaith, that Dionyſius de Hierarchia Angel. is for the ſame alſo, 1. Becauſe Chriſt aſcending after his death came not from Edom, but Jeruſalem, and Mount Olivet. 2. Becauſe the Angels at that time had not his Incarnation, or Death, Reſurrection or Aſcention hidden from them, for they had before publiſhed his Birth, miniſtred to him in his Death, declared his Reſurrection to women, and his Aſcention to his Diſciples. 3. Becauſe the words following ſhew, That the bloud wherewith his garments are ſaid to be ſprinkled, was their bloud whom he had trodden in the wine-preſſe of his wrath, *v.*3. wherefore he rather expounds it of Chriſts deſtroying Antichriſt about the end of the world, and his adherents, which becauſe it was done beyond all expectation of men, Antichriſt being then in his greateſt ſtrength, which Bozra, a Munition denoteth, is here ſpoken of by way of admiring. But R. Salomon he ſaith, will have it meant of the Meſſiah yet to come, who ſhall deſtroy the Jews enemies, and ſet them up above all Nations. And Lyra ſaith, That after Antichriſt deſtroyed the Jews ſhall admire it, and be converted unto Chriſt. Calvin and Muſculus, and others of our Expoſitors underſtand theſe words, as ſpoken of God to the comfort of the faithfull in Iſrael, and againſt their deadly enemies the Edomites, againſt whom ſee the like ſpoken of before, *Chap.*34.6. Therefore the Lord is here ſet forth as coming from the ſlaughter of the Edomites, and Bozra the chief City of Edom with his garments died red, and ſprinkled with the bloud of the ſlain, which yet, becauſe it betokened victory, he ſaith, were comely, although otherwiſe bloud is a defiling of garments: but this laſt can have no place here, becauſe things concerning Chriſt only are ſpoken of *Chap.*61, &c. to the end of the Prophecie; and to what end ſhould any thing touching Edomites, or other enemies of the Jewiſh Nation come in here? And that of Lyra expounding it of Antichriſt deſtroyed, as if he were yet to come, whenas he hath been already long acting his part, cannot for this reaſon ſtand, neither doth it agree, becauſe when Antichriſt ſhall be confounded, it ſhall not be done ſo, as that Chriſt may be ſaid to come up from his ſlaughter, for He ſhall be aboliſhed by the brightneſſe of his coming. It remaineth therefore to be conſidered, which is brought by Jerom, and generally followed by all the Fathers, viz. that this is ſpoken of Chriſt riſing again and aſcending after his bloudy death and paſſion in a moſt glorious manner into heaven. And this will appear to be true, if we look back to Chap. 62. 11. Behold thy Redeemer cometh, and his reward with him. For to this nothing can more aptly anſwer then theſe words, wherein the Redeemer or Saviour is deſcribed by his garments made red with bloud, plainly intimating one coming from a bloudy paſſion, wherein yet he ſuffered not ſo much, but he made his enemies and the enemies of our ſalvation to ſuffer much more by deſtroying them. For ſo it is ſaid, *Heb.*2.15. By death he deſtroyed him that had the power of death, that is, the devil: And *Col.*2.14. He made a ſhew of principalities and powers, and triumphed over them upon the Croſſe. For the exceptions of Lyra, they are eaſily taken away. 1. In ſaying, From Edom and Bozra, the Prophet reſpects not ſo much the places properly ſo called, as the ſignification of theſe words, he is ſaid to come

Verſ.1.
Hieron.

Lyra.

R.Solomon.

Calvin.
Muſcul.

2 Theſſ.2.

come from Edom, ſignifying red, becauſe his fleſh, the garment as it were of his Deity was red with bloud running down from his hands, ſide and feet; and from Bozrah ſignifying a vintage for the ſame reaſon, he being now as one coming from treading the Wine-preſſe all beſprinkled with the bloud of grapes. 2. In ſaying, Their bloud, as denoting not his own, but the bloud of others, he cals it their bloud, becauſe it was ſo mightily turned to the ſlaying of devils, and powers of darkneſſe, although to ſpeak properly they have no bloud, yet foraſmuch as ſhedding bloud is commonly put for killing, it may well by a Metaphor be thus ſpoken of theſe enemies. And ſo when he was, as it were, in the wine-preſſe, he at the ſame inſtant trod the wine-preſſe, and the bloud came out and died and beſprinkled his garments, this being yet no diſgrace, but an honour to him in the eyes of the holy Angels, and of all his people the Zionites, who as well as Angels may be underſtood to be brought in thus ſpeaking and asking in way of admiration, Who is this? having his garments died with bloud, and yet in appearance moſt glorious, not going like another man, but as one of greateſt might and power.

Verſ.4. For the day of vengeance is in my heart, and the year of my redeemed. See the like paſſage, *Chap.*34.8. for the day of vengeance-taking upon enemies, and for the year, *Chap.*61.1,2. of redeeming and ſaving.

Verſ.5. I looked to ſee, if there were none to help, and there was none to help, and there was not one. This alſo is explained *Chap.*59.16.

Verſ.6. Hieronym. I will tread down the people in mine anger, and make them drunken. Not much unlike to *Chap.*59.18. which Jerom alſo applieth to devils, although he denieth not but that it may be taken, as ſpoken of the Jews his perſecutors, for they were the devils inſtruments, as it is ſaid, Satan put it into the heart of Judas to betray him to them, and when they were about to crucifie him; now, ſaith he, is the power of darkneſs. And they are ſaid to be drunken, becauſe being in great numbers deſtroyed by the Romans, they lay in pools of bloud, as it were, over head and ears, and ſo drunken, as it were, with the abundance thereof.

Verſ.7. I will mention the loving kindeneſſes of the Lord towards us. Having opened the great myſtery of our ſalvation by Chriſts deſtroying our ſpiritual enemies in the words before-going. Now the Prophet in the name of the Church prayeth thorowout the reſidue of this, and all the 64. Chap. and *Chap.*65. brings in Junius. Chriſt anſwering, as Junius well analyſeth all. And of this prayer he maketh four parts, 1. A confeſſion of mercies formerly ſhewed to his Church, the remembrance whereof tends to the confirming of her faith for time to come to the end of this Chapter. 2. A Petition, *Chap.64.1,&c.* to *v.*10. 3. A confeſſion of unworthineſſe on her part, and great goodneſs on Gods part, verſ. 10,11,12. 4. A motive to move the Lord to compaſſion from *verſ.*12. to the end of that Chapter.

Part 1. Verſ.8. For the firſt, here is a general commemoration of Gods benefits towards the Jewiſh Church of old, and *verſ.*8. of the ground thereof, He ſaid, they are my people, children that will not lie, &c. For hence it was that the Lord ſhewed them ſo great loving kindneſs, becauſe they were his people choſen in Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob their fathers. For theſe words Hebr. That will not Lyra. lie, Jerom hath, Not denying, which Lyra expounds of their not denying God Calvin. in Egypt. Calvin, becauſe they are my people ſo freely choſen above all other Nations, they will not deceive my expectation by doing and denying otherwiſe then becometh my people, and in this expectation I have been a mighty Saviour unto them. But they have rebelled, as is ſaid *verſ.*10. Now the Lord is not to be underſtood in ſpeaking thus confidently, that they would not prove falſe, as if ever he thought ſo indeed, for he cannot be deceived in any, and long before he ſpake of their wickedneſs, whereby they would break out contrary to their duty to which they were obliged by his admirable mercies, Deut. 32.15. but he ſpeaks after the manner of men touching thoſe to whom their favour hath been extraordinarily, ſurely they will not henceforth turn falſe unto me, becauſe they are ſo ſtrongly tied to me by my great benefits. And to ſhew yet more how they were obliged to him, he addeth, verſ.9. In all their afflictions he was afflicted] By reaſon of his bowels of compaſſion towards them, not that they could be afflicted without his permiſſion, for he long before decreed, That they ſhould be ſervants in a ſtrange Land, and be hardly entreated four hundred years, in the laſt two hundred of which years this was ſpecially verified in Egypt, as I have ſhewed upon Gen. 15. but even when he had decreed, that thus it ſhould be, and they were in that miſery under Pharaoh, he through his tenderneſs over them beheld it not without a fatherly compaſſion, and finally ſent his Angel to ſlay all the firſt-born of Ægypt, that they might be delivered; and when they were come out, the Angel of the Lord went betwixt them in a cloudy Pillar by day, and a fiery by night to ſave them from the Egyptians purſuing hard after them. By his clemency he carried them; ſee the ſame Metaphor *Deut.*32.11. and *Iſa.*40.11. this is added to magnifie his compaſſion the more towards them, that the hainouſneſs of their ingratitude to ſo good a God might the more appear, and they be made aſhamed of it to repent, at the leaſt ſome of them.

Verſ.9.
Gen.15.
Exod.13.11.
Deut.1.

But they were rebels and provoked his holy Spirit, therefore he turned enemy to them, and fought againſt them. Whereby is meant, That he brought enemies againſt them, the Aſſyrians and Babylonians, beſides the Syrians and Philiſtims, &c. formerly, who oppreſſed and deſtroyed them, and becauſe they did it not without God, he is ſaid in them to have fought againſt them, ſo that it was impoſſible but that they muſt needs be deſtroyed. For as they whom God protects, may ſay, If God be on our ſide, who can be againſt us? So contrariwiſe, if God be againſt us, what ſtrength is there in any forces to reſiſt? Of their provoking his Spirit, ſee *Pſal.*95.

Verſ.10.

Then he remembred the dayes of old, Moſes and his people. Calvin, Wherein Moſes was with his people; but Hebr. it is only Moſes, his People] Some refer this to God, but Calvin better to Iſrael, and Muſculus takes the Preter-tenſe to be here put for the Future; ſo that here is ſhewed what Iſrael ſhould do in their Captivity into Aſſyria and Babylon, viz. lament to think upon the happineſs of their Nation in times paſt under Moſes, bringing them out of Ægypt, and their preſent miſeries, ſighing after the like deliverance again, and repenting and praying for it, as it is our duties in our miſeries alwayes to doe.

Verſ.11.
Calvin.
Muſcul.
Note.

As a Beaſt deſcendeth into a valley. He uſeth two ſimilitudes to ſet forth the ſafe going of the children of Iſrael down into the bottom of the red Sea without any harm, 1. From an horſe lead thorow a wilderneſs, verſ. 13. 2. Of a beaſt going down from a mountain into a valley to feed; for their going down into the ſea was none other in reſpect of any danger wherein they were, till they came out again in ſafety to the oppoſite ſhore. And after this the Spirit or almighty power of God gave them reſt in Canaan.

Verſ.14.

And hitherto the firſt part of the prayer, and here Junius ends this Chapter, putting the five verſes following to the 64, in which and nine verſes more is the ſecond part, viz. the Petition.

Part 2.

Behold from heaven, See from thy Sanctuary, &c. Here the Church being in affliction prayeth for help and deliverance to the Lord only, and not to Saints departed; Nay this is expreſly diſclaimed, *verſ.*16. Although Abraham knoweth us not, and Iſrael acknowledgeth us not, yet thou art our father. The faithfull here ſhew their great confidence in God, to whom they pray that he will not deny to be ſtill as a father unto them for their manifold ſins, from which they now deſired to turn, becauſe that he never breaks with them with whom he hath made a Covenant, although he afflicts them ſore, and in this confidence they pray, as *verſ.*15. For the next words, Although Abraham knoweth us not, &c. the meaning is, If they ſhould for our ſins, wherein we have done ſo unlike unto them, deny us to be their children, yet thou wilt not. A moſt apt expreſſion to ſhew the conſtancy of Gods love towards his, it is greater then

Verſ.15.
Verſ.16.

then that of moſt loving and godly parents, who are not bound by nature only, but by Religion alſo to love their own children, and though they for their ſins correct them, upon their turning and craving pardon, to love them ſtill. For they haply may be hardened, and by many and often provocations be made unnatural, yet God will not ceaſe to be as a Father to his. Thus Chap. 49.15. the Lord ſets forth the conſtancy of his likewiſe. Calvin. Muſculus. P.Martyr. Thus Calvin and Muſculus very well, and P. Martyr alſo. Moreover this may be taken, as implying, that they did not truſt to this, that they came of Abraham and Jacob, or Iſraels Anceſtours ſo gracious with the Lord, as the Jews ſtill in their ſins did, ſaying, We have Abraham to our father, Luk.3. Joh.8. And then it is, as if they had ſaid, Thou art our own father, in whom we truſt, neither do we hold that it will avail us in the day of wrath, if Abraham and Iſrael ſhould acknowledge us to be their children, if thou beeſt angry with us for our ſins, and Note. then the word כי may be rendred for, as it alſo ſignifieth. Laſtly, ſaith Calvin, it cannot hence be proved, That the Saints departed have no care or regard to thoſe upon earth; for he ſaith not, They acknowledge us not, in this ſenſe, but they will not own us being wicked, ſo as that we ſhall fare any whit the better for our coming of them. Note. Yet it may well be hence gathered, That all our truſt ſhould be in God only, and not in the moſt excellent of the Saints, ſeeking by their interceſſion to be commended unto him, as the Papiſts do. Pſal. 50.4. For it is commanded, Call upon me in the time of trouble, and for Advocates with God we have none, but an Advocate, who is the propitiation for our ſins; Hieron. and Jerom ſaith, It is enough for us that God is our Father, for then certainly he will not leave us in miſery, if we call upon him. And may it not be gathered, alſo, That the Saints departed know not things done upon earth, nor who, or when men pray unto them? Yes doubtleſſe, for if Abraham knoweth not, none in his boſom know, and if they did, unleſſe one of them were omniſcient, he cannot know who call upon him in ten thouſand places at once in all the Countreys overſpread by Papiſts. The ſenſe then is not ſo to be reſtrained to that before-going, but this may be taken in alſo, eſpecially if we read, For Abraham knows us not, ſith this alſo is a truth. Whereas Abraham and Iſrael are here named, but Iſaac not, it is not becauſe Iſaac is not as honourable, but the firſt and laſt are named, as to whom God more often appeared, and the middlemoſt left out to be underſtood; ſo Jerom.

Verſ.17. Iam.1.14. Hieronym. Why haſt thou made us to erre from thy wayes, and hardened our hearts from thy fear? It may ſeem ſtrange, that the Church ſhould challenge her moſt holy Father thus, when as he tempts no man to evil, and it is his proper work to give an heart of fleſh, that is, tender and ſoft. But hardening is here and elſwhere aſcribed unto him, becauſe by his mercies and forbearing to puniſh ſeverely, men are hardened, as is intimated, where he ſaith, I will not viſit upon your daughters their fornications; and contrariwiſe in Hoſea, when he would ſhew mercy, I have hedged your way with thorns; that is, ſtopt you by ſharp afflictions from going in your ſinfull wayes. But touching Gods being ſaid to harden men, ſee more upon Rom.9. Muſcul. Some think this to be ſpoken not by the faithfull, but by the wicked laying the fault of their erring upon God, and ſome acknowledging it to be the voice of the faithfull, take it for a pleading with the Lord to put an end to their grievous afflictions, leaſt being kept under over-long, they ſhould grow deſperate, and ſo caſt away the fear and love of God, as either not caring what becomes of them, or not able to help them, and this laſt mentioned, but not approved by Muſculus, ſeems to me yet the beſt. For both the like prayers are made, or things ſaid, Pſal. 73.3. 10.13.14. Pſal 125.3. to ſhew the danger of this temptation to make men fall from God; and it is not ſo agreeable to reaſon, that by their being made to erre ſhould be meant for want of ſevere judgements, when their miſeries were ſo great, and of ſo long continuance. But it may be underſtood as the ſame Muſculus hath it, Why haſt thou made us to erre by withdrawing thy Spirit, which ſhould guide us aright? becauſe this being done, who can but erre and be hardened in his evil waies? Yet the word rendred hardened, as Vatablus noteth, doth more properly ſignifie to make to go back. Turn for thy ſervants, the tribes of thine inheritance, New Tranſlat. For thy ſervants ſake the tribes. Calvin, To the tribes; The ſenſe is in pity to them, whom thou haſt bound thy ſelf to by Covenant,and who are thine own peculiar people,turn and ſhew them favour in delivering them from their heathen enemies.

Verſ.18. The people of thy holineſſe have poſſeſſed it but a little while. This is ſpoken, although a thouſand four hundred years paſſed ſince their coming into the poſſeſſion of that Land, becauſe even ſo long a time is but little in reſpect of the time promiſed for ever, *Gen.*17. and *chap.*48.

Verſ.19. We have been of old, thou haſt not been Lord over them. The Church here pleads from the diſparity betwixt them that now had the Land in poſſeſſion and Iſrael, the Lord never choſe them to be their King and Lord peculiarly more then of other Nations, as he had done Iſrael, therefore ſome reaſon to plead this, that their diſpoſſeſſing, and his people poſſeſſing of the Land might be haſtened. Then he concludes (Oh that thou wouldſt break the heavens and come down) an expreſſion of a moſt earneſt deſire of Gods miraculouſly ſhewing himſelf upon earth to be on his Churches ſide, as of old he did by judging Ægypt, dividing the red Sea, and appearing in a Cloud and Pillar of fire, &c. For to ſpeak properly, God moves not from place to place, for he filleth all places at once; but then he is ſaid to deſcend, when by his power he doth wonderfully for his Church, being thought by carnal men when he doth not, but ſuffers his people in miſery to be cooped up in heaven.

CHAP. LXIV.

Verſ.1. AS the melting fire boileth. Here Calvin begins this Chapter, and ſaith, that by the Hebrew it is ſo begun, the words before-going *Chap.*63.19. being all one verſe, and not diſtinguiſht, as verſes uſe to be. But Jerom and Septuagint and New Tranſlat. begin it at the words before-going, Oh that thou wouldeſt break the heavens! reſpecting rather the ſenſe then the Hebrew diſtinction, and ſo indeed theſe and thoſe words before-going ſo hang together that they cannot well be parted. To take them therefore together, though diſ-joyned, Jerom underſtands this longing of the Church after the Lords deſcending from Hieron. heaven, of the Son of God his coming down by taking fleſh of the Virgin Mary for our redemption, as wherein her greateſt comfort lieth. For when this was done and proved by many miracles, the hearts of many Jews, being hard and high before as Mountains through pride and diſdain of him for his poverty, melted, when after the coming down of the holy Ghoſt they were pricked in their hearts, Act.2.37. And herein it is alluded to the Lords coming down upon Mount Sinai. But Jerom applieth this of the Mountains melting to the enemies of Chriſt and his people, alledging *Pſal.*97.5. which may indeed be underſtood of both together, ſith one was not done without the other, all adverſe powers to mans ſalvation were confounded and amongſt men ſuch as were appointed to life were confounded, and had their hearts prickt or melted with ſorrow, to their converſion, who before were ſtiff enemies. It followeth here, As the burning fire things melted, the fire boyling waters; Thus Hebrew, Jerom, As by burning fire they would melt, the waters burn with fire, A ſimilitude to ſhew, how even great, and hard, and high Mountains would melt away at Gods preſence deſcending, they being no more to him a conſuming fire, then wax or water congealed into ice, or any other thing that will eaſily melt, to common fire. So that as the Lord coming down upon Sinai, it trembled as ready to fall off the foundation before him, and to be diſſolved to nothing; in like manner the Sonne of God coming, hils fell, and were made low, when proud hearts were humbled at his Goſpel to make a plain way for him to goe on herewith with ſpeed throughout the world.

Verſ.3. When thou didſt terrible things that we looked not for, the mountains melted before thee. Here is a commemoration of things wonderfully done by God for his people in former times, to make way for them to come into the promiſed Land, that they might believe the deliverance now promiſed. For if this be beyond all expectation of man, and hope that was likewiſe, yet done by his almighty Power who promiſed it, and therefore this was not to be deſpaired of, but certainly to be expected. The mountains melted, or flowed down, that is, whatſoever ſtood in the way to hinder that which God would have done, he eaſily removed and made to vaniſh, were it as Mountains.

Verſ.4. From the beginning they have not heard or ſeen, &c. Here the Prophet rendereth another reaſon, why the Church ſhould by faith expect the fulfilling of his moſt gracious Promiſes in Chriſt to come, though exceeding mans capacity, viz. none ever heard of ſuch a God amongſt all the Nations, that did ſo for any people, as God for his; wherefore there is no reaſoning from hence, there was never the like ſeen or heard of, that hath been before promiſed: it is true, but the promiſer is the almighty God of heaven and earth, and not like Idol-gods or devils, who are never able to do ſuch things. For the citing of this and applying it otherwiſe by the Apoſtle, 1 *Cor.*2.9. See there what I have already written upon it.

Verſ.5. Thou metteſt him that rejoyced and did righteouſly in thy wayes, they remembred thee, thou art angry and we have ſinned, in them is eternity, and we ſhall be ſaved. Here the Church in affliction compareth her ſelf with her in proſperity in the dayes of godly Judges and Kings, or of Joſhuah, when the people ſerved the Lord, and had joy of their enemies expelling before them; for the Lord is ſaid to meet the righteous when with his bleſſings extraordinary making them glad and joyfull, then they remembred the Lord in his wayes, that is, walking in them, for ſo a foundation is laid of all happineſs. But the Church in affliction complaineth, For our ſins thou art angry with us, and we are made heavy by judgements in ſtead of joying in thy favours, yet herein is our comfort, that in thy waies is eternity, thy waies, I mean, of grace towards the people whom thou haſt choſen; and therefore although we be kept under ſore judgements for a time, we ſhall at length be ſaved and delivered out of them all, and from all our ſins. For by the waies of the Lord, that the way of his grace is meant towards his choſen people, ſee *Rom.*11.33. compared with *verſ.*29. and other verſes before-going, as well as the waies of his Commandments appointed for us to walk in, that we may be in expectation of mercy, as was ſaid before. For the Apoſtle having ſpoken of Gods conſtant love towards Iſrael to graff them into the true Olive again, yeeldeth this general reaſon, The gifts and calling of God are without repentance; and in admiring this after ſuch a judgement laid upon them, he ſaith, How unſearchable are his waies, &c. for eternity, New Tranſlat. hath continuance; Calvin, ſæculum, Heb. עוֹלם which I render Eternity, becauſe לעולם is for ever; and in other things there is continuance, but the waies of God are everlaſting. For the firſt words Vatablus ſaith, ſome expound them of Moſes in a contrary ſenſe, as if it were meant, thou metteſt with him in the way to Canaan, and didſt cut him off, and Aaron likewiſe; but this is farre from the ſcope of the Prophet. And for theſe words [In them continuance] whereas Calvin beſides the expoſition brought, hath another, referring continuance in them, to continuance in ſin, but yet, ſaith he, we are ſaved, thus magnifying Gods mercy the more, it cannot agree with the words before-going, which are, Thou art angry and we have ſinned, not [We are full of ſins] which if it had been, there were ſome reaſon to refer in them] to ſins, but now none, but rather, as hath been ſaid, to take them for a ground, and ſetting forth of the cauſe of our being ſaved, as hath been ſaid, for of ſuch as continue in ſinne it abhors from all true Divinity to ſay, they are ſaved; yet this is favoured in the Vulgar

Vatablus.

Calvin.

Latine, which hath it, In ipſis fuimus ſemper.

Verſ.6. Part 3. made by Junius ver.10, and the 7th and 11th. We are all as unclean, and our righteouſneſſe as a filthy garment, Or as a cloth coming from a woman in her diſeaſe, here the Church returns again to bewail her ſins, which were not only in other actions touching the world, but even in all our righteouſneſſes, that is, righteous acts of juſtice, charity or piety, for corruption and weakneſs by reaſon of the fleſh, goeth from us, and is mixed with them all, for which, as Jerom ſaith, the righteouſneſs of the Law being compared with that of the Goſpel is unrighteouſneſſe, alledging alſo Phil.3.8. where Paul ſaith the ſame touching this righteouſneſs of walking according to the Law in himſelf, calling it droſſe and dung. And we fade as a leaf, falling off, or being blown away by the winde, ſo we by thy judgements, if thou ſhouldſt proceed againſt us according to our ſins. Hieronym.

Verſ.8. Part 4. Verſ.10. Thou art our father, we the clay, thou the Potter. Here is the fourth part of the prayer containing motives, 1. Here a Father pitieth his children, a Potter will preſerve his own work. 2. Verſ.10. Thy holy City is a wilderneſſe, thy houſe burnt, &c. Then follows the anſwer.

CHAP. LXV.

Verſ.1. I Am ſought of them that asked not for me, I am found of them that ſought me not. Here is the Lords anſwer according to the diviſion before-going, and that this is ſpoken of the Gentiles appeareth plainly Rom.9.24,25. & chap.10.20. that the words of verſ.2. are ſpoken of the Jews, As a ſtiff-necked and gainſaying people. Verſ.2. Hieronym. And Jerom noteth it to anſwer fitly to that part of the praier before-going, where it is ſaid, Behold we beſeech thee, we are all thy people, &c. verſ.9,10,11. To this the Lord anſwereth here, I am ready enough to hearken to my people calling upon me in their miſeries, as appeareth by this, that I am found even of thoſe that ſought me not, but upon better information ſeek me, although none of my people; therefore if my people Iſrael ſeek to me aright, I am not certainly inexorable, but according to my natural inclination to mercy towards the greateſt ſinners, ſhould be ready to hear, and to help them. But herein lieth their fault, That the Gentiles obtaining mercy they obtain none, becauſe they live ſtill impenitently in their ſins; and this the Apoſtle cals their ſeeking of juſtification by the works of the Law, and not by faith, for exclude faith and exclude repentance, ſith that no man will be moved to repent of his ſins, that believeth not that he ſhall thus obtain remiſſion of them by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

Verſ.3. A people that ſacrificeth in gardens, and burneth incenſe upon altars of brick. Of their Gardens, ſee before Iſa.1.29. here the Lord ſheweth what the ſins were that they lived in, they ſacrificed in forbidden places, for all ſacrificing was commanded to be in one ſet place, Deut.12.7. and a golden altar was appointed to burn incenſe upon, but they did it upon one of brick, thus debaſing and vilifying this ſervice; ſo Cyril and others. Cyril.

Verſ.4. Which lodge in mountains and remain amongſt the Sepulchres. Hereby a groſs heatheniſh ſuperſtition is taxed in them, viz. That they ſometime lay all night in a Sepulchre, ſometime in an Idols Temple built upon a Mountain, for that Idols were in ſuch places worſhipped, appears, becauſe worſhippings in high places are often taxed, and godly Kings are ſaid to have broken down high places. And it is meant, that they would go and lodge in ſuch places, believing that ſo they ſhould dream dreams divinatory, or have revelations in the night, by the help whereof they might make oſtentation to the people, as if they were holy Prophets of God, and ſo not of the ordinary ſort, but of a far more high condition. For thus Jerom ſaith, That the Heathen would lie all night in the Temple of Eſculapius, when they were diſeaſed, that they might be healed, and ſome that they might have revelations; and Pomponius Mela ſaith, That the Heathens would get into ſepulchres, thinking that by lying Hieronym. Pompon.Mela.

there

there all night they ſhould have things to come, by dream revealed unto them. And that they might well be there, is not incredible, becauſe ſepulchres were Matth.8. then ſpacious enough, and the man poſſeſſed by the legion, abode in the ſepulchres and the mountains, the devils poſſeſſing him, enforcing him thus to do, as who delight greatly in ſuch ſuperſtition. Againſt conſulting with the Tertul. de anima c.54. dead, that ſeemeth here to be taxed; ſee alſo *Chap.*8.19. *Deut.*18.11. Tertullian alſo mentions it as an heatheniſh practice, ſaying, That the Naſammone did ſeek proper Oracles by remaining at the ſepulchres of their parents, as Heraclides writeth, and that the Celtes lodgeth at the places of burning valiant men for the ſame end, as Nicander affirmeth. The Vulgar Latine, for lodging in the mountains, hath in delubris idolorum, which is בנצורים in rocks or deſolate places, therefore Calvin hath it, In deſerts which eat Swines fleſh, and pottage of polluted things; that is, of meats uſed in peace-offerings the third day after, contrary to *Levit.*7.15. the words ſignifie pottage of abominable things. Some apply myſtically all theſe things to the Phariſees in Chriſts time, whenas indeed the Jews were not given to Idolatry, although they were about the time when Iſaiah wrote this, which was the cauſe of his charging them with theſe abominations. But they may well anagogically to be applied to the people of our times, They ſacrifice in gardens, whoſe devotion is moſt to pleaſure, being lovers of pleaſure more then of God, and burn incenſe upon brick Altars, which coſt little, who would have the ſervice of God go on indeed, but with the leaſt coſt, being therefore ſatisfied with Mechanicks for Preachers, They keep in ſepulchres, &c. that ambitiouſly aſpire to the office of Prophets, having no competent learning; And eat ſwines fleſh, that turn ſwine by making their belly their god. And the broth of abominable things, That turning their ears from the truth, receive and reliſh errors, the decoctions of unſtable brains.

Verſ.5. Which ſay, Stand by thy ſelf, come not near, I am holier, &c. Calvin, For I ſanctifie thee, and ſo the Hebrew may be rendred, but the meaning is the ſame, becauſe by the Prophet or Prieſt, who is more holy, others are ſanctified; ſo theſe ſuperſtitious wretches counting themſelves ſuch as were ſanctified by the ſpirit of Prophecie, by the evil means before-ſpoken of attained, did diſdain all others in compariſon of themſelves, as being unclean; wherefore the Vulgar Latine to expreſſe this, hath it, Stand farther, or Draw not near to me, for thou art unclean, theſe are a ſmoke in my noſtrils, a fire burning all the day; that is, Cauſe mine anger to ſmoke and burn continually, which was when the Romans burnt their City, and ſhall be in hell for ever by the fire and brimſtone burning there, and cauſing a black and dark ſmoke without end, for which it is ſet forth ſometime by fire, and ſometime by utter darkneſs, when the Saints during all that time enjoy, as it were, one everlaſting day of light, as not being lighted by the Sunne, as now, but by the Lord, and the Revel.21. Lamb.

Verſ.8. As the new wine is found in the cluſter, and one ſaith, Deſtroy it not, for a bleſſing is in it, ſo I will do for my ſervants ſake, &c. Having hitherto ſpoken terrour againſt the wicked Jews, of which ſort the moſt of them were, now he comforteth the righteous, being but as a cluſter of grapes upon a Vine, very few in compariſon, by promiſing that they ſhall not be deſtroyed in the common deſtruction of the multitudes; of the like to which, ſee before *Chap.*1.9, &c. Vulgar Latine, for new wine, hath, ſeed or grain in a cluſter of grapes; and is by Jerom and others expounded of grapes trodden under foot, yet if but one ſeed remaineth whole, it is preſerved and ſet that it may grow into a Vine, and bring forth many cluſters of grapes again, which is favoured by the words following, *Verſ.*9. A ſeed ſhall ſpring up out of Jacob; and this ſeed muſt be the Apoſtles and others, ſent out by Chriſt to preach the Goſpel, for from them ſprung up many believers, who ſhall not periſh; nay, they were miraculouſly called from Jeruſalem ready to be beſieged, to Pella, and ſo were preſerved. Yet the word properly ſignifieth new wine, but hereby may well be meant ſuch ſeed, as hath been ſaid, from which a Vine and grape may grow again, and ſo we may underſtand new wine in a little ſeed, and to this the words added agree, A bleſſing is in it, for what is this, but the bleſſing of multiplication and encreaſe? as God is ſaid to have bleſſed Noah and his ſons, and bid them encreaſe and replenish the earth. And this he ſaith he will doe for his ſervants, that they may not be utterly deſtroyed, viz. for Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, that their righteous ſeed might never fail.

Verſ.10. And Sharon ſhall be a fold of flocks, &c. Hieron. The fieldings ſhall be folds, ſaying, that the proper name Sharon it uſed here to ſet forth fields, becauſe Lydda and Joppe meant by Sharon, were ſuch. And the valley of Achor, where Achan was burnt with all that he had, having his name therefore from trouble, as he had troubled Iſrael, he ſaith, yet ſhall now be a quiet place, hereby it being meant, that under the Goſpel Chriſtians whereſoever like flocks of ſheep ſhould be quiet through peace with God by Jeſus Chriſt, even in times of greateſt trouble; and becauſe Sharon was moſt fruitfull of graſſe to feed cattel, plenty is here alſo propheſied of according to Muſculus of Sharon, *Chap.*33. *Pſal.*35.1.

Joſh.7.

Verſ.11. But ye are they that forſake the Lord, and forget the holy mountain. Now he turneth again to the multitude of the wicked, upbraiding them by their abominations of preparing a Table for that troop, and mingling a cup to that number. Jerom for troop hath fortune, but for what reaſon I know not, for גד ſignifieth a troop or company, therefore when Leah gave one ſonne after many others the name Gad, ſhe ſaid, A company cometh, thus yeelding a reaſon thereof. The troop then here ſpoken of, and number, are all one, viz. a great company of Idols, to every one of which they offered drink-offerings, thinking that thus they ſhould be the more bleſſed, when they omitted none, but did this honour to them all, counting the number of them. Symmachus for to the number, hath, not to me, becauſe the word is למני, where the letter מ hath a privative ſignifying from, and ני ſignifieth me; but there is a word מנה to number, from whence it may better be derived; and this is generally followed by others, and Jerom paſſes the word over without tranſlating it, becauſe, as I ſuppoſe, he took the ſame to be meant that by troop; the Septuagint for to that number, hath, to the devil. And for the better underſtanding of this ſuperſtition, he ſaith, That the Egyptians had an old cuſtom, and ſpecially they of Alexandria the laſt moneth of every year, and the laſt day of the moneth, to furniſh a table with variety of dainties, and cups mingled with wine to all the gods, as a means of fertility the year following. Some for troop here, turn it hoſt, as meant of the hoſt of heaven, which I miſlike not, ſith Idolaters worſhipping of the hoſt of heaven, the Sunne, Moon and Stars, is oft ſpoken of. And whereas he ſaith, Forgetting my holy mountain, hereby is meant, the worſhip of one only true God, which they neglected, to worſhip Idols.

Hieron.

Verſ.12. Therefore I will number you to the ſword. As they had prepared a table, and ſet drink-offerings thereon to that number, ſo he threatneth that they ſhould all be numbred to the ſlaughter, which was done by the Romans: Like ſinne like puniſhment; they were carefull to practiſe all kindes of Idolatry, being blindely led for their greater proſperity, therefore it turned to them all to miſery; wherefore ye that would not be of the number given to the ſword, be not of the number of wicked Idolaters, either groſly, as theſe, or any other way.

Note.

Verſ.13. Therefore my ſervants ſhall eat, and ye ſhall be hungry. For their ſpending of their meat and drink upon Idols, here is alſo threatned a ſutable puniſhment, they ſhould ſtarve through hunger and thirſt, for there was amongſt the Jews a very great famine, when Jeruſalem was beſieged by the Romans, of which many thouſands died, and the Chriſtians that eſcaped before to Pella, had enough, and were glad for their timely coming away out of that danger, for the queſtion made by ſome here, how this is verified generally, ſith Gods ſervants are often in want, and the wicked abound, I think it not ſo proper to this place, and therefore I referre thee to *Pſal.*37. where I have in a fit place reſolved it. For the joy ſpoken of it is ſpiritual through the ſpirit of faith here, and eternal in heaven, of which the Lord ſaith, Bleſſed are ye that mourn, for ye ſhall be comforted, but woe to you that laugh, for ye ſhall weep, that is, feaſt and are merry in abomination.

Verſ.15. And ye ſhall leave your name as a curſe to mine elect. Hereby is meant, that the name of Jew ſhould be moſt odious amongſt Chriſtians, ſo that when a man would curſe one, he ſhall ſay, God do ſo to thee as he did to the Jews, then the judgements upon whom there were never in this world greater, ſee *Jer.*24.9. *chap.*29.22. it is ſaid likewiſe of two Jews in particular, Ahab and Zedekiah, and how notoriouſly is this fulfilled at this day? And I will ſlay thee and call my ſervants by another name; of which ſee before *Chap.*62.2. By a new name.

Verſ.16. He that bleſſeth ſhall bleſſe himſelf in the God of truth. Hebr. In the God Amen. And ſo Jerom reads it, and herein Chriſt both God and Man is notably pointed at, who was wont often to ſay, Amen, Amen; and Revel. 3.7. He which is holy and Amen; and *Revel.*22.20. he concludeth, I come quickly, Amen; from hence therefore it is plain, That Chriſt is God, and he is thus called, becauſe in him all Gods promiſes are Yea and Amen, that is, have their accompliſhment. And according to this Prophecie, we ſay, Chriſt bleſſe you. So Adam Saſbont, &c. and in this name St Paul bleſſeth thoſe to whom he writes, ſaying, The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you. And Grace and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; And in this name all prayers muſt be made for bleſſings, yea and in it all things done, *Col.*3.17.

2 Cor.1.

Saſbont.

Verſ.17. I create new heavens, and a new earth. In the former verſe having promiſed new bleſſings, whereby former curſes and judgements ſhould come to be forgotten for the joy that ſhould be of Jeſus Chriſts coming into the world: now he ſheweth a reaſon hereof, viz. all things ſhall be new: yet he meaneth not, ſaith Jerom, that they ſhall be forgotten for want of memory, but by the ſucceſſion of things ſo farre excelling them, as Auguſtine ſaith, By the forgetfulneſſe of experience, not of ſcience; but then, not the ſtraits or troubles, wherein the Church formerly was, muſt be underſtood, but rather good things then promiſed and beſtowed, when the Church flouriſhed moſt, ſet forth in this verſe, in theſe words, The former ſhall not be remembred; that is, the former heaven and earth, for having ſaid, A new heaven and earth, theſe words are added in oppoſition to them, the condition of the Church of Chriſt ſhall be ſo excellent that the ſtate thereof under the Law ſhall ſeem nothing to it, becauſe the chief bleſſings thereof moſt ſpoken of, were but bleſſings which theſe viſible heavens and earth afforded, viz. abundant fruitfulneſs, outward peace and proſperity, but ſpiritual bleſſings coming by Chriſt excell them as farre as the new world to come excelleth the preſent in glory. The meaning therefore, when he ſaith, I create a new heaven, &c. is, I will put a new face, as it were, upon all things here, by bringing in better, and aboliſhing the old, to the filling of the true Chriſtian heart with ſuch joy and comfort through faith in Chriſt, as that he ſhall ſeem to himſelf to be already in heaven. Thus it is ſaid, 2 *Cor.*5.17. Old things are paſt, all things are now become new. Whereas the Apoſtle Peter ſpeaks of this as a thing yet to come, We look for a new heaven and a new earth, which ſhall be when this earth ſhall be burnt, and the viſible heavens ſhall paſſe away; it is to be underſtood that the new heaven and earth here ſpoken of is but now begun to be created, and as yet poſſeſſed but by faith, whereby yet we are ſaid to ſit with Chriſt in heavenly places, and ſhall be perfected at the conſummation of this world, when all the Saints ſhall inhabit there for ever. Yet I mean not by perfecting, that it is now imperfect, for it hath been from the beginning, but becauſe not ſo

Hieronym.

Aug. Oblivione experientiæ non ſcientiæ.

1 Pet.3.19.

revealed; till the time of the Goſpel, for the faithfull to take comfort therein, nor yet made ſo manifeſt, as it ſhall be at the end of the world, theſe viſible heavens, which are as a curtain drawn before it, vaniſhing, that the glorious face thereof may appear, and the ſouls of the Saints departed having their bodies reſtored to them, and ſuch Saints as ſhall be living upon earth being changed may enter in, and to this effect almoſt ſpeak all Expoſitors Chriſtian, although the Hebrews referre it to their return from the Babyloniſh Captivity. If any man ſhall demand, Whether by the new heaven and earth lookt for by the faithfull after the burning of this? 1 Pet.3.19. be meant an heaven and earth, which yet is not, or the heavens and earth that now are, renewed after that burning to greater glory; it hath been by me already reſolved upon 1 Pet. 3. to which it moſt properly belongeth. Or by the words *verſ.*16. underſtand the former diſtinction of Jews from Gentiles ſhall be no more, but all the faithfull, of what Nation ſoever, ſhall be my people.

Verſ.18. Hieron. I create Jeruſalem a rejoycing, and her people a joy. Jerom will have theſe words added to the former, to ſhew, that not only a new heaven and earth ſhall be created, but Jeruſalem ſhall alſo be made new, a City all of joy and rejoycing, according to which we read, Revel.21. of a new Jeruſalem, which ſhall be at the Reſurrection. For he ſaith, There ſhall be no more a childe in years, and an old man, &c. that is, there ſhall then be no difference of men in reſpect of age, the childe being raiſed in a body of perfect ſtature, and the decayed old man renewed in his age, that all may be alike. Other Expoſitours generally take this, as a further explication, what is meant by a new heaven and earth, viz. The Church of Chriſt, often ſet forth by the name of Jeruſalem; herein then he ſaith ſhall be ſo great joy amongſt all true believers for juſtification from ſinne, and ſalvation by Chriſt, as if all were made of joy.

Verſ.19. There ſhall be no more the voice of weeping. This is not perfectly fulfilled, till we come in heaven, and the Church militant be turned into triumphant, and therefore Rev.7. this is applied to the ſouls there in their long white robes Rom.5.1. of glory; but it is partly fulfilled here by faith, whereby we have peace with God, and in tribulation, which commonly cauſeth ſorrow, joy.

Verſ.20. Calvin. There ſhall be no more a childe of dayes, nor an old man that hath not fulfilled his years. Calvin expounds this according to the letter, as if nothing elſe but the bleſſing of health and long life were meant, wherewith the faithfull ſhould be bleſſed through Chriſt, none dying in childehood, but having his life prolonged, and none waxing old, dying under an hundred years, although Pſal. 90. it was ſaid of mans age, that it was but ſeventy years, or eighty at the moſt, yet that promiſe, Pſal.103. Thy age ſhall be renewed as the Eagle, is fulfilled to Chriſtians of living longer. And whereas few attain now adayes to thoſe years, he ſaith, the fault is in themſelves, becauſe they live not ſo ſtrictly according to the rule of Gods word, as they ſhould. Others underſtand it ſpiritually, There ſhall not be a childe in knowledge and grace in the Church of Chriſt, but every one, though young, as it were of fourteen or fifteen years of age, ſhould be as one of an hundred years old in true wiſdom, but a man of an hundred years old being a childe in knowledge and grace, ſhall die, as is farther explained in the next words, A ſinner an hundred years old ſhall be accurſed; for what is a childe in graces, but a ſinner being without all ſtrength to do well, and being ſtrong only to do evil? And according to this none are Citizens of this City the Church, or accepted for ſuch before God, be they young or old, unleſſe they be for grace and knowledge like men of years and Note. ſtrength. And therefore ſo much time only is to be counted for the time of a mans life, as he hath lived in the fear of God, and been in the ſtate of grace, Epheſ.2. the life of a man before this being but a death, for which it is ſaid, You hath he quickened being dead in ſins, &c. Therefore Barlams anſwer was good, which Damaſcen.c.18 he made to Joſaphat asking him, how old he was, I am fourty five: to whom it being replied, Thou ſeemeſt by thy wrinkled face to be above ſeventy, he anſwered, I am indeed, if I compute the time wherein I lived with the Flies in the world, but computing my life only by the time that I have lived unto God, I am but fourty five, and truly I count all the time that I lived in vanity, rather a death then a life; and to this Expoſition agreeth well the word נער A young man here uſed, the former rendred Childe; עויל a ſucking Childe. But to give the ſenſe of the words briefly from verſ.17. hitherto. Although with Jerom I conceive, That the new heaven and earth is meant the Countrey to which all the faithfull ſhall come at the end of the world, which is begun to be poſſeſſed now by faith, yet I ſee not how by Jeruſalem, created a rejoycing, the ſame ſhould be meant, according to others; but the ſtate of the Church under the Goſpel called Jeruſalem, becauſe begun there, yet not at all times, but when ſhe had peace and joy in the dayes of Conſtantine the Great, and ſorrow for bloudy perſecutions was ended: for then truly Jeruſalem was made a rejoycing, unleſſe any had rather referre it to the time of the Jews converſion to come. And whereas the long life of this Cities people is now ſpoken of, I underſtand not, as others commonly do of particular perſons, but of the people of God in general, brought into this joyfull plight, for it may be read of them as joyned together in one, And the people there ſhall not be any more a childe of dayes, or an old man not fulfilling his years; or, ſhe ſhall not be from thence a childe, &c. as the words may properly be rendred, that is, not in a ſhort time put again from their joy, by coming under the power of their perſecuting enemies, the Heathens again, but ſhall long in this condition continue and flouriſh; even as one that lives in his ſtrength to an hundred years, which is the longeſt period of this life. And the event anſwered the Prophecy, for the joy of the faithfull begun in Conſtantines time was exceeding great and of long continuance, none of the Emperors ſince Auguſtus reigning ſo long in peace as he, viz. fourty years: And although the peace of the Church was by hereticks and the Apoſtate Julian ſomewhat diſturbed ſoon after this; yet godly Emperors ſucceeding brought great and long joy to the Church again many generations. Yet leſt any ſinner in the Church ſhould hence take comfort to himſelf, it is added, A ſinner that liveth an hundred years ſhall be accurſed; although one of this people outwardly. If any ſhall preferre that of A childe in wiſdom, let him conſider, how few be old in this ſenſe, that have fulfilled their years when they depart hence, if account be made from the time of their converſion. Yet becauſe he may be ſaid to fulfil his years that perſeveres in righteouſnes to the end, take this in alſo. But if any like beſt to apply it to the time of the Reſurrection, let him conſider how to ſuch that can be applied which is added, A ſonne of an hundred years ſhall die a childe, ſeeing after the reſurrection men die no more. Laſtly, for underſtanding it literally of Chriſtians living all to this age, agreeth worſt of all, ſith the beſt livers amongſt them have ſome of them been ſoon cut off by perſecution, and it is rare for any ſuch to attain to an hundred years.

Verſ.22.
Ad.Saſbout.

As the dayes of a tree the dayes of my people, and mine elect ſhall long enjoy the work of their hands. For a Tree, Hebr. is, The tree; whereby, ſaith Saſbout, is noted that tree of life in the garden of Eden; and for theſe words, They ſhall long enjoy the work of their hands, Hebr. They ſhall wax old, the work of their hands; that is, having built and planted in hope to enjoy their houſes and vineyards ſo by them built and planted, an enemy ſhould not ſoon come and diſpoſſeſſe them, as in times paſt, but they ſhall dwell in their houſes ſo long, that they ſhall wax old before they leave them again departing into a better life. Calvin renders it not unaptly, They ſhall perpetuate the work of their hands; but herein the ſenſe is more reſpected then the ſignification of the word. And for the former word, As a tree, the Septuagint hath it, As the tree of life, adding the word life, as taking it to be ſo meant, as before is ſaid; and Jerom hath both it and another which I rather approve of, viz. as the Palm tree, by which compariſon the righteous flouriſhing in their old age are ſet forth, Pſ.92.

Be-

Verſ.24. Hieronym. Act.5.

Before they call I will anſwer. This and *verſ.*23. and 25. ſet forth other great comforts of Gods elect people under the Goſpel. And he beginneth with their labouring and bringing forth of children, that is, the Apoſtles and other Preachers of the Goſpel, whoſe laborious endeavours to convert ſouls are likened unto a womans travelling to bring forth, as where Paul ſaith to the Galatians, My little children, of whom I travel in birth again, till Chriſt be formed in you. Now this labour, ſaith he, ſhall not be in vain, for children ſhall be brought forth in great numbers, and not with any great trouble, God making their preaching powerfull by miracles, and the holy Ghoſt accompanying it. And the trouble that is ſhall be counted no trouble, becauſe the children now brought forth are all a bleſſed ſeed, as in the next words, And a wiſe ſon glads his father, but a fooliſh is an heavineſſe to his mother. There are that travel with iniquity and bring forth trouble and ſorrow, but who ſo travels as hath been ſaid, ſhall have comfort. After this here follows another comfort of anſwering before they call, which Jerom expounds of the Lords readineſs at the prayers of the Apoſtles to work miracles, as *Act.*4. and *Act.*9. *Act.13.&c.* where at their praying, a ſign was given of Gods hearing them, and the ſick were healed, and dead raiſed to life. And ſuch confidence may every faithfull perſon have, eſpecially the Presbyter according to Jam. 5. 16. Or rather by his anſwering before they call, underſtand his being gracious to the Gentiles, according to *verſ.*1. being found of them before they ſought him. Laſtly, The Lamb and the Lion ſhall dwell together, *verſ.*25. of the expoſition, whereof ſee before Chap. 11.6,7. whereas Calvin, and Muſculus, and Marlorat apply all things here to their return out of Babylon, yet not without reference to the Goſpel, I cannot herein ſubſcribe unto them, as if literally womens travelling with childe were meant, &c. for if it be ſo applied, neither did the event anſwer the Prophecie, nor theſe words to thoſe, ver. 16. of Gods calling his people by another name, which do plainly ſhew, that this Prophecie of ſo much and long continued joy, is not of things to be done at that return, but under the Goſpel when the name of Gods people was changed, and they were called not Iſrael, but Chriſtians.

CHAP. LXVI.

IN this Chapter the Prophet returns to the like expoſtulations with the wicked Jews for their confidence in their Temple and Sacrifices, how wickedly ſoever they lived, as he had begun withall, *Chap.*1.

Verſ.1.

Heaven is my throne, &c. This is ſpoken againſt them that truſted to this, that they had built and maintained not without great coſt a Temple to the Lord, and ſupplied it with Sacrifices from time to time by a continual charge, for which he was ſo bound to them that he could not leave them to be made a prey by their enemies, as he threatned. But the Prophet here ſheweth, That all this their coſt was nothing to make God propitious to them as long as they were proud, and ſtout, and rebellious againſt him in their lives, for what is an houſe upon earth to heaven, or one houſe to the whole earth? verily nothing, but the whole earth makes but a footſtool, and the heavens a ſeat for him; and therefore ſuch thoughts were baſe and vain, to think by giving a mite to him that hath a world of treaſure to oblige him to them ſo, that they might have leave to ſerve their own luſts, and to neglect his Laws.

Verſ.2. 1 Cor.6.

And I look to him that is humble and of a contrite ſpirit. That is, ſaith Jerom, as to the Temple that I beſt accept of, and delight moſt to dwell in; for he that fears God is the Temple of God.

Verſ.3. Hieronym.

He that kils an Ox is as if he killed a man, &c. That is, ſaith Jerom, now under the Goſpel it being a time for all Sacrifices to ceaſe, it is as abominable to ſacrifice or to offer incenſe as to murther or to offer to Idols. And accordingly

he

Calvin.

he expounds the next words, They have choſen their own wayes, &c. of their ſacrificing after Chriſts coming, taking them as a reaſon, why their offerings were ſo vily ſpoken of. But herein Calvin more rightly, who ſaith, the Lord doth not here condemn ſacrificing under the New Teſtament, as ſome think, but only taxeth it when it came from the wicked, as Chap. 1. wherefore by their own wayes he meaneth their ſinfull wayes, which they delighted in, and were wedded to, as alſo appeareth by the ſame complaint renewed, verſ. 4. I called and no man anſwered, but they did evil, &c. which goeth before, Chap. 65.12.

Verſ.4. I will chuſe their illuſions. Becauſe he had ſaid, they choſe their own waies *verſ.*3. now by a Paranomaſie he deals with them likewiſe, I will chooſe your illuſions, I will deal with you in your kinde, ye have hitherto deluded the world, and your own ſelves, and thought by your ſacrificing to keep me from ſeeing your ſins, and ſo to delude me alſo; but I will lay you open to all men what ye are, by bringing condigne puniſhments and terrours upon you, ſo that men ſhall deride and mock at you for your vain confidence in outward things.

Calvin.

Verſ.5. Hear the Word of the Lord ye that tremble at his Word. Having hitherto reproved and threatned the wicked, now he turneth to them whom he comforted, *verſ.*2. the tremblers at his Word: And here he beginneth to renew his Prophecie again touching Chriſts coming, and the encreaſe of his Church, and the joy that the faithfull ſhould have in him. Your brethren which hate you for my name, and reject you, ſay, Let the Lord be glorified, that is, whereas ſome amongſt the Jews hearing the terrible threatnings of Gods judgements denounced, trembled and ſought apart unto the Lord for mercy; this was by the prophane multitude noted, and for this they hated them, and rejected them, as unworthy their ſociety, ſaying in deriſion, Let the Lord be glorified, let him appear in ſuch glory for you, as Iſaiah hath propheſied of, and glorifie his juſtice upon us, we fear it not; to this effect Calvin, who alſo mentions another expoſition of the word glorified, brought by ſome, Let him, or he ſhall be heavy, becauſe the word כבר may be taken both wayes, as if it were meant, that he would be heavy in his judgements againſt theſe few ſingular perſons, hereby to deterre them from that their ſingular piety, but he reſteth in the firſt, as there is good reaſon: See the like to this, Iſa. 5.19. Jerom takes it as ſpoken by the unbelieving Jews to the Apoſtles preaching Chriſt ſo poor, as if they had ſaid, Tell not us of a Meſſiah poor and contemptible, but ſhew us one magnificent and glorious, and then we will believe.

Hieronym.
John 9.
Luther.
Calvin.

Verſ.6. A voice of noiſe from the City, a voice from the Temple. Here, ſaith Jerom, he propheſieth of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem and the Temple by the Romans in way of revenge from God upon the proud and hard-hearted and malicious Jews, who deſpiſed Chriſt becauſe he came in ſo poor a manner, and caſt out thoſe that believed in him. For now the Romans breaking in after a years ſiege, a noiſe was in the City of women and children, crying out for fear, and in the Temple of the armed Jews that fled thither, and defended it as long as they could, but then ſome ſetting it on fire, great ſhrieking and crying followed by reaſon of the fire deſtroying them; whereunto adde, that there was a miraculous voice ſometime heard before from the Temple, ſaying, Migremus hinc, Let us go hence. Luther alſo applieth the words *v.*7. to the primitive Church ſo ſoon bringing forth a moſt numerous off-ſpring, and theſe words, as hath been already ſaid. But Calvin to the deſtruction of the Temple and City by the Babylonians, whereby the Lord took revenge upon his enemies, viz. the wicked

Verſ.7. in Iſrael, before-mentioned, that mocked at ſuch as trembled at his Word, Joſiah like: and that ſo ſudden bringing forth to the ſudden change in the time of Cyrus, ſending home ſo great numbers of Jews out of Captivity beyond all expectation to repleniſh Jeruſalem again, which had lien ſo long waſte, but by this means had many children at once, without travailing after the manner of other women. But ſeeing the Prophet had done long before with propheſying of thoſe things, and now for many Chapters together hath been propheſying of Chriſts coming, I rather aſſent to Jerom, and other Ancients, underſtanding the Lords coming to their joy, and the confuſion of thoſe that hated them, of Chriſts coming with the joyfull tidings of ſalvation to ſuch as feared God, and after that being deſpiſed by the proud and hypocritical, in terrour to them, cauſing ſuch cries both in City and Temple, as are here ſpoken of. Then turning again to the deſpiſed godly ſouls, he ſaith, Before ſhe travailed, ſhe hath Verſ.7. brought forth. And *Verſ.*8. Who ever heard the like? Shall the earth be brought Verſ.8.

forth in one day? For her bringing forth it is expreſſed alſo who is this ſhe, Sion no ſooner ſorrowed then ſhe brought forth her children; But *verſ.*7. She brought forth a male; as ſpeaking of one, that is, Chriſt, whom a Virgin in Iſrael bringing forth Zion, or ſhe is ſaid to bring forth, for Zion and Iſrael are uſed promiſcuouſly for the Church. Or I ſee not why by ſhe the Virgin Mary in particular may not be underſtood, who doubtleſſe brought forth her Sonne Jeſus without pangs, contrary to the courſe of other women, becauſe he was without ſinne, and ſinne cauſeth ſorrow, and ſorrows are threatned to women that conceive by mens conjunction with them, but ſhe was with childe by the holy Ghoſt, and her husband Joſeph knew it not, till ſhe had brought forth this her firſt-born. Now ſoon after this Jeſus calleth and ſendeth out Diſciples to preach, and multitudes both of Jews and Gentiles are brought forth, eſpecially *Act.*2. when in one day three thouſand were added to the Church by hearing one Sermon. For then moſt remarkably was this Prophecie fulfilled, the earth, or a land or countrey full of people being brought forth at once: for to ſhew, that by the earth a countrey full of people is meant, when he had ſaid, Shall the earth be brought forth in a day? he addeth, by was of exegeſis, as Calvin well noteth, Shall a Nation be born at one time?
And then varying the phraſe before uſed, which was, Before ſhe had pain ſhe brought forth a male, into this, When Zion had pain ſhe brought forth her children;
he ſheweth plainly, Children brought forth, beſides the male before-ſpoken of, that is, a multitude of believers, but not without labour on their part, who did the office of a mother, though with more ſpeed then other mothers generally in bringing forth their natural children of their bodies. If any man will underſtand theſe words otherwiſe with Calvin, of the Jews filling Calvin.
Zion upon a ſudden at their return out of Babylon, let him give a reaſon of varying the phraſe, as hath been noted, and why her bringing forth of a ſon is firſt ſpoken of, and then of ſons of him without ſorrow of them, with ſome labour, although with expedition they were brought forth many at once?
Will he ſay, by the male is meant an off-ſpring full of courage? if nothing elſe, why are not ſons ſpoken of at the firſt, as well as at the laſt? And if this could be anſwered, yet the other query cannot; and therefore I conclude, as I begun, the coming of Chriſt into the world is here firſt ſet forth, and then the ſudden repleniſhing of the world with Chriſtians, as a moſt populous Nation filling all the earth.

The next words are nothing but an amplifying and aſſuring the faithfull of Verſ.9.
the ſame thing, becauſe it is the Lord that hath thus promiſed, and who ſhall hinder him from effecting it? Therefore as if it were already done, he exhorteth Verſ.10.
to rejoyce with the mother Jeruſalem.

That ye may ſuck and be ſatisfied with the breſts of her conſolation. That is, Verſ.11.
with the ſweet milk of the Goſpel, as it is compared 1 *Pet.*2.2. and this Allegory is uſed, becauſe he had ſpoken before of children brought forth: for what is the next thing done by children born into the world, but to ſuck?
And by adding, That ye may be delighted with her glory, he ſheweth the Church of Chriſt to be exceedingly glorious, as it is ſaid to be even above the old Church, 2 *Cor.*3. and this is common to all her children; yet this glory is not to be underſtood in worldly reſpects, for ſo ſhe is ſometime poor Prov.
and deſpicable, but in reſpect of true wiſdom, that makes the face to ſhine, Jam.2.
and excels gold and precious ſtones, that is, faith, ſaid to be more precious then gold, and holineſſe inſeparably annexed hereunto; and the faith of miracles, making Paul and Barnabas to ſeem as gods in the likeneſſe of men.

Verſ.12. For I will extend peace to her as a river, and the glory of the Gentiles. Of peace ſo great, that it ſhould be betwixt the Lion and Lamb, ſee before Cha. 11. and *Chap.*65.25. for the glory of the Gentiles, hereby is meant the coming in of them from all parts as a flowing ſtream, becauſe ſuch abundance ſhould be converted, and that only of the vulgar ſort, but alſo Kings and Nobles, as they were, the Emperour being firſt brought to imbrace the faith: for their being born upon her ſides and dandled upon her lap, ſee before Chap. 49.22. *Chap.*60.4. he alludeth ſtill to the great tenderneſſe wherewith mothers uſe their ſucking children, and their delight in them, verſ. 13, 14 the ſame is further ſet forth in other words, to ſhew, that the Lord was moſt intent to the comforting of his people, ſo that they ſhould not need to doubt of it.

Verſ.15. For behold the Lord ſhall come in fire. As his manner hath hitherto been, after ſpeaking comfort to the faithfull he turns again to ſpeak terrour to his and their wicked enemies, for ſuch are all the wicked, and therefore ſet forth as well by the name of haters of God, as of breakers of his Commandments, and he makes way to this *verſ.*14. where having ſpoken of his favour to his ſervants, he addeth, But indignation to his enemies. Touching the coming here ſpoken of with fire, and a whirlwinde, and a chariot with four horſes, Hebr. במרכבות in quadrigis, In chariots drawn by four horſes apiece; A metaphor taken from Kings marching out with men, chariots and horſes to fight againſt their enemies. So to encreaſe the terrour of the wicked, he ſets forth God coming againſt them ſuddenly, mightily and with fire to caſt upon their houſes to burn them and their inhabitants together; ſee the like Pſal. 50. Joel. Jerom takes it as meant of the Lords coming to Judgement at the laſt day with his holy Angels, and yet changing his minde by and by he expounds the fire and ſword *verſ.*16. of the fiery operation of the ſpirit purging out ſinne; and the Word as a ſword piercing and ſlaying the old man. Calvin is either for the judgements of God upon the Babylonians, or for the laſt Judgement. Lyra following Jerom, by his ſword underſtands his ſentence of condemnation, Go ye curſed, and this is followed by Auguſtine and others. But becauſe he ſpeaks only of many that ſhall be now ſlain, verſ. 16. and *verſ.*18. the calling of all Nations is ſpoken of after this, I rather think that the deſtruction of Jeruſalem is meant by fire, the Romans coming with men, and horſes, and chariots in great multitudes and ſuddenly againſt them, and burning their City, for their fire was the fire ſent by the Lord, or wherewith he came, and their chariots his, and their ſword his, as enemies brought againſt the Jews for their abominations are commonly called. If alſo their deſtruction by the Babylonians be taken in as meant here, I ſee none incongruity in it.

Hieron.

Calvin.

Verſ.17. They that purifie themſelves in gardens. Theſe were the old ſins of hypocrites and Idolaters amongſt the Jews, of which ſee *Chap.*65.3. only here it is added after one in the midſt, by ſome ſupplied, Behinde one tree; by others, Another, as if he had ſaid, One after another, which I think is beſt, They waſh themſelves one after another in gardens, and ſo they thought themſelves purified from fleſhly uncleanneſſe better then by legal waſhings. To eating Swinefleſh, the Mouſe another unclean thing forbidden, *Levit.*11. is added, but moſt probably the Dormouſe is meant, which as Varro ſaith, was counted a delicate meat amongſt the Romans, and proviſion was made for the nouriſhing of them in Parks. Now becauſe theſe were the ſins of the Jews, and not of all Nations, which ſhall be judged at the laſt day; and it is ſaid, that they ſhall be conſumed with fire, I cannot think that the fire of the laſt day is meant, but as hath been ſaid.

Varro de re ruſtica, l.3.ca.15.

Verſ.18. It ſhall come that I will gather all Nations. Here again he returns to his former Prophecy of calling the Gentiles.

Verſ.19. I will ſet a mark upon them, that is, as Ezek. 9. whereby they may be known and preſerved in time of common danger, as Exod. 12. it was done when the Ægyptians were ſmitten, and the Hebrews ſaved; and *Revel.*7. they that are ſaved of every Tribe are ſealed. So here it is meant, that for the bringing of the Gentiles to Chriſt ſome Jews ſhould be marked that ſhould eſcape the common deſtruction of that Nation, and be diſperſed to all countreys to preach the Goſpel, as the Apoſtles were, ſome to Tharſis, that is, Cilicia or Africa, ſome to Pul, that is Aſſyria and Parthia, ſome to Lud, that is, Lybia, or Aſia minor, to Tubal and Javan, that is, Italy and Greece. And what ſhould be the event of their going into all parts, is ſhewed verſ. 20. Verſ.20. viz. the bringing of all their brethren for an oblation to the Lord upon horſes and chariots, &c. Whereby he meaneth not according to the letter, that the Jews diſperſed into all parts ſhall thus be brought home to Jeruſalem, properly underſtood; but converts of all Nations dwelling farre or near, ſhould by the power of the Word and Spirit be brought to the unity of the Church. Wherefore in alluding to the manner of men, who when they will bring others from a farre, do it by chariots, mules, &c. he ſpeaketh of theſe means, the ſenſe yet being nothing elſe but what ſuch means are for tranſporting paſſengers, the Goſpel preached ſhall be to bring to Chriſt a multitude of people, whereſoever they inhabit.

Verſ.21. I will take ſome of them for Prieſts. That is, ſome of thoſe that are converted of the Gentiles ſhall be as Prieſts unto me to teach others, and Verſ.22. this ſeed he ſaith ſhall remain as the new heaven and earth, that is, the faithfull of the Gentiles ſhall never faile or be cut off, as the Jewes were.

Verſ.23. And all fleſh ſhall come from moneth to moneth, &c. That is, ſome of all Nations ſhall keep a daily Feſtival of joy through a good conſcience, and not by intermiſſions, as the Jews of old did, but by ceaſing from evil works all the dayes of their lives, as *Chap.*58 12.

Verſ.24. And they ſhall goe out and ſee the carcaſes. This is ſpoken in alluding to thoſe that after victory gotten, go to ſee the ſlain enemies, lying and rotting upon the ground in a loathſome manner. For even ſo abominable are the wicked to the faithfull here, even like ſuch carkaſes, and in hell their torments ſhall be everlaſting, as it is applied Mark 9.

A COMMENTARY UPON THE PROPHECIE Of the Prophet JEREMIAH.

THE PREFACE.

AFter that Iſaiah (who had long laboured to convert the wicked Jews in vain) was dead, and the State grew much worſe by the Idolatry and Tyranny of Manaſſeh, and his ſon Amon ſucceeding him, and then Joſiah an excellent King had reigned twelve years, Jeremiah being very young was made a Prophet of the Lord to reprove again the Jews, ſtill fearfully ſinning, moſt ſharply, and to threaten them with the Babyloniſh Captivity, wherewith Iſaiah had before threatned them, that wanting neither admonitions long before it came, nor immediatly before, they remaining ſtill incorrigible might be without excuſe. If Iſaiah died, as is moſt probable he did, in the former years of Manaſſeh his reign, there paſſed ſixty four years between him and Jeremiah, in all which time the Jews ſeeing no ſuch carrying away, as was threatned, hardned themſelves in their ſins; and although they had now a godly King, yet the book of the Law was wanting all the time of his reign hitherto, yea and four years after this, for it lay covered in the rubbiſh of the Temple till his eighteenth year, at what time Joſiah going about to repair it, Hilkiah found it, and it was brought and read before the King. So that they were without that neceſſary light moſt probably ſixty eight or ſixty nine years, ever ſince that in Manaſſeh his time ſuch as feared God and ſhewed any piety towards him and his Law were perſecuted, and had their innocent bloud ſhed in ſuch abundance, that Jeruſalem is ſaid to have been filled with it. For it is not to be thought, but that the godly being rooted out, the books of the Law which ſpake againſt Idolatry, were ſuppreſſed, and none being ſuffered to read therein, an utter failing hereof ſoon followed. And when no light of the Law was, but all overſpread with darkneſſe, we cannot conceive but that the works of darkneſſe ſtill more abounded all over the Land to the provoking of God the more againſt it. Wherefore the Lord out of his graciouſneſſe thought good now again before he would deſtroy them, to ſend them another Prophet to warn them, if by any means they might be brought to repentance, and he continued propheſying a long time, even fourty or one and fourty years, when in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, Jeruſalem was taken by Nebuchadnezzar, and the City deſtroyed, and after this in Egypt, whether they forced him to go with them, divers years more, till that at length they being enraged againſt him, ſlew him, by ſtoning him to death, the fourth year after he was carried into Egypt, and had propheſied of Nebuchadnezzars taking and ſubduing Egypt, as he had done

Judea, at what time he threatned, that the rebellious Jews, who contrary to Gods command went into Egypt for ſafety, ſhould be cruelly deſtroyed. Yet their madneſſe could not avert this judgement, but it came the ſooner upon them even the year following; thus Jerom, Tertullian, Dorotheus and Epiphanius de vita Prophetarum, and he ſaith alſo, that he was but fourteen or fifteen years of age when he began to propheſie, which diſagreeth not with his own ſaying, *Chap.*1. that he was a childe. And if he were ſo young indeed when he began, it was the more admirable, there being a King ſo young, viz. at ſixteen, ſetting himſelf to advance piety, and now a Prophet ſo young, of ſuch undaunted courage to inveigh againſt and threaten the wicked with Gods judgements. Being killed, as is before-ſaid by the Jews, the Egyptians honoured him ſo for the benefits that they received by him, that they built him an honourable Sepulchre, and reſorted much unto it for devotions ſake, becauſe that by his prayers Aſps and Crocodiles, and other hurtfull things were chaſed out of their Land, and after his death thoſe ſuperſtitious people took of the duſt of his Sepulchre and uſed it, not without effect, to the ſame ends: Thus Iſidor, &c.

Iſidor.
Doroth.
Epiphan.

For the order of his writing, he keeps it not according to the times wherein, but placeth ſome Prophecies before that were after, and ſome after that were before, as one hath obſerved diligently and made a Chronotaxis hereupon. Yet he ſets down all things in order of time, in reſpect of the Kings in whoſe dayes they were done, viz. all contained Chap. 1, 2,3, &c. to the end of the 14, in the dayes of Joſiah. From thence to the end of the 24, in the dayes of Joiakim. From thence to the end of *Chap.*26. in the dayes of Jechoniah, and from thence to the end of *Chap.*53. in the dayes of Zedekiah. From whence to the end of the Prophecy in the dayes following, the ſubduing of Jeruſalem by Nebuchadnezzar and carrying away Zedekiah into Babylon. Beſides his book of Prophecies and Lamentations, Jeremiah wrote a Lamentation for Joſiah, 2 Chron.35. which continued till the time of Ioſephus, as he ſaith, but now is not. 2. The firſt and ſecond books of the Kings; ſo Procopius, Iſidor, &c. 3. Together with Ezekiel, Pſal.65. and alone *Pſal.*137. yet this is not aſſented to by ſome. He is alſo ſaid to have fore-told the Prieſts of Ægypt the ruine of their gods, when a Virgin with her ſonne ſhould come into Ægypt, whereunto they gave ſo great heed, that they kept an Image of a Virgin with a childe in her arms in a ſecret place of their Temple.

Alex. a Caſtro.

*Joſeph. Antiq.*l. 10.c.6.

CHAP. I.

Verſ.1. THe Words of Jeremiah, who was of the Prieſts of Anathoth, &c. This was a little Town, ſaith Jerom, three miles northward from Jeruſalem, given to the Prieſts out of the lot of the Tribe of Benjamin. Of Anathoth, ſee 1 Kin. 2.20. and how Abiathar being put from the high-Prieſthood was bidden to go and dwell at his houſe there; and *Ioſh.*21. when Cities were given to the Prieſts, theſe four are ſaid to have been aſſigned to them in Benjamin, Gabaon, Gabae, Anathoth and Almon. He was the ſon of Hilkiah, yet not of that Hilkiah of whom we read, 2 *King.*22.8. that he found the book of the Law in the eighteenth year of Ioſiah, the fift after Ieremiah his beginning to propheſie (although *Clem. Alexand. Strom.*1. and Ierom in heb. quaſt. 1. paral. think that he was) but of ſome other ordinary Prieſt of that name, becauſe that Hilkiah was high-Prieſt, and the high-Prieſts dwelt alwayes at Ieruſalem, as Ioſephus ſaith, *Antiq. l.*20.*c.*28. this man at Anathoth, and to ſhew, that he was but an ordinary Prieſt, he ſaith, Of the Prieſts of Anathoth; thus alſo the Caldee Paraphraſt, who ſaith, That he was one of the four and twenty ordered by David to ſerve at the Temple by courſe, 1 Chron. 24. So likewiſe Calvin, Junius and moſt of our modern Writers. The thirteenth year of the reign of Ioſiah, who reigned thirty two years, ſo that he propheſied in his

Cal. Paraphraſt.

time nineteen years, and twenty two years after, when the King of Babylon ſubdued Iudah,in toto one and fourty years, beſides the years after this, whilſt he lived in Iudea and in Egypt. And it is to be noted here, becauſe his words Verſ.2. might eaſily have been contemned, that he addeth, To whom the Word of the Lord came. And there was need of this addition eſpecially,in a time ſo corrupt and ſinfull, as was before noted in the Preface. And it is further to be noted, that he was of the Prieſts, from amongſt whom it was more rare for a Prophet to come forth: for Iſaiah was called out of the Court, and Amos from amongſt herdmen to propheſie, the Lord herein giving a check to the Prieſts for their great wickedneſſe and ignorance, in that leaving them, Mal.2.7. whoſe lips ſhould preſerve knowledge, he ſought him Prophets amongſt others.

Verſ.5. Behold I knew thee in the belly, and ſanctified thee to be a Prophet, &c. Of the like ſpoken touching Iſaiah, ſee before Iſa.49.1,5. and of Paul, Galat.
1.15, and of Iohn Baptiſt, Luk. 1.15. But what is meant hereby? Did he come holy and free from ſinne into the world? Anſw. No, but God in his preſcience appointed him to be a Prophet, and ſet him apart to this holy Office before he was born, and to be ſet apart from a common to an holy uſe, is to be ſanctified in the Scripture-phraſe, and when a man is in Gods preſcience ſet apart and ſeparated from the community of men to be a choſen veſſel to carry Gods name to the world (as it is ſaid of Paul, Gal.1.15,16.) he is ſaid to be ſanctified. Some, becauſe it is added, I ordained thee a Prophet unto the Nations] think it to be ſpoken of Chriſt, but it will appear afterwards in this Prophecie, that Ieremy was thus ordained, for he propheſied not only to the Jews, but alſo to divers Nations about, although he went not amongſt them, but by his writings, untill that being perforce carried into Egypt, he propheſied Calvin. there. And it is by Calvin noted, that he ſaith not barely, the Lord ſaid unto me, that he knew me in the belly, &c. but to purchaſe the more authority to that which he ſaid, he brings the Lord in ſpeaking, Before I formed thee, &c. becauſe men will be moved more by hearing the Lords own words, for which cauſe he ſpake with a lively voice upon Mount Zion, and in other Note. places both in Ieremiah and in other Prophets the Lord is brought in ſpeaking, and who ſo will not by this be moved, have hearts hardened more then the Adamant to their more juſt condemnation for ever and ever.

Verſ.6. I cannot ſpeak, for I am a childe. Of the age of Ieremiah at this time, whether he were indeed a childe or a youth in years, I finde no certainty in ancient Writers, yet many take it to be ſpoken properly, ſuppoſing him at this time not to have been above fourteen or fifteen years old, but Calvin will have him a man of a middle age, and that in ſaying he was a childe, he meaneth only in underſtanding. But why might not the Lord call him to this Prophetical Office ſo young, as hath been ſaid, as well as Samuel and Daniel? And if he meant, that he was as unfit as a childe for his underſtanding, he would rather have pleaded againſt it, as Moſes did, and not have objected his youth.
Laſtly, Why the Lord ſhould not ſend him being but a youth, as well as a man of years, I ſee no reaſon, but rather of his ſending him ſo young, that men of years to whom he ſhould propheſie, might be confounded to ſee a childe thus obedient to the Lord, and bitter againſt ſin, to go from which they could by no threatnings be moved. And a youth, and a man in the caſe of being a Prophet are all one before the Lord, for ſo much he ſpeaketh by them, and giveth the prophetical mouth at his pleaſure; neither hath a man of years it at his own will. For his excuſing of himſelf, ſaying, Ah Lord God, Jerom hath Ah, Ah, Ah, which ſome expound of the Trinity ſpeaking to him; ſome of his three-fold defect, 1. Of Age, 2. Of Ability to ſpeak, 3. Of Courage; theſe as Phantaſies without ground are well rejected by Lyra. Lyra, becauſe there is in the Hebrew no more words but Ahah an Interjection, ſhewing either admiration or grief, with which Ieremiah was ſtricken, when the Lord ſpake thus unto him. A great difference is here betwixt Ie- remiah and Iſaiah, Cha.6. who offered himſelf,yet Moſes likewiſe ſhewed averſneſſe, when he was called. Reaſons ſee there, and upon *Exod.*3.

Verſ.8. Hieronym. Then the Lord put forth his hand and touched my mouth. To Iſaiah a Seraph came with a live coal, ſaith Jerom, becauſe he was a man and had complained of his lips being polluted, that he might know that they were now purged, but to Ieremiah being a childe, who had not yet lived ſo long as to pollute his lips much by evil words, God puts forth his own hand of power, becauſe he had complained of childiſh weakneſſe, to ſhew that he had now endued him with ſtrength enough againſt all wicked enemies, that when any of them ſhould with his hand ſtrike him on the mouth, he might remember this almighty hand, and not be daunted at it. Calvin ſaith, That by relating this Ieremiah further confirms his calling to his prophetical Office. Calv. For in ſaying, That the Lord put his hand to his mouth, he meant, that by this ſign the Lord ſhewed, that the words which Ieremiah ſhould ſpeak were not his own, but the Lords, and accordingly to be reverenced; and herein every Teacher muſt be like to Ieremiah, having a care that whatſoever he teacheth be not his own, but the will and word of the Lord. And the people ought accordingly to receive it. 1 Theſſ. 2. 13.

Verſ.10. I have ſet thee this day over Nations and Kingdoms, to pull down, &c. That he might not timerouſly go about this office, the Lord ſheweth him the Dignity and Authority thereof, that when fear ſhould begin to ariſe in him at the ſight of men great in this world, he might look upon them, as men under him, yea Kings themſelves in reproving and threatning them, and at himſelf, as ſet over them all by Gods almighty hand, whoſe footſtool the whole earth and all the Kingdoms thereof are. And in this authority doth every teacher of the Word participate with Ieremiah, not that he ſhould hereby be puffed up with pride, but being in humility a ſervant to all, that he may not for fear flatter the greateſt, or moſt beneficent unto him, or ſpare to reprove and threaten them ſinning; but herein be without all reſpect of perſons, as God is, in whoſe name and authority he cometh. Provided alwayes, that he ſpeak nothing but Gods Word, making it evident from the holy Scriptures. For the Pope abuſeth this place to prove himſelf above Kingdoms and Nations; but it is to be noted, That here are two things joyned together, Note. 1. I have put my Words into thy mouth, 2. I have ſet thee over, &c. and thoſe whom God hath joyned together muſt not be ſeparated. Let him come then with the words of God in his mouth, and we will acknowledge his ſuperiority, but going from the Word in this his challenge we cannot but take notice of his arrogancy. And it is further to be noted, that every one who cometh with Gods words is not thus ſet up, but ſuch only as are ſent, or by ſome Paul or Barnabas ordained, which whoſo is not able to prove, is a uſurper and falſe prophet. Rom. 10. Act.14.23. To pull down, to deſtroy, &c. If nothing elſe had been added, as to build and to plant, who would have been moved to hear ſuch a Prophet? By ſpeaking of pulling down firſt, he intimateth, that by long continuing in ſin, there were ſtrong holds of ſinne ſet up in them, and theſe muſt firſt be pulled down that a new building might be ſet up, wherefore he begins with pulling down, and then comes building up, and he uſeth many words of pulling down, deſtroying and rooting up, to ſhew the deep rooting that ſinne had taken in them, for the rooting out of which a little inveighing thereagainſt, and threatning will not ſuffice, but judgements muſt be threatned, and the hainouſneſs of their ſins aggravated divers wayes; ſometimes by ſimilitudes, whereof he hath thirteen, and ſometimes by Prophecies, whereof he hath thirty four, as will appear to him that ſhall count them. But touching this rooting up and building, it is not to be underſtood, that Jeremiah or any other teacher is ſet over Hieronym. Nations Emperor-like to deſtroy in his wrath, and then in being well pleaſed Theodor. to build again, but only to denounce this, leaving it for God to do by Nebuchadnezzar Lyra. Raban. his ſervant, whom he would imploy in this work of pulling Vatabl. down, and to Cyrus and his ſucceſſours the Kings of Perſia, to build up, as Dionyſ.

all Ancients agree. And this to be the ſenſe is further ſhewed, *Chap.*12.14, 15,16, & 24.6. & 43.18. But it is generally agreed, that pulling down and rooting and building here, is to be underſtood ſpiritually of pulling down ſin, and building up in grace, for which the foreſaid Authors apply it to Chriſt, who only is able to do this, and the Preacher only by his help, through whom 2 Cor.10.4. S^t^ Paul ſaith that he can do all things, and overthrow ſtrong holds, and caſt down every high imagination, exalting it ſelf againſt Chriſt. And he ſaith well, Kingdoms and Nations, for every vice hath its Kingdom and its Nations belonging to it, as Luxury is a kingdom in a riotous liver, having Gluttony, Drunkenneſſe, Laſciviouſneſſe and Fornication as its Nations. Pride alſo is a Kingdom having vanity in apparel, painting and curling, boaſting and ambition. And Covetouſneſſe is a Kingdom, having as its Nations, oppreſſion, deceit, lying, ſtealing, ſwearing, hard-heartedneſſe, and unreaſonable tenacity of worldly goods, as Origen hath it, (Origen.) and theſe is every Preacher ſet to pluck up and pull down, and not to think his work done till he ſeeth the ruine of theſe Kingdoms in his people, and the Kingdom of God built up in them, which is when his Word ruleth in their hearts and lives in all things.

Verſ.11. I ſee a rod of an Almond tree, I will haſten to perform it. Here is Hebr. an elegant Paranomaſie, I ſee, ſaith Jeremiah, an almond-tree שקד, and the Lord ſaith, I am שֹׁקֵד vigilant, or haſtening to perform my Word; let the firſt words be rendred according to the proper ſignification, and they are, I ſee a vigilant or haſtening rod] but the ſame word ſerveth alſo to ſet forth an Almond-tree, for the ſpeedy coming out of the leaves thereof, even before any other tree, and is commonly ſo uſed. Hereby then the Lord ſhewed, that the judgments which Jeremiah ſhould threaten, ſhould not be deferred long, but come ſpeedily. Diodor.l.4.c.1. According to this Viſion almoſt Diodorus writes of a rod or ſtaff (for the ſame word ſignifieth either) with an eye upon the top of it, uſed by the Ægyptians, as an embleme of divine Providence ſeeing and ruling in all things; ſo by this vigilant or haſtening rod ſeen, the Lord ſhewed that he would not ſleep, but be vigilant to accompliſh his word of threatning with all ſpeed. The Caldee Paraphraſt and ſome others underſtand by this rod Nebuchadnezzar, as he is called *Iſa.*10.1. which differs little. Calvin. Calvin thinks, that not only the haſtening of the judgements threatned is here ſet forth, but alſo of the promiſe made, for his Word, over which he ſaith he will be vigilant, equally reſpecteth pulling down and building up, which was ſpoken of *verſ.*10. Note. whereunto I readily aſſent, noting as well for the comfort of humbled and penitent ſinners, as for the terrour of the impenitent, that the comfort promiſed ſhall come ſpeedily to the one, as judgements threatned to the other, yet firſt plucking up, and then building, according to the order before-going.

Verſ.13. I ſee a ſeething pot towards the North. See the like *Ezek.*11. and *Ezek.*24. Jeruſalem being hereby ſet forth, which as a pot had fire put under it by the Babylonians coming out of the North, when Nebuzaradan burnt the City, ſo that by theſe two, the vigilant rod (as the Vulgar renders it) and the ſeething pot, one and the ſame thing is meant. Calvin. Thus ſome, but Calvin takes that of the rod of a watchman, as he renders it, for a further illuſtration of that which was ſaid before, that he had ſet him over Nations and Kingdoms to pull down, &c. for to this end he ſheweth him his rod, whereby as having power enough, the foreſaid Kingdoms ſhould be pulled down, as Egypt was ſometime by Moſes with his rod. And therefore in alluding to theſe words of the rod of a Watchman, he addeth, I will watch over my word to do it, that is, Queſtion not thou, ſaying, How ſhall this be, that I a childe ſhould overthrow and build up Kingdoms? thou ſeeſt my rod or ſcepter, the enſign of my power, Go on therefore to ſpeak according to my directions, and doubt not but that I, who ſet thee awork, will be as ready and vigilant to perform by thee that which thou ſpeakeſt, as thou canſt deſire. Thus Calvin. Neither doth

Hieronym.

doth Jerom differ much from him, and is indifferent about rendring the words either A rod of an Almond, according to Symmachus and Theodotion, or the vigilant rod, according to Aquila; becauſe (ſaith he) a Nut or Almond hath an hard ſhell, and muſt with hard knocking be cracked to come to the kernel, and that is bitter, but the kernel ſweet; ſo the rod of God which is harſh and bitter, brings a ſweet fruit of vertue and joy at the laſt, according to that ſaying, The roots of learning are bitter, the fruits ſweet.

Literarum radices amaræ, fructus dulces.

And this ſeems to me to be beſt, and therefore, although it be hereby ſhewed alſo, that judgements threatned by Jeremiah at the word of the Lord ſhould come ſpeedily, yet the ſign next ſeen, and this, are not all one but divers, this extending further both to pulling down and building, and to confirm that which was before-ſaid in ſetting up the Prophet in ſo great authority, that being reſtrained to the judgements to come by Nebuchadnezzar. The boyling pot now ſeen, is by ſome, ſaith Calvin, interpreted of Nebuchadnezzar, but indeed Jeruſalem is hereby ſet forth, together with all other Cities of Judah.

Calvin.

For as fire put to a pot with fleſh in it makes it boyl, and in continuance of time to waſte away; ſo the Lord would hereby ſhew, that it ſhould be done to the Jews in Jeruſalem, and in all the other Cities of Judah by the Babylonians, who together with the Aſſyrians, now being one Kingdom, dwelt northward, and poſſeſſed all other parts, except the eaſt, where the Perſians and Medes lived: To expreſſe which he addeth, From the north cometh evil upon all the inhabitants of the Land, that is, the Land of Judea, as is further expreſſed, *verſ.*15. Some ſay, That the Kings of Babylon and Perſia had fire carried before them in a pot, that by the winde and rain it might not be extinguiſhed, having it in great veneration, as a god; and if it were ſo, then here is an alluſion made to that cuſtom. But it is not ſaid, a pot boiling or burning coming out of the north, yet as much in effect is ſaid, The face thereof from the face of the north; and the word rendred boiling, ſignifieth either blown up, or burnt with fire; and the Vulgar Latine hath it, Ollam ſuccenſam, and therefore I cannot but like well of the fore-going Alluſion, and of applying the burning pot to Nebuchadnezzar, who came from the north, it being common with the Hebrews, when they would ſet forth coming from any part, to do it by ſaying from the face thereof, whereas if Jeruſalem, to burn which he came, had been meant, it would rather have been ſaid, the face thereof was towards the face of the north, from whence the judgement came. And the Lord himſelf expounds it not of Jeruſalem, againſt which, but of the judgment coming, and for this expoſition is the Caldee againſt all others, who commonly take it for Jeruſalem, but herein one ſpeaks more rightly then many.

Cal. Paraphraſt.

But why after a rod is there ſeen a burning pot? Sol. To ſhew, That they who will not be reformed by Gods rod ſmiting them, ſhall be in danger next of his fire deſtroying them utterly.

Note.

Gregory makes a moral hereof thus, Mans minde is the pot, that which from the north ſets it on fire is the devil, by inflaming it with evil luſts, and then he ſetteth up his throne therein, as in the next words, *verſ.*15.

Gregor. Moral. 18.

Verſ. 15.
Hieronym.

And I will bring all the families of the north, and they ſhall ſet each one his throne, &c. Here he amplifieth his judgement by Nebuchadnezzar threatned, by mentioning the Nations and Kings that ſhould come with him againſt Judah: for that many Kings ſhould help him is intimated, in ſaying, They ſhould ſet their thrones in the gates of Jeruſalem, that is, ſit there as Lords and Kings after the ſubduing thereof.

Verſ.18.

I have made thee this day a defenced City, and an iron pillar. To confirm Jeremiahs minde that he might not fear his oppugners, how violent ſoever they ſhould be againſt him, he compares him not to a moſt ſtrong houſe, but a moſt ſtrong City, as the Church is compared to a City ſet upon an hill, that is impregnable, and to an iron pillar, which is yet longer laſting, as not being ſubject by fierceſt winds and tempeſts to be demoliſhed or hurt, in which ſenſe the Church is called, The ground and pillar of truth; and Cephas, James

Matth.5.
1 Tim.3.15.

and John, pillars, *Gal.*1.9. And how ſhould it come to paſſe, that Jeremiah a man alone ſhould ſtand ſo ſtrong againſt Kings, Rulers and Prieſts, but be- Note. cauſe as the Lord here ſaith, I will be with thee? and what can all the wicked of the world do againſt one Miniſter armed with his power?

CHAP. II.

Verſ.2. I Remember thee the kindeneſſe of thy youth, &c. Jerom, I have called thee to minde, pitying thy youth. But it may with more ſenſe be rendred according to the Hebrew, I record the mercy ſhewed to thee in thy youth, and the love of thy eſpouſals; that is, I call to minde and compare my great mercy ſhewed to thee, whenas bringing thee out of Egypt, and through a barren wilderneſs, Verſ.4. cauſing thee to follow me, as a wife her loving husband, and taking care of thee, as my firſt fruits, which are moſt holy to the Lord, ſo that I brought evil upon all that went about to eat and devour thee. When I compare, I ſay, this my gracious dealing with thee, and thine apoſtaſie and forſaking me together, as followeth *verſ.*5,6,7,8. I cannot but as I have great cauſe challenge thee therefore, and call thee to an account to give me a reaſon why thou haſt dealt thus by me, and if thou canſt give none, to make thee aſhamed that thou maiſt yet repent, being otherwiſe ready to deal with thee according to thy deſerts, *verſ.*9. &c. *Ezek.*16. this compariſon is ſet forth more at large, both touching Gods mercy moſt undeſerved on the Jews part, and the abomi- Calvin. nations committed againſt him on their part. Calvin expounds the firſt words of *verſ.*2. as I have done, viz. not as implying any love or goodneſs in them, whereby the Lord was moved to deal ſo graciouſly with them, but it was the meer mercy of God, from whence it came that he eſpouſed Iſrael to himſelf, and the hiſtory of their murmurings and rebellions from the beginning of their deliverance out of Egypt, ſheweth the ſame. Wherefore theſe words, The love of thy eſpouſals] are to be underſtood paſſively, not actively as if their love towards God, but his love to them were hereby commended. And this, he ſaith, is here ſpoken of, to ſhew, why he now ſent a Prophet again unto them, before he would deſtroy them, to move them to repentance: Becauſe to ſuch as upon whom he placeth his affection, his love is conſtant, making him never to leave dealing with them about Reformation, till that they being deſperate and incorrigible, he muſt needs deal with them by judgements to their deſtruction, but ſtill when he is forced to this, he will finally upon their repentance, to which he drives them by judgements, ſhew mercy again unto them in greater meaſure then ever, *Iſa.*30.18. *Chap.*49.65,66. Thus alſo Jerom, Rabanus, Thomas Aquinas, Vatablus. Others, as mercy is firſt ſpoken of, and then love, and following the Lord in the wilderneſs; ſo underſtand the mercy of God, wherein he began to Iſrael in Egypt, being miſerable and without all form or beauty, in bringing him out, and then the love of their fathers, whereby they anſwered the Lords mercy at the firſt bowing Exod 4. Deut.5.27. and worſhipping him, and willingly following him, and profeſſing to yeeld all holy obedience to his Laws, ſo Caldee, Lyra, Hugo, Dionyſius, and to this do I ſubſcribe, as moſt probable. And then Iſrael was Holineſſe to the Lord and his firſt fruits, as being adorned with holy Laws and Ordinances above other Nations, as a bride hath glorious Ornaments put upon her to encreaſe her beauty, and to make her more amiable to her husband, and ſhe being then in the prime of her youth alſo, intimated by the word [firſt fruits] And the Lord to ſhew his love towards her would ſuffer none to wrong her, Pſal.105. but rebuked even kings for her ſake, as the king of Amalek, Moab and Midian, of the Amorites and Baſhan.

Verſ.5. What iniquity have your fathers found in me that ye are gone after vanity? Having before mentioned Gods mercy towards them, and their fathers anſwerable love and ſubmiſſion at the firſt, now he challengeth them for that leaving him they followed after falſe gods, contrary to that which they were bound to do for his great mercies formerly recorded to have been ſhewed to their fathers. And then in ſpeaking of his mercies more particularly, he ſaith, Verſ.6. which brought them out of Egypt through the Wilderneſſe, a land of deſerts and pits, of drought and the ſhadow of death, Where no man liveth; yet they being above ſix hundred thouſand were here kept alive fourty years by Gods feeding of them miraculouſly.

Verſ.7. I brought you alſo into a fruitfull land, but ye defiled it. Prieſts, Paſtors, Teachers of the law, and Prophets propheſying by Baal, for the laſt of which the four hundred Prophets maintained by Jezabel, and propheſying to King 1 King.18. Ahab, were moſt notorious, where ye may ſee what Baal was in my Commentaries upon that place. Hereby it appears, that the corruption was univerſal, overſpreading both People and Prieſts, who were Paſtors and Teachers of the Law alſo. The words ſetting forth Teachers here, are הפשי תרה holding the Law, for ſuch were the Prieſts by their Office, *Mal.*2.7. which made their ſinne the greater, as S^t^ Paul reaſons againſt wicked teachers, Rom. 2.21. By Paſtors, Rulers in the Commonwealth are as well ſet forth as Prieſts, who were ſpiritual Paſtors, of theſe it is complained that they tranſgreſſed; of Teachers, that they had not known God, or enquired after him, they were idle and ignorant, and the Prophets propheſying by Baal were ſuch, as Calv. though they did not profeſſedly ſerve Baal, but pretended to ſpeak from the Lord, yet they ſpake not by his Spirit, but by a lying ſpirit, the devil, to make 1 Cor.10.20. men ſecure in their ſins, for what are Idols but devils?

Verſ.9. Therefore I will yet plead with you, and with your childrens children. By ſaying Yet, he intimateth ſome judgements brought upon them already, for which they haply thought that they ſhould now go ſcot-free, God being ſatiſfied by the puniſhments, which he had already laid upon them. But he contrariwiſe threatens, that he will not thus make an end, nor having brought more upon them, but if their children and childrens children went on in their ſinnes, he would goe on in puniſhing generation after generation.

Verſ.10. Paſſe over to the iſles of Chittim. That is, of Grecia; By Grecia, all the Countreys of Europ being meant. And to Kedar, that is, the Eaſtern parts of Aſia, where they knew not the true, but worſhipped falſe gods, yet for their conſtant cleaving to the gods at the firſt received by their Anceſtours without change, they ſhewed, that if they had had the knowledge of the true God, they would much more have cleaved alwayes to him only, whereas the Jews receiving from their Anceſtours the worſhip of one God, were fickle and inconſtant, changing his glory into that which profited not, that is, in ſtead of him the moſt glorious God of heaven and earth, worſhipping Idols in whom is no help, as in ſuch as have ears and hear not, eyes and ſee not, &c. For as Xenophon ſaith, Xenophon. It was an Oracle of Apollo, that thoſe gods are rightly worſhipped, which were delivered of Anceſtours; And this he greatly applaudeth: And it was a maxim amongſt the Heathen, No novelty pleaſeth God, But in condemning the Jews inconſtancy in their Religion by the Heathens conſtancy in theirs, he doth not commend them or any, that being in a way of ſuperſtition will not go from it; but only he ſheweth, that the judgment of the Jews ſhall be far more heavy, becauſe they were more ſtupid, and did more groſly then they; as Corazin is threatned by Sodom and Gomorrah, Mat.11. Touching the word Chittim, it doth alſo ſignifie Italy, as *Num.*24.24. *Dan.*11.38. or Cyprus the Iſland, as Joſ.*l.*1.*antiq.c.*11. or Grecia, 1 Mac.1.*c.*8.5. So that it may well be taken for all the weſtern parts, as Kedar (which hath the name from Kedar the ſecond ſon of Iſhmael, Gen.25.15. who with his Kedarens and other Iſhmaelites and Arabians inhabited the eaſtern parts) is put for all the eaſtern Countreys. The meaning then is, Go to the fartheſt parts weſt, ſet forth by the Iſlands of Kittim, and again into all parts lying eaſtward, and learn to be aſhamed of your moſt unreaſonable lenity and inconſtancy in matter of divine worſhip, which is a thing of ſo great moment, and be the more confounded by thinking how little their gods have done for them, and what great things I have done for you.

Verſ.12. Be aſtoniſhed, O heavens, at this, and be ye horribly afraid. As *Iſa.*1.the Prophet bids, Hear (O Heavens) as having no hope that the Jews would hear or be moved; ſo Jeremiah in this place turns to the heavens, as if ſo horrible a thing were done in the ſin wherewith they were before charged, that the very dumb and ſenſleſs creatures could not but tremble and be amazed at it, for the provocation of the almighty Creator hereby. For when a father is angry and ſtorms againſt any of his children, all the reſt fear. Be ye deſolate, Jerom, Be aſtoniſhed, and gates thereof be deſolate. For the word שעור may be taken either for his gates] as Jerom renders it, viz. having a prick above ש to the right hand, but on the left it ſignifieth fear, and thus it is here pricked, and therefore beſt expounded ſo; and if we expound it with Jerom, by gates, the particle ו agreeth not with שמים heavens being of the plural before-going.
The word rendred, Be deſolate, ſignifieth alſo, be dry, or barren as a deſert, another expreſſion of the greateſt commotion through terrour that may be, cauſing the aëry heaven to go from it wonted nature of humidity to moiſten the earth and make it fruitfull by being turned into the likeneſſe of a dry wilderneſſe. And indeed the horrible ſins of men reach up in their poiſonous Deut.28. quality to heaven to make it to degenerate into drineſſe, like that of braſſe or iron. As a man through amazement is for a time like a ſtone ceaſing to do the actions of a man, ſo the heavens to do theirs.

Verſ.13. They have forſaken me, the fountain of living Water, &c. That is, by leaving the true God, who likeneth himſelf to a Well of living or ſpring-water, becauſe ſuch were moſt neceſſary for the ſuſtentation of life in thoſe dry countreys, as appeareth in Iſaacs digging of Wels, and his joy at the finding of ſprings, the benefit whereof the Philiſtims envying him ſtopt them up, whereupon great ſtrife ſometimes aroſe. For which cauſe alſo Chriſt cals us to him, as ſuch a fountain, ſaying, He that thirſteth, let him come and drink of the Water
Joh.7.37. of life freely. But falſe gods were as broken ciſterns that could hold no
Note. water, the water that is in them is pudly and not clear, as coming by the fall of the rain, and it alſo conſumeth ſoon away, if the ciſtern hath rifts; ſo are Idols to thoſe that ſerve them, in a drought of judgements coming they can ſtand them in no ſtead; but the true God is alwayes to ſuch as ſerve him as a ſpring of water in the greateſt drought, and ſo it is well with them when others periſh through thirſt, *Pſal.*37.

Verſ.14. Is Iſrael a ſervant? an homeborn ſlave? Why is he made a prey? As if he had ſaid, Doth any man ask the cauſe now, why Iſrael is in miſery, being made a ſlave and a prey to other Nations? It is not becauſe he was ſo born, he was by Gods adoption and grace a ſon, an heir, lifted up above all other Nations, when God choſe him for his peculiar people. Therefore the cauſe is plain why he is now in this miſery, viz. that before-ſhewed, his forſaking God the Verſ.15. fountain of living water, &c. The Lions ſhall roar upon him, &c. that is enemies like Lions; for taking him as a prey, it is a Metaphor made more plain in the next words, wherein they are ſaid to burn up his Cities, and to leave them without an inhabitant: for ſo it happened after unto them afterwards in Zedekiah in his time by the Caldees.

Verſ.16. The ſons of Taphanes and Noph ſhall break thine head. Noph was the Metropolitan City of Egypt, and Taphanes another like it, wherein Pharaohs Court was, ſo that hereby deſtruction is threatned by the Egyptians, with whom they made confederacies, and in whom it is often objected againſt them that they truſted for horſes. Their head that was broken by them, was Joſiah, who 2 King.23.29. raſhly going againſt the King of Egypt, was ſlain by him, and then he put the Jews to tribute at his pleaſure.

Verſ.17. He concludes as he began *verſ.*13. by forſaking me they have brought this upon themſelves, and then admoniſheth them againſt the Egyptians evil manners,

Verſ.18.

ners, ſaying, What haſt thou to do in the way of Egypt to drink the waters of Sihor? When they were in danger by the Aſſyrians, they went to Egypt for help, and when by the Egyptians to the Aſſyrians, and they being both groſſe Idolaters, to pleaſe them, as they had need to uſe the help of either of them to curry the more favour, they ſet up their Idols. This the Prophet here reproveth, as one would do a man in his miſery that ſeeketh to ſuch as cannot help, but to increaſe his miſery, leaving him that alone hath power to help indeed. For by going to the waters of Sihor, or troubled waters of Nilus in Egypt, as the word ſignifieth, he meaneth their ſeeking help from Egypt, and by the river of Aſſyria next named, that is, Euphrates, ſeeking help from them, in both which they did rather againſt, then for their own good, as experience had and ſhould teach them.

Verſ.20.

For of old I have broken thy yoke, &c. Hieron. Thou haſt broken thy yoke, expounding it of the yoke of wedlock, whereby the Lord had yoked Iſrael to himſelf. But in the Hebrew it is, I have broken thy yoke, and ſo the ſenſe will be beſt, if it be underſtood of the yoke of their bondage in Egypt. The Lord hereby ſheweth, what little reaſon they had to forſake him for new gods, or in ſeeking help from Egypt or Aſſyria, becauſe he had done mightily for them in bringing them out of Egypt, yea and not only ſo, as Calvin hath it, Calvin. but when any other Nation put an heavy yoke upon their neck, as we read in Judges that many Nations did, upon their crying to him he from time to time delivered them. And thou ſaidſt, I will not tranſgreſſe. So it is in the Margin of the Hebrew Bible, but in the Text, I will not ſerve. Thus alſo in divers other places another word with ſome difference is put in the Margin, as I take it, for further explication; for take it as in the Text only, I will not ſerve, and the ſenſe will be left ambiguous, whom wilt thou not ſerve? but by the word in the Margin it is made plain, I will not tranſgreſſe by ſerving Idols, for ſo Iſrael had often done, and was brought into bondage, and cried to the Lord, at what time doubtleſſe they renounced the ſervice of Idols for a time, yet, as here followeth, they ſoon went after them again upon every high hill, and under every green tree, which were places choſen by the Heathen for Idolatry, as hath been often ſhewed.

Verſ.21.

Yet I planted thee a noble Vine. Here after plainly reproving their Idolatries, he doth it further metaphorically, ſaying, I planted thee a noble Vine, ſet forth Heb. by Sorech, of which ſee *Iſa.*5. and as there, ſo here he is accuſed for degenerating to the bringing forth of ſour grapes.

Verſ.22. Hieronym.

Though thou waſheſt thee with niter, and takeſt much ſope. Niter and Sope, or the Herb Borith, as it is in the Hebrew, and rendred by Jerom, grew in thoſe countreys in moiſt places, and was uſed by Fullers to make things ſpotted and foul white, there being the ſame virtue in it and in niter. They by reaſon of their ſins are here compared to cloaths all filthy and ſpotted, and ſo much as that theſe ſcouring and cleanſing things in a great quantity being uſed in waſhing them, they cannot be made white: ſo they that have long been accuſtomed to live in foul ſins cannot by temporal caſtigations be cleanſed through repentance, but muſt endure the burning of the fire at that day, when the fire ſhall try every mans work; ſo Jerom; 1 Cor. 11. Calv. but in this laſt how unſoundly, ſee in my Commentaries upon 1 Cor. The meaning of this place is, That the pretexts whereby the Jews coloured over their ſins, either denying them, or pretending themſelves to be holy, becauſe peculiarly choſen of God, and they had his Laws and Ordinances, and were frequent about them, or whatſoever elſe they could deviſe to ſay in their own juſtification was, but to ſeek with outward things to waſh away inward ſpots and blemiſhes, ſuch as thoſe of ſin were, to do irritum opus, to labour in vain. For ſtill their ſins remained as black brands before God, although they might be whited over before men. A thing to be conſidered by all thoſe that outface their juſt reprovers, and impudently juſtifie themſelves in their evil doings, they do but waſh a Blackmoor, to the all-ſeeing eye of God they are as black ſtill as ever; yea Note.

by

Prov.28.13. by denying and juſtifying themſelves their ſins come to be marked of God never to be forgiven, where, in confeſſing and forſaking them prevails for mercy.

Verſ.23. See thy way in the valley, know what thou haſt done; a ſwift Dromedary traverſing her wayes. Calvin, Corripiens vias ſuas; but the word ſignifieth properly running over her wayes; Hieronym. Jerom, Levis curſor explicans vias ſuas, expounding it of a Doe moſt ſwift of foot in running after the prey, which ſhe deſireth; and the like he ſaith of the wilde Aſſe running after his pleaſure, whom none will purſue to ſtay, as knowing it to be but loſt labour, in her moneth they ſhall finde her, that is, in her filthineſſe. So the Jews by denying their ſins, and their going after Baal, thus thinking to waſh away the blemiſhes thereof, are yet known very well enough to God to be ſwift as a Dromedary to go upon the way, that is, moſt earneſtly carried on after ſuch abominations, and no Prophets of the Lord by admoniſhing them can ſtay them from running wildly on in ſin, any more then ſuch as purſue a wilde Aſſe in the wilderneſſe can ſtay him. But as that Aſſe is in her moneth found in her filthineſſe, ſo after much labour and pains taken in ſeeking to reclaim the wicked, they are found ſtill in the end in the filthineſſe of their ſins. Calvin. Calvin underſtands this, as ſpoken to the Jews for denying themſelves to be Idolaters, as long as they worſhipped the true God, and acknowledged Baalim to be but leſſer gods of an inferiour rank, even as the Papiſts ſay touching their Idols, they worſhip God only, and uſe Images but as remembrances, and therefore in ſo doing they cannot be charged with ſin. Of their way in the valley he ſpeaks, becauſe there as well as upon hils, they had their Idols Temples ſet about with green Trees and placed nigh pleaſant rivers. And for the Dromedary he ſaith, That not her ſwiftneſſe is ſo much reſpected, as the violence of her luſt, when ſhe is carried thereby. Verſ.24. For the ſhe-aſſe likewiſe when ſhe is in the wilderneſs ſnuffing up the winde in her noſtrils, feeling her ſelf to be at liberty, no man purſuing after her can take her, for ſhe runs on both uncertainly and unweariably, therefore men ceaſe purſuing her, waiting for her moneth, when ſhe is biggeſt with foal, and ſo heavy to the bringing forth that ſhe cannot runne, and then they take her. So the wicked Jews were ſo without all regard of prophetical admonitions, or threatnings carried on in their ſins, that their caſe was even deſperate, nothing could now be expected, but that the time coming, when God ſhould ſee them big with ſins, their ſins being grown to the full, he ſhould then ſeiſe upon them with his judgements, there being no means now to eſcape, but through the heavy load of ſin they muſt be neceſſitated to lie under them, and periſh for ever.

Verſ.25. Withhold thy foot from being unſhod, and thy throat from thirſt. That is, either travel no more into Egypt or Aſſyria in vain for help, but ſtay at home and quietly repoſe thy ſelf upon me, or go not on in ſin and rebellion againſt God, till he being provoked deliver thee into the hands of thine enemies to be carried away Captive bare-footed and thirſty. For the firſt of theſe waies Calvin. Calvin underſtands it, yeelding a good reaſon, that by their vain travel into farre Countreys, they did tear out their ſhoes, and ſuffered much thirſt, becauſe of their going into Egypt, to drink of Sihor, and into Aſſyria he had ſpoken before verſ. 18. but by ſitting ſtill at home in obedience to God, that labour and travel, and their ſufferings thereby might be ſpared. Lyra. For the ſecond Lyra, and I ſee not but that the Prophet might herein have reſpect to either. Hieronym. Jerom is only for a myſtical ſenſe, ſaying, That when they eat the Paſſeover they were commanded to have ſhoes on their feet, and likewiſe they that were ſent out to preach, are bidden to have ſandals on their feet, and all Chriſtians to have their feet ſhod with the preparation of the Goſpel of peace, Epheſ.6. and we are bidden to come to Chriſt, and drink of the waters of life, and ſo we ſhall thirſt no more. Joh.7.37.

The myſtical ſenſe. In requiring us then to keep our feet from being unſhod, and our ſelves from thirſt, he meaneth, that we ſhould keep out of the waies of hereticks, for this were to be unſhod with ſuch ſhoes, as without which we cannot eat our Paſſeover Chriſt, or be ſanctified by the Goſpel againſt our ſpiritual enemies 1 Cor.5. corrupting and endangering our ſouls againſt whom theſe arms, and for want of true comfort by Chriſt the fountain of living water, to be in danger of periſhing by thirſt for ever. Hitherto Jerom. Junius, Refrain from ſpiritual fornication, the committing of which is ſet forth by making bare feet and thighs, Ezek.16.25. and in Idolaters there is a thirſt after it. But it may beſt of all be underſtood as relating to verſ.24, where Iſrael is compared to an Aſſe running wilde, whom man handleth not nor ſhoeth; ſo Iſrael ran wilde, eagerly carried after Idols, as an Aſſe to her pleaſure through hunger and thirſt, and by bidding, Refrain from being unſhod, he meaneth, Leave thy wilde running on in Idolatry, and give over this wicked thirſt. For the next words, Thou ſaidſt, There is no hope; Not, They are words of neglect on wicked Iſraels part; as if he had ſaid, Speak thou and other Prophets what ye will to keep me from the waies that I am going in, ye ſhall not prevail, for I am deſperately ſet upon them, come what will come of it, I will go after my lovers, and do ye think to ſtop me from ſo doing? No, ye ſhall not. Note. And thus doth the wicked mans obſtinately going on in ſin ſpeak in effect at this day. And therefore (O ye wicked) if ye be aſhamed in word to ſpeak ſo deſperately, do it not by your deeds, for thereby ye ſpeak alſo, as by a lively voice; and when ye ſpeak ſo, it makes no matter what ye ſay with your Tit.1.16. tongues, for ye do but confeſſe God with your mouths, but in your deeds ye deny him, being abominable and diſobedient, and to every good Work reprobate. Calvin comparing theſe words, There is no hope] Deſperatum eſt, with the like Iſa.57.10. where they are found fault withall for not ſaying ſo, but here for ſaying ſo, ſaith rightly, here is no repugnancy to that, for there they are reproved for not ſpeaking ſo when they ſhould, in reſpect of the evil waies that they were in, and yet had hope of eſcaping Gods judgements: here for ſaying ſo in way of ſhaking off all reproof by the Prophets, as being deſperately bent to go on in their own evil waies, notwithſtanding their earneſt and diligent ſeeking to reclaim them.

Verſ.26. As a thief is aſhamed when he is taken, or found out, ſo is Iſrael aſhamed. Here ſaith Lyra, Lyra. the Preter-tenſe is put for the Future, Shall be aſhamed, becauſe it ſhould be thus with them at the coming of the Caldees, they ſeeing then no help in the Idols, which they have ſerved and truſted in; for that it is meant ſo appears by the next words, verſ. 27. Verſ.27. wherein they are accuſed for worſhipping ſtocks and ſtones, but judgements coming, they will cry to the Lord. For then comes the time of their being aſhamed of this vanity, when they ſhall ſee no help to be in their falſe Gods, ſo that with bluſhing faces they come to ſeek help of God, upon whom before he ſaith, They turned their backs and not their faces. Calvin. Calvin yet goes upon the Preſent-tenſe, and rejects the other, becauſe even then they were as thieves found out, their Idolatry was ſo palpable, although they denied it. But how their caſe was yet like a bluſhing thieves caſe found out, whenas they were ſo impudent either to deny their nefas, or to profeſs a reſolution to go on in it ſtill, let the Reader judge, and take the ſenſe, as upon this conſideration he ſeeth cauſe.

Verſ.28. According to the number of thy Cities, ſo are thy gods. As if he had ſaid, Doſt thou in the time of thy diſtreſſe call upon me, thou haſt many patrons of thine own chuſing, every one a god, and thoughteſt not me alone ſufficient to ſave thee? Seek not to me then, but to them in whom thou haſt truſted, for they are a great many, and therefore if they unite their forces to help thee, thou maiſt well have confidence in them: ironically ſpoken, as Elijah once ſpake to the Prophets of Baal, 1 Kin.19.

Verſ.29. Why do ye ſtrive with me, doing evil againſt me? Do ye think that I will hear and ſave you in the time of danger, although ye call upon me, whilſt ye continue to be at variance with me? as indeed all doers of evil are, eſpecially that juſtifie themſelves when they are reproved, but are ſtill unreformed.

Verſ.30. I have chaſtiſed thy ſons in vain. The Lord did not only exhort by his Prophets to leave ſin, but alſo uſed another means of chaſtiſements, for Iſrael had now ſuffered grievous things, 2 King.17. but they were no whit amended, but rather grew worſe, for they killed Gods Prophets in Manaſſeh his time. But becauſe it is ſaid [your Prophets] Jerom ſaith, Falſe prophets are here meant, but moſt improbably, for they were ſo farre from killing them, that they were encouraged in their ſins by them; they are then called their Prophets, becauſe raiſed up from amongſt themſelves, men of their own Nation.

Verſ.31. Hieronym. O generation, ſee ye the Word of the Lord, Have I been a Wilderneſſe? &c. Jerom joining the firſt word here, Generation] to v.30. thus, As a lion is your generation Waſted, giveth this for the ſenſe. Your ſword hath killed your Prophets as a lion, not mine, for your ſins brought it, and therfore I call it your ſword, & I call them your Prophets, becauſe they that have been already ſlain, were Prophets of Baal, and others that have hitherto periſhed were like qualified unto you, for which I ſay your generation is waſted, that is, a ſinful and idolatrous generation. Here is nothing to be objected againſt this interpretation, but that הדור Generation is in the Hebrew made the beginning of verſ. 31. and is diſtinguiſht from this word [Waſted] eſpecially if it be read thus, Your ſword hath devoured your Prophets as a Lion, this generation is a Waſter, as ſome read it, and the Hebrew will bear משיח־הדור and then the next word אתם may be rendred, Ye, ſee the Word of the Lord, being the beginning of verſ.31. Theodor. follows Jerom. Lyra, Calvin, &c. are for the former reading and interpretation, joining Waſting to the word Lion; as if it had been ſaid, Your ſword in Manaſſeh his time was like a Lion to the Prophets; for as Joſephus ſaith, he ſlew one every day, Antiq.10.4. And this I rather aſſent unto, becauſe I reverence the Hebrew Text ſo much, that I cannot yield to the amendment of any thing therein, ſo much is in the diviſion of verſes. And this firſt word being diſtinguiſht from verſ.30. will carry a good ſenſe being thus rendred, Ye that generation, that is, not humane, much leſſe Iſraelitiſh, but Leonine, for your devouring of the Prophets ſent unto you, See the Word of the Lord, I ſay not to you Hear, no more then I would to a ſavage beaſt, for ye have no ears to hear reaſon, but ſee with your eies, for ſo even beaſts can do. Have I been a Wilderneſſe unto you? That is, Have I kept you, as it were, in a wilderneſſe barren and deſtitute of food fit for men, that ye are thus degenerated into Lions, the inhabitants of wilderneſſes. For they could not but ſee and acknowledge the great fruitfulneſſe of the Land wherein the Lord had placed them, as being called therefore a Land flowing with milk and honey. Have I been a Land of darkneſſe? Have I not ſet up the light of my word amongſt them, as well as placed them in a fruitfull Land, whereby they might ſee the vileneſs of their own doings to be humbled therefore, and to lay away all pride and ſtoutneſſe againſt God and his Prophets, Wherefore ſay my people, We are Lords, We will come no more to thee? Hebr. רדנו cometh of רד Dominari, and נ' nos for רוד or רדה is to have dominion. They are then here challenged for abuſing the fruitfulneſs of their Land, and the increaſe of their riches thereby to make them proud. And it hath reference to that which went before, Am I a Wilderneſſe to Iſrael, See this Word of the Lord? See that I am not, but contrariwiſe moſt beneficial, for whence elſe cometh it to paſſe that ye are ſo proud and ſtout, but by reaſon of your wealth, to harden your hearts againſt me, ſaying, We will come no more to thee? that is, we will not obey thee, ſay and do what thou wilt, We are Lords, neither do we acknowledge any Lord over us? much like to that Pſal.12. Who is Lord over us? Thus the ſenſe is plain, yet ſome trouble it by ſeeking another derivation of the word from ירד to deſcend, reading it, We are gone down, that is, we are in miſery, and can finde no help, therefore we deſpair of help from thee, and will not ſeek thee any more. And ſome, We are gone ſo from thee after our own wils, as that it is vain for thee to ſpeak to us, for although thou doſt, we will not come or be obedient to thee. I reſt in the firſt.

Verſ.32. Will a young Woman forget her ornaments? &c. yet my people have forgotten me. Here their ſin in forſaking the Lord, who was as an husband unto them, and therefore above all to be loved, is further to be aggravated by a compariſon taken from a bride, ſhe will neglect nothing in the day of her marriage, which may adorn her and make her the more amiable to the bridegroom: but Iſrael whom God had taken to wife, wanting all beauty to move him thereunto, although all her happineſs ſtood in being acceptable to the Lord, forgat to deck and adorn her ſelf for him daies without number, by keeping her ſelf pure and holy, being contrariwiſe polluted by baſe luſts carrying her after falſe gods.

Verſ.33. Why trimmeſt thou thy Wayes to ſeek love? Calvin, Cur bonificas, and ſo the Hebrew word ſignifieth, Why makeſt thou good, or fair, or pleaſant thy waies? meaning, after the manner of an harlot tireſt thy ſelf for adulterous love to Idols. Therefore thou haſt alſo taught evil Women (for it is a feminine) thy Wayes; Thus he ſtill aggravates their wickedneſs, making the Church of the Jews, as a patern of whoriſh immodeſty in uſing all manner of allurements to entice young men unto her, ſo that other Nations, Egyptians and Aſſyrians might learn of her to be yet more wicked, for which he nameth them, Verſ. 36.

Verſ.34. In thy skirts is found the bloud of poor innocents, Heb. in thy Wings. But skirts are meant, viz. of their garments that were ſprinkled therewith when they ſlew them, ſo that there needed no ſecret ſearch, as in the next words, to finde it out לא במחתרת non in ſuffoſſione, as Calvin renders it, and the word ſignifies digging thorow, and he thinks it an alluding to *Exod.*22.2. If a thief be taken digging thorow a Wall, that is, ſecretly in the dark, and the meaning to be, Thou didſt ſhed innocent bloud not in ſecret, as ſuch a thief met with in the inſtant hath his bloud ſhed in the dark, but the bloud ſhed by thee Was upon all theſe, that is, upon all the Prophets boldly and openly reproving thy ſins, ſo that all men might and did ſee thy ſavage bloud-thirſtineſs. For he ſeemeth here to ſpeak again by way of aggravation of their murthering of the Prophets ſent to turn them from their ſins briefly touched upon *ver.*30. R.Salomon, Not in digging thorow like a thief, Exod.22. Haſt thou found the Prophets whoſe innocent bloud thou haſt ſhed, but in all the things before remembred, reproving and ſeeking to reclaim thee by aggravating thy wickedneſſes againſt thee? and this he meaneth by ſaying, In all theſe. And this is moſt genuine, to expreſſe which the Vulgar Latine hath it, In all theſe, Which I have before remembred. Calvin. R.Solomon.

Verſ.36. Thou ſhalt be aſhamed of Egypt, as thou haſt been of Aſſyria. He had taxed them before for going to Egypt and Aſſyria, *ver.*18. and not keeping at home, repoſing their whole truſt in the Lord. Now he repeats the ſame again in other words. Why runneſt thou up and down to change thy Wayes? Sometime being in danger by Iſrael and Syria ſeeking to Aſhur, as Ahaz did, and ſometime being in danger by Aſſyria, to ſeek to Egypt, as it is generally conceived that Jehoiakim and Zedekiah did, which made them rebel againſt the King of Babylon. But they reaped nothing but confuſion hereby: for Manaſſeh was carried captive into Babylon, and when Nebuchadnezzar came againſt them, the Egyptians ſtood them in no ſtead to ſave them, although they ſometime came out with an Army to help them, and the Caldees departed. Ier.37.5.

Verſ.37. Thou ſhalt go forth from him, and thy hands upon thy head. Heb. מאת זה by Calvin rendred, for this, that is, becauſe of this thy wicked deſerting of me, and ſeeking help from Idolaters, thou ſhalt go into Captivity full of ſorrow, a ſign whereof is going with hands laid upon the head, as Thamar being deflowred by Ammon is ſaid to have done. 2 Sam.13.

CHAP. III.

Verſ.1. THey ſay, If a man putteth away his wife, and ſhe becomes another mans, &c. Having threatned them with Gods judgements for their Idolatry, now he ſeeketh to move them to repentance, by ſhewing that notwithſtanding that their foul ſinne, he would be ready to do by the Church of the Jews, his wife, as no man (themſelves being Judges) would do by his. For he would receive her to grace and favour again: For (they ſay) Hebrew is לאמור dicendo, which ſheweth it to cohere with *Chap.*2.37. therefore it is rather to be referred to the Lord threatning them, and now ſaying or telling how they might under his protection be ſafe from their enemies, Egyptians and Aſſyrians: So Vatablus and Hebræi, Hieron. Vulgò dicitur; ſome ſupplying the word dicitur, dicendo dicitur, and this is moſt followed, and therefore I have expounded it accordingly.

Verſ.2. In the wayes thou ſatteſt for them, as the Arabian in the wilderneſſe. That is, Thou waitedſt for an opportunity to idolize, as a thief, for ſuch were the Arabians lurking in the wilderneſs, lurking for a prey, which ſhewed them that were not only by ſeducement carried away, but made Idolatry their trade, as if having gotten more gods to protect them, they had gained a great booty, and ſhould now be more ſafe and ſecure.

Verſ.3. Therefore the ſhowers have been withholden, and there hath been no latter rain, and thou haſt had an whores forehead. That is, Thou haſt been judged according to the threatning *Deut.*28. That the heavens ſhould be as iron, &c. wherein Lyra ſaith, he hath reference to the great drought of idolatrous Ahabs time, Calvin to ſome great judgement of drought not mentioned; both yet agreeing in this, that it is ſpoken in way of aggravating the Idolatry of Judah more, who (notwithſtanding this, of which they could not but be ſenſible that it came for Idolatry, and perſecuting the ſervants of God, who oppoſed this foul ſin) went on ſtill impudently like a brazen faced harlot, who is daunted or made to bluſh for ſhame by nothing that can be done unto her. And he ſpeaks of the later rain in particular, becauſe it was for them moſt neceſſary, being a rain that commonly came a little before harveſt to make the corn in better caſe againſt the time of reaping, which otherwiſe in that hot countrey would have been more dry and husky and unprofitable. Lyra. Calv.

Verſ.24. Wilt thou not from this time cry unto me, thou art my father, &c. Vulg. Ergo amodo voca me (pater mi) therefore from henceforth call me father, Hebr. Calleſt thou me not from this time my father? That is, wilt thou not be moved by ſo great judgements to return again unto me, as thy only God and father? And the leader of thy youth, that is, thy husband in time of youth, when love betwixt man and wife, and deſire of either to other is greateſt. It is the voice of a moſt kinde husband to his moſt unkinde wife, that would fain have her reconcile her ſelf to him again.

Verſ.5. Will he reſerve his anger for ever? Theſe are the words of the Prophet to move her the more to ſay, as ſhe is bidden *verſ.*4. thou haſt not to do with an unplacable God, if there were in thee but a relenting heart, his anger againſt thee would ſoon be gone: Thou haſt ſpoken and done evil things as thou couldeſt, that is, although thou haſt done all the evil that thou couldeſt, yet God is placable, if now thou wilt return, Hebr. and Vulg. And thou couldſt, that is, ſaith Lyra, by Gods permiſſion, or rather, and thou couldſt finde in thy heart to do ſo againſt me thy moſt loving husband, all this notwithſtanding I am ready to receive thee. And this is enough to make the heart of any ſinner to melt, that God is ſo loving and ready to be reconciled, and neither harden himſelf againſt him, as no woman will do that hath been notorious againſt her husband being ſo kinde, nor deſpair of grace, as Cain did. Note.

Verſ.6. From *verſ.*6. to 12. he compareth Iſrael and Judah, that is, the two Kingdoms together, one of which, that is, Iſrael was already divorced for her Idolatry, when ſhe was delivered into the hands of the King of Aſſyria in Hezekiah his time; then the other, that is, Judah, feigned a turning to the Lord from Idols when Hezekiah brake them all down, but the people turned not truly, for which it is ſaid, That Iſrael was more juſtified then Judah. Note. To make a ſhew of zeal and piety, but not to be zealous againſt evil indeed, is worſe then to be openly wicked.

Verſ.12. Proclaim theſe words towards the north. Having hitherto ſhewed the greatneſs of the ſinne of the Kingdom of Judah, condemning her more then Iſrael, becauſe ſhe would not take warning by the judgements already come upon Iſrael, now he is bidden to cry aloud towards that Countrey, into which Iſrael was carried captive, viz. Aſſyria, which lay north, although they were carried more eaſtward into Perſia, yet the north muſt be lookt at, as the Countrey that carried them. Now towards them muſt he cry, not that they could hear him, but that the men of Judah might hear and be further moved to repentance, and in time this Prophecie might be brought to their hearing, and they might alſo be ſtirred up hereby. Return, and I will not cauſe mine Hieronym. anger to fall upon you, Jerom, Non firmabo iram meam in vos, I will not ſettle mine anger upon you, which is indeed the very meaning. For his anger had already come upon them to the uttermoſt, but if they would yet turn, it ſhould not continue, he would not go on to preſſe them herewith for ever, as the next words plainly ſhew.

Verſ.13. Only acknowledge thine iniquity, &c. and that thou haſt ſcattered thy wayes to ſtrangers, &c. Hebr. Only know, that is, conſider the foulneſs of it, and juſtifie not thy ſelf, but confeſſe it and turn therefrom, as *v.*14. By her ſcattering of her waies to ſtrangers, he meaneth after the manner of harlots, that go ſometime to one place and ſometime to another to allure to their whoriſh love, not a few, but ſo many as they can, ſo that Judah had ſought to increaſe her ſuperſtitions and idolatries, taking for gods thoſe that ſhe could find in any Countrey. And hereby ſhe muſt know that her ſin was yet more aggravated, that ſhe had not obeyed the voice of the Lord, having his word to inſtruct and urge her to worſhip and ſerve him only, ſhe wandred thus notwithſtanding.

Verſ.14. Turn, ye rebellious children, for the Lord is your husband. To turn he exhorted them *verſ.*12. now he repeats the ſame again, that his kindeneſſe might yet more appear more then of any other husband in the world, after a divorce, and his wife being married to another man. But he inforceth his exhortation here by a new argument: ſome render the word, Hath ruled over thee; ſome, Thou haſt been irkſome to the Lord, as Calvin ſheweth, Calvin. but it is beſt rendred, Thy husband] hath ruled over thee, as a loving husband. And I will take you one of a City, and two of a family, and bring you to Zion. That is, if ye turn, although but one or two amongſt a great many, all the reſt hardening their hearts by unbelief. And in ſaying ſo he propheſieth of that which came to paſſe under the Goſpel, there were but a very few in compariſon of that whole Nation that were converted. Note. Yet here is incouragement to a few turning, if but one or two in a City or Town, they ſhall be accepted of nevertheleſſe, according to that, Fear not little flock, it is your Fathers will to give you the Kingdom, Joh.10.28. And it is ſtill ſo at this day, they are very few amongſt a multitude that be true converts in any Town or City, although all profeſſe the Chriſtian Religion, the moſt ſerving ſtill either the Idol of profit by covetouſneſs, or of pleaſure by ſenſual living, or truſting to lamps without oil, or by itching ears turned away from hearing lawful Preachers, to ignorant and impudent phantaſticks. And I will bring you to Zion, that is, to the Congregation of the faithfull, which is called Zion, Heb. 12. 22. And I will give you Paſtors] Theſe were the Apoſtles and apoſtolick men ſent out to preach the Goſpel.

Verſ.15. They ſhall ſay no more, The Ark of the Covenant, &c. This is a Prophecie of the abolition of the legal ſervice, which was before the Ark, ſtanding in divers rites preſcribed under the Law, but under the Goſpel there is no more the Ark, which was of old made for divine Worſhip, neither ſhall any other be made in ſtead thereof, which is intimated in theſe words, And it ſhall not be done any more, that is, according to that which was done under the Law by Joh.4.23. adoring God towards any place, as moſt holy, by offering Incenſe or Sacrifice, or by Prieſts clad in garments made of purpoſe, but the worſhipping of God now ſhall be only in ſpirit and in truth, reſort being made to places dedicated to Gods worſhip, not for any holineſs in them more then in others, to make our ſervice the more acceptable to God, but only in reſpect of their ſeparation for orders ſake, and to avoid confuſion, from prophane or common uſe, to an holy, of the faithfuls coming together there about the duties of Note. piety. So that neither can the practice of the Formaliſts of late in adoring towards the Lords-Table, or of injoining peculiar garments in the publick Miniſtration be juſtified: or of the Separatiſts that will have meetings rather in private houſes to publick worſhip, then in ſuch as have been anciently ſet apart for this end and purpoſe. And by this we ſee a juſt cauſe not only of our ſeparating from the Church of Rome, by a Reformation in Doctrine, but even in outward Rites and Ceremonies; and alſo, why a further Reformation hath been of late made by aboliſhing the Rites preſcribed in the Book of Common-Praier, although I will not ſay ſo touching the Praiers themſelves, leaving every Miniſter to the immediate guidance of the Spirit in his publick praiers, and not tying the moſt unable to ſome forms that may be without all exceptions. And Calvin himſelf in ſtead of juſtifying this, condemneth it, and yields divers ſolid reaſons againſt it.

Verſ.17. At that time they ſhall call Jeruſalem the throne of the Lord, and all nations ſhall be gathered unto it, &c. That is, the Church ſet forth under the name of Jeruſalem, ſhall be called The Kingdom of heaven, or of God, as it is oftentimes by our Lord, and people of all Countries ſhall be converted to the faith, and See the like *Iſa.*2. ſo made one though farre diſtant in place with the Church, which was firſt gathered at Jeruſalem, bearing therefore the name of that City, and being as it were the mother of the reſt.

Verſ.18. At that day the houſe of Judah ſhall walk with the houſe of Iſrael, and they ſhall come together from the north into the Land, &c. Hitherto all things are plain, and evidently ſhewed to pertain to the time of the Goſpel, but how doth this agree? Nay is it not rather neceſſarily to be underſtood of the time Calv. of their return from the Babyloniſh Captivity? Calvin indeed underſtands both this and *verſ.*16,17. ſo, as if he had ſaid, when upon their humiliation and converſion from Idolatry the houſe of Judah and Iſrael ſhould be brought home again, they of Judah ſhould not boaſt of the Ark being amongſt them any more, as challenging to themſelves a preeminence for it over them of Iſrael, as formerly they had done, being alwaies full of enmity and quarrels one againſt another, till the time of their carrying away into Captivity, but all jointly ſhould call Jeruſalem the throne of the Lord, joining their forces together to build and make that City glorious again, as the ſeat of the great King of the whole world. And the Nations, that is, the ten Tribes ſhould be gathered to it, there to ſerve the Lord again, as before their diviſion into two Kingdoms, the ten Tribes being called here all Nations, becauſe ſo many in compariſon of the Nation of the Jews. Then they ſhall come out of the north, whither ſoever they have been by their northern enemies carried away, lovingly together to their own countrey as one people, and never be un- Lyra. kindely divided any more, as they had been. Thus alſo ſaith Lyra; ſome Hebrews expound it, ſaying, That it was accordingly fulfilled at their return ſo famous under Cyrus King of Perſia, when they had no Ark of the Covenant R.Solomon. any more. But R.Solomon of that which ſhall be done at the coming of the Meſſiah, whom they ſtill ſo obſtinately expect. But he confuteth that expoſition of thoſe Hebrews, 1. Becauſe Jeruſalem could never have ſo glorious a name as the throne of the Lord given unto her after their return, forſomuch as ſhe was ſometime under the Perſian, ſometime the Grecian, ſometime the Egyptian and Syrian, and ſometime the Roman, and never grew up to a free Kingdom any more, or if it did in Prince Alexanders daies, who intituled himſelf King, when he was Prince and High-Prieſt, it was but for a ſhort time, and ſo troubleſome and declining from the firſt time that he began to do ſo (as I have ſhewed in my Continuation of the ſacred Hiſtory) that it is not worthy for this of ſo high a name. 2. Becauſe it is ſaid, All Nations ſhall come unto her, which was not then fulfilled, and that expounding of all Nations, of the ten Tribes, is no way juſtifiable, forſomuch as not they, but Heathen Nations, which never knew God before, are every where meant thereby. Neither doth it help, which Calvin bringeth for further confirmation, That by all Nations the ten Tribes are meant, becauſe it is ſaid, And they ſhall no more walk after the imagination of their evil hearts; which cannot well be underſtood of the Gentiles, for they alwaies did ſo, but of Iſrael who was at the firſt better taught, but for a time had ſo degenerated, but now ſhould do ſo no more. For it is ſpoken both of Jews, Iſraelites and Gentiles altogether, it being meant that after the receiving of the Chriſtian faith, they ſhould degenerate no more into heatheniſh Idolatry, but that amongſt them the true faith ſhould be upheld, though not alwayes apparently, to the worlds end; for all Nations ſhall never be broken off after their inſertion into the true Olive, as the natural branches, the Jews, for their infidelity were. And from this clauſe it is evinced, that the ten Tribes are not meant by all Nations, except ſome elect ones of them imbracing the faith of Chriſt, becauſe they that returned from Captivity after that, walked more abominably in reſpect of all other wickedneſs, except Idolatry, then before, eſpecially of their malice againſt Chriſt and his Miniſters, for which they were by the Romans moſt terribly waſted, afflicted and deſtroyed ſo as they never were before, from the time of their Land lying deſolate, being never permitted to inhabit it, or to build their City Jeruſalem any more; but if any lived there ſince, they lived but as vaſſals and ſlaves to the Turk. And to underſtand by all Nations the ten Tribes, is nothing agreeable to that which was ſaid before of them, Two of a tribe and one of a city, for how could he in ſpeaking of ſo few call them all Nations, by a name implying innumerable multitudes? Neither indeed did the ten Tribes then come to Jeruſalem, but they of Judah and Benjamin only beſides Levites, unleſſe ſome haply of other Tribes living mixt amongſt them, ſince the dayes of Hezekiah and Joſiah for pieties ſake, were at the time of Judahs Captivity carried away together, and ſo at the time of liberty returned together. But this being enough, if not to the expence of overmany words too much confuted, let us ſee if the expounding of it as fulfilled under the Goſpel, may be juſtified, how did Judah then walk with Iſrael to Jeruſalem? or the Land given to their fathers? Lyra anſwereth well, This was done when ſome of the Kingdom of Judah, as Paul of the Tribe of Benjamin, and other Apoſtles of the Tribe of Judah, going forth to preach the Goſpel amongſt the Heathen, met with ſome of Iſrael, though but rarely, who hearkned to their teaching, who were by their converſion taken as companions with them into the promiſed Land of everlaſting bleſſedneſs, being called the Land promiſed to their fathers, becauſe that of Canaan was a type thereof. And to this in the ſubſtance of it agree they that are for the return out of Captivity, as literally meant; but they conſent, that all this is ſpiritually to be applied to the time of the Goſpel, both Theodoret, Hugo, Thomas and Calvin.

Lyra.

Verſ.19. But I ſaid, How ſhall I put thee among the children, and give thee a goodly heritage of the hoſts of the Nations? He had ſaid before *verſ.*17. that all Nations ſhould be gathered together to Jeruſalem, which ſhould then by them all be accounted the Throne or Kingdom of the Lord, and *verſ.*18. he ſaith, That Judah together with Iſrael ſhould walk to the promiſed Land, that is, be alſo converted to the faith of Chriſt, and ſo become members of the Church militant here, and afterwards of the Church triumphant in heaven; for the Church both militant and triumphant is ſet forth by the name Jeruſalem, becauſe from thence they went out that preached the Goſpel, and there a Church was firſt gathered. Now he demands by way of admiration, how this ſhould be, that a people ſo rebellious, and for their rebellion caſt off, ſhould thus be dealt withall as children, to have ſo goodly an inheritance:

and he cals it, The pleaſant heritage of the nations hoſts, becauſe the Nation of the Jews rejecting the Lords gracious offer at the firſt to bring them into this inheritance, when the Gentiles joyfully accepted of the offer. And well may the Gentiles be ſet forth by this name, The hoſts of the Nations, for their great Revel.7. multitudes, and to denote the condition of Chriſtians, they are a Militia fighting againſt ſinne, the world, fleſh and devil, Epheſ.6.12. and the Kingdom of Chriſt their inheritance, because the Nation of the Jews generally refuſing Theodor. it, the Gentiles thankfully took it. Others bring other Expoſitions, Septuagint. By hoſts of the Nations underſtanding the Angels Guardians of the Nations, Theod. but moſt improbably. Some, Of the mighty God of the Gentiles, who is the Hieronym. Lord of hoſts. Some, Of the fortitude of the moſt ſtrong one of the Gentiles; but herein they go from the ſignification of the words; wherefore rejecting all other Expoſitions, I reſt in this, and herein I differ not from Jerom, expounding this heritage of the Church, as I have done, calling it the Land of the Church made glorious by the great multitudes of believers. And I ſaid, Thou ſhalt call me, my Father; That is, I have deviſed a way, how that which I have ſpoken of, ſeeming in mans reaſon impoſſible to be done, ſhall be effected, thou alſo ſhalt be converted and acknowledge me, that is, Chriſt, thy Father, as it is ſaid of me, Iſa.9.6. The mighty God, the everlaſting Father, whereby he giveth us to underſtand, That the Nation of the Jews ſhall be converted, and not ever continue in their infidelity, as the Apoſtle expounds Prophecies of them, Rom. 11.

Verſ.20. As a wife that treacherouſly departeth from her husband. Here the Lord renewteth his aggravation of their ſins, according to *verſ.*1. that his mercy might be the more magnified, when he ſhould receive ſo treacherous a wife again.

Verſ.21. A voice was heard upon the high places, weeping, ſupplications of the children of Iſrael. Here the Lord leaveth complaining any further of the Jews, and looking upon them as coming to him by faith and repentance, breaks out into theſe words, A voice heard in the high places] So that theſe words are a Prophecie of the ſorrow, wherewith they ſhall be taken, when once their eyes ſhall be opened to ſee that Jeſus whom they deſpiſed and perſecuted, and continued ſo long in malice againſt, is the Chriſt, as is alſo further ſet forth
*Zech.*12.9. ſomething like to which was done by thoſe Jews that were firſt Act.2.37. converted by Peter: Thus alſo Junius, underſtanding by this voice of weeping Junius. ſupplication, their uttering of the words following *verſ.*21, 22, &c. And this plainly appears to be the ſenſe, from their ſaying, We come to thee, for thou art the Lord our God. And their lifting up of their voice upon the high places is ſpoken of in reference to their Land, wherein were many high places, hils and mountains, which were abuſed to Idolatry; now to ſhew that they ſhould repent of theſe abominations, it is thus ſpoken, as if he had ſaid, the voice of them that in times paſt worſhipped in theſe places contrary to Gods expreſſe Hieronym. commandment, lamenting their former ſins. Thus alſo Jerom rendring it, A voice of weeping ſupplication, becauſe they have perverted their wayes, taking this for the cauſe of their weeping, as it is in all that be godly-ſorrowfull, and the Hebrew will bear it, for כי ſignifies moſt properly, becauſe, and to Jerom conſenteth
Note. Theodoret, Rabanus, Hugo. And theſe words, A voice is heard], ſhew Gods readineſs to hear penitent ſinners ſo ſoon as they begin to turn to him, even before they ſpeak, as the father of the Prodigal met him returning home Calv. unto him, and imbraced him before he ſpake. Calvin expounds it of that which was then done, the Iſraelites weeping and crying when they were by the Aſſyrians taken and carried away captive, as if this were propounded to the Jews to move them to repentance. Lyra underſtands it of the Jews in ſo extream miſery by the Romans when they were deſtroyed together with their City in that ſtupendious manner. Some, of the Jews carried into Babylon, but all farre wide from the meaning, becauſe the argument now in hand from ver. 17, 18, &c. is manifeſtly of things to be done under the Goſpel, as may appear to any intelligent Reader by the premiſſes. The Septuagint for theſe words, A voice was heard in the high places, hath theſe, A voice heard in labiis, lips, as if it were meant, ſounding aloud by the opening of their lips, and this the Hebrew שפתים will bear, if the prick above ש be put in the left horn, but above the right, as we now have it, High places are ſignified by the ſame word. Lyra.

Verſ.22. Return ye backſliding children, and I will heal, &c. Here the Lord ſheweth by what means they ſhould be converted under the Goſpel. Chriſt ſhould come promiſing to heal the ſores and ſickneſſes of their ſouls, that is, their ſins, as he did *Luk.*4.18. *Matth.*11.28. and where he ſets forth himſelf as a Phyſician, ſaying, The whole needs not the Phyſician but the ſick. For hereupon great multitudes followed, and he healed their ſickneſſes bodily, and many of them withall had their ſouls healed by being converted; and many more when his Apoſtles after his departure preached with ſuch ſucceſs, that at one Sermon three thouſand were converted, then the voice was heard here propheſied of, We come unto thee, for thou art the Lord our God, &c. To the end of the Chapter. For then the converted amongſt the Jews ſpake to this effect, and confeſſed their ſins, as here followeth, beginning at John Baptiſts preaching, *Matth.*3. where it is ſaid, They came to Johns Baptiſm confeſſing their ſins; and *Act.*17. many more did the like, and when the time before-ſpoken of, their re-inſertion into the true Olive ſhall come, ſuch confeſſions ſhall be more generally and notably made by the whole Nation. And hereunto agreeth Jerom, although others be for times long before at their return from the Captivity of Babylon.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ.1. If thou returneſt (O Iſrael) ſaith the Lord, Return to me. Becauſe they were brought in Chap. 3.23. profeſſing their penitency, and turning to the Lord; now he encourageth them in their doing thus, and cals upon them to do it in ſincerity, becauſe amongſt them that turn to the Chriſtian profeſſion there be many hypocrites, who think to be accepted of for their outward ſhew, although they go on ſtill in their ſins. Againſt this he exhorteth them to ſhew their turning to be unfeigned, by their putting away of all their abominations, which whoſo doth not, his turning is nothing elſe but hypocriſie. But whoſo thus turneth ſhall never be moved, he reſts upon the Lord and his grace in Chriſt, which ſhall be as a Rock unto him, ſo that let the winds blow, the rain fall and the waves beat, yet he fals not. Matth.7.24.

Verſ.2. And thou ſhalt ſwear, The Lord liveth in truth, &c. Here ſwearing is put for the whole worſhip of God, of which it is a part, becauſe in ſwearing his name is called upon, and faith in God is ſhewed, that he both heareth and hath power to take revenge upon him that preſumes to ſwear falſly by him, yea and that he cannot for his honour but do it, ſeeing otherwiſe he ſhould expoſe himſelf to the calumny of evil tongues, which would be ready to ſay, either he is ſo high in heaven above, that he heareth not, or he cares not for truth or falſhood. Therefore ſwearing, The Lord liveth, if it be in truth, argueth one that is truly faithfull, believing all the things before-ſpoken of, and whatſoever elſe God hath ſet forth in his holy Word, and therefore living and doing accordingly. If any man ſweareth thus, but doth not believe thus to do as God requireth, he ſweareth not in truth, but in abominable hypocriſie, forſomuch as he makes a ſhew of a true believer, but in his heart is not. And becauſe that in judgement men ſhew themſelves whether they ſwear thus or no, by each ones dealing juſtly and righteouſly with his neighbour, or contrariwiſe, it is added, in judgement and righteouſneſſe. And to denote the time to which this is moſt properly to be referred, he ſaith further, The Gentiles ſhall bleſſe themſelves in him; a like paſſage to which is *Iſa.*65.16. in ſpeaking of the times of the Goſpel. Yet I do not hold that this, or that which went before *Chap.3.22,23,&c.* doth ſo properly belong to the time of the Goſpel, but that it was uſeful for Iſrael then to teach them how to demean themſelves towards the Lord, whom they had ſo greatly provoked, both by confeſſing and profeſſing a ſerious return, that Gods judgements already ſent might be removed, and his judgements threatned further to come, prevented. And for Iſrael, it was neceſſary that ſerious and hearty turning in truth ſhould be preſſed unto them, becauſe they had many times turned only feignedly, Note. for turning to the doing of good duties outwardly, and ſometimes putting away Baalim, thinking to be highly accepted of, and to enjoy peace. And this is alſo our caſe in England, for which we have need to hearken to, and put this precept in practice, before that Gods judgements come as a floud upon us, and there will be no ſtopping of the courſe of them till we be quite deſtroyed.

Verſ.3. Break up your fallow ground, and ſow not amongſt thorns. Circumciſe your ſelves. Having propheſied of the converſion of the Jews and calling of the Gentiles, from *verſ.*12. *Chap.*3. hitherto, now he returns again to his former Prophecy of judgements to come from the North, exhorting them by true repentance to prevent them. One of the evil grounds upon which the ſower ſoweth good ſeed, *Matth.*13. is ſaid to be thorny, ſetting forth men worldly-minded and covetous, to the end therefore that they might not be hindred by worldly cares from profiting by his heavenly inſtructions, he bids them not to have ſuch hearts, but to break them by contrition for their ſins paſt, for thus the heart is made capable of good inſtruction to profit thereby, even as the fallow hard ground before overgrown with thorns, when they are ſtubbed up, and it is broken with the plough to bring forth good ſeed ſown thereupon with plentifull encreaſe. And he meaneth not only the evil quality of covetouſneſs, but alſo all vices accompanying it, injuſtice, fraud, lying, oppreſſion, and the neglect of divine duties for mammon.

Verſ.4 And circumciſe, Take away the foreskin of your hearts. Here he ſheweth more plainly what he meant by breaking up their fallow ground, viz. the ground of their hearts, hardened in ſinne through a cuſtom of ſinning like ground lying long unplowed. For as the ground is cut with the plough, ſo was the foreskin with a ſharp knife, for a ſign of the Covenant betwixt God and Abraham. But when this was commanded to be done without fail from time to time, it was not the Lords meaning that they ſhould reſt herein, as if Circumciſion of the fleſh had been preſcribed for any complacency that God had therein, but that by it as by a figure they might be ſtirred up to circumciſe their hearts, and caſt away the foreskins of them, that is, not only the vices before-mentioned, but alſo all other evils firſt conceived within, and then coming out by actual adultery, murder, theft, *&c. Matth.*15.19. of which ſee before *Deut.*10. and after *Rom.*2.29. And for the heart circumciſion he calleth, and that unto the Lord, intimating, that in their circumciſion before men, they gloried, as being for this more excellent then other Nations; but if they would become ſuch indeed, as was intended by God, when he commanded circumciſion to them, that is, circumciſed in heart by putting away their evil doings, as is further explained by the laſt words of this verſe, then they ſhould be excellent in Gods eſteem, and recover his favour, ſo that the fire of his wrath ſhould not break forth againſt them, as otherwiſe it ſhould do.

Verſ.5. Blow the trumpet, Set up a ſtandard towards Zion, Gather your ſelves into defenced Cities. Here he doth ironically bid them ſtand upon their guard againſt the

Verſ.6, 7.

the evil that was coming, as if they were able to defend themſelves againſt it, as one who knew that his former exhortation to circumciſe themſelves would not take effect with them. But do what they could by their warlike preparations to ſave themſelves, he threatneth, That evil ſhould come out of the North, the King of Babylon like a roaring and devouring Lion, whom they ſhould not be able to reſiſt, no more then other beaſts the Lion, verſ.6,7,&c. But it may be ſaid, Why are they bidden to circumciſe themſelves in heart? who can do this but God only? Anſw. He meaneth, That they ſhould ſeek it of God by praying for his grace that they might be inabled to this work, and not reſiſt the motions of his Spirit ſtirring them up in the preaching of his word hereunto.

Verſ.10.

Ah Lord God, thou haſt greatly deceived this people, ſaying, Ye ſhall have peace. Having propheſied how cruelly they ſhould be deſtroyed, now he ſpeaks to the Lord, by whoſe juſt judgement it ſhould thus happen unto them, as they would doubtleſs ſay, when they ſhould be under this dreadful judgement by the Caldees. For there were falſe prophets amongſt them, that cried Peace, peace, whom they took rather to be the Prophets of the Lord then Jeremiah, becauſe he ſpake harſhly to them, and they flatteringly to curry favour with them. The meaning then is, It grieveth me (O Lord) to think that when the evils threatned come upon this people, they ſhould lay the fault upon thee, as if thou hadſt dealt otherwiſe with them then thou promiſedſt them by the Prophets, forſomuch as ſome coming in thy name, and by thee permitted ſo to do, made them ſuch fair promiſes. But they were worthy indeed for their obſtinate going on in ſinne againſt the true Prophets admonitions to be ſo deceived. And this he ſpeaks to the Lord, becauſe they would not hear nor believe him giving them warning againſt ſuch flattering falſe prophets. To this effect alſo Calvin, but Jerom underſtands it as ſpoken by Jeremiah, looking back to the promiſes of Chap. 3.12,13,&c. which he not underſtanding to be of times to come ſo long after, and now being bidden to propheſie of preſent deſtruction to Judah; and therefore not ſeeing how thoſe promiſes could be true, he crieth out, Ah Lord thou haſt deceived, &c. that is, haſt made me, by propounding ſuch gracious promiſes of peace and proſperity, to deceive them. To Jerom ſubſcribeth Rabanus and Thomas Aquinas. For that of Calvin ſtands Lyra, Theodoret, Hugo, Caldee Paraphraſt, I cannot think with Jerom, that Jeremy knew not that his former Prophecie of ſo great good pertained to times to come long after, this of deſtruction to the times at hand: for the Spirit, whereby he propheſied doubtleſs enlightened him ſo, that he knew to what time each prophecie did pertain, or elſe he ſhould have been like heathen Prophets caſt as it were into an exſtaſie by the devil, as then propheſying they themſelves knew not what, not they, but the devil ſpeaking in them; whereas God ſpake not in his Prophets, uſing their tongues only as his organs, but by them, firſt telling them what they ſhould ſay, and to what end, and then ſpeaking by their Miniſtry. Wherefore I conclude, as I began, it is ſaid, The Lord greatly deceived them, becauſe they thought that which was ſpoken by falſe prophets in his name, to come from the Lord, unleſs it ſhall ſeem beſt to follow Jerom in another way, which he toucheth upon alſo, viz. that they were deceived, as it were, by the Lord, becauſe he promiſing good unto them, *Cha.*3. was by them underſtood, as abſolutely promiſing it, whereas he did it only conditionally upon their conſenting together to turn to him.

Calvin.
Hieronym.

Verſ.11.

A dry winde upon the high places of the deſerts, not to purge, nor to fanne, a fuller winde then thoſe ſhall come to me. Hereby is meant, that the judgements of God by the Caldees coming by the ſword, ſpoken of *verſ.*10. ſhall alſo be as a mighty ſtrong winde, for which it is ſaid to come by the high places of the wilderneſs, being advantaged by the height of the place, and the openneſs of it, there being no trees to break the force of it, The daughter of my people, that is, Judah, not to purge, &c. as ſome winds are made uſe of in winnowing of corn, the chaff being thereby blown from it, A fuller winde then thoſe, that is, more impetuous, bearing down all things, Shall come to me] They be the words of the Lord, and he meaneth, that this winde ſhall come at his call; for Nebuchadnezzar, although moſt proud, imputing all his Conqueſts to himſelf, was but the Lords ſervant to execute his judgements, as he is elſwhere called, and is here intimated by the words added, And I will ſpeak judgments to them, that is, I will ſpeak no more by my Prophets, but by my judgments carrying them away, as by a whirlwinde, into Babylon. By the winde purging the floor he meaneth lighter chaſtiſements, whereby he had ſought to amend them before, but this winde of the North blowing more full ſhould carry chaff and corn, bad and good all away.

Verſ.13. He ſhall come up as clouds, his chariots ſhall be as [illegible]hirlwinde. Now he ſpeaks more plainly, whom he meant by the winde befo[illegible]-ſpoken of, viz. the King of Babylon, compared for his ſwiftneſs in coming, to the light clouds without rain, fleeing in the air; and for his violent bearing down of all things, to a whirlwinde; and hereupon he crieth, Woe to us we are undone, that hereby they might be moved to repentance, as he exhorteth *verſ.*14. Waſh thy ſelf (O Jeruſalem,) as *Iſa.*1.16. Waſh you, make you clean.

Verſ.15. A voice is heard from Dan, and publiſheth affliction from Ephraim. Vulgar Latine, The Idol from Ephraim, which Jerom expoundeth of Bel the Babylonians god, brought with them when they came againſt the Jews: Some, of Nebuchadnezzar their King, who would be worſhipped as a god. But the word עון here uſed, ſignifieth nothing but iniquity, or the puniſhment thereof; and according to this ſenſe it is meant, that their puniſhment for ſinne ſhould firſt begin at Dan, which was furtheſt North, and then come on to Ephraim which was nearer to Jeruſalem. And from theſe places ſhould ſome flee to Jeruſalem, to bring theſe evil tidings with crying and lamentation.

Verſ.16. Remember to the Gentiles, behold publiſh againſt Jeruſalem that watchers come. Hebr. Beſiegers ſhall make to hear or to be heard againſt Jeruſalem coming from a farre countrey, they ſhall utter their voice againſt the cities of Judah. And thus the meaning will be plain, it being, as if it had been ſaid, Speak no more of the judgements to come upon Judah to the Jews, for they have been enough ſpoken to already, but recount and ſpeak of the ſame things to the Gentiles, for they are the men that ſhall make them hear the terrible ſound of their coming from Babylon, which was far off, to do execution upon Jeruſalem, when they had for a time beſieged it, then breaking in and deſtroying both it and the Temple, as it is ſhewed that they did afterwards in this book, and 2 Kin. 25. 2 *Chron.*36. Other Expoſitions are brought by ſome, of which Calvin makes mention, but rejecteth them, and concludeth with this, and ſo do I, not thinking it worth the while to name them to the further needleſs troubling of the Reader. Yet in the word נצרים Beſiegers, I think it worth the noting, that the Prophet may be thought to allude to the name Nebuchadnezzar, the laſt two ſyllables of whoſe name are נצר; as if he had ſaid, Nebuchadnezzarens, or the men of Nebuchadnezzar. And the ſame are called, Keepers, as of a field, ver.17. that is, keeping all the wayes in the fields about Jeruſalem ſo, as that none of the Jews ſhould be able to finde any way of eſcaping the deſtruction that hanged over their heads. And this he ſheweth in the next words comes only through their own default, becauſe they provoked the Lord, and had given him, as it were, a bitter pill that went to his heart.

Calv.

Verſ.17

Verſ.18.

Verſ.19 My bowels, I am pained, my bowels. A like ſpeech to this hath been before expounded, *Iſa.*16.11. & 22.4. wherefore ſee there in what ſenſe it is ſpoken, Becauſe thou haſt heard (O my ſoul!) the ſound of a trumpet, Vulg. My ſoul hath heard, but the word is of the firſt perſon, I have heard my ſoul, that is, I mean, My ſoul hath heard, that is, by or from the Spirit ſpeaking to me within, although this ſounding came not till divers years after to the bodily ears, yet now he heard it in his ſpirit, and was affected with it, as if already come.

Verſ. 20,21. are nothing elſe but an exaggeration of the ſame with more variety of expreſſions: So likewiſe is *verſ.*23,24,25,26. it is an hyperbolical deſcription of a moſt ſad time, and yet as if he could never ſay enough to deterre them from their ſins, he plainly threatens them over again with utter ruine and deſolation, *v.*27,28,29.

Verſ.30. Though thou cloatheſt thee with crimſon, &c. As he began *Chap.*3.6. to impeach Judah for whoredom: ſo he concludeth, ſpeaking to her finally, as to an harlot decking her ſelf in the richeſt and beſt manner that ſhe can, to allure lovers to her, but the time being come that her beauty fadeth by grievous ſufferings, none will now be allured unto her any more. Even ſo he ſheweth that it ſhould be with that harlot-like ſtate. But he is not to be underſtood, as meant of that which Judah ſhould do at the time of her deſtruction, for then they were ſo farre from truſting in Idols and decking them any more, that they began to ſee into their vanity, and how that no help was in them: but the words have reference to that was now done in hope of having help in time of need from theſe dumb and dead Idols, or at the leaſt to be favoured the more by the Caldees by ſetting up ſuch a worſhip as was uſed at Babylon. But he ſheweth, that the Caldees being nothing inclined hereby to favour, ſhould deſpiſe her, and ſeek her life, and be her murtherers, of whom ſhe ſhould therefore lamentably complain, as a woman in travel of her pangs, *verſ.*31. And the like meaſure may any Chriſtian ſtate look for, that to procure favour of Papiſts, either to themſelves, if need ſhould require, or to thoſe of our Religion amongſt them, pleaſeth them by conforming to their ſuperſtition, or tollerating it, as a Spaniſh Duke ſhewed anno 1588. when making juſt account with their Armado then prepared to over-run England, he asked his ſword, whether it could diſtinguiſh betwixt Roman Catholicks in England and hereticks, that it might ſpare the one and kill the other, and ſaid, it anſwered, No. Note.

CHAP. V.

Verſ.1. RUn to and fro in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem; That it might appear to all the world that God was not more ſevere to the Jews in judging them, as hath been before ſaid, then they deſerved; he here laieth open the univerſal overſpreading of ſinne in the holy City Jeruſalem, where it was chiefly to be expected, that there ſhould be ſome executing judgement, that is, walking exactly according to the rules of righteouſneſs, and ſeeking the truth, that is, of an upright heart void of deceit and falſhood in their ſpeeches, but there was not a man, no not one ſuch. And to ſhew that there was not one, he uſeth ſo many words, Go to and fro, ſearch and enquire. If it be ſaid, How can this be true, when as beſides Jeremiah himſelf there was Baruch and Obedmelech that are ſpoken of; and it is not to be doubted but there were ſome others, though very few? Calvin anſwers, That the few righteous which were there, are to be conſidered apart from the body of the City againſt which the judgements of God were before denounced, and that which is here ſpoken, as againſt that body only, conſiſting of the King, his Counſellours, Prieſts, common People and falſe Prophets, who were many thouſands, but not one righteous amongſt them all. And he ſaith further, as ſpeaking of a ground of this diſtinction, that *Iſa.*8.16. Seal the Law, binde the Teſtimony for my Diſciples, doth plainly make this diſtinction; To the righteous who are Gods Diſciples, this is not ſpoken, but they being ſet apart; and then the multitude conſidered, who were before threatned, that which is here ſaid is to be underſtood of them. But againſt this it may well be ſaid, If the righteous be conſidered apart that were in Jeruſalem, that which is here ſaid by way of challenge is ſpoken in vain, beeing that if every righteous perſon be put by in any place, it will be manifeſtly loſt-labour to ſearch amongſt others, though never ſo many, for one righteous man. Leaving this therefore, let us ſee what anſwers are brought by us. Iſidor ſaith, It is hyperbolical. Lyra, that by one, a few are meant. But Jerom beſt, by one man underſtands one man of eminency for his ſtanding for Judgement and Truth, and by his authority endeavouring to ſuppreſſe the contrary. For ſo the word איש Iſh here uſed is commonly put, as *Exod.*15.3. *Judg.*7.14. *Pſal.*4.3. *Pſal.*48.3. Iſa. 46.11, &c. of which ſee Chryſoſtom more fully, *Hom.*23. *in Gen. Ezek.*22.30. I have ſought a man that might ſtand in the gap, whereupon he ſaith, Such a man is to be underſtood as retaineth the image of God ſafe, and is moſt virtuouſly diſpoſed; and Jerom, A man like Moſes, Aaron or Samuel; Likewiſe upon *Iſa.*50.2. I came and there was not a man, yet a man here ſpoken of, is not ſo to be underſtood, as if none but a man of authority were meant: for the contrary appeareth *verſ.*4. I ſaid, theſe are poor and underſtand not the judgement of the Lord: Therefore this ſearch is firſt made amongſt the common ſort, there was not a man amongſt them to be found, as he alſo ſheweth that there was not amongſt the nobler, *v.*5. There were a very few haply beſides Jeremiah and Baruch, that for their piety ſhould themſelves be ſaved, but not a man of zeal and courage as Phineas, that by oppoſing ſin in others might ſtop the courſe of Gods judgments according to his power. Jeremiah indeed and Baruch ſought to do it, but they ſtood now as repreſenting God, who challenged all the reſt, as hath been ſaid. And this challenge was neceſſary to vindicate the Lord from ſeverity, and more harſhneſs towards his own people, then towards the Sodomites, whom he would have ſpared, if in that City there had been ten righteous, for that being the leaſt number that he then condeſcended to, now he goeth lower to the Jeruſolymitans, If there be but one man, I will ſpare it, that executeth judgement, ſeeking by all means that he can to ſtop the courſe of ſin, and ſeeking the truth, by encouraging hereunto, and againſt falſhood and deceit.

Calv.

Iſidor. Lyra. Hieronym. Chryſoſt.

Verſ.2. Although they ſay, The Lord liveth, ſurely they ſwear falſly. Heb. לכן Therefore, or for this they ſwear falſly; Whereby he doth not only tax their hypocriſie in ſpeaking after the manner of the moſt godly, The Lord liveth, as was preſcribed *Chap.*4.1. but alſo their horrible prophaning of the Lords name, in ſwearing falſly thereby to deceive others, that upon their ſayings thus believe them, but after finding them falſe are moved to blaſpheme this holy name, if vengeance be not taken on them with ſpeed. Thus Calvin. But we may more briefly take the ſenſe thus, Although they ſay, The Lord liveth, whereby they may be conceived by men not to be ſo bad, yet they are moſt wicked; and this their ſaying addeth to their wickedneſs, for by reaſon of this outward ſhew of piety, they imbolden themſelves to commit this foul ſin of perjury, thinking to paſſe for a godly people notwithſtanding, ſeeing they ſwear not by Idols, but by the living God, as Gods people are commanded to do.

Calvin.

Verſ.3. O Lord, are not thine eyes upon the truth? thou haſt ſtricken them, &c. Having diſcovered their hypocriſie and falſe-confidence in a ſhew of piety, now he turns from them, as unworthy to be ſpoken to any more, to the Lord, that they might be the more moved to be aſhamed, and being brought hereby to know their vanity in doing as was before ſaid, be ſtirred up to repent. For although they might deceive men, they could not deceive God, whoſe eyes pierce into the ſecrets of mens hearts, looking therefore that his ſervants ſhould ſpeak nothing with their tongues but what is in their hearts, when they ſwear by him, 1 *Sam.*16.16.

Verſ.6. Wherefore a Lion out of the foreſt ſhall ſlay them, and a Wolf of the evenings. Having ſearched and found none righteous either amongſt the common people or the nobles, *verſ.*4,5. now he returns to threaten them again, as *Chap.*4.13. where a Lion is ſpoken of, but here both a Lion, Wolf and Leopard, whereby one and the ſame deſtroyer is moſt commonly underſtood, viz. Nebuchadnezzar, with whoſe coming, as by a terrible judgement out of the North he threatned them, *Chap.*1. and ſo continueth to do throughout his Prophecie. Others underſtand him by the Lion, the Perſian Monarchy by the Wolf, and the great Emperour of Grecia Alexander by the Leopard, as he is ſet forth *Dan.*7. But the firſt is the beſt, one Nebuchadnezzar was all theſe unto them, deſtroying and tearing them in pieces, as if all the beaſts of the foreſt had broken in amongſt them, or found them out of the City. But to ſet forth the divers Nations which came with him, he mentioneth not only a Lion, but a Wolf and Leopard alſo, for the Aſſyrians and Edomites, infeſt enemies of the Jews, aſſiſted him in making this cruel deſtruction. A Wolf is called the Wolf of the evenings, becauſe that having gotten no prey all day, he is very hungry in the evening, and ſets upon whatſoever he can finde moſt eagerly.

Verſ.7. How ſhould I pardon thee for this, thy children have forſaken me, and ſworn by them that are no gods. Here he makes them Judges, whether or no they were adjudged to ſuch puniſhments, as are before-threatned; For here are two ſuch groſſe ſins, Idolatry and adultery laid to their charge, that no man can ſay, but that what puniſhments ſoever they ſhould ſuffer, they were juſtly dealt withall, becauſe the Lord is the great Judge of all the world, and if he ſhould ſuffer ſuch to go unpuniſhed, or lightly puniſhed after long waiting with patience for their repentance in vain, he ſhould not be juſt, which were to his great diſhonour. By ſwearing by other gods is meant, aſcribing to them omniſcience, power to revenge for perjury, and juſtice doing to every one according to his deſerts, and whoſo doth thus by any creature makes a god of him. For their adultery, he ſaith, when he had fed them full, they aſſembled together in harlots houſes, hereby is denoted the greateſt impudency in going about this ſin that might be, becauſe adulterers commonly go ſecretly about this foul wickedneſs, but they in companies, as not being any whit aſhamed of it, with the like to which they are charged, *Iſa.*3.9. hereby is alſo ſet forth the commonneſs of that ſin amongſt them. And in ſetting this forth there is in Heb. an elegant Paranomaſie, in the word ſwearing and filled, the one being Jeſhbagna, the other Eſhbagn.

Verſ.10. Go ye up upon the Wals and deſtroy, but make not a full end. See the like ſpeech *Chap.*4.27. and here again verſ. 18. it is underſtood by ſome, as if it were meant that all the people ſhould not be deſtroyed, but a remnant ſaved, but by others better, That when they had ſuffered the things before-ſpoken of, more miſeries were yet by the Jews to be expected from their enemies, as indeed it came to paſſe when their City being deſtroyed they were carried into Babylon, where their ſufferings were greater and long-laſting, and although they that would returned home again at the end of ſeventy years, yet their ſufferings were not at an end, but they were alwaies after under heathen Kings, many of whom did moſt cruelly perſecute them, and tyrannize over them. The word כלה here uſed, ſignifieth a conſumption, but it is often put for an end alſo. Take away her battlements, for they are not the Lords, Vulg. Her offsprings, as if children were hereby meant, and that they ſhould not be ſpared, Septuagint Props, or Baſis, or Bulwarks. The word ſignifieth properly offsprings, but metaphorically it is put for pins of Wals, and it agreeth beſt to ſome defenſible buildings more prominent then the wals affixed to them to keep off enemies, becauſe he ſpake before of their going up upon the wals. And in bidding go up, and take away, he doth moſt aptly meet with their vain confidence in theſe things, for by reaſon of them they thought their City ſafe enough from any enemy. They are not the Lords, that is, for ſin God hath caſt off the care of them, and will no more defend them.

Verſ.12. They have belied the Lord, and ſaid, It is not he. Here he chargeth them with the height of all wickedneſs, that is, with Atheiſm, for it is as much, as if he had objected againſt them that they ſaid, The Lord is not God, for in the Hebrew it is, He is not, and of this ſinne do all make themſelves guilty that are not moved by the threatning of his judgements to repentance; for hereupon Jeremiah gathereth againſt the Jews, that they falſly denied God, and not without good reaſon, becauſe ſuch ſay, either he is not omniſcient, or not omnipotent, or not juſt to do as he hath ſaid, and to deny him to be any of theſe, is to deny him to be God, and to belie him.

Verſ.13. Calv. The Prophets are winde, the word is not in them, ſo ſhall it be done to them. Calvin, The laſt words here are the words of the hard-hearted and unbelieving Jews; as if they had ſaid, The Prophets threaten us with the ſword and famine, but we think them vain in ſo doing, we will therefore requite them with the like, as they ſay to us, ſo we to them, Theſe evils that they threaten ſhall come upon them, as ſoon as upon us. Lyra. Lyra better, Becauſe they ſo ſleight the Prophets comminations, it ſhall be ſo to them, as here followeth, and as went before alſo, they ſhall certainly be deſtroied by theſe judgements. Vatabl. Vatablus expounds it of falſe prophets, as the threatning of Jeremiah againſt them for keeping the people by their falſe propheſying from repentance, but he ſaith, their propheſying is vanity, and ſo it ſhall be done therefore to them. But becauſe he is inveighing againſt the wicked in this reſpect, that they put the lie upon him when he threatned them *v.*12. it is moſt probable, that he goeth on here to ſhew how they ſleighted his Prophets, for which they are threatned again, as hath been already ſaid.

Verſ.14. I will put my words in thy mouth as fire, and they ſhall be as ſtubble. That is, According to thy Word they ſhall be deſtroied, as the ſtubble is by the fire; and when this ſhall come to paſſe, it ſhall appear, that thy words were not winde, and to be deſpiſed, but that theirs were ſuch, being no more able to ſtand againſt thine, then the Inchanters rods in Egypt againſt the rod of Moſes, but were devoured thereby.

Verſ.15. A Nation moſt ancient. For ſuch were the Caldees having continued ever ſince Nimrod, and accuſtomed to ſubdue ſuch as they warred upon, and therfore they could not but expect to be ſubdued alſo by them. And he addeth, Of a language not underſtood, to ſhew that they ſhould in vain crave to be ſpared by them, for they ſhould not one underſtand another.

Verſ.18. Yet I will not make an end. A like ſpeech to this ſee before *c.*4.27. expounded.

*Verſ.*19,20,21,22,23. He preſſeth the ſame further upon them, and by reaſoning from this almighty power ſhewed in ruling the raging ſea, ſeeks to ſtrike the fear of the Lord into them.

Verſ.25. Your iniquities have turned away theſe things. He ſpake verſ. 24. of rain and ſeaſonable times given by God to move them to fear and ſerve him, now he ſheweth, that when it is otherwiſe, no rain falleth, or it cometh down immoderately, ſin is the cauſe of it, the force thereof reacheth up to heaven, and thus troubleth the courſe of nature. 26,27. And in particular the ſin of craft and cruelty in circumventing men, and craftily getting their eſtates from them, as if a trap were ſet to take them. And by this means they growing rich thought themſelves moſt happy, *v.*26.

Verſ.31 The Prophets propheſie falſly, and the Prieſts bear rule by their means, &c. To prepare to this, he ſaith verſ. 30. An horrible thing is committed. For what could be more horrible in the City Jeruſalem, where the Temple and chief Prieſts were continually to direct the people aright, then that there ſhould be falſe Prophets, and thoſe countenanced by the ſaid Prieſts. But he toucheth upon the cauſe, in ſaying, The Prieſts fill their hands by their means, as the words properly ſignifie, that is, of their falſe propheſying made advantage to increaſe their worldly wealth, which is when falſe prophets by their propheſying magnifie the Prieſts, as the men by being liberal to whom, and ſubmitting themſelves to be ruled by them, they ſhall provide for their everlaſting good, and be temporally bleſſed alſo. For if the people be once perſwaded of this, they will think nothing too much to give unto them, and ſo they ſhall be greatly inriched, and if they be not ruled by them, they think that much miſery attendeth them. Such falſe prophets for the Prieſts were the Phariſees, *Matth.*15. ſaying, Corban; and the Friers for the Pope, for which they were wont to ſay, that their four Orders were the four-wheeled chariot, wherein the Pope was drawn about in ſuch pomp. And not unlike to theſe are thoſe flittering prophets of our times, that magnifie Subjects in Authority, as if all power were in their hands, whereby ſo great gain cometh in unto them, and they lord it over their brethren and fellows, as Kings, impriſoning and divers waies puniſhing them that dare to gainſay this their unlimited power. For that which was then done to the Prieſts is now done to men in high Authority in the Commonwealth; but to the poor Prieſts contrariwiſe, they are pulled down every where from that which of right belongs unto them, and deſpiſed and trodden under foot. But ye may thank your ſelves, that in your proſperity were ſo proud, covetous and domineering over the Lords heritage, and take this as a judgement of God coming upon you to correct theſe abominable vices. And will ye do in the end thereof? That is, when the City ſhall be deſtroyed, and all your wealth taken away, and ye made miſerable captives to your ſavage and mercileſſe enemies. A good warning to all in the condition before-ſpoken of, in time to repent, that they may be ſaved from ſo horrible a deſtruction hanging over their heads for ſuch horrible things doing, as *verſ.*30. Note.

CHAP. VI.

Verſ.1. Gather ye together ye children of Benjamin from the midſt of Jeruſalem. Having diverſly already propheſied of the Caldees coming againſt them, now he proſecuteth the ſame argument further, ſpeaking to the men of his own Tribe of Benjamin, in which half Jeruſalem ſtood, as if the enemy were even now upon the march againſt them, Gather ye together, go forth of the City to encounter your enemies, if ye think to do any good upon it, to keep them from deſtroying your City. And to Benjamin he ſpeaks, as being neareſt unto him, and amongſt whom he dwelt in Anathoth, and as being of great note for their valour, as appeareth, *Judg.*20. Blow the trumpet in Tekoah, a Town of Judah near Jeruſalem, and it ſeemeth a place ſo called, becauſe the alarm by ſounding of a Trumpet uſed to be given there, as we may gather from the words, which are תקעו תקועה Betecnah Tecu; and ſet up a ſign in Bethcherem, that is, The houſe of vines, a Town in Benjamin, ſo called from the ſtore of vines growing there, and a wine-preſſe in a Tower built there on high; and therefore ſtanding alſo upon high-ground moſt fit to ſet up a ſign in to be ſeen afar off. For that vines were commonly planted upon hils, and in a vineyard a Tower was built, ſee *Iſa.*5.1,2. He planted it on an hill, &c. 1 Chron.2.24. Neh.3.14.

Verſ.2. I have made the daughter of Zion like a delicate and tender woman. Here he ſheweth how tenderly God had uſed the Kingdom of Judah in giving her reſt, as his moſt beloved Spouſe, when Iſrael was carried away captive by the Aſſyrians.

Verſ.3. But the ſhepherds ſhall pitch their tents about her. That is, Princes and Captains of Armies, who are often called ſhepherds, and ſhe ſhall become a prey to them and their Armies, intimated by ſaying, They ſhall feed every one round about: for when all wilde beaſts are deſtroyed, ſhepherds ſeparate and feed their flocks ſeverally, but when there is danger in reſpect of the ſaid wilde beaſts, they gather their flocks cloſer together, that they may help to defend one another. Therefore in ſaying thus, he meaneth, that the Jews ſhould be ſo rooted out of the Land and ſubdued, that the enemies ſhould at their pleaſure walk about and take the ſpoil of their countrey, there being none that they needed to fear left in the Land.

Verſ.4. Sanctifie a warre againſt her, Ariſe, let us go up at noon-day. Calvin, Upon juſt cauſe go to warre againſt her, for that ye ſhall do, ſeeing the Lord upon the conſiderations before-going hath called you unto it. And it is thus ſpoke, to intimate that no warre is to be made without juſt cauſe, and even into the hearts of moſt barbarous Nations God hath put it, not to make warre commonly, but ſome cauſe firſt declared. The next words are the words of the forces coming, Let us go up at noon. This is ſpoken to ſhew their forwardneſs, becauſe in thoſe hot countries, enemies, being come before a Citie, did not uſe to begin their aſſaults at noon, which was the hotteſt time of the day, but ſtaied commonly till the morning. In ſaying thus therefore their expedite mounting up the wals, and taking the Citie is ſet forth, they being grieved that they could not do it at the firſt on-ſet, for which they ſay, Woe to us, the day declineth, &c. and therefore they reſolve to go on in their aſſault in the night, till they have done the work, *verſ.*5. By all which it is ſhewed, That the ſubduing of Jeruſalem ſhould be no long whiles work, but (as it were) from noon till night, and then all ſhould be brought under. With Calvin conſent Theodoret, Lyra, Hugo, but Jerom, Rabanus, Aquinas, underſtand it as ſpoken of the Jews lamenting their caſe, having ſuffered ſo much in the day, looking for more grievous ſufferings in the night, but the Text is manifeſtly againſt this Expoſition, and for the other, in which I therefore reſt.

Theodor.
Lyra.
Hieronym.
Raban.

Verſ.9. They ſhall throughly glean the remnant of Iſrael as a vine. Hebr. In pruning they ſhall prune, or in gathering grapes they ſhall gather. By the remnant of Iſrael he meaneth Judah, which remained ſtill a Kingdom after that the ten Tribes were carried away, and he compareth this unto grapes gathering of a vine, when few or none left: for ſo the ſacred Hiſtorie ſheweth, that they were dealt with by the Caldees, a ſmall remnant only being left of the pooreſt ſort to till the Land. Bring thy hand back, as a vine-gatherer to the baskets: This carrying away of Judah ſhall not be at once; but as after the vintage the poor come and gather into baskets all the grapes remaining which they can finde, and this is called their gleaning: ſo the Caldees came with Nebuzaradan the ſecond time, and carried away to Babylon all that were not hid in all parts. So that he doth by this further amplifie the deſolation of their Land.

Verſ.16. Ask for the old paths. After reproving them for their ſtiff going on in ſinne, now the Prophet exhorts them again to that which might be moſt effectual to bring them out of the danger of warre and deſtruction into the way of peace, reſt and proſperity. By the old way, he meaneth the way of truth and righteouſneſs, of temperance, love and piety towards God, wherein their fore fathers Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob walked, and before them Noah, Enoch, &c. and what grace and favour they found with God, whereas they that walked not in this way, but in ſinne and rebellion, Idolatry, cruelty, exceſſe of riot or prophaneneſſe, were contrariwiſe made examples of Gods wrath, as Cain, the old world, Sodom, the Canaanites, Eſau, &c. See the like exhortation, *Deut.*32.7. 1 *Machab.*2.51. and often in the Pſalms. And for us under the Goſpel it tends to move us to look both to the ſame examples, and above all to Chriſts, who ſaith of himſelf, I am the way, the truth and the life. And Come unto me, and ye ſhall finde reſt unto your ſouls. And for a certain ground of our faith we are here injoined to beware of new waies that cannot be proved to be old, as 1 *Joh.*2.7. his teaching is ſaid to be the new Commandment, and yet the old. It is therefore a received truth, Quod primum, verum, that which was firſt is true and that divorces were never lawfull Chriſt proveth, becauſe it was not ſo from the beginning: The New Teſtament is for this cauſe proved by the Old, neither did the Apoſtles teach any but old Doctrine, thoſe things that the Prophets of old ſpake of. So that they in theſe daies that broach novelties, pretending new light or revelations, if they teach or hold under this pretence any way, that cannot be proved to be the old way, they are no better then falſe Prophets and deceitfull Apoſtates, as the devil their maſter, transforming themſelves into Angels of light. Yet here is no ground for Papiſts to bear themſelves upon, as if they were right, and the Proteſtants a company of Noveliſts, becauſe they keep in the old waies of Popery, accounting the Pope the head of the Church, ſetting up Images in Churches and adoring them, calling upon Saints departed, believing a purgatory, praiers for the dead to be available, juſtification by works, and not by faith only, &c. For although theſe may ſeem to be old, yet it is certain that the people of God were not taught thus from the beginning, and therefore although a way wherein men walked hundreds of years, it comes farre ſhort of being the old way, wherein the holy Patriarchs, Prophets and Apoſtles walked at the firſt; and whoſo will have reſt muſt come out of it, as it is ſaid, Come out of Babylon.

Joh.10.
Matth. 11.28.
Matth.19.

Verſ.17. The next verſe expreſſeth further, What this old way is, wherein they are bidden to walk, viz. as they are called by the ſound of the Trumpet, that is, by the true Prophets preaching, who labour continually to work in them the fear and love of God and faith in him. For ſo Iſa. 58. 1. he is bidden to lift up his voice as a trumpet, and to ſhew that ſuch Preachers of righteouſneſs and truth are meant, he ſaith, I have ſet Watchmen to ſound with a trumpet; and Ezek. 3. he is ſtiled a watchman, and therefore they are wide that by this Trumpet underſtand the ſounding to battel before-ſpoken of verſ. 1. And hereby we are given to underſtand in times when there are many that ſound falſe alarms, how we may know to whoſe ſounding to hearken, taking heed of others that we be not by their falſe teaching in corners drawn into a wrong way. True teachers are Watchmen that are ſet up publickly to give warning againſt all ſinne and new doctrine, and not ſuch as either creep into private houſes, or comply with ſuch in their waies or teaching, although they ſtand up in publick.

Verſ.18. Therefore hear (O Nations) know, O Congregation. The Prophet having brought in the Jews ſaying, We will not hear, verſ.17. turns therefore now to the Gentiles and their Aſſemblies, as whom he thought rather to move to hearken to him, then the Jews, to their greater ſhame, and v. 19. he ſpeaks to the earth alſo.

Verſ.21. I will lay ſtumbling blocks before this people. That is, Ye may think to eſcape my judgements ſtill, as ye have done, but ye ſhall now ſurely ſtumble and fall; See the like Iſa.

Verſ.29. The bellows are burnt, the lead is conſumed by the fire. Calvin, The blower hath been dried up from the fire, the head is whole, Hebr. The bellows are burnt in their fire, the lead to vanity, in margin באש־תם which may alſo be rendred, They in the fire, or rather in the fire, that is, of them the fire made, and blown by the Prophet being called, becauſe to purge them. The meaning moſt generally being taken to be, that the Prophets tongue like a bellows through much ſtraining of himſelf to cry out, and that often, againſt their ſinnes, was even worn out like a Smiths bellows, but the lead onely commonly put by refiners into the furnace amongſt ſilver to purge it, was waſted away, but the Jews remained as droſſie ſilver ſtill, as in the next words, they are not purged, verſ. 30. They call them reprobate ſilver. In ſaying therefore The lead is conſumed, as all generally expound it, he meaneth, that he waſted himſelf by taking pains to convert and purge them from their ſins, but his labour was quite loſt, as lead melted together with ſilver for the purging, as Jerom and others commonly affirm, and Cornelius a Lapide ſaith, That the refiners at Rome conſent, being made by the heat of the fire to vaniſh, corrupt ſilver that cannot be purged, remaineth ſuch ſtill. But Calvin and ſome others by this fire underſtand Gods judgements by the Caldees to come, but whoſo ſhall obſerve that they are ſaid not to be purged hereby, but ſtill to be reprobate ſilver; and verſ. 28. Braſſe and iron, and compare herewith, Iſa. 1. 25. I will purely purge out all thy droſſe or lead, muſt needs confeſſe, that this cannot be meant of the judgement of carrying them into Babylon, for now they were nothing purged, but then thorowly, therefore the Prophets endeavours

Hieronym.

Calv.

are meant, they were but loſt labour, how much ſoever he ſpent his breath and voice even to hoarſneſs in calling upon them to amend, the ſpeech is wholly metaphorical from a refiners bellows to the Prophet, and from lead and corrupt ſilver remaining, ſo ſtill to his pains taken in vain, as is alſo complained, *Iſa.*49.4. whereby is intimated, how great the pains of faithfull Note. Preachers are, even as of a Smith blowing with his bellows, and ſuffering, as it were, by the heat of a moſt ardent fire, againſt thoſe that commonly extenuate our pains, as if our maintenance came in with eaſe, whereupon they part not with it without much repining and grudging, but God loveth a chearfull giver, and miniſtring to you ſpiritual things, is it a great matter if we reap your carnal? 2 Cor.8. 1 Cor.9.

CHAP. VII.

Verſ.12. HEre the Prophet after a moſt earneſt exhortation to turn from their ſins, and to amend their lives, to move them the more to repentance, propounds the example of Shiloh where the Ark ſtood of old, 1 *Sam.*4. but being carried out and taken by the Philiſtims, it never came thither again, but that place lay ever after deſolate. So he ſheweth, that they alſo ſhould be dealt withall, their Temple being deſtroied the City Jeruſalem ſhould be left deſolate, and although after the firſt deſtruction by Nebuchadnezzar it was re-built at their return out of Captivitie, yet it was again deſtroied by the Romans, after which it could never be built any more.

Verſ.16. Ezek.13.5. Therefore pray thou not for this people. This may ſeem ſtrange, when as at other times an interceſſour to avert judgement is required, as *Iſa.*59,16. *Chap.*64.7. *Chap.*43.3. *Ezek.*32.30. But this is ſo ſpoken, to ſhew that praier ſhall not prevail, unleſs it be fervent and with perſeverance, when God ſeemeth by denying the requeſts of his ſervants, or not granting them a long time, to forbid them to trouble him any more with ſuch Petitions, as *Matth.*18. *Jam.*5.16. He therefore that perſiſts fervently to ask, when he prevaileth nothing, ſhall finally prevail. 2. That the praiers of the beſt are of no force, if they Calvin. for whom, go on ſtill obſtinately in their ſins, *Ezek.*14. Calvin ſcanning this prohibition ſaith, that it was not for any of that people, for there was a remnant for whom he was to pray, but that the ſtate of the Kingdom ſhould continue, to pray he was forbidden, it being unalterably determined, that for their ſins it ſhould be pulled in pieces, and their Temple deſtroied. I prefer the former, both becauſe he ſaith, *Chap.*5. He could not finde a man, and in many places before-cited the Lord intimateth his deſire in this matter to finde ſome one or more oppoſing him by their praiers, as Moſes Exod.32. as a thing wherein he delighted; and the word, oppoſing me, is here uſed after praying and crying ſpoken of and forbidden. Whereby the power of a righteous mans praier appeareth, the Almighty is by it oppoſed, and his hands, as it were, tied from ſmiting.

Verſ.18. Ier.44. Septuagint. To make cakes to the Queen of heaven. Some for the Queen of heaven, have it, The hoſt of heaven, becauſe מלכה is the word here uſed, and מלאך ſignifieth a meſſenger or miniſter, therefore they will have the Miniſtry of the heavenly hoſt meant. But this word ſignifying nothing but to reign, is beſt tran-Hieron. ſlated Queen, whereby Jerom ſaith, the Moon is meant, by the Heathens thought to be wife to the Sun; and therefore the cakes made of flower and oil for an offering to her, had the figure of the Moon made upon them. And what diligence and care the ſuperſtitious Jews did uſe in making them in the Note. moſt exact manner, he ſheweth, ſaying, The children gathered ſticks, the fathers made the fire, the mothers kneaded them. O that we were ſo intent to the worſhip of the true God of heaven, both fathers, mothers and children, with united forces doing the beſt ſervice to him, that poſſibly we can in our meetings, otherwiſe theſe ſhall riſe up in judgement againſt us and condemn us.

My

Verſ.20. My anger ſhall be poured out upon man and beaſt, upon fowls and trees. This is not ſo threatned, as if God raged againſt beaſts and ſenſleſſe Trees, but that in ſmiting them men might be the more terrified, as they were made for man, ſo for his ſins being deſtroyed, that he looking hereupon might be diſmaied.

Verſ.21. Put your burnt Offerings to your Sacrifices, and eat fleſh. Having threatned them with deſtroying judgements, *verſ.*20. now that they might not deceive themſelves by holding up as a Buckler of defence their outward performances, by offering to the Lord many Sacrifices, he beateth down this confidence by telling them, that they might do ſo, and yet be no whit the more accepted, no more account of their Sacrifices being made on Gods part, then if they did but kill and prepare and eat fleſh together in feaſting one another in a carnal manner: for it was not to him that they did this, becauſe not done according to his will, whilſt they ſacrificed, they neglected to yield him due obedience, which was the main thing required by him at his bringing them out of Egypt. Verſ. 22,23. Verſ.22,23. I ſpake not to your fathers concerning Sacrifices, &c. This may ſeem not to be true, becauſe the errand that Moſes came upon to Pharaoh at the firſt, was, That the people might be permitted to ſacrifice three daies in the wilderneſſe. But the meaning never was, That Sacrifices ſhould be offered, and obeying Gods Commandments neglected, which was now done by the Jews, and therefore he ſpeaks thus ironically unto them, and to intimate that obedience was the chief thing required, he firſt gave the Law of the ten Commandments, then afterwards of ſacrificing.

Verſ.29. Cut off thine hair (O Jeruſalem.) The word Hair, Hebr. is נזר ſignifying alſo a Crown, from whence the Nazarites Numb.6. had their name, and theſe for their holineſs, the ſign whereof was their long hair, which they did not cut, were the glory and crown, as it were, of the Jewiſh Nation. Calvin. In bidding Jeruſalem then cut her hair, he meaneth, that her Nazarites now might as well cut their hair as nouriſh it, for they ſhould not for this be any whit the more accepted, no more then for their many Sacrifices: Thus alſo Calvin, adding that cutting off her hair, is alſo ſpoken of, as a token of ſorrow, for which ſhe is in the next words bidden to make Lamentation in the high places, Becauſe God hath forſaken the generation of his wrath, whereby he intimateth, That Gods wrath ſhould in that Generation come upon them, as indeed it did. The Prophet therefore doth not here exhort them to repentance again, as he had divers times before done, but as againſt deſperate impenitent perſons denounceth judgement that ſhould make them moſt certainly to howl and cry, when upon high-places, they ſhould ſee the unreſiſtible forces of their enemies coming againſt them or camping about them on every ſide, neither ſhould any pretended outward holineſs or worſhip help them. By cutting off hair, that ſorrow is ſet forth which is extream, ſee Job 1. 10. *Iſa.*15.2. *Ezek.*27.31. the ſame hath been uſed to be done to ſervants, and therefore both the loweſt ebb of miſery and ſervitude to their enemies, into which they ſhould come, is hereby ſet forth, *Iſa.*3.17. the Daughters of Jeruſalem that were ſo proud, are threatned with baldneſs, *Chap.*7.20. Micha 1.16. *Habak.*3.13. And amongſt the Heathen it was common in extream ſorrow to pull off the hair, and to ſhave ſervants and ſlaves; whereupon it is in Ariſtophanes ſaid, Tu dum ſervus es comam nutris. And that it was a baſe thing for a woman eſpecially to be ſhorn, appeareth 1 *Cor.*11. and for men too, according to Ovid,

Turpe pecus mutilum, turpis ſine gramine campus,
Et ſine fronde frutex, & ſine crine caput.

Therefore Demoſthenes willing to keep at home againſt the importunity of his friends ſhaved his head, becauſe that in this caſe they knew he could not go into any company for ſhame. 3. There is another cauſe of cutting the hair, viz. when a man comes out of priſon and miſery, as Joſeph being ſent for to ſtand Gen.41.
before Pharaoh, and Evilmerodach lifting up the head of Jehoiakin, they both 2 King.25.

cut their hair, and changed their garments, but this is nothing pertinent to our purpoſe here. Many think theſe words [Cut thy hair] to be directed to Jeremiah, as if he ſhould do it in a figure, but when he is bidden to do any thing in this ſenſe, he is plainly ſpoken to. Here although Jeruſalem be not named in the Hebrew, yet ſhe is manifeſtly meant, for the words run as to a She, in the Feminine gender, and ſo Jeruſalem is commonly ſpoken of, The Daughter Jeruſalem.

Verſ.30. They have ſet their abominations in the houſe called by my Name. This, as is generally agreed, is ſpoken of that which was done, 2 King. 21.4. in the daies of Manaſſeh, and likewiſe that which followeth of Tophet, verſ.31. and therefore of this ſee there, that I may not repeat the ſame again. But it may ſeem ſtrange, that in the time of Joſiah (who defiled Tophet and purged the Temple, yea Manaſſeh himſelf, after his return from Captivity, did pull down the abominations that before he had ſet up) theſe things ſhould be charged upon the Jews in his time. For the better underſtanding hereof therefore, we muſt look into 2 King.22.3. and Chap.23. and we ſhall finde that Joſiah did not that worthy work of removing the abomination out of the Lords houſe, and of defiling Tophet till Anno Regni 18. but theſe words were ſpoken Anno 13, as appears Chap.1. And if Manaſſeh had done it upon his repentance, he had a wicked ſon Amon who could ſet them up again, and the people ſtill moſt probably, though living under godly Joſiah, were bold, whilſt he was yet very young, to go on in their old wickedneſs, and for this they are here taxed.

Verſ.32. They ſhall bury in Tophet, till there be no place. This is ſpoken, to ſhew how vain their endeavours were about ſanctifying this place for divine worſhip, for in ſaying that it ſhould be a burying place, he meaneth that it ſhould be all polluted, becauſe dead bodies pollute the places where they lie, for which cauſe ſuch ſuperſtitious perſons would not endure that any dead ſhould be buried near unto places which they conſecrated to the worſhip even of Idols. But of this worſhip the Lord had ſaid before verſ. 31. that he commanded it not, neither came it into his minde, hereby giving us an hint of a ſingular good Note, That the rules of Divine Worſhip preſcribed by God in his holy Word are allſufficient, and whoſoever preſumes to go further, this is enough to condemn him, God never commanded this, therefore it is an abomination; apply this to the many inventions of the Church of Rome, and they are all hereby condemned, and it is well done of the Church of England, that ſhe hath of late caſt them all out. Only it were to be wiſhed that we might have ſo much diſcretion as to diſtinguiſh between Novas ſpecies pietatis, & ejuſdem magis vel minus exercitatas, and then whoſoever holdeth, That in ſacris non eſt ſatietas cannot condemn the keeping of Chriſts birth-day to his honour, as many now adaies do, becauſe it is not expreſly commanded, or ſaid to have been kept in the Apoſtles daies. And to conclude this Verſe, the defiling of Tophet here propheſied of, was in the eighteenth year of Ioſiah in part, 2 King.23.10. and in part afterwards, Ieruſalem being deſtroyed, as followeth verſ.33,34. and brought into deſolation, when dead bodies ſhall lie round about in all places, as meat for the beaſts of the field, and fowls of the air. And this ſhall be the end of all Idolaters, when Gods judgements come they ſhall periſh unhappily, and not enjoying ſo much as a buriall, rot as dung upon the earth, and the places which they have doted upon, as thinking they could never honour them enough, ſhall be rendered moſt infamous, as was ſometime the houſe of Baal, that was turned into a Jakes in the dayes of zealous Iehu.

Note.

Note.

CHAP.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſ.1. AT that time they ſhall bring forth the bones of the Kings of Iudah. This is added to *Chap.*7. in way of amplifying that which was there threatned, Some think that this was done in ſearching for treaſure, which was put into the Sepulchres of Kings together with their dead bodies in thoſe daies, for great men were not then buried without ſome treaſure, as Hiſtories commonly ſhew, touching the Sepulchre of David. But be it that Kings Sepulchres were opened and their bones taken out for this, he ſaith, the bones of Prieſts and of the people, what treaſure could be in their Sepulchres? It is therefore better that Theodoret hath, Their bones were caſt out of their graves in contempt. For it was an honour to be buried, and for a mans bones ſo to reſt, but a diſgrace to have his bones dig'd up, and to lie without burial, as we may gather 2 King. 23. where Ioſiah cauſed the bones of Baals Prieſts to be digged out, and burnt upon Ieroboams Altar. And the like was done amongſt Heathens, when any King of Ægypt died that had done good to his Countrey, one was ſet to ſpeak to his praiſe, but if evil, he was caſt into ſome Deſert unburied; and thus were all malefactours alſo ſentenced by the Judge, dealt withall. And accordingly it is threatned Iſa.14.19. that Nebuchadnezzar ſhould be caſt out of his Sepulchre. For the fulfilling of this ſee Baruch 2.24. And they ſhall be laid before the Sunne, &c. As they had ſinned by worſhipping the hoſt of Heaven, ſo theſe heavenly bodies ſhould be made ſpectators of their ſhame, and not afford them any help, as they truſted they would have done, but rather increaſe their ignominy, for their foul diſloialty to their Creatour, and making them to ſhare with him in divine honour, from which they in their kinde utterly abhorred, as Angels appearing to Iohn and Daniel offering to worſhip them, did.

Theodor.

*Diodor. Sicul. l.*2.*c.*3.Ægypt.mos.

Verſ.3. And death ſhall be choſen rather then life of all the reſidue. Some fled at the deſtruction of Iudah to Egypt, ſome to Moab, Ammon, &c. but whereſoever they were, ſo great were their miſeries that they counted the dead, although miſuſed and diſgraced after death, in a better caſe then themſelves, thinking therefore long to be with them, that they might be rid of theſe miſeries.

Verſ.4. Verſ.4. Will not they that fall riſe again? if a man hath turned out of the way, will he not return? Some expound this as if the words were ſpoken of the Jews, having fallen ſo fouly, as was aforeſaid, and the next of the Lord; as if he had ſaid, It is common amongſt men by the inſtinct of nature, having taken a fall to riſe up again, but the wicked Jews have not hitherto done ſo, they have fallen moſt fouly into Idolatry and other groſſe ſins, but will ye (O ye wicked Jews) being fallen, lie ſtill, and not riſe again by repentance? be not ſo unnatural, and through your obſtinacy differing from all other men. If ye ſhall ſay, The Lord is turned away from us, he will not turn again to us, although we ſhould ariſe, this cannot poſſibly be; for it is not ſo with man that hath any goodneſs in him, if he be offended, upon repentance of the offendour he is placable, much more will God be pacified towards you if ye thus ariſe from ſin to newneſs of life? Calvin expounds both paſſages of the Jews, as if he had by two compariſons laboured to reclaim them, 1. Of a man falling, who will not lie, but riſe up again. 2. Of one going out of the way through errour, that when this his errour is ſhewed him, will not ſtill go on in the wrong way, but return at the direction of his guide. And herein I muſt needs ſubſcribe to Calvin, becauſe that in the words following their obſtinate continuing in ſin is preſſed againſt them, but of the Lords readineſs to return, nothing added, They have cleaved to deceit and would not return. Here he ſheweth the cauſe of their obſtinacy, the deceitfulneſs of their own hearts, for by fraud here this is meant, where they deceived not others ſo much, but themſelves much more, as appeareth *verſ.*11. where they ſay to themſelves Peace, Peace, that is, we will not believe but that we ſhall have Lyra. Dionyſ. Iſidor.

Calvin.

Verſ.5.

peace whatſoever thou threatneſt, wherein the event proved how greatly they were deceived. And he ſaith, Why is this people of Jeruſalem rebellious, amongſt whom was the light of the Law, and who were inured to obedience from their childhood from generation to generation? If they had been Heathens, it were not ſo hainous, ſome excuſe of ignorance might have been made, but in this caſe none. And the Lord doth not thus ſet the Prophet again to move them, in expectation that they would hereby be moved, for he had before given them over as deſperate, Chap. 7.16. and here he ſpeaks likewiſe again, but yet he ceaſeth not to reprove and exhort them, that when Note. judgements ſhould come they might be without excuſe, and to teach all his Miniſters to do the like, and in ſo doing to perſevere to the laſt, even when they ſee no likelihood of prevailing.

Verſ.7. The Stork knoweth her appointed time, and the Turtle and Crane. Here he proſecuteth his Argument of returning, upbraiding them that would not, by theſe fowls of the air, which although they want reaſon, yet know to return out of extream cold countries in their times into warmer, but obſtinate ſinners have not ſo much wit for fear of Gods judgements to turn from their ſins, that they might come as it were out of the region of pinching and piercing evils; which are more obnoxious then the moſt nipping froſts, of which yet it is ſaid, Who can abide his froſts? Some for a Stork have a Puttock, but the word is moſt generally taken for a Stork, called חסד mercifull, becauſe the very embleme of mercy, feeding her young with her own bloud; for which the young in time of age make her a compenſation by bearing her between them, in fleeing and bringing her food for her ſuſtenance. Some of theſe fowls are well known to us, not to appear till the Spring, as the Swallow, either hiding themſelves from the cold in Winter, or fleeing away into hotter climates.

Verſ.8. The Writer hath ſharpened his pen in vain. That is, to write the Law of God for the Jews to read, who had it commonly amongſt them, and they had Scribes, learned men in the Law, in vain; ſo that it was a very vain brag that they ſaid They were wiſe, forſomuch as they wanted this wiſdom of turning and haſtening from the ſtorm that otherwiſe would beat them in pieces, and ſo their having of the Law, although they had alſo the knowledge of it, but did it not, was a vain thing.

Verſ.13. There ſhall be no grapes on the Vine, &c. He had before Chap. 7. 20. threatned the very trees, now he ſheweth how this wicked people ſhould be puniſhed in particular in the vine and fig-tree, which were a great part of their ſuſtenance and ſubſtance, but now ſuch a famine ſhould come that they ſhould bear no fruit.

Verſ.15. Let us aſſemble our ſelves and enter into the defenced Cities. Chap.6.1. he bids them go out to withſtand the enemy here, as being without hope of ſtopping him in his coming, he bids them try another way to be ſaved, by ſhutting themſelves up in their ſtrongeſt places; but this alſo he ſheweth ſhould be in vain, they ſhould but thus drink the waters of bitterneſs, that is, ſuffer by famine in the time of ſiege, and then finally be deſtroyed. Of that which is ſaid, *ver.*15,16. ſee before *Chap.*4.15.

Verſ 17. I will ſend Serpents, Cockatrices amongſt you, &c. Septuagint, The worſt ſort of Serpents. Jerom, Killing Serpents. Aquila, Baſilisks. Hebr. צפעני by the conſent of all a little Serpent not above half a foot long is meant, which goeth not as other Serpents, but erect from the middle part, and doth ſo infect the air, that by the peſtilent breath coming therefrom fruits are killed, and men being but lookt upon by it, and birds fleeing over it, ſtones are broken, and by the hiſſing thereof all other Serpents are put to flight; And hereby the Caldees are ſet forth that ſhould deſtroy, as it were, by ſeeing, an hyperbolical expreſſion, to ſhew the Jews deſtruction to come, by them, not to be avoided any more then if a company of Cockatrices ſhould come amongſt them. And proſecuting the Allegory, he ſaith, they ſhould not be charmed, to ſhew Solinus.

Pliny.

that as Serpents that cannot be charmed, corrupt and kill, and this, which is the common remedy againſt them, being of no force to drive them away, the plague by them rageth till the whole countrey where they come be made deſolate, ſo it ſhould be at the coming of the Caldees.

Verſ.19. Is not her King in her? Here the Jews are brought in complaining, as if they were unjuſtly dealt withall, when the Caldees ſo mightily prevailed againſt them, this being looked upon as a judgement now preſent, although it were to come, as it is commonly ſpoken of by the Prophet for the certainty thereof. The voice of crying is heard from a farre countrey. This, ſaith Calvin, is commonly underſtood, as ſpoken of the Jews, ſeeing themſelves diſtreſſed by the Caldees, but he brings another Expoſition, as if it were the voice of them carried away into a farre countrey, that is, Babylon, but holds not to it, but rather to the firſt. I think it ought rather to be underſtood this ſecond way, becauſe it is ſaid, A voice of crying from a farre countrey; and when could this be but when they were carried away thither? the voice of crying in their diſtreſſe by the Caldees, is ſaid before to have been A voice of crying in the high places, that is, in their own Countrey, this from the Countrey in which they ſuffered after their being carried away Captive, yet I deny not, but (from a farre Countrey) may be expounded, as cauſed by them that came from a farre; and theſe words, Is not the Lord in Zion? imply their being yet there. Is not the Lord in Zion? Is not her King? In theſe words is ſet forth what they cried, they expoſtulated with the Lord, as if he were not true of his Promiſe, when he ſuffered their enemies thus to prevail againſt them, having promiſed *Pſal.*122.14. Here will I dwell for ever, and I have ſet my King upon my holy hill of Zion, &c. for grounding upon theſe and the like promiſes, they thought themſelves ſafe againſt all forrain enemies for ever: but to this he anſwereth in the name of the Lord, Why have they provoked me by their graven images? As if he had ſaid, Thus it ſhould indeed have been through my ſingular favour towards them, but they by their Idolatries have brought contrary things upon themſelves, as they were well worthy. Calvin. Jer.3.21. Pſal.2.

Verſ.20. The Harveſt is paſt, and the Summer ended, yet we are not ſaved. This is by Calvin taken as ſpoken of the help which they expected out of Ægypt, which came not, although now there was nothing to hinder them, whereas before Harveſt this might have been alledged as a reaſon, They could not ſpare the time from getting in their Harveſt, but now what expectation can there be of them in the dead of Winter? ſurely none: Thus alſo Jerom and Lyra; but Thomas Aquinas, although the Harveſt-time be paſt, when men have proviſion enough, we are not hereby holpen againſt our famine. It may be underſtood ſimply of the tediouſneſſe of their ſiege, from which they hoped that God would deliver them at the leaſt the Summer being ended, by cold froſts, if not otherwiſe driving the enemy away, as he had done Sennacheribs hoſt by a mighty and ſudden ſlaughter. For the expoſtulation of the people made with God for not ſaving them *verſ.*19. is here continued. Calvin. T.Aquinas.

Verſ.21. For the hurt of the daughter of my people I am hurt. This is by ſome taken to be ſpoken in the perſon of Jeremiah, by ſome of the Lord, which is moſt probable, becauſe he ſaith, My people; and if the words ſhall not ſeem to agree to the Lord, he doth at other times alſo put on the perſon of a moſt compaſſionate Father in ſpeaking of their miſeries.

Is there no balm in Gilead? The Vulgar for balm hath reſina, ſome Treacle, but it is moſt generally agreed, that a certain thick liquour congealing into Gumme, that diſtilled drop by drop out of the Balſome tree when the bark was cut, is here meant, and ſuch Trees grew in Arabia and Gilead, on this ſide Jordan, and this Gumme was moſt excellent for healing ſores or wounds: but it is metaphorically here to be underſtood either of Doctrine or Repentance, whereby the ſouls of ſinners are healed, when they are hereby converted, according to ſome, or of wiſdom, and counſel, and valour, of which the Jews bragged ſo much, whereby to be delivered from their enemies, or to recover their wounded and dying ſtate, according to others. And this laſt way it is taken by Calvin, ſaying, that it is meant their wound was incurable, and therefore it would be vain to think of any remedy againſt that blow by the Caldees, they muſt be ſmitten, and utterly periſh from being a Kingdom any more; See the like ſpeech to Egypt, Chap. 46. And Gilead above other places is mentioned, becauſe ſuch trees abounded moſt there, and there was the beſt balſom, although they grew alſo in divers others of Judea, and as medicinal ſimple abounded moſt there, ſo Phyſicians, for which he addeth, Is there no Phyſitian there?

Calvin.

CHAP. IX.

Verſ. 1, 2, 3. HAving ſpoken of the eſtate of the Jews, as moſt lamentable in the words before-going, now he ſtirs up himſelf to lament, and ſheweth the cauſe, their adulteries and deceitfulneſſe, for which he upbraids them for ſuch as know not God, becauſe to know and not to do, is not to be wiſe, but fooliſh, as Chap. 4. 22. and verſ. 4, 5, 6. are nothing elſe but a further amplifying of the ſame. For which he ſaith verſ. 7. I will melt them, or try or examine, as a

Verſ. 7. Goldſmith trieth gold and ſilver in the fire, and then it will appear what it is; ſo the fire of Gods wrath burning againſt them, he meaneth, that their deceitfulneſſe ſhould be diſcovered, which now lay hid from men, and they ſhould bear the ſhame of it, a Metaphor often uſed by the Prophets. For how ſhould I deal with the daughter of my people? I will make any man judge, whether I can deal otherwiſe then thus with her.

Verſ. 10. Upon the mountains I will take up a lamentation, and upon the fields. Having ſought to ſtirre up in them what ſorrow he could for the evils to come upon them; now ſeeing that their ſtupidity was ſuch that they would not be moved, he fals again to lamenting their mountains and fields, as intimating that they ſhould be ſafe in no place from the fury of their enemies, whetherſoever they ſhould flee either into plain places or hilly.

Verſ. 15. I will feed them with wormwood, and give them water of gall. Calvin, With bitterneſſe, becauſe wormwood is an wholſom herb, although bitter, and whereſoever the like is ſpoken, it is in an evil ſenſe, ſomething being meant that tends to the deſtruction rather then the preſervation of the body, for which gall is joined to it, which is poiſon; ſo that he meaneth, whereas his fatherly indulgence hath been ſuch towards them that he hath fed them with wheat, milk and honey now his affection ſhould be ſo farre alienated from them, that he would make them eat and drink that which ſhould be their deſtruction in the cruelleſt manner. See the like phraſe Deuter. 19. 18. Chap. 32. 32. Hab. 2. 13.

Verſ. 17. Call for mourning women. The Prophet ſeeing the Jews moſt hard to be moved to lament their own deſtruction to come, bids them call to them mourning women, that by their mournfull repreſenting of the caſe of the dead, and the loſſe of the living hereby; and the ſad condition of all men, who cannot live long, but muſt die alſo, and be pluckt from wives, children, and all that they have within a ſhort time, and be carried into the Land of darkneſs, to become worms meat, being diſpoiled of underſtanding, wit, reaſon and utterance, ſtrength and beauty being in a ſhort time turned to horrid anatomies, they might be moved to do that unto which he could by no means move them by his moſt pathetical repreſenting of Gods deſtroying judgements unto them. And he ſpeaketh thus to make them aſhamed; as if he had ſaid, If after thus much ſpeaking, no ſorrow can be ſtirred up in your hard and unbelieving hearts, go to ſuch theatrical women, and ſee, if by them ye can be brought to ſorrowing. For by ſhewing extream grief and acting cunningly the part of mourners, ſuch women wrang tears commonly, yea wrang tears abundance from the eyes of all beholders. But he had in truth acted the part of an whole State periſhing together in the moſt pathetical manner that he could, repreſenting alſo the ſame in the moſt horrid manner, as preſent before their eyes, yet they lamented not, although the caſe were not anothers, but their own. His bidding them therefore to call for ſuch women, is not ſerious but ironical, mocking at their vanity, in that they were moved commonly ſo much at a matter of nothing in compariſon, and were not grieved at all, but rather laughed at all his incitements to ſorrow, as if no ſuch thing ſhould ever happen unto them, as he would make them believe. Calvin will not have this a ground for the lawfulneſs of calling together mourners at funerals, but rather ſpeaketh againſt this cuſtom. I cannot but think it indifferent, although not to be grounded upon this, and that ſome may by ſuch means be more affected with ſorrow in ſeeing ſo ſad a ſpectacle to think the more ſeriouſly upon their own mortality, and the rather to make themſelves ready for the coming of their Lord, for which Solomon ſaith, It is better to go into the houſe of mourning then of feaſting; and when Jacob was buried there was a great mourning made for him; and mourning for the dead is not forbidden to us, but immoderately, as thoſe that are without hope. 1 Theſſ.5.

Verſ.20. Hear the word of the Lord, ye women with your ears hear. Having bidden them before call for mourning women that might frame themſelves to pretend great grief for hire, and act this part ſo cunningly, that the ſpectators might be moved to ſhed tears; now he enlargeth himſelf further, calling upon all women to mourn, and not the few Conductitiæ before-ſpoken of only, the cauſe being common to women all over the Land. And he ſpeaks to women rather then men here, becauſe that by nature they were more apt to weep at calamities, and he had before begun to ſpeak of them, and men had not been left untoucht in the premiſſes. And he biddeth them hear and hear with their ears by a Pleonaſme to ſtir them up the more to hearken, as to a matter of great moment, in regard of which they ſhould rather neglect to attend to any thing elſe then to this.

Verſ.21. And what is it, but that Death is come up into our windows? The Jews think if their wals be ſtrong, and their gates and doors faſt ſhut and barr'd, that no enemy can come to hurt them, but they ſhall be utterly deceived, death ſhall be ſent in by the higheſt windows, God that brings deſtruction can bring it any way, and they are but fools that think otherwiſe. Therefore mourn all tender-hearted women, as for that which ſhall certainly come, and teach your daughters to mourn, for the judgement ſhall extend to you all young and old, one another, yea and ſtrong Palaces of the great ones ſhall defend them no more, then the cottages of the poor.

Verſ.23. Let not the wiſe man glory in his wiſdom, &c. Theſe words are to be taken as cohering with thoſe before *verſ.*21,22. where death and becoming as dung after death is threatned to the wicked Jews. Now leaſt any amongſt them ſhould bearing himſelf either upon his wiſdom, riches or ſtrength ſay, I care not what thou threatneſt, I have wit enough, or wealth, or ſtrength enough to ſave one, he admoniſheth them here not to do ſo, for all theſe are but a deceitfull foundation, but to turn to the Lord and in him only ſo doing to be confident and comfortable, becauſe to ſuch the Lord will be ready to ſhew loving kindneſs and mercy, let men rage againſt them what they can, as *Pſal.*3.

Verſ.25. I will puniſh all the uncircumciſed with the circumciſed, Hebr. The circumciſed in uncircumciſion. Here the Prophet concludes with terrour to the Jews, if they had any hope yet notwithſtanding all that was before-ſaid, becauſe they were the peculiar people of God, a circumciſed Nation, having the ſign of his covenant upon their fleſh. It was, he ſaith, but circumciſion in uncircumciſion, and therefore ſhould not profit them, the fleſh, which was of leaſt Jer.4.4. moment, circumciſed, but the heart, the circumciſion whereof is principally required, not. And therefore they muſt look to eſcape no better, who were of Judah then of Egypt, Ammon, Edom or Moab ſometime confederates with Judah for which they are mentioned together. If it be ſaid, Egypt and Edom were alſo circumciſed in the fleſh, why then is this diſtinction made, They are all uncircumciſed, and Judah uncircumciſed in heart? Anſw. Although they were circumciſed, yet the Jews challenged this for their peculiar priviledge, accounting themſelves for it the only people in Gods favour in all the world, wherefore it is ſpoken by way of conceſſion, Let your diſtinction paſſe for current, they are uncircumciſed notwithſtanding their circumciſion, ſo are ye in Gods account, and ye and they without difference ſhall, when Gods judgements come pell mell, ſuffer together. See the like *Rom.*2.28,29. and as it is with the Note. uncircumciſed in heart, ſo ſhall it be with the unbaptized in ſpirit, the outward 1 Pet.3.19. waſhing with water ſaves not if that be away.

CHAP. X.

Verſ.2. Learn not the wayes of the Heathen, neither be diſmayed at the ſigns of heaven, for the Heathen are diſmayed at them. Some make a queſtion, whether this was ſpoken to the ten Tribes already in Captivity, to warn them againſt Aſtrologers in Caldea, and the Idolatries there practiſed, or to the Jews which ſhould ſhortly be carried thither, that they might not then be corrupted thus. But I ſee no cauſe of this queſtion, for the Prophet might profitably thus warn the Jews being yet in Judea, in going on in the Argument in hand about fearing or not fearing the judgements by him threatned. And he ſeemeth to me, after that he had uſed one argument to make them to be affected hereat, taken from mourning women, *Chap.*9.17. now to enter upon another taken from Aſtrologers, whoſe predictions by the ſtars, the ſigns of heaven, they greatly feared, but the judgements fore-told by the Lord to come upon them they feared not. For it is his chief ſcope in this Chapter by comparing the Lord and Idols together, to ſhew his excellency and their vanity, and conſequently how much the predictions of his ſervants are to be regarded, to ſtirre us up to repentance for the preventing of them, and how little the predictions of Idols ſervants, ſuch as Aſtrologers are, who fear men by the ſigns of heaven, teaching a fatal neceſſity, that whatſoever is thereby portended according to their judgement made upon the conſtellations and ſeveral aſpects of the Planets, or upon the appearing of the fixed ſtars, ſhall certainly come to paſſe, not only in reſpect of the alteration of weather, but of good or evil to befall particular perſons according to the time of their birth, or undertaking buſineſs at this or that time, or to whole Nations in reſpect of peace or warre, health or infection, plenty, or famine, or alterations to better or worſe. Now to diſſwade them from taking heed to theſe Prophets, he ſaith, that it is the way of Heathens to fear for their predictions by the ſtars, and therefore he bids them leave this vanity to them alone, which is his menacing, when he ſaith, For the Heathen are diſmayed at them, as our Lord in another caſe having ſpoken againſt Matth.6. diſtracting cares of this life, ſaith, For after all theſe things do the Heathen ſeek.] Whether the ſigns of heaven be not at all to be feared, or how farre forth heed may be taken to them, or what is to be thought of the Aſtrologian art, whether it be lawfull or not by the ſtars to judge of events, I ſhall not ſpeak here, becauſe I have ſaid ſomething to this already upon *Iſa.*47. 13. Onely I ſay, that in this place the unlawfulneſs or lawfulneſs of judiciary Aſtrology comes not in queſtion, but that fear of the ſigns of heaven, in which they are looked at as gods, viz. the Sunne, Moon and Starres, and worſhipped, that they might not hurt, but be propitious and favourable, which as a moſt groſſe ſinne is ſpoken of, *Deut.*4.19. and the Hebrews are ſtraitly charged againſt it. Thus fear not the ſigns of heaven, but acknowledge them to be but ſervants, whether their aſpects be favourable or adverſe, and that the great Creator of them and us all can at his pleaſure croſſe them in their operations, according as he is by us in faith and repentance, ſought or not ſought unto from time to time. And that the Prophet ſpeaks in this ſenſe appears, becauſe after forbidding to fear theſe ſigns, he immediately inveigheth againſt Idols, *verſ.*3,4,&c. which would have no coherence with this, but only in the ſenſe before-going, but in that ſenſe the coherence is good. Fear them not, that is, account them not Deities to worſhip them, as if they had power; and that ye may have them alwayes before you for this end, make not Images of them, for this were the greateſt vanity or folly that could be, as is ſhewed at large here, and *Iſa.*46.

Verſ.17. Gather thy Wares (O thou that dwelleſt in the munition) Here the Prophet returns again to the threatning of the judgment by the Caldees wherewith he began, ſpeaking to them as a people even now ready to be ſpoiled of all their goods. For as when the enemy cometh they gather all things of worth together into ſtrong holds to ſave them out of their hands, leaving other places bare before them, ſo he cals upon them in this verſe to do. Yet ſo he threatneth *verſ.*18. Verſ.18. that they ſhould ſave nothing, for even out of theſe ſtrong holds, he ſaith, that he would ſling them at this time, as a ſtone is ſlung, and diſtreſſe them ſo, that they ſhould certainly finde it thus, the enemy after ſtreightning by ſiege breaking in to their ſtrongeſt holds, and diſpoſſeſſing them thereof, and making them with ſpeed to go afarre off into Captivity, as a ſtone is caſt farre by a ſling. Thus alſo Calvin, who ſaith, that Hebrew Expoſitors apply verſ. 17. to the Caldees, as if their gathering of the ſpoils taken from them by the Jews were meant: but this is altogether from the purpoſe.

Verſ.19. Woe is me for my hurt, my wound is grievous. Here Jeremiah to aggravate the judgement ſpoken of, *ver.*18. the more, turns himſelf, as it were, into the perſon of all Judah, thus teaching them what they ſhould do, viz. be already affected with this deſtruction ſhortly to come, as if it were already come, confeſſing it to be juſt, and therefore patiently reſolving to bear it. And that the Prophet ſpeaks this in the perſon of Judah, and to teach that whole ſtate, is made plain by the next words.

Verſ.20. My tabernacle is diſſolved, and all my cords broken, &c. A metaphorical expreſſion ſetting forth the utter deſtruction of Jeruſalem, even as when a Camp is quite broken up, not any Tent, or part of a Tent being left ſtanding.

Verſ.23. O Lord, I know that the way of man is not in himſelf, it is not in man that walketh to direct his ſteps. Having threatned deſtruction and deſolation to Judea, now becauſe the Jews contrariwiſe promiſed themſelves ſafety, partly by their own power and preparations, that they could make to defend themſelves, and partly by the help of the Ægyptians their confederates, he leaveth them and turneth his ſpeech to the Lord, as being out of hope to perſwade them to fear the evil to come, and in fearing to turn from their ſins, that ſo it might be prevented. And what ſaith he, but in effect that they were vain in their imaginations, becauſe men may prepare to the battel, and promiſe to themſelves good ſucceſs, but when they are armed and ſtrengthned by humane help according to their hearts deſire, they have gone as farre as they can, they are able to effect nothing, but any forces coming againſt them that are ſtirred up by God to puniſh them for their ſins, although fewer, ſhall eaſily deſtroy and break their whole ſtrength, but much more the Caldees a Nation ſo populous and mighty; Thus Calvin. But Jerom, Theod. Rabanus expound it of Nebuchadnezzar, it is not in that man that walketh to direct his wayes, that is, he cannot come and prevail without thee, becauſe having ſaid לאדם he addeth לאיש ſignifying only one more mighty. And as this is firſt and properly ſpoken to the caſe in hand, ſo it is generally true being underſtood of going in the way by God appointed us, that we may be bleſſed and happy for ever. Our endeavouring ſufficeth not, but God works the will and the deed of his own good pleaſure. Phil.2.13. The Pelagians hence gather, becauſe it is ſaid, It is not in man that walketh to direct his goings, that he can by his own ſtrength walk in this way, but he muſt be holpen by Gods grace, that he may be perfect. But this is to gather more then is intended, his walking being ſpoken of only by way of conceſſion, as if it were ſuppoſed if he can walk, he muſt have ſtrength of grace from God ſo to do, otherwiſe he is altogether unable; it is as Chriſt elſwhere ſaith, Without me ye can do nothing; And as in the Canticles, Draw me, and I will runne after thee. But of this, that we can doe nothing without, but by the grace of God preventing and aſſiſting us, ſee my Notes upon Phil. 2.12. Hugo, Lyra and Dionyſius are for this laſt ſenſe onely, taking it as a ground of the prayer *verſ.*22. ſith man cannot go right but erre and ſinne of himſelf, Be not ſo ſevere unto me, becauſe I have ſinned, but uſe lenity in correcting me, *Auguſt.*lib.2. de cor. Scio ad correptionem meam pertinere quod minus à te adjuvor, ut perfectè dirigantur greſſus mei, veruntamen ob hoc noli mecum agere tanquam in furore, quo iniquos nos damnare ſtatuiſti, ſed tanquam in judicio, quo doces tuos non ſuperbire.

Verſ.24. O Lord, correct me, but in judgement, not in anger. Seeing it is not in man to direct his wayes: unleſſe by thy grace he be kept from evil, he ſhall be ready ſtill to go on in ſinne againſt all admonitions, Correct me for ſinne, I pray thee in the perſon of this people, not in anger to deſtruction, as aiming at nothing elſe, but let thy correction come on me, as a judgement here for my bettering, that I may more conſtantly abide in thy favour hereafter. So that he doth not pray againſt all judgements, For it is good for me, ſaith David, that prayed likewiſe, Pſal.6.1. that I have been afflicted; but that judgements might be ſo order'd that a greater good to the ſoul might hence redound unto the people, then hurt unto their bodies and outward ſtate. And thus theſe two verſes cohere excellently together, the former being underſtood according to Lyra and Auguſtine. And likewiſe being underſtood according to Calvin, the want of power in man to refrain from going in an evil way of hardening his heart againſt Gods threatnings, is by the Prophet made a ground of pleading for mitigation, when judgements ſhould come.

Verſ.25. Pour out thy Wrath upon the Heathen that know thee not, &c. It may ſeem ſtrange that Jeremiah ſhould pray thus againſt all other Nations, ſeeing it is unknown to man, what he will finally do with them, although for the preſent they be in a reprobate condition. But it is to be underſtood, that he prayeth not thus againſt them all for ever, but againſt the reprobates amongſt them, ſuch as the Caldees and other Nations, joining with them, did maliciouſly in moſt barbarous cruelty deſtroy the Jews and their Cities, as the following words do declare, They have devoured Jacob, &c. Theſe words therefore are nothing elſe but a pronouncing them accurſed for ever, and uncapable of any mercy, that be reprobates, and ſuch as ſhall not be judged in mercy, as Gods peculiar people, but in fury, and they are deſcribed that be ſuch, they know not God. 2. They call not upon his name, for how ſhall he that knows not God call upon him. 3. They devour and conſume Jacob, they are infeſt enemies to the faithfull, working from time to time what they can againſt them, as Cain againſt Abel, Eſau againſt Jacob, Saul againſt David, and the Scribes and Phariſees againſt Chriſt. Note. The Lords proceeding againſt his people ſinning and them, ſhall be divers in the end, theſe ſhall be onely corrected and amended by ſufferings and ſaved, theſe confounded and periſh for ever.

CHAP. XI.

Verſ.1,2,3,4,5. HEre Jeremiah is commanded again to ſpeak unto the Jews, and to repeat from the beginning Gods gracious dealing with them in taking them into his Covenant, which was, that they ſhould obey his Commandments, and ſo be his people, and he their God. And his accurſing of all that do not, according to *Deut.*27.26. out of each ones own mouth, whereunto Jeremiah in the ſame of them all ſaith Amen, for ſo they were all required to ſay. Here all things are eaſie to be underſtood, only *verſ.*2. becauſe he ſaith, Hear ye, and tell ye in the plural number, and yet *verſ.*3. Say thou, who are meant by this plurality? Either Jeremiah, together with Baruch, or with other Prophets of that time. See a like ſpeech *Hoſ.*2.1. Abdiah or Obadiah 1.1.

A conſpiracy is found in the men of Judah, &c. To aggravate their ſin of Idolatry the more, he cals it a conſpiracy of the Jews and Iſraelites alſo, verſ. 10. that is, the ten Tribes, with whom the kingdom of Judah was alwayes at deadly feud, and never ceaſed warring, yet to break the Covenant of God they readily conſented together, as Herod and Pontius Pilate, Phariſees and Herodians and Sadduces, Jews and Gentiles to perſecute Chriſt. Such conſpiracies are daily amongſt the wicked, although otherwiſe at enmity one with another, to tear the holy Name of God with oaths, to ſerve the drunken god Bacchus by drunkenneſs, and Mammon by covetous wreſting and wringing, defrauding and circumventing, and the fleſh by ſenſual living. Verſ.9. Note.

They ſhall cry unto me, and I will not hear them. This may ſeem ſtrange, ſeeing it is ſaid, Call upon me in the time of trouble, and I will hear and deliver thee. But when they cry and are not heard, that live in ſinne ſtill, and have no hearts to turn therefrom, it is no marvel. For it is by the ſame Prophet ſaid, If I regard iniquity in my heart, God will not hear my prayer, Pſal.66.18. Now the Jews are charged, as they cried to God, ſo to have ſought to falſe gods, *verſ.*12. even as the Papiſts not contenting themſelves to call upon God only, think the rather to prevail by ſeeking to both he and ſhe Saints alſo. But here is a plain denial of audience to any that do ſo, becauſe they rob God of his peculiar honour, which he ſaith expreſly, he will not give to another, not only God, but creature, how excellent ſoever, whether Sun, Moon, or Stars, or Angels in the higheſt heaven, and therefore not to Saints. Verſ. 11,12. Pſal.50.14. Note. Col.2.16.

According to the number of thy Cities are thy gods. Thus he begins the verſe, but ends it, ſaying, That they offered incenſe to Baal, ſetting up Altars for this purpoſe, In all the ſtreets of Jeruſalem. And if to Baal, which is but one, How can they be charged with having ſo many gods? Anſw. By Baal a ſingular being put for a plural, all their under-gods, which were of a kinde, were meant. For the Heathen had one principal god, and all the reſt, which they held to be as Mediators to him, were called Baalim; ſo Calvin, and of them the Jews learned to do the like. Verſ.13. Calvin.

*Verſ.*14. is the ſame with *Chap.*7.16.

What hath my beloved to do in my houſe? ſhe hath wrought lewdneſſe with many, when ſhe doth evil ſhe glorieth. Having profeſſed before not to hear his people praying, becauſe they adjoyned to him many corrivals, now he challengeth them ſaying, What haſt thou to do in my houſe? For by beloved here the Jew is doubtleſſe meant, though many think otherwiſe that Jeremiah is meant, ſaith Calvin. What doſt thou praying in my houſe any more, ſith that I have rejected all their prayers? And he ſaith, that we ſhall not need to be moved at this word [beloved] now given to the Jew, for they were elected in their fathers, and for their ſakes called beloved, even in their ſtate of infidelity, Rom. 11.28. And whereas the Maſculine gender is in the next word varied into the Feminine; for the word beloved in the Hebrew is a Maſculine, he ſaith, That this is ordinary under the title of a daughter to ſet forth Jeruſalem, her lewdnes wrought with many was with many falſe gods complained of before. The holy fleſh is paſſed from thee, that is, Thou haſt no pure Sacrifice to come withall unto me, and therefore canſt not come acceptably; for thy lewdneſs makes thy Sacrifices of fleſh and fat, although of the beſt, to be vain, as is plainly ſaid, *Iſa.*1.11,12. And hereby art thou rendred the more abominable, becauſe whilſt thou doſt thus ill thou wilt not be brought to be aſhamed, but glorieſt and boaſteſt of thy priviledge, as if ſtill thou wert a more excellent people then any other, and dearer to God, ſo that what judgements ſoever be threatned, thou ſhalt eſcape them well enough. The Vulgar Latine Verſ.15. Calvin.

Hieron.
Lyra.
Theod.
Hugo.
Iſidor.
Kimchi.
Vatabl.
Note.
Pagnin.
Vatablus.

to make this the more plain according to the ſenſe before-going, renders it, Quid eſt, quod dilectus meus in domo mea fecit ſcelera multa? and Jerom explains it of the abominations ſet up in the Temple in the dayes of Manaſſeh: So likewiſe Theod. Lyranus, Th. Aquinas, as if he had ſaid, Why ſhould I not caſt him out therefore, as I have threatned? Hugo and Iſidor. What doth my beloved ſervant Jeremiah praying in my houſe ſtill for this City, which hath committed ſo great wickedneſſes? And this reading is more agreeable to the Hebrew, wherein it is word for word, What to my beloved in my houſe? ſhe hath done Wickedneſſe, yea many Wickedneſſes, or With many, that is, falſe gods, as was before complained. This is cenſured by Calvin as an utter miſtaking, but moſt favoured by the Hebrew Text, which changeth the gender, having ſpoken firſt in the Maſculine, and then ſpeaking in the Feminine. So that if it be thus taken, the ſenſe will be without all exception, Jeremiah being bidden, ver. 14. to pray no more for them, hath the ſame here further inculcated, and a reaſon yielded, She hath done filthineſſe many Wayes, thus alſo it is a reaſon rendring why her prayers ſhould not be heard, as was together threatned ver. 14. Kimhi and Vatablus will have it to be the ſpeech of Jeremiah to God, or Chriſt, whom he calleth his beloved; but the words, My houſe, will not bear this. The next words in vulgar are, Will thy holy fleſh take away thy Wickedneſſe? So likewiſe the Septurgint, and Jerom and Theodoret explain it accordingly, Hebr. They ſhall make to paſſe away, or take away holy fleſh from thee, that is, thy Idolatries ſhall cauſe that thy Sacrifices ſhall not be accepted as holy, but deteſted as abominable, and for them the Temple being burnt, and thou carried away into Captivity, they ſhall ceaſe and be no more offered at all. Note hence, that ſin annihilateth holineſſe in any of our performances, as in the Sacrifices of the wicked there is fleſh, but no holy fleſh, that is taken away, and ſo there is nothing accepted, but deteſted of God. Some by the holy fleſh threatned to be taken away, underſtand holy Prieſts, that ſhould be carried into Captivity, that is, ſanctified or ſet apart to this holy office, but this were very improper to call men ſerving at the Altar, fleſh.

Verſ. 16. The Lord called thy name a green Olive Tree, fair, and of goodly fruit. To make their miſery to appear the more, he recounts what the Jew was, a green and flouriſhing Olive tree, ſo Rom. 11. they are ſet forth as branches of the beſt Olive, and Zac. 4. 14. Rev. 11. 4. we read of two witneſſes of God called Olive Trees, which ſheweth, that this is a name of thoſe that be moſt famous and excellent, as Enoch and Elias, whom Tertullian calleth æternitatis candidatos, glorious for their eternity, even in their bodies. Of the Olive tree there be many rare properties, for which the Church is ſet forth hereby. Firſt, the wood thereof is not ſubject to corrupt in any continuance of time, either by wet or wormeating, for which it is the emblem of eternity. Secondly, It is moſt fruitfull, for which the juſt are compared to trees that in age bring forth more fruit Pſal. 92. Thirdly, it is moſt fat in the oyle; For which Eſa. 5. 1. for a fat ſoile, the ſoile where the vine was planted, is ſaid to be filius oleæ, the child of an Olive. Fourthly, The leaves of the Olive tree never wither, but are always green Hoſea 14. 6. Iſrael ſhall be as the dew, as the lily, the root of Libanus, and his glory as an Olive tree. Fifthly, an Olive branch is an emblem of peace, for which the Dove ſent out by Noah returned with an Olive branch in her mouth, and it is fabled by the Poets, that Neptune and Minerva being at ſtrife, whether of them ſhould be chief, he alledged, that he ruled over the water, without which nothing can grow; ſhe, that ſhe planted the Olive, the emblem of peace, without which no ſtate can proſper, and then which nothing is more ſweet or more deſirable, and it was given on her ſide. Sixthly, The Olive Tree is a ſigne of mercy, for which cauſe Solomon made two Cherubims of Olive wood, and placed them ſo as to cover the mercy ſeat. 1 Kings 6. 31. Seventhly, The Olive tree though very fruitfull, hath very little and pale leaves, or green inclining to pale, ſo the fruitfull being very fruitfull in good, make no outward ſhew, are full of mercy and peace, and green through joy in tribulation, and have oyl in their lamps unto the end, are not to be corrupted by adverſity or proſperity, threatnings or promiſes, profits, or pleaſures, but continue alwayes ſound in the faith to their dying day. To conclude this of the Olive Tree, Phædrus in the praiſe of it telleth this ſtory, Upon a time the gods ſhould chooſe each one a tree, of which he would be the patron, Jupiter the Oak, Venus the Mirtle, Phœbus the Bay, Cybela the Pine, Hercules the Poplar; Minerva wondring asked, why they choſe all barren trees, none of them fruitful? Jupiter anſwered, leaſt they ſhould ſeem to value profit above honour. But in truth, ſaid Minerva, chooſe ye as ye pleaſe, I think the Olive moſt worthy to be preferred for the fruitfulneſſe. Then Jupiter, (O daughter) I ſee that thou art wiſeſt of them all, for unleſſe it be profitable that we doe, fooliſh is our glory. With the noiſe of a great tumult he hath kindled fire upon it, Hebr. At the voice, or in the voice of a great circumciſing or cutting down, for ſo the word המולה ſignifieth, it is ſpoken thus, in alluding to that which was ſaid in the beginning of the verſe, The Lord called thy name an Olive, fair and fruitful: but in ſtead of this voice another of cutting off the branches of this Olive ſhall be heard when the Caldees ſhall burn the City and Temple with fire, and all the Palaces and ſtately buildings, as branches of the City, ſhall by them be broken down. Jerom deriveth it from המל to ſpeak, and renders it, At the voice of a great ſpeech, as of a thunder, but expounds it as before. It may be underſtood either of the voice of God calling the Caldees to do this execution, becauſe they had not regarded his mild voice of honouring them with ſo glorious a name of a green Olive Tree, or of the tumultuous voice of the Caldees, when they deſtroyed them. Whereas ſome underſtand it of the voice of vainglorious ſpeaking in their part, as if this were here pointed at, as the cauſe of their deſtruction; it is further fetcht, and doth not ſo well agree with the words, which ſhew not the cauſe, but the manner of their deſtruction, in the noiſe of cutting and hewing with the ſword, after which burning with fire followeth. And this is further confirmed. Verſe 17. For the Lord that planted thee, hath ſpoken evill againſt thee; therefore in this terrible ſpeech or voice, or according to it he will kindle a fire, &c. for his planting, it is a metaphorical ſpeech, as alſo Eſa. 5. and in many other places, it being meant in that pleaſant and fruitful Country caſting the Canaanites out.

Phæd. l. 3. emblem.

Verſ. 17.

And the Lord hath given me knowledge of it, and thou ſhewedſt me their doings, Here the Prophet ſheweth, that for his propheſying of the judgments before ſpoken of, which to do yet he was ſet on work by God: (for he had not known theſe things, but that God ſhewed him them) his life was ſought by thoſe of his City Anathoth, but without cauſe, he being, if they ſhould ſlay him, but as a Lamb or an Ox, ready in ſilence and patiently to ſuffer. Some expound this of Chriſt, becauſe he is often compared to a Lamb, or Sheep, as Eſa. 53. Ioh. 1. &c. but it is certain that Jeremy ſpeaketh of himſelf, yet that herein he was a type of Chriſt, as other Prophets alſo were, I deny not.

Verſ. 18.

Let me ſee thy vengeance on them, Ver. 19. he hath ſaid, that he was as a Lamb, but how doth he now acquit himſelf like a Lamb? is this to do to call for vengeance? An. He did not this out of impatience, ſaith Calvin, but pure zeal of the ſpirit, as God directed him, as he was a man he ſubmitted himſelf patiently to bear even death it ſelf, although never ſo unjuſtly inflicted upon him being innocent, but as rapt by a prophetical ſpirit, he ſpeaketh thus bitterly againſt that crue of reprobates, his example being herein ſingular, to ſhew malicious wicked men, that perſecute their innocent teachers, what vengeance hangeth over their heads, and not to be commonly imitated by us: and that he was herein guided by the ſpirit appeareth, becauſe that immediately the Lord bad him propheſie vengeance to the men of Anathoth. Verſ. 21. 22. Thy young men ſhall die by the ſword (that is) ſuch as are able to bear arms, And thy ſons and daughters by famine, that is, the reſt of the weak multitude of children and women, in the time of ſiege, cauſing ſcarcity and unſeaſonable weather, hindring the in-

Verſ. 20.

Calvin.

Note.

Verſ. 21, 22.

increaſe of the fruits of the earth, as was before threatned, Chap. 8. 13.

Verſ.23. And I will leave no remnant of the men of Anathoth, Chap. 4. 27. It is ſaid, I will not make an end; and *Iſa.*1. and Chap. 10. A remnant ſhall be left, therefore the Town or City which ſeeks the ruine of the Prophet amongſt them daily to inſtruct and admoniſh them in particular, provoke God moſt amongſt them of all others, and therefore ſhall be judged above other wicked people, not one of them being ſpared, as it was with Sodom, where they all banded together againſt juſt Lot. The Ieruſolymitans were alſo cruelly bent againſt Ieremy, but Anathoth was his habitation, he went but ſometimes to Ieruſalem to propheſie, but here he was continually, and they had more experience of his unblamable life, zeal and ſanctity, and partake more of his labours. Therefore their ſin was greateſt by farre; and hereby the more aggra- Note. vated, that when he came home, thinking in his own Town to have ſome refreſhing by kinde entertainment there after his hard encounters with the men of Jeruſalem, they contrariwiſe conſpired againſt him, and increaſed his trouble more. Yea it is moſt probable that they made the Jeruſolymitans more in- Act.16. ſenſe againſt him, by traducing him to them, as the Jews afterwards in one Act.17. City where Paul had preached, followed him to another, to ſtirre up perſecution againſt him there alſo. And as the manner of theſe our times is, they of a Paſtors own flock are his cruelleſt enemies, both at home and abroad, not being moved by his piety, learning or gravity, but againſt all perſecuting, and outing him, if he be not in all their new devices according to the mindes of a few humorous perſons amongſt them. And the like befell our Lord, That Prophet was not without honour, ſaving in his own Countrey, for which he ſo terribly thunders againſt Chorazin, Bethſaida, and Capernaum, preferring even Matth.11. Chap.12. Sodom before them at the day of Judgement.

CHAP. XII.

Verſ.1. Thou art juſt, O Lord, when I plead with thee yet let me talk with thee of thy Judgments. Having complained of the men of Anathoth, Cha.11.20. Now becauſe that for the preſent they were in a proſperous condition, notwithſtanding their moſt treacherous dealing with him, and the ſins wherein they lived, which he ſaith that the Lord had ſhewed him, and the terrible threatning of deſtroying judgments, therefore he firſt profeſſing that he beleeved God to be juſt in his dealings towards all men, craveth leave to ask of the Lord the reaſon of this and ſuch other like judgments, Why contrary to his threatnings and the deſerts of their wickedneſſe, he dealt thus in the interim by them? For by his Judgments he meaneth his dealing in any kinde, either by proſperity or adverſity, becauſe all things are judiciouſly moderated by his providence, but why the wicked ſhould proſper for a time and treacherous perſons, thus ſeeming to have the better of Gods righteous ſervants, is a thing ſo deep and hidden, that man cannot ſee into it. For this Gods judgements are ſaid to be a Pſal.36.6. great deep, and Deep calleth to deep. Wherefore Jeremiah in all humility asketh Pſal.42.6. leave to demand the reaſon of God, from whom he muſt learn it, that would be herein ſatisfied, and whilſt he cannot yet hold firmly to this principle, that God is juſt in all his wayes, and righteous in all his works. Thus alſo Job 21. Pſ. 73. *Hab.*1. Iob, David and Habbakkuk make the ſame humble demand. For it had need to be reſolved, becauſe that for this ſeeming partiall dealing, ſome think that there is no God, ſome that he cares not for humane affairs, or if he doth, not for particulars, or not more for the faithful that daily ſerve him, then for the wicked that care not for the knowledge of his wayes, or walking therein, as Epictetus ſaith. Yet the very Heathen that were wiſer then the reſt, have alwayes acknowledged a divine providence moderating even in the proſperity of the wicked, as of Ruffinus, who by the favour of Theodoſius Emperor being highly advanced, abuſed his favour to pride and ambition, in ſo much that he moved to have a match betwixt his daughter and Arcadius the Emperours Son, and prevailed ſo farre, that a day was ſet for it, and to proclaim him and Arcadius conſortes imperii: but the ſame day he was cut in pieces by the ſouldiers. Before this was done, the Heathen complained grievouſly againſt the juſtice and providence of the gods: but being done, they ſaw, that ſo wicked a man was but lifted up to be caſt down by the greater fall, and ſo all their murmuring ceaſed. Whereupon Claudian thus, Claudian.

Abſtulit hunc tandem Ruffini pœna tumultum, Abſolvit deos; jam non ad culmina rerum
Injuſtos creviſſe queror; tolluntur in altum, Ut lapſu gravior ruant.

So here, Thou haſt planted them, thou art near in their mouth, but far from their Verſ.2.
reines, that is, in word acknowledged by them, according to ſome: but by others better, by giving ſucceſſe to what they ſpeak, and do. For *Ver.*4. They ſay he ſhall not ſee our laſt end, that is, he will never puniſh us with deſtruction, notwithſtanding his terrible threatnings. But Pull them out, ſaith he, as Verſ.3.
ſheep to the ſlaughter, intimating, that ſo it ſhould ſoon be, and then the earth and dumb creatures ſhould ſuffer no longer by their means, as before their deſtruction is ſhewed, *verſ.*4. that they ſhould do, and this is yielded as a reaſon, becauſe that being ſo vile and wicked, and therefore threatned, they were nothing moved hereby, but as contemning it, ſaid, That God ſhould never Verſ.4. take revenge upon them, ſo as that they ſhould be cut off, none being left, as is threatned Chap. 11.23. For theſe words *Verſ.*3. Prepare them for the day of ſlaughter, the Hebrew is, Sanctifie them, being ſo ſpoken, becauſe the wicked being deſtroyed are offered as it were in Sacrifice to Gods juſtice, and therefore the ſame word is uſed, that in ſetting beaſts apart for Sacrifice. And withall by this ſimilitude of ſheep fatted to the ſlaughter, is intimated, the reaſon of Gods ſo favourable dealing with the wicked in preſent; he doth by them but as a Graſier by his ſheep and oxen, feeds them fully and daintily, to fat them up againſt the day of ſlaughter: for to make them fit for Sacrifice, they muſt firſt be thus kept and made fat, ſith lean Sacrifices were not accepted.

Verſ.5.

If thou haſt runne with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, How canſt thou contend with the horſes? Here the Lord anſwereth Jeremiah, complaining of the wickedneſſe and treachery of the men of his own Town Anathoth, and demanding of him why they were ſuffered yet in ſuch a proſperous eſtate. And it is as if he had ſaid (Oh Jeremiah) rouſe up thy languiſhing ſpirits, art thou carried by the harſh dealing of the Anathothites with thee? how ſhalt thou bear the perſecutions of the Jeroſolymitans? for thoſe are but as footmen in compariſon, theſe through their multitudes, riches and greatneſſe, as horſmen; thoſe as a Land of peace in compariſon of theſe, who may be likened to the ſwellings of Jordan, that overfloweth and drowneth all things farre off in the time of its overflowing the banks. For Jeruſalem was notorious for perſecuting and killing the Prophets, Anathoth and other ſmall Cities, not, becauſe we read not of ſuch outrages ever done there, ſo that Anathoth might well be counted a Land of peace in compariſon of Jeruſalem. Thus Lyra, Cald. Vatablus.

Mat.23.
Lyra.
Caldæus.
Vatabl.

Verſ.6.

And the next words do further confirm this, For even thy brethren have dealt treacherouſly with thee, and cried after thee. That is, the men of Anathoth threatning thee with death for propheſying againſt them, and by this their oppoſition and cruelty thou art wearied, as hath been ſaid. And to their crying after him is added מלא ſignifying full, according to our phraſe amain, or with full mouth, as if the men of any place being offended with one amongſt them, ſhould cry one to another Kill, kill him, as the Jews did afterwards againſt Chriſt, Crucifie, crucifie him. And if they ſpeak goods words, believe them not, for their hearts are maliciouſly bent againſt thee, and if to make thee ſtay amongſt them ſtill, they ſhould ſpeak thee fair, it were but in diſſimulation, that they might the better effect their purpoſe againſt thee. For other Expoſitions brought by Jerom, Theodoret, Rabanus, Hugo, Thomas Aquinas, Calvin, taking theſe words, as ſpoken to the Jews in general by the Lord, and by their brethren, compared to footmen, the Moabites, Ammonites and Edomites, who by warring againſt them had wearied them, and by horſes the Caldees and ſwelling Iordan, becauſe they ſhould come in farre greater multitudes like a floud, as they are compared Chap.4.6,7. Iſa. 8.7. 59.19. Or by Iſidor, taking it as ſpoken to Ieremiah by way of reproof thus, Thou canſt not ſee into the treachery of thy own Citizens, and wouldſt thou know a reaſon of my doings? For theſe or any other, they may follow them that pleaſe; but I reſt in the firſt. Hieron. Theod. Calvin. Iſidor.

